THE SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
Stack .....
Case .....
Shelf.....
San Anselmo.

Wm Speer

PRESBYTERIAN HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF CALIFORNIA
ORGANIZED 1900
NO.....

DONATED BY REV WM. SPEER D.D.

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 675.] THURSDAY, JANUARY 4, 1883. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

PRESBYTERIAN HIST. SOC. OF CALIFORNIA

CONTENTS.

The Churches in Relation to Evangelistic Work 5
For the Young 7
Union Hall Mission 7
The Call and Duty of the New Year 8
Bible Readings on the Holy Spirit... 9
Co-Operation, not Competition 10
Evangelistic Work in France 11
A Cry from Egypt ... .11
Poetry—The Opening of the Year...11
Notes and Comments 12
Richard Weaver in Glasgow 12
A Meditation for the New Year.....13
Movements in Toronto 13
The Coming Week of Prayer 14
Mr. Von Schluembach in Berlin.....14
Midnight Meeting Movement.....15
Evangelistic Mission 15
Gospel Temperance in Lancaster ...15
Forty Years Ago 16
Evangelistic Movements.....16
Poetry—A New Year's Card 13
Messrs. Moody and Sankey.....17
Faith Miracles.....17
Commercial Travellers' Christian Association 18
A West-End Conference Hall.....18
Blackdown Hills Mission.....18

ST. GILES'S CHRISTIAN MISSION.

Employment of Discharged Prisoners.

Mr. HOWARD VINCENT, Director of Criminal Investigation, said at the recent supper to the criminal classes organised by the ST. GILES'S CHRISTIAN MISSION: "You Ladies and Gentlemen who sit beside me will learn with sorrow that the Mission is penniless. I fear even that the supper we have had has been provided on credit. Its funds are very limited, and they have been well applied. I would ask each of you to assist me in making known how useful is this charity. I am most desirous that the public should know what ample guarantee there is for the most profitable employment of any assistance it may extend to this Mission, and I say in the most positive manner that its direct influence in the prevention of crime is second only to its charitable objects."

Subscriptions and Donations will be gratefully received by the Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C., or the Superintendent, Mr. GEORGE HATTON, 12, Ampton-place, Regent's-square, W.C.

"THE REGIONS BEYOND."

Edited by Mrs. H. GRATTAN GUINNESS.

December Number Now Ready, Post Free, 3d.

CONTENTS:—Stanley and De Brazza on the Congo—New Stations at Kimorie and Lukungu—Encouragement at Banana—Return of Mr. Harvey—Departure of Mr. and Mrs. Craven—The Law of Love—First Impressions of Africa—Brethren in America—Return of Messrs. Cameron and Nicoll from China—Among the Indians of the Rocky Mountains—On the Deep—Notes on Norway by Mr. Guinness—Facts for Christian Workers. Order direct from Harley House, Bow, London, E.

THE SURGICAL AID SOCIETY.

ESTABLISHED 1862.

President—The Right Hon. the EARL of SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

The Society gives all kinds of surgical appliances to the afflicted poor. Number of appliances given last month, 610; since commencement, 42,100. FUNDS are earnestly SOLICITED to enable the Society to relieve the increasing number of patients. Bankers—Messrs. Barclay, Bevan & Co., 54, Lombard-street. Offices—Salisbury-square, Fleet-street, E.C.

WILLIAM TRESIDDER, Secretary.

Complete in One Volume, Handsomely Bound in Cloth extra, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, Price 7s. 6d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS, No. 2.

IN QUARTO SIZE.

Giving the 170 New and Additional Pieces (numbered from 272 to 441).

LARGE TYPE, SUITABLE FOR ORGAN, HARMONIUM, OR PIANO.

Uniform with the Quarto Edition of No. 1 Book of 271 Pieces.

The issue of the New Pieces of SONGS AND SOLOS, of which there are 170, is uniform with the Quarto Edition of the earlier pieces (of which there were 271). By the present publication the new tunes can be obtained in a convenient form for the instrument. And those who already possess the original work can complete their sets, by ordering this edition of the later pieces.

The book will also be published in Eleven Monthly Parts at 6d. each. Part III. now ready.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS.

The Infant Day Nursery. Shelter for homeless boys and girls, &c., High-street, Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving from G. D. 5s.; E. S. 2s. 6d.; A Follower of the Master, 2s. 6d.; L. E. W. £1; A. E. W. 10s.; H. D. 1s.; Sarah, 4 lbs. of Cocoa, so acceptable; Electro, a parcel. The woollen cuffs will be of much use. In Memoriam, £5; S. M. 2s.

F. H.—We shall be thankful if you will influence any of your friends to assist in the Lodging House services. It is a work unseen by man, but greatly owned and blessed by God.

The Poor Women's Sewing Class meets on Mondays and Fridays at 2.30 p.m., for the present.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 280, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

PRINTING.

THE BOYS' HOME,

55, Southwark-street, Southwark, S.E.

Mr. FEGAN desires to announce that the Printing Plant which has been removed from Deptford, has been set up in more commodious premises here, and is now in full working order.

With efficient machinery, a good assortment of type, skilled master tradesmen and increased facilities for working, orders can now be executed with despatch, and will give satisfaction both in quality of workmanship and materials as well as in price.

Invoices, Statements, Memo forms, &c. Circulars, Handbills, Posters, and all kinds of Commercial Printing. Reports, Pamphlets, Tracts, &c.

For estimates, &c., apply to The Governor, The Boys' Home, 55, Southwark-street, S.E.

COW CROSS MISSION.—Central

London Established Evangelistic Agency Funds urgently needed for heavy expenses of Minister Hall Gospel Services, Dinners to Destitute Children, &c.—WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, N.

UNIVERSAL WEEK OF PRAYER.

—The Council of the Evangelical Alliance have arranged for MEETINGS in the West-end daily during the week commencing January 8th, at Steinway Hall, Lower Seymour-street, Portman-square, each morning at 11.30. The Addresses will be given respectively by the Ven. Archdeacon Richardson, the Revs. W. Fuller, Gooch, G. Stringer Rowe, Donald Fraser, D.D., J. Bennett, M.A., and Thomas Brockway. Programmes of these Meetings, and other papers relating to the Week of Prayer, may be had on application to the Secretaries of the Alliance, 7, Adam-street, Strand, W.C.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN,

College-avenue, Hackney, London, E.—Subscriptions are greatly needed to assist in maintaining the children, and to pay off the debt upon the building. Contributions gratefully received by Miss RYE, or Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

PRINCESS MARY VILLAGE HOMES,

Addlestone, Surrey, Sir George Bowles' Cottage.—Mrs. Meredith returns most grateful thanks to W. S. B., for £50 (second donation), for the maintenance of this "Home."

N.B.—Cheques payable to her, or to Sir Henry J. Selwin Ibbetson, Bt., M.P., should be crossed to Union Bank, Charing-cross.

HOME FOR DESTITUTE LITTLE GIRLS,

The Dale, Upperton-road, Eastbourne, Sussex (late of Plaistow).—Contributions received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT; or Miss LEE, at the above address.

SEASIDE CONVALESCENT HOME.

—Warmly recommended to readers of The Christian. Protestant and Evangelical. Open all the year. Sunny situation. Food excellent. Funds needed.—For terms, &c., address, Rev. E. FORBES, Christ Church, Clevedon.

GREAT COLEMAN'S, near Ongar, is now opened by Dr. and Mrs. S. C. GRIFFITH to give change of air and rest to educated people of limited means. For particulars, apply to 45, Finsbury-square, E.C.

CRIPPLES' HOME AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, 17A, Marylebone-road, N.W.

—The Committee earnestly entreat the kind friends who have assisted this much-needed Home to inspect their elegant assortment of Baskets and Fancy Goods suitable for Christmas Presents and New Year's Gifts. Orders for Baskets Straw Hats, and Bonnets carefully executed. Contributions thankfully received by the SECRETARY.

THE PARALYSED & EPILEPTIC.

—The Committee of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for contributions in money, flannel, and coal tickets, in aid of the afflicted out-patients. The late severe weather has greatly increased their suffering, and the Committee will thankfully acknowledge the smallest gifts on their behalf.

OUR COUNTRYMEN IN INDIA.

—The ANGLO-INDIAN EVANGELISATION SOCIETY sends Evangelists to itinerate constantly among numerous groups of Europeans and Eurasians throughout India, widely separated, and other wise destitute of Gospel ministrations. General Secretary and Treasury, the Rev. PETER BANNATYNE, 7, Adam-street, Strand, London, 9, London-street, Edinburgh.

HOUSE OF REST for Christian

Mission Workers, when needing rest, medical advice, or a time of preparation for mission work, at Kilburn. SEASIDE BRANCH at EASTBOURNE open all the year. Mission Workers from Abroad also received. Apply to Miss MASON, 7 and 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W.

THEATRICAL MISSION.—Mrs.

FIELD makes an appeal for underclothing for men, women, and children, for a Mothers' Sale, to take place the 8th of January, 1883, in connection with the Theatrical Mission, 21, King-street, Covent-garden. The things to be sent to her address, 16, Westgate-terrace, Redcliffe-square, carriage paid, by the 6th.

PREVALENT INFIDELITY.—

The wide spread of doubt and disbelief calls for energetic action. The reasons for assured belief in the fundamental truths of Christianity should be re-affirmed, as consonant with modern research and culture. The errors and tendencies of atheism and agnosticism should be exposed. It is the sole and special function of the Christian Evidence Society to carry on this work. It is undenominational in its constitution and action. Considerable funds are very urgently needed at the present moment. Appeal is confidently made to all earnest Christians to aid in the maintenance of Christian truth for the conviction and conversion of those that are going astray. Contributions may be sent to, and information respecting lectures, sermons, personal interviews, classes, and literature, may be obtained from the Secretary, 13, Buckingham-street, Strand, W.C.

MISSION WORK IN CENTRAL LONDON. — "Martyrs' Memorial

Church" Missions for the parish of St. Peter's, Clerkenwell. (Population, 8755.)

1. Northampton Mission, under a Curate.
2. Compton Mission, under a Lay Reader.
3. Ashby Mission, under a Scripture Reader.
4. Spencer Mission, under an Evening Reader.

The whole under the Vicar, the Rev. R. Oswald Sharp (St. Peter's Vicarage, Ashby-street, E.C.), and 12 laymen as Council.

House to house visitation, Bible and Tract distribution, Open-air Preaching services, Schools, classes, and lectures.

"I shall be happy to give my name to your appeal, and enclose a Post Office Order."—Yours faithfully, SHAFTESBURY.

Treasurer, J. D. Allcroft, Esq. Bankers, Barclay, Bevan & Co. Donations received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

MRS. WILKES proposes to be at home every Wednesday from Two till Five o'clock, for the purpose of seeing friends of Rescue Work. Trains from Liverpool-street to St. James-street Station, Walthamstow, every half-hour. "The Elms" is within five minutes' walk of the station. The Elms, Coppermill-lane, Walthamstow, Essex.

MORAVIAN MISSIONS.—London

Association in Aid of Moravian Missions. Appeal for a Jubilee Fund. On the 21st of August, 150 years elapsed since the first Missionaries of the Moravian Church went forth to preach the Gospel to the Heathen. In 1732, two men represented the Moravian Church among the Heathen; in 1882 there are 322 brethren and sisters in the service, at 100 stations, with 76,642 in the congregations. During the last half-century three new fields have been entered upon in South America, Tibet, and Australia. The Committee earnestly appeal for help in maintaining and extending this great work, which has been so greatly blessed in the past by the great "Head of the Church."—Donations for the "Moravian Missions Jubilee Fund" will be thankfully received by Messrs. Herries, Farquhar & Co., St. James'-street; Messrs. Smith, Payne & Co., Lombard-street; Messrs. Williams, Deacon & Co., Birchin-lane; and by Mr. Geo. E. Roberts, Secretary, 42, Berners-street, Oxford-street, London, W.

Educational.

TO GODLY PARENTS.—The undermentioned (who is in no way connected with the school) is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL, DELIGHTFULLY SITUATED FACING THE SEA on the South Coast, a short run from London, in which a thorough and first-class Education is given, based upon the teaching of the Holy Scriptures.

It is one of the few remaining schools in which the power of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ influences the hearts and conduct of the pupils.

The success, happiness, and training of the Boys have been so remarkable in this School that a BOOK OF TESTIMONIALS GIVEN BY THE PARENTS should be read to appreciate results so unusual. Two Vice-Chancellors have placed their wards as pupils in the school. Reference kindly permitted to Dr. THORN, Paddington, London.

THE WOODLANDS, Hitchin, Herts.—Select Boarding School for Boys. For prospectus apply to the Principal, ISAAC SHARP, B.A., a member of the Society of Friends. Careful personal training. Efficient staff of masters. Excellent recreation grounds.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,
WELLINGTON, SALOP.
Principal—DR. CRANAGE, M.A.
The next Term will begin (D.V.) Thursday, January 18th.

BLACKHEATH.
ELIOT PARK SCHOOL.
Principal—EDWARD G. ELLIS.
A sound and thorough Education on Christian principles. SUBJECTS:—Classics, Languages, Mathematics, English, Science, Book-keeping, &c.
Number of boarders, 12. Eminent success. Position highly recommended by medical men.
References permitted to
Rev. J. T. WIGNER.....Brockley, S.E.,
Dr. MCKILLIAM.....Blackheath,
Dr. GAGE-BROWN.....Sloane-street, W.,
W. B. FISHER, Esq.....Greenwich,
J. W. C. FEGAN, Esq.....Southwark, S.E.,
and other Parents and Guardians.
The next term commences (D.V.) January 19.

BACKWARD YOUTHS do best under private tuition. In schools these are usually left to inexperienced assistants. Mr. WILLIAM FENN devotes his PERSONAL ATTENTION to such pupils, of whom he receives four or five as Boarders. Candidates are prepared for all PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS. Reference permitted to Dr. BARNARDO, Mrs. PENNEFATHER, and others. Studies recommenced Sept. 22nd.—Apply, 52, Clapton-common, London, E.

Erdington College School,

Near Birmingham. Healthy position, Christian Training. Distinguished success. Reference kindly permitted to H. S. PEARSON, Esq., Professor of English Literature at the Midland Institute, Birmingham; and to W. A. SOUTHWELL, Esq., Y.M.C.A., Cardiff. FREDERICK W. W. HOWELL, Principal.

MONKTON COMBE SCHOOL, near Bath.—Pupils prepared chiefly for Oxford and Cambridge. Reference to Lord Radstock, and many other parents and guardians whose sons are at the School.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION.—Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.) receives about 20 Sons of Gentlemen, from seven to fourteen years of age. Terms from 40 to 55 Guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and Mathematics. Personal care, Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home.—35, Buckingham-road, Brighton.—Referees: Rev. W. Poole Balfern, Brighton; Rev. F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. Figgis, Brighton; Rev. W. Haslam, 19, King's-road, Brunswood-park, N. Term extends from Thursday, Jan. 18, to April 12.

CAPTAIN MORETON recommends with pleasure Mr. Foster's School. Preference given to children of believers. A reduction made to parents wholly engaged in the Lord's work.—Eldon-park School, South Norwood.

HOME, WITH TUITION.—A Gentleman receives six little boys to educate with his son. Parental care, and superior education. Highest references.
SIGMA, 25, St. Aubyn's, West Brighton.

BETHANY HOUSE SCHOOL, Goudhurst, Kent. Principal Rev. J. J. Kendon. The object of the Principal is to thoroughly educate his pupils, and to carefully train them up in the love and service of Jesus. Terms from 24 guineas per annum.

LADIES' COLLEGE, Goudhurst, Kent. Conducted by the Misses Kendon, daughters of Rev. J. J. Kendon. A kind, Christian home and school for girls and delicate children. Terms 24 guineas per annum. For prospectus with reference to parents, apply to Miss R. KENDON, M. C. P.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS. A lady wishes to recommend a good school for boys, at the sea-side, south coast, where the religious and moral training, on strictly evangelical principles, is carefully attended to. Excellent secular instruction. A thoroughly good and comfortable home. OBSERVER, Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton, 27, Paternoster-row, London.

Ora et Labora.

THE SCHOOL HOUSE, Weston-super-Mare.—Mr. H. PENN receives sons of Gentlemen to train and educate. Preparation for Army and University entrance; and London Matric. Exams., and the Professions. Liberal diet, and plenty of open-air recreation. References to parents. For terms apply as above. The next Term commences Thursday, Jan. 18, 1883.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for little Boys, near Brighton.—Locality healthy. Home comforts. Christian training. Special attention to delicate, backward boys. Separate beds. Visiting masters. Twenty guineas.—LADY PRINCIPAL, Hamilton Lodge, Hurstpierpoint, Sussex.

TO PARENTS.—The Pasteur of a French Church in London takes charge of two young gentlemen of good connection, whose parents wish for them the safeguards of home and the opportunity of becoming conversant with French, while pursuing their studies.
French Parsonage, Bayswater.

BLACKWELL HOUSE LADIES' SCHOOL, High-street, Lewisham.—Vacancies for a few boarders. Comfortable home and careful religious training. Prospectus on application. Term commences January 20th. References to parents of pupils.

MALVERN HOUSE, Blockley, Worcestershire.—Principal, Mrs. Judson.—In this establishment, situated in a most healthy and romatic village, a thorough education is combined with Christian training. A resident German governess. References kindly permitted to Rev. J. Wilkinson, 79, Mildmay-road, London, N., and to parents of pupils. Terms moderate and inclusive. A vacancy for a Governess pupil.

SOUTH DEVON COAST.—First-class education for the daughters of Gentlemen. The highest educational advantages are combined with careful Christian training. Watchful care over health, and the comforts of home. 'DALETH, Tredale, Bookseller, Torquay.

HIGHBURY HOUSE, St. Leonards-on-Sea.—Boys prepared for Commerce, Public Schools, or the Universities. Upper, middle, and preparatory departments. Seven resident masters. The junior division taught by ladies. Delicate boys requiring a mild climate receive every kindness and constant care.—For prospectus apply to Mrs. DUFF, the Lady Principal. School duties will be resumed January 20th.

HIGH-CLASS GIRLS' SCHOOL.—Principal, Miss BASTIN, Glebe-place, Stoke Newington. Efficient Masters and Governesses. Limited number of boarders. Watchful care and home comforts. Pupils prepared for Cambridge Local Examinations. One or two pupils can be received on reduced terms to fill vacancies. Referees—Rev. GORDON CALTHROP, 3, Highbury Grange, N.; Rev. WILLIAM SPENSLEY, 20, Lordship-park, Stoke Newington, N.

MILTON HOUSE SCHOOL for Young Ladies, Plympton (near Plymouth), South Devon.—Limited number received. Home comforts. Advantages for French. References to parents of pupils.

READING.—High-class education for young ladies. Home comforts and careful culture, combined with thorough instruction. Efficient governesses and masters. Terms economical. Pupils prepared for examinations. Governess-student required, with premium.—PRINCIPAL, Mrs. Ratcliffe, Burlton House.

SCHOOL near the sea-side, for the Board and Education of little Girls, conducted by Mrs. and Miss SNOW. Comfortable home, combined with Christian training. Terms moderate. Good references.—Stoke Fleming, Dartmouth, South Devon. The next Term begins January 15, 1883.

HOME EDUCATION FOR TWO LITTLE GIRLS.—The Vicar of real Driffield, East Yorkshire, can with the greatest confidence recommend to any parents or guardians seeking the above for two children under eleven, a home where such might be had, with two Ladies and a younger sister of twelve; and with every confidence as to the religious and other instruction given, the example set, and influence exercised.—Applications, giving references, and stating the terms offered, may be made to the Rev. HORACE NEWTON, Driffield, East Yorkshire.

HOME SCHOOL.—A Lady, of much experience in teaching, residing in a beautiful part of Derbyshire, receives a limited number of Pupils. There is a resident foreign governess, and visiting English master. First-class instruction in every branch. References to Clergymen and the parents of pupils. Terms moderate.—PRINCIPAL, The Ferns, Duffield, Derby.

MARLBOROUGH COLLEGE FOR YOUNG LADIES, Larkbeare, Exeter, Devon.—Residents only received. Specially desirable home for girls of delicate habit. References to Christian Parents, of all denominations.

A LONDON VICAR most strongly recommends to parents, seeking wise and intelligent training for their Daughters, a Lady of highest attainments, Christian culture, and experience, in a salubrious seaside spot.—Referee, Rev. J. KIRKMAN, St. Stephen's, Hampstead, N.W.

FIRST-CLASS FINISHING SCHOOL for the daughters of gentlemen. Strongly recommended by parents of present and former pupils. Efficient staff of masters and governesses. Music and harmony by an eminent London musician. Careful training and refined home. Prospectus on application to PRINCIPAL, Branston Lodge, Waverley-road, Southsea.

LONDON.—First-class Education for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing, conducted by members of the Church of England, occupying a spacious house in a most healthy locality in the West-end. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate Professors—their health, individual temper, and disposition carefully and tenderly watched over, and the whole system based on Christian principles.—DELTA, Boddington's Library, Notting-hill-gate, W.

SEASIDE EDUCATION.—Two clergymen highly recommend a Christian school for twelve girls. References to officers of high rank, whose daughters are pupils there. Terms very moderate. Rev. J. Johnson, Britwell Rectory, Watlington, Oxon.; Rev. W. Clarke, Hook Vicarage, Surbiton, Surrey; 5, Sussex-place, Southsea.

EDUCATION in the Lake District, Thorny-hills, Kendal.—High-class Boarding School for Girls. Principal, HANNAH LOCKWOOD, a member of the Society of Friends. Prospectus and references on application.

WORTHING.—Vacancies after Christmas for three Young Ladies, in a superior school, where careful training and maternal care are ensured to the Pupils, whose health, happiness, and best interests are a primary consideration. First-class Masters. Reference to clergymen and parents of Pupils.
Mrs. TRANTER, 7, Liverpool-gardens, Worthing.

MR. AND MRS. J. W. ARMITAGE, of Farnley House, Chelsea, London, will be pleased to recommend an excellent Ladies' School in Paris, where their daughter completed her education. Terms moderate.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for little Boys, with home comforts and watchful care, conducted by Mrs. BOONE and daughter; assisted by Masters and Lady Teachers. Most charming, healthy situation. Highfield, Weston-super-Mare.

HAMMERSMITH HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.—The next term will commence January 18th, 1883. Boarders received at the house of the Head Mistress. Last report and full particulars forwarded by post, on application to Miss MARY E. PAGE, High School, Hammersmith, W.

HAPPY CHRISTIAN HOME for Little Girls under 13.—Thorough preparatory instruction, with home comforts and care. Highest reference. Terms moderate. Three vacancies next term.
Mrs. T. ARNOLD AXTENS, 27, Paragon, Bath.

A LADY, experienced in teaching children, is desirous of a re-engagement in a Christian family after Christmas (daily or resident). Thorough English, music, German, fluent French (abroad), and rudiments of Latin. Good references.
HILDA, 75, Welbeck-street Cavendish-square, W.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE FOR LADIES, 1, Carlton Mansions, Clapham-rise, S.W. Principal — Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. Next term commences January 28th, 1883. Terms moderate and inclusive.

"I have the utmost pleasure in standing as reference. I can highly commend Mrs. Hale, and have the greatest confidence in her capacity, management, and character, having known her for several years."—C. H. Spurgeon.

PARIS.—Mdlle. TALLON, Parisian, Protestant, Diplômée, receives Ladies and Young Ladies. Reference to M. le Pasteur Bersier. Prospectuses to be had, 195, Boulvevard Péreire Sud, Près l'Arc de Triomphe.

CLARENS.—Montreux, banks of the Lake of Geneva.—Mme. QUIBLIER receives six young Ladies to educate. Every comfort and attention. References: Mme. Merle d'Aubigne, Geneva. Pastor Du Pontet de La Harpe, French Parsonage, Bayswater, W., and the parents of pupils.—Mme. LOUIS QUIBLIER, Clarens près Montreux, Vaud, Switzerland.

MDLLES. HOFFHER, several years resident in England, have opened a School in Lausanne, where educational advantages are combined with home comforts. Particulars will be given by Mrs. WAITE, Halifax.

PARIS. — Protestant Boarding School for Young Ladies (Passy, near the Bois de Boulogne). Very select Establishment. Excellent references. Only a few pupils admitted.—Apply to Madame VIVIER, 87, Rue de la Pompe, Passy, Paris.

A LADY, having a large country house, and 15 acres of pine woods, on the South Coast, can take charge of a few more children. Judicious training and education. If delicate, they would have special care. Cheerful holidays, if parents abroad. Soil gravel, climate health-giving. Sands within 100 yards, References exchanged.—MATER, Chaddesley Glen, Parkstone-on-Sea, near Bournemouth.

EDUCATION.—Wanted by a Lady residing at a healthy seaside place, a few little Girls to board and educate. For prospectus and references please address, Miss SOWTER, Holland House, The Grove, Westgate-on-Sea.

HOME AND EDUCATION offered by a Lady to an orphaned or motherless little girl.—R., 90, Warwick-gardens, Kensington, W.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION UNION supplies families and schools with Christian and competent Teachers. Christian Governesses affectionately corresponded with. The interest of Christian Educationists earnestly asked.
DIRECTRESS, 81, Mildmay-grove, N.

THE GUARDIANS of a young Lady, aged 19, are desirous of placing her in a quiet, religious family, to teach young children. Accomplishments: German and French (acquired abroad), music and drawing. Salary (if no importance.—J. HAYWARD, Esq., Solicitor, 27, King-street, Guildhall, London.

GOVERNESS.—Re-engagement required by a Lady, accustomed to teach and train children, and interested in preparing boys for school. English subjects, Latin, French, German (acquired abroad), arithmetic, Euclid, drawing, and needlework.—H. E., care of Mrs. Parfit, Oare, Marlborough, Wilts.

GOVERNESS.—A Lady (28) seeks a re-engagement as above to young children (not nursery). English, continental French, music, elementary Latin, singing, drawing; or as Companion. Experienced, domesticated.
P., 117, Crawford-street, W.

A LADY, aged 21, accustomed to tuition, seeks a situation in a Christian family as governess. Acquirements. English, French, rudiments of German, music, singing, drawing, and needlework. Salary £35.
E., Post Office, Babraham, Cambridge.

GOVERNESS seeks re-engagement, either daily, in the north of London, or resident within a few hours' railway journey. English, French, music, drawing, and German.—Miss D., 53, Beresford-road, Highbury-new-park, N.

NURSERY GOVERNESS.—Wanted, a Christian young Lady, as above, to three young children. Member of the Church of England.
Mrs. B., Culmington Rectory, Bromfield, Salop.

NURSERY GOVERNESS.—Wanted, a French Christian, a good needlewoman, for three children in the country, the eldest aged ten. Must be able to teach music.—Address, stating full particulars, W. G. S., 37, Crogsland-road, Haverstock-hill, London, N.W.

GOVERNESS. — Wanted, an experienced Certificated French Governess. A Christian.—A. E., care of Messrs. Brendon, George-street, Plymouth.

GOVERNESS WANTED in a quiet, homely family, for two girls 13 and 14, and two boys 10 and 7. MUST be well experienced in teaching thorough English, French, and Latin, arithmetic, music, elementary singing, and good drawing. A member of the Church of England, and a decided Christian. Age between 25 and 30 preferred. Salary £40. No agent need apply.
MATER, Post Office, Hertford, Herts.

GOVERNESS.—Wanted, a cheerful Christian Governess, in a family, eldest 12. Able to teach both boys and girls in an interesting manner, and to take the general care of them. A practical Christian life indispensable. (Brethren not exclusive.) Full particulars in first application.—Mrs. INGHAM, Sunnyside, Stamford.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

MR. ARTHUR F. GURNEY, of the Evangelization Society, writer of the Second Prize Essay on Evangelistic work, is free to carry on special Gospel Meetings of all kinds, midnight meetings, &c.
Heatherside, Bournemouth.

AS MISSIONARY.—A Christian man, experienced in Mission and Temperance Work, seeks a re-engagement. Excellent testimonials and references.
MR. M. DAVIS, 52, Brand-street, Greenwich.

YOUTH.—The Advertiser is desirous of placing his son, an intelligent and educated youth, with a gentleman in a good business, with whom he would gain a thorough knowledge of the same.
C. L., Post Office, Clifton, Beds.

COMPANION AND ATTENDANT.—Situation wanted by a gentleman, as companion and attendant to an invalid. He had years of illness some years ago, but is now strong and hardy, but unfitted for commercial life. Has for ten years spent his leisure in active Christian work.—Mr. A. B. C., 10, Margaret-street, Higher Openshaw, Manchester.

CHAPEL-KEEPER, or Caretaker.—Wanted by a highly respectable Christian Man (married), a situation as above, or any place of trust. Highest references. Total abstainer, and non-smoker.—G., Rose Cottage, Twyford, Berks.

COFFEE TAVERN OR KINDRED WORK.—Man and Wife, experienced (total abstainers; highest references), require the management of above. Open to immediate engagement.—Mr. CANNON, 68, Walterton-road, St. Peter's-park, Paddington, W.

MANAGEMENT OF COFFEE TAVERN by man, wife, and daughter. Many years' experience, total abstainers, good cooks. Good testimonials.—H. C., care of Mr. FALCONER, 174, Close Paisley-road, Glasgow.

COACHMAN AND WIFE seek re-engagement, wife as good Plain Cook or Housemaid, man thorough Coachman, capable of driving four if required. Long and good characters. Ages 40 and 37.—COACHMAN, 1, Ada-villas, Bollo-lane, Turnham-green.

COMPANION, Secretary, or to assist a Lady in housekeeping, management of Scripture classes, clothing clubs, or other useful work. Evangelical principles. Good references.—E. M. H., Mr. H. T. Cooper, Bookseller, Hounslow, Middlesex.

COMPANION.—A young Lady, age 20, desires an engagement as above, or to assist with young children. Domesticated, musical, good knowledge of dress-making.—L. M. HIBALDSTON, Kirton Lindsey, Lincolnshire.

A CONGREGATIONAL MINISTER can most cordially recommend a Christian young Lady (31) as Companion, Housekeeper, or other position of trust, in a Christian home.
Rev. W. SCOTT, Anglesea-road, Ipswich.

CHRISTIAN WIDOW, about 30, seeks engagement as Attendant and Companion to a Lady, travelling, or engaged in Christian work in which she would gladly help, undenominational.
Z., 7, Coombe-terrace, Dartmouth.

MATRON.—Situation wanted as Matron, Bible-woman, or any position of usefulness. Could manage Servants' Home, Refuge, or Cottage Hospital. Highest testimonials and truly Evangelical.
MATRON, 3, Upper Surrey-street, Norwich.

MOTHER'S HELP or Useful Companion.—Young Lady (22), accustomed to help in house, good at needlework, can do some dress-making. Small salary, if comfortable home.
MURRAY, Gummershay Farm, Stalbridge, Dorset.

MISSION-WOMAN.—Mrs. PEGLER, Moffatt-street, Maidenhead, is open to a re-engagement, either with Evangelical Church or Dissent, as Bible-woman and Visitor, town or country.

AS NURSE. — Situation wanted by middle-aged person, has had great experience with little children; or, to attend to an elderly Lady. Can be well recommended.
B. C., 44, Samuel-road, Ipswich.

USEFUL MAID.—Middle-aged. Good dressmaker. Abstainer. 2½ years' character. Able to assist in mothers' meetings, Sunday-school, &c. GIRLS, 14 to 18, first places.
Miss GREENE, Midgham, Reading.

TO LADIES WINTERING IN THE SOUTH. — A Lady recommends her maid. Excellent dressmaker, milliner, and hairdresser. First-rate character.
Miss GRIFFITH, Hotel de Paris, Biarritz.

A LADY can recommend a girl of 16 as Under Housemaid in small establishment in the country, where she will be cared for. Total abstainer.
Lady BAGGE, Heatherside, Woking-station.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

STATIONERY AND PRINTING.—HARRISON PENNEY, Darlington, has a vacancy for an outdoor Apprentice. Must be well educated, and of good address.

SECRETARY wanted for the Commercial Travellers' Christian Association.—A decided earnest Christian worker, able to keep books, speak in public, edit for press. One who has travelled preferred. Salary not large, increase depending on results.
Hon. Sec., Room 8, 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

ADVERTISER has a nice opening for a Christian temperance man, with from 3 to £5,000. To such, would hand over a well-organised Cotton Mill, and assist until the business became quite familiar.
John S. BARON, Astley-gate, Blackburn.

PARTNERSHIP.—Capital required in an American and General Merchant's business, non-speculative, moderate capital at commencement, with substantial amount to follow as required. Partner must be a Christian, with general business ideas.—MILWAUKEE, care of F. A. Rudall, 48, Watling-street, E.C.

PAGE.—Wanted in small Christian family, a Page about 5 ft. 2 in, steady and industrious, for indoor work and look after a pony. Christian and total abstainer preferred. State wages and full particulars to M., McWatter's Library, Saville-row, Bath.

TEMPORARY. — Wanted, immediately after Christmas, an experienced Mistress, to take charge of School of 70 girls, in an Orphanage, for three months.
Miss ONSLOW, Alresford, Hants.

LADY HELP.—A Lady residing alone wishes to meet with above, who would undertake the entire management of her kitchen, with a girl to do the rough work. She would be required to assist in many ways, and must be fairly educated (Church of England, Evangelical), but thoroughly understand cooking and the management of servants, of whom three are kept. Salary £20. Apply by letter only, stating particulars, to Miss P., 48, Avenue-road, Regent's-park, N.W.

LADY HELP, willing to undertake actual nursery work, wanted in a Clergyman's family. Entire charge of three young children, with washing and dressing of two others. State age, salary, and references.
Mrs. ALLAN, Puckington Rectory, Ilminster.

A MINISTER OF THE GOSPEL desires the assistance of a Lady of good education, and in possession of means, to assist in the management of the house and labour in the district. One whose object in life is God's glory, springing from a pure motive, viz., love for Christ, will find a hearty welcome. Full particulars, views, &c., to Rev. ALPHA, 1, Hughenden-terrace, Leyton-road, Stratford, E.

WILL READERS kindly name the following advertisement where suitable? A widow Lady who superintends her household affairs and assists in much, offers a good home to an industrious widow of good character, who can cook, wash, scrub, or sew nicely, with an intelligent, tractable daughter, old enough to learn servant's work. Both must be total abstainers, thoroughly good tempered, healthy, and clean.
ETSAH, 147, Merton-road, Wimbledon.

GOOD PLAIN COOK, also a House and Parlour-maid, wanted early in January.—Ages from 20 to 30. Christians and abstainers valued. Comfortable home. State wages and full particulars to E. M., Willoughby House, Burnt Ash Hill, Lee, London, S.E.

NURSE ATTENDANT.—Wanted immediately as above, strong, kind. Christian woman, for paralysed Lady. Work with trained nurse. Wages £20. Abstainer preferred.—Miss MACLEAN, Inverscadell, St. John's Wood-road, Bournemouth.

ATTENDANT wanted, on invalid Lady. — Strong, patient, abstainer, preferred. Wages moderate. Comfortable home, permanent if suitable. Personal interview and reference indispensable. Write—M. R., 70, Clifton-hill, St. John's Wood.

MONTHLY NURSE wanted for the middle of June next. Must be thoroughly competent, and a total abstainer.
PEEL, Post Office, Broxbourne, Herts.

NURSE.—One who has been accustomed to children, and able to sew well; a good character from last situation indispensable. —Apply by letter, Mrs. APPERLY, 1, Ravensdale-road, Stamford-hill, N.

NURSE wanted at once, in a house of business.—One able to take a baby from the month. Two other children.—H. G., 28, Grove-place, Pont-street, Belgravia, S.W.

A MAID to one Lady wanted.—A true Christian, from 30 to 35 years of age. Good plain dressmaker and needlewoman. Must be total abstainer, and a member of the Church of England. Wages £18 to £20. Apply at once, by letter first, to A. B., Wyatt's Newspaper Office, North Audley-street, Grosvenor-square.

CAN A LADY recommend a useful maid, to wait on four young ladies (with the help of one under her). Good dressmaker, and who does not object to a little house-work.
R. J. B., Easneye, Ware.

GENERAL SERVANT.—Wanted, by January 15th or 19th, for boys' school, one who can cook. Housemaid and boy kept. Good wages. All found. No beer.
L. A., 10, Belmont-park, Lee, S.E.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted in a small family.
Mrs. REES, 5, The Esplanade, Dover.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, in a small Christian family. Abstainer, with good character. Age 25 to 35.—J. W., Colbran's Library, Calverley-road, Tunbridge-wells.

HOUSE AND PARLOUR-MAID wanted, COOK, and NURSE to two children.—Must be conscientious, strong, and able servants. —Apply through Vicarage, Burnham, Somerset.

HOUSEMAID.—Can any Lady recommend a steady, reliable, and active Housemaid, where parlour-maid is kept, one who would value quiet Christian home, in an abstainer's family.
Mrs. BATTEN, Brunswick-square, Gloucester.

NURSE-MAID wanted, to assist in the care of an infant. Age from 16 to 18.
134, Belsize-road, St. John's-wood.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL,
40, Bedford Place, Bloomsbury Sq., London, W.C. This First-class Private Hotel is close to the New Law Courts and the British Museum. Spacious Coffee and Ladies' Drawing-rooms, and Private Sitting-rooms. Rev. R. MILNE, Abbey Church, Edinburgh, writes:—"Quiet, cleanness, comfort, and moderate charges, are the characteristics of this house." Also recommended by Dr. ALGERNON DOBBIE, Oldham; Rev. J. GARWOOD, M. A. London City Mission; Dr. YOUNG, Florence.
Tariff on application to Miss PERCY.

WEST CENTRAL HOTEL.
27, 99, 101, Southampton-row, London, W.C. Patronised by numerous readers of The Christian. Plain Breakfast or Tea, 1s. 3d. Beds, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. Tariff on application to FREDERIC SMITH.

APARTMENTS.—Comfortably furnished. Bath-room; gas; attendance, &c. Highly recommended. Quiet home for a City Gentleman. Near Norwood Junction. Terms from 12s. 6d.
B., 8, Clifton-terrace, South Norwood.

LATE ABODE OF FAITH.—Mrs. DALBY has in her private residence vacancies for two young Ladies who cannot remain at home, or those mentally incapacitated (childish), not insane cases. Terms, two to three guineas weekly.
3, Oppidans-road, Primrose-hill.

A DOCTOR IN PRACTICE, Crystal Palace district, is open to give board, residence, and medical attention to one or two Invalids, or persons needing attention; to such, a bright, cheerful Christian home is offered. Terms reasonable. Highest references.—Doctor, Mrs. Gearing, Lordship-terrace, Lordship-lane, S.E.

LONDON.—Mrs. GREATLEY'S Christian Boarding-House is highly recommended for comfort, economy, and being convenient to all parts. References kindly permitted to the Rev. Dr. THAIN DAVIDSON. Terms from 2s. 6d., bed and breakfast.
17, Tyndale-place, Upper-street, Islington.

HOME FOR CHRISTIAN WORKER, close to Mildmay Conference Hall. —Christian Lady receives on moderate terms Separate rooms if desired. Quiet household; every home comfort.
M., care of Mr. Badenoch, Conference Hall.

HOME OFFERED, with partial board, in a small, quiet Christian family. Every comfort.—For further particulars, apply by letter to L. P., 13, Lanark-villas, Maida-vale, W.

APARTMENTS.—Large Bed and Sitting-room, furnished; gas, and attendance; terms 10s. inclusive. Also, small Bed-room; terms 5s., board if required. Comfortable home for Christians.
39, Northumberland-place, Bayswater, W.

A HOME with every comfort is offered to a Lady, in one of the healthiest suburbs of London.
M. N., Mrs. Burch, 19, High-street, Hampstead.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE in a comfortable and refined Home, where only a few boarders can be received. Liberal table. Terms moderate. Private sitting-room if required.—C, M. B., 33, St. Stephen's-road, Westbourne-park, Bayswater, W.

BOURNEMOUTH, Marlborough.—First-class private Boarding House. Facing the sea, south aspect, close to pier, baths, library; liberal table, every comfort. Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Roberts.

A LADY, or Lady and Gentleman, requiring a healthy, warm winter residence; or two or three delicate children, or whose parents are abroad, from 6 to 14 years old. Good schools near. Moderate terms.
B., Ivy Cottage, Bournemouth West.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE at BRIGHTON.—Central position, near to the Pavilion, Aquarium, and Piers. Sea view. Liberal table. Every home comfort.—Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Box, 58, Old Steine.

BRIGHTON. — Furnished Apartments, three rooms, good view of the Downs. Good cooking, attendance, no other family, terms moderate.—H., 44, Park-road, W.

PRIVATE HOME for Deaf and Dumb Ladies. Congenial society and every domestic comfort.—Mrs. THOMAS, 8, Burlington-buildings, Redland, Bristol.

A COMFORTABLE HOME offered (moderate terms) to a Lady or a Youth in business, desiring home life in a Christian family.
E. A., Half-Edge-lane, Eccles, Manchester.

[Carried to page 23.

FAITH HEALING.

"To those interested in healing by the prayer of faith, it must have occurred how often Scripture mentions the means used in the miracles of healing. The dipping seven times in Jordan; Elisha's impartation of warmth from his own body to the widow's son; the plaister of figs used for Hezekiah's recovery; the bathing in the troubled waters; the washing in the Pool of Siloam; the anointing clay: do not these facts teach that those who use the God-appointed means honour Him quite as much as those who cry to Him in their helplessness, and who exercise faith in his power to heal, when the means are not at hand? We may overstrain a Scriptural truth, and try to force out of it more than it was intended to teach. It becomes those who believe that man has to work out his own salvation physically as well as spiritually to use thankfully the natural means which have Divine sanction and approbation, since the Author of our existence has ordained that by the use of means life shall be maintained and health restored when impaired."—From an Essay on "Heating by the Prayer of Faith, or by Faith and Works?" by B. COPSON GARRATT.

Reports are constantly reaching us of healing by faith on the one hand, and on the other by the successful application of remedies from Nature's own storehouse, remedies in which no man can claim a proprietary right. Light, air, heat, water, oil, and electricity are Nature's own provision, and to be employed as the hydropath developes the virtues of water. Magnetism is that form of Electricity which Mr. B. COPSON GARRAT has developed; and he has applied it in a most remarkable manner. The following three letters show the remedial properties of Magneto-Electricity in that class of affections called "nervous;" we quote them to encourage like sufferers:—

MRS. STOREY, Little Hallingbury, November 10th, 1882.—"I can with confidence speak of the efficacy of your Magnetic garment, which my daughter has been wearing for nearly two years. You will doubtless remember what a poor nervous creature she was when suffering with St. Vitus' dance. I am happy to say she is quite restored; although when I called upon you, I had little hope that she would ever recover her nervous power."

MRS. NETTLESHIP, Langham, Oakham.—"I am sure you will be pleased to hear that I am through mercy quite well. I cannot find words to express my joy and happiness to be my own old self. My husband and friends are delighted, for I was indeed in a miserable state when I first came to you. My mental sufferings were terrible, and my case was considered hopeless; but in a few months your remedy proved to the contrary. No one has so much cause for gratitude as myself. I am in my 68th year, and as well as I have ever been; in fact, I was told the other day better than I looked ten years ago. To be so marvellously restored is indeed a blessing."

Mr. BARTLEY ELLIS, Aberdeen villa, St. Saviour's-road, Leicester, November 21st, 1882.—"You will be grateful to hear that my sister, for whom you prescribed some years since, and who has suffered from epileptic attacks for fifteen years, is quite well. The case was introduced to you by our medical man, who has acknowledged your success in treating such affections. For many years after wearing your appliances, my sister had no return of the fits, except on two occasions of extreme nervous excitement; once from a robbery, and once when the house took fire. This result is to us a great boon (for which we are most thankful), as in all human probability, but for the use of such a remedy, my sister would have been an epileptic all her life; but she is now, and has been for some time past, maintaining herself in a situation."

Mr. Garratt has, in his various papers, endeavoured to convey an intelligent idea of what his method of treatment is calculated to effect. He is fully aware of the numberless specifics advertised, but surely it is not difficult to understand the difference between that which counteracts or changes the symptoms for a time, and that which removes their cause, by energising the system itself. Many who are needing such a remedy would certainly confide themselves to his treatment if they were convinced that his assertions could be relied upon. The names of nearly 800 persons, whose veracity no one will venture to question, and who can testify similarly to the above, will be forwarded if desired.

On receipt of particulars of any case in which advice is sought, the fullest information will be given, and the required treatment suggested, gratuitously, by Mr. B. Copson Garratt, Medical Electrician, 16, Finsbury-square, London, E.C.

THE LIFE OF FAITH.

Price 2d. Monthly.

Devoted to the Subject of the Deepening of Spiritual Life.

The January number contains a Report of the Glasgow Convention.

MESSRS. MARSHALL BROTHERS, 3, Amen Corner.

"New Year's Word to Blue Ribbon People,"
"Seven Reasons for Wearing the Blue Ribbon,"
AND
"Why Sign the Pledge."

By the REV. F. B. MEYER, of Leicester.
One Halfpenny each, or 3s. 6d. per 100. Envelope size.

Leicester: J. and J. H. VICE, 22, Market-street.
London: MARSHALL BROS., 3, Amen-corner.

THE BAND OF HOPE CHRONICLE,

During 1883, will contain an Address for every week, as follows:—Series I.—"THE ARMY AND THE WAR," by Rev. J. Grant Mills, M.A. Series II.—"THE HOUSE I LIVE IN," by Rev. F. Wagstaff. Series III.—"FACTS AND PHILOSOPHY, OR LESSONS FROM LIFE," by Rev. James Yeames. Series IV.—CHEMICAL CHATS WITH THE CHILDREN," by G. R. Tweedie, F.C.S. Series V.—"TOBACCO," by C. R. Drysdale, M.D. Each number will also contain Music, Appropriate Articles, Tales to be re-told, Facts, Anecdotes, Quotations, Reviews, Records of Progress, &c.; and the JANUARY number will contain a PORTRAIT AND BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF MRS. CARLILE, the Founder of the first Band of Hope. Monthly, 1d. Post free, 1s. 6d. per annum (net). New Illustrated List of Band of Hope Requisites post free on application.—UNITED KINGDOM BAND OF HOPE UNION, 4, Ludgate-hill, London, E.C.

Published Monthly, 20 pp., Fcap. 4to., Price One Penny,

THE HOME FRIEND, The Organ of the Young Women's Christian Association and Institute Union, and also of the Scotch Girls' Friendly Society.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR 1883.

Crown Jewels; or, Above Rubies. A Serial Story. By EMMA MARSHALL, Author of "Life's Aftermath," "Dorothy's Daughter," &c. Commences in January, and will be continued during the year.
A Series of Papers on Health in Every-Day Life. By MRS. CHAPMAN.
Some Old Friends among the Flowers. By Mrs. BREWSTER.
Papers on Cookery. By MARY HOOPER.
Short Papers on Difficulties in the Christian Life. By Hon. Mrs. J. F. MONTGOMERY, Hon. F. DILLON, Miss E. J. WHATELY, and others.
Our Proverbial Philosophy. By Mrs. WIGLEY.
Monthly Scripture Papers. By Miss MOOR.

Papers by I. G.
Scripture Questions, and other Contributions.

EDINBURGH: MACNIVEN & WALLACE.
LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.

Weekly Numbers, One Halfpenny. November Monthly Part contains Two Coloured Plates. Threepence.

"Our Darlings."

THE CHILDREN'S TREASURY, EDITED BY DR BARNARDO.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.; and all Newsagents.

WINNING WORDS.

A New Series of Text Cards. Envelope shape. Illustrated with Etchings. Price Sixpence, post free.
JOHN G. WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park, London, N.

Now ready.
Price 3s. 6d. per 100.

"TURN OVER A NEW LEAF!"

A New Year's Address to Railway Men.
BY LADY HOPE,
OF CARRIDEN.

"A Happy New Year!" How pleasant the words sound! It is delightful to be greeted with such a wish, when we meet our friends on the first day of a New Year. And do we not ourselves hope that the wish may come true? Indeed we do. Yes! Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory, loves our dear Railway Men, and wants them to have a Happy New Year. Will you not give Him His wish?"—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

JUST PUBLISHED.

Neatly printed in Blue Ink on tinted paper, suitable for enclosing in Letters, or for general distribution.

Price 3s. 6d. per 100 (post free 3s. 9d.)
50 for 2s.; 25 for 1s. (either post free).

A CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR'S GREETING TO
"BLUE RIBBONS."
FROM
Mrs. EVERED POOLE.

"I could not let this happy Christmas season pass without sending you a few words of warm and loving greeting; and I feel sure that just at this time, when so many temptations will certainly cluster round your path, the beautiful promise with which I head my letter, will come to you with special comfort and strength-giving power."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

EPPS'S (BREAKFAST) COCOA.

GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.

JAMES EPPS AND CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.

TINTED COVERS—6th EDITION. 20th THOUSAND.

HOW TO READ THE BIBLE.

This momentous question answered. No household should be without copies. 9 for 8d. A copy should be kept in the Bible. Apply to Rev. A. LYNE, Westgate-on-Sea, Thanet, enclosing addressed ½d. wrapper. (To ministers, booksellers, and distributors, 2s. 1s. 2d.; 50, 2s. 4d.; post free. Proceeds to a Charity. Single copies cannot be sent.)

NOW READY.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "OH TO BE NOTHING!"

LAYS OF LOWLY SERVICE.

BY GEORGIANA M. TAYLOR.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. Handsomely bound in Morocco, gilt edges, 4s 6d.

"Your Hymns have a special ministry of their own"
Miss FRANCES RIDLEY HAVERGAL.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION

After many years' trial is universally pronounced by Physicians and Doctors to be the most valuable and successful preparation ever recommended in the treatment of Consumption and all wasting diseases. Dr. ALABONE, of Lynton House, Highbury Quadrant, N., in his treatise, "Consumption: its Cure by an entirely New Remedy," states: "I have rarely ever found the Emulsion fail in arresting the rapid wasting of consumptive patients, and to increase flesh and strength. I have recommended it to some thousands of patients, with marvellous results." Send for copy of testimonials received from Doctors, Clergymen, Ministers, and late sufferers, of its wonderful effects. Price 4s. 6d., 11s., and 21s. per bottle. Considerable saving is effected by taking the larger sizes. To be obtained at all Chemists. Wholesale—BARCLAY & SONS, Farringdon-street, E.C.; or from the Proprietor, W. B. TRICK, A.P.S. Chemist, 92, Green-lanes, London, N.

Third Edition. Post-free, Twelve Stamps.

SKIN DISEASES.

A Practical TREATISE explaining the Causes, TREATMENT and CURE of these Diseases; with directions for Diet and Baths. These Essays describe fully all the various forms of Skin Diseases. By S. BERRY NIBLETT, Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians. Published by Mr. Williams, 10, Oxford Terrace, Hyde Park, London.

The Christian.

THE CHURCHES IN RELATION TO EVANGELISTIC WORK.

PRIZE ARTICLES

By Rev. EDWD. SMITH, Fairfield, Manchester.

CHAP. V.—ADAPTATIONS.

"For every one that useth milk is unskilful in the word of righteousness: for he is a babe. But strong meat belongeth to them of full age, even those who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil.—HEB. v. 13, 14.

"Somewhere down deep
In each natural soul,
Sacred verities sleep,
Holy waterfloods roll."

THEY who seek to adapt their methods to the characters on whom they operate must be content with nothing less than spiritual reformation. Changes in outward habit are more noticeable, and may excite more thanksgiving, than changes of inward life—but these latter are the changes after all. To bring men into downrightness of godliness ought to be the great end of all Christian adaptations. Social virtue, in itself, is only a secondary benefit. True piety must go down to the very roots of the being. Union with Christ, meditation on God, consultation of the Scriptures, actual performance of deeds of devotion, are at the foundation of all real personal righteousness.

Nevertheless, while statedly keeping this before us, we must be careful not to occupy too high a platform of expectation. Toilers among the sunken myriads sometimes expect more than God himself does. While religion is a long endeavour after perfection, it is actually far more improvement than it is perfection. The question at the great Test-day will not be so much, "What art thou?" as "How much improvement of soul did'st thou secure?" Estimated by this standard, one person who is abstractly not so good as another may in God's sight be better, because the struggle against evil has been more intense, and the heart-deep amendment has been greater.

If the Holy God makes allowances for vitiated physical frame, for bad bringing up, for unhappy antecedents, we may proceed on the same principles. While not degrading high doctrines to comfort low lives, we may freely bear with the foibles and negligences of those, who, being religious after the New Testament fashion, are surely, though perhaps secretly, on the line of improvement.

The most that can be done in this article is to lay down principles, and to fling forth a few hints as to practicable methods. In we must have an eye to our own special suitability for one more than for others. No doubt, all classes and conditions of the English people may be largely permeated by Christian Evangelism. Providence intends kindness to all alike, and has already provided the agents. But those agents should consult their own common sense and yield to the impressions produced by the Spirit of God. He certainly intends that a fair proportion of religious zeal shall be consecrated to each class and each condition now existent in this land.

CHOOSING SPHERES FOR CHRISTIAN LABOUR

What do our training and disposition say? In my own case, I could make no mistake. Mental constitution and earlier life alike pointed to a dedication chiefly to the working classes. For several years I had an enforced companionship with rude, wild men, and now, as its result, I am "at home" among even the lowest and wildest. In one house I am having a meal with a company of "illiterates." They feel honoured by my presence, and have provided a sumptuous entertainment in the shape of coffee and egg (nearly as much egg as coffee), and plum-cake (the plums weighed more than the dough). The very look of the table is sickening to a man of plain tastes; but, for the sake of saving those colliers, I face the business, and take almost my share of the dangerous dainties provided. Again I find myself in a dirty house. A cup of "teetotal" beer is pressed on my acceptance. To refuse will be to offend. I am informed by the presiding genius of the household that it contains ten kinds of "yarbs." The compound looks suspiciously like what I imagined the famous Spartan "black broth" to be; but the cup is drained, and I am at once invited to come to that home again.

On another occasion I discovered an old man getting in coals. "Can you use a shovel either hand first?" "No," he replies. "Let me have it then;" and then with quick changes of hands I make the coals fly. "You must have been a fireman," says he. "No, I've not; I'm an educated man; but I know how to handle a shovel, and I want you to come next Sunday and see if I can do anything else besides." The majority of believers would feel awkward in such circumstances as these, and so I should be equally as awkward in scenes amid which they would be familiar and effective. Well-nigh all adaptations are devised and carried out by those who are by nature and education competent for the work they have taken in hand.

In all matters that have to do with adaptation, we need not fear to consult expediency. Expediency is more frequently the friend of rectitude than its foe. The Acts of the Apostles is the best commentary on the Gospel and its work, and that book teems with instances in which

EXPEDIENTS WERE CONSIDERED.

This may suggest to us adaptations somewhat grotesque. But we have often to cater for those who in morals, information, power of mind, are below the average Jew of Ezekiel's time. Yet he was commanded to teach the errant people by means of the cutting off and weighing of hair, of daily digging, of a mimic siege. Children are taught by the pictures and make-believes of the Kindergarten system; and what are many British adults but children so far as their religious conditions are concerned? Of what use is it that we speak to them as a minister did, not long ago, to a motley crowd in the open air on the subjects consecutively of "theology," "anthropology," "soteriology," and "eschatology." Much the wiser were they for his diatribe.

No, we must fly to the other extreme of simplicity, and must not shun even odd ways of heralding forth the good news. If we laugh at one who in giving a Sunday-school address simplifies and explains the word "proverb" by terming it "an occult sententious aphorism," much more should we admire the courage and ingenuity of those who meet new obstructions of evil with new expedients of good, who apply to new growths new methods of consolidation and extension. We may proceed to the work of dovetailing appliances into ever-changing modern conditions with clear conscience and with sanguine belief that, as of old, the disciples shall be multiplied.

And, in all efforts at adaptation, a habit of balancing good with evil and evil with good is pre-eminently needful. In this strange world the frontiers of the two kingdoms of evil and good are hard to be defined. The very method which helps some is nearly sure to hinder others. Human nature cannot be trusted far in any direction. Constant supervision is needed. Elasticity may easily become laxity. If class legislation is bad, so may be, in some cases, class Evangelism. Vulgarisms may reach the vulgar, but may also breed contempt for the agent. A refusal to transfer Mission-hall converts to a regular Church organisation may foster in them the love of a cheap religion, and so be for the impoverishment of the soul; while, on the other hand, if such transference be carried out, the new atmosphere might not be at all suitable for these reclaimed ones.

"SENSATIONALISM,"

no doubt, may be both permissible and laudable, but what is sensational to-day is commonplace to-morrow. And it is so easy in certain minds to create or nourish an appetite for that which is new. Then the old will be condemned just because it is old. There will be a perpetual straining after new sensationalisms until extravagance takes the place of sober reason. Playing with edge-tools is safe work compared with the using of startling methods. Unless these methods be kept under strict surveillance, it may be discovered by well-meaning workers, as the voyagers in the Odyssey found to their bitter cost, that it is easier to loose the wild winds from the bag than to get them back again under restraint.

There must be an exercise of calm judgment on these matters. God's counsels should be earnestly sought for. The evil ought to be looked at with the good. If it be said, "Such an individual or such a stratum of society must be made at least ostensibly religious at all costs"—the religiousness may be brought to pass at too great a cost. "How far is it right to expose some to pain and offence for the sake of saving others?" is a question intricate indeed. The stumbling of the fragile, the bewilderment of the truth-seeking, the exposure of the zealous to a spirit of mutual censoriousness, would be, perhaps, too heavy a price to pay; and a dangerous reaction might set in, until a true and wise Evangelism was condemned indiscriminately with that which was ill-advised.

The writer once took a piece of chalk at the close of a Mission Service and wrote around the doorway of God's house, in large letters, the word "Eternity," telling the irreligious persons present that if they would persist in treading the downward road, they should walk over that awful word. Most likely this novel procedure aroused new thought in some, but a review of the whole matter convinces me that the deed was, just then and there, an indiscreet one; but, in some circumstances, the good might have vastly overweighted the harm. In the use, then, of new or "sensational" means, no thought and no search for light can be superfluous. By as much as we lower our self-respect, by so much eventually do we detract from our power.

And again, as we strive to adapt and re-adapt our agencies to our great ends, there must be

NO GIVING UP OF THE ONE GOSPEL.

He who adds to it, subtracts from it. No sentiment of Scripture has been more perverted than that of being "all things to all men." It has been made the plea for card-playing on the part of ministers, for unholy truckling to heathenism on the part of Romanist missionaries, for delirious expression of artificial feeling on the part of various modern religionists. Lectures on the Poets on Sunday evenings, manufactured excitement, secular entertainments for the young under the patronage of the Church, unrepressed gyrations in Christian assemblies, raffling in bazaars with loud apology that it is "for the good of the cause," the lavish use of worldly paraphernalia—what of it all? Does it not mean that any results achieved can be accounted for from a standpoint merely human? Is not the super-natural eliminated? And what is the Gospel without the supernatural? Can there be greater facility given for the hatching of the dragon's eggs of scepticism among the communities of the righteous? After some, at least, of these devices in village or city, the membership of the churches dwindles in numbers and godliness, and after others any increase is simply inflation. If we defend measures which are neither more nor less than additions to the Gospel, we can no longer impeach Xavier because in his East Indian labours he turned to account the customs and observances of the heathen.

But extremes should be avoided. Outgrowths of earnestness are not at once to be branded as excrescences. God deals with human nature as it is, and not as it might be, and so may we deal with it. It is the old idea of expediency again. This is ever-recurrent in all speech relating to adaptation. The religious grow mentally as well as spiritually. They get into the way of fancying that all are as they find themselves to be. They argue from their own tastes to those of others. But let anyone who goes through the back streets of a city on a Sabbath afternoon in summer keep his eyes open. He will see women rushing to the gin-palace to get their favourite liquor before closing-time, men in shirt-sleeves with short pipes in their mouths standing about in knots, youths gambolling, withered crones sitting on the door-steps: and most of these persons have, withal, stunted growth, sloping foreheads, small craniums.

And if conversation among the roughs who go to race-courses or cricket-grounds is listened to, what is it like? Is it not shallow, insipid, would-be-witty? Plenty of profanity there is, but nothing in the talk sensible or meditative on the sterner facts of life. All this is a fair sample, and so a true index of the mental and moral condition of the unsaved millions. Much is being said about the "intelligence of the labouring classes," whereas it ought to be apparent to all who speak on the subject that the major portion are not intelligent. Whatever school-boards may do in the future, they have made little difference as yet. The ideas of most move in very narrow circles, and they must be dealt with accordingly.

What will find favour may be inferred from what does find favour. Are Wordsworth and Longfellow found in the low music halls? In the songs sold at a hundred-a-penny are there included any pieces from Tennyson or Browning? Tawdry sentiment, maudlin love-talk, simpering smartness, make up these precious compounds. And yet the crowd enjoys and applauds, and reads and digests. Can such people be reached by the hymns of Keble, or Lyte, or Heber? No; these are too poetic, too profound, for any such purpose. Both poetry and tunes must be something like and only somewhat above those to which they have been used, or else there will be no affinity between mind and hymn. Within the limits already prescribed there is abundant

ROOM FOR MANIFOLD ADAPTATIONS.

And equally thus is it as to excitement. The evil *in*citements may be crowded out by the good *ex*citements. Pietism and quietism should not be represented as invariably cause and effect. The lower the caste of man, the more dependent he is on excitement. The discipline and elevation which will make him independent of it will probably be a long time in coming, even after his adhesion to the Church. Most welcome to him, therefore, is the exuberance of speech and the responsive rush of emotion, and the quaint irregular expression. The analysis of all great movements among "the residuum" in the past reveals a dash of fanaticism—and what else could be expected? We must "honour all men," says the Book, and so must thoughtfully humour some whom we honour. So, spasmodic excitement, while kept under proper restraint, may be freely permitted; chronic jubilancy can be enjoined, new habits and pursuits among the recently enfranchised should be forwarded, the new ingenuities of the kingdom of darkness ought to be more than matched by those of the kingdom of light. The next hundred years will witness some remarkable products of the combined wisdom of those who lovingly conspire for the salvation of "publicans and sinners."

Adaptations are as essential in one place as in another. "How shall we get hold of the hundreds of life-wasters who never help to fill the sanctuary?" Such was the question asked in a Notts market-town. The reply was, "Let us for these carry on a service in the schoolroom, while the regular attendants worship God in the duly authorised sanctuary not many yards away." There was no opposition to this. In that town there is a singular dearth of "strait-laced" professors. To that Sunday evening service God has been pleased to measure out much blessing.

"And what shall we do in the same direction?" asked some godly men of each other as they gazed upon the crowded public-houses of a large sea-port. Well, they arranged to have a homely fiery week-evening meeting, into which was brought a great deal of variety. To this they invited neighbours and casuals whom they met in the streets. These found the meeting a capital way of spending their leisure time; and all concerned are filled with gratitude to Him who infused this thought into their minds.

Yet another Church has been bold enough to depart from the practice of giving the inferior positions and less comfortable seats to the poor. The free seats are made the most cosy in the place, and as this gets known its popularity grows. What is financial loss when compared with spiritual gain? And in country places tents are being used with good effect. The people inhabiting some of these localities may be twenty years behind the times, but, for all that, they are appreciative of modern religious expedients. These tents become useful not only on anniversary occasions, but for the usual religious gatherings. Many are decoyed to hear the truth in them who would not be found within walls of brick or stone. There is a sense of the absence of formalism; the variety is agreeable; and if the experiment becomes quite the usage in some rural regions, all the better. Tents are bad to preach in, but the breaking down of social distinctions, the breeziness, the happy feeling of strangeness, more than compensate for the disadvantages.

Why should we be afraid of giving up sometimes the somewhat high and dry ordinary services for the sake of drawing within our influence the habitual neglecters of public worship? Striking methods are often owned of God. One foggy night the writer sang alone in the streets of a colliery village. A man who was recognised as the veriest wretch in the place heard the singing and also the invitation which followed. To that invitation he consented, and listened to a sermon from two texts: "Thy calf, O Samaria, hath cast thee off," and "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out." He was told of the different treatment offered by Jesus to that which he would at last suffer at the hands of his present master. Greatly moved upon, he went home, played his cards into the fire, gave up his drink and his evil associations, and turned fully to God.

Months afterwards I saw him again. He was well dressed, but flurried and heated. He had come four miles to see me as I left a certain station, had lost the way, and ran in just as the train was going out. Pressing my hand, he gasped out, "I wanted to tell you that if I never meet you again on earth, I will meet you in heaven." Could that notorious sinner have been so well reached in any other way? It did look undignified for a minister to sing a solo in the open-air, but a number of other cases, similar to this, had convinced me that, while in some neighbourhoods it was inexpedient to do this, in others it was just the thing.

In this paper I have referred almost exclusively to ways and means of reclaiming and purifying the classes most written and talked about just now. They lie within my own peculiar province. There are many of my fellow-workers who are as capable of propounding schemes for the spiritual welfare of merchants, and high-born ladies, and children who are "above" going to Sunday-schools, as I am of prescribing for the low-born and half-instructed. Observant readers of religious weeklies may pick up many relations of successful work in all departments, and may imitate what they read about.

If England's manhood does require more skilful adaptation to its needs than England's womanhood, the essentials for a successful dealing with its necessities are at hand. If there are "hid treasures," they have been hidden with a view to our seeking after them and our discovery of them. By finding a platform common to ourselves and to those for whom we live and labour, we shall, sooner or later, get at them successfully.

Finally, all may be summed up in the words of Dr. Dykes: "That can scarcely be bad Mission work which saves a multitude of souls." And no other example is needed beside that of Him who said: "Unto the Jews I became as a Jew that I might gain the Jews; to them that are under the law as under the law, that I might gain them that are under the law; to them that are without law as without law, that I might gain them that are without law; to the weak became I as weak that I might gain the weak: that I might by all means save some."

REFORM OF PRAYER MEETINGS.—The third edition of the Letters on this subject is now issued, with some additional remarks on singing, confession, &c., and may be obtained freely on application to J. V. S., 18, Grand Parade, Eastbourne.

ROYAL HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES, PUTNEY.—In a beautifully prepared pamphlet—the story of the work well told, and the engravings on every second page of superior excellence—entitled "Memories of Melrose," the committee of the above hospital let the outer world know a little of the good work being done at Melrose, situated at the top of Putney Hill. There are 196 inmates and 473 pensioners; the benefit in all cases is life long, and the numbers are being augmented year by year. The hospital requires more friends and more funds for its pressing and important needs. Friends who wish to know more of the work can have a copy of this pamphlet, post-free, on application to the secretary, Mr. Frederic Andrew, 106, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.

For the Young.

BRIGHTON CHILDREN AT CHRISTMAS.

SATURDAY, December 23rd, will not soon be forgotten by thousands of children in Brighton, rich and poor, but especially the poor. If the young readers of THE CHRISTIAN had entered the fine building called the Dome about half-past ten on the morning of that day, a very pretty spectacle would have greeted them. Right along the centre of the floor were two rows of tables, that must have groaned under the weight of the good things with which they were laden. What an array, to be sure! Everything dear to the childish heart seems to have found its way into this strange and wonderful collection.

Here are a few of the articles that might have been noted down at random as one passed along the busy scene: Toys without end, cocks, canaries, coaches drawn by four dashing steeds, clowns, cats, dogs, lambs, hoops, spades, Noah's arks, merry-go-rounds, tiny tea-services, trumpets, money-boxes and musical boxes, ships, balls, and dolls innumerable, of many sizes and styles of costume. Close by there were heaps of hats, handkerchiefs, cuffs, socks, stockings, boots, shoes, shawls, jackets, aprons, frocks, flannels white and red, caps, cravats, and other articles of juvenile attire "too numerous to mention." A little further on were perfect pyramids of tempting buns, piles of neatly tied-up parcels containing tea and sugar, oranges, cakes, packets of sweets, bon-bons, and nicknacks enough to make little eyes open wide with envy and amaze. But, dear me! there is no room to put down any more; the rest must be imagined.

What does it all mean? Why, don't you know, it was a Christmas treat provided by the young people of the town, who had some spare pocke'-money, and the mind to spend it for their poor brothers and sisters whose pockets might as well be made of holes, seeing that they had seldom, if ever, any money to put into them. The galleries of the Dome and a part of the floor were nearly filled with the children and others who had given all the nice things; but where were the poor children for whom they were intended?

Ah, yes! Let us follow the crowd, and walk right through the further door. At once we find ourselves in the Corn Exchange, where we see a sight that makes us at once sorry and glad. It is almost eleven o'clock, and the big room is packed from end to end with a crowd of boys and girls, all of that faded, dirty brown colour that tells of poverty and few changes of raiment. There must be very nearly three thousand of them; surely all the little dwellers in the back slums and alleys of Brighton have been emptied at once into this big Corn Exchange. There is a great buzz of excitement, and the ushers with the long wands have plenty of work to keep the faded brown unwashed multitude of small people in their seats. They are all on the tiptoe of expectation; somebody has told them of the treasures in the enchanted palace through that door; and poor children are not gifted with much more patience than other children who have not so much need of it.

But some of you are asking who gave birth to the happy thought that has brought about this happy occasion when the rich and poor of Brighton met together. It was none other than Mr. Moody. He and Mr. Sankey had been preaching and singing the Gospel for ten days in this same Dome and this same Corn Exchange. Many had believed the words that were spoken and sung, and had tasted of the joy of sin forgiven. Was it not right, said Mr. Moody, that they should show their faith by their works? How could they do that better than by carrying help and happiness into the homes and hearts of their less favoured neighbours? Being willing learners in the school of Jesus Christ, the young converts, as well as others who had been in that school for years and years, fell in with Mr. Moody's plan; and so the thing was done.

But here comes Mr. Moody himself. He leaves the well-clad and well-to-do people in the Dome to give the finishing touches to the groaning tables, and quickly enters the Corn Exchange. He has hardly made his appearance when a great shout of welcome rises up from many hundreds of fresh young throats. But, time is passing, and every moment is precious; so Mr. Moody proceeds at once to the business of the day. He mounts the platform, and asks that all the little heads should be bowed while he calls on the Great Father in heaven to send down his blessing, without which nothing can really prosper or have good success. He is a wise man, and knows that it would not be much use for him to attempt to preach to such a restless congregation. So he asks for silence, and tells them that there is to be some singing.

Every boy and girl that can read is to get a hymn-book, so that they may join in the songs. After a while this is all arranged as satisfactorily as possible; then we have "a real good time," as our American cousins would say. Though Mr. Moody is not much of a singer himself, he knows well enough when the singing is just as it ought to be, and he enjoys it as much as anybody. The children pick up the tunes very quickly, and after the choir has sung a verse, they are asked to sing it by themselves, sometimes the boys alone, sometimes the girls alone, and sometimes altogether. They are delighted when Mr. Moody tells them that they have done better than the choir; and great is the glee when he says, "We boys have done it best this time!" If they are always as obedient and teachable and persevering as they are to-day, these Brighton waifs will surely grow up to be wonderfully clever men and women.

All this time the hands of the clock are steadily moving round, and the hour of twelve seems to have come before anybody is aware of it. Leaving the large amateur choir in the hands of the conductor, Mr. Moody quietly slips out into the Dome, to see if everything is ready for the distribution of the Christmas gifts. A batch of the children nearest the door are ushered into the Dome, and ranged in a thin line between the tables. Then comes the grand climax of the programme for the day. Toys and goodies, and garments and picture-books, and what not, are quickly transferred from their resting-places to the arms of the dusty brown children, who seem so taken by surprise that they look on in a sort of dazed bewilderment, forgetting very often to say "Thank you," or even to give a grateful curtsey. Poor mites! To most of them it is evidently a new experience, and we cannot wonder if their young hearts were in such a flutter that they lost any little bit of good manners they had ever been taught. After they are fairly laden with good things, they pass out of the Dome and disappear.

So for nearly three long hours the streams flow on—the stream of children and the stream of gifts—while the crowd in the circular gallery look on with evident interest and delight. There seems no end to it, but the friends at the tables are very anxious and careful that all the children should get that which will suit them best and be of most use to them, so it will not do to hurry. Mr. Moody is here, there, and everywhere—the busiest of all. Slowly but surely the great Exchange is emptied of its dusty brown company, and the tables in the Dome are emptied of their varied store; but not till three o'clock is the last child covered with gifts and sent on its way rejoicing. Who enjoyed it most—the givers, or the receivers—it would be hard to say. The good old Book says, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," so that perhaps the givers had the best of it.

And if there was joy in the Brighton Dome that day, surely there was joy in the presence of God, who is the great Giver of all good things. We were whirled down from London to Brighton by an early train, and when the sun had risen a little above the horizon, his rays shone beautifully through some rents in a cloud, making, as it seemed, a golden stairway, on which the angels might descend. And when, some hours after, we heard the choir of ladies in the Dome sing softly, "There are angels hovering round," we thought that our fancy had come true, and the angels of God were really there, gazing on the strange but welcome sight, and waiting to carry back to heaven the news that the servants of Jesus in Brighton were following closely in their Master's blessed footsteps. G. R.

UNION HALL MISSION.

ON Christmas morning a goodly company of Christian workers and friends met at the hall in Edgware-road for Conference, Prayer, and Praise. During the meeting several addresses of an interesting and practical nature were given. Meetings were also held on the afternoon and evening of the day following, many of the friends coming from the different Mission halls in the neighbourhood.

The evening meeting was specially devoted to hearing testimonies from the young converts who have been brought to the Lord during the past summer through the Mission's operations. Very touching it was to hear those lately converted tell out, in simple language, the story of their salvation. One, a man of some fifty years, told how he was induced by two of his children, both under ten years of age, to go with them to a tent service. "Now we read the Bible every day, and we are always singing Sankey's hymns. I have the happiest home in Battersea."

Another, a workman, had led a reckless life, but he had a wife who for twenty-one years had prayed for him. He was persuaded to attend some Gospel services in the Kensal Hall some months ago, and there he found Christ. "My wife, who on account of my former bad treatment has not been able to go to a single meeting this year, said to me the other day, the twenty-second anniversary of our wedding, 'This year, my lad, bless God, has been the happiest year of my life.'"

A soldier just returned from India related how a month ago, he was accosted in Edgware-road, led into the hall, and brought to the Saviour. Many others, including several sisters, also gave praise for blessing received.

"A HOME IN SICKNESS."—It is not generally known that persons of the artizan and lower middle classes may now obtain the advantages of Hospital treatment and nursing by paying such a weekly sum as their means allow. The Bolingbroke House Pay Hospital, the second year's Report of which has just reached us, was founded by subscriptions given by those who believed that many persons who now resort to General Hospitals as objects of charity would gladly pay for medical treatment according to their means, and the result has so far proved very gratifying to the subscribers. The institution is based on the self-supporting principle, and in the second year the number of patients has doubled—a large proportion of them coming from the country. It is doing a distinct work, and one that must commend itself to all who know how often medical charities are imposed upon by persons who can well afford to pay a reasonable proportion of their cost. Ordinary charitable hospitals could not receive payment from their patients, and hence the establishment of the Bolingbroke House Pay Hospital, further particulars of which will no doubt be furnished by the Honorary Secretary, Mr. J. S. Wood, Woodville, Upper Tooting, S.W.

THE CALL AND DUTY OF THE NEW YEAR.

By Rev. WILLIAM GUEST.

THERE is one aspect of the times which pertains to every nation, and with which the world enters on a new period of time, and that is—a universal soul-hunger. By this I do not mean that men are consciously reaching after God. The yearning is, alas! blind and undiscerning. But it is everywhere, and Christian men as they go into the New Year must take note of it, and of all the responsibilities it brings.

We are told that "when Jesus was born, certain mariners, sailing in the Ægean Sea, heard a voice echoing among the rude islands: 'Great Pan is dead.'" Whether this was so or not, it is historically certain that the First Advent was at a time when the world was in despair. The oracles of heathenism were dumb; priests were discredited; doubt was a torment; scepticism was felt to be an engulphing quicksand; schools, academies, and philosophies were powerless; corruption was consuming the nations; and men everywhere, stung and haunted by conscience, did not know where to fly in their terror.

There are aspects of our own age which in part correspond with the condition of men at the first coming of the Redeemer. This paper, however, can do no more than offer a rapid glance at the state of the nations as the New Year opens.

Germany is the most influential power on the Continent of Europe. There has been a long reign of Materialisms, Neologies, and Socialisms. Christian beliefs still awaken the sneer. But unbelief has lost all basis. The destructive criticism which threw doubt on the authenticity of the books of the New Testament is proved to be untenable. In a recent introduction to theology, Dr. Zöckler writes about the "End of the Tübingen School." Those who know the German-speaking nations the best tell us there is a wide-spread misgiving underneath the prevailing scepticism, a stern dissatisfaction with what now is, and a deep-settled craving for a new order of things.

As to France, with its contempt for religion, its atheisms, and universal dissoluteness, it is scarcely possible to speak without being charged with exaggeration. Its fashionable classes are suffering from apathy, or are reckless as to new gratifications. Its political classes are embittered by suspicion and distrust. Among its artisans are violent insurrectionists. Every party is seeking its own special interests, and all these forces of social disintegration are ripening towards the crisis of a great catastrophe. A powerful nation has said of the Lord and His anointed, "Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us." Meantime, it is famishing, like the prodigal, with its swine-food, and there are signs of a growing conviction that deliverance from menacing evils can only be found in a national return unto the living God.

In Switzerland, the growth of intemperance is depreciating land, spreading bankruptcies, and ruining family life. It is producing such a frightful increase of crime, we are told, as to awaken the deepest alarm among all classes of society, and men are crying out for some remedy against the terrible ruin that menaces the nation.

Italy is little disposed at present to welcome Protestantism, but it is utterly wearied of Popery, and is disappointed with the results of political freedom. The old genial merriment of the Italians is passing away, but out of their dreariness is coming the day of preparation for the events that are at hand.

It is not easy to obtain data as to the present characteristics of the great Empire of Russia, but from Mr. Lansdell's singularly interesting volumes, "Through Siberia," it may be gathered that there are millions of persons, among all orders of society, who with ardour will accept any portion of the Scriptures, and that there is not a land more promising than Russia for the preaching of the good tidings of the Gospel.

As for the great Gentile world, it is not too much to say that in a dumb, inarticulate manner, half the human race is stretching out its hands unto God. False systems in their long sway have unhappily enervated conscience, and we see not, as we desire, the converts to the sanctifying truth of Christ. But never in the history of Missions could it be so truly said as at the beginning of this year: "This day is the preparation and the Sabbath draws on." Hindooism is in decay. Untaught savages cry out for succour. Buddhism has lost its old enthusiasm. Islamism is smitten with feebleness. The Ottoman Empire trembles like the flame of an expiring lamp. Popery is no longer a power of propagandism; and, in the providence of the Spirit of God, great peoples are saying, as they never did before, "Our fathers inherited vanity and lies."

The question now comes, What shall be said of ourselves? This: with all the asperities of political parties, outbreaks of lawlessness and violence, and prevailing unbelief, our countrymen, while unable to define what they want, are everywhere discontented with what they have.

The grounds for recent scepticism, which were thought firm, are found to be unstable; accepted conclusions of physical science are seen to be changing; plausible excuses for vice are clearly opening wide doors for revolting demoralisation; and it is widely felt that unbelief and secularised Sabbaths have robbed men of the consolations of life, and left nothing in their place. Thousands of those who were the intellectual young men of England thirty or forty years ago have had a strong suspicion forced upon them that they have been taken in. They have accepted Darwinism as dispensing with the supernatural, but they now find that the great naturalist admitted that the origin of nature was in mind. They have come to learn that the theory of evolution by natural selection is failing all along the backward line. They have thought that the theory disproved the miraculous, but now are startled to realise that its logical sequence is to make crime a physical necessity. Or, they have been captivated with the intolerant mysticism of Thomas Carlyle, and now discover, what his genius and force can never more allow Englishmen to forget, that he himself, while teaching the age, was the most miserable of men, whom it was "gey ill to live with," and whose very soul seemed destitute of amenity. Or, they have acquiesced in the moral philosophy of John Stuart Mill, and find it is no longer accepted by the metaphysicians who come after him.

It may be doubted whether there ever has been such soul-hunger in England as at the present hour. Truly, with her disbelief and overthrow of the old barriers, she "begins to be in want." And this is so with vast numbers of religious professors. They had thought they had found a new religion which permitted the indulgence of natural enjoyments instead of the control of them; which led them out of antiquated Church restrictions into a "broader freedom;" which dispensed with family prayer, and regarded Bible-reading as obsolete, and they have come to find that their more liberal way has led them into a moral wilderness. There are no more unhappy persons among men than English professors of religion who communicate at the Lord's Table, and live in modern worldliness. They have made the experiment of a Christianity without a cross, and their souls are starving as the result of it.

One sometimes sees a defence of attendance at a theatre on the part of believers in Christ. Living, happily, outside this mode of life, a writer may not judge fairly. But one ought to form a judgment when one reads the plot of such a drama as that lately prepared for the Parisians, "Le Roi s'Amuse." Such a revolting exhibition seems an open and daring defiance of the most sacred proprieties of life, and must be a training of sons and daughters which will bring to the generation to come a harvest of unutterable horrors. We do not go to London theatres, but those who do tell us this:—

> It is idle to blink the truth, that in certain London theatres immorality is rampant; actresses form connections which they have not the discretion even to keep in the background; diamonds glitter on their necks and on their wrists, which all the world knows to be the wages of an unchaste life; the whole atmosphere reeks of dishonour, profligacy, and extravagance. This is prejudicial not only to art but to public morality. There is, perhaps, no more melancholy sign of the times than that women whose lives are flagrantly immoral should be suffered to flaunt, with all the ostentation which a public stage affords, the material evidences of their splendid infamy, and that audiences should be found to applaud their appearance without regard to their character.

[The passage was quoted a few weeks ago by the Pall Mall Gazette from the Birmingham Mail.]

Rarely in the troubled history of an apostate world can there have been a period when such a solemn and all-commanding responsibility rested on the servants of Christ, as on the year now beginning.

Surely men must see proof that there is a subtle and malignant counterworking of Satan against schemes of righteousness, and that social and intellectual progress is not necessarily a blessing. Surely they must learn that a swept and garnished house must have the Gospel, or it will take to itself seven spirits more wicked than the first. What need have we of Divine wisdom! What communion should we maintain with the Master! What a spirit of heedfulness should be ours, and of charity conjoined with firmness! An easeful, light-hearted, worldly-minded professor is a distressing spectacle just now. Never before has the great motto word of the Church received such an emphatic commendation: "The night is far spent; the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light."

This is certain. All the loyal-hearted must demand that the supreme evangelical testimony should be proclaimed. We know, that in this day of grace, the Almighty Father is not "imputing unto men their trespasses," but is, through Christ, "reconciling the world unto Himself." Thanks unto His name, the bearers of this message were never so numerous. Oh, that its heralds everywhere, believing in its efficacy, and not afraid of the "offence of the cross," would make apparent unto all men its vital, transcendent import, and that they care far less about the messenger than the success of the message!

I observe that justly honoured men are emphasising the responsibility of Christian professors, in the presence of the remarkable openings of our times, to labour for the conversion of men by personal testimony. And who dare disparage such a demand? But we are bound to ask whether by conversion people may not understand that of ordinary profession? Is that conversion which regards Christ's claim as a secondary thing? Is not the present ranking of human aims—first money, second pleasure, and then religion—a total denial of Christ's teaching? Should not the elevating joy of Christianity be an influence to persuade men? If, instead of this, the prevailing pattern and rule of Christian life is a false and degraded one, can we safely, or without a decided utterance, send forth converts to imitate it?

I read also of apparently endless discussions of what is proper, and what is not proper, in the way of recreation for Christian people. But such talk may be wholly mischievous by being wrongly placed in point of time and order. It can only come wisely after something else. That which is first wanted is a raised ideal of Christian life and character. There has been an attempted reconcilement between the Church and the world. The result has been a pitiful and illusory abortion. We must go back to first principles. The Son of God, without denying legitimate things, came into a world which He Himself designated a realm of Satan and a kingdom of darkness. He declared that believing in Him was to pass from death unto life, from darkness unto light, and from the power of Satan unto God. It is only half the Gospel to teach that Jesus has delivered us from the guilt of sin, and woe unto us if we contract and mutilate Christ's truth. Our great duty as we enter on the New Year, and in the face of the scepticisms, misgivings, and helplessness of the world, is to make manifest what it is to be Jesus Christ's.

Selfishness is the vice of our race. Ah! what a very hell of evils has it wrought. Self, in some form or another, is the aim of every man. That only is an entire Gospel which makes clear as daylight that Christ died for us, and that we who believe so died in Him as that we should be held, constrained, and bound by His love, and thus be brought back to the unswerving loyalty Godwards which was the original law of the universe, and, being dead to the old life, receive power to live "no longer to ourselves." Men can never be brought to the obedience of Christ until He is manifestly Lord of all who profess to believe on Him.

To the Church at Sardis our august and ascended Lord said that He had not found its works "fulfilled"—completed in character and measure—before God. Our duty now is to restore the authority of inspired teaching as to the nature and demands of the Christian life. At whatever cost—and with cost it will be—it must be done. The world is wearied in the greatness and fruitlessness of its way. Thirty years ago some of us saw that Ritualism on the one side, and Rationalism on the other, would proceed to one point, and that point would be a perilous and even fatal weakening of the authority of the Scriptures of truth. This has come, and nothing, under God, will save our times but a complete Christianity, and the prayerful, honest effort of Christian men and women to live the spiritual, consecrated, and unworldly lives which the New Testament enjoins. May the Lord give us grace to learn that the insisting upon this is the paramount duty now lying upon us.

Tunbridge Wells.

GIFTS BY CHILDREN TO HOSPITALS.—Many hundreds of painting and story-books, coloured or written by readers of Little Folks Magazine, have recently been distributed among the various children's hospitals and kindred institutions in London and throughout the United Kingdom. In addition to the above, a large number of patchwork quilts, dolls, playthings, &c., prepared by readers of the same magazine, have been sent to many of the larger metropolitan hospitals.

BIBLE READINGS ON THE HOLY SPIRIT.

By GEORGE C. NEEDHAM.

IV.—THE HOLY SPIRIT AND THE BELIEVER.

WHAT the Spirit was to Jesus in his human nature, that He is to the believer. He is given to the believer as the Spirit of Sonship (Rom. viii. 16, 17). Being, first of all, born of the Spirit into the divine family, He takes up his abode within us, so that we are the children of God, having received the Spirit of adoption. The common idea of adoption is that of a rich man taking a beggar from the streets and treating him as a son. So God takes us into his family. The parallel fails in one respect: there is nothing in nature between the rich man and the beggar, but in the adoption of the believer the Spirit enables him to realise a relation already existing. "The Spirit Himself beareth witness with our spirits." We have a spiritual nature which gives this testimony, and it is in the line of the Spirit's own testimony (Rom. viii. 16; Gal. iv. 6). It is important that we understand this relation of the Spirit to us as believers.

The Spirit is also given as a Divine seal upon the believer. We are sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise (Ephes. i. 13). See also 2 Cor. i. 22. What is this seal? It is not some emotion or some experience: it is the Spirit of God Himself. This seal is, first of all, a mark of genuineness. All legal documents must have an official seal, as attesting their validity. "Not every one that saith unto Me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. vii. 21). It is not a question of what our friends think about us, but what God thinks about us. If any man have not the Spirit of Christ he is none of his (Rom. viii. 9).

The seal is also for security. My spouse is a fountain sealed (Cant. iv. 12). The sand of the desert cannot enter and mar the fountain. This sealing also implies ownership. "The foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his" (2 Tim. ii. 19). It is also a mark of recognition. Sometimes we have a peculiar mark on our goods, so that we may distinguish them from the goods of others. Unless we have upon us this seal of the Spirit, God will not own us as His.

Another thought the seal carries with it, it impresses a likeness. When a seal is placed on the soft wax an impression is produced that corresponds with the die. So the Holy Spirit brings out in the believer His own likeness. He is the Holy Spirit, and the Spirit of truth, therefore we are to be holy and truthful. God's grand purpose concerning us is that we may be conformed to the image of His Son. That will not fully take place until our bodies are raised from the dead; but now there is a moral transformation going on in the life of every believer who is walking in the Spirit. There is a continuous growth into the likeness of the Son; so that believers are the epistles of Christ that may be read and known of all men; and the image of Christ to be seen. (Rom. viii. 29; 2 Cor. iii. 18.)

Again, the Holy Spirit is given to the believer as the holy oil for anointing. "Ye have an unction from the Holy One." (1 John ii. 20.) See also ver. 27, which speaks of an anointing specially for teaching. In the Old Testament there are many beautiful symbols that typify this anointing. We read in Psalm xlv. of "the oil of gladness." We are to be joyful in the Lord. Then there is the oil that maketh man's face to shine (Ps. civ. 15)—the type of moral beauty. This anointing is upon us that we may reflect the likeness of Jesus Christ. As He was Prophet, Priest, and King, so we are called to enter upon the same spiritual functions, and for all these relationships we need the anointing of the Holy Spirit.

We are enjoined to walk in the Spirit (Gal. 5. 16). "As many as are led by the Spirit of God they are the sons of God" (Rom. viii. 14). Born, sealed, anointed, and led by the Spirit, we shall not fulfil the lusts of the flesh. We are to present our bodies to God, and this must be done in the Spirit, in order to be acceptable. We are to pray in the Holy Ghost. Our praises must be the outcome of the Spirit dwelling within us. Our money is to be given not merely as a matter of philanthropy, but as an offering which shall be as a sweet savour unto God. No service, however humble, is wasted, that is done in the Spirit to the praise of his glory.

As the Spirit guarded the dead body of Jesus, so we read in Romans viii. 11, of the Spirit's relation to the bodies of the sleeping saints. Let us bear in mind when we take the bodies of our friends to the cemetery, and place them in the tomb, the Spirit guards them there; and when the shout of the King is heard, He will raise them up in glory, that they may be fashioned like unto Christ's glorious body. Our bodies are redeemed with the blood of Jesus Christ, and are precious to Him. Let us remember that our bodies are the present dwelling-place of the Holy Spirit. It is a solemn thought, that He has put Himself into our keeping. How careful should we be as to our associations and our walk in life, avoiding all that would quench that Divine light, or grieve our Best Friend. We are not our own; let us therefore glorify God in our bodies and spirits, which are His.

DOCK LABOURERS' MISSION.—A tea was recently given to about 200 unemployed dock labourers. Colonel Martindale and several friends gave interesting and practical addresses, pointing out that poverty was no barrier to the poor man accepting Jesus, but rather that He loved and dwelt amongst the poor and needy. At the close two men rose and professed to have found peace. The prayers of God's people are requested for this work. Mr. C. Coleman, 26, Chamber-street, London Docks, E., is superintendent.

MONTREAL Y.M.C.A.—The thirty-first annual meeting of this association was held on Tuesday, 5th ult., and was largely attended by members and friends. The association is now free from debt. Rev. Professor Fenwick especially has rendered invaluable help in the Bible and other classes. All the agencies, moral, spiritual, and intellectual have each to report great progress and prosperity. There are 744 members, 445 being actively engaged in Christian work; 247 have signed the pledge during the year. The churches have at all times heartily co-operated with them in their work.

BEREAN BIBLE UNION.—Two years ago this bond of union was formed between a few friends who had been blessed at the services conducted by Messrs. Fullerton and Smith. The "little one" soon became a thousand, and has grown until seven or eight thousand friends all over the kingdom are now reading the same portion of Scripture daily. It is desired to enlarge the union still further. All members promise to read the portion assigned for the day, which is given on the card of membership, and for which one penny per annum is charged, in order to defray the expenses of printing and postage. Bible notes for those who desire them are supplied a month in advance in The Postman, edited by W. Y. Fullerton; but members need not necessarily take The Postman at all. Information, and a supply of cards and circulars, will gladly be sent on application to the Secretary, Berean Bible Union, 45, Doddington-grove, Kennington Park, London, S.E., where also the names of individual members will be gladly received.

CO-OPERATION, NOT COMPETITION.—5.

By Rev. WASHINGTON GLADDEN.

HOW THE CHURCH DEBT WAS PAID.*

SOON after the organisation of the Church at Cyprusville, an episode occurred which tended not a little to strengthen the bonds of Christian fraternity in New Albion. The Methodist Church had long been staggering under a load of debt. Mr. Thorpe had carried this debt now for two years; it had been the burden of his days and the nightmare of his dreams; at length he had brought his congregation to the point of attacking it. He had made several anxious pilgrimages to rich Methodists in neighbouring cities, but found small encouragement; it was evident that the Methodists in New Albion must shoulder their own load.

Accordingly, the first Sunday in October was devoted to a carefully planned effort for the payment of the debt. Mr. Thorpe had concluded to dispense with the services of a "finangelist" and to direct his own forces. There was to be no regular service in the church, but the people were invited to meet at ten o'clock in the forenoon, and, by the grace of God, the meeting would not adjourn, Mr. Thorpe said, until the debt was paid. A collation was provided in the basement, so that the people might spend the day in the work.

The debt amounted to thirty-two thousand dollars, and when the meeting opened in the morning seventeen thousand dollars were at once subscribed—this amount having been secured beforehand by private conference with the abler contributors. This excellent start awakened great enthusiasm, and, for a time, subscriptions came in rapidly; but long before noon the limit of the people's ability seemed to have been reached, and the list only footed up about twenty-four thousand dollars. It seemed evident that the large gifts had all been gathered in, and there was still a deficiency of more than seven thousand dollars that the small subscriptions yet to be obtained would by no means supply.

As Mr. Franklin walked home, after the morning service, with his pastor, they passed the door of the Methodist Church.

"Let us look in a moment," said the parson, "and see how they are getting on."

They sat down in one of the back seats and watched the proceedings. From Mr. Thorpe's occasional remarks they learned the situation of affairs, and saw that the case was probably hopeless, though the resolute leader did not for a moment assent to such a conclusion.

As they walked away, Mr. Franklin said: "Making a strong fight, aren't they?" "Yes."

"But they will not take the fort." "I don't know."

"I do; they've got to the sticking-point, and they will not get past it." "Pity!" said Mr. Strong, sententiously.

After a moment's thought he added, with a new interest, "It is lawful to pull a fellow creature out of a pit on the Sabbath day?" "I should say so, especially when he is trying to get out himself."

"Lawful to hitch up your horse to pull him out?" "Yes," laughed the minister.

"Well, you go home and get your lunch, and I'll get mine, and have Major put into the buggy. I'll be around there before one o'clock, and we'll see what we can do." "All right."

It was not long before the good white horse came at a week-day pace to the door of the parsonage, and the friends were soon whirling away.

None of the other churches had afternoon services, and all that could be done in them must be done by personal application to a few of the more prosperous members. But Mr. Franklin had selected the right man as canvasser in each society, and after they had been set at work, he and his pastor returned to their own parish, which they divided between them, contriving, before four o'clock, to see a good proportion of its most generous members. At that hour they all met at the parsonage, as by agreement, bringing with them a much larger sum than the most sanguine of them had hoped to get. Sympathy with the Methodists in their courageous effort was universal, and it had found a generous expression.

It was about half-past four when Mr. Franklin and his friends entered the Methodist church. The back seats were all occupied, so they stood in the space behind the pews and looked on. The church was pretty well filled, and Mr. Thorpe was still keeping up a lively fire of appeal and argument, but there were no responses, and it was plain that hope had departed from most of the solicitors.

"Will you walk forward and take seats, gentlemen?" said one of them.

"No, thank you," answered Mr. Franklin. "We are only lobby members. How do you get on?" "Slowly." And the solicitor shook his head dolefully.

"How much have you got?" "Only a little over twenty-five thousand."

"Why don't you stop where you are?" "Then we lose everything. The greater share of the heavy subscriptions are conditional upon the raising of the whole debt."

"Won't your subscribers make them unconditional?" "No. We've begged them to, but they are obstinate."

"Pity, isn't it?" "Yes, sir. It will be a hard blow if we fail now."

The discouraged gentleman walked away. Mr. Franklin's air had been so indifferent that he had not ventured to ask him for anything.

"Send up your letter, Brinsmeade," whispered Franklin. "Get that small boy to take it up." The small boy toddled up the aisle and handed the envelope to Mr. Thorpe, who tore it open eagerly.

"Hallelujah!" shouted the impetuous Methodist. "Brethren, listen to this: 'The First Congregational Church of New Albion sends greeting to the First Methodist Church, with a pledge of sixteen hundred and seventy-five dollars, to be paid to-morrow at twelve o'clock noon, by a cheque upon the First National Bank.' This is signed in behalf of the church by James W. Brinsmeade."

The reading of the letter was followed by a storm of cheers and all the usual Methodist responses, in the midst of which the organ struck up the Doxology, and the whole congregation rose to their feet and sang it with a tremendous energy.

"Will Brother Brinsmeade come forward?" shouted Mr. Thorpe. But before he had time to insist on this a little girl was mounting the pulpit with another envelope, which the pastor received with trembling hand. The noise hushed in a moment. This letter stated that five hundred and fifteen dollars, the gift of a few friends in the Universalist Church, would be on deposit the next day, at the same hour and the same place. Over this the furore was redoubled: one enthusiastic brother mounting a seat and calling for "the second verse of the Doxology!"

"Better not protract the agony," said Franklin. "Let us send up our notes together."

The good minister, who had now for six hours been under a continuous nervous strain, in whose heart confidence had given way to anxiety and anxiety was beginning to change to discouragement, was so completely overcome by the contents of the other two envelopes that he sat down in his chair, and could not speak for a moment, and at length rose, and half sobbed out:

"Two more, brethren. One from friends in the Baptist Church, with a pledge of nine hundred and twenty-five dollars, and one from friends in the Second Congregational Church, with a promise of eighteen hundred and ten dollars. God bless them every one!"

This time they were all too excited to sing, but there was a volley of amens in response to the last ejaculation, and men and women all over the house were laughing and crying like children.

"Give us the footing now, Brother Harrison," said the minister, at length, to the treasurer, who was keeping account of the subscriptions. "Thirty thousand one hundred and fifty dollars," was the answer.

"Less than two thousand dollars more are wanted," cried Mr. Thorpe. "What do you say to that?"

"Two hundred dollars more for me!" was the first response from one of the heaviest subscribers; and then the supplementary subscriptions, large and small, came pouring in for ten minutes, faster than the treasurer could record them. As soon as there was a short pause, he summed up the amount again, and, rising to his feet, said quietly:

"Thirty-two thousand four hundred and sixty dollars—four hundred and sixty dollars for shrinkage!"

The scene that followed can only be imagined by those who know what an incubus a church debt is to a devoted congregation, and who are also familiar with the ways in which Methodists are wont to express their feelings.

"I perceive," said Mr. Thorpe, rising to his feet after the tempest had subsided, "that all these pledges are to be paid to-morrow at noon at the First National Bank. It is easy to guess who is at the bottom of all this business, and I see him now, standing near the door."

"No scenes for me," whispered the banker to his minister. "I'm going. Make my excuses." And he slipped out of the door and walked quickly away.

"Mr. Walter Franklin is the man," continued the parson, "and he is leaving the house at this moment; will not some one bring him back?" But that was a vain suggestion. Mr. Franklin, as everybody knew, would not be brought back.

"Mr. Franklin's pastor must answer for him, then," said the minister; and Mr. Strong walked up the aisle amid great cheering. In a few graceful words he told the congregation that Mr. Thorpe was right in his conjecture; that the plan of aiding them in their difficult undertaking was conceived and set in motion by Mr. Franklin, who had, nevertheless, been supported in the heartiest manner by the gentlemen on whom he had called; that the whole scheme was the inspiration of a moment and the fruit of a few hours' work; and that he trusted the result of it would be, not only the emancipation of the Methodist Church from the bondage of debt, but the strengthening of the bond of fellowship among the Churches of New Albion. To that wish there were many fervent responses, and after a prayer of thanksgiving by the pastor, and the singing of "Blest be the tie that binds," the congregation broke up. That day will never be forgotten by any who had part in its doings, and the fruit of the seed then sown will be reaped in the increasing charity of many generations.

* Abridged from The Century Magazine.

EVANGELISTIC WORK IN FRANCE.

BY CHEYNE BRADY.

A NEW departure has been taken in France. The Mission at Marseilles, Cannes, Nice, and Corsica, is to be amalgamated with the work in Paris; and in future the United Mission will be called "The Evangelistic Mission of France, known as the McAll Mission." Its scope will be national. Already operations are carried on in many Departments. Recently most interesting and successful meetings have been held in Cannes, where Monsieur Saillens and Rev. Mr. Newell have explained the intended plans, and stirred up much interest in the work.

While great results are not visible, yet from time to time it is ascertained that a little seed sown in faith in the Gospel halls has borne fruit in a most unexpected manner. For instance, at a Soldiers' Conference, tracts, Gospel portions and New Testaments, were largely distributed after the preaching of the Gospel. A soldier carried his Testament to a village situated in a neighbourhood to which the sound of the truth never penetrated. He lent it to a tailor, and he became so interested in the subject that he read it to another, and so on, until a number collected to hear the New Testament read. They became, through the Spirit of God, so awakened and impressed, that they united in pleading for some one to be sent to teach them.

A pastor living sixty miles off is sent; he takes two days to go to them and two days to return. The result of his preaching is that their hearts have been won for Christ, and a regular Protestant Church, with a pastor of their own, is now formed in that out-of-the-way village. An annual fête has always been observed in this village on every first day of September. In the year, however, of the dedication of the little church, the neighbours were not invited for that day, but were told that they were to partake of a greater fête on the first of November, a royal feast, when the dedication of the Protestant church was to take place.

Persecution was not slow in being manifested: the poor people were put out of employment, the Roman Catholics would not deal with them, and other petty annoyances ensued, but the converts stood manfully. The priest urged the parents of a boy to have him baptized in the old religion, but they steadfastly refused. Being poor, the wily Jesuit sought to bribe them; one day he called and laid down 100 francs in gold on the table, saying, "This is a present on the occasion of the baptism of your child." It would have been a fortune for them; they looked at the gold, at the child, at the priest, and said: "It is a great sum, but we know our Father will provide for us, and we must refuse."

The hymn-singing proves a powerful aid to the work. The children carry them home, and are the means of bringing their parents to the meetings.

A curious incident happened at Cherbourg. A vessel was wrecked on the coast, and in the morning several bodies were washed ashore; they were all English. Bibles and other books were also carried in. The simple people did not know whether the burial should be Roman Catholic or Protestant, so they proposed a "Union burial." The priest was asked to join, but he decidedly said, No. The French pasteur came and performed the simple service, the people were much impressed, and said it was a reasonable service. "Come often," said they, "and preach to us." Hundreds of such places are waiting for the Gospel. Funds alone are needed to evangelise largely the towns and villages of France.

At Corsica there is a field of great promise. There the people are not yet atheists. The Evangelist avoids all controversy, though tempted thereto by the priests. Crowds attend regularly.

Open-air meetings, though forbidden by law, have been attempted at Marseilles, not in the public places, but in a field belonging to a sympathiser. At first about a hundred came, the next meeting 3000 thronged the place before the hour fixed, but on the third attempt the police were beforehand and prevented the meeting, because some drunken broil had occurred on the last occasion. The police are in full sympathy with the good cause, evidently finding that good ensues from the preaching, and themselves suggested a way of meeting the legal difficulty. "Erect," say they, "a canopy over the head of the preacher, and then you won't be under the sky; and ropes around the centre space, and then we won't consider it an open-air meeting."

There is another valuable effort now being made, under the direction of Mr. Pearse, for the poor Kabyles in North Africa. Mons. Mayor, a young Swiss, full of zeal, has gone to labour by himself among them, far away from all civilised associations. They listen greedily to the Gospel message. Recently he left them for a short visit to Switzerland, and while there received a letter in Arabic from the Kabyles, containing only the simple yet touching words, "Come back, come back, come back, and tell us about Jesus."

A CRY FROM EGYPT.

THE Scripture-reader employed by Mrs. Evered Poole, now at work amongst our troops in Egypt, writes from Alexandria:—

"The number of patients in hospital is from three to four hundred, but, thank God, not so many deaths have taken place lately.

"I find a great need of Bibles, prayer-books, and Gospel tracts; only for a few obtained from Col. D——, I should have none at all. The men sent out on active service do not, as a rule, carry the regulation Bible. I find the greatest difficulty in supplying the numerous demands for the Scriptures. If I had a hundred Bibles to-day I should have a hundred eager hands outstretched for them. We have plenty of papers, &c., but our need is a supply of Bibles and good Gospel tracts.

"I am getting my magic lantern from Gibraltar, in order, by God's help, to offer a counter-attraction to the low grog-shops which abound here at every step, and are killing the men, body and soul. If any friends would help me by sending me a few temperance or other slides, how grateful I should be. I have nightly temperance and Gospel meetings amongst the men, always well attended. Some rejoice now in Jesus who were careless before."

Mrs. Evered Poole, on receipt of this earnest appeal, forwarded at once £5 worth of Bibles, Testaments, and tracts, to Alexandria. She is sure she has only to make known our soldiers' needs, to have a prompt reply to this "Cry from Egypt." She will be grateful for contributions, great or small, to assist her in meeting the expense of the above, and its carriage to Egypt, and to send another box of Bibles, &c., as quickly as possible. All communications to be addressed to Enfield House, Southampton.

NATIONAL REFUGE HARBOURS.—A society has been formed with the aim of preventing loss of life and property by shipwreck on the coasts of the British Islands, and also of the improvement of harbour accommodation. During the past year 984 lives have been lost by shipwreck. Volunteers desirous of helping, or of learning further information, may apply to Mr. F. Johnson, 23, Norman-road, St. Leonard's-on-Sea.

THE OPENING OF THE YEAR

"Occupy till I come."—LUKE xix. 13

BY MARGARET SCOTT MACRITCHIE

WHAT will Thou have me to do, my Lord,
Down the widening track that waits?
Nothing I ask of the mystery stored
In the New Year's opening gates;
Nothing I ask of the gladness or ill,
Nothing I fear for the way,
Lord of the flock! Thou art guiding me still,
Mighty is Jesus for aye.

Fountain of love! each step that I take
Teacheth me more of thy heart;
E'en though the sun and the starshine forsake,
Light everlasting Thou art!
What wilt Thou have me to do, my King?
Thy face through the dimness I see:
Pleading for God-given work I bring—
Spend Thou my being for Thee.

Down the long life of the slow-dying year,
All through the merciful way,
Jesus, my Shepherd, was watching near—
Hope of the dreariest day!
Up through the storm rose a faltering breath,
And blasts that were bitter and chill
Sank to the hush of a tender faith,
At rest in the Master's will.

Glory to God, each hour that I live,
For darkness no less than sun,
For all that my Father refused to give
In the changeful year that is done;
Glory to God for each deep restraint,
And hedges that led me home,
For how could the weary heart and faint
To any save JESUS come?

What wilt Thou have me to do, my God?
Thou art ranging thy ranks for war;
Evil far over thy world hath trod,
Earth crieth deep and sore;
Call me to battle, and stand Thou near,
Give me a conqueror's part,
Or make me to struggle unknown in the rear
With self in the hold of my heart.

Call me to work, for the days fast speed,
The sowers go forth to sow;
Is it only a prayer that my brethren need
As in heat of the noontide they go?
Then teach me to pray till the sheaves be won,
And gold of the harvest they bind;
Thou art close to thy workers who labour on,
And close to the patient mind.

I have chosen the task in the years of strength,
But now I can only pray;
The lesson of weakness is learnt at length,—
Lord, do Thou lead the way!
What can love do for the Love that hath died?
Thou hast sought me in pity unpriced;
I come to the Heart of the Crucified,
And ask Thee for service, O Christ!

Are there not shelterless lambs to feed,
And guide to Thy pasture-land?
Are there not perishing souls that need
The touch of a sister's hand?
Choose for me, Saviour, the work, the prayer,
The message of peace and Home,
Or patiently only Thy cross to bear,
And wait till the Lord says "COME."

THE FAR WEST.—Dear Sir,—THE CHRISTIAN comes to us regularly out here, sent weekly by a brother in Surrey, and the good news it contains is very cheering to us. I would so like to see a spirit of Revival among those who are called Christians out here. We want rousing to activity, and we need leaders to call us to action. Will you insert an appeal for prayer that the people of this State may be led to seek salvation, and that God's good Spirit may quicken the minds of his Ministers to be more earnest for the spiritual well-being of the people. Where we are there are many Germans and coloured people, I should feel it a privilege to distribute tracts, illustrated periodicals, old or new, almanacks to put up in the houses, or anything that would waken the minds of the people and children to know their need of the great salvation. I only left England with my wife and family this spring, and wish to be useful here as we have been enabled to be in the old country.—Yours very truly, JOSEPH BAKER.

Newberry, Wabaunsee Co., Kansas, U.S.A., Dec. 4, 1882.

Notes and Comments.

In another part of our columns will be found a notice, from a secular paper in Berlin, of Mr. Von Schluembach's work in that city; we commend it to our readers, and solicit their prayers, so that the hands of our brother may be upheld.

We regret to learn that, on account of sickness in the Home, Miss Mittendorff has not been able to prepare her Report at the usual time, and the Annual Meeting will not take place until the spring. We commend our dear friend to the sympathy and prayer of our readers.

Our old friend, Mr. J. E. Lewis, who has laboured for twenty years at the Gospel Hall, Spitalfields, seems to have been somewhat overlooked of late. We know no more tenacious and persistent worker in a most trying field. His "Tropics of Grace" (1s.), published at this office, would interest the reader, and lead, we doubt not, to much needed help, personal and otherwise.

The Annual Report of the Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George-street, E., has just been issued, and will be sent, on application to the secretary, Mr. Isaacs, at the above address. Having recently had a series of papers describing the work of this excellent institution, we need only add now that its only lack is adequate support by those who wish the well-being of our sailors.

A friend writes: "We have an outlying district here of three or four hundred people almost entirely neglected as regards spiritual teaching. We are trying to do what little we can for them, and I am just arranging with the newsman to deliver a copy of the Herald of Mercy at every house through the district monthly, for the next twelve months." Here is a very simple method of doing good by the circulation of the above or any other Gospel paper.

A recent census in the district of Kilburn showed that on a certain Sunday evening about the same number of people attended 25 places of public worship as those who were seen to enter 35 public drink-shops. With a larger number of votaries on this one evening, and with a clear field to itself all the working days of the week, it is little wonder if the drink-shop proves a formidable foe to the work of all the Churches combined. Moral: The churches should be open on week nights; or the public houses closed on Sundays; or both.

We received, too late for insertion in our last issue, the programme of a Conference of Parochial Mission Preachers, to be held in the Council-chamber of Exeter Hall, on the 3rd and 4th inst. The meetings will be at 10.30, 3, and 7; and the subjects dealt with will include "Lay Mission-work," "Country and Summer Missions," "The After-meeting," &c. Rev. W. H. Aitken will preside at all the meetings, and will give addresses at the evening gatherings, which will be devotional. All clergymen interested in Mission-work are invited.

A correspondent, referring to some remarks in a former number on expiation, requests our perusal of a book recently published, entitled "Reconciliation; or, Peace through the Blood of Christ, as developed by History. An argument for the Christian Faith." By A. Lindesie. (Cassell, Petter, Galpin & Co.) We quite concede to the writer that popular preachers and earnest evangelists have not unfrequently substituted their own conceptions for the statements of Scripture, and have made assertions for which there is no warrant in the Word of God. But even the exaggeration of a truth is less mischievous than the denial of it; and when this writer tells us that "substitution and expiation appear to him as much opposed to natural reason as contrary to the Word of God," we reply that a reconciliation which has not expiation for its foundation will not endure the strain put upon it by the conscience of a sinner convinced of sin. If anyone doubt this, let him put it to the test in the inquiry-room, or in dealing with anxious souls anywhere. But, no; none who are wise to win souls would suffer such a one in the inquiry-room, as an instructor of the anxious, nor would a troubled soul be long in discovering that he was being offered stones for bread, in the pseudo-gospel which denies substitution and expiation.

"The world is coming less and less to look upon God, as the old theology did, as a King or Moral Governor, and more and more, as Christ did, as a Father; and it is difficult, not to say impossible, to make moderns believe that a heavenly Father can consent to leave any child of his to wander off into the night of eternal sin and estrangement, so long as any measures which infinite love can devise are left untried to bring him back again to his Father's love." So said the New York Christian Union, a few weeks ago, and this modern fallacy contains in a nutshell the key to a great deal of current and increasing error.

It supposes the Family, but denies the Kingdom. But if it would be impossible to deal with a single nation as a family, how futile is the idea of so dealing with the universe. When a king's son transgresses the law, he is dealt with as a criminal; and a righteous king would not interpose between him and the penalty of his crime. Adam was indeed a son of God; but the wages of sin is death; and the remedy devised by the only wise God our Saviour is resurrection out of death. The sonship of believers is a union, in resurrection life, with the crucified and risen Jesus.

Most of these modern heresies arise from the desire to save the life of the first Adam, to the loss of the better and eternal life which is in the Second Adam, the only-begotten Son of God. The Apostolic Gospel, "Jesus and the Resurrection," is the one and sufficient answer to all these delusive doctrines.

In reference to the letter on Morocco, in our last issue, we are glad to learn that the British and Foreign Bible Society have given a grant for a six months' tour of investigation in that country, for the purpose of inquiry into its spiritual state, and what openings there may be for the circulation of the Bible and the evangelisation of its people. Mr. W. Mackintosh, the writer of the letter referred to above, informs us that his health having been greatly restored, his wife and he are on the eve of starting for Morocco for this purpose. He asks the prayers of our readers that both spiritual and bodily strength may be given for this most interesting work, and that God's hand may be seen in opening many hearts to the Word of Life.

"Rightly dividing the word of truth." When it is maintained "that there are some things which must 'not even be named among us, as becometh saints,'" it is essential that this authoritative exhortation of the Holy Ghost may not be forced out of its true meaning. Impurity in speech, as well as conduct, is condemned; but he proves too much who makes the Holy Spirit say that there are any forms of sin which it does not become saints to name, not even to protest and warn against them. There is no sin which the Holy Spirit so frequently names in the Old Testament and in the New, by his holy apostles and prophets, as that concerning which we are now taught, by a misapplication of Scripture, as we think, that it is a shame to speak, even in sorrowful protest and earnest warning.

RICHARD WEAVER IN GLASGOW.

On Sabbath week Richard Weaver brought his six weeks' services in this city to a close by three addresses to large audiences in East Campbell-street Free Church, at 11 a.m.; National Hall, at 2 p.m.; and St. Andrew's Hall, at 7 p.m. Throughout the meetings the Lord's power was manifest, and not a few seekers were brought into the light and liberty of the children of God.

Mr. David Brown, the minister of East Campbell-street Free Church, where Mr. Weaver preached on the last three Sabbath mornings and during the last week, is an old convert of Richard's labours in past years, and, like his spiritual father, takes an active part in evangelistic work. He and his office-bearers and members have been greatly stirred up by our brother's visit.

At the close of every meeting there were anxious ones to be spoken with. Many were led into the enjoyment of new peace and backsliders were restored. At one of the after-meetings, amongst those who went into the side-room, was a respectable elderly man, who said he had travelled ten miles to hear Mr. Weaver, as he was seeking light, and had been doing so for many years. The Spirit of the Lord laid hold of him, and he would not rise from his knees until he could say, "I see it, I see it!" His gladdened countenance told of the change, and showed he possessed something he had never had before.

During the previous week's services at the Albion Hall, quite a number entered into peace in believing. Among these was a sailor, who after hearing Richard one night went home under impression. At six o'clock the next morning he was in great distress about his soul, and for the whole day could get no rest. At night he again came to the meeting, and at the close went into the side-room and fell on his knees, sobbing like a child. "God's remedy for sin" was presented to him again and again, but the blindness of unbelief remained, and still he cried, "Lord, have mercy on me." The workers were greatly stirred at the anxiety of the poor man, but after a time of prayer he rose from his knees, shouting, "Bless the Lord, I've got it, I've got it!" One of the friends remarked to him, "You can now go to sea without any fear." "Yes," he said, "praise be to his name, I've got another port in view now." At later meetings this man was one of the happiest-looking of the company.

These are only cases out of many who will have to praise God to all eternity for the service held by our brother at this time. Richard has gone home for Christmas. He is to commence work in Liverpool at the beginning of the year and afterwards at Cardiff. Then he returns to Scotland, to Dundee, Edinburgh, and probably other towns.

A MEDITATION FOR THE NEW YEAR.

READING to-day a letter written by a blessed servant of God who lived on earth more than a century ago (John Albert Bengel), I came across the following sweet words, like four harmonious strains, four fragrant fadeless flowers:—

"Jesus in heaven;
Jesus in the heart;
Heaven in the heart;
The heart in heaven."

Their music touched me, and I re-echo it for the sake of others.

(1) Jesus in Heaven.—He is not here! Not in that grave; not in this great graveyard of a world; not here! Not in that Garden of Gethsemane; not in this valley of the shadow of death; not in that city Jerusalem; not in this wilderness. He was here. Yes, earth has been consecrated by his presence; his feet has touched it; his blood, his tears, have fallen on it. It is sacred for his sake. But it was to Him only a place of passage. Hither He came, to "depart hence," and to take us with Him.

And now He is, and for ages He has been, —in heaven. Where He was before, He has returned. He left his Home for our sakes; became homeless, and then just returned home. Heaven is his Home. He had been there for ages before He came here; thirty and three years He was absent from it; and now for eighteen centuries it has been the abode of his glorified humanity. Having suffered, He "entered into his glory." Having atoned for sin He entered the Holy of holies; having trodden the wilderness, having served in the court of the Temple, He sat down on the right hand of the majesty on high. There He rests, there He shines in his exalted beauty and radiancy. There they see his face; there angels, authorities, and powers are subject to Him; there He is glorified with the Father. There He gathers the lambs in his arms, and carries them in his bosom.

There He gazes in delight on scenes unsullied by sin, and hears the voices and the songs of the blessed. He is within his Father's house; a house with many and glorious mansions; mansions He is fitting for and filling with his own. In that world of light He is the central Sun. "Honour and majesty are before Him; strength and beauty are in his sanctuary." The High Priest is within the Holiest; the Son is within his Father's house. The Lord of angels is among them. Jesus is in Heaven.

(2) Jesus in the Heart.—Years ago, a Christian woman, a negress, was dying in the West Indies; a sceptical doctor stood by her side. "You talk about Jesus," he said, "tell me, where is Jesus?" "Jesus, massa," she replied, "Jesus is there," pointing up, "in heaven;" then, changing the tone of her voice, and fixing her eyes on her questioner, and laying her hand at the same time on her bosom, she added, "and Jesus is here too." The soul of man is a temple built for God. There is such a thing as Christ's dwelling in the heart. Though the eye cannot see Him, the heart may enjoy his presence.

There is such a thing as his being excluded from the heart, and there is such a thing as his being admitted to it, and dwelling there. If any man hears his voice, as, unseen, He stands without, knocking for admission, and opens to Him, He comes in to him, and sups with him. There is such a thing as Jesus manifesting Himself still to his disciples. The world sees Him no more, but they see Him. He who abode with Lazarus, and Mary, and Martha, in the days of his flesh, still "makes his abode" on earth with many an obedient, loving disciple. The kings of the earth may know nothing of such a disciple, but the Lord of Glory is his Guest.

Jesus fills his thoughts, and kindles his affections. His faith sees and grasps Him. He holds him by its power. He communes with him. His sweetest hours are those spent most uninterruptedly and intimately with Him. This is the secret of a transformation of the mind into Christ's image, into the image of Him who is the image of God. Unnoticed by the world there is many a Bethany; their names are recorded in no works of man; they belong to the great unwritten marvels of that which is higher than science and philosophy—homes of light; dwellings of divinity; hearts in which Jesus has taken up his abode.

(3) Heaven in the Heart.—A sweet kind of logic is here. Where Jesus is, is heaven; Jesus is in the heart that loves Him; therefore heaven is in that heart. We cannot yet go to heaven; but heaven can come to us. It does to some. There is such a thing even on earth as being filled with "joy unspeakable and full of glory." Read the memoirs of hundreds of blessed men and women and children whose hearts were purified by faith, and see the records of that joy. Look round on the faces of hundreds of saints still treading the wilderness and pressing Zionwards, and see the outward evidence of that deep inward joy. The secret of the Lord is with them who fear him.

Have we not known it, that heaven in the heart? Do we not know it still? Are there not hours in our experience when we see and feel the glory and sweetness of divine things in a way impossible to express; when it may be after sincere prayer which has come from the heart's lowest depth, and in which the whole soul has poured itself forth to God, perhaps with tears, the assurance of God's love has been so shed abroad in the heart, and the sense of its greatness and tenderness, and of its undeservedness, and unchangeableness, and eternity, that the soul has scarce been able to contain its feelings, or bear the glorious fulness of its joy? And even when this high degree of joy is wanting, there is such a thing as the deep peace of heaven, and even the purity of heaven, dwelling in the heart, and garrisoning it against the evil influences of the world, and of the wicked one (Phil. iv.).

Let those who have never known it "come and see." "O taste and see that the Lord is gracious." Those who dwell in love dwell in God, and God in them, and find, even while still on earth, heaven in the heart.

(4) The Heart in Heaven.—Where the treasure is the heart is. How often God takes our treasures to heaven that He may take our hearts there! We remember the story of the Indian who wanted to recompense a family of white settlers for kindness they had shown him, by leading them to a better and more beautiful tract to settle in, than the one they had chosen. He could not speak their language to make them understand his object. They would not follow him when he beckoned them to do so; so he took up one of their little children and ran away with it, they following, till he brought them to the place where he wished them to be. How often God transplants our fairest flowers to his garden, up there, that our hearts may go up there too. How often thus He makes death the messenger of life.

The heart in heaven; yes, it should be there. The one who loves us best is there. Many we love with undying tenderness are there; our best treasures are there; our home is there; our rest, our inheritance, our reward are there; our hearts then should be there. Let us deliberately "set our affection on things above, not on things on the earth." Let us quietly practise the laying up of treasures there, where no evil hand can injure them, or rob us of them. Let us unmoor our bark from too close a clinging to earthly objects; let us spread wide the sail to catch the heavenward breezes God sends to fetch us home; let us go up in spirit with the opening of a new year to the world whose ages are measured by no setting suns or fleeting seasons, and, with the heart in heaven, live here and serve here while we may, until He bids us "come up higher."

And now let us re-echo the words once more—Jesus in heaven; Jesus in the heart; heaven in the heart; the heart in heaven.

Dec. 31. H. Grattan Guinness.

MOVEMENTS IN TORONTO.

THE sight of The Christian, after a somewhat long interval, is very refreshing. Here in Toronto and Canada generally there is no such happy Gospel movement to record as that of Messrs. Moody and Sankey at the University cities, or the various Missions of which The Christian speaks; although in the Blue Ribbon movement just inaugurated here there may be the seed-corn of spiritual blessing as well as moral reformation.

This is the second innovation of a religious character which has lately appeared in the strictly religious city of Toronto, the citizens of which seem to abhor anything that is in the least degree "irregular" or "enthusiastic." It is only a few months since the Salvation Army made its appearance and excited, if it did not perturb, the decent religious folk of the city, who fail to see the need for anything beyond the services of the chapels and churches with which Toronto, in common with most Canadian cities, abounds. But "the Army" has held its own, and seems likely to do so, judging from the ever-increasing numbers that swell its ranks, and the full attendance at the different meetings.

With regard to the Blue Ribbon Army, it is only a week or so since the first announcement of its meetings was made, and already the members enrolled are numerous. Present indications would lead any careful observer to expect rapid developments. Of course, as in all work for God, much will depend on the prayerfulness and zeal of its exponents, and the consistency of its members' lives; for it does seem as though people on this continent are more quick to mark failure than at home. Perhaps this may be accounted for by the "smartness" which is by many supposed to mark Canadians and Americans. At any rate, it should make one very circumspect and discreet. The temperance cause here has many noble and influential champions, such as cabinet ministers and wealthy merchants, but it remains to be seen whether many of them will identify themselves with this new and religious phase of temperance.

The winter months usually witness a number of "Missions" of one sort or another, the denominational character of which somewhat circumscribes their usefulness in reaching the non-churchgoers. Occasionally, however, religious services are held in the theatres and public halls, when the unusual circumstances and surroundings invariably attract good audiences.

E. S.

GENOA.—Mr. Robert Prochet writes: The young men of the Waldensian congregation have started a club in Genoa, and would be grateful if any Christian friends would send them any illustrated papers when they have done reading them. Address, Associazione Universale dei Giovani, 13, Via Chiabrera, Genoa, Italy.

NEW PRAYER UNIONS.—An "Anti-Opium Prayer Union" has been organised. The secretary, residing at 312, Camden-road, London, N., will be glad to supply information about the opium trade to any who may desire to join the Union. A "Nurses' Temperance Union" has also been started, particulars of which may be learned by applying to Miss A. T. Bristow, The Park, Dunmurry, co. Antrim.

THE COMING WEEK OF PRAYER: A BRIEF EXHORTATION.

A FEW words may be seasonable with reference to the coming Week of Prayer. Matters of deepest importance are weighing on the minds of thoughtful and discerning Christians. Sins have to be confessed, deliverance from evil sought, and special blessings asked. These will be adverted to at the Meetings; and I do not intrude any observations respecting them. This exhortation is rather for ourselves as individuals, preparatory to our assembling together.

Let us first remind one another how the Lord Jesus, having become man, led a life of faith and dependence upon his Father; and how in thus living He sought special occasions of perfect solitude for the purpose of lengthened prayer. In Matt. xiv. 23 we read: "And when He had sent the multitudes away, He went up into a mountain apart to pray: and when the evening was come, He was there alone." Mark i. 35: "And in the morning, rising up a great while before day, He went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed." Luke vi. 12, 13: "And it came to pass in those days, that He went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. And when it was day, He called his disciples: and of them He chose twelve, whom also He named Apostles."

In the days of his popularity we read: "When Jesus therefore perceived that they would come and take Him by force, to make Him a king, He departed again into a mountain Himself alone." (John vi. 15.) And on the eve of his crucifixion, we are told "He was withdrawn from them about a stone's cast, and kneeled down, and prayed." (Luke xxii. 41.)

That He who could say, "I and my Father are one," should pray at all, and that He should spend a long time in prayer, would be inconceivable, did we not know that He, "being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God; but made Himself of no reputation, and took upon Him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men;" so that He did not pass through the world in the self-supporting strength of his Godhead, but in the comparative weakness of his humanity.

One can scarcely pass on at once to speak of Him as our example, until we first remind each other that it was indeed not chiefly for example's sake that Jesus prayed, but on account of his own condition, as finally, and oh how affectingly, expressed in Hebrews v. 7, "Who in the days of his flesh, when He had offered up prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears unto Him that was able to save him from [out of] death." Still, his life has become an example to us. With many, probably, it is a habit to imitate Him in holding long periods of prayer in absolute quietness. Will they, and others, accept a kindly word of exhortation on this subject in connection with the approaching week of prayer?

How needful for each one of us to follow our Lord and Master in seeking special preparation! Not simply by means of bodily rest, though that may be required also. Nor through mental repose, though abstention from engrossing objects, and even Christian service, may be desirable. But let us seek it in loneliness, by waiting upon God. Oh, for quietness! Not only for quiet times, but for special quietness of spirit before the Lord Jesus. How precious his promise: "If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with Me." It shall be a quiet, holy, happy, spiritual season, like an evening meal of two confidential friends by themselves, when the affections and secrets of both hearts freely flow forth.

We might be able to pray long in one continued stream of words. I do not mean that. I mean, let us seek to be alone, to think, and then to pray; to pause, to think deeper and yet deeper, and then again to pray; to confess definitely; to worship, as well as to give thanks; to observe that which comes into the mind, the Word, the events of our lives, the world to come; to feel in what respects we ourselves need inward cleansing, as well as forgiveness. Let us also say: "Lord, hold communion with me. I would not speak further. Speak Thou, for Thy servant heareth."

Such a period, extending onwards for an hour, or for several hours into the night or morning, will leave a savour, a perception of things unseen; a sanctification, a spiritual unction, which shall remain for many days. And whether afterwards we be chairman, or speakers, or petitioners in general, doubtless we shall carry from our solitude, from being alone, yet not alone, a special blessing with us.

May the personal result to each one who shall attend the United Prayer Meetings be a deeper experience of the words of the song:—

"Nearer, my God, to Thee, Nearer to Thee."

J. V. S.

MRS. HENRY MOORHOUSE.—Dear Friend,—Permit me on behalf of the widow of our departed brother, Henry Moorhouse, to thank the many friends whose letters of sympathy, and tokens of love, have comforted her heart, and gladdened her children during the past two weeks. Mrs. Moorhouse's address is 55, Tiverton-street, Ardwick, Manchester. With many thanks for the publication of my previous note, yours in best bonds, Geo. C. Needham.

110, Newington Green-road, N.

INTER-UNIVERSITY MEETING.—A meeting of past and present University men will (D.V.) be held in the Council Room, Exeter Hall, Strand, at three p.m., on Monday, January 8. Hon. Arthur Kinnaird will preside, and addresses will be given by the Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe, M.A., and Rev. H. Neville Sherbrooke, after which the meeting will be thrown open for conference and testimony. Members of Oxford and Cambridge Universities are cordially invited to be present, with any other gentlemen in sympathy with this work.

ENGLISH LEGISLATION IN EGYPT.—Whatever may be said about the proposed regulations for dram shops and gaming-hells in Egypt, which have been rendered dead letters by the capitulations, it can hardly be a matter for regret that the third class of legislation desired by our authorities has miscarried. A Police des Mœurs is not exactly the institution of all others which Englishmen would care to establish in Cairo for the civilisation of the Egyptians. The Municipality of Paris has just passed a resolution ordering the suppression of all maisons de tolérance in the city on Monday next, and although that regulation may probably have as little practical effect as the abortive ordinance of the Egyptian Government, it indicates the prevalence of a much sounder sentiment in the Hotel de Ville than in the English headquarters at Cairo.—Pall Mall Gazette.

BIBLE AND COLPORTAGE SOCIETY OF IRELAND.—This Society has been very successful during the past year in circulating the Word of God and a cheap, healthy, and evangelical literature among the people of Ireland. The sales in that time reached a million of books and periodicals, and in one month a colporteur sold £25 worth of books in one of the least hopeful parts of the country. In every district the colporteurs have access to families which can be reached by no other agency; and, while they endeavour to sell their books, they tell the simple story of Jesus and his love. For all the ills of this unhappy country, the reception of the truths of God's Word into the hearts of the people is the only and infallible remedy. In the districts of the awful crimes recently committed no colporteur has ever been at work, and little or no evangelistic work has ever been attempted. Rev. John Elliott, Armagh, is one of the secretaries.

MR. VON SCHLUEMBACH IN BERLIN.

THE Deutsches Tageblatt, a Berlin daily, has the following notice of an esteemed brother, Mr. Von Schluembach's meetings in that city in its issue of the 25th ult. The notice is headed "Wonderful Phenomena in Ecclesiastical Meetings:—

"We attended yesterday a religious gathering at which Mr. Von Schluembach, from America, gave an address as riveting as it was solid, and with edifying effect. He sang a solo suitable to the subject he was handling, the audience joining in the chorus. We think it remarkable that no notice of these gatherings has been taken by the ecclesiastical newspapers of our town, although the meetings have been held for two months, five evenings a week, in the Nazareth Church. At first they were attended by about 200, and now by about 800 persons of every age, of good family and rank, but especially by working-men from every part of the town. We are reminded of the words of Scripture, 'To the poor the Gospel is preached.'

"But why do the ecclesiastical newspapers take no notice of such an occurrence? They give us often enough long reports about other and far more trivial things. If a scholar for two months gave lectures every evening with an ever-increasing concourse of people, all the papers would be full of it. If any dramatic celebrity for eight weeks 'made a full house' the whole of Berlin would know of it. But these phenomena, which bear testimony to the gratifying fact that the interest of the poorest stratum of our population in religious discourses is increasing, are simply passed over with complete silence. Whatever course other papers may take, we think the Deutsches Tageblatt will be considering the interests of its readers when, from time to time, it gives reports of Mr. Von Schluembach's meetings, when he begins again in the large Zion's Church of which Dr. Kraft is the pastor, on January 2."

We trust this is the dawn of better things for the Gospel in Berlin—the cloud preceding the abundance of rain, so much needed in this million-peopled city, given up to the worship of intellect and pleasure.

CHELSEA Y.M.C.A.—Mr. Robert Henderson Smith, for some time past the Secretary of this Branch, has been appointed Travelling Secretary for the Y.M.C. Association of Scotland.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending January 13:—Jan. 7, Isaiah xli. 10-20; Jan. 8, Isaiah xlii. 1-12; Jan. 9, Isaiah xliii. 1-11; Jan. 10, Isaiah xliii. 18-28; Jan. 11, Isaiah xliv. 1-8; Jan. 12, Isaiah xliv. 9-20; Jan. 13, Isaiah xliv. 21-28.

BANFFSHIRE.—A large number of navvies having begun operations on a line of railway within their bounds, the Free Church Presbyteries of Strathbogie and Fordyce, and the United Presbyterian one of Banffshire, have agreed to combine in making provision for the spiritual wants of these men.

REV. C. CHINIQUY has accepted an invitation to visit England again, to deliver some of his eloquent lectures on Protestantism and Temperance in the principal towns of England. He is expected to arrive in this country about the middle of this month, and will deliver his first lecture in Exeter Hall.

FISHERSGATE MISSION, BRIGHTON.—A correspondent tells us the following singular story of three conversions in connection with this Mission. There were three men living near West Brighton, each one of the same name (i.e., Robert Tanner), consisting of father, son, and grandson. The grandson became converted about six years ago, and was then the means of his father's conversion; and this father in his turn was blest to his father, who a few days since fell asleep in Christ. Thus, if the spiritual relationship be followed out, it will be seen that the grandson becomes spiritual father to his earthly father, and spiritual grandfather to his earthly grand-parent.

MIDNIGHT MEETING MOVEMENT.

AT this season of the year when the voice of love and mercy proclaims throughout the length and breadth of the land the message of "peace on earth and good will to man," it is surely fitting that the Master's call to bring in "the halt, the lame, and the blind," to hear the glad tidings of great joy, should be responded to. Such a gathering was held on Thursday night in a Mission Hall situated in Thrawl-street, Whitechapel—a district well known to all who are acquainted with it, as one of the lowest and most degraded of the East-end. At 5 o'clock a representative of the Midnight Meeting Movement, accompanied by several Christian friends and by the good missionary who labours in that district, welcomed to a plain tea some two hundred and fifty women of every age and condition living in that locality. The writer entered the meeting shortly after the meal was finished and saw in all their rough and pitiable condition the motley throng of human souls who were present at this "Gospel feast." It was no mere conventional tea-meeting, but a gathering of famished and hungry souls, in more than an ordinary sense: even the common crockery tea-cup and saucer were dispensed with for safety's sake, and in their place were tin cans from which to drink the tea—a precaution wisely adopted in such a rough assembly.

The tea, however, as all felt, was but the minor matter; it was the after-meeting which rivetted the attention of the Christian visitor and the philanthropist alike. Here were about 250 girls and women of all ages, from the mere child of sixteen, with a baby at her breast, to the old woman, certainly of not less than seventy years, willingly and eagerly listening to the tale of the cross, as it was faithfully and plainly told in brief and telling force by the speakers present. Young children were there in numbers too, crying, but for a moment were hushed into silence by the women who nursed or guarded them. They formed a waiting, and, after a manner, an attentive congregation; but, oh, how different from the ordinary congregations of our churches and chapels! It is in no pharisaic spirit that it is written, they were, they at least bore the appearance of being, the dregs and off-scouring of the East-end of London. Not one clean face appeared among them all. Torn and tattered garments, or scarce any at all, unkempt hair, blurred and chafed eyes, coarse and sullen features, worn into hardness and even repulsiveness, seemed everywhere prominent, while here and there were seen such a marked display of reddened and bloated faces as to leave no doubt of the cause as well as of the effect. Happily there were some children unconscious of the scene around, and who, in spite of the dirt and grime which covered their faces, were children still, the roughness and corruption being powerless to hide their innocent attractiveness. On the other hand, there were some poor infants, shocking as it is to record, who bore in their distorted faces the marks of inherited complaint—the sin of the parent appearing in the unhappy and innocent offspring.

As the service continued, the women joined heartily in one of our well-known hymns:—

"The dying thief rejoiced to see
That fountain in his day,
And there may I, though vile as he,
Wash all my sins away."

And it was pitiable to see the deepening expression of sorrow which lengthened the faces of many of these poor, sinful women, as those words seemed to awaken a consciousness of sin and guilt in their hearts. It was a sorrow, however—if sorrow it was—that needed not to be repented of, for was it not the first gleam of light to lead them to a better hope?

When the writer left the service was still progressing, alternating hymns with prayers, and then with readings from the Word of God, and the words which escaped the lips of one of the lady helpers, faint, and almost overcome with the heat and impurity of the room, "that the Lord would bless that meeting to the souls of many present that night," found a ready and prayerful echo in his heart.

The readers of THE CHRISTIAN are aware that the Committee of the Midnight Meeting Movement arranged to hold a series of Day and Night Meetings in different parts of the metropolis. The Organising Secretary, Mr. Christien, carried out his instructions as fully and effectively as was possible, and ten meetings were held in different parts of London. In addition to the special effort in the metropolis at the close of the year, country correspondents of the movement in upwards of thirty county towns arranged for a special distribution of the selected tract for this year; the aim being especially to bring the solemn truths of eternity before as large a number of outcast women as possible. Surely every reader will sympathise with this Gospel Mission to the lost and perishing of our streets.

EVANGELISTIC MISSION.

ANNIVERSARY OF MALDEN HALL.

VERY spiritual and instructive addresses were delivered at the two meetings held here on the 26th ult. In the afternoon Mr. J. DENHAM SMITH spoke on the three characteristics of a child of God, referred to in Malachi iii. 16: (1) Godly fear; (2) Fellowship with brethren in frequent speech one with another. God has no spiritually blind or dumb children, but such speak of and see things invisible. (3) They think upon his name, how most to serve and glorify Him. God's regard for us is perceived in his "bag for our sins, bottle for our tears, book for our thoughts." Our sins are for ever done with, sewn up in the bag, as was the accusation against the prisoner in the Roman Court of Justice. The tears of even Mary and sinful Peter are not forgotten. God's book of remembrance for our thoughts may well lead us to desire enlargement of soul in service and apprehension of heavenly things.

Mr. JAMES E. MATHIESON referred to the revelation made concerning the birth of Christ by angels to the shepherds. God has often made revelations through individuals, specially selecting those who were busy in their legitimate work, but nevertheless spiritually occupied with Christ.

At the evening meeting Colonel PUGET pointed out from Gen. xvii. that Abraham was called of God at about 75 years of age, justified about 86, and sanctified at 99. He begins to fulfil the command, "Walk before Me and be thou perfect," by falling on his face before God, for he had no power to intercede for Sodom till he was sanctified.

Dr. MABERLY read Eph. iii. 14, and after referring to our need of appropriating the fulness of God, showed from Proverbs viii. that in the ages of eternity the Father and Son had been occupied for the sinner's welfare. Such love passeth knowledge.

Mr. G. C. NEEDHAM said that now there should be a moral likeness to Him; ministry, teaching, service, are all secondary to character. Let us seek of God preparedness of heart, that his Spirit may (as in the case of Christ at his baptism, and the disciples at Pentecost) rest there.

Dr. MCKILLIAN read Mark ix. 2, and noted (1) That every fresh revelation of Christ brings us from glory to glory, but let us not forget that He makes the revelation. (2) He led them. (3) He was transfigured before them. (4) Peter's mistake in forgetting that the presence of Jesus alone made it "good to be here." (5) The transfiguration was followed by the cheering words, "Be not afraid."

Mr. C. INGLIS referred to Acts v. 32, as teaching—(1) The importance of witnessing for God. (2) The power for witnessing—namely, the Holy Ghost within us, for fellowship with God is the secret of power. (3) The result of witnessing—3000 converted, and the world turned upside down. To turn everything upside down we must be outside of it. The great need of the day is power—God's power in us.

Mr. GAWIN KIRKHAM closed with prayer.

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE IN LANCASTER.

THE second series of meetings conducted by the Messrs. Murphy has closed, and we are heartily glad to record that the services from beginning to end have been thoroughly successful and full of encouragement. As the work progressed the spirit of earnestness and enthusiasm became more and more manifest.

Some of the greatest drunkards in our town have signed the pledge, and begun to pray, whilst others of great influence among us, and forward in every good work, have also joined our ranks, which will be sure to strengthen temperance sentiment and practice among us. It has been an unspeakable joy to hear the testimony of many working men and their wives to the effect that this has been the happiest Christmas they have spent during their married life. Nothing in connection with the meetings was more touching than the prayers which some of these men offered up at the noon day-service, and the words of testimony which came from their lips. All who spoke were for the worst part those who had taken the pledge at Mr. T. E. Murphy's previous Mission, and who therefore have stood true to their pledge, amidst the many strong temptations to which they have been subjected during the last three months.

The temperance friends in our town have worked most heartily together in the movement, and are perfectly satisfied with the manner in which Mr. Murphy and his son have conducted the meetings; whilst as for the results, these are simply far beyond their most sanguine expectations. It was good to see so many sections of the Church represented, either by ministers or leading laymen, on the platform each night, and all in turn, either by prayer or short speech, contributing to the interest of the meetings. The last evening meeting held was one that will live long in the memories of those who were present. It was the privilege of the writer to thank Messrs. Murphy for their work, and when he had done this, the immense gathering rose to their feet and cheered vociferously, and then sang the four lines, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," &c. The vote of thanks was feelingly acknowledged by father and son, and throughout the scene many eyes were bathed with tears.

The Christian women of our company have worked nobly side by side with the brethren. Public-houses have been visited, and, so far as we know, no publican has treated the visitors with anything but courtesy; and night after night scores of men in our streets have been compelled by kind entreaty to come in. The children too have helped. One night a dear little one brought her own father, who was somewhat intoxicated, first to the meeting and then up to the table to sign, and we hear he is keeping his pledge.

We do most heartily thank God for the work done, and we intend to carry it forward. Since Mr. T. E. Murphy's first visit a meeting has been conducted every Thursday night by Temperance friends, and also one on Sunday afternoon. These meetings have been well attended, and on an average fifty pledges have been taken weekly. These meetings will be continued, and the visitors intend going on with their important work. Our large choir, under the leadership of Mr. Lamb and Mr. Wilkinson, has greatly contributed to the success of the work, and wherever a Mission is arranged for we should advise the formation of just such a choir as we have here.

Messrs. Murphy have left us with our earnest prayers following them and every feeling of good will. They conduct a meeting to-night (Dec. 29) in Ulverston; then Mr. Murphy begins a Mission in Perth, and Mr. T. E. Murphy, one in Kendal, where evidently great preparations have been made for successful work. May this great Gospel Temperance movement go forward until all hearts are touched by its sacred influence, and all homes are made bright by its entrance into them as the sunlight of the skies.

ADAM SCOTT, Congregational Minister.

[Mr. Francis Murphy asks us to announce that all communications desiring the services of himself and son should be addressed to the writer of the foregoing, Rev. Adam Scott, Lancaster.]

FORTY YEARS AGO.

THE following are some extracts from one of the Lectures by Dr. Ralph Wardlaw, of Glasgow, referred to in our last issue:—

"I make my first appeal to The Pulpit. The theme, I am well aware, is one on which the ministers of the Gospel cannot dwell, frequently or freely, before promiscuous auditories. Yet there is a danger of an excess of squeamishness, such as it is not easy to reconcile with faithfulness. In a city like this, there are few sins from which the rising youth are exposed to greater peril. They require to be warned—affectionately and earnestly warned against this as well as the many other 'snares of the devil.'

"Parents need warning to watch over this department of the morals of their sons with a sedulous and monitory care. Masters and Mistresses need warning to keep an eye of vigilant kindness upon their young domestics. And these domestics themselves need warning to beware of vanity, and of the flatteries, the false promises, and the unnumbered and nameless arts of the liers-in-wait for their virtue. When either such subjects come in a minister's way; or when special circumstances demand the notice of them; or when the description of the congregation in which he labours, as consisting largely of particular classes of hearers, calls for their more frequent introduction; it becomes imperative on him who would be 'clear of the blood of all men' not to shrink from them, but with all 'plainness of speech'—plainness which may be used without the remotest approach to coarseness, and in perfect harmony with the claims of the chastest delicacy—to 'reprove, rebuke, and exhort, with all fidelity.'

"Allow me to give weight to these observations by the following energetic appeals of Dr. Dwight:

"'Is it not a plain and prominent part of the counsel of God, to forbid, to discourage, to prevent, this profligate conduct of mankind? Why else was this precept (the seventh commandment) inserted in the Decalogue, and promulgated amidst the lightnings of Sinai? Why else is it throughout the Scriptures made the subject of such forcible prohibitions, and the object of such awful threatenings? What reason can be given why it should not be introduced into the pulpit? Can common sense either prove or discern the usefulness of excluding it? Is it fit, is it safe, is it not preposterous, is it not ruinous to the best interests of mankind, to leave the whole management of it to loose and abandoned men, and to suffer them, from year to year, and from century to century, to go on in a course of corruption, seducing and destroying thousands and millions, especially of the young, the gay, and the giddy; while we ministers of Christ, divinely appointed to watch for the souls of men, quietly sit by, and see them hurried on to perdition? Shall we be awed by the cry of indelicacy, originally raised by the most indelicate of mankind, only to keep the field open for its own malignant occupancy? Shall we not infinitely rather lay hold of every opportunity, and all the means furnished here and elsewhere (that is, in the pulpit and out of it), 'to rescue our fellow-creatures from destruction?'"

At the close of the lecture, Dr. Wardlaw advocates tract distribution of various descriptions, some "to inform, to interest, and to rouse the public mind;" others "addressed to the victims themselves, to young men, to young women, to servants, to heads of families, to proprietors and superintendents of factories, and . . . to the legislators of our country, the representatives of the people, and the peers of the realm." Had these wise and godly counsels of the past generation been carried out, there might have been a very different condition of society than we find today. Instead of the picture being any brighter, it is far more gloomy than it was forty years ago; and every exhortation to the Pulpit, the Press, and every other means by which it can be opposed and exposed, derives greatly added force.

[16]

EVANGELISTIC MOVEMENTS.

Major Whittle commences work in Pittsburg, U.S., with the New Year.

Rev. Thomas Harrison has been labouring in Grand Rapids, Mich., with much acceptability and power.

Mr. Oscar Owers, of the Evangelisation Society, has held a fortnight's Mission at Leamington. The services have been much blessed to very many.

Mr. H. M. Barnett, Gospel Cottage, Hopton, Harling, Norfolk, has concluded a series of Gospel addresses at Thetford, which have been much appreciated. He is open for further engagements in connection with the Lord's work.

Mr. Spencer Walton has been holding services at Bromley Valley Mission, also at Bromley-common. The hearts of the workers are full of praise to God for the wondrous blessing received. The meetings were all full, and frequently overcrowded.

Mr. W. Catlin, of the Cow-cross Mission, and his helpers, have been busy in their outdoor work during the recent festive season. The "Christmas carols," in the shape of Gospel hymns, and also the preaching of the Word met with much acceptance from the crowds of listeners.

Mr. William Nobbs has had a season of interesting and encouraging Gospel Work at various places in the counties of Somerset, Devon, and Hereford. Tokens of God's blessing have followed these faithful labours. Mr. Nobbs has received an invitation to visit Canada and conduct evangelistic services.

Rev. E. P. Hammond has been holding meetings in Cambridge, near Boston, U.S. He has seen some most interesting conversions. One day a gentleman called Mr. Hammond to look through his telescope at the Transit of Venus; while doing so he told the evangelist that he had been led to Christ in the meetings, and now there was nothing between him and the Sun of Righteousness.

Messrs. Sylvester and Weaver have completed some months' labours in Lancaster, Bolton, Blackpool, Preston, and Southport. "The Gospel Van" is now stationed at the large manufacturing centre of Blackburn, Lancashire. Despite the wet and cold, much work has been done, and precious fruit in the conversion of souls been seen as the result of the preaching in the wooden tent just erected.

Mr. Henry Thorne has conducted a nine days' Gospel Mission at Bury, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. Numbers remained to the inquiry meetings. At the close of the Mission, the names of 50 persons had been taken as having professed to find the Saviour. Among the most pleasing features of the work were the large attendance of young men, the attendance at and interest in the Noonday Prayer Meetings, and the Bible Readings; the numbers attending steadily increased as the Mission progressed. These meetings were seasons of refreshing. Much sympathy and hearty co-operation were afforded by the ministers of the various branches of the Christian Church.

[We shall be glad to receive brief contributions to this column from friends throughout the country.]

NAVVIES AT TILBURY.—With reference to the paragraph on page 15 of our last issue, Miss Bubb writes from Grays, Essex:—I have to thank you for your kindness in putting in the appeal on my behalf. I am sorry if it should convey the impression that nothing is being done for the navvies at Tilbury except by myself. This, of course, is wrong. I am working at Grays and the Thames Church Mission at Tilbury (a distance of three miles), where they are doing a good work. But those men who lodge at Grays, and many do so, find that Mission-room too far away to attend often, and my need is a room close at hand to which I could invite them. I have secured a room that I hope may suit for a Mission room. It will need a good deal done to it to render it convenient, and I must brighten it up with pretty texts, &c.

A NEW YEAR'S CARD.

WITH New Year's greetings, and strains of mirth,
With Christian hymns, and with songs of earth;
A sound like the sea, a deep undertone,
From hearts that are weary, and sad, and lone.
Under the gilding of Mammon's shrine,
Under the bosom where jewels shine,
Under the revelry's witching spell,
Under the minster's sacred bell,
Are hearts which have tried the world, and found
The mockery hid in its sweetest sound.
O weary hearts, by the false world riven,
Oh, why not seek the pure joys of heaven?
O drooping spirit, wherever you be,
Oh, think of the love that still longs for thee;
The Saviour that wept over Salem's loss,
The Christ that redeemed thee on the Cross.
Oh, yield to that ransom to wash thy soul!
Oh, yield to that mercy to make thee whole!
Oh, yield to thy God, and receive at last
The blessing you needed through all the past.
Let God have your life, as the world once had:
And, proving what Master can make more glad,
With no secret dread, you'll rejoice to hear
The old salute—"A Happy New Year."

Donemana, Ireland. J. K.

RAGLAN MUSIC HALL.—The Rev. B. Senior and his friends at Surrey Chapel have taken a bold step to extend their Mission work in South London. On a recent Sunday they opened the Raglan Music Hall, Union-street, Borough, for special Mission services. This hall will hold over 2000 people, and is in the heart of the poorest, and, as a matter of course, most neglected district in South London. The opening services were most successful, 1600 people being present. It is simply impossible to describe the character and conduct of the people during the procession to the hall and during the afternoon service. When the speakers went on to the platform to commence the service they were received with clapping, stamping, and shouting of the wildest character, and during the whole service were interrupted with slang questions and remarks. The evening service, however, was, perfectly orderly and most encouraging. Some sixteen of the roughest characters came out in the prayer-meeting for special prayer. The Surrey Chapel Evangelistic Band did excellent service in singing. About fifty of them were present. It is believed that the opening of this hall will prove a great blessing to the inhabitants of this locality, and Mr. Senior and his friends deserve the best sympathy of the Christian public. We are glad to hear that the work at Surrey Chapel continues to prosper in every department.—South London Paper.

BIBLE AND PRAYER UNION.—By December 1st, our Union had enrolled 162,050 members. Since our last issue we have added eighty-eight new members from foreign parts, including Ballaarat, Italy, India, Java, and Jamaica. We give the following extracts from letters received: "I entered the Union in faith somewhat similar to that of the woman who touched the hem of Christ's garment. I have in consequence been often wonderfully blessed in connection therewith, and particularly on the Sabbath."—"The first time I read the Bible with you it raised an interest never before felt, but now, going through a second time, it is quite a joy and a privilege."—"I have found the Union a very great help, and it has kept me from neglecting my Bible, and in doing this no one knows what it has delivered me from."—"I am quite sure the Bible and Prayer Union has tended to stablish, strengthen, and settle me, for though by the grace of God I first knew Him in the year 1829, I am still a learner in the school of Christ."—"I am a member of your valuable Union, and have during four years of my Oxford career found it a great help to me, and also a bond of union between myself and other Undergraduate members here in Oxford."—"I am glad to tell you that on speaking to her about it one of my parishioners wishes to join your Bible and Prayer Union. I feel it to be a nice bond of union between pastor and people, and hope that with God's blessing the consecutive reading of the Word may be a means of much blessing to her in bringing her nearer to Christ."—"The feeling of oneness in reading with so many of God's dear children is so precious, and I feel sure all the members who truly pray for one another do really help each other far more than we can imagine."—All communications to be addressed (members to quote card number), Rev. Thomas Richardson, vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road, London, E.—January Notes.

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY.

THE COMING LONDON CAMPAIGN.

WHILE passing through London last week, on his way to Dublin, Mr. Moody met the members of the London Evangelistic Committee, and a few other friends, at 186, Aldersgate-street, for consultation with respect to the projected twelve months' campaign in London. Mr. HUGH M. MATHESON, who presided, said that many of those who had been stirred up by the last visit of Messrs. Moody and Sankey to London were looking forward with much expectation and hope to their next campaign in the Metropolis.

Mr. MOODY said his views as to the proposed campaign had been considerably modified by the experiences of recent months in the provincial towns. The Christians in most of these places had prepared the ground so effectually by united prayer and effort, that there was little left for him to do but go in and reap. He had thus been able to accomplish more in ten days than he could have done in a campaign of many weeks, if this preparatory work had been left undone. He was inclined to think that, instead of spending a year in London, if he and Mr. Sankey returned to England, more might be accomplished by brief visits to other country towns where they had not yet been able to go. One great difficulty about the work in London was the paucity of suitable buildings of a neutral kind. Mr. Moody added that he was bound to admit the friends in London had largely helped in paving the way for the successful meetings they had held in the provinces.

An earnest conversation ensued; the unanimous expression of feeling was that any relinquishment of the proposed campaign in London was not to be entertained. Lord RADSTOCK said that London represented forty large towns rolled into one, and no place in the land is more in need of such an effort. The rallying together of the Lord's people and the combined assault on the strongholds of evil that would accompany such a campaign, would produce results that were unimaginable. The ground was marvellously prepared, and the barriers between the various evangelical sections of the Christian Church were being rapidly broken down. If the visit of the Evangelists were made the occasion of a special effort all over the town—having, say, 200 meetings simultaneously held each night—it would be a testimony to the world, and would bring such glory to God as they could form but little idea of.

Mr. HENRY F. BOWKER spoke in the same strain, and said that, in view of such a movement as that proposed, he saw the prospect of a grand and prosperous work, that might prepare the way for the return of the Lord Himself. Remarks of a similar purport were made by Mr. THOMAS STONE and Mr. J. H. FORDHAM.

Mr. MOODY recurred to the question of suitable buildings, and remarked that, by the evident circumstances of the case, he was excluded from denominational places of meeting.

Mr. SAMUEL MORLEY could not entertain the idea that London was to be left out of this movement. What he had seen lately at Brighton made him more than ever anxious that London should share the blessing. It would not be an impossible task to get the necessary buildings, and the thing must be done. They had plenty of time before them to do it thoroughly. He felt sure that whatever money was needed would be forthcoming. London is the heart of the world, and if by God's help they could accomplish some great thing on its behalf, who could tell the world-wide effects that might be produced?

Hon. ARTHUR F. KINNAIRD put in a further urgent plea for London; and Mr. M. H. HODDER said that if the Christians were thoroughly of one mind in looking to God for a mighty blessing, all difficulties would disappear. Mr. J. E. MATHIESON remarked that London is far better off now for buildings of the kind required than when the Evangelists were in it before. In addition to that, the number of Christian workers who would give active assistance was multiplied tenfold.

Mr. T. A. DENNY said Mr. Moody would see that the hearts of those present were as the heart of one man in their determination to have him in London. They would, of course, undertake all the burden and responsibility as to buildings, &c., and Mr. Moody must not trouble himself about that.

Mr. GEORGE WILLIAMS recalled an occasion during the last visit of Mr. Moody to London, when in a time of seeming difficulty they gave themselves to prayer, and the difficulty was overcome.

Mr. W. T. PATON, Sir WM. MUIR, Mr. CAMPBELL, and others joined in the conversation. Eventually a small sub-committee was appointed to make the needful inquiries with regard to available buildings or sites. A scheme for the division of the Metropolis into districts is to be drawn up and submitted to Mr. Moody as early as possible, after which he will give a definite expression to his ideas, as the Lord may providentially direct. In the event of his deciding to labour in London for twelve months, which we think, humanly speaking, will be matter of certainty, the campaign is expected to commence about the beginning of October next.

OPENING IN DUBLIN.

After eight years' absence we have our brethren Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey again on Irish soil. Though the land during those years has been more or less disturbed in its social and political aspects, thousands have remained true and loyal to Christ, some of whom were first brought to know Him through his servants on their last visit. They held their first meeting on Sunday last, at four o'clock, when the Metropolitan Hall was full to its utmost capacity. As early as two o'clock the doors had to be opened; at half-past three the hall was literally packed with some 5000 people, who joined in singing the hymns which have become so popular.

On the platform was quite a group of old veterans. Among them Sir Edward Hutchison, Lord James Butler, William Fry, Mr. J. Bowker, Mr. D. Drummond, Dr. Marrable, Dr. Eccles, Rev. S. Fletcher, Dr. S. McKee, and a host of others, all banded together to help on a work which many have faith to believe is to surpass in glorious results any previous effort. The key-note was struck by Mr. Moody's address on "God is love." It formed a good beginning to the Mission. Some of the touching illustrations came home to all hearts, and many could not refrain from weeping. At its close a prayer-meeting was held, at which about 500 remained.

Another meeting had been announced for nine o'clock for males only, but as it was the last night of the year it was thought best to admit both sexes and carry it on until midnight. Some 3000 assembled. But for a number of watch services, that are increasing in number every year, there would have not been room for the people. This was no ordinary meeting; numbers were present who for years had not come under the sound of the Gospel, but they were soon subdued and awed by the divine presence. Short Gospel addresses were given at intervals. It was really an impressive time. The hours of the dying year were soon spent, and the large congregation left for their homes, many, we trust, to begin the year 1883 with the consciousness of sin forgiven through the blood of the Lamb.

F. L. D.

MRS. JANE KEEP, 51, Parnell-road, Old Ford, Bow, E., still continues to carry on house-to-house visitation, administering comfort to the sick, suffering, and dying, clothing the destitute, holding Cottage and Prayer-meetings, as well as giving addresses in various Mission Halls. There are again and again manifest tokens of blessing experienced by the hearers and visited. We trust this aged sister and servant of Christ will have her temporal needs fully supplied. Though some who formerly supplied "a portion" have passed away from this world's scene of usefulness, additional help will doubtless still be forthcoming. Will the reader help to fulfil this hope, and commend it to those who will do so?

FAITH MIRACLES.

THE following letter appeared in the Pall Mall Gazette, on Wednesday, December 27:

Sir,—Although you may perhaps think that I am making too great a demand upon the credulity of your readers, permit me to lay before you some alleged "facts" which are attracting a good deal of attention at present in certain circles. A few days ago I had an interview with the Rev. W. E. Boardman, who is at the head of a movement which is attracting a large amount of attention not only in the metropolis but throughout the country. The head-quarters of this movement is a house in the north of London, which has been designated "Bethshan," and the leading doctrine taught there is that of healing by faith. In other words, they teach that miracles may be wrought by means of prayer, and the healing virtues which have been claimed for French and Irish shrines by Roman Catholic devotees cannot compare with the power in which the believers in the new Gospel put their trust. At a time when belief in the supernatural is said to be vanishing, and when every effect is scientifically traced to a natural cause, it is, to say the least, remarkable to hear men and women publicly testify to their recovery from long-standing and apparently incurable diseases without medical or surgical aids. I have been present at more than one of their meetings, and have heard many personal testimonies to a complete cure from almost "all the ills that flesh is heir to." The following typical instances were furnished to me by Mr. Boardman:—

A lady named Miss Scoons came on a Wednesday evening to "Bethshan" about six months ago. At the meeting that evening she had an epileptic fit, and had to be carried out of the room. On the Sunday evening following she rose from the couch on which she was lying prostrate and said, "I am perfectly well." She told those who surrounded her, and had been conversing with her, that she had been for upwards of fourteen years an invalid, having been afflicted with a complication of disorders, including an internal tumour and epilepsy. She had been in a number of hospitals and under many physicians, and her case had been abandoned as hopeless. Her cure was instantaneous, and she is now the picture of health. At the present time she is engaged in religious work among the warehouse girls in the City, and is known to many.

A second case of a different type was that of a carpenter named Newman, who resides at Dorking. He suffered from consumption, and so far had the disease run that he was completely exhausted on arriving at "Bethshan." He remained for a week, and was completely cured. This is also a case of six months' standing, and since his return home Newman has followed his occupation and engaged in religious work.

A working man from Grimsby named Moodie furnished an illustration of a different kind. For six years he was lame in one foot and leg, the ailment taking such a curious form that the limb had to be carried high in the air. For three years he had not put his foot on the ground, to attempt to do so having caused the greatest agony. He had been treated by medical men in Grimsby and Hull, and by a surgeon in London, who eventually amputated his great toe. This gave no relief, and he came a second time to London and had an interview with a celebrated surgeon, who remarked upon the peculiarity of the case, and said that nothing could be done for it. Moodie remained for three years in his lame condition, moving about by means of crutches. A few months ago he came under Mr. Boardman's care, and in a week he could dispense with his artificial aids, while after the lapse of a few more days he left for home with his limb completely healed. He is now in business in Grimsby.

It is asserted that since the beginning of the movement, now six months ago, there have been about one hundred remarkable cures, including every variety of disease—cancer, paralysis, deafness, consumption, chronic rheumatism, and lameness, many trophies in the form of crutches being left behind. No outward means are used; indeed, doctors and medicines must be entirely given up, and implicit faith is the "one thing needful." "Bethshan," its projectors state, "is no hospital, but rather a nursery for faith;" and many of the cures of which testimony is given are said to have been effected by correspondence. The patient is usually anointed with oil, and, after prayer, an immediate cure is looked for. I may add that the institution is above suspicion on pecuniary grounds.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

Hornsey, Dec. 26. M.

On Tuesday, December 19th, Mr. Karl Andreas, of Shepherd's Bush, London, conducted a most successful Drawing-room Bible Reading here, subject—"Healing by Faith." A large company of Christians assembled, who listened attentively to the simple, striking, and convincing expositions, wholly founded upon the Word of God, so that none could gainsay them, and the truth respecting this subject is undeniable. J. A.

8, Park Gardens, Glasgow.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS' CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

ON Thursday last the tenth annual gathering of the members, subscribers, and friends of this association took place at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, Aldersgate-street. At half-past three a devotional meeting was held in the parlour of the Young Men's Association, when the chair was taken by Mr. Barry Wake, who delivered a short address. A special address was given by Mr. George Goldston on the subject of "Christian Individuality and Christian Work." After the devotional meeting a social and festive gathering was held.

This was followed by the annual public meeting of the association, presided over by Mr. H. W. Maynard. A lengthened report was read by the hon. secretary (Mr. Henry Holme). As an association, though they had not accomplished all that might have been done by them, still a great measure of success had been theirs; and much had been vouchsafed to stimulate them to greater efforts in the future. In the report a kindly reference was made by the committee to their lately deceased secretary (Mr. W. T. Swan). In February last a determination was come to to set on foot a special effort for raising £1000 for the extension of the association's work, especially the purchasing of books, and the refilling of their library with additional and new publications. During the past twelve months the association had had a further addition of 115 members. Eight new libraries had been sent out, containing some 700 volumes, thus making a total of 137 libraries, containing about 12,000 books, and costing over £3000, sent out by the association to all parts of the United Kingdom. With the aid of a special fund, the committee hope to send out during the present year a still larger amount.

ART MODELS.—A correspondent writes as to some remarks in our columns on the South Kensington School of Art, that the superintendent, Mr. Poynter, R.A., dispenses with female nude figures, insisting that the pupils can learn all that is necessary from the male figure, and from the female in statuary. He therefore deserves great credit for his departure from received traditions.

IPSWICH TOWN MISSION.—On Friday evening last the sixth annual meeting of men and women gathered together from the numerous public-houses and lodging-houses in the town was held. The guests, about a hundred in number, were entertained through the kindness of two Christian ladies. Supper ended, the company listened for an hour and a half with deep and earnest attention to the Gospel addresses given by Miss Grimwade and Mr. George Campion, Tavern Missionary, who visit the houses and conduct services in the kitchens every Sabbath evening during the winter months.

A WEST-END CONFERENCE HALL.

NOT without sound of hammer, like Solomon's Temple, but silently as regards the general public, and almost unknown even to those most interested in such an edifice, there has sprung up, within three minutes' walk of Victoria Station, the West-end Conference Hall. It is an elegant red brick structure, situate in Eccleston-street, with large hall accommodating a thousand persons. There are a number of smaller rooms in the rear, two of them seating about 250 people each.

In one of these about two hundred and fifty Christian friends assembled on the afternoon of New Year's Day, to consecrate this house to God with praise and prayer. Lord Radstock, to whom the building owes its existence, conducted the proceedings, in which also Mr. Denham Smith, Mr. Varley, Rev. Dr. Saphir, Mr. Edwards of Brighton, and Captain Baring took part.

During the Week of Prayer-meetings will be held here each day at 11.30 a.m. and 7 p.m., except on Saturday evening; and on the following Lord's Day the Gospel will be preached in the large hall.

BLACKDOWN HILLS MISSION.

DEAR SIR,—In the midst of deep affliction, I write to inform the readers of The Christian that the Lord has been pleased to call home to Himself my dear wife, who has been my fellow labourer in this mission these twenty years. She has been a great sufferer at times for many years past. Her end was peace. She had been a Christian for fifty years. In the sphere wherein the Lord called her to work she has been true to Him. A large number of the poor on these hills will miss her much, as her special work was to care for them.—Yours in Him who doeth all things well,

George Brealey.

Clayhidon, Wellington, Somerset.

Letters to the Editor.

IRISH CHURCH MISSIONS.

Dear Sir,—In reference to the Note of Praise in a recent issue, for the great blessing the Lord has allowed me to see in Dublin, I feel it a duty to confess that I went there much prejudiced against the controversial work of the Irish Church Mission, thinking it was taking the place of presenting a full salvation for an empty sinner. During the special Mission my eyes were opened to see my mistake. Not a few Roman Catholics were brought to the Lord, and I found that in many instances they had been prepared by this work to see the emptiness and error of Roman Catholicism, and a thirst had been created in their souls for the living water. During the after-meetings I came across numbers of bright Christians who were once deep in the errors of Romanism, and the majority of them had been converted to Christ in the controversial meetings.

I have indeed learned a lesson, not to hastily judge of a work without carefully and practically looking into it.—Yours sincerely,

W. Spencer Walton.

"WORLDLY ADDENDA."

Dear Sir,—Will you permit me a word in reply to the difficulty suggested by Mr. Archibald Brown? It is not, surely, questioned by those who use singing in connection with Gospel efforts in the manner he objects to, that it is the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, ministered by the power of the Holy Ghost, which alone can move the heart of the sinner, and awaken him to life eternal.

It is the method of drawing attention to that Gospel which he complains of. Let us look at this for a moment. All truth is stereotyped in the Word of God, but the methods of presenting that truth may vary according to the needs of each particular age or country. No positive rules are given us in the Word as to the way in which God's worship is to be conducted, or the accompaniments which may be used in inviting sinners to listen to the Gospel which may be preached in connection with that worship.

Mr. Brown's own position, which is not in any way impugned, is a testimony to this, for he does not follow the traditions of worship which have been handed down for many centuries. Moreover, we in this age are suffering from the neglect of very many years. The mass of the population, so vastly increased during the last fifty years, has been comparatively uncared for. The Spirit of God is rousing the Churches to efforts on their behalf.

Granted that, as in all great awakenings, there are some extravagances both of doctrine and practice, which shock many amongst us; but the questions we have to ask ourselves are: "Is God giving his blessing to these efforts?" "Are souls being awakened and saved?" If the reply to these questions is in the affirmative, let me ask myself further, "What is to be my duty in this matter?" "What does fidelity to Christ demand of me?" Not opposition, not objections, not cavillings, but sympathy—the sympathy which delights in the manifestation of Christ's glory in any and every form.

With this sympathy I can go amongst those whose teaching and action I may in some things object to, and, by loving-kindness and tender regard, may perhaps get them to modify their views and tone down the practices that I consider objectionable.

It has been well said, that Christ is calling, in these last days, not so much for advocates as for witnesses. Let us renounce, then, that spirit of separation and disunion which has so often and so greatly hindered the work of God, and caused the world to scoff. Let me only add that the singing of a solo hymn has often a most calming, quieting, and soothing effect on a large audience, preparing it to listen afterwards to the message of God through the Gospel. The opposite effect of chorus singing is not less blessed in stimulating the courage of those who have received the gift of life, and need now to be aroused to go and proclaim the good news to others.—Very faithfully yours,

Henry F. Bowker.

Richmond, Dec. 29, 1882.

"FATHER IGNATIUS."

Sir,—As my statements regarding Father Ignatius' lecture on "Monasteries" have been contradicted, I beg to state more particularly what he did say, as ascertained from a credible witness who heard the lecture.

He said he would prove that the monastic system was Biblical. The first instance given was John the Baptist; the second was our Lord, who during the thirty years of his private life no doubt lived apart from men, and not in his family. He used the ordinary Romish arguments in favour of a monastic life, such as the necessity of some being set apart to pray for others. He also said he could give numerous texts in proof of Scripture favouring monasticism, but time would not allow of his quoting them.—Yours truly, L. Douglas.

Edinburgh, Dec. 22, 1882.

Dear Sir,—As I read your remarks on Mr. Lyne's (Father Ignatius) letter, I thought with sorrow, must the prefix "un" be placed before the bright word "Christian" at the head of your dear little paper? "How did our Lord act?" you will be the first to say, is to be ever the Christian's rule. Can we read Luke ix. 49, 50, and "forbid" one whom He owns, "because he followeth not with us?" If the reward is ready for the "cup of cold water" given to one who belongs to Christ, how can we be Christlike if we refuse the right hand of fellowship to one who labours for Him, and whose work He owns and blesses?

This fellow-disciple of our blessed Lord pleads with you, and says: "I love you; I love Jesus Christ, and my life is devoted to his service; and in so far as we love the same Lord and look forward to his Coming, give me your hand and your loving sympathy in my work." And you refuse, and begin to talk about Romanism, and the fires of Smithfield, and even to insinuate that under his manifest Christian words lurk "the teeth of the lion." You were not asked to take Romanism to your bosom, we all of us hate the distinctive errors of Romanism; but here is an English Churchman, whose sole crime is that "he followeth not with us" in matters of ritual ceremony, and in the voluntary use of the world, its comforts and pleasures. In these matters methinks Christ will judge his servant. "Judge nothing before the time." When He comes it will be his fire that will decide what amount of "wood, hay, and stubble" has been built upon the true foundation.

For years I have read and loved The Christian, not because I agree with everything in its pages, but because you have given us cheering news of work being done for Christ anywhere and by anyone. I could have said that you were Catholic in your sympathies with the true catholicity of "Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ," and "if any one love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be Anathema Maran-atha." Is it not time, as the forces of Satan are gathering to the battle, to welcome any comrade who is gallantly fighting on our Lord's side? That is our Master's own test, after all: "He that is with us cannot be against us, but is on our side." Many throughout the land whom "Father Ignatius" has, by God's help, been the means of leading to the Saviour, will be needlessly pained by the unChrist-like way you have chosen to meet the advance of his servant.—Yours truly, Great Cressingham Rectory, Norfolk, Dec. 26, 1882. E. FAGAN.

DEAR SIR,—I was sorry to find, from a recent communication in your journal, how effectually Mr. Lyne spreads his influence with those Christians who are captivated by the statements made in a decoy address, while even his monkish dress might well lead to careful inquiry into his actual teaching and practice. It is by double-dealing that the germs of error are spread. Well has a writer of authority said, "Falsehood gains acceptance by being artfully mixed up with truth, and in consequence it often receives the assent and reverence which is due only to the truth."

Let me supply an extract from a pamphlet published by him in Manchester: "Protestantism (with its 200 different sects) is the masterpiece of Satan, the forerunner of Antichrist, the groundwork of infidelity and vice. I call the Protestant religion the curse of dear old England." Again, he says that the English people have been "duped and robbed by Satan, and his emissaries—the Protestant ministers."

Again: "You will altogether ignore the pretended authority of the so-called Reformers, who so infamously robbed God and his Church, and carried their diabolical schemes through by wholesale murder and sacrilege." Again: "Protestantism sprang from the tattered shreds of England's liberties."

Again, he speaks of the Reformation as "that terrible epoch of blasphemy, rapine, and murder. . . . It was a lawless destruction of religion and morality, as its own principal promoters confessed before they came to die."

Lastly, hear his view of intercessory prayer: "I pray that blessed Mary, ever a virgin; blessed Michael thy Archangel; the holy Apostles Peter and Paul; blessed John Baptist; our blessed Father Benedict; all the Saints (and you, my brothers) may pray for me to the Lord our God." This from a deacon in the Church of England! Surely the specious use of the Holy Name, "which is above every name," can but be deemed profanation by such an one.—Yours,

Bath. L. R. VALPY.

Notices of Books, &c.

SOME JANUARY MAGAZINES.

THE CHRISTIAN TREASURY. 6d. Groombridge & Sons. This old favourite continues true to its name and the well-established traditions of its useful career.

THE HOME FRIEND (1d., Macniven & Wallace) caters for young women, and does it with a due regard to their special needs and circumstances. We hope it will have a continually enlarging constituency.

SWORD AND TROWEL. 3d. Passmore & Alabaster. Mr. Spurgeon starts the New Year with an excellent bill of fare; two of the best dishes are his own, and one is from the pungent pen of his son Thomas.

Dr. Barnardo successfully strives to keep OUR DARLINGS (3d., J. F. Shaw & Co.) up to its high standard. We can imagine the eagerness and delight with which it is welcomed by the little people month by month.

WOMEN'S WORK IN THE GREAT HARVEST FIELD. 4d. S. W. Partridge & Co. The magazine for the active Christian women of the time. If it had many more readers we should have a corresponding increase of workers. Any sister who wants a sphere of usefulness should consult its practical pages.

THE WELCOME. 6d. S. W. Partridge & Co. The "Men and Women of Mark" briefly sketched in the number before us are, the late Professor Palmer, Lord Harrowby, Archbishop Tait, and Mr. Wm. Noble, of the Blue Ribbon Army. The short account of Abbotsford House and its founder is interesting and instructive.

IN THE SUNDAY MAGAZINE (6d., Isbister & Co.) Mr. G. Holden Pike sketches Bird Fair; his representation of it seems rather couleur de rose. We hope the reader will not miss the eloquent homily by the late Thomas Jones, of Swansea, on "The Unseen Christ." We doubt if Mr. Jones could have satisfactorily proved his statement that John Henry Newman, Dr. Pusey, and Cardinal Manning, "taken for all in all, have the three finest heads in England."

THE CATHOLIC PRESBYTERIAN. 1s. J. Nisbet & Co. We do not think that for varied interest and worth any previous issue of this magazine has excelled the current number. We hardly suppose that every reader will fully acquiesce in the trenchant article by Dr. Howard Crosby on "Presbyterianism;" a greater number probably will dissent from the views of Principal Tulloch on "Progress in Theology;" but for these there is an ample store of fresh and valuable reading in other parts of this ably conducted serial.

RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY. The Sunday at Home (6d.) has contributions from Dr. Maclaren, of Manchester, Rev. Paxton Hood, Canon Tristram, and others. The first of a series of letters describing a "Journey to the North-west Land," gives an interesting account of a trip across the Atlantic on board the Sardinian with one of Miss Macpherson's parties of Children. Amongst the many excellent papers in The Leisure Hour (6d.) is the first instalment of "Sketches in the Malay Peninsular," by Isabella Bird, and an authoritative account of "How the Newspaper is Made." The Tract Magazine (1d.), Friendly Greetings (3d.), The Cottager and Artizan (1d.), The Child's Companion (1d.), are all worthy of the highest commendation.

MESSRS. CASSELL & CO.'S MAGAZINES. Foremost among these is The Quiver (6d.), packed full of very choice reading, the narrative, didactic, poetical, musical, informing, and practical portions being well mixed. The "Short Arrows" are more than usually numerous, a sign of the increasing activities of a busy age. Cassell's Family Magazine (7d.) holds its high place as a favourite repertory of fireside reading. "The Family Parliament" continues to be an interesting feature. The Magazine of Art (1s.) is a perfect storehouse of the beautiful; to praise it would be superfluous. Little Folks (6d.), with its plentiful supply of pretty pictures, with stories attached, its many prize competitions, and other special attractions, seems more charming than ever. The coloured frontispiece is one of the most exquisite of its kind we have seen. The same publishers have sent out the first part of a new candidate for the occupants of the nursery, Bo-Peep, (2d.). It is sure to become a firm and popular favourite with the very small people.

Requests for Praise and Prayer.

"I love them that love Me; and those that seek Me early shall find Me."—PROVERBS viii. 17.

PRAISE.—For having, in answer to prayer, given a Conference Hall in the West of London; pray that the Lord may be glorified in the gathering and strengthening of his people, and that the Gospel may be preached in the power of the Holy Ghost, and that the multitudes may be brought in to hear the Word of God, and be saved for his glory.

PRAYER.—That a Christian may be delivered from a terrible peril into which he has been plunged through the action of a professing friend.

PLACES.—That the distribution of Gospel literature to soldiers in Portsmouth and Woolwich hospitals may be greatly blessed.——For blessing on an Evangelistic Mission in East Dereham, from January 14 to 28, to be conducted by W. J. Taylor, of the Evangelisation Society.——For blessing on a Mission at Oxford conducted by Charles Carter, of the Evangelisation Society.——That great blessing from on high may descend on the parish of Calbrach, N.B., in the year newly opened.——For blessing on services conducted by Mr. George Tompkins at the Oxford Music-hall.——For much blessing on a week of special services, from Jan. 7 to 15, at Whetstone, N.——For blessing on Gospel services by Mr. Opie Rodway, at Wesleyan Chapels in the South Petherton Circuit, commencing Jan. 6.

CONVERSION.—A missionary and his wife in India desire prayer that their three sons at school in Edinburgh may be brought to know the Lord Jesus as their Saviour.——For the conversion of three sons and two daughters.——That the Lord would deliver a brother from the power of strong drink, and that soon he may be brought to the feet of Jesus.——For the speedy conversion of all the unsaved girls in my Sabbath-school class.

Notices.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—R. Chambers, 90, Church-street, Paddington, London, W.; William Mullen, 8, Flaxengate, Lincoln; Wm. H. Doggett, Cherryhinton, Cambridge; Hugh Wilson, 375, South York-street, Glasgow; Rev. A. Balfour, Grosvenor-cottage, Sussex-street, Brighton; J. D. Cassels, Mary Bank-place, Hamilton, N.B.; Mrs. Robinson, 18, Marlow-road, Anerley, S.E.; J. Maddock, Parr-street, Litherland, Liverpool; George Taft, at Mr. Hart's, Market-place, Hitchin, Herts; P. Powell, 12, Highgate-crescent, Highgate-lane, Sparkbrook, Birmingham; G. E. Arkell, 8, Ashton-villas, Lavender-hill, S.W.; Sarah Price, 373, Camden-road, Holloway, N.; H. Jones, 10, Trafalgar-place, Weston, near Bath; T. Brown, 13, Victoria-terrace, Uxbridge-road, Peckham Rye; Wm. Chaplin, 16, Rollo-street, Battersea-park-road, S.W.

Communications received with thanks.—W. B.; F. J.; E. F.; J. F.; H. E. B.; F. W. B.; J. V. S.; T. J. B.; W. L.; W. F.; S. E. D.; G. D. C.; W. M.; W. H. D.; W. G.; G. S.; S. S.; N. B. S.; J. S.; M. H.; L. E. D.; H.; G. W. S.; C. E. C.; J. K.; T. P. G.; J. J.; W. N.; W. Q.; L. R. V.; S. W. D.; F.; J. C.; L. C.; C. G.; C. B.; S. F.; E. S. S. C.; J. A. R.; R. R. K.; J. W. W.; E. F.; C. C.; W. N. S.; D. E.; A. K.; H. B.; T. B; A. M.; F. C. B.; W. P.; C. H. C.; J. R.; M. H. S.; D. L. J.; A. W.; F. M.; W. C.; R. W.; P. W. B.; E. S.; H. W. S.; J. H. M.; E. G. F.; L. D.; H. C. D.; J. G.; S. H.; J. H.; S. F.; Miss H.; E. P.; B. R.; L. M. E.; F. P. S.; W. Y. F.; J. M. M.; J. E. L.; M. A. H.; S. E.; R. P.; T. M. M.; C. M. S. L.; A. W. R.; E. M. F.; A Sister; B. H. G.; A. T. B.; P. P.; C. G.; C. R. H.; E. R. H.; J. P.; E. T.; W. R. W.; L. M.; A. E. E.; R. H.; E. C.; J. McC. E. H.; T. W. M.; A. H. S.; B. J. S.; J. S.; W. T.; H. V.; W. E. R.; E. D.; R. R.; F. T. H.; G. B.; F. E. G.; J. V. S.; E. T. P.; M. P. P.; W. H. M.; G. C.

Mission and other Appeals.

TEN LETTERS for the Surgical Aid Society would be very thankfully received by the Director of the Evangelistic Mission, C. RUSSELL HURDITCH, 164, Alexandra-road, St. John's-wood, N.W.

SHACKLEWELL GOSPEL MISSION.—Many of the friends and subscribers of this mission have died, a debt of £30 has been gradually contracted, which the workers hope they will be enabled to clear off, as if not the work must cease. The blessing during the past year, both in and out doors, has been greater than ever. The Hall is in Winchester-place, High-street, Kingsland. Subscriptions will be received by Mr. W. WAUD, 26, St. Jude-street, Mildmay-park, N.

FRENCH PROTESTANT CHURCH, BAYSWATER.—This Mission to Foreigners in London conducts Schools, and a Medical Mission, where during the past year 1041 foreigners have been relieved, irrespective of creed or nationality. The committee earnestly appeal for funds to those who feel for the stranger. Contributions gratefully received by M. le Pasteur DU PONTET DE LA HARPE, French Parsonage, Bayswater, W.

METHODIST FREE CHURCH MISSION.—The work carried on by this Mission at John-street, Edgware-road, W., is being much blessed in the conversion of souls. The committee have just been enabled to clear off an old debt which has long crippled their efforts, but about £100 is yet required to have the building repaired and to provide Church and Sunday-school necessaries. The anniversary meeting will take place on Monday, Jan. 28, at which friends will be welcomed. Contributions will be thankfully received by Mr. J. E. LEWIS, 35, Wyndham-street, Bryanston-square, W.

DUBLIN SOLDIERS' HOME.—This home since its institution, six years ago, has been almost entirely supported by friends in Ireland, but owing to the state of financial embarrassment in which many of them have been placed during the last two years, they are not now able to continue their support. The committee therefore appeal to English friends to help them to clear off a debt of £300. The work of the Home has been much blessed in the past, and many soldiers have expressed gratitude for the help afforded. Subscriptions will be thankfully received by Major-General G. BUTLER STONEY, 72, Waterloo-road, Dublin, Honorary Treasurer.

WORKING LADS' INSTITUTE.—From the fact that nearly 1000 boys have attended the Whitechapel Institute to spend their evenings during the last year, it is clear that they appreciate the efforts made on their behalf. The work has long been hindered for want of increased accommodation. A site and design for a new building have now been selected capable of holding 1000 members, at an estimated cost of £8450, of which £1000 has been subscribed. A further sum of £2000 must be raised before the committee can commence the building. Contributions will be thankfully received by the Hon. Secretary, Mr. H. HILL, Junr., 38, Bow-lane, E.C.

CHILDREN'S AID AND REFUGE FUND.—A pressing appeal is made by the secretary of this fund for help. There is a large class of destitute and neglected children whom neither School Board nor any Government organisation has yet been able to reach, and during the past year by means of this fund the committee have been able to assist in the rescue and in the maintenance of five thousand children. They are placed in Industrial Homes where they receive training in trades as well as elementary education, and are thus saved from leading a life of crime and becoming an expense to the country in gaols and workhouses. £2000 is required at once to meet expenses. Contributions may be sent to Mr. A. J. S. MADDISON, 32, Charing-cross, S.W.

IRON ROOM WANTED.—For the promotion of Evangelistic and other work in this place we are in great and pressing want of proper accommodation. We have been doing our best to forward such work for many years, but have been largely hindered by having to shift from place to place, and often having to meet in places not at all inviting or suitable. If we could obtain an Iron House at a not very large sum of money, it would be a great boon to the work, as well as to the whole district. Our district is poor in worldly goods as well Divine light, but we would make a great effort to raise money if a suitable meeting-place could be obtained, a house to hold say from 250 to 300 or 350.—Yours faithfully, R. D. BALLANTINE, Whithorn, Wigtownshire, N.B.

By the new law the price of a public-house licence in Nebraska is fixed at £200 for places with more than 10,000 inhabitants, and £100 for smaller towns. Omaha makes £18,000 per annum by the sale of licences, all of which is added to the school fund. Not only does the school fund benefit, but "there are not more than one-third as many drinking places in the State as there were before the new law came into effect, the general result in small towns being to replace a dozen small and ill-conducted saloons with two or three well-kept establishments."

Forthcoming Meetings.

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY'S FORTHCOMING ENGAGEMENTS—1882—Dec. 31 to Jan. 15, 1883, Dublin; Jan. 18 to Feb. 7, Birmingham; Feb. 9 to 18, Belfast; Feb. 20 to 23, Leicester; Feb. 25 to 28, Nottingham; Mar. 1 to 15, Manchester; Mar. 16 to 30, Leeds; Mar. 31 to April 14, Liverpool.

WEEK OF PRAYER, JAN. 7–14.

EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE: Steinway-hall, Lower Seymour-street, Portman-square, at 11.30 each morning. Mon., Jan. 8, address by Ven. Archdeacon Richardson, M.A.; Tues., address by the Rev. C. Clemance, D.D.; Wed., address by the Rev. G. Stringer Rowe; Thurs., address by Rev. Donald Fraser, D.D.; Fri., address by the Rev. J. Bennett, M.A.; Sat., address by the Rev. Thomas Brockway.

The South London Branch of the Alliance have arranged meetings daily during the week:—Mon., at 7 p.m., Metropolitan Tabernacle; Tues., at 7.30 p.m., Lecture-hall, Streatham Hill Congregational Church; Wed., at 7.30 p.m., Lecture-hall, Presbyterian Church, Clapham-road; Thurs., at 7.30 p.m., Lecture-hall, Denmark-place Chapel, Cold Harbour-lane; Fri., at 7.30 p.m., St. Matthew's School-room, Brixton; Sat., at 7 p.m., Lambeth Chapel, Lambeth-road. The addresses will be given by the Revs. C. H. Spurgeon, J. P. Gledstone, Dr. McEwan, Dr. Stanford, N. A. Garland, and John McKenny.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—Meetings will be held in the Council-room of the Centenary-hall, Bishopsgate-street, from 1 to 2 p.m. Mon., address by Rev. G. W. Olver, B.A.; Tues., address by Rev. C. Campe; Wed., address by Rev. A. Sandison; Thurs., address by Rev. J. T. Briscoe; Fri., address by Rev. J. S. Edmond, D.D.; Sat., address by Rev. E. W. Moore, M.A.

CONFERENCE HALL, ECCLESTON-STREET (three minutes walk from Victoria Station).—Meetings for prayer and praise every morning at 11.30; prayer and addresses to believers every evening, except Saturday, at 7.30.

MILDMAY CONFERENCE HALL.—Monday Jan. 8th to Saturday, Jan. 13, at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. The following will give Addresses:—Revs. A. Bax, David Brodie, Gordon Calthrop, Wm. Cuff, John Edmond, Fredk. Greeves, D. B. Hankin, D. A. Herschell, Jas Stephens, E. A. Stuart, F. H. White, J. Wilkinson, Geo. Wilson, and Dr. Lazeron.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales, on due notice Apply, Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-st., Strand, W.C.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any evangelical denomination in London. Apply, Hon.Sec., 30, Surrey-sq., S.E.

THE IRISH EVANGELIZATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

CONVERSION OF ISRAEL.—Meeting for Prayer, at 4, Guildford-place, Russell-square, each Friday at 3 p.m.

MR. ROBINSON WATSON'S ENGAGEMENTS.—Dec. 31 to Jan. 17, 1883, Luton; Jan. 21 to Feb. 7, Sheffield; Feb. 11 to 28, Doncaster; March 4 to 21, Gateshead; March 25 to April 11, Batley; April 15 to May 2, Darlington.

MR. GAWIN KIRKHAM'S ENGAGEMENTS.—Dalston Hall, each Sunday afternoon and evening, and each Thursday evening.

REV. W. HASLAM'S ENGAGEMENTS for January.—Stratton, Hants, Jan. 6; St. Stephen's Leeds, Jan. 20.

MR. HENRY THORNE'S ENGAGEMENTS.—Nine days' Mission at Ampthill, Beds, Jan. 6 to 15. Branches of the Y.M.C.A. desiring to arrange for Missions, or friends wishing to arrange for Missions with a view to the formation of branches, should communicate with Mr. H. Thorne, Millhill-road, Derby.

Y.M.C.A., THE PRIORY, 198, Upper-street, N.—Thursday, Jan. 4, 8.30 p.m., Address. Sat., Jan. 8, Bible Study. Sun., Jan. 9, 9.30 a.m. Early Prayers; 3.15 p.m., New Year's Address, W. Edwyn Shipton, Esq.; 8.30 p.m., Evangelistic Meeting. Wed., 6 to 10, this time is devoted to anxious Sons and Strangers.

——— West Branch, Burlington-hall, 23, Savile-row. New Year's Services for Young Men. New Year's Address. Rev. J. E. Rogers, B.A., Thursday, Jan. 4, at 8.30 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 7, 3.15 p.m., a meeting for prayer and consecration, conducted by Lord Radstock. Prayer Meetings and Classes as usual.

——— North-West Branch, Stafford Rooms, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, W. Mr. Henry Varley will address Young Men on Sunday, Jan. 7, at 3.15 p.m., and on Jan. 8 to 12, at 8.30 each evening.

CONFERENCE HALL, MILDMAY PARK.—Jan. 7, at 3.30 p.m., Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7 p.m., Mr. C. Russell Hurditch.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—During January, Sun., 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Mr. Denham Smith; also at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, W., Wednesday, at 8 p.m.

EXETER HALL.—Each Sunday evening in January, at 7 p.m. Addresses by Mr. Henry Varley.

UNION HALL MISSION, Union Hall, Carlisle-street, Edgware-road.—John McCall will lecture on "The Tabernacle of Israel" on Thursday evenings, Jan. 11 and 18, at 8 o'clock. Christians invited.

STRANGERS' REST, 163, St. George-street. Monthly Workers' Meeting, Thursday, Jan. 4, 1883. Rev. J. Stephens, of Highgate-road, will give an address; subject, "Occupy till I come." Tea 6 p.m., meeting 7 p.m.

THE "MERCHANT'S LECTURE," Weigh House Chapel, Fish-street-hill.—Lecturer for January, Rev. Dr. Allon. Tues., at 12 noon.

THE DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—Stafford Rooms, Tichborne-street Edgware-road, on Friday, January 5, at 3.30 p.m., Mr. Haig Miller, subject, "The Rest Giver."

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.—Mr. Banaster at Newport, Salop, from Jan. 3, at Salisbury, Feb. 12 to 18; Mr. Spiers at Newton Abbot; Mr. Seyler at All Saints' Schools, Muriel-street, Caledonian-road, N., Jan. 8 to 12; Mr. Attenborough at Mansfield-street, Schools, Borough, Jan. 1 to 6; Mr. E. T.M. Dennes at Carshalton, Jan. 8 to 12, inclusive.

STEPNEY MEETING HOUSE, Spring Garden Place, E.—Mrs. G. S. Reaney will give an Address to Men and Women every Sunday, at 3 p.m.

MILDMAY MISSION TO THE JEWS.—The annual meetings for praise and prayer, Monday, Jan. 8, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., No. 6 Room, Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, N., addresses by Revs. Gordon Calthrop, D. A. Herschell, Frank H. White, and Dr. M. Laseron.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W. Friday, Jan. 5. Meetings at 10.30 a.m. and 4 p.m., and at 7 p.m. for prayer and praise, specially for means to carry on the Lord's work in all nations, and for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit on all workers. Dr. Boardman and others will take part. Tea at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 9, at 11.30 a.m., Bible Reading by Miss Mason; subject, "The Coming Kingdom." Wednesday, Jan. 10, at 3.30 p.m., an address by Rev. J. Monro Gibson, D.D.

MEETINGS FOR PROMOTION OF HOLINESS.—Mrs. Boardman's Bible-class at 11.30 a.m., every Wed. Rev. W. E. Boardman Tues. at 3, Rochester-sq., Camden-rd., 6 p.m., Conversational meetings, 7 p.m. Bible reading. 1st Tues., each month, afternoon meeting at 3.30.—Surrey Chapel, Blackfriars-road, Sat. 7.30 p.m., Rev. B. Senior presiding.—Every Mon., at 7.30 p.m., at 39, Park-lane-terrace, Albion-rd., Stoke Newington (Mildmay-park Station).—Bethshan, 10, Draytonpark, Highbury, Sun., 6.30 p.m.; Wed., 3 p.m., Holiness and Healing.—At 5, Northampton-place, Upper Holloway-road, N., Thursday, 7.30 p.m.

EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—"The Oxford" Music Hall, 6, Oxford-street, W.: Sunday, at 7 p.m., Mr. Geo. Tonkins, Mornington Hall, corner of Granby-street, Hampstead-rd.; Sun. at 7 p.m., and Tues. at 8 p.m., Mr. Herbert B. Francis, Kilburn Hall, Kilburn-gate (not Town Hall): Sun., 7 p.m., and Wed., 7.30 p.m., Mr. W. R. Lane, Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock Hill; Sun. at 7 p.m., and Thurs. at 7.30 p.m., Mr. Geo. Hucklesby, Temple of Varieties, King-street, Hammersmith: Sunday, 3.30 p.m. and 7 p.m. Anchor Mission Room (Upper Room), late Anchor Assembly Rooms, King-street, Hammersmith: Tues. and Thurs., 8 p.m., Mr. J. J. Scroggie. Bignold Hall, Bignold-road, Station-road, Forest-gate: Sunday, 7 p.m., and Wednesday, 8 p.m., Mr. F. C. Spurr. Wed., 6.30 to 7.30 p.m., Children's Service. Omega Hall, Omega-place, Alpha-road, Regent's-park: Sun. at 3.30 and 7 p.m., Tues. and Fri. at 8 p.m., Mr. J. Sprunt and others. 190, Alexandra-road, St. John's-wood: Wed. at 10.30 a.m., Prayer-meeting for workers. Dalston Hall, Dalston-lane, near the Junction; Sun., 3.15 p.m. (subject, Nehemiah), and at 7 p.m. Mr. J. E. Jack; every Tues. at 8 p.m., special lectures by Mr. Geo. Hucklesby, on "The Tabernacle in the Wilderness," illustrated by a model and diagrams; every Thurs. at 8 p.m., Mr. J. E. Jack.

Subscriptions received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Saturday Morning, December 30, 1882.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the Missions to which they wish their donations to be applied. Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Saturday Morning. Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

	£	s.	d.
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—F. H. S. 2s. 6d.; C. B. 10s.; S. J. K. £1; C. L. T. 10s.; S. N. B. 5s.; J. M. & Mrs. M. 5s.; E. J. £1; M. D. 5s.; G. D. 1s. 6d.; T. C. 5s.; C. E. W. 10s.; J. F. M. G. 6s.	5	0	0
Sermon-lane Mission, Children's Dinners—T. Y.	1	0	0
Sick Children's Dinner Society—C. B. 10s.; J. M. & Mrs. M. 5s.	0	15	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—W. W. 10s.; "Firsdown," £1; E. J. £1; G. D. 5s.; A. W. V. 10s.; J. F. M. G. 10s.; "Cannes," £4 8s. 10d.; J. C. P. 10s.	8	13	10
Friendless and Fallen—J. A. R. A. 2s. 6d.; "Firsdown," 10s.; J. M. & Mrs. M. 5s.; C. W. K. £1 1s.; J. R. W. 5s.; W. W. £1; E. M. £1; J. A. I. 7s.; A. C. £1; M. A. B. 2s. 6d.; T. C. 5s.; A. £5; M. G. 10s.; P. M. P. £1; E. R. 10s.; M. E. & M. E. E. £1; M. C. £2; J. P. £1; G. N. 2s.; Mrs. B. 16s. 7d.
Night Refuge—S. D. £2	19	16	7
St. Giles's Christian Mission—M. H. W. £2 10s.; E. J. £1; H. C. 6s.; C. W. K. £1 1s.; D. W. £1; J. R. W. 10s.; A. C. 10s.; T. C. 5s.; E. H. C. 2s. 6d. Prison Mission—J. H. £2; M. H. W. £2 10s.; J. M. 5s.; E. M. 10s. 6d.; J. T. & Son, 10s.; Mrs. M. £1; T. S. 5s. Christmas Dinners—Mrs. M. £1. Christmas Day—J. M. 5s.	15	10	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—E. S., Paris, £1; E. H. C. 2s. 6d.; E. 5s.; "Two brothers," 7s. 6d.; "Firsdown," 10s.; S. N. B. 5s.; J. M. 5s.; E. J. £1; F. C. 10s.; D. W. £5; J. R. W. £1; A. W. V. 10s.; E. M. £1; J. A. I. 7s.; A. C. 10s.; T. C. 5s.; C. J. C. £10; Mrs. M., £5; A. £5; Prov. xxx. 8, 9, 2s. 6d.; J. F. M. G. 5s.; A. 10s.	33	14	6
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—E. S., Paris, £1; W. W. £1; E. 5s.; M. H. W. £5; J. C. P. 5s.; "Firsdown," £1; E. J. £1; C. W. R. £4 4s.; F. C. 10s.; D. W. £5; J. R. W. £1 2s.; A. W. V. £1; J. A. I. 7s.; B. B. S. 5s.; A. C. 10s.; T. C. 5s.; C. J. C. £10; Mrs. M., £5; A. £5; M. G. 10s.; P. M. P. £1; T. H. £5; R. O. C. K. 5s.; Miss T., 5s.; N. M. 2s.; M. E. & M. E. E. £1; E. H. C. 2s. 6d.; M. M. 6d.; "An Invalid," £1 2s. 6d.; "Beta," 10s. New Year's Dinners—J. F. M. G. £1. Ilford Home Land Fund—The Misses C. £1.	54	10	6
Home of Industry—E. S. Paris, £1; M. C. £4; J. C. P. 5s. New Year's Treats to Poor—Miss D. £1 10s. Widows—J. T. & Son, 10s.; The Misses C. £1	8	5	0
Gray's Yard Ragged School and Church—E. S. Paris, £1; S. N. B. 5s.; F. C. 5s.; Mrs. M. £2. Breakfasts—"Berks," 7s. 6d.	3	17	6
Rev. C. J. Whitmore's Work—E. S., Paris	1	0	0
Christmas Help for the Poor—E. 5s.; F. J. M. & M. M. £1; C. F. J. £3 3s.; A. T. Z. £1; "A Friend," 5s.; "An Old Servant," 1s.; S. L. R. £1 1s.; E. S. 5s.; W. G. R. 2s. 6d.; T. C. 5s.; J. F. M. G. 6s.; G. N. 2s.	7	15	6
Dock Labourers' Mission—E. 5s.; W. G. F. T. 10s.; A. U. 2s. Free Meals—T. W. M. £3 7s. 6d.; J. F. M. G. 6s. Free Lodgings—A. B. 2s.; B. B. 10s.; F. H. 2s. 6d.	6	13	0
Miss Leigh's Home, Paris—"Firsdown," £1; "Lee," 5s.; J. R. W. 5s.; A Debtor to Grace," £1; J. F. M. G. 10s.; P. M. P. 10s.	3	10	0
Cow-cross Mission, Poor Children's Dinners—"Firsdown," 10s.; L. A. M. 2s. 6d. Christmas Treat—J. M. 5s.	0	17	6
Homerton Mission—S. N. B. 5s.; J. W. 10s.; H. C. 6s.; C. W. K. £1 1s.; L. N. D. £5; T. C. 5s.; C. J. C. £4. Free Meals—"Firsdown" 10s. Dinners to the Poor—W. E. 2s. 6d.; W. P. 5s. Breakfasts—The Misses C. £1	13	4	6
Miss Sharman's Orphan Home—J. M. & Mrs. M. 5s.; J. C. P. 5s.	0	10	0
Miss Mittendorff's Home—J. M. & Mrs. M. 5s.; A. W. V. 10s.; J. F. M. G. 10s.	1	5	0
Home for Blind Children, Miss Rye—J. M.	0	5	0
Spitalfields Gospel Mission—J. M. 5s.; T. S. 5s.; C. C. 12s. 1d.	1	2	1
Free Distribution of the Scriptures—J. M. 5s. To the Jews—M. D. 5s.; J. R. W. 5s.; Prov. xxx. 8, 9, 2s. 6d.	0	17	6
Field Lane Refuges—A. 2s. 7d.; C. W. K. £1 1s.; F. C. 5s.; M. C. £2. Free Breakfasts—J. B. L. 10s.	3	18	7
Midnight Meeting Movement—Isa S. £5; F. C. 5s. A. A. R. 10s.; P. M. P. £1; W. £5; E. J. F. £1 10s.	13	5	0
Bird's Nest Mission, Dublin—M. D. 5s.; Prov. xxx. 8, 9, 2s. 6d.	0	7	6
Gratuitous Circulation of THE CHRISTIAN—M. D. 5s.; J. V. S. £7 10s.	7	15	0
Rev. R. W. McAll's Work, Paris—"Lee"	0	5	0
Drury-lane Christian Mission—C. W. K.	1	1	0
East London Mission—C. W. K. £1 1s.; J. R. W. 5s.; "An Invalid," 2s. 6d. Free Meals—Mrs. P. £2; A. H. P. 1s.	3	9	6
George Yard Ragged School—F. C. 5s.; J. R. W. 5s. L. C. 5s.; C. J. C. £3; M. C. £4. Dinners—J. F. M. G. 6s.	8	1	0
Syrian Colonisation Fund—L. N. D.	5	0	0
Miss Arnott's Work, Jaffa—D. W.	2	0	0
Army Scripture Readers' Society—D. W. £2; E. H. C. 2s. 6d.	2	2	6
Bristol Orphan Houses—J. R. W. £1; A. W. V. £1; P. M. P. 10s.	2	10	0
China Inland Mission—J. R. W. £1 1s. 6d.; K. G. 10s.	1	11	6
Stockwell Orphanages—J. R. W.	0	10	0
Evangelistic Mission—J. R. W. 10s.; Mrs. M. £1. Free Meals—Mrs. L. S. £2; Mrs. M., £1; "The Misses C.," £1	5	10	0
Miss Weston's Work in the Royal Navy—J. R. W.	0	5	0
Mission to Kabyles—A. W. V. £1; J. R. C. 10s.	1	10	0
Miss E. Hopkins' Work—A. W. V.	0	10	0
Miss Daniell's Soldiers' Home—"Proceeds of Mission Basket,"	2	0	0
Mrs. Hilton's Creche—B. B. S. 5s.; T. C. 5s.; Mrs. M. £5; J. F. M. G. 5s.; J. C. P. 10s.	6	5	0
Cancer Hospital, Brompton—"A Debtor to Grace"	1	0	0
West-end Hospital for Paralysed Children—T. C.	0	5	0
Indigent Blind Visiting Society—T. C.	0	5	0
Cripples' Home, Marylebone-road—T. C.	0	5	0
Miss Lee's Home, Eastbourne—T. C.	0	5	0
Thames Church Mission—J. B. L. £1; Prov. xxx. 8, 9, 2s. 6d.; J. F. M. G. 10s.; G. N. 2s.	1	14	6
Home for Asiatics—J. B. L.	0	10	0
Latymer-road Mission—C. J. C.	3	0	0
London City Mission—W. C.	1	0	0
Presbyterian Church of England Foreign Mission Fund—W. C.	1	0	0
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, E.—H. H. & Co. £1 1s.; Mrs. M. £2; Master R. G. £2; M. & S. £5.	10	1	0
Ladies' Samaritan Society—J. F. M. G.	0	5	0
Ragged School Union—J. F. M. G.	0	6	0
Home for Worn-out Governesses—P. M. P.	1	0	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—Miss T. 10s.; "Beta," 10s.	1	0	0
East London Training Institute—The Misses C. £1; J. C. P. 10s.	1	10	0
Mrs. Mumford's Work, Philippopolis—The Misses C.	1	0	0
Bassim Mission—The Misses C.	1	0	0
Chinese Girls' School (Miss Cooke, Singapore)—J. R. C.	0	10	0
Rescue Work, Poplar (Mrs. Wilkes)—E. H. C.	1	0	0
Mrs. H. Moorhouse—"Cannes"	5	0	0
Work at Bethlehem, Society for Promoting Female Education in the East—M. M. 6d.; W. £5; G. N. 1s. 6d.	5	2	0
Evangelical Mission to Israel—M. M.	0	0	6
Homes for Working Girls—M. C.	5	0	0
Woman's Mission to Women—M. C.	2	0	0
Bosnian Orphanage—(Miss Johnson) "An Invalid".	1	0	0
Society for the Suppression of Juvenile Smoking—"An Invalid"	0	5	0
Bloomsbury Refuges—J. C. P.	0	5	0
Mrs. Meredith's Work—J. C. P.	0	5	0
Soldiers Institute, Portsmouth—J. C. P.	0	5	0
Mr. Knowles' Work, Shoreditch—C. C.	0	12	1
	£301	10	8

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Dr. Barnardo's Homes—L. N. 10s.; S. L. & E. L. 10s.

School and Mission House, Bethlehem—E. M. 5s.

Miss Whately's Soldiers' Coffee-room, Cairo—Prov. iii. 17, 10s.

Richmond-street (Walworth) Mission, Christmas Dinners—"A Friend," 10s.

Ratcliff "Bridge of Hope"—Miss Steer gratefully acknowledges the following anonymous contributions from readers of THE CHRISTIAN—W. R. £5; 10d.; £1 5s.; C. J. C. 5s.; A Friend, £5; A Reader of THE CHRISTIAN, 5s.

The "Anchorage"—Colonel Stuart Wortley (as President of the Mission) acknowledges with many thanks receipt of a Bank of England note for £50, sent to him by an anonymous donor.—Rosslyn House, Grove End-road, N.W., Dec. 28.

Evangelistic Mission (Per C. R. H.)—Christmas offering from a Mother and Daughter (5), £1; C. P. (1) £1; J. K. 5s.; Anon. (Shrewsbury), 5s.; E. N. 3s.; 13, L. P. P., Kensington, 2s. 6d.; A Friend (Dumfries), 2s. 6d.; F. C. (5) 2s. 6d.; Henry F. (5) 2s. 6d.; Anon. stamps (5), 2s.; Anon. (6), 1s.; M. M. (Ashbourne), 1s.; Anon. (Deal), 1s.; Anon. (Batley), 1s.; Anon. (Lutterworth), 1s.; B (Lewisham) (5), 5s.; Anon. 1s. 6d.; Anon. (Surbiton), 1s.; Anon. (5) 1s.

WHO WILL HELP?

Mrs. MEREDITH is offered £500, or £1000, by a most liberal contributor, on condition that three sums of £500, or sums of any amount that make up £2000, be guaranteed, within two months, which have nearly expired.

If this money could be obtained, very much might be done to ease the severe strain on her work that many inconveniences cause.

The Village Homes are still unfinished, and the deficiencies are such as greatly to hinder the carrying out of the whole plan of the training of the children.

MRS. MEREDITH'S RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LABOUR, CHRISTMAS NUMBER, may be had from NINE ELMS HOUSE, Wandsworth-road, S.W. Post free, 1s.

SISTERS IN COUNCIL,

Report of Conference, Christian Women's Union, 1882, held in Brighton, price 1s., by post 1s. 2d.,

May be had from the Office, 73, South Lambeth-rd, S.W.; and from the Publishers,

J. F. SHAW & CO., 48, PATERNOSTER ROW.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY INSTITUTE, Educational Branch, Bethcar, Addlestone, Surrey; President, Mrs. MEREDITH; Hon. Secs., Miss C. G. CAVENDISH, Miss M. A. LLOYD. "The Lord gave the word: the women that published it were a great company."—Psalm lxviii. 11.

STUDENTS preparing for Mission Work admitted to BIBLE CLASSES, and literary instruction in connection with PRACTISING SCHOOL.

Classes re-open (D.V.) on Monday, Jan. 15, 1883.

Charge for board and instruction, £2 10s. a month, in advance.

Personal interview indispensable. Address Hon. Secs.

THE ANCHORAGE.

Hebrews vi. 19.

SPECIAL BRANCH of the MISSION OF HOPE AND HELP.

For the reception of the more respectable class of young women in trouble.

Conversion of heart, according to the simple Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, is the one thing prayerfully and faithfully sought.

The young women are fitted for resuming their position in life, by thorough instruction in household duties, cookery, dressmaking, fine laundry work, &c. &c.

A full description of the work of the Mission, with regulations for admission to the "Anchorage," will be sent on application by letter to Mrs. H. STUART-WORTLEY, Rosslyn House, Grove End Road, N.W. (President of the Ladies' Committee), to whom, or to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, subscriptions may be sent.

CHRISTMAS GIFT FOR BETHLEHEM.

A simple School and Mission House is urgently needed by the Ladies at work at BETHLEHEM, of which the estimated cost is under £2000. The land has been purchased, and 600 are in hand towards the building. Will not those who are now rejoicing that Jesus was born at Bethlehem, gladly make up the sum still deficient, at this season of Christmas? Contributions will be thankfully received by MISS M. A. HALDANE, 118, Westbourne-terrace, Hyde-park, W.

MISS E. RUTT, Lower Clapton, E.

MISS STIRLING, 77, Cadogan-place, S.W.

MISS WEBB, 267, Vauxhall-bridge-road, S.W.

Secretaries of "The Society for Promoting Female Education in the East."

FIELD LANE REFUGES for the HOMELESS POOR,

VINE STREET, CLERKENWELL ROAD, E.C.,

Training Homes for Destitute Boys and Girls.

President—THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

THIS INSTITUTION maintains 300 of the "DESTITUTE." Holds Religious Services for the Outcast and Homeless.
Gives FREE BREAKFASTS on Lord's Day Mornings to 500 of the HOMELESS POOR attending the GOSPEL SERVICE.
450 POOR MOTHERS helped weekly. A CRECHE is much wanted to further assist these DESERVING MOTHERS, who would thus be HELPED TO WORK if their Infants could be taken care of. WE HAVE THE SPACE, BUT NO FUNDS TO FIT IT UP!
Provides FREE DINNER for 150 CHILDREN four days a week.
FUNDS VERY URGENTLY NEEDED to meet expenses.

Donations, &c., will be thankfully received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of "THE CHRISTIAN," 12, Paternoster-buildings; the Treasurer, W. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; and Messrs. RANSOME & Co., 1, Pall Mall East; or by the Undersigned,

PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary at the Refuges, as above.

HENRY MOORHOUSE,

The English Evangelist.

By Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON.

With Lithographed Portrait.

Handsomely bound in cloth, bevelled boards, 2/6.

"The record is full of interesting incidents from which counsel and encouragement may be gathered; and we heartily commend it to the attention of those who would know what may be done by workers somewhat off the ordinary recognised lines."—The Rock.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And of all Booksellers.

BIBLE READINGS,

By HENRY MOORHOUSE.

Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.

"We do not wonder that those who heard Moorhouse's Bible Readings found them full of power and suggestion. To him the Word of God was a sword—the only one worth using in spiritual warfare."—Liverpool Courier.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And of all Booksellers.

RUTH, THE MOABITESS.

A Series of Bible Readings on The Book of Ruth.

By HENRY MOORHOUSE.

"Contains many fresh and original remarks, all tending to practical usefulness; a capital sixpennyworth of commenting on a favourite book."—Sword and Trowel.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow." ISAIAH i. 18.

This striking Text, Pictorially Illustrated, price 6d., post-free 7d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Christian Abstinence.

An Extract from an Address.

By HUGH M. MATHESON, Esq.

Reprinted from THE CHRISTIAN.

"I have to mingle with a very large number of young men in connection with Young Men's Christian Associations and other movements; and it is exceedingly important to be able to lead on right lines, of which they will never be ashamed, the younger members of the community who are to take our places when we are gone. And while we cannot guarantee the stability of any one, there is a very clear and distinct plan to avoid falling into habits of intemperance; and that is—to take NO ALCOHOLIC DRINK."—Extract.

Price 1s. 6d. per 100. 12s. 6d. per 1000.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"LIFTED UP." The Life of Walter Douglas. With Frontispiece. Paper covers. Price 6d. Cloth, 1s.

"In its perusal we were cheered and delighted, for here are records of the marvels of grace."—Latter Rain.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

Now Ready, Four Pages 4to., price 2s. per 100; 18s. 6d. per 1,000.

A NEW YEAR'S GIFT FOR 1883.

A Collection of Gospel Invitations, Tender Warnings, and Earnest Exhortations, in Prose and Poetry.

STRIKINGLY ILLUSTRATED.

CONTENTS.

WHAT ARE YOU GOOD FOR? A Question for the New Year. (Will full-page Illustration.)	CALL ON CHRIST.
	COME. (Poetry.)
	THE KNOWLEDGE OF GOD.
A NEW YEAR'S HYMN. (Poetry.)	CARVING A NAME. (Illustrated.)
REST ON THE SABBATH.

The "NEW YEAR'S GIFT" is issued for the purpose of enabling Christians to send their unconverted friends and acquaintances a few loving words appropriate to the season, by which they may see their sad condition, and turn to Him who alone is able to pardon and cleanse. The present issue bears an attractive appearance, and it is hoped that, with the Divine blessing, many may be led, through its short, pointed appeals, to surrender their hearts to Christ.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

In Handsomely Illuminated Covers. Price One Shilling.

The Herald of Mercy

VOLUME FOR 1882.

Profusely Illustrated.

The Yearly Volume of the "Herald of Mercy" is a rich storehouse of stirring Narratives, Sketches of Real Life, Solemn Warnings, Tender Invitations, Poetry, &c.; and, being bound in a neat and attractive cover, will be found a suitable book either for lending or giving away. "THE CHILDREN'S PAGE" forms a feature of this year's volume: twelve pages are devoted to short stories and poems specially adapted to youthful minds

"Contains many simple and touching evangelistic papers, largely illustrated by anecdotes."—The Friend.

"This is one of the most attractive as well as affective magazines of a purely evangelistic nature we have ever seen. The fulness of God's mercy, the blessedness of accepting and the danger of rejecting it, are most strikingly set forth by narrative, appeal, illustration, and poetry. The pictures are admirable."—Wesleyan Methodist Magazine.

"We know of nothing better for a Sunday-school reward or present to cottagers. Rich and poor alike may read it with profit."—United Methodist Free Churches Magazine.

"The yearly volume contains much excellent reading, well calculated to call attention to the most important of all topics."—The Rock.

"Really a valuable collection of interesting and instructive matter, well calculated to be widely useful."—Good Templars' Watchword.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ONE PENNY. 12 Copies and Upwards sent Post Free. 7s. per 100.

"The Christian" Almanack

FOR 1883.

WITH SEVEN STRIKING ILLUSTRATIONS.

Grandmother's Bibles.	"Little Children, Love One Another."
A Train Delayed by Prayer	Are you Safe?
Harvest Time.	Doing Good.
Little Sermons.

"The Christian" Almanack, in addition to the above illustrations, contains a carefully-selected Text of Scripture for each day in the year, and Descriptive Letterpress for all the Engravings. Also Postal Regulations, Changes of the Moon, &c. &c., and is an attractive Almanack for the Walls of Mission Hall or Cottage.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Attractively bound in White and Gold, price 2s. 6d., post free.

MARRIAGE AND HOME.

A VOLUME OF KINDLY COUNSELS TO THE NEWLY MARRIED.

"A marriage gift, to show the nature of marriage in the Lord, and to help young husbands and wives to live together unto Him in all things. A very neat little book."—British Messenger.

"Full of wise counsel and Christian teaching. There is certainly no better book for a bridal present."—The Freeman.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WORKS BY D. L. MOODY.

Power from on High; or, The Secret of Success in Christian Life and Christian Work. By D. L. MOODY. TWELFTH THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"This series of earnest and solemn Addresses bear throughout that stamp of honest, eager earnestness, which is so striking a characteristic of the writer's labours as a preacher."—Clerical World.

"Every page is full of stimulating thought for Christian Workers."—Commonwealth.

"A stirring and timely little book, by the American preacher, Mr. Moody. It is a good statement of the secret of success in Christian life and work, by one who has some claim to speak on such a theme."—The Outlook.

Addresses by D. L. Moody. Revised.

HUNDRED AND FIRST THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"With the effect of these Addresses when spoken the whole land is acquainted, and now that they are written they will tend to keep in force the impression they have already made. The book is clearly printed, on good paper, is handy in form, and is sure of a wide circulation."—Primitive Methodist.

The Faithful Saying. A Series

of Addresses. By D. L. MOODY. EIGHTH THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Fresh, direct, pictorial, and powerful; they are admirable examples of the readiest way to reach the hearts of men with the truths of Christ."—General Baptist Magazine.

"These discourses are full of power and homely beauty, and exemplify very fully the strong points of the great evangelist. Nothing surprises us more in Mr. MOODY than his marvellous power of illustration. His anecdotes are so fresh, so pointed, and touching."—King's Highway.

Heaven; Its Hopes, its Inhabitants, its Riches, its Rewards. By D. L. MOODY. THIRTY-SECOND THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Practical, full of anecdotes and point, and in many circles calculated to be of much service."—The Friend.

"Scattered throughout this volume are many direct home-thrusts at fashionable follies, many sharp rebukes of unrighteousness, much serious and urgent exhortations to Christliness of life, and many solemn warnings of the sad consequences of disregarding the love and mercy of the Saviour."—Primitive Methodist.

The Second Coming of Christ.

By D. L. MOODY. EIGHTH THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 4d.; Cloth Limp, 6d.

CHEAP EDITION, for General Distribution, 2s. per dozen.

"The moment a man takes hold of the truth that Jesus is coming back again to receive his followers to Himself, this world loses its hold upon him. Gas stocks, and water stocks, and stocks in banks and railroads, are of very much less consequence to him then. His heart is free, and he looks for the blessed appearing of his Lord, who, at his coming, will take him into his blessed Kingdom."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Handsome Gift Books.

THE UNDERMENTIONED EDITIONS OF

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,

BOUND IN MOROCCO.

(Nos. 1 & 2 Combined, containing 441 Hymns).

SUNG BY IRA D. SANKEY,

	WORDS ONLY.	s.	d.
3 C.	Medium Type Edition	2	6
4 D.	Foolscap 8vo. ditto	4	6
4 E.	Extra Large Type ditto	5	6
	MUSIC AND WORDS.
5 F.	Old Notation	8	6
6 F.	Ditto Morocco, flexible, kid-lined	12	6
4 H.	Ditto (in smaller Type)	5	6
5 H.	Ditto Ditto Morocco, flexible, kid-lined	10	6
5 G.	TONIC SOL-FA, Morocco, ...	3	6

LONDON:

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

(Continued from page 3.)

HYDROPATHY.—Dr. OWEN'S establishment, "The Arboretum," Leamington. The mansion is built on gravel, and heated throughout by warm air, which makes it a perfect winter residence for visitors and patients. Electric and all other baths.

INTEMPERANCE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, &c.—Private Home for limited number of Ladies, in a desirable Winter locality. Experienced medical treatment. Christian influence, judicious supervision, and home comforts. MEDICUS, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

HASTINGS, Castle House.—Select boarding establishment. Land and sea views. Sheltered situation. Three minutes from sea. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Apply to the Misses BIRD and FINDER.

LOWESTOFT.—Wanted Board and Lodging in a Christian family for a young person engaged in National School work, at 10s. 6d. per week. B., Mr. Ingham, Chemist, Upper Tooting, S.W.

GENTLEMAN'S CONVENIENT FURNISHED COTTAGE, eight rooms, large garden; near station. 18s. weekly during winter. —A. C. LOVEYS, Estate Agent, Moretonhampstead, Devon.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Private Boarding House. South aspect, facing the sea. Specially suited to Invalids and delicate people during the winter months. Excellent references. For terms address— Miss SMITH, Cleve House, 79, Marina.

WORTHING, facing the Sea.—Board and Residence in a Christian family. Every home comfort, liberal table. H. H., 5, Marine-parade, Worthing, Sussex.

COMFORTABLE HOME for one or two Ladies in the country house of a widow lady and her daughters. Near church and station. Terms moderate. References exchanged. M. C., Post Office, Barmouth, N. Wales.

BRIGHTON.—Board and residence in a quiet, superior home, near the sea. West Pier and Lawns. Terms moderate. Miss B., 3, Brunswick-road, Hove, Brighton.

HENLEY-ON-THAMES. — To be Let, furnished drawing room, and two or three bed-rooms, with or without attendance, in a Christian family; with use of nice large garden. Also sitting and two bed rooms and use of kitchen. Furnished or unfurnished.—For particulars apply to C. OPPERMANN, Bell-street, Henley-on-Thames.

WORTH NOTICE.—Detached six-roomed House, charmingly situated. Rent, £20 per annum. Suit retired tradesman, seeking pure air and good scenery. Also, Furnished Marine Bungalow, 25s. per week.—York House Boarding Establishment, Sandown, Isle of Wight.

KONIGSHEIM, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—A temporary residence for Lady Christian workers, or those engaged in tuition, who wish to make a short stay in a quiet Christian home, at a pleasant watering-place.—Further particulars to be obtained from the LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

BRIGHTON.—Visitors will find the comforts of home in a small, select Boarding House, centrally situated, close to the sea. Cyprus House, West-street.

Apartments, &c., Wanted.

AN ELDERLY LADY of limited income, wishes a home in a Christian boarding-house, or family, where she will receive kindness and consideration. A. S., May's, 159, Piccadilly, London.

WILL ANY CHRISTIAN let, for small rent, a house in the north of London, containing eight bed-rooms, to a Christian family that has had great reverses, and been driven from their home in Ireland? Greatest care will be taken of the furniture. Good references. A. B. C., 33, Knowle-road, Brixton, London.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian again earnestly invites such to write. EVANGELIST Clapham, S.W.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a remedy for affording immediate relief. C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

SEATS! SEATS!! SEATS!!! A want, long felt, supplied. Cheap, strong, comfortable seats, for Mission Services, &c., &c. Stained and varnished, made to suit any building; also every description of joinery work. Prices quoted. Carriage paid to any town.—F. ALDERTON, Builder and Contractor, Union-road, Cambridge.

PORTRAITS.—Friends and deceased relatives faithfully painted in oils. One guinea and upwards Highest testimonials post free. Send approved Photograph.—G. R. GILL, 26, Leighton-road, London, N.W.

GOSPEL BOOKS for the unsaved requested. Eight visiting districts; same books would suit each district, exchanged monthly. Will be thankfully received by Rev. LEWIS WEAVER, Ruyton-XI-Towns, Salop.

ORDERS ANXIOUSLY SOLICITED for following Imported Bulbs: Tulips, 6d. to 1sd. (choice); Gladioli, 8d. to 1s.; Anemones, finest mixed, 7½d.; Scarlet, 4½d. All per dozen. SIMCOX, 138, Severn-road, Cardiff.

SMALL ORGAN for sale.—One manual; six stops; one octave of pedals; three composition pedals. Price £30, or, offers solicited. —Apply 23, Thornhill-place, Caledonian-road, N.

A GOOD AMERICAN ORGAN required on reasonable terms (purchase) for a Mission Hall. Apply by letter only to A.B., 75, Cornwall-road, London, W.

THE SELF-ADJUSTING BLUE RIBBON BADGE.—This Badge adjusts itself to the hem or button-hole of the garment by simple pressure of the fingers on the clip, and can be easily removed from one garment to another. It is at once the most durable, simple, and perfect Blue Ribbon Badge, combining neatness, cheapness, and durability. Sample gross free per post for 3s. on application to PLAYER BROTHERS, Newhall-street, Birmingham.

PIANOFORTE by Collard & Collard.—Sweet-toned, full compass cottage trichord, cost 64 guineas, to be sold for 35 guineas. Another in walnut, 23 guineas. American Organ, 11 stops, rich tone, 26 guineas. Beautiful condition; sent on approval. Real bargains.—Gloucester House, Bowes-park, N.

FRANCIS' BRONCHIAL PROTECTOR
Registered.
For BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, TIGHT BREATHING, all THROAT COMPLAINTS. } SURE REMEDY
Mr. J. D. Fisher, Chemist, Blackpool, says:—"I have tried it myself, and have received great benefit from it. My customers speak highly of its virtues." Of Chemists, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., or 1or Stamps sent to FRANCIS & CO., Belgrave Gate, LEICESTER

Publications.

GOSPEL TRACTS BY CHEYNE BRADY.

The near return of the Lord Jesus Christ. Seventeenth Thousand. 1d. each.
London:
S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.
The Same in French.
Paris: BONHOURE, 48, Rue de Lille.
The Same in German.
Tract Depot, Gernsbach, Baden.
It is Wonderful! 1½d per dozen.
The Substitute. 2d. per dozen.
Alice; or, The Deathbed of a Ritualist. 3d. per dozen.
The Two Fortunes. 3d. per dozen.
The Wasp's Sting. 3d. per dozen.
The Fox-hunter. 1s. per 100.
The Woman who "Spent all that she had." 1s. per 100.
Out of the Pit. 4d. per dozen.
The Life-belt. 4d. per dozen.
Who'll have you when you Die? 4d. per dozen.
What can we do for China? 6d. per dozen.
Where is your Anchor cast? 1s. per 100.
The Two Students; or, "Ye must be Born again." 1d.
Which is the Best Security? 6d. per dozen.
No Hope; or, Future Punishment Eternal. 1s. per dozen.
"Wash and be Clean." 1d. each.
A Sure Foundation. 6d. per dozen.
London:
S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.
The Two Preachers and The One Text. 6d. per dozen.
An "Almost" Christian. 1d. each.
Glory—What is It? 2s. per 100.
Refuges of Lies. 1s. per 100.
"Something after Death." 1s. per 100.
Constraining Love. 6d. per dozen.
The Painter and Child; or, There is no Difference. 1s. 9d. per 100.
A Remedy for Every Evil; or, The Precious Blood of Christ. 1s. 9d. per 100.
London:
HAWKINS, 36, Baker-st. and 21, Paternoster-sq.
Right About; or, Repentance. 1s. 8d. per 100.
London: JARROLD, 3, Paternoster-buildings.

THE JANUARY PART
OF
The Christian
Containing the whole of the December Numbers, in neat Wrapper. Price 5d.; post-free 7d.

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings,
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Just Published.

BIRTHDAY CARDS,
By Mrs. DANIEL TOMKINS, Author of "Hymns for Quiet Hours," Christmas cards, &c., beautifully illustrated, with English
WILD FLOWERS.
In packets, each containing eight cards (eight varieties), 1s. each, of all booksellers and stationers, or 1s. 1d. by post of Mrs. D. TOMKINS, Great Yarmouth. Published by Messrs. E. BOLLAND & Co., Leamington and London.

NEW YEAR'S BOOKS FOR 1883,
With Covers beautifully printed in Chromo-Lithography, 32 pages. One Penny each, or 1s. per dozen.

DO IT NOW: A New Year's Motto. By the Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A., Wolverhampton.

BE IN TIME: A New Year's Address to the Young. By J. FORBES MONCRIEFF.

GOSPEL BOOKS, with Covers beautifully printed in Chromo-Lithography. By the Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. In Two Packets, 6d. each. Packet I. contains:—1. Do It Now. 2. The Four Locks. 3. Crossing the Bridge. 4. The Heavenly Ladder. 5. The Door Open and the Door Shut. 6. Deepen the Well.
Packet II. contains:—7. All for Christ. 8. Shine as Lights. 9. The Blood More Precious than Gold. 10. Nearer to Thee. 11. The Four Alls. 12. A Christian's Prayer in Six Words.

BLUE RIBBON SERIES. Twelve little 8-page Books, Illustrated, Tinted Paper. By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. Packet of 50, assorted, 6d.

WELCOME TO JESUS. Four-page Floral Tracts, with beautiful design, printed in Chromo-Lithography, on first page. By C. H. SPURGEON. Two Packets of 32 Tracts each 6d. per Packet.

CROWN SERIES. Twelve Illustrated Little Books, 16 pages, Tinted paper. Packet of one each, 6d.

ARMY SERIES.—Six Illustrated Little Books for Soldiers, 16 pages, Tinted paper. Packet of 12, assorted, 6d.

COURT LEAFLETS. On thick cream-coloured paper, with coloured border, 4 pages. Packet III., 50 copies, assorted, 6d.

COME TO JESUS. Four-page floral Tracts, with beautiful design printed in Chromo-Lithography on first page. Two packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per packet.

THE SINNER'S FRIEND. Four-page Floral Tracts, as above. Two packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per packet.

THE CHRISTIAN SOLDIER. Thoughts suggested by the War. By Rev. A. R. M. FINLAYSON, Alderley Edge. 32 pages. Price 1d

Illustrated Monthly Periodicals.

THE BRITISH MESSENGER. Price 1d.
THE GOSPEL TRUMPET. Price ½d., or 3s. 6d. per 100.
GOOD NEWS. Price ½d., 3 for 1d., or 2s. 6d. per 100.
The three Periodicals for one year 2s. 6d.
DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling, N.B.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

Terms for Advertisements IN "The Christian"
(PREPAID.)

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding 30 Words	3	0
,, 39 ,, ...	3	9
,, 48 ,, ...	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger Advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

To prevent disappointment, it is necessary to say that in no case must Letters be addressed to a Post-office, unless permission be previously obtained at such Post-office.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive and forward Replies to Advertisements.

☞ In order to secure insertion of Advertisements in the following number of THE CHRISTIAN they should reach this office on or before Friday, and at the latest by Saturday Morning first post.

"The Christian."
SUBSCRIPTIONS for 3, 6 or 12 Months.
INCLUDING ANY DOUBLE NUMBERS.

	£	s.	.
13 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage ½d. ..	0	1	9
2 Copies ,, 1d. ..	0	3	5
3 ,, ,, 1½d. ..	0	5	2
4 ,, ,, 2d. ..	0	6	10
26 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage ½d. ..	0	3	5
2 Copies ,, 1d. ..	0	6	10
3 ,, ,, 1½d. ..	0	10	3
4 ,, ,, 2d. ..	0	13	8
52 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage ½d. ..	0	6	10
2 Copies ,, 1d. ..	0	13	8
3 ,, ,, 1½d. ..	1	0	6
4 ,, ,, 2d. ..	1	7	4

Remittances to be made either by Postal Order, or Post Office Order, payable at the General Post Office. Cheques to be crossed "City Bank."

The prices include any Double Numbers that may be issued through the year.

Copies will be continued after the term is expired for which payment has been made, unless instructions are sent to the contrary.

Particulars for FOREIGN SUBSCRIPTIONS can be obtained on application to the Publisher.

Bagster's Bibles
IN FRENCH MOROCCO CIRCUIT. ELASTIC BAND. Facsimile, Maps, References, Help 4/-

MRS. CRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.
A MISSION TO MANY LANDS.
New varieties suited for the Season at 3s., 2s. 6d., 2s., and 1s. 6d. the 100. Also photographs, lithographs, quilt texts, &c. Nos. 1 and 2, Lighthouse Tracts, 4s. per 100. For list send stamped envelope to Prestwich, Manchester.

Twelfth Edition, Post-free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c., 5, Bulstrode-street, Cavendish-square, London.
London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.
FIDELIA FISKE.
THE RECORD OF A CONSECRATED LIFE
EDITED BY
REV. WM. GUEST.
"A book after our own heart, a veritable history of a consecrated life. Buy it and read it, pray over it and imitate it, is our advice to all, and especially to our sisters in the Lord, who will do well to be followers of her in her faith and patience, her consecration, and self-sacrificing love."—Sword & Trowel.
A SUPERIOR EDITION. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Mr. Fegan's Book
Now Ready.
The HARVEST of the STREETS; or, Our Homes: what they are and how they became so. 44 pp. Price 6d.
Published at THE BOYS HOME, 95, Southwark-street, S.E.

FAITHFUL RECORDS NARRATIVE TRACTS
By Mr. and Mrs. P. H. GOSSE.
A Series of 12 Narrative Tracts,
Specially adapted for Sick-room Visitation.
ATTRACTIVELY BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE 1s. 6d. POST-FREE.
May be had also in Assorted Packet, Price 1s., post-free
MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Sixty different Sorts. In One Volume, neatly bound in cloth, 1s. 6d. post free.
May also be had in Packet containing 60 Tracts, 6d.; in Packet containing 120 Tracts (being two of each kind), 1s. Post-free from the Publishers, or by order of any Bookseller, 6s. 4d. per 1000.
MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

McCALL'S PAYSANDU OX-TONGUES.
IN TINS, READY FOR IMMEDIATE USE.
Sold by all Grocers.

CONSUMPTION

AND ALL OTHER

CHEST DISEASES.

Mr. G. T. CONGREVE'S NEW WORK.

POST FREE SIXPENCE, or LARGE EDITION, 1s. (Post Free 1s. 3d.), from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, PATERNOSTER ROW; or from the AUTHOR, COOMBE LODGE, PECKHAM, S.E.

THE Editor of the Christian Age says:—"THIS MARVELLOUS WORK touches the sympathies of human hearts everywhere." "Here is hope for the despairing."

ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES ARE GIVEN IN THE BOOK.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"

WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will select ONE (at least) recent case, not published before, for publication in this Journal every week.

Case for this Week.

CASE OF A GENTLEMAN AT STROUD.

P. W——, Esq., of Stroud, Gloucestershire, consulted me at Coombe Lodge, by recommendation of a young man, a patient who had found benefit from my advice. On examination, the lungs were very weak and in unsatisfactory condition, especially the right lung, the upper part of which was much obstructed.

There had been delicacy from boyhood, inflammation of the lungs following upon measles, and congested condition from that time until now.

In two months he called upon me again; much better and congestion removed.

In two months I saw him again; he was better still. Ordered to the South of France, to remain until the Spring. A tonic to be taken of phosphate of iron and quinine, &c.

On his return I saw him, and was pleased to find him comparatively well.

In this case there were four interviews and eighteen letters (all letters to patients are duly registered at my rooms).

In a letter from his mother, dated May 15, 1882, writing for some of my books on Consumption, she says: "Mrs. Lindsay Winterbotham begs to inform Mr. Congreve that her son is now in South Australia, and through Mr. Congreve's valuable advice his health is thoroughly re-established."

NOTICE.—The times for personal Consultation at Coombe Lodge, are TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY MORNINGS ONLY (Country patients had better select one of the two former days.) Mr. Congreve's son-in-law, J. Alex. Brown, M.R.C.S., L.S.A., is now associated with him.

GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

Fry's Cocoa

Guaranteed Pure. Extract

"If properly prepared, there is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.

"Strictly pure, and well-manufactured."—W. W. Stoddart.

"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin.

SIXTEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED.

IMPORTANT REDUCTION IN PRICE.

TONGA

FOR

NEURALGIA.

"Invaluable in facial Neuralgia. Has proved effective in all those cases in which we have prescribed it."—Medical Press.

"Tonga maintains its reputation in the treatment of Neuralgia."—Lancet.

Tonga is now sold at 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. Of all Chemists, and of

ALLEN & HANBURYS. Plough Court, Lombard St., London.

BRYANT & MAY'S MATCHES.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS.

(Nos. 1 and 2 Combined, Consisting of 441 Hymns.)

COMPILED BY IRA D. SANKEY,

And sung by him at Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Meetings.

The Book, as now extended and enlarged, forms a specially cheap and comprehensive collection, well adapted for

SUNDAY SCHOOLS, MISSION SERVICES, AND EVANGELISTIC WORK.

IT GIVES NO LESS THAN

441 Hymns for One Penny. Music and Words, 1s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.

		s.	d.
1 A.	Ruby Edition Sewed	0	1
2 A.	" Printed Cloth	0	2
1 B.	Nonpareil Ed. Tinted Covers	0	3
2 B.	" Printed Cloth	0	4
1 C.	Medium Type Limp Cloth	0	6
2 C.	" Cloth Boards	1	0
3 C.	" Morocco	2	6
1 D.	F'cap. 8vo. ed. Tinted Covers	1	0
2 D.	" Limp Cloth	1	6
3 D.	" Cloth Boards	2	0
4 D.	" Morocco	4	6
1 E.	Ex. Large Type Tinted Covers	1	0
2 E.	" Limp Cloth	2	0
3 E.	" Cloth Boards	2	6
4 E.	" Morocco	5	6

MUSIC AND WORDS.

		s.	d.
F.	Old Notation .. Tinted Covers	2	6
F.	" Limp Cloth	3	6
3 F.	" Cloth Boards	4	6
4 F.	" Do. Gilt Edges	5	0
5 F.	" Morocco	8	6
1 G.	Tonic Sol-fa.... Tinted Covers	2	6
2 G.	" ....Limp Cloth	3	6
3 G	" ....Cloth Boards	4	6
4 G.	" ....Gilt Edges	5	0
1 H.	Old Notation. CHEAP EDITION (In Smaller Type) Tinted Covers	1	6
2 H.	Do. ....Limp Cloth	2	0
3 H.	" ....Cloth Boards	2	6
4 H.	" ....Morocco	5	6

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS, No. 2. CHEAP EDITION.

MUSIC AND WORDS. OLD NOTATION.

For the convenience of the large number of persons who already possess the Music of SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS (271 Hymns), the whole of the second part of the book (being No. 2), Music and Words (170 Hymns), can be OBTAINED FOR SIXPENCE.

At this low price it will be within the means of every one to make their copies complete.

Any Bookseller in the Kingdom will procure the book in a few days without extra charge. Or, if preferred, it will be sent free by post from the Publishers on receipt of 6d.

The SOL-FA EDITION of Songs and Solos, No. 2 (170 pieces), may be had for 1s.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller or Musicseller in the Kingdom

EDITIONS OF SACRED SONGS & SOLOS,

(Nos. 1 and 2 Combined, Consisting of 441 Hymns),

COMPILED AND SUNG BY IRA D. SANKEY.

Specially prepared for use by THE BLUE RIBBON ARMY.

WORDS ONLY.

		s.	d.
1 A.	Sewed	0	1
2 A.	Cloth	0	2
1 B.	Tinted Covers	0	3
2 B.	Printed Cloth	0	4
1 C.	Cloth Limp	0	6

MUSIC AND WORDS.

		s.	d.
1 H.	Tinted Covers	1	6
2 H.	Cloth Limp (In Larger Type.)	2	0
1 F.	Tinted Covers	2	6
2 F.	Cloth Limp	3	6

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller or Musicseller in the Kingdom.

JOHN WINSOME'S HOME; or, Hints and Helps to Christian Parents in their Endeavour to Train their Children in the way in which they should go. By the Rev. J. E. SAMPSON, Vicar of Barrow-on-Humber, Hull. Cloth, price 1s.

LONDON: PARTRIDGE & CO., PATERNOSTER ROW.

Now ready, 6d. per dozen.

"HENCEFORTH"—A Word for the New Year (1883). By J. T. WRENFORD, Vicar of St. Paul's, Newport, Mon.

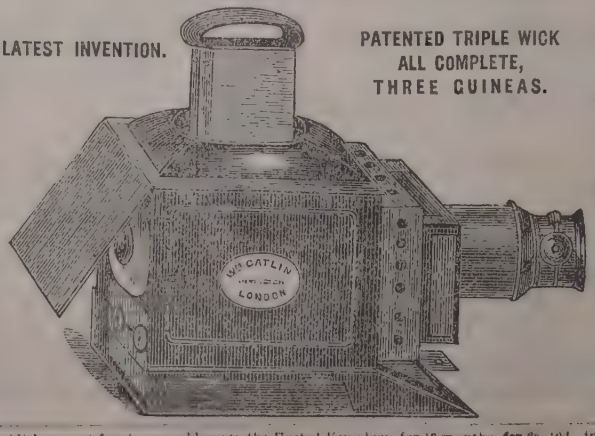
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.

"THE LIGHT OF THE BODY IS THE EYE."

(To get hold of the Masses in Winter. For Mission or School Treats.)

WILLIAM CATLIN,

17, Claremont Square, Pentonville, London, N.,



Can supply you with every description of

MAGIC LANTERNS AND SLIDES.

Annual Illustrated Christmas Catalogue, Fourpence.

LATEST INVENTION.

PATENTED TRIPLE WICK ALL COMPLETE, THREE GUINEAS.

LIME-LIGHT EXHIBITIONS

As at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, Mildmay Conference Hall, and other buildings in and around London.

Prospectus Post Free.

SECOND-HAND SLIDES ON SALE.

Monthly Catalogue Gratis.

LANTERNS AND SLIDES ON HIRE.

Terms on Application.

Original Designs for Public Lecturers. Slide-colouring done upon the Premises.

"The Christian" will be sent by the Publishers post-free to any address in the United Kingdom, for 12 months, for 6s. 10d., including Double Numbers.

"The Christian" (weekly) and the HERALD OF MERCY (monthly) will be sent to the United States or Canada, for 12 months for $2, which may be remitted by a Two-Dollar Bill

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 676.] THURSDAY, JANUARY 11, 1883. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

CONTENTS.

The Churches in Relation to Evangelistic Work 5
Co-Operation, not Competition 6
Cape Town Soldiers' Home 7
Two Death Scenes 7
Blue Ribbon Army 7
The Wrong Train 8
The Wee Raggit Laddie 8
A New Phase of the Temperance Movement 8
Bible Readings on the Holy Spirit ... 9
Prayer for Mohammedans 9
Y.M.C.A. New Year's Receptions 9
The China Inland Mission 10
The Women of China 10
For the Young 11
The Gospel in Sardinia 11
Poetry—Enter the Year with Jesus .. 11
Young Abstainers' Union 11
Notes and Comments 12
Messrs. Moody & Sankey in Dublin 14
Conference on Home Missions 14
Christian Work in Marseilles 16
Dr. Baedeker in Russia 17
The Bedford Institute 17
Notes from Spain 17
Supper to London Waifs 17
Poetry—A New Year Question 18

WEEK OF PRAYER.—The next number of "The Christian" (January 18), will be a Double Number, price 2d., and will contain Special Reports of Meetings held during the Week of Prayer.

Works by D. L. Moody.

Power from on High; or, The Secret of Success in Christian Life and Christian Work. By D. L. MOODY. TWELFTH THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"This series of earnest and solemn Addresses bear throughout that stamp of honest, eager earnestness, which is so striking a characteristic of the writer's labours as a preacher."—Clerical World.

"Every page is full of stimulating thought for Christian Workers."—Commonwealth.

"A stirring and timely little book, by the American preacher, Mr. Moody. It is a good statement of the secret of success in Christian life and work, by one who has some claim to speak on such a theme."—The Outlook.

Addresses by D. L. Moody. Revised. HUNDRED AND FIRST THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"With the effect of these Addresses when spoken the whole land is acquainted, and now that they are written they will tend to keep in force the impression they have already made. The book is clearly printed, on good paper, is handy in form, and is sure of a wide circulation."—Primitive Methodist.

The Faithful Saying. A Series of Addresses. By D. L. MOODY. EIGHTH THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Fresh, direct, pictorial, and powerful; they are admirable examples of the readiest way to reach the hearts of men with the truths of Christ."
General Baptist Magazine.

"These discourses are full of power and homely beauty, and exemplify very fully the strong points of the great evangelist. Nothing surprises us more in Mr. Moody than his marvellous power of illustration. His anecdotes are so fresh, so pointed, and touching."—King's Highway.

Heaven; Its Hopes, its Inhabitants, its Riches, its Rewards. By D. L. MOODY. THIRTY-SECOND THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Practical, full of anecdotes and point, and in many circles calculated to be of much service."—The Friend.

"Scattered throughout this volume are many direct home-thrusts at fashionable follies, many sharp rebukes of unrighteousness, much serious and urgent exhortations to Christliness of life, and many solemn warnings of the sad consequences of disregarding the love and mercy of the Saviour."—Primitive Methodist.

The Second Coming of Christ. By D. L. MOODY. EIGHTH THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 4d.; Cloth Limp, 6d.

CHEAP EDITION, for General Distribution, 2s. per doz., post free.

"The moment a man takes hold of the truth that Jesus is coming back again to receive his followers to Himself, this world loses its hold upon him. Gas stocks, and water stocks, and stocks in banks and railroads, are of very much less consequence to him then. His heart is free, and he looks for the blessed appearing of his Lord, who, at his coming, will take him into his blessed Kingdom."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Now Ready. The First Number of FOOTSTEPS OF TRUTH,
A New Monthly Christian Journal, edited by C. RUSSELL HURDITCH, Containing Articles by the Editor, Dr. Robert McKilliam, Messrs. S. Trevor Francis, J. G. McVicker, G. C. Needham, Thomas Newberry, G. S. Reaney, J. Denham Smith, Miss G. M. Taylor, G. F. Trench, and others. With ILLUMINATED FRONTISPIECE.
Price 3d., per post 4d.
J. F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row;
Or through any Bookseller.

THE JANUARY PART of
The Christian
Containing the whole of the December Numbers, in neat Wrapper. Price 5d.; post-free 7d.
MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings,
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE KABYLES,
WITH A
REPORT OF KABYLE MISSION, 1882.
Itinerary of the Jur-Jura Country, and beautiful map of North Africa.
By GEORGE PEARSE.
Now Ready. Price Threepence.
London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.

THE SURGICAL AID SOCIETY.
ESTABLISHED 1862.
President—The Right Hon. the EARL of SHAFTESBURY, K.G.
The Society gives all kinds of surgical appliances to the afflicted poor. Number of appliances given last month, 610; since commencement, 42,100. FUNDS are earnestly SOLICITED to enable the Society to relieve the increasing number of patients. Bankers—Messrs. Barclay, Bevan & Co., 54, Lombard-street. Offices—Salisbury-square, Fleet-street, E.C.
WILLIAM TRESIDDER, Secretary.

JUST PUBLISHED.
A CHEAP EDITION OF
THE LIFE OF GEORGE WHITEFIELD,
By J. R. ANDREWS.
Price Sixpence. In Cloth (with Portrait), One Shilling.
Superior Edition in large type for Presentation, cloth, bevelled boards (with Portrait), price 5s.
LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS;
And may be obtained of any Bookseller.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,
BOUND IN MOROCCO.
(Nos. 1 & 2 Combined, containing 441 Hymns).
SUNG BY IRA D. SANKEY.

		s.	d.
	WORDS ONLY.
3 C.	Medium Type Edition	2	6
4 D.	Foolscap 8vo. ditto	4	6
4 E.	Extra Large Type ditto	5	6
	MUSIC AND WORDS.
5 F.	Old Notation	8	6
6 F.	Ditto, flexible, kid-lined	12	6
4 H.	Ditto (in smaller Type)	5	6
5 H.	Ditto Ditto, flexible, kid-lined	10	6
5 G.	TONIC SOL-FA,	3	6

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

BIBLE AND COLPORTAGE SOCIETY OF IRELAND.

AN undenominational Society, with Agents in all parts of Ireland. Carefully selected and trained Colporteurs are spreading the knowledge of Jesus by the living voice and the printed page. They have access to the people everywhere, and are not interfered with in their work. A contribution of £40 will secure a Colporteur for a year in any part of Ireland. Funds greatly needed.—Rev. H. M. WILLIAMSON, Belfast, and Rev. JOHN ELLIOTT, Armagh, Secretaries, by whom contributions will be gratefully received; or they may be paid at the office of this paper.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving from Y. N., 10s.; M. W. B., 2s., Clothing, and Tracts.

The Infant Day Nursery. Children's Services. Toy Classes. Special Work amongst Little Girls. Classes and Meetings for Elder Girls and Young Women. Industrial Classes for Lads. Helpers gladly welcomed. Mothers' Meetings. Gospel Temperance Gatherings. Room to Room Visitation. Various Thrift Works. Common Lodging House Services, and Evangelistic Services, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 280, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE PARALYSED & EPILEPTIC.—The Committee of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for contributions in money, flannel, and coal tickets, in aid of the afflicted out-patients. The smallest gifts will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

OUR COUNTRYMEN IN INDIA.—The ANGLO-INDIAN EVANGELISATION SOCIETY sends Evangelists to itinerate constantly among numerous groups of Europeans and Eurasians throughout India, widely separated, and otherwise destitute of Gospel ministrations. General Secretary and Treasury, the Rev. PETER BANNATYNE, 7, Adam-street, Strand, London, 9, London-street, Edinburgh.

HOUSE OF REST for Christian Mission Workers, when needing rest, medical advice, or a time of preparation for mission work, at Kilburn. SEASIDE BRANCH at EASTBOURNE open all the year. Mission Workers from Abroad also received. Apply to Miss MASON, 7 and 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W.

HOME FOR DESTITUTE LITTLE GIRLS, The Dale, Upperton-road, Eastbourne, Sussex (late of Plaistow).—Contributions received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT; or Miss LEE, at the above address.

SEASIDE CONVALESCENT HOME.—Warmly recommended to readers of The Christian. Protestant and Evangelical. Open all the year. Sunny situation. Food excellent. Funds needed.—For terms, &c., address, Rev. E. FORBES, Christ Church, Clevedon.

GREAT COLEMAN'S, near Ongar, is now opened by Dr. and Mrs. S. C. GRIFFITH to give change of air and rest to educated people of limited means. For particulars, apply to 45, Finsbury-square, E.C.

CRIPPLES' HOME AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, 17A, Marylebone road, N.W.—The Committee earnestly entreat the kind friends who have assisted this much-needed Home to inspect their elegant assortment of Baskets and Fancy Goods suitable for Christmas Presents and New Year's Gifts. Orders for Baskets Straw Hats, and Bonnets carefully executed. Contributions thankfully received by the SECRETARY.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, College-avenue, Hackney, London, E.—Subscriptions are greatly needed to assist in maintaining the children, and to pay off the debt upon the building. Contributions gratefully received by Miss RYE, or Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

COW CROSS MISSION.—Central London Established Evangelistic Agency Funds urgently needed for heavy expenses of Gloster Hall Gospel Services, Dinners to Destitute Children, &c.—WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, N.

MRS. WILKES proposes to be at home every Wednesday from Two till Five o'clock, for the purpose of seeing friends of Rescue Work. Trains from Liverpool-street to St. James-street Station, Walthamstow, every half-hour. "The Elms" is within five minutes' walk of the station. The Elms, Coppermill-lane, Walthamstow, Essex.

Educational.

AN OLD PUPIL desires strongly to recommend his former School. The excellent education, the Christian influence, and the healthy locality give him the great st confidence in doing so.—A. G. GREENWAY, M.D., West Derby Village, Liverpool.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL, WELLINGTON, SALOP.

Principal—DR. CRANAGE, M.A.

The next Term will begin (D.V.) Thursday, January 18th.

Ora et Labora.

THE SCHOOL HOUSE, Weston-super-Mare.—Mr. H. PENN receives sons of Gentlemen to train and educate. Preparation for Army and University entrance; and London Matric. Exams., and the Professions. Liberal diet, and plenty of open-air recreation. References to parents. For terms apply as above. The next Term commences Thursday, Jan. 18, 1883.

TO GODLY PARENTS.—The undermentioned (who is in no way connected with the school) is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL, DELIGHTFULLY SITUATED FACING THE SEA on the South Coast, a short run from London, in which a thorough and first-class Education is given, based upon the teaching of the Holy Scriptures.

It is one of the few remaining schools in which the power of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ influences the hearts and conduct of the pupils.

The success, happiness, and training of the Boys have been so remarkable in this School that a BOOK OF TESTIMONIALS GIVEN BY THE PARENTS should be read to appreciate results so unusual. Two Vice-Chancellors have placed their wards as pupils in the school. Reference kindly permitted to Dr. THORN, Paddington, London.

THE WOODLANDS, Hitchin, Herts.—Select Boarding School for Boys. For prospectus apply to the Principal, ISAAC SHARP, B.A., a member of the Society of Friends. Careful personal training. Efficient staff of masters. Excellent recreation grounds.

BLACKHEATH.
ELIOT PARK SCHOOL.

Principal—EDWARD G. ELLIS.

A sound and thorough Education on Christian principles. SUBJECTS:—Classics, Languages, Mathematics, English, Science, Book-keeping, &c.

Number of boarders, 13. Eminent success. Position highly recommended by medical men.

References permitted to

Rev. J. T. WIGNER .....Brockley, S.E.,
Dr. MCKILLIAM .....Blackheath,
Dr. GAGE-BROWN.....Sloane-street, W.,
W. B. FISHER, Esq.....Greenwich,
J. W. C. FEGAN, Esq.....Southwark, S.E.,
and other Parents and Guardians.

The next term commences (D.V.) January 19.

BACKWARD YOUTHS do best under private tuition. In schools these are usually left to inexperienced assistants. Mr. WILLIAM PENN devotes his PERSONAL ATTENTION to such pupils, of whom he receives four or five as Boarders. Candidates are prepared for all PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS. Reference permitted to Dr. BARNARDO, Mrs. PENNEFATHER, and others. Studies recommenced Sept. 22nd.—Apply, 52, Clapton-common, London, E.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for little Boys, near Brighton.—Locality healthy. Home comforts. Christian training. Special attention to delicate, backward boys. Separate beds. Visiting masters. Twenty guineas.—LADY PRINCIPAL, Hamilton Lodge, Hurstpierpoint, Sussex.

KILBURN COLLEGE FOR BOYS. Happy Home. Christian Influence. Pupils of 12 and 13 years successful at Cambridge Local Examination. PRINCIPAL, Henry Carvill, 9, Somerset-terrace, 30 and 50 guineas. Referees, Rev. Grattan Guinness, &c.

A DECIDED CHRISTIAN GENTLEMAN wanted, competent to teach Classics, Mathematics, French, and English subjects thoroughly.—Apply, stating age, experience, salary required, with references, to W. GRANT, Arnold House School, Worthing.

MONKTON COMBE SCHOOL, near Bath.—Pupils prepared chiefly for Oxford and Cambridge. Reference to Lord Radstock, and many other parents and guardians whose sons are at the School.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION.—Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.) receives about 20 Sons of Gentlemen, from seven to fourteen years of age. Terms from 40 to 55 Guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and Mathematics. Personal care, Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home.—85, Buckingham-road, Brighton.—Referees: Rev. W. Poole Ballerin, Brighton; Rev F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. Figgis, Brighton; Rev. W. Haslam, 19, King's-road, Brownswood-park, N. Term extends from Thursday, Jan. 18, to April 12.

CAPTAIN MORETON recommends with pleasure Mr. Foster's School. Preference given to children of believers. A reduction made to parents wholly engaged in the Lord's work.—Eldon-park School, South Norwood.

HOME, WITH TUITION.—A Gentleman receives six little boys to educate with his son. Parental care, and superior education. Highest references.

SIGMA, 25, St. Aubyn's, West Brighton.

BETHANY HOUSE SCHOOL, Goudhurst, Kent. Principal Rev. J. J. Kendon. The object of the Principal is to thoroughly educate his pupils, and to carefully train them up in the love and service of Jesus. Terms from 24 guineas per annum.

LADIES' COLLEGE, Goudhurst, Kent. Conducted by the Misses Kendon, daughters of Rev. J. J. Kendon. A kind, Christian home and school for girls and delicate children. Terms 34 guineas per annum. For prospectus with reference to parents, apply to Miss R. KENDON, M. C. P.

HOME SCHOOL.—A Lady, of much experience in teaching, residing in a beautiful part of Derbyshire, receives a limited number of Pupils. There is a resident foreign governess, and visiting English master. First-class instruction in every branch. References to Clergymen and the parents of pupils. Terms moderate.—PRINCIPAL, The Ferns, Duffield, Derby.

HIGH CLASS EDUCATION.—University Examinations. Earnest Gospel Ministry and watchful Christian training. All Teachers engaged required to be true Christians. The Principals of this well-known establishment having a few vacancies for resident pupils from unavoidable circumstances, will receive one or two young ladies on reduced terms.

References to Clergymen, Ministers, and Christian parents, many of whom have expressed a desire to give details of the benefits their own daughters have derived from the training.—ALPHA, care of Mr. Boulton, Bookseller, Worship-street, Finsbury, London.

EDUCATION (superior) for eight resident pupils and a few day pupils (daughters of gentlemen). Comfortable home, Christian training, combined with thorough instruction. Highest references.—PRINCIPAL, 81, Church-road, Richmond, Surrey.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for the Daughters of Gentlemen.—Miss PENN and Fräulein ESSER receive a limited number of Pupils at Grove House, Upper Clapton, London, E. Detached house. Large garden. Large and efficient staff of Masters and Governesses, German and French the languages of the house. Careful training and Christian influence, with individual supervision. For prospectus and references apply as above.

SCHOOL near the sea-side, for the Board and Education of little Girls, conducted by Mrs. and Miss SNOW. Comfortable home, combined with Christian training. Terms moderate. Good references.—Stoke Fleming, Dartmouth, South Devon. The next Term begins January 15, 1883.

HOME EDUCATION FOR TWO LITTLE GIRLS.—The Vicar of neat Driffield, East Yorkshire, can with the greatest confidence recommend to any parents or guardians seeking the above for two children under eleven, a home where such might be had, with two Ladies and a younger sister of twelve; and with every confidence as to the religious and other instruction given, the example set, and influence exercised.—Applications, giving references, and stating the terms offered, may be made to the Rev. HORACE NEWTON, Driffield, East Yorkshire.

MARLBOROUGH COLLEGE FOR YOUNG LADIES, Larkbeare, Exeter, Devon.—Residents only received. Specially desirable home for girls of delicate habit. References to Christian Parents, of all denominations.

A LONDON VICAR most strongly recommends to parents, seeking wise and intelligent training for their Daughters, a Lady of highest attainments, Christian culture, and experience, in a salubrious seaside spot.—Referee, Rev. J. KIRKMAN, St. Stephen's, Hampstead, N.W.

FIRST-CLASS FINISHING SCHOOL for the daughters of gentlemen. Strongly recommended by parents of present and former pupils. Efficient staff of masters and governesses. Music and harmony by an eminent London musician. Careful training and refined home. Prospectus on application to PRINCIPAL, Branston Lodge, Waverley-road, Southsea.

LONDON.—First-class Education for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing, conducted by members of the Church of England, occupying a spacious house in a most healthy locality in the West-end. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate Professors—their health, individual temper, and disposition carefully and tenderly watched over, and the whole system based on Christian principles.—DELTA, Boddington's Library, Notting-hill-gate, W.

SEASIDE EDUCATION.—Two clergymen highly recommend a Christian school for twelve girls. References to officers of high rank, whose daughters are pupils there. Terms very moderate. Rev. J. Johnson, Britwell Rectory, Watlington, Oxon.; Rev. W. Clarke, Hook Vicarage, Surbiton, Surrey.

PRINCIPAL, 5, Sussex-place, Southsea.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE FOR LADIES, 1, Carlton Mansions, Clapham-rise, S.W., Principal—MRS. HALE, A.C.P. Next term commences January 28th, 1883. Terms moderate and inclusive.

"I have the utmost pleasure in standing as reference. I can highly commend Mrs. Hale, and have the greatest confidence in her capacity, management, and character, having known her for several years."—C. H. Spurgeon.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for little Boys, with home comforts and watchful care, conducted by Mrs. BOONE and daughter; assisted by Masters and Lady Teachers. Most charming, healthy situation. Highfield, Weston-super-Mare.

HAMMERSMITH HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.—The next term will commence January 18th, 1883. Boarders received at the house of the Head Mistress. Last report and full particulars forwarded by post, on application to Miss MARY E. PAGE, High School, Hammersmith, W.

WORTHING.—Vacancies after Christmas for three Young Ladies, in a superior school, where careful training and maternal care are ensured to the Pupils, whose health, happiness, and best interests are a primary consideration. First-class Masters. Reference to clergymen and parents of Pupils.

MRS. TRANTER, 7, Liverpool-gardens, Worthing.

MILTON HOUSE SCHOOL for Young Ladies, Plympton (near Plymouth), South Devon.—Limited number received. Home comforts. Advantages for French. References to parents of pupils.

BRIGHTON KINDERGARTEN and Educational Home, for children from three to twelve years of age. Thorough preparatory education, combined with Christian training and motherly care.

PRINCIPAL, Dover House, Clifton-hill, Brighton.

HIGHBURY HOUSE, St. Leonards-on-Sea.—Boys prepared for Commerce, Public Schools, or the Universities. Upper, middle, and preparatory departments. Seven resident masters. The junior division taught by ladies. Delicate boys requiring a mild climate receive every kindness and constant care.—For prospectus apply to MRS. DUFF, the Lady Principal. School duties will be resumed January 20th.

MALVERN HOUSE, Blockley, Worcestershire.—Principal, Mrs. Judson.—In this establishment, situated in a most healthy and romatic village, a thorough education is combined with Christian training. A resident German governess. References kindly permitted to Rev. J. Wilkinson, 79, Mildmay-road, London, N., and to parents of pupils. Terms moderate and inclusive. A vacancy for a Governess pupil.

CROYDON HIGH SCHOOL.—A Christian Lady has a vacancy for a boarder to attend the above school, with others from her house. Term begins January 16th. References given and required. For particulars apply to M. B., Miss Harrison's, Church-terrace, St. James' road, Croydon.

KINGSTON HOUSE LADIES' SCHOOL, Abbotsford-road, Bristol.—First-class education careful Christian training. Vacancies for boarders. Pupils prepared for University Examinations. Special class for little girls under eight years of age.

LADIES' SCHOOL, Oak-Gate House, Taunton.—Miss CLARK, assisted by efficient teachers, receives a limited number of Young Ladies for instruction in the usual branches of a sound and useful education. While devoting her best attention to the mental improvement of her pupils, Miss CLARK desires to secure to them, as far as possible, the comforts and advantages of a Christian home, and to train them with a view to the efficient discharge of the duties of life. Terms moderate and inclusive. For prospectus, address as above. The next Term will commence on Monday, January 22.

EDUCATION, SEASIDE.—Articled Pupil required, in a high-class Christian School, to take two girls to practise. Advantages of a full boarder offered. Preference to one who can introduce a pupil. Moderate premium required.—PRINCIPAL, care of Mr. German, Castle-road, Southsea.

EDUCATION.—A vacancy in a Ladies' School, for a young Lady about 15, to receive a good education, on reduced terms, and render some assistance with younger children. The Christian training, health, and domestic comforts of the Pupils receive careful attention.—A. B., Ladies' School, High-street, Petersfield, Hants.

EDUCATION.—A few vacancies exist in an old-established Ladies' School, within easy distance of London, where pupils receive Christian training, and watchful care. Locality extremely healthy. Large house and grounds. Certificated English and foreign governesses. Good references. Moderate terms.

BETA, 53, High-street North, Dunstable, Beds.

MISS PALMER, assisted by excellent governesses and masters, successfully prepares girls for Cambridge Local and Dulwich High School examinations. Specially suited for children whose parents are abroad. Home comforts. Healthy situation. Careful training. Term begins 24th January. References to parents of pupils.—Fernside, 17, New Rosendale-road, West Dulwich, near London.

LADIES' SCHOOL.—Two vacancies. Good resident governess. Principal's time devoted to pupils' health and education. Evangelical Church of England teaching. Highest references to parents of present pupils.

Miss PEACH, 56, Cambridge-road, Hastings.

TWO VACANCIES in an Educational Home for Children, possessing unusual advantages, in a healthy, bracing air, 16 miles from London. Conducted by two Ladies of long experience. Terms moderate.—E. A., May's Advertising Offices, 159, Piccadilly, London, W.

CLARENS.—Montreux, banks of the Lake of Geneva.—Mme. QUIBLIER receives six young Ladies to educate. Every comfort and attention. References: Mme. Merle d'Aubigne, Geneva. Pastor Du Pontet de La Harpe, French Parsonage, Bayswater, W., and the parents of pupils.—Mme. LOUIS QUIBLIER, Clarens près Montreux, Vaud, Switzerland.

HOME FOR ENGLISH GOVERNESSES IN PARIS.—Advantages of French.—Apply to Miss PRYDE, 16, Rue de Tilsitt, for further information.

PARIS.—Protestant Establishment for Young Ladies. Sciences, Arts. French only language of the house. Terms £40. Ladies with a private bedroom, £5 a month. References: Rev. Baron HART, 21, Avenue de la Grande Armée; Rev. L. VERNES, 7, Rue des Batignolles, Paris; Rev. D. J. WATT, 331, Amhurst-rd., Stoke Newington, London. Principal, Mme. FLAMANT, 63, Rue Truffaut Paris.

PARIS.—Mdlle. TALLON, Parisian, Protestant, Diplômée, receives Ladies and Young Ladies. Reference to M. le Pasteur Bersier. Prospectuses to be had, 193, Boulevard Pereire Sud, Près l'Arc de Triomphe.

MDLLES. HOFFHER, several years resident in England, have opened a School in Lausanne, where educational advantages are combined with home comforts. Particulars will be given by Mrs. WAITE, Halifax.

PARIS.—Protestant Boarding School for Young Ladies (Passy, near the Bois de Boulogne). Very select Establishment. Excellent references. Only a few pupils admitted.—Apply to Madame VIVIEN, 87, Rue de la Pompe, Passy, Paris.

A CHRISTIAN LADY (German), many years Governess in England, wishes, on her return to Germany, to take back with her young ladies desirous of finishing their education. Home comforts. Christian influence. Full particulars from "Fräulein," Compton House School, Bedford.

A LADY, experienced in teaching children, is desirous of a re-engagement in a Christian family after Christmas (daily or resident). Thorough English, music, German, fluent French (abroad), and rudiments of Latin. Good references.
HILDA, 75, Welbeck-street Cavendish-square, W.

A LADY, having a large country house, and 15 acres of pine woods, on the South Coast, can take charge of a few more children. Judicious training and education. If delicate, they would have special care. Cheerful holidays, if parents abroad. Soil gravel climate health-giving. Sands within 100 yards. References exchanged.—MATER, Chaddesley Glen, Parkstone-on-Sea, near Bournemouth.

A NORTH GERMAN LADY, Protestant, Diplomée, desires a re-engagement. Thorough French, German, Italian, Latin, English, excellent music. Liberal salary.—C. R., 16, Powis-terrace, Powis-square, Westbourne-park, London, W.

AS DAILY OR MORNING GOVERNESS.—Re-engagement is desired by a Clergyman's daughter, in a Christian family, to children under 14. English, French, music, needlework. Good testimonials.
R., 8, Russell-square, Brighton.

AS JUNIOR TEACHER.—Required by a young Lady, a situation in a good school. Acquirements. English, French, German, and Elementary drawing.
Miss COSTIN, 19, Inkerman-street, Luton, Beds.

A CLERGYMAN'S DAUGHTER, 28, highly recommended (5 years' reference), English, French, German (acquired abroad). Good music, drawing.
Miss S., 97, Mortimer-street, W.

GOVERNESS.—A young Lady requires re-engagement in a school or family. Good references.—H., Longford Lodge, Longford, near Gloucester.

AN EXPERIENCED CHRISTIAN GOVERNESS seeks an opening for a school in or near London, or would join a Lady desiring a partner. No objection to boys.
M., Burleigh's Library, Putney.

YOUNG LADY, of experience in teaching young children, seeks re-engagement in a Christian family, or Preparatory School. English, music, French, rudiments of Latin, and German.—M., 39, George-street, Maidstone.

AS GOVERNESS.—A young Lady desires a situation, in a Christian family. English, French, German music, and drawing.
J. SPICER, Manor House, Eastergate, Chichester.

RESIDENT GOVERNESS. — Ten years' experience. Thorough English, French, music, drawing, painting. Six years in last engagement.
SIGMA, 8, East Shrubbery, Redland, Bristol.

YOUNG CHRISTIANS willing to learn a new method of early training as Nursery-Governesses, can have three months on nominal terms. Trained girls can be guaranteed situations.
DIRECTRESS, 81, Mildmay-grove, London, N.

A LADY engaged in teaching can highly recommend a Pupil as Assistant in a good school, where board and lessons in French would be given in return for her services. Good references.—W. B., Grand Pump Room Library, Bath.

RESIDENT GOVERNESS. — A Christian lady, domesticated, and experienced in tuition, desires a re-engagement as above, in a family, or to assist in housekeeping, supervision of pupils, and part teaching in a school. Excellent testimonials from previous engagements in both positions.
C. F., 28, St. George's-street, Stamford.

GOVERNESS.—Wanted by a young Lady, a situation as above, to children under ten, or as Junior Governess in a school. Able to teach English, music, singing, elementary French, needlework.
B., Post Office, Hulland-ward, Ashbourn.

A GOVERNESS PUPIL wanted in a Ladies' School in a healthy suburb of London, to superintend the music practice of juniors. French, German, Music, and Singing Lessons under first-class Masters given. Premium moderate.
PRINCIPAL, Cornwall House, Wanstead.

GERMAN GOVERNESS wanted, for small school, near Crystal Palace; to give three whole days in return for board and lodging.—"MADAM," 29, Anerley-park, S.E.

JUNIOR OR PUPIL GOVERNESS —Required, a Lady (Christian and abstainer), in a select Preparatory School. (Weekly engagement.) —DELTA, care of Miss Virgo, 22, Edith-grove, West Brompton.

A CHRISTIAN GOVERNESS, not under 22, wanted, to teach five girls, eldest eleven, assist with wardrobe, &c.—Mr. T. S. HELEY, Wing, Leighton Buzzard, Beds.

WANTED in a quiet family a refined Christian Lady; good French and music, thorough English on the principles of the High School.
Mrs. P. W. STEPHENS, Tyringham, Beckenham.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

AS EVANGELIST, or Missionary (country) preferred.—A Christian man (35) seeks an engagement. Nonconformist and abstainer. Good references. Christian worker 18 years.—J. H. C., 79, Gloucester-rd., Peckham, London, S.E.

MATRON. — Wanted re-engagement by an experienced person. Much blessed in past efforts among young women, both preventive and fallen. Good testimonials. Views unsectarian.—A. B., 26, Lenham-road, Lee, Kent.

NO SALARY.—A young Lady wants situation as Companion-Helper to Lady engaged in Mission Work; or Mother's Help to two or three children. Missionary's or clergyman's family preferred.—Miss C., The Parks, Stowon-the-Wold, Gloucestershire.

COMPANION AND ATTENDANT. —Situation wanted by a gentleman, as companion and attendant to an invalid. He had years of illness some years ago, but is now strong and hardy, but unfitted for commercial life. Has for ten years spent his leisure in active Christian work.—Mr. A. B. C., 10, Margaret-street, Higher Openshaw, Manchester.

AS HOUSEKEEPER, Companion, or Wardrobe-keeper in a school.—A Christian Lady of experience desires an engagement in either capacity. Domesticated, good needlewoman, musical, writes a good hand. Excellent references. State salary.
ZETA, 42, Harold-road, Upton-park, Essex.

AS HOUSEKEEPER, or Under Matron.—Can cook well. Highest references.—E. G., 46, Lindley-street, Jubilee-street, Mile End.

A GOOD UPPER HOUSEMAID wanted.—Age not under 25. Apply on Monday or Tuesday, between the hours of 11 and 1.—Mrs. EWES, 67, Ladbroke-grove, near Notting-hill-gate Station.

TO LADIES WINTERING IN THE SOUTH. — A Lady recommends her maid. Excellent dressmaker, milliner, and hairdresser. First-rate character.
Miss GRIFFITH, Hotel de Paris, Biarritz.

UNDER-NURSE.—A Lady wishes to hear of a situation as above, for a girl (18, total abstainer) who needs supervision.—Mrs. CRUICKSHANK, 6, Lorton-terrace, Ladbroke-road, W.

GENERAL SERVANT.—A Lady wishes to hear of a situation as above, in a quiet Christian family in the country, for a girl who has gone astray, but has since been a year in a home. — Hon. LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Lock Asylum, Westbourne-green, Harrow-road, London, W.

GENERAL SERVANT.—The Rev. R. P. PELLY, of St. John's Lodge, Forest-gate, E., is seeking a situation for a parishioner, aged 30, six years in her last place, in a quiet Christian family.

A LADY wishes to find a situation in a Christian home for a girl in whom she is interested, as under servant either in house or kitchen.
Mrs. PELLY, Tunbridge Wells.

A LADY is anxious to find a situation (not as Cook) for a girl of 18 who has been in Mrs. Vickers' Home for more than a year and a half.—Miss ATLEE, Albion-hill Home, Brighton.

WILL ANY LADY give a young woman a chance to redeem her character? She is strong, a good needlewoman, honest, and clean. Kindly state wages and particulars.
HOPE, Stourpaine, nr. Blandford, Dorset.

IN RETURN FOR A HOME, a Lady would give her services to assist a Matron in a Girls' Orphange or something similar, or as companion to an elderly Lady; country preferred, references exchanged.—Miss A. GOODWIN, Highfield, Gt. Ryburgh, Fakenham, Norfolk.

AN ATTENDANT upon an elderly Lady, or as Wardrobe-keeper in a School. A Lady wishes highly to recommend a widow (age 38). Full particulars will be given by Miss JESSIE COOMBES, The Institute, Torquay.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

A CHRISTIAN MEDICAL MAN wanted. Fully qualified to undertake medical and evangelistic work.—Dr. SAUNDERS, London Medical Mission, 47, Endell-street, London, W.C.

ADVERTISER has a nice opening for a Christian temperance man, with from 3 to £5,000. To such would hand over a well-organised Cotton Mill, and assist until the business became quite familiar.
John S. BARON, Astley-gate, Blackburn.

MISSION WOMAN wanted for the Seven Dials. Church of England. Some experience and well recommended.—Rev. S. A. GRIFFITHS, Mission House, Short's-gardens; or apply at 4 p.m.

A CHRISTIAN PERSON required as good Needlework Matron in Bath Penitentiary Must have satisfactory references, and be an abstainer. Salary £20.
TREASURER, 4, Lansdown Crescent, Bath.

WHITEFIELD COFFEE TAVERN. —Wanted for the above, a thorough trustworthy energetic Christian man (single, and abstainer).
1, Newton-street, Holborn.

A LADY C.C. at Stokeleigh, Torquay, requires a useful Maid, about 30. Abstainer. Wages £20. To attend three ladies, dress hair, understand dressmaking.

A USEFUL MAID COMPANION wanted, to wait on and attend to young Lady.—Must be steady, trustworthy, cheerful, and good needlewoman. One who has taken a similar place, and used to sickness, preferred.—Address, by letter, W. S., Laurel-bank, Bournemouth.

HOUSE AND PARLOUR-MAID wanted, COOK, and NURSE to two children.—Must be conscientious, strong, and able servants. —Apply through Vicarage, Burnham, Somerset.

CAN ANY LADY recommend a high-principled really superior young girl, who has had a good education and can write a good hand, to wait on a Lady? French or German not objected to if can speak good English. Must understand dressmaking. A happy home offered, but not high salary. In writing please send every particular and enclose photograph. Age between 16 and 19.—H. G., care of Miss Witt, Laurel Cottages, near Richmond-park-gates, Kingston-on-Thames.

PLAIN COOK wanted. — Trustworthy. Must churn and bake. One cow kept. Housemaid and gardener. Wages £17. No beer. Three in family.—E. W., The Linden, Mansfield.

COOK, or General Servant wanted, in a School for six Ladies.—Address, stating age, wages, &c., MADAME, 29, Anerley-park, S.E.

A GOOD NURSE wanted in a small family, about 25. Very fond of children. Had experience. Apply, giving particulars, references, and wages required, to Mrs. W. S. ROWNTREE, Newbro', Scarborough.

NURSE.—Wanted in a clergyman's family a trustworthy nurse for two young children. Must be a Churchwoman, fond of children, and a good needlewoman. Abstainer preferred.—Mrs. C., 14, Brookside, Cambridge.

NURSE.—Wanted a trustworthy and efficient young woman as nurse for two young children. Wages £12 to £13, all found; no beer given.
Mrs. MIDGLEY, Larchmount, Saffron Walden.

NURSE.—Can a Lady recommend a good Nurse for four young children? Good wages to a competent person. Cook and Housemaid kept.—Mrs. WAY, Broadford House, Shalford, Guildford.

HOUSE AND PARLOUR-MAID wanted. Must be well recommended; another Housemaid kept. Beer not allowed.—Apply, stating age and length of character, to Mr. M. ASHBY, Northlands, Englefield-green, Staines.

GOOD HOUSE AND PARLOUR-MAID wanted, for one Lady. Age from 22 to 30. Christian and abstainer desired. Coachman kept. State wage.—N. B., care of Mr. Allingham, Stationer, Reigate.

HOUSEMAID. — Can any Lady recommend a Housemaid who can wait at table for Clergyman's small family? Quiet, easy place. Please state wages. No beer.
Mrs. W., Felsberg, Eastbourne.

THOROUGH GENERAL SERVANT. —Good plain cook. State age and wages.—Mrs. BRASHER, Feldholm, Queen's Ride, Barnescommon, S.W.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL,
40, Bedford Place, Bloomsbury Sq., London, W.C. This First-class Private Hotel is close to the New Law Courts and the British Museum. Spacious Coffee and Ladies' Drawing-rooms, and Private Sitting-rooms. Rev. R. MILNE, Abbey Church, Edinburgh, writes:—"Quiet, cleanliness, comfort, and moderate charges, are the characteristics of this house." Also recommended by Dr. ALGERNON DOBBIE, Oldham; Rev. J. GARWOOD, M.A., London City Mission; Dr. YOUNG, Florence. Tariff on application to Miss PERCY.

WEST CENTRAL HOTEL.
97, 99, 101, Southampton-row, London, W.C. Patronised by numerous readers of The Christian. Plain Breakfast or Tea, 1s. 3d. Beds, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. Tariff on application to FREDERIC SMITH.

LATE ABODE OF FAITH.—Mrs. DALBY has in her private residence vacancies for two young Ladies who cannot remain at home, or those mentally incapacitated (childish), not insane cases. Terms, two guineas weekly.
3, Oppidans-road, Primrose-hill.

BOARD (partial).—Wanted by a gentleman, with refined Evangelical Christians (musical). Bath-room. N.W. district.
ALPHA, 4, Ludgate-circus-buildings.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS for Lady and Gentleman, or two Gentlemen. Full attendance. Moderate terms. In main road. No children or other lodgers. Omnibus and car pass the door. Five minutes' walk from Midland station to the City.
3, Crown-terrace, Upper Holloway-road, N.

PARTIAL OR FULL BOARD for one or two young gentlemen in happy Christian family. Late dinner. Piano. Home comfort. 15s. to 25s. per week.—A. M. HEWSON, 11, Courtney-road, Drayton-park, Highbury, N.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE offered to one or two Ladies in a private family. Really comfortable Christian home. Late dinner. Terms 25s. weekly.—SCHNELL, Nunn's, Stationers, Ladbroke-grove-road, W.

BRIGHTON.—An Officer's widow (two daughters) wishes to let part good house. Well furnished; attendance. Could receive two or three boarders. Permanency preferred. References exchanged. Mrs. B., 35, Tisturf-road.

BOURNEMOUTH, Clairville.— Superior Boarding House, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Jackson. Visitors will meet with an excellent family home. Charming sea views. Near church and sea. Most liberal table.

BOURNEMOUTH, Marlborough.— First-class private Boarding House. Facing the sea, south aspect, close to pier, baths, library; liberal table, every comfort. Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Roberts.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE at BRIGHTON.—Central position, near to the Pavilion, Aquarium, and Piers. Sea view. Liberal table. Every home comfort.—Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Box, 58, Old Steine.

PRIVATE HOME for Deaf and Dumb Ladies. Congenial society and every domestic comfort.—Mrs. THOMAS, 8, Burlington-buildings, Redland, Bristol.

HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS.—Conducted by a lady restored to health in answer to prayer. Terms 16s., 21s., and 25s.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Private Boarding House. South aspect, facing the sea. Specially suited to Invalids and delicate people during the winter months. Excellent references. For terms address—
Miss SMITH, Cleve House, 79, Marina.

WORTHING, facing the Sea.— Board and Residence in a Christian family Every home comfort, liberal table.
H. H., 5, Marine-parade, Worthing, Sussex.

HYDROPATHY.—Dr. OWEN'S establishment, "The Arboretum," Leamington. The mansion is built on gravel, and heated throughout by warm air, which makes it a perfect winter residence for visitors and patients. Electric and all other baths.

INTEMPERANCE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, &c.—Private Home for limited number of Ladies, in a desirable Winter locality. Experienced medical treatment. Christian influence, judicious supervision, and home comforts.
MEDICUS, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

HASTINGS, Castle House.— Select boarding establishment. Land and sea views. Sheltered situation. Three minutes from sea. Home comforts. Terms moderate.
Apply to the Misses BIRD and PINDER.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian again earnestly invites such to write.
EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a remedy for affording immediate relief.
C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

A GOOD MODEL OF THE TABERNACLE wanted, with curtains, coverings, &c., complete. Send price, with particulars, to A. H. FRATER, Hopewell-terrace, Horsforth, nr. Leeds.

TO LADIES'-MAIDS and others. Lessons in dress-fitting and cutting, £1 1s. the course, fit guaranteed, patterns included; privately, £2 2s. Ladies' patterns taken from 1s. 6d.
Mrs. JUDD, 9, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.

THE SELF-ADJUSTING BLUE RIBBON BADGE.—This Badge adjusts itself to the hem or button-hole of the garment by simple pressure of the fingers on the clip, and can be easily removed from one garment to another. It is at once the most durable, simple, and perfect Blue Ribbon Badge, combining neatness, cheapness, and durability. Sample gross free per post for 3s. on application to PLAYER BROTHERS, Newhall-street, Birmingham.

PIANOFORTE by Collard & Collard. — Sweet-toned, full compass cottage trichord, cost 63 guineas, to be sold for 35 guineas. Another in walnut, 23 guineas. American Organ, 11 stops, rich tone, 26 guineas. Beautiful condition; sent on approval. Real bargains.—Gloucester House, Bowes-park, N.

FRANCIS'BRONCHIAL PROTECTOR
Registered.
For BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, TIGHT BREATHING, all THROAT COMPLAINTS. } SURE REMEDY
Mr. J. D. Fisher, Chemist, Blackpool, says:—"I have tried it myself, and have received great benefit from it. My customers speak highly of its virtues." Of Chemists, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., or for Stamps sent to
FRANCIS & CO., Belgrave Gate, LEICESTER

[Carried to page 22.]

Why Magnetism Cures.

Magnetism cures when other means have failed because, instead of weakening and depressing the vitality of a constitution struggling with disease, it brings to its aid the fullest supply of recuperative power. A resisting force is imparted to the human system, rendering it impervious to ailments induced by unfavourable temperature, and often proof against epidemic disease.

It does not tax and exhaust the energies; it sustains and renews them. Every organ of the body is better fitted to perform its proper function, and prepared for harmonious and united opposition to all unhealthy influences.

Of the accuracy of this view, hundreds of persons now living and healthy, who had been given over as incurable under established systems of treatment, afford undeniable evidence. Great will be the benefit to sufferers when deep-rooted prejudices are overcome, and Nature allowed to work the cure of disease, aided only by such a natural and health-giving energiser as Magneto-Electricity has proved itself to be.

Let no one despair of checking the progress of organic disease until he has tested the electrician's medical skill. Although he may have tried Magnetic remedies in vain, he has yet to learn the value of the restorer properly applied. By putting himself in communication with us he may obtain fuller information on the method of treatment with which long practice and continued research have familiarised us.

The following are two recent cases in point:—

Paralysis and Spinal Affection, resulting from Railway Accident.

"No doubt many persons who read this account of my recovery will do so with incredulity. Be that as it may, one thing is certain: six years ago I received injuries in a railway accident and obtained compensation, but suffered from a severe nervous derangement, with increasing weakness, until confirmed invalidism ensued.

"My friends obtained for me what they considered to be the best advice and treatment; among others your opinion was sought three years ago, but declined. I gradually lost all power to stand, and became entirely dependent on others. My friend, Miss Glover, undertook to see you on my behalf; by your kindness I was at once put in possession of the means whereby I am able to walk and work as well as formerly, and that in the incredibly short space of two months. From the day on which the magnetic apparatus was brought to my bedside I began to recognise a return of physical energy, and as time passed on, progress became once more marked and rapid day by day.

"Any effort to convince enquirers will be considered a pleasure, as I feel that my whole energies should be spent in extending the knowledge of so powerful a remedy.

"Letters may be addressed to Miss Parker, care of Miss Glover, 152, Walworth-road, S.E.

"January 5, 1883."

Mr. G. W. HILL, 13, Victoria-terrace, Limerick.

"We wish to tender you our sincere thanks for your great kindness, and to express gratitude to you, under God, for the great benefit Mrs. Hill received from your treatment. As I stated to you in my first letter, she was almost a cripple, and could not move about without help. I have now only to say she is relieved from all pain, is as well as ever she was, and able to take her accustomed walk with me of four to five miles every evening, besides her usual exercise attending to household requirements, both in and outdoor. Wherever she finds an opportunity she speaks of the advantages and benefits she received from your Odo-Magnetic appliances.

"November 22, 1882."

Having spent many years of patient, laborious, and continued study in adapting his treatment to some of the most obscure and intractable affections known to the profession, Mr. Garratt now claims, as the result of his professional career, to having attained a success unparalleled in the healing art. He will always be happy to confer with any scientific or medical gentleman, either personally or by letter, upon any phase of the subject, or any case for treatment, and will send a private list of 800 names as referees to any address.—B. CORSON GARRATT, Medical Electrician, 16, Finsbury-square, London, E.C.

HOW TO

READ THE BIBLE.

Neatly bound, 6 copies for 6d. 6th Edition. 20,000th.

This momentous question answered. A little book of vast importance. Ideas short and pithy. Readers of it thus write:—"A most excellent work." "Supplies a great want." "I pray that every household in England may possess copies."

Apply to Rev. C. LYNE, Westgate-on-Sea, Thanet.

JOHN WINSOME'S HOME; or, Hints and Helps to Christian Parents in their Endeavour to Train their Children in the way in which they should go. By the Rev. J. E. SAMPSON, Vicar of Barrow-on-Humber, Hull. Cloth, price 1s.

LONDON: PARTRIDGE & CO., PATERNOSTER ROW.

BUTTER'S SPELLING.

Four hundred and sixteenth Edition, 1s. 6d.

BUTTER'S READING AND SPELLING IN EASY GRADATIONS, on an Original Plan, making Words of two Syllables as easy as those of one. Seventy-eighth Edition, 1s. 6d.

SIMPKIN, MARSHALL & CO.; and all Booksellers.

MOTTO FOR 1883.

BEAUTIFUL FLORAL DESIGN, Part of Matt. xxviii. 20, and Isa. xli. 10, with Verse of Hymn. 10d. per dozen, post-free.

JOHN G. WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park, London, N.

ISRAEL, AND GOD'S PURPOSE. Price 2d. By JOHN WILKINSON. A reprint of his Address at the last Mildmay Conference.

JOHN F. SHAW & CO., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.

Also, by the same Writer,

"ENGLISHMEN NOT ISRAELITES," Price Sixpence. And "THE TEN TRIBES, WHERE ARE THEY NOT? AND WHERE ARE THEY?" Price 4d.

JOHN F. SHAW & Co., and WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park.

THE BAND OF HOPE CHRONICLE,

During 1883, will contain an Address for every week, as follows:—Series I.—"THE ARMY AND THE WAR," by Rev. J. Grant Mills, M.A. Series II.—"THE HOUSE I LIVE IN," by Rev. F. Wagstaff. Series III.—"FACTS AND PHILOSOPHY, OR LESSONS FROM LIFE," by Rev. James Yeames. Series IV.—CHEMICAL CHATS WITH THE CHILDREN," by G. R. Tweedie, F.C.S. Series V.—"TOBACCO," by C. R. Drysdale, M.D. Each number will also contain Music, Appropriate Articles, Tales to be re-told, Facts, Anecdotes, Quotations, Reviews, Records of Progress, &c.; and the JANUARY number will contain a PORTRAIT AND BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF MRS. CARLILE, the Founder of the first Band of Hope. Monthly, 1d. Post free, 1s. 6d. per annum (net). New Illustrated List of Band of Hope Requisites post free on application.—UNITED KINGDOM BAND OF HOPE UNION, 4, Ludgate-hill, London, E.C.

NOW READY.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "OH TO BE NOTHING!"

LAYS OF LOWLY SERVICE.

BY GEORGIANA M. TAYLOR.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. Handsomely bound in Morocco, gilt edges, 4s 6d.

"Your Hymns have a special ministry of their own." Miss FRANCES RIDLEY HAVERGAL.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Price 3s. 6d. per 100.

"TURN OVER A NEW LEAF!"

A New Year's Address to Railway Men.

BY LADY HOPE,

OF CARRIDEN.

"A Happy New Year!" How pleasant the words sound! It is delightful to be greeted with such a wish, when we meet our friends on the first day of a New Year. And do we not ourselves hope that the wish may come true? Indeed we do. Yes! Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory, loves our dear Railway Men, and wants them to have a Happy New Year. Will you not give Him His wish?"—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

MAGAZINES for the NEW YEAR,

Of which the JANUARY PARTS are now on sale at all Booksellers.

Monthly, 6d.

THE QUIVER, for Sunday and General READING.

"A safer and more interesting Magazine we do not know than THE QUIVER."—Standard.

"THE QUIVER is widely known as one of the very best of Magazines."—Record.

"THE QUIVER is a library in itself."—Nonconformist.

"Sermon, story, and song are alike imbued with the bright spirit which the Magazine has created for itself."—British Quarterly Review.

 Third Edition now ready of THE QUIVER for NOVEMBER, forming the first of the New Volume.

Monthly, 6d.

CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE,

For Every Household

"The stories in CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE are good, the pictures are clever, the selection of subjects is strikingly varied; it contains a variety of useful information, and altogether a glance through the pages shows that their contents are unusually attractive.—The Times, Dec. 23, 1882.

 Second Edition now ready, of CASSELL'S MAGAZINE for DECEMBER, forming the first PART of the New Volume.

Monthly, 6d.

"LITTLE FOLKS'" MAGAZINE, for ALL GIRLS AND BOYS.

 The January Part commences the New Volume.

"'LITTLE FOLKS' is charming alike in its engravings and stories."—Standard.

"'LITTLE FOLKS' aims not only at informing the young, but also at inducing them to become contributors."—Daily News.

"'LITTLE FOLKS' is as high in merit as it is wide in scope."—Daily Telegraph.

CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN & CO.; and all Booksellers.

SANCTIFICATION:

Its Characteristics and its Consequences.

WITH SCRIPTURE PROOFS

Selected by the Author of "The Three Houses," "God's Sparing Mercy."

SECOND EDITION. PRICE ONE PENNY.

Ipswich: S. WARREN, Printer, 13, Westgate-street.

New Year's Series of Leaflets.

By the Rev. HENRY DENNING.

Containing "God is Love," Thy Kingdom Come," &c.

Price Sixpence per Packet.

GEORGE STONEMAN,
67, Paternoster-row, London, E.C.

Price Twopence. Six copies, post free, for 1s.

SOME REASONS WHY I DO NOT SYMPATHIZE WITH THE SALVATION ARMY.

By O. W. L. A.

"Characterized by full caution and profound reverence."—Word and Work.

London: J. F. SHAW & CO., 48, Paternoster-row.

WORKS BY MRS. G. E. MORTON,

Author of "Friend in Need Papers," "Wee Donald," "Stony Road," "Eighty Years Ago," &c.

STORY OF JESUS. 3d. Edition, with 12 Illustrations, and a Map. 3s. 6d.

"It is impossible to over-estimate the value of a work like this."—Public Opinion.

FROM THE BEGINNING; or, Stories from Genesis. Map and Illustrations, 3s. 6d.

"One of the best books of Bible stories for Children that we have ever seen."—Record.

FROM EGYPT TO CANAAN (sequel to the above). Just out. Map and Illustrations. 3s. 6d.

LONDON: HATCHARDS, PICCADILLY.

Weekly Numbers, One Halfpenny. November Monthly Part contains Two Coloured Plates. Threepence.

"Our Darlings."

THE CHILDREN'S TREASURY, EDITED BY DR BARNARDO.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.; and all Newsagents.

The Christian.

THE CHURCHES IN RELATION TO EVANGELISTIC WORK.

PRIZE ARTICLES

By Rev. EDWD. SMITH, Fairfield, Manchester.

CHAP. VI.

THE TYRANNY OF REFINEMENT.

"And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power; that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of man, but in the power of God."—1 COR. ii. 4, 5.

"I will not shut me from my kind,
And, lest I stiffen into stone,
I will not eat my heart alone,
Nor feed with sighs a passing wind."

"WE thank thee, O Lord, that we have a love for æsthetics!" Thus did a good minister, the other day, inaugurate the public devotions of his people. Many of them were factory operatives, and perhaps thought that æsthetics were a new kind of vegetable! The symptom, however, is suggestive of unhealthy and troublesome facts. Æsthetics, either with or without the name, are more and more the rage in the churches. Faber has shown how much and how subtly the Church is affected by the movements prevalent in the world. They are somehow reproduced in her. The forms are modified, but the substance is there. Nowhere is the tyranny of refinement so harmful and obnoxious as among communities of Christians. It there becomes sometimes the very refinement of tyranny. At its door must be laid much of the blame of the neglect of God's house by the working classes.

Let the case be fairly stated. Refinement is of God. He ordains that humanity shall work away from coarseness and toward refinement. He made the ear for all the harmonies it can perceive, the eye for all the harvests it can gather, the mind for all the high-toned sensitiveness to which it may attain. Music is a fragment of heaven, though melted down and interfused with the baser metals of earth. Beauty is always a "wayside sacrament," and the sense thereof a boon from Him who broods over "the chaos dark and rude" of an originally vulgar nature. Mental culture produces growths into which may be grafted branches out of the garden of the Lord. Happy the well-instructed perception, which "Sees in every hedgerow

Marks of angels' feet,
Epics in each pebble,
Underneath our feet"!

No less happy the intellect which can enter into a junior partnership with other intellects, massive or agile.

But the ultra-refined are by no means to be envied. They are exposed to strong temptation. Their sensibilities are easily offended. Their tastes find much which grates upon them. They suffer much, when others, whose pitch is lower, do not suffer at all. Discords, disorders, irregularities of any kind, afflict them grievously. A homely simile in strong Saxon they are apt to deem unwholesome. An unusual method of wrestling with surrounding evils is held to be worse than heresy. Anything which is at all smirched with the material taken from the pot of a common house-painter excites disgust. Sermons must have balanced sentences and rhythmic feet. These modern Laputans desire to have each human shrub clipped into graceful or fanciful forms. Nature's wild growths must be improved upon, even if under the shearing and correcting they are improved out of being. If anything ruggedly demonstrative is proposed, it is stigmatised as part of the tyranny of vulgarity. So that, while the artistic and philosophic have their peculiar privileges and pleasures, these are all but balanced, in a multitude of instances, by peculiar prejudices and pains.

This is a world a great portion of whose inhabitants have fallen passionately in love with the prosaically utilitarian, and so the extremely refined, both in the churches and out of them, are exposed to a good deal of mental suffering. This exposure is apt to produce in them a soft-spoken but strong-handed selfishness, and this in its turn leads to the exercise, when at all feasible, of that tyranny of refinement which holds, as with a corpse-hand, the struggling vitalities of some of God's people and will not let them escape.

Not only do the truly refined support this tyranny, but they obtain a large mass of auxiliaries from another quarter. Those who imagine themselves to be æsthetically cultured are worse than are the persons they imitate. Said a draper to the writer one day, "'Ladies' do not take nearly as much pleasing as ladies' maids;" and this is an appropriate illustration of the truth that the imitation in Church-life of high-class tastes is more to be dreaded than are the tastes themselves. Mr. Spurgeon's observation is just: "We are much troubled with Lisp, which is the son of Simper, which is the son of Affectation; the same is the father of many sons." If some, instead of dipping into Reviews, and then posing as pure precisians, would review their mental range of lumber-rooms, full, and cupboards almost empty, there would be some hope of bringing them to reason in their claims. If those who have a smattering of art would but study that science of man, which has been justly styled "the sum of all sciences," they would repent of their arbitrary fastidiousness.

SHAM GENTILITY IS BAD: SHAM INTELLECTUALISM IS WORSE.

Macaulay soundly lashed the world's false priests and sentimentalists, but the work needs doing over again,—especially within the boundaries of the churches. Against the tyranny which is exalted by the camp-followers of refinement, many rough-and-ready natures are just now rising in fierce rebellion.

Now, the refined and their imitators have dominance in many congregations. They naturally follow the devices and desires of their own hearts. Either an oligarchy, or something approaching it, holds the reins, and the oligarchy itself is often under the power of a few æsthetic ladies. Sanctuaries are built without any reference to the claims and preferences of the poor, or any definite idea of the usefulness of the ministry. The qualification of saints for service and the pulling of sinners out of the fire are scarcely regarded. If the definite design were to frighten away the working classes, could many of the erections be fashioned more to the purpose? No wonder that these classes feel and say that they are not wanted.

A famous elocutionist stood among a number of theological students in a newly-built house for worship, which had cost nearly twenty thousand pounds and only seated five hundred people. He pointed out the fact, that, owing to the construction of the building, effective speech was next to impossible. If the voice were raised a little louder than usual it broke into meaningless echoes. Said he, "Gentlemen! if either of you has the misfortune to possess a soul, be wise enough, before you take a service here, to leave it behind you in the vestry. If you don't, it may betray you into some expression of emotion, and this place was not built for any such exhibition." Caustic certainly! but not more so than the occasion warranted.

The remedy lies, not so much with the architects as with those who employ them. Professional men should be quietly told that, since it is practicable to combine grace and homeliness, beauty and utility, they must either present the right kind of plans or lose their much-coveted honours. Oh for combinations of simplicity and elegance such as shall allure those whose bringing up has been rough, and whose notions of propriety are crude!

And is the general "get up" of our services arranged with a view to the requirements of the million? What appears delicate or tuneful to the élite is stiff and mummified to them. There is, too often, in the order and form of worship, in the mechanical and unvarying usages of the house of God, something that interferes with the sense of freedom which most of the untutored possess. And so, for the most part, without intending it, preachers get into the way of providing for such as themselves instead of for those of smaller calibre and lower grade. Thus, in places innumerable, the services seem, to ordinary minds, bald and passionless—utterly deficient in heart—until an air of unreality settles about everything. Does not all this look as if outsiders were not welcome, and is if a half-filled building with seats well let were the one end of all the cogitations of those in authority? The policy is altogether bad, and it is because of this tyranny of refinement that many churches are turned into "shrines whose pillars are fallen, and through whose ruins the winds of disappointment rave."

An organist, well paid, but with no sympathy with lively, hearty religion, is not uncommonly installed at the head of the musical department. He collects around himself others after his kind. Old tunes are discarded; "they have not enough music in them." Congregational singing is voted boorish. Whether conversions occur or no we must have plenty of French polish on the performances. "Decently, and in order," becomes a much-abused passage of Scripture. The minority keeps the government on its shoulder, even though the consequence be the dwindling away into worldliness, or into a half-caste condition, of numbers of the congregation. The many are sacrificed to the few; and cultivated taste becomes very much to the taste of Satan. Who can marvel at the fact that faces are seen inside the walls a few times, and then vanish, to be seen no more? Ask their owners the why and the wherefore, and, likely enough, only after putting on the considering cap will they be able to reply. They know they were repelled, but had not fully detected the reason; but, after thinking awhile, the answer comes: "Well, the fact is, the whole business was too rigid and too fine for me." It would be preposterous to expect any other result. Quite on a par with this is the further truth that ministers are persuaded to drop into the position of domestic chaplain to a few families, leaving what is significantly termed "the herd," uncared for.

(To be continued.)

MR. GEORGE C. NEEDHAM has gone to supply Merrion Hall, Dublin, and will probably remain in Ireland for two months.

CO-OPERATION, NOT COMPETITION.—6.

By Rev. WASHINGTON GLADDEN.

HOW TO CARE FOR THE POOR. *

AS the winter drew on, the needs of the poor began to exercise the minds of benevolent persons in New Albion; there was great activity in several of the sewing societies, and the subject came to the front at the December meeting of the Christian League.

"Our constitution names the care of the poor as one of the proper subjects for conference at these meetings," said Dr. Strickland. "Just now there is a great amount of this work to do, not only in our own parish, but also in the district assigned to our church. I wonder whether we are doing this work as effectively as it ought to be done. Little children, with scanty clothing and pinched faces, come to our door every day begging for food. It would be a burning shame to us if any should be left to suffer."

"By the way," said Mr. Strong, "what do you do for these children that come begging for food?"

"Feed them, of course," answered the Rector. "We never give money to unknown beggars, and we never refuse food to any one, known or unknown, who asks for it at our door."

"I should like to know," Mr. Strong suggested, "how many of the members of this club adopt Dr. Strickland's rule in this matter."

The answers showed that it was the rule of the majority. One or two owned that they had no consistent method of dealing with such cases; most of the members concurred with Mr. Henderson when he said:

"I never could bring myself to refuse food to any person, old or young, who asked for it at my door. I could not refuse without feeling that I had disobeyed the command of Christ: 'Give to him that asketh thee.' I should blame myself if, with food in my house, I suffered any one to feel the pains of hunger."

"So far as the Lord's command is concerned," said Dr. Sampson, "it is not restricted to gifts of food; it is an unqualified rule, is it not?"

Mr. Henderson owned that it was.

"Why, then, does it not require you to give money as well as food to every one who asks for it?"

"I confess," said Mr. Henderson, "that my exegesis is not very clear; but it always seemed to me that gifts of food are somewhat different from gifts of money; and that while it is evidently injudicious to give money to beggars, it is a sin in this land of plenty to let anybody go hungry."

"But Paul says," Mr. Strong ventured, "that if any man will not work, neither shall he eat. That maxim, too, is unqualified."

"How about those who are out of work and can find no employment?" queried Mr. Thorpe.

"The rule does not apply to them. If 'any man will not work,' its language is. Those who, for any reason, are unable to earn their livelihood must be fed. But in many cases 'can't' is the mask of 'won't;' the inability to find work is the fruit of a disinclination to work; and when it becomes evident that indolence is the root of the trouble, then starvation is the apostolic remedy, and I believe that it is the right remedy."

"I can't stand by and see a man starve, no matter what his fault may be?" protested Mr. Thorpe.

"I can," said Mr. Strong. "I shouldn't like to witness the suffering, but I would rather do it than violate that law of God which makes starvation the just penalty of idleness. We have set aside that law by our lazy and indiscriminate charities, and the consequence is a rapid increase of the pauper class in all our cities and large towns. It is time that we began to see the righteousness of that law, and to help in enforcing it, instead of helping men to evade it. There are just two things for us to do in this work of caring for the poor: We must make sure that no one who is both needy and helpless shall be allowed to suffer; and we must make it equally sure that no one who will not work shall escape suffering."

"But I do not see," said Dr. Strickland, "what this doctrine has to do with those little children who come to our doors for food. They are not able to earn their own livelihood; on Mr. Strong's principle I ought to feed them."

"Have you taken pains," asked Mr. Strong, "to investigate the life of any of these children?"

"Why, yes; I have questioned them. One of the cases, for example, is that of a little girl whose father was killed in the war and whose mother is sick with rheumatism. She came to the door the other day when we were at dinner, and it was the first time I had seen her. The poor child was scantily clad, and had the most pitiful face I ever saw."

"What was her name?" asked Mr. Strong.

"I do not recall it."

"Was it Katy Macauley?"

"Yes; I think that was it."

"Did she tell you where she lived?"

"Somewhere on James-street, I think."

"Yes; that is likely. She gives a great many addresses, but never the true one. Her home is at the top of the brick block, on the corner of Swift and Thorne streets; her mother is a miserable drunkard, not an invalid at all, and she is wholly supported by what this child brings in. The clothing that Katy begs, she peddles for money, and thus supplies herself with rum. Whether the father was killed in the war or not is known to nobody in this town; they have only lived here a few months; but it is certain that good Christian people who put food into Katy Macauley's basket are innocently helping to support the mother in vice and to doom the child to the life of a beggar. That is her calling now; what it will be by and by can easily be conjectured."

"You astound me," cried the good Rector. "I had never dreamed of such a condition of things."

"This is not an exceptional case," continued Mr. Strong. "For more than two years my wife has followed home every child who has begged at our door, and she has yet to find a single instance in which the parents are not either drunkards or criminals, or both; and I have conferred with several intelligent persons in Bradford, and in other cities, who have made a study of such cases, and they tell me that children who beg, come, almost universally, from homes of vice and shame. People who are really deserving of charity do not send their children out to beg. The support of these wretched people in idleness is a great evil, but it is nothing compared with the wrong that is done in making it possible for them to bind their children to the trade of beggary."

"Nevertheless, brethren," said Dr. Sampson, "we have the poor always with us—Christ's poor as well as the other kind; and the duty of finding them out and ministering to them is not to be neglected."

"Not only so," added Mr. Strong; "these very people that we have been talking about appeal to our charity quite as strongly as those whom we call the worthy poor. We must take care that they do not subsist in idleness and vice upon our gifts. Of material aid they need but little, though, sometimes, even to them, a little help of this sort in starting on a new career may not be amiss; but they need friendship more than anything else in the world,— a firm, sensible, honest, patient friend, who will show them a better way of living, and lead them into it, is, for every one of these wretched families, the one thing needful. The discovery that a large class of people exists among us who are harmed by the indiscriminate bestowment of money or material aid, is no sign that less charity is called for; not less, but more is demanded, only it must take a different form, I find no difficulty whatever in accepting Christ's unqualified rule of charity: 'Give to him that asketh thee.' Give to every beggar, I say; give him what he needs most, and satisfy yourself, before you give him anything, what are his deepest needs. If money will do him the most good, give him money; if food or clothing will do him the most good, give him food and clothing; but, if you study his case, you will probably find that the aid most needful is moral rather than physical. Some direction the man may require, and some encouragement, and much bracing of his will, and not a little rousing of his self-respect.

"If there is any kind of Christian work more imperative than this, I do not know where to find it. And there is enough of it to do. The problem of pauperism confronts us. In all our larger towns we find a growing class of those who are willing to subsist without work. The slipshod way in which official relief is generally given by the civil authorities encourages pauperism. The effect of our large system of industry, which builds up great corporations and gathers into tenement-houses a vast homeless population that drifts about from place to place and never takes root anywhere, is, I greatly fear, to develop pauperism. So we have among us a large number of these discouraged, unthrifty, hapless people, some of whom have begun to ask for alms, and some of whom have asked so often that mendicancy has become chronic with them. It takes but a short time for a family to sink down from self-respect to beggary, and, once in that slough, it is very hard to get out. Last winter our overseers of the poor granted out-door relief to more than one thousand different persons—one in fifteen of the whole population. The times were hard, but these figures must include not a few whose poverty arose from a defect of will. This shows us what a work we have to do, and I heartily agree with Dr. Strickland in thinking that it is high time we were about it. Excuse me, gentlemen, for inflicting on you a lecture, but the subject is one in which I am deeply interested."

"How are we to deal with this problem?" said Mr. Franklin.

"We need but little additional machinery," said Dr. Sampson. "The town is divided geographically among the Churches; each Church ought to subdivide its territory, and assign to each small district one or two visitors. There ought to be a central committee, meeting weekly during the winter, and consisting of one person from each Church. This committee should have an office, at which a record should be kept of all the cases aided, with full particulars of each case,—a record open to the inspection of visitors only. It would be better to have a common relief fund, under the control of the committee; visitors to grant only temporary relief, until they had laid the case fully before the committee. It would be necessary to have a secretary who should keep the register and who should be in the office at certain hours every day. Then the people should be pledged, if possible, to give no money, food, or clothing to unknown persons, but to refer every applicant to this secretary, who should put the case at once into the hands of the visitor in whose district the applicant lived. The secretary would need a map of the town, with the boundaries of each sub-district, and the name and address of its visitor. Thus all applications for alms could at once be investigated, and that over-lapping of charity, on which pauperism thrives, would not be possible."

* Abridged from The Century Magazine.

"The Doctor's scheme seems rational and feasible," said Mr. Franklin. "Can we not have the members of such a Central Committee chosen by the Churches this very week?"

To this question there was no negative.

"Then," said the Banker, "I trust the Doctor himself will attend the first meeting of the Committee, and submit his sketch of an organisation; and that the Churches will speedily subdivide their territory and appoint their visitors. No time should be lost."

"You've got some work to do," said Dr. Strickland, "in enlightening the community. Most of us have loose notions of what charity is. This talk has helped me, but the majority of my neighbours are as much in the dark as I was an hour ago."

"This is true," Mr. Strong added, "not only of the Church-people, but also of all those persons who sneer at the Churches and who boast a religion of 'good works.' The man who does not go to church, but who gives the poor family his ton of coal or his barrel of flour, off hand, and no questions asked, is the hero of a certain class. It will be difficult to make them see that their hero is doing about five times as much harm as good; and that what these poor people need is not tons of coal or barrels of flour, but time and thought and patient friendship. But if any man, saint or sinner, wants to follow Jesus Christ, this is the path by which he can come nearest to Him."

CAPE TOWN SOLDIERS' HOME.

IN a little publication called "Our Soldiers at the Cape," Mrs. Osborn gives an interesting account of the formation and success of the Homes at Cape Town and Wynberg. Commencing with two members, who, for want of some quiet place for prayer and reading, had been driven to the roof of the barracks or the public gardens, the work has grown under the superintendence of Mrs. Osborn, and now there are these two Homes with reading, coffee, and other rooms. Educational classes have been opened, various friends giving their professional services free of charge. The signatures in the pledge-book number five hundred. The salvation of souls is the object towards which all their efforts are directed, and many testimonies have been given by the soldiers of blessing received. Both the original members now devote themselves to the work, taking no salary.

The health of Mrs. Osborn has lately quite broken down, and prayer is asked that a fellow-labourer may be led to join her in the work. Help in money, books, periodicals, &c., will be thankfully received by Miss Clara L. M. Lowe, 6, Maberly-road, Upper Norwood, S.E.

DOCK LABOURERS' MISSION.—The friends in connection with this work have, during the past year, held 543 Gospel services, and daily visited the labourers at their work in order to extend a helping hand where required. Over 5000 free meals have been given in the same period, and free lodgings to 2020. The work has been blessed to the salvation of some of the labourers. Great distress prevails amongst these men at present. In the annual account just closed a small debt is due to the treasurer. Mr. C. Coleman, 26, Chamber-street, London Docks, E., is superintendent.

TWO DEATH SCENES.

I.—THE CHRISTIAN ARTIZAN.

WE have received two intensely interesting extracts from the diary of a hospital nurse—a lady of good social position and high accomplishments, who has devoted her life to this noble Samaritan work of tending the sick and sorrowing. The second extract, which we hope to give in our next issue, will show a picture sadly different from the following touching account of a triumphant Christian death-bed:—

Sunday, Oct. 5.—The matron has been away for a week, which makes the night-work and responsibility much greater. I have charge of the hospital, being responsible for forty-eight patients, in four wards. An accident may come in at any moment, but thanks be to God, "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me."

When I came on duty at 9.30 p.m., I found the house-surgeon out, and not expected to return before 1 a.m. Two bad accidents had been admitted to Male Ward No. 1. After receiving instructions as to poultices, medicine, &c., required, from the tired out day-nurses, I took my first "round" at ten o'clock. I often wonder if anyone except those who have experienced it can picture to themselves a hospital ward at night. The long, double row of beds, the dim light, the faint odour of disinfectants, the groans and moans—all these produce a strange feeling, that to be realised must be seen and heard. At least, so I thought, as I entered Male Ward No. 1 last night, with a whispered prayer for help and strength, and, above all, for blessing on my work for one more night.

I found Nurse Jones still in charge of the sixteen men, as the two accident cases were there, and could not be left. She quickly gave me her instructions for the night, and I went to look at the two last arrivals. The first was a poor old window cleaner, who fell from his post; arm and three ribs broken. He was in much pain. Hoping the sleeping draught would soon take effect, I soothed him as well as I could, made his pillow a little more comfortable, and left him, hearing him mutter as I went, "God bless you."

This gave me courage, and I passed the row of beds to the far corner, where the screen closely drawn round a bed plainly indicated "Dangerous." Nurse told me before leaving her charge, "The doctor says he cannot last long. He fell fifty feet: his back is broken, and the lower limbs paralysed, but he can speak. He doesn't know his danger, but seems quiet, and you must watch him closely; he may go at any moment—it is a hopeless case." Poor Nurse Jones went wearily off to bed, and I was left indeed "alone."

"A hopeless case"; "may go at any moment," was ringing in my ears, and thankful that at least speech was left him, I sat down beside him and asked God to give me words to say. By the dim light I could see he was a young, strong-looking man; he was in great pain, and I tried to think how I could best relieve him, as I watched his uneasy movements.

Presently he opened his eyes, and looking at me said, "Another nurse?" "Yes," I replied, cheerfully, "I have come to take care of you and the others through the night." He was quiet a few minutes, then turning on me a look of unutterable agony and longing, said, "Nurse, I cannot live; the doctor said there might be a chance, but I know there is none. It was an awful fall, and it will be my death."

I asked if he knew the Great Physician, when, to my joy, he said, "Oh, yes, I love Jesus, and may He forgive me for wanting to live when He wishes to take me home." "Thank God!" I said. "Then you are not afraid of death, for you know in whom you trust, and He will save to the uttermost those who come to Him." His reply again was, "Oh, yes, I love Jesus. I have served Him for three years, ever since those two gentlemen who preached and sang hymns were here—Moody and Sankey. They know nothing about me, but God does, and I am not afraid to die."

I said, "I suppose it was at one of their meetings, then, you found peace in Christ?" "Yes, at one of their meetings, bless them; they know nothing about it."

I asked if he could trust God fully. "All things work together for good to those that love God," was his reply. "Yes," I said, "and you believe, although it may be death, this fall is for your good?" "Yes, blessed be God who has given me the victory! Do you know, nurse, as I fell through the air I knew there was a heap of stones that I must fall on, and I knew it was death. And swift as an arrow the thought came to me that I was glad it was not my mate beside whom I worked; for a minute before he was uttering the most awful oaths, and it is a fearful thing to go unprepared into the presence of God."

Poor fellow, his sufferings were very dreadful; the frequent injections of morphia gave little ease, but he bore it all with the greatest fortitude and patience, and bravely looked forward to the moment when he should be released. He lingered for two days longer; on Tuesday night, directly I came on duty I saw the end was near. He repeated after me with fervour Psalm xxiii.; then whispered "Lord, increase my faith." Once he said, "God forgive me, I am so impatient." He kept repeating, "Loving Father, forgive all my sins; Jesus, Saviour, come! Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly." He became delirious towards morning, but still called on Jesus; he tried to get out of bed, and when I held his hand to soothe him, he did not recognise me any longer.

At 2.30 a.m. his pulse, which had been beating wildly, became faint, and slow, and I knelt in silent prayer as his spirit passed away. Quietly he "fell asleep in Jesus." Surely, I thought, as I rose from my knees, this was not "a hopeless case."

BLUE RIBBON ARMY.

THIS movement has extended to such a degree throughout the country that Mr. Noble has been compelled to reduce his personal superintendence at Hoxton, in order to respond to calls for help in "Blue Ribbon Gospel Temperance" Missions. Mr. Noble has been supported in his work at the Hall itself by a staff of voluntary helpers, whose efforts have met with most encouraging success. More than twenty meetings of various kinds are held weekly, appealing to persons of all ages. One thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven consecutive nightly meetings have been held to this date; many thousand pledges have been taken, and continued testimony is being given of spiritual and temporal blessing received at Hoxton-hall. The deputation work is increasing to such an extent that additional arrangements are being made to supply speakers, of whom a reliable staff is already available. It has been found necessary to acquire accommodation for Bible and other classes, and in which to transact secretarial and committee work. Suitable premises adjoining the hall in Hoxton-street have been secured on lease, and the requisite alterations are now in progress.

As funds are greatly needed to carry on the work successfully, the committee beg for the earnest consideration of the public. Further particulars of the work will be found in "The Blue Ribbon Army Gospel Temperance Movement: Its Founder, and its Work," published by Messrs. Partridge & Co., of 9, Paternoster-row, E.C., with whom arrangements have been made for the supply of all cards and publications relating to the movement.

THE WRONG TRAIN.

A WORD TO CHRISTIANS FOR THE NEW YEAR.

I WAS standing on the platform of a London railway-station when, among the throngs that came and went, I noticed a tall, distressed-looking old man, anxiously pacing up and down. He seemed in a perfect fever of excitement, and kept asking if the next train were not his, until the officials grew weary of him, and refused to answer him. Then he asked every man on the platform until, a train coming in, he rushed up to two young men just passing through the barrier, and asked, like one bereft of his right senses—

"My train, my train, is this my train?—quick!"

"Yes, this is your train, I've no doubt," said one, smiling at his companion, while the old man rushed to enter a carriage. "He didn't say where he wanted to go, either, old stupid!" and he laughed at the idea of the old man getting into the wrong train.

I had heard him inquire for B——, and finding that the train now in the station was going to K——, I made a rush for the compartment I had seen him enter, and, as quickly as I could, told him he was in the wrong train, and helped him out. He could hardly stand for excitement, and as I assisted the poor old man to a seat on the platform, he sobbed out—

"I'm going to see my dying daughter, and if I had gone by that train, I should never have seen her alive again!"

I said a few words to comfort him, but he seemed to know nothing of the consolations of Christ's Gospel. I put into his hand a tiny book, entitled "Lean on the Rock," but he was too agitated to read anything just then. In five minutes' time I told him his train was coming in, and, as I was going part of the way, I entered the carriage with him. Once upon his journey he got more peaceful, and said to me—

"You have been very kind; I shall keep your little book as a remembrance of that kindness."

"Will you read it when you can do so?" I asked.

Yes, yes, he would read a little now. It would, perhaps, change the sad current of his thoughts; so, taking out his spectacles, he read the little book, until I saw the tears stealing down his cheeks, and I sent up a silent prayer that God would bless the reading with the seal of His Spirit.

"Do you lean on this Rock?" the old man asked me.

"Yes; it is all I dare lean upon with confidence. It is the only Rock upon which we cannot make shipwreck."

Then he read, in a low, musing voice, as if to himself:—

"'His gentle breast is the shelter of every sorrow-stricken spirit. He is touched with the feeling of our infirmities. He careth for us in all our cares. He healeth the broken-hearted. He comforts all that mourn. What rock is like our Rock—so mighty, so changeless, yet so kind and compassionate to all who flee to Him?'"

"Yes," I said, remarking upon the passage quoted, "He is waiting to bear your present sorrow, if you will only roll it all upon Him—He will shield you—lean on the Rock."

"My daughter leans on it; she is safer than I am; and I am a very old man now—I want something to lean on, and this seems just the very thing. I know Mary would wish it so."

We entered another station, and our compartment was soon full of business men, reading their newspapers. A very florid-complexioned clergyman sat next the old man, who, seeing his calling, and turning to so likely a source for sympathy in his present state of mind, said to him in an undertone—

"This little book has been comforting me, sir, for I'm in very great trouble; would you look at it, sir?"

A gruff "No, thank you," was all he got for answer—not another word. And this from a minister of the Gospel! He is not likely to see these lines, or I would remind him of the words: "Be pitiful—be courteous."

My station was now reached; the old man grasped my hand and said, "I will lean on the Rock—I need support. Thank you very kindly!" I took a copy of THE CHRISTIAN off the bookstall, and had only time to thrust it in his hand when the train was off. I do not suppose I shall ever see my fellow-passenger of an hour again in this life; but I pray he may be led to the Rock, and find in it all strength and shelter. As I walked along, I mused on the subject of Christian responsibility, and I thought of the old man getting in the wrong train. Had I allowed him to go on his way, travelling the wrong road and thinking it to be the right one, I could not justify my conduct by saying that I felt "delicate on the subject," or "He was quite a stranger to me."

Nor can Christians, who allow thousands around them to go by the wrong road without a word of warning, justify their faithless conduct by saying: "The time and place were not opportune; they felt delicate; it was a subject to be approached with great caution," &c. &c. Caution! What kind of caution? Do we see a child rush to the edge of a precipice, but make no effort to save it from falling over, because we have certain scruples about touching its clothes, being fearful of making a rent in them if we seize them too hastily? This sort of caution is death to our Christianity, and some of us have so much of it that we are getting afraid to study our Bibles—there are so many plain and startling truths there.

A lady was dying, and her faithful nurse said to her: "You'll meet a Stranger to-night, ma'am—the Lord Jesus Christ." The poor slave to form and ceremony, trembling in dying agony, exclaimed: "Oh, nurse, and I have never been introduced! What shall I do?"

It creeps into everything—this following the world's customs. Are we, the sons and daughters of God, to be so influenced by it as to see a sister or brother going by the world's great railway to the City of Destruction, without lifting our voice or stretching out our hands to save them, because it is not the time, it is not the place? God make haste to help us if this is where some of us stand to-day with perishing souls around us! The time is "Now;" the place is just where God has put us—at home, abroad, with friends, strangers. We are to "shine as lights in the world." May He help us to do it more faithfully throughout the year that has opened!

M. B. GERDS.

CHILDREN'S MEDICAL MISSION.—During another year this missionary society has been the means of giving shape to the activities of many young people. A meeting of helpers is held every month at 9, Chester-square. As a result of their loving labours last year, 200 garments, besides many scrap-books, &c., have been made. These, with dolls and toys, are distributed amongst the little sufferers in our hospitals as well as in their own homes. The workers have collected, by means of boxes and sales of work, over £25, which has been divided amongst five medical missionary societies. Money, toys of any description, or materials for work, as flannel, calico, &c., will be gratefully received by Mrs. Hewan, 9, Chester-square, S.W.

THE WEE RAGGIT LADDIE.

DINNA tease the raggit laddie,
See, the tears are in his e'en!
Puir wee thing, he canna help it,
Tho' his claes be coorse and mean.

"My wee mannie, fat's yer faither?
Far's yer mither?—Is she livin'?"
"Na," said he, and sabbit sairlie,
"Baith my pairents are in heaven."

Puir mysel', I felt mair keenly
A' the wee bit laddie's grief,
Took him hame, and kept him cleanly;
Saved a beggar!—saved a thief!

Thirty years I've kent the laddie—
For I ca' him laddie still,
Tho' he's buirdly, big, and manly,
And the maister o' a mill.

A' the kindness I e'er gied him,
He has three times ower repaid;
Jails and police were his portion,
Had he nae got timely aid.

O gin folks wi' gear in goupins*
Wad relieve wee wan'erin' things!
It wad gie them sweeter pleasure
Than their hoarded siller brings.

. . . . .

Tho' the soil whiles proves unfruitfu',
Deeds o' kindness canna dee;
A' the kind help we've affordit
By the King is kept recordit;
His decisive words will be:
"Fat ye did tae my puir children,
I reward as dune tae Me."

[From "Glasgow Orphan Home Leaflets," to be had of Mr. W. Quarrier, 318, St. Vincent-street, Glasgow, 2d. per doz.]

A NEW PHASE OF THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT.

A CURIOUS illustration is found in some recent numbers of The Queen newspaper of the progress of the Temperance sentiment in England. In the department of queries, a lady under the name of Cecchino had written, stating her income and outlay, and asking advice as to what economies she might practise so as to be able to keep some sort of carriage. Among the items of her expenditure was £72 a-year on wine and beer.

One correspondent finds here a useless and needless expenditure, which would of itself suffice for a pony-carriage. Another writes that she herself had made the experiment of abstinence, thinking it would be a great act of self-denial, but at the end of three months had found her reward "in the added health and comfort of the household generally; work better done; happiness and content instead of quarrels in the kitchen; and an economy that would quite cover the expense of a carriage and pair of horses." When the rule of abstinence was laid down, the servants had no objection, and in changing from time to time, the rule was no difficulty. Fresh milk, fresh spring water, or water with fresh lemon squeezed into it, were the beverages of the house.

A third correspondent enforces the plan by the consideration of the great benefit it is to female servants (many of whom become the wives of working men), to become abstainers, and learn by practice the advantages it brings. This correspondent goes fully into the ways by which servants may not only be instructed themselves, but may usefully influence their acquaintances. She herself had been in delicate health, and had long taken wine on that account, without any improvement; nor did she become strong till she left off the practice. A fourth correspondent enlarges on the benefit of substituting a money payment to servants for an allowance of beer. We are glad to learn that a member of the British Women's Temperance Association is about to have these letters printed as a tract for general circulation.—The Catholic Presbyterian.

* Abundance of Wealth.

BIBLE READINGS ON THE HOLY SPIRIT.

By GEORGE C. NEEDHAM.

V.—THE HOLY SPIRIT AND CHARACTER.

IN the sight of God we are judicially perfect in Christ (Jude 24; Col. i. 22). He is now presenting us by his priestly ministrations, and in his own inherent holiness, as a holy people to the Father. The ultimate purpose of Jesus Christ is to "present unto Himself a glorious Church, without spot or wrinkle" (Eph. v. 27). But we are still in the body, and the Holy Spirit is given that He may keep us without spot and blameless unto the coming of our Lord.

There are many elements that go to make up character. First of all, there is life. The third Person in the Godhead is called "the Spirit of Life" (Rom. viii. 2). It is essentially the work of the Spirit to produce life in the soul of man. Then He comes to dwell in the living soul. He loves to dwell in the scene of life, to provide for Himself a princely palace in the heart of regenerate man.

Another element of character is truth. The man who is not truthful, even in the world's estimation is not a man of good character. So the Spirit is called the Spirit of Truth (John xiv. 17). In all our transactions, and in all our relations with our fellowmen, we must be truthful, else our Christian testimony will be of no avail. Three times in the three chapters, John xiv.—xvi., the Holy Ghost is termed the Spirit of Truth. He guides us into all truth; presents the truth to us; and leads us to walk in the truth.

He is also designated the Spirit of holiness (Rom. i. 4). There can be no real Christian character without practical holiness. God hath chosen us in Christ, that we should be holy (Eph. i. 4). If we bear the name of Christ we are commanded to be holy (2 Tim. ii. 19). Holiness primarily means separation. Practically it is moral excellence. We are to follow after holiness (Heb. xii. 14). As a dog scenting the game is intent on the pursuit of it, so the believer is to lay out all his energies in the pursuit of holiness. It must be the great object of our renewed life.

Our "conversation" is to be holy; this word covers the whole life of the believer. To this end the Spirit is given—to lead us in the paths of holiness, that the world may be convinced of the reality of our profession and our possession of that which they do not possess. Thus, if we should never open our lips, we may exemplify a holiness of character that shall win others to the feet of our Lord and King. As McCheyne said, "What a dreadful weapon in the hands of God is a holy man!" In proportion as we are holy, the power of the Spirit shall rest upon us.

Then He is called the Spirit of wisdom, which is another element of character. We read of Bezaleel, who was filled with the Spirit of God in wisdom (Ex. xxxi. 2). A man may show worldly or intellectual wisdom without the Spirit, but the wise in heart are taught by the Spirit of God.

Strength is another element of character. Power was given to the early disciples for testimony, for witness bearing, and also for endurance. So in all times of persecution and reproach, if we are to take our stand for God in testimony to those around us, we need the strength which will enable us to endure.

Goodness, too, is an important element in character. "Thy Spirit is good" (Ps. cxliii. 10). When in the early days of the Church they wanted men to manage their secular affairs, they were enjoined to look out for those who were "of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost" (Acts vi. 3). Barnabas was "a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost" (Acts xi. 24). Apart from public testimony, or public position, goodness must be seen in the personal life. In those early days the Church looked not for moneyed men, or men of social influence and position, but for men of sound judgment, and who were irreproachable in their personal life, upon whom the Holy Ghost was resting. In our own day we need officials in the Church who shall be above criticism.

Character, in short, is Christ formed in us through the Spirit. In all the minutiæ of domestic life, and commercial life, just as much as in public testimony, the power and teaching of the Spirit are needed for the building up of true Christian character. The pagan king Pharaoh attributed the character of Joseph to the Spirit of God. By his patience, meekness, truthfulness, and purity of life he won from Pharaoh this eulogy: "Can we find such an one as this, a man in whom the Spirit of God is?" (Gen. xli. 38). So let us yield ourselves to the power of the Holy Ghost that He may chisel off the angles and corners, tone down the harsh lines, and bring out in us the image of Jesus Christ. Let our prayer be, not so much that we may be great, as that we may be holy, men and women.

PRAYER FOR MOHAMMEDANS.

THE following call to prayer is from a much-esteemed correspondent, who has himself done zealous service for Christ in a land where the Mohammedan religion holds powerful sway:

When there is so much attention at present being directed to Egypt, do not the circumstances call for special prayer on the part of believing Christians for the evangelisation of the Mohammedan lands? Egypt is one of the Mohammedan lands. Fifteen per cent. of the population of the world, or about 180 millions of the human race, are Mohammedans. Forty millions of our fellow-subjects in India are Moslems—more than all the subjects of Islam in the Turkish Empire. The Mohammedan religion approaches the Christian at some points more closely than any other, yet in the same degree does its hatred of the distinctive doctrines of the divinity and the atonement of Christ become intensified. The law of the Mohammedan religion is intolerant and persecuting, and the Koran pronounces sentence of death on the apostate Moslem.

Little has been done in the way of direct evangelisation among the adherents of this faith, and little in the way of tangible results has been achieved. Converts from Islam in Egypt have had to flee the country for their lives, and similar necessity has been laid on them elsewhere. The stubborn resistance of this faith to the progress of the Gospel need by no means discourage Christian perseverance. When in good earnest they resist so stoutly, perhaps all the more might it be concluded that they are well worth taking some very special pains with in order to win them to the Gospel, and that they will do good service for the defence and the diffusion of the Gospel when God's set time to favour them has come.

It is not quite clear how far it is at present practicable or possible to do direct missionary work among Moslems. At present, undoubtedly, for direct systematic missionary effort in this field the door is almost entirely shut. Perhaps something of a Mission of Inquiry might yet be undertaken by some of the Churches or of the missionary societies. But whether this may be done or some other more excellent way be found, in any case the call to special prayer by the Christian Church cannot at this time be regarded as unseasonable.

PRAYER-MEETINGS.—A correspondent, referring to the recent discussion on this subject, calls attention to Mr. Moody's "Talk" on "How to make prayer-meetings attractive," published by Mr. Andrew Elliot, 17, Princes-street, Edinburgh. Price 3s. 6d. per hundred.

Y.M.C.A. NEW YEAR RECEPTIONS.

THE committee and members of the Y.M.C. Associations in London have begun the new year most auspiciously. On Tuesday evening, last week, Mr. and Mrs. Farmer Hall invited the young men of the Central Branch to a New Year's reception, at Exeter Hall. More than 700 responded.

Refreshments were liberally provided from 7 to 9.30 p.m. Stereoscopes, microscopes, and other optical instruments, with kind and learned friends to explain their working, were placed in the reading-room In an adjoining room a crowd of young men were greatly entertained by the wonderful performances of the Phonograph, or "Talking Machine," which faithfully reproduced whatever was addressed to it. The singing of Mr. Birch, from the Chapel Royal, gave great pleasure.

The addresses of Rev. F. Greeves and Rev. W. R. Mowll were full of fervour, and well-calculated to encourage the young men "to go forth to meet the shadowy future without fear, and with a manly heart." Mr. Geo. Williams, Mr. Farmer Hall, Mr. Hind Smith, Mr. Burson, and other friends, materially added to the enjoyment and profit of the evening.

At 186, Aldersgate-street, on Thursday evening, some 400 or 500 members and associates responded to the invitation issued by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Williams. This meeting was minus the attractive accessories that contributed to the delectation of the company at Exeter Hall; but the void was more than filled by the kindly, earnest, and inspiring words that fell from the lips of Mr. Williams the Chairman, and other speakers, in the course of the evening.

Mr. Hugh Matheson prayed that as they began the year together, they might be enabled to consecrate it unreservedly to the Lord. Mr. Williams said the new year always reminded him of a new volume. Last year's volume contained many blots; let us look up to the Lord for more grace to prevent the blots this year.

Rev. J. R. Wood, of Holloway, in earnest and telling words, besought his hearers to remember that the great thinking faculty which God had given them was to be cultivated for Christ's sake. When Christ purchased us, He purchased the whole man. In allusion to reading habits, he said that young men were wanted who would take a book and master its contents. He felt that neither ministers nor general readers gave sufficient place to the Bible in their reading. It is the Book that contains the secret of God's heart, as well as the secret of all true human life.

Mr. G. C. Needham followed with a brief and interesting address, at the close of which, during silent prayer, many young men lifted up the hand, signifying their desire to be the Lord's. It was a solemn moment, and a fruitful after-meeting was the result. Mr. Hugh Matheson, Mr. Robert Paton, and Mr. W. P. Crombie also took part. The last-named brother, who was lately Travelling Secretary to the Canadian Associations, spoke with much force of real practical good done by the network of Associations spread all over the world.

These reunions were not altogether free from that exaggerated complimentary talk of which there is far too much at our religious meetings generally. On the whole, however, they were most enjoyable and profitable occasions.

HOXTON HALL.—To a very crowded audience on Monday evening, the 1st inst., Mr. William Noble delivered Mr. Gough's famous lecture on "The Importance of the Temperance Enterprise." The depiction of the many horrible results attending drunkenness was given with great power and effect. At the close over eighty signed the pledge.

MARYLEBONE MEDICAL MISSION.—Dear Sir,—I am in great need of a few earnest Christian ladies to work in connection with this mission. There is plenty of work to do, and any devoted lady will find an admirable opportunity of working for the Lord.—Yours faithfully, 43, Carlisle-street, Edgware-road, N.W. ROBERT CHAMBERS.

THE CHINA INLAND MISSION.

OUR readers will peruse with sympathetic interest the following account, contributed to the Bombay Guardian, by a correspondent who dates his communication Shanghai, Oct. 2 :—

It has been my privilege, in the course of four or five weeks, to see, with involuntary admiration, the work of several missionary societies in China, especially that of the London Missionary Society and the Methodist Episcopal Church. But I select the China Inland Mission as the subject of a few remarks, because it is the missionary organisation most unlike the rest in this field, and also least like any of the Missions in India. I do not call what I am writing an account or description, because I have not collected facts and statistics wherewith to furnish a statement that would admit of that Mission being weighed in the balances against other Missions. I dislike attempting to weigh God's work.

The men and women of the Inland Mission come to this country without a guarantee of support, and being launched into the midst of heathen populations, often without a single sympathiser within many days' call, some of them have to suffer privations greater, far greater, in my judgment than any that have tested the faith of even the missionaries of the Methodist Episcopal Church in South India. Not a few of them have been in straits for their daily bread; and when those of us who enjoy good health and freedom from family anxieties endeavour to realise what they must endure when afflicted with sickness and perplexed with the care of children, we can only thank God that our faith in his power and goodness has been put to a less terrible test. For isolation in China means isolation. Missionaries in India have been isolated. But that is a different thing. Place a missionary and his wife—the lady bearing children—in a native house in the heart of the city of Poona. Remove every European and every person who can speak English in Poona and the surrounding towns and villages to a distance considerably further off than Bombay and Sholapoor and Ahmednugger. Remove also every trace of the British Government, and put a Peishwa at the head of affairs. Destroy the railway and the telegraph. Do all this, and you have a situation in which many a man of the Inland Mission has found himself.

So much for privations. Now for discomforts and those outrages upon the feelings which, to nearly all women at least, are harder to bear than the want of good and sufficient food. Owing to the absence of caste, and perhaps for other reasons, it happens that the contact of all missionaries with the natives is closer in China than it ordinarily is in India. When they travel in native boats or in native carts there is an assimilation to native habits which it would require some practice for an Indian missionary to submit to. And when they arrive at a town they provide neither tent nor bullock dumnee to take shelter in, but walk straight to the Dhurmshala, as you would call it, and spread their bedding where a Chinaman had his the night before.

Now all missionaries except those of the Indian Mission are able to exercise a certain regard for their ladies in these circumstances, and by the outlay of money to soften the offensive experience of this mode of life. But the China Inland missionaries have not the money, and when they make a journey of several hundred miles in a hired cart or in a small river boat they are obliged to see things and do things which the natives see and do, but which with my utmost realisation of the dire need of China's heathenism, I can scarcely persuade myself it is lawful for ladies from England to be exposed to. At the same time, nothing is more unaccountably evident than that the women themselves to not complain, but patiently rise to any measure of heroism that may be required from them, exhibiting at once the sustaining power of God and the unquenchable love of Christ. If it be said that men who believe themselves called to join this Mission ought not to take wives to themselves, our answer is that most of their wives are chosen from their lady colleagues, who have full knowledge of the conditions when they consent to be wives.

The true explanation of the case is that any person with humanity and religion in his heart, looking seriously at China's millions hurrying to their last account at the rate of 33,000 daily, is so harrowed by the sight that no sacrifice seems of the smallest account for an attempt to rescue them. And nothing is more certain than that if money were offered to these patient sufferers to improve their circumstances they would give it to bring more labourers to the field. In this view it is not easy to think considerately of the tens of thousands of comfortable Christians at home who withhold their means from what is, in reality and truth, the one great object of the Church. How many rich men and women, if placed in the position of these missionaries, would give all they possess to buy their escape. Yet escape is the last thing the missionaries think of. They want helpers. There are at present about seventy in the field, including a large number of single ladies; and about one hundred if we add the married ladies. The total number of missionaries of all denominations, men and women, is about six hundred and twenty-seven.

The captain of a steamer plying on the Yangtse river told me that when he stopped on a dark night at one of the stations on the bank, several of the Inland missionaries came on board among a crowd of Chinese seeking a passage in the steerage, as they invariably do. They had encountered a mob of anti-foreign natives, which it is still very easy to do in this country, and had been well pelted and bespattered with mud. One of the ship's officers, seeing especially the ladies in their humiliating condition, exclaimed with the customary profanity, that he wondered they did not leave the Chinese to go to hell if they preferred to do so. That was the world's view of the case; and, as I said to the captain, there would have been no other view in the world to-day if the Son of God had not taught it and set an example of it and bestowed the grace for it.

At Chefoo, which is the principal foreign sanitarium of China, Mr. Elliston, of the Inland Mission, conducts a boys' school. I have been led to believe that he is qualified for the work, and that the effort has been appreciated a great deal more than he was prepared to find it. On my brief and unexpected visit to the school, I noticed cleanliness and order on the premises, stillness in the class-room, and vigilance in the teacher. Chefoo is not Bombay; but to compare the small with the great, the relation between teacher and scholars was as like as possible to that which has brought about the famous success of the Scottish High School in Byculla. The school was intended originally for the sons of the missionaries, as the latter have no prospect of sending their children to England to be educated. But it soon appeared that far and near in China there were foreigners, i.e., Europeans and Americans, whose moderate circumstances placed them in the same perplexity with the missionaries. So instead of having to wait for support, Mr. Elliston has been obliged to make boys wait for admission to his school; and a new building, on a much larger scale and a more suitable plan than the one in use, is under construction without a dollar of missionary money, and is more than half finished. The boys I saw were in robust health. Besides having almost unlimited scope for out-door exercise, they are within three minutes' walk of the open sea, away altogether from the harbour, and daily swimming is part of the school programme.

EAST LONDON SEWING CLASS FUND.—The sewing classes in connection with this fund rendered most timely and efficient help last winter to many families by enabling poor women to earn 1s. to 1s. 6d. a week, while many received blessing in hearing the Scriptures read and explained. This winter the poverty and privation in the East-end are very great. The sewing class has been found to be an excellent way of helping poor women. £1 enables one woman to be admitted all through the season of need. Subscriptions may be sent to the Hon. Kathleen Hobart-Hampden, 15, Eccleston-square, S.W.

THE WOMEN OF CHINA.

THE members of the "Women's Prayer Union for the Women of China," and their friends, held a meeting for conference and prayer, on Thursday, 28th December, in the Ladies' Waiting-room, Conference Hall, Mildmay-park. The chair was taken by the Rev. J. McCarthy, of the China Island Mission.

Miss Boyd read a statement, giving some facts about the formation and present position of the movement. It was cheering to find that more than 280 Christian women are banded together, daily praying for blessing to rest upon the work among the poor degraded and down-trodden women of China; and also that, in connection with the Union, help has been rendered for the education of several children in Mission schools.

Additional interest was added to the meeting by the fact that three of the members present have been accepted for work by the China Inland Mission, and are hoping soon to leave for their future sphere of work.

In response to the invitation of the Chairman, these three sisters—Miss K. Goodman, Miss Carpenter, and Miss M. Carpenter—each mentioned some of the reasons, and providential indications, which had led them to the conclusion that the Lord had called them to the work. They asked for a constant remembrance in the prayers of those present. Special and earnest prayer was then offered for these friends, and request made that others might be raised up for the work.

Mrs. G. C. Needham, referring to the deep interest felt by herself, and her husband and children, in the work in China, mentioned what a pleasure it had been to them to become responsible for the support of Yang Tsien-ling, the native Christian who had accompanied Mr. McCarthy on his journey across China. Mrs. Needham sought to encourage the sisters about to leave to trust in the Lord for help in the acquisition of the language, by referring to the case of a German Christian, who desired to learn English, in order that he might understand God's truth, and who had been wonderfully helped by the Lord, though in his unconverted days he had ineffectually sought to accomplish the same end.

Mr. McCarthy, in closing the meeting, took occasion to remind the friends present that it was since the formation of the Prayer Union that Christian women had been able, for the first time, to reside in the interior of the Chinese Empire, and carry on their work in peace. He also called attention to the objects of the Union, expressing an opinion that if all these objects were kept steadily in mind, the number of members might easily be doubled during the coming year. These objects are :—

1. To remember in prayer, every day, the women of China, and those labouring among them.

2. To seek to interest others in the spiritual condition of the women of China.

3. To seek special guidance as to the way each may personally help, as well as pray, for the women of China.

Cards of membership of the Union can be had on application to Miss E. Boyd, 5, Aldridge-road-villas, London, W.

THE PILGRIM CHURCH.—In the societies associated with this Church there are powerful levers for lifting out of the mire of sin the unsaved. In the "Help-Myself Society" there are 1500 men, all of whom are total abstainers, and in the membership of our "Help-One-Another Society" there are over 700 women. Associated with the "Help-Myself-Society," T. E. Barnes as Colporteur, and T. Craine as Missionary, are doing good service throughout the District. The "Help-One-Another Society," with Miss Eliza Craine as Secretary and Visitor, is becoming a great power for good among the women of Southwark. Prayer is earnestly requested that spiritual joy may be brought to many hearts and homes as the result of these and other agencies. Next March a bazaar is to be held to remove the debt on the new galleries. Friends are invited to help. Any contributions thankfully received by Lloyd Harris, or John Jennings, Secretary, Pilgrim Church, New Kent-road, S.E.

For the Young.

OUR CHRISTMAS DINNER.

DEAR SIR,—My father said to me that you wanted some children to write for the page "For the Young" in THE CHRISTIAN; so I thought I would tell you about the dinner we gave to some poor children on Boxing Day. There are six children in our family; we all agreed to give up our Christmas dinner and give one to the poor children. We invited twelve children to come, but they brought more, so we had fifteen. But we had plenty of room for them in the kitchen. We had it all gay with Christmas decorations.

When they sat down we sang grace; then we gave them their dinner, which they enjoyed. Then we sang grace again, and one little boy repeated a hymn. Before they all went they had an orange and mincepie each given to them.

Perhaps some other little children would like to give up their dinner, next Christmas, because Jesus Christ would be so pleased. He gave up everything for us. It is very nice to give up things for Him when we can.—Yours sincerely, NELLIE (age 11).

[Nellie has done very well indeed, and we thank her for giving us such a nice account of the dinner to the poor children. But the "other little children" need not wait till next Christmas before they try to help their poor neighbours.—ED.]

ANOTHER YEAR.

Another year has rolled away, with all its sins, with all its sorrows, its partings, and to some its bereavements. Another year has begun: may God help us to keep ourselves unspotted from the world. We can only do so by seeking Divine guidance. We cannot depend on ourselves. If we ask God for the Holy Spirit believingly, He will send it. Jesus said, "Ask and ye shall receive."

If the disciples of Christ would only pray for blessings they would come. Prayer is the support of true religion. As we cannot live without eating food, so we cannot live spiritually without prayer. If we pray to God for blessing we shall have success. God's Word is full of promises; we have only to ask, and we shall receive; not always, however, in the way we expect.

Let us, then, commence the New Year with prayer for ourselves and for the Church of Christ, and we must prosper.

A. M. (age 13).

TOZIE.

She was such a queer little girl, with bright, intelligent, dark eyes, and restless limbs that were never still! And she had a very queer name too. I don't know what her real name was, but I believe everybody called her "Tozie." Such a naughty little girl, too, she used to be! So self-willed and selfish, with a passionate temper that was constantly flashing out, and making her very unhappy.

When she was about six years old she was led to give her heart to the Saviour, and from that time Tozie was different. Some people say that such young children cannot understand what is meant by loving and serving Jesus, but it was quite certain that Tozie did. The knowledge that she had determined to be a little Christian was a check upon her when angry words came boiling up, because her little baby sister wanted a toy she was playing with. At such times she would stop short and turn very red, and presently would say, "There, baby, you may have it;" going up a minute afterwards to her mother or nurse who might be in the room saying, "Is Jesus pleased?" in an emphatic way that she had; and adding, "I thought He wouldn't like me to be selfish, because He never was. Is He pleased?"

When Tozie first began to learn music, it was a sad trial to her temper and patience. If there were a few notes that she could not quite see how to play, she would dash the music to the ground, and thump all over the piano with passion, making sad discord on the keys, and so it was very hard work for anybody to teach her. But after she had begun to love Jesus, she used to try and conquer this naughty temper, and then when a difficult passage came, her kind teacher had only to say, "Look up, Tozie," and when she did "look up" for help, it was wonderful, as she said, to see how quickly it was sent down to her.

I have told this little story for two reasons. (1) That no one may think he or she is too young to begin loving Jesus. (2) That we should all try more to bring our religion into daily practice. Tozie felt that it was of no use saying she had given her heart to the Saviour if she did not ask Him to help her in every little thing, and she had been taught that nothing was too small to tell Jesus.

Many of us would not forget to ask his guidance if we were going out as missionaries, or were about to establish a Sunday-school, or undertake any so-called "great" work, but when it comes to little matters like our music lessons or work, we think they are too small to take to the Master. Trying to do them in our own strength, we fail and get discouraged. That is not what we should do. His loving ear is ever open to the cry of the least among his little ones. The more we get into the habit of going to Him in all our joys and griefs, the more blessed shall be our communion with Him, and the more we shall grow in grace as we grow in years.

EMILY M. FOX.

THE GOSPEL IN SARDINIA.

WRITING from 15, Via Cavour, Sassari, Sardinia, the Rev. J. E. Thomas sends us an account of the work being done on that island. During the past four years he has been circulating the Scriptures and preaching the Gospel in all the principal towns and villages in the province of Sassari, which is situated in the northern part of Sardinia. The island, spiritually, is in a very deplorable condition, being full of darkness, superstition, and idolatry. The people are completely under the influence of the priest. This influence is used in opposition to the colporteur, and to excite prejudice against his books. One day, in the presence of some people, Mr. Thomas sold a Bible to a priest, who immediately tore off the cover and said, "This is a cursed book; cursed are all who show it any respect, and in this manner" (tearing out a leaf) "should those be treated who sell these sort of books."

It is against this prejudice, which has been deeply instilled into the minds of the people, that these Christian friends have to fight. In many cases, by a simple reference to the Word of God, Mr. Thomas has been able to clear away bitter feelings and enlighten darkened minds. He has settled in the town of Sassari under the superintendence of the Free Italian Church. A room for holding Gospel services has been furnished, and is always filled. If friends assist, it is hoped soon to erect a building large enough to hold three hundred people. The members of the Church are now regarded with kindlier feelings and with more respect, though occasionally they undergo a little petty persecution from some devoted son of Rome. The work has been much blessed from the beginning, and great hopes are entertained of the success of this the first Protestant Church in Sardinia.

ENTER THE YEAR WITH JESUS.

OH, enter the year with Jesus!
Not only with prayers to Him,
Not only with songs of gladness,
For a cup that o'erfloweth its brim;
But walking in step with Jesus,
Thy hand in his mighty palm,
And so with his ear bowed o'er thee,
Presenting thy prayer and psalm.

The future is dark before thee,
The pathway is all unknown,
There are hidden and secret dangers,
Oh, enter it not alone!
There standeth a Friend beside thee,
He reaches his hand to thee;
He is going thy way and whispers,
"Faint, weary one, journey with Me."

He gently will lead thy weakness,
Will carry thy every load!
Thou canst not be lost, for He knoweth
Each turn in the distant road.
Will find thee a pleasant lodging,
A sleeping place on his breast;
And talk to thee, oh, so sweetly!
Of the land of thy nearing rest.

And by and by, in the evening,
At his own great mansion home,
He will stay thy feet on its threshold,
And, leading, will bid thee come.
If Jesus is with thee, brother,
The porter will fling the gate
To its widest stretch; not a moment
Shall a comer with Jesus wait.

Oh, enter the year with Jesus!
And then, should the sky grow dark,
He'll brighten it, and defend thee
If ever the hell-dogs bark;
If fainting, his arms will uphold thee;
He never will leave thy side.
Oh, enter the year with Jesus!
And near Him each moment abide.

WILLIAM LUFF.

YOUNG ABSTAINERS' UNION.

ADVANTAGE was taken of the Christmas holidays to invite some of the London members of this Union, on Wednesday forenoon, 3rd inst., to meet at Exeter Hall. The Union endeavours to reach the sons and daughters of the upper and middle-classes, and has at present a membership of 6360. Mr. George Williams, who presided, related an incident of three total abstaining children, who, while visiting a rich uncle, were offered some wine. The first took it, and then the next, but the youngest gently, yet firmly, refused. When they returned home, the eldest honestly confessed to his mother that he had broken his pledge, but that Tommy had remained true. Pleased with Tommy, she asked him how it was, and he replied: "I kept my hands firmly under the table, and prayed, 'Lord Jesus, help me not to take it,' and He gave me strength not to take it."

Mr. F. Cheshire then gave an interesting explanation, illustrated by chemical experiments, of "the relation between alcohol and Jack Frost." He explained to the children, avoiding technicalities as far as possible, the properties of the blood, and the part it performed in the body. He powerfully exposed the popular fallacy that alcohol imparts real warmth and strength to the system; all it does is to drive the warm blood to the surface, where it speedily loses instead of gaining warmth.

Rev. T. L. Johnson, a returned native missionary from Africa, gave a very touching account of his life, twenty-eight years of which were passed in slavery. Especially interesting were his references to his mother; his after usefulness, he said, had been largely owing to her pious example. The slaves in America were anxious to obtain their freedom; but the slaves of drink, many of them sunk far deeper than the poor African, are content to remain in their bondage and misery. A history of Mr. Johnson's life, we may add, is published by Messrs. Yates, Alexander & Shepheard.

Notes and Comments.

OUR next issue will be a Double Number (price 2d.), and will contain full reports of the addresses delivered in London during the current "Week of Prayer." We shall be glad if our country readers will send us brief accounts of any meetings held in their respective neighbourhoods.

The various religious bodies are co-operating heartily with the conveners of the Christian Conference on the State Regulation of Vice, to be held in London on Jan. 24 and 25. Circulars drawing special attention to it have been issued on behalf of the leading evangelical denominations, and addressed to their respective clergy and pastors.

The Church of England Circular is signed by Canon Butler, Canon Leeke, Dr. Stanley Leathes, Rev. C. Bullock, and Rev. Gordon Calthrop. The intimation sent to Wesleyan pastors bears the following signatures: Revs. Charles Garrett (President), Dr. Rigg, E. E. Jenkins, G. W. Olver, G. O. Bate, Dr. W. F. Moulton, H. P. Hughes, and Allen Rees; Sir W. McArthur, Messrs. P. W. Bunting and G. Lidgett.

The following is a copy of the circular addressed to pastors and members of Baptist Churches:—

Dear Brethren,—Permit us to call your serious and earnest attention to the enclosed papers, issued by well-known members of the Society of Friends, proposing to hold a Convention on the present crisis in the movement for the abolition of the State Regulation of Vice. The importance of such a Conference all will admit. Its necessity is obvious from the character of "the Majority Report" of the Committee appointed by the House of Commons, which would have recommended the extension of the Acts generally, but for the regard to the objections, on moral grounds, so strongly and widely felt by professedly religious people. The voice of the Christian Church should now be very distinctly heard on this question. We trust that very many of you will respond to the invitation; and, having first sought, in earnest prayer, Divine help and guidance, the Convention may be led to adopt such measures as may be both effectual and wise.

The enclosed papers so fully explain the object of the Convention as to require no further remark, except to add our most urgent request that you will promptly respond to this appeal, and communicate to Mr. Alfred S. Dyer, Amen-corner, E.C., your intention, if possible, to be present.

We are, dear brethren,
Yours very truly, in Christian love,

J. Jenkyn Brown. H. Stowell Brown.
J. P. Chown. Charles Stanford, D.D.
C. H. Spurgeon. John Clifford, M.A., LL.B.
Fred. Trestrail, D.D. Archibald G. Brown.

In connection with this subject, we would commend to the attention of any who may not have taken a decided stand in opposition to these obnoxious and unrighteous Acts, a brief but weighty pamphlet written by Principal Rainy of Edinburgh, entitled "Imperial Legislation for Regulating Vice." It is endorsed by many leading members of the Presbyterian Churches of Scotland. The pamphlet is published by Messrs. Dyer Bros., Amen-corner, E.C.

We have received another letter from Mr. Eyre ("Father Ignatius"), which we do not insert, because we cannot become the vehicle for advocating monastic prisons under the name of religious houses, or any other part of a system which has proved itself to be a "half-way house to Rome." There are some things which Christian England has settled, and this is one—that "the Reformation" was no mistake. If Protestantism has not justified itself, and "Catholicism" condemned itself, in every country where each or either has flourished, then fact is fiction, experience a delusion, and history a lie.

It was stated by a speaker at Exeter Hall, last week, that Gambetta had said before he died: "Sans doute, je suis perdu!" ("Without doubt, I am lost!") as though these words had applied to his soul. A newspaper correspondent, however, quotes these or similar words as applying to the hopelessness of his recovery. They would have been terrible had they expressed a knowledge of a future state, but it is still more terrible to think of a soul passing out of time without the slightest recognition of God or of eternity.

Describing the death-chamber of the departed statesman, the Paris correspondent of The Times says:—

The eye looks in vain for any symbol connecting what is below with what is above. There is nothing suggestive of the existence of a soul. With the last breath everything calling up the inner man seems to have disappeared. It is not a spectacle encouraging to sceptical ideas. It leaves a painful impression, and there is nothing to console those looking on. Yet there are men of great intelligence and high position, themselves on the threshold of death, who are displaying deep emotion. Some are even weeping, and their sobs break the gloomy silence.

Upon which the Pall Mall Gazette remarks:—

Considering that Gambetta was an avowed Freethinker, and that most if not all of those who were weeping at his bedside were Freethinkers too, surely the display of the crucifix or other Catholic symbol would have been a piece of hypocrisy much more melancholy than the honest recognition of notorious fact.

Very true: but how miserable is the fact, and what a contradiction of the truth to call that "free thinking," which clips the wings of the soul, and binds it down to earth. What an utterly self-contradictory thing is such free-thought: for why make so much ado about a funeral, if that already corrupting body is all that remains of what was once Gambetta?

We have received many accounts of Christmas and other entertainments in connection with Missions to the poor and to various classes of the community. We regret that our limited space will not permit of our giving them insertion. We are glad, however, to record the fact that at this season so many Christian workers have been endeavouring liberally to minister to the physical and spiritual needs of those around them.

In an article entitled "The Disastrous Results of Sobriety" in the current issue of Macmillan's Magazine, Mr. A. J. Wilson improves upon the famous epigram of Bishop Magee, by stating, in effect, that he would rather see England rich than England sober. The cold-blooded contention of this would-be political economist will probably have the effect of rousing to a whiter and intenser heat the agitation in favour of temperance legislative reform.

The death of Miss Esther Beamish, Dec. 27, at Algiers, of diphtheria, will have been a painful surprise to a very large circle of friends and fellow-workers. Her abilities were not of a common order, and she consecrated them most heartily to the service of her heavenly Master, both in England and abroad. Her name will be chiefly remembered in connection with the work of the Gospel at Brussels and Spa, more especially the latter place. May the Lord raise up more labourers of the same sort to carry on his work!

Rev. G. F. Pentecost, in recently reviewing the past year's history of the American Churches, speaks of winning souls as "a lost art." The Churches, as such, may to a sad extent have lost it, but, thank God, the art is not altogether lost, as Mr. Pentecost himself and many other men and women are living witnesses. Perhaps, indeed, there were never so many soul-winners in the world since apostolic days.

The current number of The Catholic Presbyterian contains a remarkable paper by Dr. Howard Crosby, of New York, the purpose of which is to show that the true tests of a Church are not external signs, whether an historical chain of officers, or primitive ordinances, or orthodox creeds, but the Christ-like character of its members. Men are greater than systems. The Church of Christ is a kingdom of hearts and not of faces. All this and much more we believe is true; but when Dr. Crosby, going on to inveigh against novelties, includes in these the Week of Prayer, we think there is something to be said on the other side.

The following are the words of Dr. Crosby on this subject:—

Almost every enormity in the nominal Churches of Christ started from godly efforts put forth in human channels. . . . The first week of the year is seized upon as a week of special prayer. The idea comes from a foreign Mission station, and from the holiest of Christian workers. It is of course responded to by the zealous brethren everywhere. And so man's holy week is appended to God's fifty-two holy days, and the false thought that there is special virtue in the coincidence of prayer becomes stereotyped. All history shows that the creation of human holy time always derogates from the Divine holy time, and the concert notion of prayer introduces an element that impairs the simplicity of faith.

These strictures may indeed convey a not unnecessary caution, but we do not think they are justified by the twenty years' experience of the Week of Prayer. We have heard of many blessings, but we have heard of no mischievous result from this "holy week."

We hope the following extract will be copied into all the papers in the land:—

It is clear (says the Tablet) that a new anti-slave trade agitation is urgently needed. The facts which it quotes, on the authority of a German named Herr Wilhelm Joest, thoroughly justify this assertion. Horrible and revolting as have been the revelations as to the export of English girls to Brussels and Paris, that trade is trivial compared with the vast organised system which prevails in Germany, Austria, and Roumania for the sale of young women to dealers in human wares all over the world. They are regularly bought, shipped, and consigned like any other kind of cattle. The European slave dealer has his agents and his travellers, who under the disguise of theatrical agents, supply the maisons de tolerance of the world from Hongkong to Buenos Ayres with helpless victims. "I met a German girl," says Herr Joest, "who had been sold in this fashion at Chita, on the far side of Lake Baikal." When once they pass into the hands of their purchasers their doom is sealed. Nor is there any hope of escape from the prison house to which they are consigned.

With the deepest respect and sympathy for those who think that these painful facts must not be mentioned within the circle of their homes, we are bound to express our profound conviction that we could not be silent about them and be clear of blood-guiltiness. If it was a Christian duty to aid in the abolition of negro slavery, surely it is no less the duty of all Christians to "agitate, agitate, agitate," for the annihilation of this still more inhuman traffic.

The January number of The Nineteenth Century contains a truly dreadful description of Russian prisons, by Prince Krapotkine, who contradicts the representations made concerning them by the Rev. Mr. Lansdell, in England, and by Mr. Kennan, in the United States. Of the latter of these authors Prince Krapotkine says, "that he considered that his sojourn as an officer of the Overland Telegraph Company, a few thousand miles, more or less, from the penal quarters of Siberia entitled him to speak authoritatively about Siberian prisons and prisoners." Mr. Lansdell has indeed seen Siberian gaols, but "outstripping the post in his career, he has crossed a country which has no railways at a speed of 6300 miles in 75 days; and in the space of fourteen hours, he breakfasted, he dined, he travelled over 40 miles, and he visited the three chief gaols of Siberia," and "saw during this short time as much as the officials chose to show."

Prince Krapotkine declares that as far as gaols and convicts are concerned Mr. Lansdell's book can only convey false ideas. Anything more sickening, shocking, and brutal than the account given in the article by Prince Krapotkine, drawn mainly from the personal experiences of himself and his friends, can scarcely be conceived. It is stated that two revolutionists were submitted to torture by electricity. The mental agony of the victims of solitary confinement—being denied a book or anything to occupy the mind—excelling even their physical suffering, is indescribably awful: "The mind rots in the body from hour to hour."

Mr. Lansdell, in his book, gave deserved praise to an exceptional man, capable, honest, and humane. It is sad to learn that such men are not required, for the praise bestowed by Mr. Lansdell and by another writer in an intercepted letter has brought about the immediate dismissal of Colonel Kanonovitch, and his successor received the order to re-introduce the iron rule of years past.

We fear the summary of the writer is only too true; "the incredible duration of preliminary detention; the horrible circumstances of prison life; the congregation of hundreds of prisoners into dirty and small chambers; the flagrant immorality of a corps of gaolers who are practically omnipotent, whose whole function is to terrorise and oppress, and who rob their charges of the few coppers doled out to them by the State; the want of labour, and the total absence of all that contributes to the moral welfare of man; the cynical contempt of human dignity and the physical degradation of prisoners—these are the elements of prison life in Russia." In our happy English homes we may well reflect upon the pathetically significant words, "I shall never forget the children I met one day in the corridor of the House of Detention. They also, like us, were awaiting trial, months and years long. Their greyish-yellow emaciated faces, their frightened and bewildered looks, were worth whole volumes of essays and reports on 'the benefits of cellular confinement in a model prison.'" By injustice, cruelty, and wrong, the Russian Government is "sowing the wind," and will "reap the whirlwind."

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY IN DUBLIN.

THE longing desire of many Christian hearts has been at last fulfilled. These honoured servants of God have returned to Dublin, after an absence of over eight years. None but God can tell how many who received spiritual life during their former Mission, or who had that life revived, have followed them with their prayers in all their journeyings, read eagerly from week to week of their unceasing labours, and thanked God for the marvellous success that accompanied their efforts both in Great Britain and America.

As they stepped on the platform of the Metropolitan Hall, Christian Union Buildings, for the first time at the 4 o'clock service on Sunday, 31st December, one could see how the vast audience of nearly 4,000 persons was moved. Many a heart heaved with emotion, many a tear unbidden started to the eye, and many a lip uttered the hearty "Thank God!" in grateful acknowledgment of the Divine goodness that had preserved our dear brethren, and brought them in safety, on their glorious, mission to our shores again.

The meeting was largely interspersed with the "young converts" of the former Mission—no longer young or inexperienced, weak or wavering, but, blessed be God, many of them ripe and matured: won to Christ as well by Mr. Sankey's Gospel singing as by Mr. Moody's Gospel preaching. For instance, I met a young clergyman, full of zeal and earnestness, and having welcomed him to the meetings, his reply was, "I came forty miles to be present; I could not stay away; I owe my conversion to these men of God." Another, a brave officer of Her Majesty's army—now a braver soldier of the Lord Jesus Christ—said to me, "I want you to introduce me to Mr. Moody; he was the means of leading me to Christ."

Some may ask, "What reality or permanency is there in this movement?" Instead of giving details of the work in Dublin during the past week, I shall, in this letter, try to give an outline of some of the most important visible and tangible results of their former visit. This will be the best answer to the question stated above.

(1) The Splendid Buildings in which Messrs. Moody and Sankey are now holding their Mission, are the direct outcome of their visit in 1874. On that occasion, Mr. Moody said to a valued friend, whose absence from amongst us we so deeply regret, "Brother Smithson, you want in Dublin a Home for a Young Men's Christian Association on a broad platform, so as to embrace all the Churches; and you also want a large Hall, where the members of all the Protestant Churches may meet from time to time for mutual edification, for the promotion of Christian union, and for occasional evangelistic services."

Mr. Smithson was not slow to act on the suggestion. An influential committee was formed, and in due time the Christian Union Buildings were erected and furnished. We have good reason to thank God for the suggestion, and its prompt and successful carrying out. Since the Exhibition Palace has been sold for the purposes of the new Royal University, the Protestants of Dublin have absolutely no other place where they can meet in their thousands. Here, also, the Y.M.C.A. has its quarters, with excellent accommodation.

(2) The Committee for holding United Services, at present numbering over 100 members, was formed in view of Mr. Moody's first visit, and has continued its operations ever since. It holds Evangelistic services from time to time, in which representatives of all the Churches—Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Methodists, Congregationalists, Baptists, and Society of Friends—take part; thus making it manifest before Roman Catholics and sceptics that we are "all one in Christ Jesus," and "members one of another."

(3) The Annual Christian Convention.—The first of these was held at the close of Mr. Moody's Mission in 1874, when over 800 ministers of all denominations attended, besides many thousands of other Christians. These have been continued annually ever since, on the same lines, and have been greatly blessed and owned of God.

(4) The Prison Gate Mission.—This most useful and much-needed Mission also sprang out of the labours of our dear brethren. Shortly after they left us, some good ladies, who were accustomed to meet for prayer in an upper room of the old Metropolitan Hall, conceived the idea of forming a Mission to their poor sisters in prison on short sentences. The project has been steadily carried out, and for years past every morning (Sundays excepted) some ladies may be seen in the heat of summer, and in the snow and rain of winter, standing at the prison gates, waiting for these poor women to be discharged, in order that they may invite them to go with them to the Home, that they may do them good. About 100 women may be seen any day in the Home, employed in washing, needlework, and such like useful industries.

(5) The Sunday Morning Free Breakfast for the Poor is another good fruit of that visit, and of Mr. Moody's earnest exhortations to Christians to prove in a practical way their love to Him who so loved them. Mr. Smithson took a deep interest in this good work. For the last two years an average of over 1200 of the very poorest of our city have been receiving a good breakfast, followed by a Gospel address, every Sabbath morning.

(6) Children's Services.—The young are not overlooked. Their spiritual wants are most lovingly attended to by several members of the Y.M.C.A. Several hundred children are enrolled. They meet each Friday evening, and spend a pleasant hour singing Mr. Sankey's sweet hymns, and listening to the simple recital of the old, old story.

Who can say after reading the above list of charities and philanthropic works (and it is by no means exhausted) that Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Mission in Dublin, in 1874, was barren of results? Of the present Mission I will only now say that Mr. Moody's preaching has lost none of its power, Mr. Sankey's singing none of its sweetness and pathos, and the Protestants of Dublin none of their earnestness and enthusiasm. May our gracious Lord grant that the blessings flowing from this Mission may be even still more abundant.

JAMES S. FLETCHER, A.M., C.M.
St. Barnabas Parsonage, 30, Great Charles-street, Dublin, Jan. 5.

WEST-END SHOPMEN. — A correspondent writes, that a few months ago several godly assistants in a house of business in Oxford-street, determined to make an effort to benefit, spiritually their fellow-assistants. They took steps to organise a week-night service. A room was engaged at No. 6, Frith-street, Soho-square, W., where Gospel addresses have been delivered every Tuesday evening after business hours. By earnest and individual effort this little band of workers has succeeded in inducing one after another of their associates to renounce a careless life and join them in the heavenward way. Young men are invited to attend and assist at this meeting.

SURREY CHAPEL.—At the anniversary of the re-opening of this chapel held on Monday, 1st inst., a very encouraging account was given of the work in every department. Rev. B. Senior mentioned that two Mission Halls have been opened during the past year in connection with the chapel. The opening of the Raglan Music Hall has already proved a great blessing, some of the roughest characters in the district having been converted. Mr. Kessell reported that the Sunday-school was sometimes so crowded they had to refuse admission to children. The Band of Hope, under Mr. Miller, has doubled its number during the year. Some notorious drunkards in the neighbourhood have signed the pledge and been converted. The Evangelistic band, Mr. North said, had held 130 meetings during the year. One hundred persons have joined the Church in the course of that time.

CONFERENCE ON HOME MISSIONS.

A CONFERENCE on Missions, convened by the Church Parochial Mission Society, was held at Exeter Hall, on Wednesday and Thursday, January 3 and 4. Rev. W. Hay M. H. Aitken presided throughout, and a large number of clergymen, well known as active Mission workers, or promoters of such work, assembled together. A spirit of prayerful earnestness and of true Gospel union was manifested throughout, whilst the deliberations were marked by such a sound evangelical tone and practical wisdom as promise well for the future operations of this good society. The absence of "lay" workers was very noticeable; we think this was much to be regretted, especially when such subjects were being considered as that which occupied the first Session of the Conference.

LAY MISSION WORK.

The Chairman, in the course of his address, said: The subject of to-day is second to none in importance; it has been forced on the attention of the Christian Church at large by the work of the Salvation Army. Whatever our views of that organisation may be, we must be conscious that at this moment it is exercising a very great influence throughout the country, and has attracted the attention of the leaders of our Church. Nearly every Bishop has spoken of it, and nearly every well-known clergyman has taken notice of it. This has led to a strong feeling on the part of Churchmen that something should be done, that we, as members of the Church of England, should avail ourselves of whatever lesson the Salvation Army is able to teach us, and should carry on similar work, without the extravagancies which we regret. We thank God for the devotion, the zeal, and the spiritual chivalry manifested by those engaged in that movement. We cannot help feeling the greatest admiration for their Christian heroism, but most of us feel that it is a thing greatly to be deplored that this work should be done altogether outside of our Church. We cannot hope that the converts of the Salvation Army will ever become sober Churchmen; and as Churchmen we ask ourselves, "Can we not do a similar work, and, avoiding the necessarily schismatic position, the necessary attitude of nonconformity which is bound up in the Salvation Army movement, bring to bear upon the hearts of the masses of our fellow-countrymen a similar means of grace?

Some brethren fight shy of the very name of "Army." It seems to me our true position in regard to this movement should be one of imitation; let us imitate the good wherever we find it. Let us by all means imitate whatever promises to be successful in any agency which has been used of God, whether of Roman Catholics or Plymouth Brethren, or anyone else. I think we have a great deal to learn from the Salvation Army, and I shall be very anxious for my part to learn the lesson they have to teach us. With respect to the title "Army," the word has so laid hold on the public mind as an indication of a particular line of operations, that it is useful—at the same time it is impossible for us as a Church Society to build up any similar large organisation. We are bound by our trust-deed to work in co-operation with the parochial clergy and parochial agencies, and therefore cannot attempt to build up a large organisation. We may carry on what may be called "Army" work in parishes, where such work is needed, and may help forward such work, as far as possible, by providing fresh relays of workers, but the local control of such work must rest with the parochial clergy. Such are the lines upon which the Committee desire to work.

SHOULD A "CHURCH ARMY" BE TEMPORARY OR PERMANENT?

Rev. E. H. Hopkins: In order to answer that question, we must decide upon the nature of the work which a Church Army has to accomplish, or the need which exists for such an agency. The need is seen in the fact that in every large town there are multitudes of people who not only are indifferent to anything like religion, but are literally in a semi-heathen condition. The Church is waking up to the fact that, in spite of all the existing religious organisations, there is a large proportion of the population which she has failed to reach with the Gospel. There are, in fact, thousands upon thousands of people who not only neglect the means of grace, but are living in open sin, and the number seems to be increasing. The Bishop of Lincoln says of the Salvation Army, "Let us not find fault with them, their work points to a crying need, a famine of the heathen amongst us." The Church is waking up to the necessity for prompt, vigorous action; and when the soul is stirred to its very depths, in viewing this solemn state of things, some such effort as a Church Army is felt to be absolutely necessary.

From time to time special means have been used in my parish at Richmond during the eleven or twelve years I have been there—parochial services, tent missions, and so on. But I have seen that the lowest stratum has not been reached. We have got our buildings crammed, but we did not find the lowest stratum there at all. Two or three years ago I spent a whole day in the East-end of London with the Salvation Army, and I was much struck with what I saw. I distinguished between the accidentals and the essentials of the movement; and I resolved to work in a similar way in my own parish. I saw there was that the Church of England did not seem to recognise. I felt the truth of what they said, "When we capture their guns we do not spike them." We clergy need to recognise the wisdom of that. When they capture a gun they turn it against the enemy. Working-men will be more influenced by a brief testimony coming from another working-man than by many pulpit discourses.

A POWER IN THE LIVING WITNESS

Two years ago we commenced holding meetings, and we tried to get a number of working-men to hear short addresses. We succeeded in pressing six or seven men into the service, and invited them to come together again. Their testimony was rather indefinite, but week after week there were fresh witnesses. We had lively hymns, short prayers, and personal testimony as to their own individual acceptance of Christ, and how they were brought to the Lord. We have had a "penitent form," and others have been invited to come forward. A working-man comes in; by-and-by he sees Bill Sykes get up and speak of new joy and experience. He thinks, "Here is Bill Sykes, whom I know; if that sort of thing suits him it will suit me." So he comes up to the penitent form. I think very often it takes two or three meetings for a man to come out thoroughly for Christ.

When I spoke to my Bishop, he said, "If you succeed in getting the lowest stratum it will work up;" and that has been my experience. I have no hesitation in saying that such work ought to be permanent; there is not only a necessity for aggressive work, but for sustained effort. These young converts need instruction, and in due season they are enabled to enjoy and to understand our services in the Church. It is wise to take them on probation for a month; they need a good deal of looking after, and it is important they should continue coming to the same sort of service as they came to in the first instance. Another reason is, that if the young converts are to be kept steadfast they must have something to do; the work provided by the Army is such as they cannot have in an ordinary effort. To cease the aggressive efforts of the Church Army is really to cease fighting, and that is equivalent to a retreat; that is to have the enemy back upon you in full force.

If you would have good soldiers, you must train them on the battle-field. People say; "Where are you going to get agents fit to carry on such a work?" They must be the outcome of the work; therefore, the work must go on continuously. To me this work is a means of stirring up my own soul. Nothing is more encouraging than to see souls continually being brought to Christ; and we have had

A STEADY INFLUX OF SOULS.

Last Monday, we had an enrolment—we have one every month—and we had from seventeen to twenty souls brought in. These were persons who can give clear evidence of their conversion to God. On Monday last it was the usual monthly communicants' meeting, and the church was nicely filled. There were a number of people there who were to be received as probationers, and to be enrolled. The probationers were invited to kneel at the communion rail, and then solemnly pledge themselves: "I agree to dedicate myself, spirit, soul, and body, to the service of God." All responded aloud, "Amen." "I agree to do my utmost, with God's help, to win souls for Christ." Again they responded, "Amen." "I agree to work in harmony with the principles of this Association;" and they answered, "Amen." Thus the probationers feel they not merely belong to the Army, but to the Church. I look upon the Army as merely the aggressive side of the Church, and, as the work goes on, I believe they will feel they are as much in the Church as in the Army.

METHODS OF OPERATION THAT MAY WITH ADVANTAGE BE PURSUED IN SUCH WORK.

Rev. W. Carlile said: I write to the Vicar, asking him to get all the people together who have a conscious sense of the forgiveness of their sins—he may have four or he may have forty. We meet together, have a little prayer-meeting, and ask God to remove from us every unclean thing that would hinder success. At the close of that meeting we should have a word round from everybody. Sometimes there are only women, but I am glad to say they speak. We ask them there and then to get up and speak for God; they all stand up, and sit down when they have spoken. We sing, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow!" about six times through to start the meeting. Then next day we go out into the streets, say at seven o'clock. We always go out into the streets for an hour a day. Those who spoke at the prayer-meeting the day before are asked to speak at the other meeting. Sometimes they tremble and perhaps break down; and I am not sure that it is not those who break down whose testimony is most impressive—it is felt to be so real.

We begin the meeting with singing, and we always read some verses of God's Word. We are very particular to make everyone who explains the Scripture use such language as people can understand. I generally find that if we are to go forward we must be willing to let everybody else in the meeting do the work instead of ourselves. My great aim is not to preach the Gospel myself so much as to get others set to work, so that they may go on when I have gone away. We sing, and then we get the best speaker to speak really earnest words, for the last ten minutes. After that we generally have a little prayer if the people stay. By no means have the Benediction, if you do they at once get out; they look upon the Benediction as equivalent to "Good-night."

Instead of having an after-meeting, where we go up and ask those who stay, "Are you saved?" and so on, attacking them in a rude way, and perhaps driving them out of the place, we put a number of chairs in front, and we say, "Will you leave your seats and come out boldly on the side of Christ?" Last night, in Westminster, we had the chairs put out, and about half the people remained. We announced a little prayer-meeting, and asked those who would like to serve Christ to come forward. When they had come, in the usual way we pointed them not so much to a verse in the Bible as to Jesus Himself. Very many people seize on a verse, such as, "He that believeth hath everlasting life." They go out thinking they have everlasting life when they have nothing at all. In a week they have gone back to the world again. We must get Jesus Himself to SPEAK PEACE TO THEIR SOULS.

Afterwards we get those who have come up to the front to confess their sinfulness aloud, and to say, "God be merciful to me a sinner." If they attain peace, we then get them to praise God aloud. They will very often do so then, but if we let them off for twenty-four hours perhaps they would never praise God aloud at all. As it has been expressed, the gun would be "spiked." We get them to sing the Doxology several times. Then the sisters shake hands with the sisters and the men with the men, and we say, "Now, what has the Lord done for you?" Very often they tell us definitely what the Lord has done for them. They cannot always express themselves very clearly. One man said he came in very heavy, and he felt very light when he went out. The Lord had forgiven his sins.

If we have a drunkard or a bad woman converted we get them the next night to walk past the public-house where they were in the habit of drinking; and when we have rescued a heavy drinker the publican is very savage. In Kensington we had a man who used to drink at a certain public-house. He used to draw others in because he was a good singer. We put that man right opposite that house the next evening, and he fired right into it. He could not for the life of him have gone into that house again; he would have been as much persecuted inside as outside. The best way is to get a man thoroughly committed all round. That man is now one of our best soldiers. The converts wear a red and white cord until they have been tested, then the vicar presents them with a red cord. The red cord is quite as great a help to them in the service of the Lord as the blue ribbon is in regard to drink.

Rev. C. J. ATHERTON opened the discussion upon the subject, in the Mission converts, so as to extend the work when the Mission proper has closed." He said: I see a little danger at the outset in inducing too great an aggressive spirit. The danger is of the zeal going beyond the judgment; they may outrun the guiding of the Holy Spirit. The great question is how to leave in any place a sufficient number of real workers to carry on the work. In my opinion one of the most important things we have to do is to awaken the Church and the workers in regard to the work to be done; therefore the earlier part of the day should be spent in preparing the workers. As far as I can I always like to have one set time during the day for special work amongst the workers. That has been so much blessed that it has had a very great result in the after work. The workers themselves have been moved by the Holy Spirit, and have taken a new view of their position in Christ, and of the work that lies before them. They realise that a new power has laid hold of them, and we find at the close of the Mission that we have got a number of new workers.

"HOW TO INDUCE AN AGGRESSIVE SPIRIT

The first question they put is, "What can we do?" They have been working for a number of years, trotting round with all the feebleness it is possible to imagine, but now they become filled into vigorous life; they do not now believe so much in themselves as in God the Holy Ghost. They go on now with a new power and with an aggressive spirit. At Southampton recently this was wonderfully shown; the workers seemed to be lifted up entirely out of the old grooves and ways, and went to work in their districts with such a pertinacity and resolution that the people could not resist it. There were many cases of conversion in a very short time. They went so earnestly, and so simply, and with such loving gentleness up to the men, urging them to come to the Mission and give themselves to Christ. All was done with a force that a week before they had been perfectly devoid of.

The answer to the question, "How to induce an aggressive spirit in the Mission converts," is just this: Endeavour to bring the workers to understand the real power of the Holy Ghost; then they immediately ask, "What are we to do?" The great thing is to show them, (if we can do it by experience so much the better), that these things have been done. This does not lay a great burden upon the parish clergy, who often fear we are going to kill them straightway. We must show them that we are trying to lessen their burdens, and to give them a body of living workers. All we have to do is to give them the commission. Tom Jones can speak, and the best thing he can do is to relate his experience. That sets the others all aflame. The workers have each of them become little centres of missionary life, and those who were wounded at the Mission are gathered in. There are many other ways of inducing an aggressive spirit, such as district visiting, &c.

Rev. A. HALL dealt with the question, and said: This is the problem the Church has been trying to solve for a great many years. What is the material from which one may expect to derive such workers? One who is conscious of his acceptance with God, and of his own salvation in Christ Jesus, is the only person who will become a competent lay worker. There are those who do not realise that; they may dig our graves, or ring our bells, or preside over soup kitchens, but they cannot be competent lay workers.

"HOW TO OBTAIN A SUFFICIENT SUPPLY OF COMPETENT LAY WORKERS,"

The Mission preachers go away, and the local workers have to go on with the work; therefore the pulpit preaching of the Mission preachers must be of such a character as will be useful to workers. It must deal, for instance, with the necessity of knowing that we are saved. There are many old Christians living without this assurance. On the first occasion when they are button-holed the thing comes to the surface, and we are perhaps enabled to point them to the truth, and they become competent workers. Then again, one is often able at the after-meeting to get hold of persons whom we imagined to be perfectly bright, but we find that they are not perfectly sure of their own acceptance with God. One must "diagnose" the case of each convert after a mission.

In old times, a person was either to become a Sunday-school teacher or a district visitor. That is hopeless with regard to our Church Army work; we have converts who are of the roughest class, and who are utterly unsuited to the work of Sunday-school teaching or district visiting. The idea of putting a man to teach a Sunday-school class who is so full of grace and joy that he will shout "Hallelujah!" four or five times during school time cannot be entertained. When we are brought in contact with a soul in a red-hot condition we must give suitable work to that soul. Having found out what these people are fitted for, we have to train them. We generally leave these people to train themselves as well as they can. We forget that they are absolutely ignorant of Christian work of any kind. They have been working for the devil perhaps for twenty-five years; how are we to train them for Christ's work? There ought to be a constant training of workers going on if we want them to become competent. We must show them how to deal with the soul under difficulties. In proportion as we train them we will have really useful helpers. One really competent worker is worth more than twelve incompetent workers, who will confuse the minds of the people with whom they deal. In regard to work in Bristol, we have been able to get workers there. These rough people have been trained to be missionaries to those of their own class.

EXPERIENCES.

In the course of the discussion that followed, Rev. F. J. WEBSTER stated that in Church Army work at Oxford, the methods adopted were almost exactly identical with those of the Salvation Army, except that no instrumental music, flags, or ornaments were used.

Rev. T. RICHARDSON (Stepney) stated that every house in his parish was visited once a week with a good tract. He recommended that Mission operations should only be carried on in parishes where there was unmistakeable sympathy on the part of the clergy. His wife and three daughters went into the streets, one playing a concertina, one singing, and one speaking. He suggested that some would go to a Gospel temperance meeting to hear of temperance who would not go to a strictly religious service; and insisted upon the urgent need of having something on hand every night: theatres and public-houses were open every night, and why should not Christians work with the same persistency?

Rev. E. W. MOORE believed that the secret of the success of Church Army work would be the same as that of the Salvation Army, namely, the holiness meeting. He further said: Unless you can get your workers to know the power of an indwelling Christ who cleanses from sin, and the power of abiding in Him every day and every hour, you will not get the work to be really successful. I feel it is impossible to overrate the importance of inciting those who have received Christ in conversion, to confess Him at once; it will prevent hypocrisy and self-deceit. Years ago I was honestly seeking Christ, and a text of Scripture was presented to me, and I thought I was saved. I was resting on the bare text, and not on the living Person. If anyone had come to me, and said, "My brother, what has Christ done for you?" I should have said, "He has done nothing for me." Not knowing what conversion really was, I slipped clean away for years.

Rev. G. JAMES said he had in his parish what was called a "Christian band." They met twice a week to hold evangelistic services, and on Sunday evenings. He was convinced that to be of use such efforts must be permanent. He stated also that every member of the band signed a resolution-card, resolving to read the word of God daily; to pray; to confess Christ in daily life; to come to the house of God; and to work for Christ.

Rev. H. DENING, in the course of a deeply interesting address, narrated a case in which two lads went out into the open air, one to read and the other to speak; they had frequently 300 or 400 people listening to them. He dwelt upon the need of impressing Christians with the responsibility of doing something for the Lord Jesus Christ. Alluding to processions, he quoted the saying that processions inside a church drive people outside, but processions outside a church bring people inside. The aim of their work was not to exalt "the mass," but to exalt the masses.

Rev. L. PRICE gave testimony as to the blessing attending open-air services in his parish (Pakefield, Lowestoft), and also as to the benefit derived by persons coming out boldly; as afterwards everybody knew them, and they had a position to keep. He stated that they had nearly emptied the public-houses, and expressed an opinion that the matter of pride and self-conceit in converts depended very much upon the teaching they received.

Rev. E. N. THWAITES dwelt upon the need of seeking in everything to glorify God and to work for Christ with deep solemnity. He stated that he had in his parish an evangelistic band of twenty-two persons, all of whom had been converted to God through mission services. In the winter they held cottage meetings, four or five of them going to each cottage meeting, one praying, another giving out hymns, another speaking, and so on.

Rev. R. W. AITKEN stated that he would apply to such special work this test: Does it lead to such a general religious atmosphere that the converts are led to live to God in daily life? He was of opinion that to keep young soldiers always in the field would be most injurious to them, and quoted the words "Come ye apart into a desert place, and rest awhile." He dwelt upon the need of leading on converts gathered in by special mission efforts, and training them for regular Christian work.

Mr. J. W. Armitage spoke of the need of having meetings every day in the large towns, giving as one instance the case of Leeds, where open-air meetings had been held every night for many years, with an average of eight or ten clear cases of conversion every week. In London they had held an open-air meeting every evening for three years: the interest had been increasing rather than diminishing. He also urged the importance of in-door meetings every night, and of having in all such work a good leader. He held that, as a rule, laymen were better leaders than clergymen in aggressive work. He spoke of the need of training colleges to which clergymen could send men for two or three years, who they saw had the special qualifications for such work.

COUNTRY AND SUMMER MISSIONS

was the subject for discussion at the afternoon session.

The Chairman said the position of those who inhabit country districts is too often far more deplorable than that of those who inhabit many town districts. In every town there are churches where the Gospel is preached, but we may go from church to church in many parts of our country and not be able to find, within a circumference of many miles, any church where a plain Gospel message is delivered. Several difficulties also present themselves to our minds in dealing with this subject. Country clergymen are often a little apt to grow sleepy. Various influences must be brought to bear upon this work. We have to consider how far it is possible for us to rouse the country clergy in regard to this matter, and bring the beneficent influence of our Mission to bear upon the case.

Rev. J. H. Lester (Missioner for the diocese of Lichfield) spoke upon the subject of "How to multiply openings for work in the countr." My own impression is (he said) that whether we seek to procure openings in the country districts or not, those districts will soon become open to us. There is a movement going on, because this spirit of revival is in the air in the country districts as well as in the towns. The country does not move so quickly as the town, but it is moving. First of all, wherever a country Mission is held it must be thoroughly well held. Let the work show a definite, solid result which may be pointed to years afterwards as well as giving a startling result at the time. Then in order to open up country parishes we must secure as far as possible the conversion of the clergy. How is that to be done? If you go round to the clergyman and speak as the preaching friar did of old it drives him wild. We have in the diocese of Lichfield encouraged "quiet days" of devotion for the clergy. If we go into a High Church neighbourhood, we may call them "days of retreat," and if we go into a district of the other kind we may call them "days of devotion." Results such as these come out: A clergyman tells me with all the tenderness and sincerity possible, "I went to 'a quiet day' at such and such a place, and I shall never forget what I heard there; I have never been comfortable since." We must be careful to remember that the people in the villages are leading isolated lives. The village public-house has been in the past the great evening resort. The Church may be the home of the people for months, night after night, after the Mission has been held.

One more effort I have endeavoured to make, hitherto, I fear, somewhat unsuccessfully; namely, if possible, to attack our theological colleges. There are a number of young men there passing out session by session through ordination into the ministry. What sort of men are they? The principals of the colleges complain: "Here are young men who scarcely know a letter of Greek, coming to us for two years: we have no time to teach them anything else." There are some of my leaders in Lichfield ready to help in this; and I think in time there will be established a better system of Mission work among the students of the theological colleges. It is difficult for our Society to do this without such an influence.

The most important way in which the country parish can be opened is through the clergyman himself; and I almost question whether it is not a comparative waste of strength to hurry the work in the country parishes, because I believe the force of circumstances around us will rouse the clergy to a far greater sense of responsibility than at present. If we are to do anything, nothing can be better than to aim at influencing the parochial clergy themselves.

Rev. T. E. Cleworth spoke upon "The expediency of holding summer Tent Missions:" I found when a "layman" that the summer months are the best time for Tent Missions. By that means a class is reached which we cannot reach in a church. You can pitch a tent amongst the houses of the working people. Very many who will not come in at first come in afterwards. In this work we reach the very lowest class.

Rev. R. W. Aitken, speaking upon the subject of "Missions in summer at Watering-places," gave testimony as to having heard of very many persons throughout the country who traced the beginning of their spiritual life to some visit to the watering-place where they had heard the Gospel. He suggested that Mission preachers going to the seaside should obtain permission from clergymen there to take one or two services in their churches. He also gave emphatic testimony as to the satisfactory results of the special services for children held at watering-places. He urged the advisability of holding drawing-room meetings at the sea-side during the season, alleging that numbers of persons would come by means of a written invitation. He was of opinion that country missions were more important than town missions, and produce as a rule larger and more permanent results.

The following suggestions were made with regard to country Missions: (1) That country Missions should be arranged so as to have moonlight. (2) That the Mission preacher should go round with the incumbent and see the people, and enlist their sympathy. (3) That the preaching should be principally drawn from narrative or illustration. (4) That a box should be at the Church door to receive any letters or communications from those attending the services.

Rev. W. Haslam, in speaking of the value of seaside work, said: I was visiting last summer at a quiet country place. A young man came into the prayer-meeting, and got up and said, "I tell you what it is, friends, we want waking up." He had been away at the seaside, and his heart was full to overflowing. In a very short time there were a number of persons there who not only got woke up themselves, but succeeded in waking up a good many others.

Rev. L. Price, speaking of the need of personal testimony, said that forty years before, the testimony of a relative first awakened him to his need and danger. "My friend said we have been all wrong; I had never heard anyone say he was saved; such a thing was considered the greatest presumption. When my cousin told me 'we have been all wrong,' I knew where I was. I knew I was not saved; I sought the Lord, and I found Him." The speaker advocated the holding of testimony meetings among the clergy, believing that by that means many of the clergy who had not been brought to the Lord, and had not realised that they were "accepted in the Beloved," might be led to think. He hoped to see the day when the Society would have meetings for the clergy, which would be the means of convincing and awakening them, and leading them to Christ.

He believed that in Mission work the blessing was in proportion to the amount of believing prayer offered. Christian people should, therefore, be drawn together to call upon the Lord. When first he went to his parish, he could not get anyone to pray at the prayer-meeting, and had to engage in prayer three times at the meeting; but now they had all become preachers, and sometimes he had difficulty in getting in a word.

Referring to seaside work, he said that he held Bible readings upon his lawn by the seaside, near Lowestoft; visitors were invited to attend, and did so in good numbers. He alluded to the importance of stirring-up people to the fact that the greater number of those around us are going to hell every day. This is a fact we need to get thoroughly into their hearts; and if we are Christian people, and if we know the value of salvation ourselves, it is our bounden duty to bring these people to the same Saviour.

(To be concluded in our next.)

CHRISTIAN WORK IN MARSEILLES.

WE have received a long and interesting communication from Major-General Haig, describing the work of the Mission carried on in Marseilles by M. Saillens. We are not able to do more than make the following extracts:—

"Four days ago I witnessed a deeply-interesting scene on the occasion of the presentation of prizes to the children of the Sunday-schools of the Mission. In one of the largest halls in the city there were gathered together 700 of the school children. These were only the regular attendants at the Sunday-schools. A much larger number, perhaps half as many more, are on the school lists. The children were seated in the body of the hall, and around them and in the galleries were about 1300 persons, mostly their parents and friends. There were addresses to the children by M. Saillens, M. Dubois, and the Rev. W. Arthur, interspersed with hymns sung by the children in full chorus and with evident heartiness.

"It was truly a wonderful sight, full of hope for the future of this great country, as it must also have been full of encouragement to M. Saillens, and the band of earnest and devoted labourers who help him in the Mission. Who could have conceived a few years ago that 2000 persons in the second city of France would have been willing to meet together in the most open manner, to manifest their hearty interest in the Sunday-schools where their children are taught salvation by Christ alone, and to read and learn and love the Word of God? Anything more significant or suggestive in regard to the evangelisation of the masses of this country can hardly be imagined.

"My object, however, in writing this letter is to ask assistance for a special object. M. Saillens has now nine halls in the city where fourteen meetings are held every week, besides Bible-classes, mothers' meetings, and Sunday-schools. The attendances at these fourteen meetings is about 2000 weekly. The halls are pretty equally distributed throughout the city, so that there is a pretty general sowing of the Word of God. With such an attendance, with such a general readiness to hear, and with the popular sympathies evidently on his side, M. Saillens feels that the time has come for a yet more open and public proclamation of the Truth than has yet been attempted. He would like to take the hall where the meeting I have described was held, and to hold an evangelistic service there every Sunday evening. He believes it would be well attended, and that many would go to it who are not seen at the smaller meetings. If about £300 could be placed at M. Saillens' disposal he might make this great advance upon his present operations; and judging from present indications the results would be very important. Will you not ask your readers speedily to place this small sum at the disposal of M. Saillens?

"The French Pasteurs here are in thorough sympathy with M. Saillens' work, some of them rendering very valuable assistance at his meetings."

CONSECRATED WEALTH.—Dear Sir,—Referring to your interesting article in The Christian, upon this subject, I shall be glad if you will intimate to any of the Lord's people in the North-West of London, who may be desirous of helping the poor in the manner suggested, that I shall have great pleasure in giving the use of a large, comfortable room (holding one hundred people) free of cost, any week evening, by arrangement.—Yours truly,

C. Golding Dwyer.

Tolmer-square Institute,
143, Drummond-street, N.W.

DR. BAEDEKER IN RUSSIA.

I SEND you a short extract from a letter recently received from Russia in the hope that it may stir up much prayer for Dr. Baedeker and stimulate some of us to follow his self-denying example and go with the Gospel amongst the many tribes of Europe and the world.

REGINALD RADCLIFFE.

"MY DEAR BROTHER,—The Lord has indeed gone before us step by step; everywhere the doors were open to receive me. The dear Muscovite brethren have just handed me round from place to place in their waggons, putting me into their churches and wanting me to tell of Jesus and his love. The Lutherans have done the same, and the good Lord has marvellously provided by sea and by land. The passage from Odessa to Sebastopol by steamer was most enjoyable. Passengers of all nationalities on board; many received Testaments; the Russians, Circassians, Tartars, all understood Jesus lubit vas (Jesus loves you). It was a precious time for seed sowing. There were also Jews, Turks, and Greeks on board. Oh, what will the harvest be!

"My heart is drawn out for these scattered nations. Last night a dear Armenian brother filled one's heart with praise and drew out prayer. The Germans here all join together in one church to listen to the message of God's love. There is yet much land to be possessed. It seems as if the people had forgotten the claims of Jesus; many live as though He had no right to possess the land. Help me, beloved brother, to lay claim in the name of the Lord on the many young men who fill the meetings, and some of whom the Master wants for his service.

"The journeys over the Steppes of South Russia have been to me most enjoyable, being so well and tenderly cared for by the brethren. To-morrow I hope to make a fresh start to a number of German Lutheran colonies, which lie at distances of from thirty to forty versts from each other. I do not yet know what the Master will have me do. Continue to pray for me, and for my German brethren, and for the Russ. "Yours in his love,

"F. W. BAEDEKER."

We have also received the following letter, dated Hotel d'Europe, Odessa, December 29:—

"May I request you to place before the several meetings during the week of united prayer in London, the very urgent need of Russia and of Austria. Will not a fervent and continued cry be sent up from Christians in England on behalf of the poor oppressed brethren in Bohemia, and will not Christians in England continue to cry to the Lord, giving him no rest until that poor benighted land, Austria, gives room to the Gospel!

"I would also request thanks to be given for many open doors, especially amongst the numerous German inhabitants of Russia; also for many journeying mercies through the vast Steppes of this land. I hope to spend some time (ten to twelve days) in this place and neighbourhood, and after that I may visit the German colonies in the Crimea. May I request prayer for myself and the work that the Lord has called me to. A visit to the Caucasus has interested me much; there is much land to be possessed for the Lord in these beautiful regions.

"Yours in the Risen Lord,

"F. W. BAEDEKER."

THE THAMES CHURCH MISSION has received the following donations:—Fifty guineas from the Corporation of the City of London; five guineas from the Haberdashers' Company; five guineas from the Saddlers' Company.

ELIZABETH ANSELL, for over a quarter of a century known and loved in connection with the work at Stafford Rooms, fell asleep in Jesus, January 2, 1883, aged 82 years. "Absent from the body, present with the Lord."

THE BEDFORD INSTITUTE.

THE good work carried on so quietly and unobtrusively by the Society of Friends in the East-end of London is highly appreciated by all who take an active interest in Christian work in that quarter. There are now in connection with the Bedford Institute, branches at Bethnal-green, Ratcliff, Clerkenwell, Deptford, and Bunhill-fields, the Mission-rooms being situated in the most densely populated parts of these districts. At each station there is a thoroughly organised staff of workers, who endeavour to reach all classes of the people, and to benefit them in the way they most need help. Besides the religious work usual to such societies, there are cookery and sewing classes, clothing and boot stores, savings-banks, "invalids' kitchens," free breakfasts, sick and loan funds, &c. The homes of the poor are visited, and many necessitous cases relieved by a band of voluntary helpers and five Bible-women and nurses.

A monthly magazine, Onward and Upward, has been commenced with new year, in which there is a sketch of the life, with portrait, of the Spitalfields philanthropist, Peter Bedford. The secretary is A. T. Alexander, Bedford Institute, Spitalfields, London, E.

NOTES FROM SPAIN.

FROM the last quarterly paper issued for English readers by Pastor Fliedner, of Madrid, we take the following particulars:—

There is reason to thank God for the steady, quiet progress which is being made, and the protection and blessing which accompany the workers daily. A new political party has been formed, which is worthy of notice, as it is in favour of religious liberty, and enlightened public opinion seems to favour it.

Signor Francisco Albricias says it is intended to start in Rubi, Catalonia, a Protestant newspaper, which will be made as attractive as possible, by means of engravings, giving at the same time religious information.

The hospital in Madrid is visited regularly. Pastor Fliedner remarks that the Sisters of Mercy persecute the evangelical patients in the hope of converting them to Rome in their last moments. He, himself, had followed two Sisters of Mercy in the largest hospital in Madrid, from bed to bed, and to every patient who had confessed a change of linen was given, but to no others. The number of children in the orphanage at Madrid has increased to forty. The friends cannot refuse to help the distressing appeals made for help, and the Lord provides for all. In many districts the poor people are unable to continue their little mite towards the support of the church, owing to the failure of the harvest.

THE BOYS' HOME, SOUTHWARK.—Mr. J. W. C. Fegan has written an exceedingly interesting little book, called "The Harvest of the Streets; or, Our Homes" (price 6d.). It gives a record of twelve years' labour amongst orphan, outcast, destitute, and prodigal street-arabs. The chapters are short and bright. The first relates Mr. Fegan's conversion to God; in the second is given an amusing account of his first experience with a city waif, while the others tell of the way by which he was led step by step, under the guidance of God, and with the help of his fellow-Christians, to undertake the great work which is now so well known, and which has been so greatly blessed.

ALL NIGHT IN PRAYER.—Eleven o'clock on Monday night, January 1, saw a number of Christian workers gathered together in Bignold Hall, Forest-gate, E., to wait before the Lord in prayer throughout the night. The power of God was manifest in their midst. The pouring out before God of heartfelt supplication, showed that the object of the meeting was keenly realised by all. The last hour—from five to six, was devoted to praise and testimony, when several testified to the blessing received that night. As a practical outcome of such a meeting, it was arranged that several workers should meet on the following Saturday afternoon at five, and go out two and two among the masses, preaching, singing, tract distributing, or anything to bring them to Christ; this to be continued, and augmented as far as practicable. F. C. S.

SUPPER TO LONDON WAIFS.

LAST Friday evening, at the "Edinburgh Castle," we found ourselves in the midst of a scene such as could not probably be witnessed anywhere else. Some 1500 London children, mostly boys, homeless, or worse than homeless, were enjoying the hospitality of Dr. Barnardo and his friends. They had been found on previous nights in common lodging-houses, railway termini, market places, and by the side of the dark Thames. All were admitted by ticket, and the greater number were gathered from the most degraded quarters of Bethnal Green, Southwark, St. Luke's, Westminster, and Holborn. There was something almost terrible in the aspect of these children of the pavement. The bright eyes of some of the girls peered out from beneath masses of unkempt hair that hung like a mat over their foreheads. Some of the boys had bandages about the head, covering wounds received, doubtless, in their struggle for existence. Little feet, covered only with "London varnish," were tucked under the seat, or stretched out unconcernedly for admiration or otherwise.

After the eating and the drinking came the speaking, though much of that is never attempted on such occasions. The gypsies Smith each addressed some kind and simple words to their hearers. Mr. H. Soltau, of the China Inland Mission, also succeeded in keeping the interest of the children while he briefly gave some details of his work amongst the heathen. A selection from Songs and Solos was sung by several friends, the choruses being speedily caught up and repeated by the children.

Then followed an interesting series of questions by Dr. Barnardo, prompting remarkably graphic replies from his auditory. "Hands up those who sell papers." Up went many dirty hands, accompanied by the shrill cries of the street newsvendor. Those who trafficked in "box o' lights, sir," and others who followed the honourable profession of shoeblacks, made similar noisy responses. Probably the larger proportion answered to the appeal of Dr. Barnardo for a census of "those who do anything they can?" The interesting task of "weeding out" those boys desirous of receiving help was thereafter proceeded with; about seventy passed the "preliminary" examination, and were sent into a hall by themselves, where each case could be carefully considered and dealt with.

The blessed issues of this child-saving work are so palpable to every thinking reader, that all who are not indifferent to the highest well-being of their kind, must feel it both a duty and a privilege to assist, by every possible means and to the utmost extent, such a noble effort as that of which the meeting on Friday evening was but a casual illustration.

A new Home in the Burdett-road, entitled "LEOPOLD HOUSE," to accommodate 120 boys, is to be opened. It is intended for the reception of lads too young for the Stepney Home, and beyond the age at which they are received at the Jersey branch. J. T.

PARIS AID SOCIETY.—Dear Sir,—It was my happy privilege to "assist," as the French call it, at the annual Christmas Dinner given to the Governesses in Paris of British and American nationality, by Miss Pryde, the devoted directress of the Paris Aid Society, at No. 22, Rue des Acaacias, the "Home for Governesses." It was a pleasing sight to behold fifty of our fellow-country-women enjoying in a foreign land the comforts and blessings of a Christmas at home. After the Christmas fare came an evening of real enjoyment, singing Christmas carols and a selection of Mr. Sankey's hymns. Some earnest Gospel addresses were given and prayer offered, in which friends at home were remembered. The address of Mr. Turner (who has come to France for four months' evangelistic work, and to sing the Gospel) as well as his singing, left a good impression on all. The gratitude of the "invitées" was offered to Miss Pryde, whose institution is doing much good, and deserves the aid and sympathy of Christians. Help is much needed for the extension lately given to the work. Miss Pryde's address is 16, Rue Tilsitt, Paris.—Yours faithfully, W. J. LOCKIE.

Paris, Jan. 3.

A NEW YEAR QUESTION.

"How much owest thou unto my LORD?"

THOU hast forgiven my life's sinful story,
Flooded my soul with thine infinite glory;
Whispered of strength that ne'er failed in upholding
Souls that found rest in thy promised enfolding.

Thou hast been with me through darkness and trial,
Keeping my heart from distrust and denial;
Thine was the hand that both beckoned and guided,
Thine was the wisdom that planned and provided.

Thine was the love that met longing unspoken,
Hushing each fear with sweet promise or token,
Gemming each moment with mercies God-given,
Gilding each storm-cloud with sunlight from heaven.

All thou hast been to me gladly confessing,
Echoing the Old Year's sweet story of blessing,
Wait I the New Year, though veiled from my vision,
In all its treasure of love and provision.

Throughout each day may my ceaseless devotion
Surge round thy feet like a love-ruffled ocean;
Hourly endeavouring, Saviour, to show Thee
How much I love Thee and how much I owe Thee!

EVA TRAVERS EVERED-POOLE.

SPITALFIELDS GOSPEL MISSION.

BELOVED BROTHER,—Accept my very cordial thanks for the paragraph in THE CHRISTIAN for this week calling attention to the slackness of funds. Will you kindly note an error in my name as there given? It should be William Joseph Lewis.

The year just closed has been one indeed of much trial, from paucity of funds, more so than I have ever experienced; nevertheless, it has been a year of great mercy and rich blessing. To God's name be the glory.

I have now entered my twenty-fifth year of testimony for the Lord amidst the sin, squalor, and wretchedness peculiar to the poor parts of this East-end of London. The Lord saw fit at the first to lead me down in a very dark quarry to seek precious jewels for Himself; and, though sometimes I have thought dear friends have forgotten that I was still down there, praise be to his name, his grace has been all-sufficient, and many a precious soul has been won to his glory.

One part of our work for the Lord I beg specially to note, and that is, our open-air meeting at the corner of Osborn-place, Brick-lane, every Sunday evening, from six till seven. An immense crowd gathers round us—this, too, in fog, or frost, or snow, or rain, unless it pours very hard. The audience is composed of the inhabitants of the common lodging-houses, presenting one of the saddest and most pitiable sights possible. I question if a scene like to it can be found in all England—such hundreds of poor fallen, sunken fellow-beings congregated together.

The attention, order, and quiet, are most marked. Not an interrupting sound is heard. In fact, the very roughs would resent any attempt at disorder.

Though very weak, and suffering in body—feeling the strain of prolonged labour, standing there Sunday after Sunday surrounded by my band of loving helpers (some of them being trophies won at that very spot)—I count myself one of the happiest on earth.

Grace and peace be with you.—I am, yours faithfully, WILLIAM JOSEPH LEWIS.

14, Sidney-square, Commercial-road, E., Jan. 3.

[It would be difficult for us to express too strongly our warm regard for this dear, noble, faithful brother, one of our earliest friends in London, the monotony of whose work is only varied by now and then a more deplorable object than the average of East-end misery; but who, by a Divine law of compensation, counts himself one of the happiest on earth. Our brother, Archibald Brown, and other of the Lord's servants in the dark places of the city, make a similar claim.—ED.]

AT GAMBETTA'S FUNERAL.

SIR,—Your readers will be glad to know that, amidst all the pomp and circumstance of to-day, something was done to turn the thoughts of the thousands crowding the thoroughfares of Paris towards that eternal life, by faith in Christ, which is unknown to millions in this city, and without which there can be no real regeneration of the country.

Miss de Broen had prepared a paper, headed, "Souvenir of the Funeral of Mons. Gambetta," addressed to the "Citizens of Paris, and of all France, Freethinkers, Catholics, or Protestants," calling on them to consider God's Word to each of us, given for our consolation, when death comes into our midst. The texts written out were, Rev. xxi. 4; 2 Cor. v. 21; Rom. v. 8, 9; John v. 24—29; 1 Chron. xxviii. 9; Jer. ii. 19; John iii. 16; Jer. xxxi. 24; John xvii. 3. The conclusion pressed God's offer of pardon to each, and the acceptance of it, and the addresses of the Bible Societies were added where copies of the Word of God may be had. An invitation was also given to those who might wish to converse on the truths spoken of in the paper, to come for the purpose to the Iron-room. Sixty-seven thousand copies on large sheets, and in striking characters, were printed, also on doubled cards, easy to slip into the pocket.

The result was, that the crowd, composed of all ranks, eagerly took them; and although a few called us "Jesuits," and "Calottins" (skull-caps, in allusion to the priests), the majority were delighted, and some returned to ask for more for their friends, or to send to the country. Manufacturers also asked for copies for their workpeople. Miss de Broen, with her helpers, was able, in several instances, to give to officers of high rank, who politely accepted copies, as did some of the police and mounted guards. Many gentlemen stopped to carefully read, and then place the cards in their pocket.

An English newspaper remarked lately that the room in which Gambetta died had nothing to suggest the existence of a soul, or to console those who mourned him. This is the case with hundreds of thousands here, who know not even the sound of that eternal life of which Christ spoke so emphatically, and which was his great gift for this life and the next. May all who hear of the effort made by God's servant yesterday pray that the many thousands who have now some of Christ's own words in their hands, may understand and receive them. Scarcely one copy was torn or thrown away; many admired the courage of the distributors; all, for one reason or another, have kept the papers, a token among many of the willing ear of even sceptical France. Is it not as if they were waiting for the blessing that will follow prayer on their behalf?

Should any desire copies of the paper, they can be had at the Dépôt Central, 4, Place du Théatre Français. A. KEE.

3, Rue Clavel, Paris, Jan. 6.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending January 20:—Jan. 14, Isaiah xlv. 15-25; Jan. 15, Isaiah xlviii. 12-22; Jan. 16 Isaiah l. 1-11; Jan. 17, Isaiah li. 1-8; Jan. 18 Isaiah li. 9-16; Jan. 19, Isaiah lii. 1-15; Jan. 20, Isaiah liii. 1-12.

ZENANA BIBLE AND MEDICAL MISSION.—A series of interesting meetings in connection with this society have lately been held in Dublin and the neighbourhood, also at the Cripples' Home, Bray, and in several drawing-rooms. They have been well attended, the friends showing their interest by the collections made.

RELIGION AND SCIENCE.—The widow of the Rev. Josiah Millar, late secretary of the London City Mission, &c., has for disposal a few copies of her late husband's work, "Christianum Organum, or the Inductive Method in Scripture and science" (4s. 6d., cloth); copies may also be obtained at this office. This work shows that the inductive method of reasoning has its rise in the sacred Scriptures, and if applied to their elucidation would, it is believed, annihilate "the long standing quarrel between science and religion." Mrs. Millar's address is Pine-villa, West Bournemouth.

A NOTE OF PRAISE FROM FRANCE.

DEAR FRIEND,—It was very kind of you to insert in THE CHRISTIAN my letter to Mrs. Guinness. I trust it may call out some interest in those friends who are almost too much absorbed in their own work to long for the prosperity of others.

There is one sentence in my letter which I heartily wish to recall—that no one seems to take an interest in our valley. Our Christmas has been a most joyous one for us and the dear children. Mrs. Gordon, of Parkhill, and Mrs. Williamson, sent us a supply of gifts from Hyères, which enabled us to have a Christmas Tree for our Sabbath scholars; the first Christmas Tree ever seen in Vercheny by old or young, and a marvel to all the Commune. I do not know if the tree or the children's singing was the greater delight to the mothers. A few of the fathers ventured to look in, and were greatly struck by the children's hymns. The children were silent; all was so new they were almost afraid at first, especially the very little ones.

Then we ourselves had the great privilege of a Christmas morning's service from Pasteur Eli Vernier. It was a wonderful sight to see all the men in the Temple, even outnumbering the women. There is a kind of superstition about coming to the Temple at Christmas and Easter even among unbelievers, so all were there, and no one seeing the earnest listening and the intelligent faces raised towards the high pulpit could have guessed that these men had most of them never heard the Gospel in their lives before. Thank God that they heard it that day in its simplicity, and yet, after all, I think the best description of the sermon would be, "he preached unto them Jesus."

Then came the Communion; instead of the three or four who used to take it, there were above thirty, some, I believe, really understanding the ordinance as a pledge of their Saviour's love, and some, it seemed to me, coming in blindness, but still groping after light. Miss Mudie and I thought of Hezekiah's prayer: "The good Lord pardon every one that prepareth his heart to seek God, though he be not cleansed according to the purification of the sanctuary." Especially we pray this, thinking of one poor woman, who a few months ago denied even the being of a God, but who since the terribly sudden death of her eldest son has found no consolation except in hearing about her long-neglected Saviour. I was startled at seeing her come up to the Lord's table with her young daughter. Poor things! the ever compassionate Lord will surely not reject their inarticulate longings for salvation.

To-day, New Year's day, has been bright too. First, an utterly unexpected visit from most of our Sabbath Scholars to wish us "une bonne année" and bring us letters of their own writing. The gratitude of the children is very touching, especially some of the wildest boys. God grant they may yet be a génération to serve Him. Then an expedition to a small knot of Protestants in a Catholic Commune. Their pastor should visit them once in six weeks, and the two last times he has not come! No wonder they lose heart. I had a meeting there once before, and found they had at least retained the hymn, "Safe in the arms of Jesus."

It is a great privilege to reach such as these, but still the mass of men are out of our reach. Pray for us sometimes. A very Happy New Year to you, and a very prosperous year to THE CHRISTIAN. Oh, how welcome it is in these out-of-the-way places.—Yours in Christ,

S. R. GELDARD.

Vercheny, par Saillans, Drôme.

PECKHAM.—For the last eighteen months a few Christians have been working here with evident blessing. Outdoor and indoor meetings are held on Sundays and week days. The brother who has devoted his time to this work has carried it on in a small room, which is often packed with earnest hearers. It will now be necessary to secure a larger place. The district is a needy one, and no meetings are held within a considerable distance. All information can be had from Miss A. Wilson, Hon. Sec., 105, Pawlet-road, West Camberwell, London, S.E.

JEWS IN JERUSALEM.

DEAR FRIENDS,—As there are many who would like to have a few lines from me, and as I cannot possibly write to all, I thought it better to send a letter to THE CHRISTIAN, which will give an outline of what I wish to communicate. Many are aware that I came out here at the invitation of the Rev. H. Friedlander, whose active sympathy on behalf of the Russian Jews lately come here is known to you. In answer to prayer, the expenses of the long journey came in in a few weeks, and every difficulty was removed.

I left London on November 22, and arrived here on December 15, passing through Turin, Rome, Naples, to Brindisi, to Alexandria, and Jaffa. As journeying mercies were asked for by loving friends, and particularly a calm sea, I wish to say that the sea was uncommonly calm all the way, and the dangerous landing at Jaffa safely accomplished. I visited in the latter place Miss Mangin's well-regulated and useful hospital, where they have daily some fifty patients. This is a noble institution, and reflects the highest credit on its active and zealous founder.

On arriving at Jerusalem I found the dear Friedlanders ready to receive me, and to give me a hearty welcome. They are overwhelmed with work, and also are seeing most blessed results of their labours. The London Jews' Society are happy in having such an earnest worker at this important place, and at this particular time. The Jews are rapidly returning here, not only from Russia, but from other quarters, and their numbers may be estimated safely at some 20,000, and the total population of Jerusalem at 40,000. These figures I got from the best sources. The town is extending so rapidly outside the walls that in a little time the outside portion will be the most important, as it is already by far the most agreeable, and house-property is lowering in the old town.

One principal object I had in view in coming was to find out the possibility of placing the afflicted families in the land of their fathers; I am glad to say that this object is perfectly attainable, and already three good proposals have been made that will make the great problem of the beginning of the colonisation of Palestine no longer a vision or a chimera, but a fact. I feel that all the friends in England require is a practical, tangible scheme that they can see their way to be a success, and the money to carry it out will be forthcoming. This information I hope to be able to give on my return.

In the meantime, the helping the wants of these poor afflicted ones has been admirably met by the unceasing care of Mr. and Mrs. Friedlander, and they have won a warm place in the hearts of the Jewish people with whom they have come in contact. I have fixed no time as yet for my return home, but would beg of all who read this and know the value of prayer to plead for us, that wisdom and guidance may be given to us, and that the funds so much needed may continue to come in.—Yours faithfully, WILLIAM GREENE.

Jerusalem, Dec. 20, 1882.

FRIENDLY LETTERS.—In her most recent addition to this series of printed letters Miss Skinner turns her attention to laundresses. She has been asked to write one to "art models," and wishes us to say that she will be glad of any information that would be helpful to her in doing so. Her address is 5, St. James'-square, Bath.

THE WELCOME HOME, RATCLIFF HIGHWAY.—On Christmas morning, a party of sailors and their friends were entertained at breakfast here. Through the Lord's goodness, Miss Child was able again to be with them. The whole Christmas week has proved very sadly how Satan works in this neighbourhood; the effect the drink has on many around wrings one's heart with sorrow. On New Year's Eve the nightly meeting in the "Forecastle" was packed. Most of those who were present remained to the watch service, which was a time of refreshing from "the presence of the King." Christian friends who can help are always gladly welcomed.

Letters to the Editor.

"FATHER IGNATIUS."

DEAR SIR,—In the quotation I made in my letter published by you on the 4th ult., the word "falsehood" may bear an undue interpretation. I would wish to substitute "false teaching," as I in no way desire to attribute personal insincerity to one whom I believe earnest, though erroneous, in his belief and practices.

What I desire to assert is (in accordance with the eighteenth Article of Religion) that they are to be denounced who say that every man shall be saved by the law or sect which he professeth, so that he be diligent to frame his life according to that law, and the light of nature. This is the dangerous (yet now prevailing) error which seems to me involved in the position advocated by Mr. Fagan, whose letter appears in the same issue.—Yours,

10, Marlboro'-buildings, Bath, L. R. YALPY.
Jan. 3.

PRAYER.

DEAR SIR,—The very interesting correspondence on the subject of prayer, in a recent issue, has induced me to hope that you might find space for the following remarks. I had, previous to reading the above-named correspondence, been thinking a great deal about prayer, and the best method of offering it, and I was struck by the fact that people very frequently make use of the word "Help" when praying to God, and that evidently, when so used it means "assist," the latter word being perhaps as frequently used as the former. It seemed to me scarcely right to ask God to "assist" us, because such a petition implies that we will do most of what is necessary, and trust to God to do the rest, whereas our reliance on Him should be complete.

Permit me to explain myself by an illustration. Suppose that a drunkard wishes to reform; he asks God to "help" him to abstain from strong drink. I say he is very likely to fail in his endeavours. Now let him alter his prayer, and ask God to take the "desire" for drink away. I venture to say he now throws himself entirely into God's hands, and will, I believe be dealt with accordingly.

The result of my thoughts on this subject led me to search the Bible for instruction. In the Oxford edition of "Helps to the Study of the Bible," there are mentioned sixty-three special prayers used in the Scriptures. I have carefully gone through all those prayers, and find that only in one instance is the word help used, viz., Asa's prayer when going to battle with Terah, the Ethiopian (2 Chron. xiv. 11); and, strangely enough, the full reliance on God is distinctly shown by a sort of apology for its use, in the words just preceding. Others of these prayers are really remarkable for the absence of the word, viz., the prayer of Elijah for Divine attestation of his mission, that of Elisha concerning the army sent to take him, of Hezekiah for protection against Sennacherib, and, lastly, of Jehoshaphat, for protection against the armies of the Moabites and Ammonites.—Faithfully yours, LIONEL MORRIS, Lieut. R.N.

Plymouth.

MORAL REFORM.

DEAR SIR,—May I express dissent from the opinion given in your issue of the 21st December by "A Member of the Rescue Society" to the effect that the work of Moral Reform belongs to women alone? I believe this to be quite a mistake. It is neither desirable nor possible for women alone to do it. Since the demand creates the supply—more literally in this matter than in general business affairs—it is of the first importance to arrest the demand. The following are some of the ways in which men can aim at this:—

(1) There is a great and much-neglected work for Christian men in the reformation of the fallen of their own sex.

(2) The Social Purity Lectures to young men are doing much good. They might be multiplied indefinitely.

(3) Home training for boys should not be left exclusively to the mother. Her utmost efforts will not exonerate the father from his share and co-operation. The Scripture injunctions to parents on the training of their children certainly do not imply that the fathers are to take a smaller part in it than the mothers. It is written: "And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath; but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord" (Ephes. vi. 4).

(4) The impurity at boys' schools shows a want there. Schoolmasters have daily opportunities of inculcating right principles, and yet the moral nature of their pupils is too often allowed to run wild. Does not a heavy responsibility rest upon those who undertake the education of youth? And are any justified in doing so who are unable or unwilling to include, as a fundamental, the culture of that important part of their nature?

(5) The positions of men as magistrates, town councillors, M.P.'s, &c., require their action for repression of immorality, the repeal of bad laws, &c.

Surely good men, duly reflecting on the harm that so many of their own sex are doing, will feel bound to come to the rescue of the injured, and, better still, to try to check the mischief.

This moral reform work devolves upon us all; and the energies of both sexes are necessary for its accomplishment. Let us each personally find out how we can do the most.—Yours truly,

SARAH HILL.

GATHERED FRAGMENTS.

THE Mayor of New York has refused to licence the production of the Passion Play in that city.

REV. W. GIBSON, of 4, Rue Roquépine, Paris, appeals through the Methodist papers for help and lady helpers in his work.

AFTER some very pleasant experiences in this country, the Malagasy Envoys are about to visit the United States in futherance of their mission.

REV. H. W. BEECHER lately stated his conviction that Church fairs and religious lotteries are far more injurious to public morals than Stock gambling.

WHILE marching through a low part of Westminster one evening last week the Church Army had some rough experiences, through the opposition of certain fellows of the baser sort.

RECENT reports are to the effect that an alarming amount of destitution exists in the island of Lewis, in the Hebrides; it has been caused by failure of crops and destructive storms.

BISHOP LIGHTFOOT, in his recent charge, expresses the opinion that the Salvation Army is fast degenerating into a sect whose extravagances are developing more rapidly than its excellences.

ACCORDING to The Rock, "the Ritualistic Churches in Kensington continue to fulfil their natural functions as recruiting grounds of Rome." Two Kensington curates have lately been "received into the Catholic Church."

IN his last sermon for the year at the City Temple, Dr. Parker passed some severe strictures on the daily press for the prominence given to frivolous and degrading topics, and the paucity of attention paid to the religious life of the time.

THE Glasgow Free Presbytery has been discussing the best ways of recovering "lapsed members" and reaching non-churchgoers. "A scheme for entering into a co-operative union with the other churches was generally approved of."

IT is stated that Mr. Samuel Morley, M.P., is to be raised to the peerage before the end of the present Parliament. The Methodist thinks that not only would such an honour be borne by Mr. Morley with grace and dignity, but it would be a testimony to the dignity of commerce and to the worth of benevolence.

AT a Y.M.C.A. reception in Boston, given to Mr. Joseph Cook, on returning from his round the world tour, he was asked what had pleased him most during his absence. "I was most pleased," he replied, "with the glimpses I had of the deep spiritual life of the great preachers who lead the Christian thought of the world."

WHEN laying the corner stone of a new church, Bishop Simpson, of America, recently said that one of the best answers to those who assert that Christianity is dying out was simply to build more churches. "Infidelity builds no churches, founds no asylums, endows no universities. It provides no refuge for the poor, and furnishes no help or comfort to those who weep."

GEE STREET CHRISTIAN MISSION AND RAGGED SCHOOLS, Goswell-road, St. Luke's, London, E.C.—The Committee of the above appeal for funds for the relief of the sick and poor connected with the Mission and schools, and for carrying on the work. Contributions will be thankfully received and acknowledged by Henry Rudgley, Hon. Secretary, 82, Wood-street, Cheapside, E.C.

Notices of Books, &c.

Mr. Elliot Stock has published the thirty-ninth Annual Volume of THE CHURCH. It is well worth buying for the discourses.

"SHINE YE." By Mrs. CRONYN. 1d. S. W. Partridge & Co. Bright thoughts for the new year on the duty and privilege of making our lives luminous by holding forth the Word of life and by a consistent daily walk.

THE POSTMAN. 1d. Passmore & Alabaster. This periodical is edited by Mr. W. Y. Fullerton, whose evangelistic work in connection with Mr. Smith is so well known. We commend our contemporary for the variety, vigour, and freshness of its contents.

THE METHODIST FAMILY MAGAZINE (66, Paternoster-row) forms a pleasant medley of good things, homely and wholesome stories being mingled with sound and practical religious teaching. There is throughout the genial, happy tone that seems inseparable from everything Methodistic.

THE CURFEW BELL. DUM SPIRO SPERO. "JIM, THAT'S THEE!" Three well-written Poems, by Mr. ALBERT MILDANE; all directing the reader to the Saviour of men. Adapted for distribution. To be obtained from Mr. W. B. Horner, 27, Paternoster-square. 1d. each.

AMUSEMENT AND RECREATION: What to Choose and What to Avoid. By EVANGELIST HOPEWELL. Passmore and Alabaster. This booklet gives many useful hints as to the best way of utilising spare moments. It is marred, however, by the introduction of political topics that are open to debate.

SANDY'S FAITH. By LYDIA L. ROUSE. 1s. Religious Tract Society. This well-told story of Southern Scottish life is another true depiction of that simple yet impregnable faith so characteristic of the Scotch nation, and is a fitting rebuke to our too frequent fears, and mistrust in the purposes of God towards his people.

TWILIGHT TALKS. By AGNES GIBERNE. 1s. 6d. Religious Tract Society. A book eminently fitted for the leisure hour. It is a striking example of how scientific subjects may be explained to the young in a chit-chat and interesting fashion. These clever "talks" will fill the youthful mind with astonishment and delight.

SCENES IN CAIRO. By ANNIE R. BUTLER. 1d. W. Mack. This, the latest of the Children's Medical Mission stories, written by Miss Butler in her usual pleasing and lively style, is of special interest at the present time. An account is given of a visit paid to the British Mission Schools and the Medical Mission carried on by Miss M. L. Whately and the medical missionary, Dr. Azury.

DAYSPRING. By EMMA MARSHALL. 5s. Home Words Office. A delightful story, the scene of which is laid in the days of William Tyndale, whose work of Bible translation is brought into prominence. To have a closer acquaintance with the history of the Book of books is the duty and the privilege of all who love its teachings; we trust many will read this goodly volume, and so acquire that knowledge.

FRUITS OF A RETIRED LIFE. Poems by the late HOLMAN SHEPHARD; with memoir. S. Harris & Co., Bishopsgate-street. The memoir, which occupies the first forty pages of this book, is interesting and instructive, and is a valuable testimony to the good effects of total abstinence on a chronic and lifelong sufferer. Many of the poems are of considerable merit; they all contain much practical wisdom.

FABLES FOR "YOU." By Mrs. PROSSER. 2s. 6d. Home Words Office. A perusal of this book leads us to concur in its title, for surely there are few so wrapped in a sense of their own immaculate correctness of behaviour, as to be unable to profit from this quaint method of pointing out the inconsistencies and weaknesses of poor human nature. The book is profusely illustrated, and handsomely got up.

WE have pleasure in drawing the attention of superintendents and teachers of Sunday-schools to a series of placards, cartoons, and illustrated readings issued from No. 2, Castle-street, City-road, E.C. The placards (8d.) give, in large, plain block letters, the most important rules for observance by the children in school. The importance of pictorial aids to instruction is now recognised in most schools. The clearly-defined and beautifully-drawn characters in these cartoons and illustrated readings (1s. each), representing scenes in the life of Christ—the former with a background in gold, and the latter in light blue—are well calculated to fix the attention and impress the mind of the child.

POLISHED CORNER-STONES; or, Letters to School-girls, by Popular Writers. Edited by CAROLINE G. CAVENDISH. S. W. Partridge & Co. Contains much trenchant wisdom in a small compass. These letters, issued originally to members of the "Christian Women's Educational Union," cannot fail to inspire new and solemn thoughts of the responsibilities of life into the minds of girls who come under their influence. The present selection should be widely circulated.

FROM INDIA'S CORAL STRAND. By E. LAKSHMI GOREH. 2s. Home Words Office. Lovers of sacred poetry will be charmed with this tasteful little volume. Ellen Lakshmi Goreh is a talented Brahmin lady, who has been educated in this country. The leading incidents in her life are skilfully sketched in the introduction by the Rev. Charles Bullock. The poems combine depth of experience with a fervent richness of expression, and an exceeding tunefulness of rhythm.

FOOTPRINTS AND "LIVING SONGS." By FRANCES RIDLEY HAVERGAL. 1s. Home Words Office. These gathered fragments of one whose memory is still fragrant, form a gracious little souvenir. Edited by the Rev. C. BULLOCK, the footprints are graphically traced by Miss E. S. Coombe; Mrs. Crane contributes a "specimen glass" of F. R. Havergal's choicest songs; while another "specimen glass" by Miss Havergal herself—an unfinished MS.—fitly concludes the selection.

The Wesleyan Methodist Sunday-school Union have issued "The Scholar's Tablet Book, for Seniors and Juniors" (3d. each), which will be appreciated by the members of that important denomination. The volume of OUR BOYS AND GIRLS, for 1882 (1s.), is full of pieces that will attract and instruct the young; it is prettily got up. The SUNDAY-SCHOOL MAGAZINE forms a considerable volume. The "Lessons" are so valuable that it is fitting they should be thus bound up and preserved.

VANGUARD OF THE CHRISTIAN ARMY. By the AUTHOR OF "GREAT VOYAGERS." 5s. Religious Tract Society. A book which has aimed at, and most successfully accomplished, a sketch of the lives and work of some eminent missionary pioneers. The writer has gathered up an amount of history connected with bygone days in a wonderfully attractive style, which makes it at once acceptable to the enthusiast in great undertakings, and a stimulus to missionary zeal and enterprise. The volume is richly illustrated.

DULCE DOMUM. By the late Rev. F. PERRY, M. A. J. Davis, 201, Old Kent-road. This republication, in a cheaper form, by the author's son, is a treasury of sound wisdom, practical exhortation, and exalted moral and spiritual teaching. The various aspects and relationships of social life are dealt with so exhaustively that we feel we sit at the feet of a guide of rare excellence, whose loving, earnest words are specially needed in this age of shallow principles and thoughtless activity. We commend this admirable work to every householder.

Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co. have published some neat "Motto Cards" in gold and silver borders, the verses being specially written by Mr. W. Luff for members of Sunday-schools and Bible-classes. A wish is given on the reverse side, with space for name. They are both pretty and apposite. The price is 1s. per dozen. The same publishers issue "Golden Lays for the New Year" and "Spray Drops from the Fountain of Life," consisting of assortments of sixteen different hymn leaflets, by Mr. Luff. Price 6d. per packet.

THE WORLD IN PICTURES. Under this title a charming series of books, "The Eastern Wonderland," "Peeps into China," "Glimpses of South America," "Round Africa," "The Land of Temples," and "The Isles of the Pacific," have been published by Messrs. Cassell, Petter, Galpin & Co. The engravings are admirably executed, and are very varied in their subjects; an immense amount of useful and valuable information is intermingled with them, and the public ought to be grateful to those who disseminate useful knowledge in such an attractive guise.

ANECDOTAL NATURAL HISTORY. By Rev. J. G. WOOD and THEODORE WOOD. 2s. 6d. PRACTICAL LESSONS ON INSECT LIFE. By THEODORE WOOD. 2s. 6d. These handsome prize editions from the educational publishing-house of Mr. Joseph Hughes, Pilgrim-street, are written in a popular and interesting style. They show what may be produced in the way of entertaining literature without the aid of fiction. The wonderful adaptability of both animal and insect life to the sphere each species is created to occupy is brought out in a striking manner, and must tend to impress the dullest comprehension with a sense of the infinite wisdom of the Creator.

SEEKETH NOT HER OWN. By Miss SITWELL. 3s. 6d. J. F. Shaw & Co. In the title we have the keynote of this excellent story of peasant life in Brittany. The daily life of the Breton peasant is told with a simple naturalness by Miss Sitwell, and the new life of faith and consecration in both chateau and cottage is beautifully and earnestly set forth.

BIBLE CLASS PRIMERS. Edited by PROFESSOR SALMOND, D.D., Aberdeen. Macniven & Wallace, Edinburgh. We have already commended this excellent and useful series. We have now before us "Joshua and the Conquest," and "The History of the Reformation," both by Rev. Professor Witheron, Londonderry; and "The Kings of Israel," by Rev. W. Walker, M.A., Monymusk. We value these compilations and condensations because they consist mainly of facts rather than of opinions, while the facts are so narrated as to show that the sympathies of Editor and writers are distinctly on the side of Evangelical truth. These little sixpenny books are admirably adapted for teachers and scholars; and Evangelists and preachers of all kinds would get much valuable information, far better suited to the needs of the people than the rationalistic speculations of some more pretentious books.

TEMPERANCE ITEMS.

THE Arbroath Gospel Temperance Union has now a membership of 7240.

MR. W. FORBES has conducted a three days' Mission at Plymouth with much success.

MR. GEORGE BLAIKLOCK has conducted a three days' Mission at High Wycombe; 400 new pledges were signed.

MR. FRANCIS MURPHY conducted a campaign in Perth last week; the details have not as yet reached us.

A GREAT "demonstration of reclaimed drunkards," was held last week in the Glasgow City Hall, by the Salvation Army.

ANOTHER Gospel Temperance Mission has been held in Holloway, at which a considerable number of fresh pledges has been secured.

AT the close of a short Mission in Driffield a grocer and wine merchant in the town signed the pledge and donned the ribbon. He further announced his intention to put his stock of with "down the sink," and henceforth to forswear the traffic.

IN a short article, wishing a happy new year and God-speed to the temperance organisations, The Echo says the drinking customs of the country must be assailed in detail without ceasing; the most certain certain and effectual method is to begin with the young.

AT the recent annual meeting of the Leeds Women's Christian Temperance Union, Sir Ed. Baines said that while he rejoiced at the failing revenue from the consumption of intoxicants, he regretted a sad increase in the number of women who were slaves to drink.

A NEW coffee house in Glasgow, specially intended for sailors, has been opened. Mr. Alex. Allan, who presided, said that there were upwards of thirty large public-houses along the Broomielaw—the district of the docks. Scotland can boast at present of eighteen teetotal Provosts. One of them, Mr. Moncur, of Dundee, is about to be entertained at a banquet by his brother magistrates and other public officials.

MILDMAY MISSION TO THE JEWS. — On the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, 1st and 2nd inst., two interesting gatherings of Jews were held in the Mission-room in Hooper-square, E. The room, which holds about 200 persons, was crowded, on the first night by adults, and on the second by children. A substantial repast was provided on each occasion. Mr. Wilkinson, on Monday night, gave his audience plainly to understand that Jesus Christ, their rejected Messiah, would be preached, and that all the efforts of his friends were inspired by this one aim. Everyone present remained to hear the earnest and faithful addresses which were delivered by the friends. On Tuesday evening, several of the Jewish children attending the night-school recited clearly and accurately certain well-selected portions of Scripture from the Old and New Testaments. The proceedings were varied by the children singing hymns. At the close, a generous distribution of prizes and gifts of a useful kind were given to those who have attended the school regularly and behaved well. Prayer is asked that this, the most important department of the Mission, may bear much fruit.

(For Forthcoming Meetings, &c., see p. 22.)

(Continued from page 3.)

Miscellaneous.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES.—When you send your "things to the wash," kindly insert in parcel a "Friendly Letter, addressed to Laundresses," &c., price ½d. To be had from Author, 5, St. James'-square, Bath; or publishers, JARROLD, London and Norwich.

KINDNESS TO ANIMALS.—Card pictures with suitable anecdotes, coloured borders, seven varieties, specially adapted for schools and free distribution: dozen 8d., score 1s., hundred 4s. 6d., carriage free.—C. BARROW, 11, Ampton-road, Birmingham.

Publications.

NEW YEAR'S BOOKS FOR 1883,
With Covers beautifully printed in Chromo-Lithography, 32 pages. One Penny each, or 1s. per dozen.

DO IT NOW: A New Year's Motto. By the Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A., Wolverhampton.

BE IN TIME: A New Year's Address to the Young. By J. FORBES MONCRIEFF.

GOSPEL BOOKS with Covers beautifully printed in Chromo-Lithography. By the Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. In Two Packets, 6d. each. Packet I. contains:—1. Do It Now. 2. The Four Looks. 3. Crossing the Bridge. 4. The Heavenly Ladder. 5. The Door Open and the Door Shut. 6. Deepen the Well.
Packet II. contains:—7. All for Christ. 8. Shine as Lights. 9. The Blood More Precious than Gold. 10. Nearer to Thee. 11. The Four Alls. 12. A Christian's Prayer in Six Words.

BLUE RIBBON SERIES. Twelve little 8-page Books, Illustrated, Tinted Paper. By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. Packet of 50, assorted, 6d.

WELCOME TO JESUS. Four-page Floral Tracts, with beautiful design, printed in Chromo-Lithography, on first page. By C. H. SPURGEON. Two Packets of 32 Tracts each 6d. per Packet.

CROWN SERIES. Twelve Illustrated Little Books, 16 pages, Tinted paper. Packet of one each, 6d.

ARMY SERIES.—Six Illustrated Little Books for Soldiers, 16 pages, Tinted paper. Packet of 12, assorted, 6d.

COURT LEAFLETS. On thick cream-coloured paper, with coloured border, 4 pages. Packet III., 50 copies, assorted, 6d.

COME TO JESUS. Four-page floral Tracts, with beautiful design printed in Chromo-Lithography on first page. Two packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per packet.

THE SINNER'S FRIEND. Four-page Floral Tracts, as above. Two packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per packet.

THE CHRISTIAN SOLDIER. Thoughts suggested by the War. By Rev. A. R. M. FINLAYSON, Alderley Edge. 32 pages. Price 1d

Illustrated Monthly Periodicals.

THE BRITISH MESSENGER. Price 1d.
THE GOSPEL TRUMPET. Price ½d., or 3s. 6d. per 100.
GOOD NEWS. Price ¼d., 3 for 1d., or 2s. 6d. per 100.
The three Periodicals for one year 2s. 6d.
DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling, N.B.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM, as contained in the Word of God, by FRANK H. WHITE. S. W. Partridge & Co. Post free 4½d., of Mr. Joseph Everett, 75, Cornwall-road, London, W. "The best little book on Baptism it has ever been our lot to read."—Messiah's Witness.

Terms for Advertisements IN "The Christian"

(PREPAID.)

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding 30 Words		3	0
,,	39 ,, ...	3	9
,,	48 ,, ...	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger Advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

To prevent disappointment, it is necessary to say that in no case must Letters be addressed to a Post-office, unless permission be previously obtained at such Post-office.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive and forward Replies to Advertisements.

☞ In order to secure insertion of Advertisements in the following number of THE CHRISTIAN they should reach this office on or before Friday, and at the latest by Saturday Morning first post.

"The Christian."

SUBSCRIPTIONS for 3, 6 or 12 Months.

INCLUDING ANY DOUBLE NUMBERS.

				£	s.	.
13 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	..	..	0	1	9
2 Copies ,,	1d.	..	..	0	3	5
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	..	..	0	5	2
4 ,, ,,	2d.	..	..	0	6	10
26 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	..	..	0	3	5
2 Copies ,,	1d.	..	..	0	6	10
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	..	..	0	10	3
4 ,, ,,	2d.	..	..	0	13	8
52 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	..	..	0	6	10
2 Copies ,,	1d.	..	..	0	13	8
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	..	..	1	0	6
4 ,, ,,	2d.	..	..	1	7	4

Remittances to be made either by Postal Order, or Post Office Order, payable at the General Post Office. Cheques to be crossed "City Bank."

The prices include any Double Numbers that may be issued through the year.

Copies will be continued after the term is expired for which payment has been made, unless instructions are sent to the contrary.

Particulars for FOREIGN SUBSCRIPTIONS can be obtained on application to the Publisher.

FAITHFUL RECORDS

A Series of 12 Narrative Tracts,

Specially adapted for Sick-room Visitation.

ATTRACTIVELY BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE 1s. 6d. POST-FREE.

May be had also in Assorted Packet, Price 1s., post-free

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Bagster's Bibles

IN FRENCH MOROCCO CIRCUIT. ELASTIC BAND. Facsimile, Maps, References, Help

4/-

MRS. GRIMKÈ'S TEXT CARDS.

A MISSION TO MANY LANDS.

New varieties suited for the Season at 3s., 2s. 6d., 2s., and 1s. 6d. the 100. Also photographs, lithographs, quilt texts, &c. Nos. 1 and 2, Lighthouse Tracts, 4s. per 100. For list send stamped envelope to Prestwich, Manchester.

Twelfth Edition, Post-free, 1s.

DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS.

A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., F.R.S.I., F.C.S., &c., 5, Bulstrode-street, Cavendish-square, London.
London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.

FIDELIA FISKE.

THE RECORD OF A CONSECRATED LIFE.
EDITED BY
REV. WM. GUEST.

"A book after our own heart, a veritable history of a consecrated life. Buy it and read it, pray over it and imitate it, is our advice to all, and especially to our sisters in the Lord, who will do well to be followers of her in her faith and patience, her consecration, and self-sacrificing love."—Sword & Trowel.

A SUPERIOR EDITION. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

McCALL'S PAYSANDU OX-TONGUES.

IN TINS, READY FOR IMMEDIATE USE.

Sold by all Grocers.

Handsome Gift Books.

THE LARGE-TYPE QUARTO EDITION OF

Sacred Songs and Solos.

Enlarged Edition, 271 Pieces. Music and Words. Specially prepared for use at the Organ, Piano, or Harmonium. Cloth Elegant, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 10s. 6d.; handsomely bound in Morocco, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 17s. 6d.

"This beautiful edition of old favourites is a splendid specimen of music typography. A capital arrangement for piano or organ. We wish it wide circulation."
Penuel.

"The Typography, paper, &c., is everything that can be wished."
Methodist New Connexion Magazine.

Foxe's Book of Martyrs.

A Complete and Authentic Account of the Lives, Sufferings, and Triumphant Deaths of Primitive and Protestant Martyrs in all parts of the World. With Illustrations. Complete, handsomely bound in cloth, 10s. 6d.

At a time like the present, when, in Great Britain, Popery, and its evil progeny Ritualism, are both insidiously and openly seeking to gain the supremacy, it is necessary to the well-being of our country that the story of FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS should be regarded as an essential part of the education of our children. The issue of the present edition, at a low price, and in the convenient form of MONTHLY PARTS (16 parts at 6d. each), places this valued book within the reach of almost everyone.

Cruden's Concordance to the Old and New

TESTAMENTS. Handsomely bound in cloth, price 7s. 6d. Popular Edition, cloth, 5s.

THE SPECIAL FEATURE in this Edition is the NEW TRANSLATION, Revision, and Extension of the PROPER NAMES of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENTS with their Meanings in the Original Languages. By Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A., Author of "The Proper Names of the Old Testament Scriptures, Expounded and Illustrated."

For nearly a century and a half CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE has held its place in public estimation. No minister's study has been deemed to be properly furnished without possessing a copy of this treasured book.

Searching the Scriptures in Order to ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also, Suggestions for Bible Reading and Study, and a PLAN for CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING. By Dr. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S., London. Cloth, bevelled boards, price 3s. 6d.

"It is impossible to speak too highly of this volume, which is the result of immense labour and consecrated talent. To the Bible Student, the Sunday-school Teacher, or Local Preacher, its aid is indispensable, for it is the most able condensation of larger and numerous works, which places it within the reach of all who aspire to become mighty in the Scriptures, and always ready to give a reason for the hope which is in them."—Christian Age.

John, whom Jesus Loved.

Sketch of the Character, Writings, Theology, and Influence of the Beloved Disciple. New and Enlarged Edition. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. With Chromo-Lithographic Views of the "Sea of Galilee" and the "Isle of Patmos." Cloth, bevelled boards, 3s. 6d.

"This is not a book to be taken up lightly, read hurriedly, and carelessly dismissed. It merits, and will reward, a quiet, thoughtful perusal."—The Record.

"Thy First Love."

Christ's Message to Ephesus. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. With Chromo-Lithographic Frontispiece. Cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"A clear and thoughtful exposition. Dr. Culross writes in an easy, interesting manner; sometimes quaintly, always pointedly. Many a laggard in the heavenly race would be stirred to activity by reading Dr. Culross' exposition."—Penuel.

"Behold, I stand at the Door, and Knock."

Christ's Message to Laodicea. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. Tinted covers, 1s. cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"A most opportune book. Would that every professing Christian would thoughtfully and prayerfully peruse it. Sunday-school teachers also would find it immensely stimulating and reviving."—Hive.

Notes for Bible Readings.

A Collection of over Six Hundred Subjects, carefully compiled and arranged. Suitable for Bible Readings, Cottage Lectures, Sermons, Addresses, Sabbath-school Lessons, &c. Cloth, bevelled boards, 3s. 6d. A cheap edition may also be had in tinted cover, 2s. 6d.

"This is a book which every Bible student should possess. It will be of special value to the class-teacher, and an assistance also to the preacher. It brings together an immense number of subjects, with groupings of Scripture texts on each. It supplies valuable matter for private meditation, and those who conduct Bible readings will find it most suggestive."—Christian Progress.

Christ Lifted Up.

By Rev. ROBERT GILCHRIST. Handsomely bound in cloth, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.

"Mr. Gilchrist preaches a full Gospel. The fulness of Christ for every need of fallen humanity is set forth in a clear and convincing and attractive manner."
Christian World.

"Old-fashioned divinity presented in a pleasing form. May its readers be many.
Sword and Trowel

The Gospel according to Moses:

as seen in the Tabernacle and its Various Services. By Rev. GEORGE RODGERS. Frontispiece. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s.

"No young Christian, and especially no preacher, should be ignorant of the truth which this small volume very simply but very forcibly enunciates."—The Record.

LONDON:
MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.:
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Requests for Praise and Prayer.

"Rejoice evermore. Pray without ceasing. In everything give thanks; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."—1 THESS. v. 16, 17, 18.

PRAISE.—For great blessing on Gospel services at Sourton, Devon.

PRAYER.—For the 120,000 members of the "Children's Scripture Union;" they are scattered all over the world.——For one who has long laboured for the extension of God's kingdom, i.e., the salvation of souls, who is now seriously ill, that he may be restored to health if for the glory of God.——For the restoration of a sister who is insane.

PLACES.—For blessing on a special Gospel effort among 250 cabmen and boys in Bournemouth.——For Gospel Missions to be conducted by Rev. Henry Dening, at St. Andrew's Church, Harrow-road, W., and St. Andrew's Church, Leeds.——For blessing on Evangelistic services at Lipton and Thorne Cross, from Jan. 21 to 28.——For blessing in Wortley during the Mission from Jan. 20 to 30.——For blessing on a new Gospel effort on Sunday evenings at Worcester.——For a rich blessing on a week of Children's services at Carshalton.——For a great blessing on a Mission at Sheepy, near Atherstone, Jan. 20 to 28, conducted by Rev. S. Chorlton, of Sheffield.——For blessing on a fortnight's Mission at Woodley, near Stockport, Cheshire, from Jan. 21 to Feb. 4, conducted by Mr. Gillingham, of the Evangelisation Society.

Forthcoming Meetings.

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY'S FORTHCOMING ENGAGEMENTS—1883—Jan. 18 to Feb. 7, Birmingham; Feb. 11 to 18, Belfast; Feb. 20 to 23, Leicester; Feb. 25 to 28, Nottingham; Mar. 1 to 15, Manchester; Mar. 16 to 30, Leeds; Mar. 31 to April 14, Liverpool.

WEEK OF PRAYER, JAN. 7–14.

EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE: Steinway-hall, Lower Seymour-street, Portman-square, at 11.30 each morning. Mon., Jan. 8, address by Ven. Archdeacon Richardson, M.A.; Tues., address by the Rev. C. Clemance, D.D.; Wed., address by the Rev. G. Stringer Rowe; Thurs., address by Rev. Donald Fraser, D.D.; Fri., address by the Rev. J. Bennett, M.A.; Sat., address by the Rev. Thomas Brockway.

The South London Branch of the Alliance have arranged meetings daily during the week:—Mon., at 7 p.m., Metropolitan Tabernacle; Tues., at 7.30 p.m., Lecture-hall, Streatham Hill Congregational Church; Wed., at 7.30 p.m., Lecture-hall, Presbyterian Church, Clapham-road; Thurs., at 7.30 p.m., Lecture-hall, Denmark-place Chapel, Cold Harbour-lane; Fri., at 7.30 p.m., St. Matthew's School-room, Brixton; Sat., at 7 p.m., Lambeth Chapel, Lambeth-road. The addresses will be given by the Revs. C. H. Spurgeon, J. P. Gledstone, Dr. McEwan, Dr. Stanford, N. A. Garland, and John McKenny.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—Meetings will be held in the Council-room of the Centenary-hall, Bishopsgate-street, from 1 to 2 p.m. Mon., address by Rev. G. W. Olver, B.A.; Tues., address by Rev. C. Campe; Wed., address by Rev. A. Sandison; Thurs., address by Rev. J. T. Briscoe; Fri., address by Rev. J. S. Edmond, D.D.; Sat., address by Rev. E. W. Moore, M.A.

CONFERENCE HALL, ECCLESTON-STREET (three minutes walk from Victoria Station).—Meetings for prayer and praise every morning at 11.30; prayer and addresses to believers every evening, except Saturday, at 7.30.

MILDMAY CONFERENCE HALL.—Monday Jan. 8th to Saturday, Jan. 13, at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. The following will give Addresses:—Revs. A. Bax, David Brodie, Gordon Calthrop, Wm. Cuff, John Edmond, Fredk. Greeves, D. B. Hankin, D. A. Herschell, Jas Stephens, E. A. Stuart, F. H. White, J. Wilkinson, Geo. Wilson, and Dr. Lazeron.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales, on due notice Apply, Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-st., Strand, W.C.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any evangelical denomination in London. Apply, Hon. Sec., 30, Surrey-sq., S.E.

THE IRISH EVANGELIZATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

CONVERSION OF ISRAEL.—Meeting for Prayer, at 4, Guildford-place, Russell-square, each Friday at 8 p.m.

REV. W. HASLAM'S ENGAGEMENT.—St. Stephen's Leeds, Jan. 20.

REV. W. H. AITKEN'S ENGAGEMENTS.—Jan. 6 to 19, Bedford, St. Cuthbert's; Jan. 21 to Feb. 7, Leeds, Canon Jackson's Church; Victoria-hall, Feb. 8 to 25; March 4 to 19, Weymouth; March 31 to April 16, Wareham; April 22 to May 6, St. Matthew's, Bayswater; May 26 to July 2, South London.

Y.M.C.A., THE PRIORY, 193, Upper-street, N.—Thursday, Jan. 11, 8.30 p.m., Address. Sat., Jan. 13, Bible Study. Sun., Jan. 14, 9.30 a.m., Fellowship Meeting; 3.15 p.m. Bible Class; 8.30 p.m., Evangelistic and Testimony Meeting. Wed., 6 to 10, anxious Inquirers and Strangers are seen by the Secretary.

——— West Branch, Burlington-hall, 23, Savile-row, Regent-street. Week of Prayer. Prayer-meetings on Thursday Jan. 11, and Saturday, Jan. 13, at 8.30 p.m.; Bible Class on Sunday, Jan. 14, at 3.15 p.m., conducted by Mr. Henry Varley. He will give an introductory exposition on the Epistle to the Ephesians.

——— Iona Rooms, 205, High-street, Camden Town. New Year's Social Reception, Thursday evening, January 11, Mr. J. H. Tritton will preside; addresses by Revs. Marcus Rainsford, M.A., and Marcus Rainsford, Jun., B.A. Tea, coffee, &c., 8 to 8.30 p.m.

EXETER HALL.—Each Sunday evening in January, at 7 p.m. Addresses by Mr. Henry Varley.

AGRICULTURAL HALL SERVICES.—Sunday, Jan. 14, 3.30 p.m. Rev. J. T. Wigner: 7 p.m., Messrs. G. E. Elvin, Lazenby, and Lawless (soloist).

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—During January, Sun., 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Mr. Denham Smith; also at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, W., Wednesday, at 8 p.m.

STEPNEY MEETING HOUSE, Spring Garden Place, E.—Mrs. G. S. Reaney will give an Address to Men and Women every Sunday, at 3 p.m.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.—Mr. Banaster at Newport, Salop; at Bognor, Jan. 15 to 22; Mr. Seyler at All Saints' Schools, Muriel-street, Caledonian-road, N., Jan. 11 to 12; Mr. Dennes at West-street School-room, Carshalton, Jan. 8 to 12; Mr. Spiers at Newton Abbot.

THE DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—Stafford Rooms, Tichborne-street, Edgware-road, on Friday, January 12, at 3.30 p.m., Rev. S. Darwin Fox; subject, "Joy and Usefulness."

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W. Friday, Jan. 12, at 7 p.m. (tea at 6 p.m.), "Deepening of Spiritual Life," Rev. E. Gill, M.A., Chaplain to the Salvation Army; Tuesday, Jan. 9, at 11.30 a.m., "Second Advent," by Miss Mason.

DR. THAIN DAVIDSON'S Monthly Sermon to Young Men Presbyterian Church, Colebrooke-row, Islington. Sunday, Jan. 14, at 6.30 p.m.

THE "MERCHANT'S LECTURE," Weigh House Chapel, Fish-street-hill.—Lecturer for January, Rev. Dr. Allon. Tues., at 12 noon.

MEETINGS FOR PROMOTION OF HOLINESS.—Mrs. Boardman's Bible-class at 11.30 a.m., every Wed. Rev. W. E. Boardman Tues. at 5, Rochester-sq., Camden-rd., 6 p.m., Conversational meetings, 7 p.m. Bible reading. 1st Tues., each month, afternoon meeting at 3.30.—Surrey Chapel, Blackfriars-road, Sat. 7.30 p.m., Rev. B. Senior presiding.—Every Mon., at 7.30 p.m., at 39, Park-lane-terrace, Albion-rd., Stoke Newington (Mildmay-park Station).—Bethshan, 10, Draytonpark, Highbury, Sun., 6.30 p.m.; Wed., 3 p.m., Holiness and Healing.—At 5, Northampton-place, Upper Holloway-road, N., Thursday, 7.30 p.m.

EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—"The Oxford" Music Hall, 6, Oxford-street, W.; Sunday, at 7 p.m., Mr. Geo. Tonkins, Subject: "Unlimited supply; and its channel." Mornington Hall, corner of Granby-street, Hampstead-road: Sun. at 7 p.m., and Tues. at 8 p.m., Mr. Herbert R. Francis. Kilburn Hall, Kilburn-gate (not Town Hall): Sun., 7 p.m., and Wed., 7.30 p.m., Mr. W. R. Lane, special Bible-readings by Pastor J. Wilkinson (Mildmay Mission to the Jews) every Mon. at 7.30 p.m. Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock Hill; Sun. at 7 p.m., and Thurs. at 7.30 p.m., Mr. Geo. Hucklesby. Temple of Varieties, King-street, Hammersmith; Sunday, 5.30 p.m. Mr. W. R. Lane, and Mr. E. Ives at 7 p.m. Anchor Mission Room (Upper Room), late Anchor Assembly Rooms, King-street, Hammersmith: Service, Tues. and Thurs. at 3 p.m., Mr. R. W. Lane. Bignold Hall, Bignold-road, Station-road, Forest-gate: Sunday, 7 p.m. (Subject: The Publican's Prayer), and Wednesday, 8 p.m., Mr. F. C. Spurr. Wed., 6.30 to 7.30 p.m., Children's Service. Omega Hall, Omega-place, Alpha-road, Regent's-park: Sun. at 3.30 and 7 p.m., Tues. and Fri. at 8 p.m., Messrs. W. H. Smith and J. Spruut, 190, Alexandra-road, St. John's-wood; Wed. at 10.30 a.m., Prayer-meeting for workers. Dalston Hall, Dalston-lane, near the Junction; Sun., 3.15 p.m. (subject: The Life of Nehemiah), Mr. J. E. Jack; and at 7 p.m. special lectures by Mr. Geo. Hucklesby, on "The Tabernacle in the Wilderness," illustrated by a model and diagrams; every Tues. at 8 p.m., every Thurs. at 8 p.m., Mr. J. E. Jack. Saturdays, at 3 p.m., Children's service.

Notices.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—A. Phillips, 10, Tabernacle-square, Finsbury, E.C.; J. A. Jermy, 42, Three Colt-street, Limehouse, E.; Miss Moore, Ballachurry, Kirk-street, Anw, Isle of Man; F. Chitty, 12, North Parade Avenue, Banbury-road, Oxford; A. Stephenson, Tudor-cottages, 313, Harborne-road, Birmingham; Miss Kate Smith, Brightman's-cottages, Eaton Ford, near St. Neot's, Beds; Miss C. Maddeson, Scotland Farm, Blyborough, near Kirton Lindsey, Lincolnshire; Mrs. Cambridge, 6, Fowler-road, Halton-road, Canonbury, N.; H. Welch, 17, Paisley-street, Guelph, Ontario, Canada; J. Hockaday, Delabole, Camelford, Cornwall.

Communications received with thanks—H.M.H. W.S. M.B. J.A.R. A.W. S.S.M. Miss C., Philadelphus, W.C. A.M. C.T. J.R.M. L.M.T. A.H. F.W.B. S.T.F. C.M.P. Ignatius, W.N. L.V. S.C. T.R.G. M.M. W.J.L. A.S.W. H.G.S. F.C.S. W.G. W.H.M. C.G.D. F.W. E.H. J.W. G. de G.G. M.S. F.F. Nellie, H.C. W.J.L. Edinburgh, F.P. W.H. T.G.B. C.C. Effie, J.W. E.W. A Working Man, A.W. W.Q. H.N. C.H.M. T.B.H. J.B. H.T.E. J.K. G.T.G. S.H. E.T.H. T.S. B.S. D.P.K. A.K. G.B. J.P. M.M. G.E.P. E.M.C. G.W. J.B. A.G. J.S.F. W.A.B.

MR. SPENCER WALTON is conducting a fortnight's Mission in the schoolroom of St. Michael's, Bournemouth, with the efficient co-operation of the vicar, Rev. Mr. Toyne, and with good result in the conversion of souls.

Subscriptions received to Saturday Morning, Jan. 6.

	£	s.	d.
Christmas Cries, &c. (Woman's Work)—"Daisy," 2s. 6d.; P. M. £1	1	2	6
St. Giles's Christian Mission—M. J. M. 10s.; A. S. A. 10s.; J. W. S. 2s. 6d.; W. C. 5s.; "A Mite from a Servant," 2s.; Mrs. & Miss P. 12s. 7d.; M. J. £1; A. B. 4s.; E. H. 2s. 7d. Prison Mission—M. A. C. 10s.	7	14	8
Drury-lane Christian Mission—M. J. M.	0	10	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—D. F. M. £5; F. C. 10s.; R. O. 3s.; J. W. S. 2s. 6d.; J. H. W. £3 3s.; C. H. S. W. £1; E. M. M. £1 7s. 6d.; Mrs. & Miss P. 10s.; M. J. £1; A. B. £4. Ilford Home—M. L. W. 10s.	17	6	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—D. F. M. £5; X. P. X. 3s.; J. M. D., Aberdeen, 5s.; "Waste Paper, High School, Margate," 6s. 6d.; "Collected by J. H." 5s.; J. H. W. £3 3s.; C. H. S. W. £1; M. J. 10s.
Inverness House—A. B. £4	14	12	6
Dr. Pasalenti's Mission to Italians—M. J.	0	10	0
Miss Whately's Work, Cairo—W. H. N. £1; G. 10s.	1	10	0
National Lifeboat Institution—W. H. N.	1	0	0
Thames Church Mission—W. H. N. £1; A. S. J. 5s.	1	5	0
Rev. R. W. McAll's Work, Paris—W. H. N. £1; L. K. S. £2; M. L. W. 10s.	3	10	0
Gratuitous Circulation of THE CHRISTIAN—W. H. N. 7s. 5d.; P. M. 10s.	0	17	5
Rev. C. J. Whitmore's Work—E. M.	3	0	0
Dock Labourers' Mission—P. M. £2; "Two little Girls," 1s.; L. H. 4s.; A. P. B. 15s. Mrs. Coleman's Expenses—Miss H. £1	4	0	0
Christmas Help for the Poor—P. M. £1; M. J. 10s.	1	10	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—P. M. £1; X. P. X. 3s.; J. F. P. £2 2s.; C. W. £1; M. E. O. 5s.	4	10	0
Welcome Home—P. M. £2; F. C. 10s.; A. B. £4	6	10	0
Christian Tract Fund—P. M.	1	10	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—K. P. S. 5s.; M. A. C. £1; "Beta," 10s.	1	15	0
Friendless and Fallen—X. P. X. 3s.; A. S. A. 10s.; L. E. S. £2; J. W. S. 2s. 6d.; E. M. M. 10s.; A. B. £4. All Night Refuge—M. E. O. 5s.	7	10	6
Mrs. Hilton's Creche—J. M. D., Aberdeen, 5s.; C. H. S. W. £1; A. B. £4	5	5	0
Sick Children's Dinner Society—J. M. D., Aberdeen	0	5	0
London Missionary Society—"Aitkenhead Sunday School," 12s.; M. C., Prov. iii. 9, 10, 4s.	0	16	0
Mission to Kabyles—G.	0	10	0
Punrooty Mission—G. 10s.; "Friends in Canada," 13s. 9d.; M. A. C. 10s.	1	13	9
Irish Evangelisation Society—G.	1	0	0
China Inland Mission—G. 10s.; F. C. £1; W. R. 7s. 6d.; L. E. S. £2; M. A. C. 10s.; A. A. £6	9	7	6
Mr. Pascoe's Work, Mexico—G.	0	10	0
Colar Mission (Miss Anstey)—G.	0	10	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—G.	0	10	0
Army Scripture Readers' Society—G.	0	10	0
Gray's Yard Ragged School—B. 10s. Meals—S.E.C. 10s.	1	0	0
Miss Cole's Orphan Home—"Little Frankie"	0	7	6
Gospel All Night Mission—F. C.	1	0	0
Miss E. Hopkins' Work—F. C.	0	10	0
Midnight Meeting Movement—F. C.	1	0	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliffe—F. C. £1; A. S. A. 10s.; A. B. £4	5	10	0
Cow-cross Mission—F. C.	0	10	0
Mrs. Meredith's Prison Mission—A. S. A. 10s. Mine Elms Mission—F. C. 10s; A. B. £4	5	0	0
George Yard Ragged School—F. C. 10s.; A. S. A. 10s.; E. R. D. 10s.; A. B. £4	5	10	0
Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland—F. C.	1	0	0
Evangelistic Mission—F. C.	0	10	0
London Medical Mission—"Thank-offering"	5	0	0
Hospital for Paralysed and Epileptic—A. S. A.	0	10	0
Princess Mary Village Homes—A. S. A.	0	10	0
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, E.—"Collected by Miss McN." £1; "Two friends per Mr. M." £2; "A Friend" 5s.; Hon. E. W. £5	8	5	0
East London Training Institute—L. E. S. £2. Congo Mission—A. £25	7	0	0
Miss Leigh's Work, Paris—L. E. S.	2	0	0
Church Missionary Society—M. E. C.	0	10	0
Dublin Prison-gate Mission—J. C.	0	5	6
Bird's Nest Mission—J. C.	0	5	0
East London Mission—J. W. S.	0	2	0
Poor Jews in Jerusalem (Messrs. Friedlander and Kelk)—L. A.	0	6	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—B. 10s.; W. C. 10s. W. H. N. £1; A. A. £5; C. H. S. W. £1	8	0	0
Miss Grewer's Orphan Home—"Waste Paper, High School, Margate"	0	6	0
Miss Weston's Work in the Royal Navy—W. C. 5s.; M. A. C. 10s.; C. H. S. W. £1	1	15	0
Home for Aged Blind Christian Women—M. C. Prov. iii. 9, 10	0	3	0
Miss West's Work, Constantinople—Mrs. R.	1	10	0
Golden-lane Mission—M. A. C.	0	10	0
Miss Robinson's Work among Soldiers—M. A. C.	0	10	0
Zenana and Medical Mission (Dr. Griffiths) M. A. C.	0	10	0
Mrs. H. Moorehouse—A. H. C. & M. C.	1	0	0
Homerton Mission—S. E. C. 10s.; E. R. D. 10s.; C. H. S. W. £1; Mrs. & Miss P. 10s. Breakfasts—M. C. Prov. iii. 9, 10, 2s. 6d. A. S. A. 10s.	3	2	6
Home of Industry—J. M. D., Aberdeen, 5s.; W. & A. C. £2 10s.; E. R. D. 10s.; M. A. C. 10s.; C. H. S. W. £1; A. B. £4. Widows—A. S. A. 10s. Children—A. S. A. 10s.	9	15	0
Turkish Mission Aid Society—A. A.	5	0	0
Miss Mittendorff's Home—C. H. S. W.	1	0	0
Woman's Mission to Women—C. W. £1; A. B. £4	5	0	0
Mrs. Parsons' Home—A. B.	4	0	0
Miss Lee's Home, Eastbourne—A. B.	4	0	0
Homes of Hope—A. B.	4	0	0
Cripples' Home, Marylebone-road—A. B.	4	0	0
Morley Home for Worn-out Governesses—E. R. D.	0	10	0
	£92	3	4

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

St. Giles' Christian Mission—007455, £1.

"A Friend to Seamen" sends Mr. Cook six comforters and some books.

The London Samaritan Society and Homerton Mission—For Destitute Poor—Plymouth, per P.O.O. 006004, 10s.; W. C. R. 20s.; Anon., 10s.; Sheerness, 1s.; Miss P. 10s.

Field-lane Refuges—The Committee gratefully acknowledge the receipt of the following contributions:—W. 2s. 6d.; M. E. S. £2; R. A. Ellis, Esq., 10s.; E. G. Chartier, Esq., 5s.; Mrs. J. J. Maw, 2s. 6d.; "Children's Cry," £1 1s.; Anon., 2s. 6d.; Mrs. E. C. Williams, 2s. 6d.; C. Meigh, Esq., £2 2s.; A. C. Tarberville, Esq., 10s.; Mrs. M. Peck, 5s.; J. J. Randolph, Esq., £2; Miss C. Clarke, £1; W. Courtnay, Esq., £1; C. J. Hughes, Esq., 2s. 6d.; "C. C." 10s.; Anon., 10s.; Dowie, Esq., £5; Mrs. H. Bidder, 5s.; Misses Simmonds and Pupils, 5s.; W. Hackwell, Esq., 15s.; Wm. Jones, Esq., 10s.; Mrs. Carter, £2; J. Gamble-Downes, Esq., 10s.; S. Y. 2s.; Miss E. W. Reid, £1 8s.; Rev. R. Shepherd, 5s.; H. Boardman, Esq., £1 5s.; G. T. Edwards, Esq., £1; Anon., 5s.; Mrs. M. Nixon, 5s.; R. R. Cotton, Esq., £2; "Tenth," 2s. 6d.; L. S. £4; Miss C. Ashby, 2s. 6d.—PERFORINE PLATT, Secretary.

WHO WILL HELP?

Mrs. MEREDITH is offered £500, or £1000, by a most liberal contributor, on condition that three sums of £500, or sums of any amount that make up £2000, be guaranteed, within two months, which have nearly expired.

If this money could be obtained, very much might be done to ease the severe strain on her work that many inconveniences cause.

The Village Homes are still unfinished, and the deficiencies are such as greatly to hinder the carrying out of the whole plan of the training of the children.

MRS. MEREDITH'S RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LABOUR, CHRISTMAS NUMBER, may be had from NINE ELMS HOUSE, Wandsworth-road, S.W. Post free, 1s.

SISTERS IN COUNCIL,

Report of Conference, Christian Women's Union, 1882, held in Brighton, price 1s., by post 1s. 2d.,

May be had from the Office, 73, South Lambeth-rd, S.W.; and from the Publishers,

J. F. SHAW & CO., 48, PATERNOSTER ROW.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY INSTITUTE, Educational Branch, Bethcar, Addlestone, Surrey; President, Mrs. MEREDITH Hon. Secs., Miss C. G. CAVENDISH, Miss M. A. LLOYD. "The Lord gave the word: the women that publ. ed it were a great company."—Psalm lxviii. 11.

STUDENTS preparing for Mission Work as Teachers admitted to BIBLE CLASSES, and literary instruction in connection with PRACTISING SCHOOL.

Classes re-open (D.V.) on Monday, Jan. 15, 1883.

Personal interview indispensable. Address Hon. Secs.

THE ANCHORAGE.

Hebrews vi. 19.

SPECIAL BRANCH of the MISSION OF HOPE AND HELP.

For the reception of the more respectable class of young women in trouble.

Conversion of heart, according to the simple Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, is the one thing prayerfully and faithfully sought.

The young women are fitted for resuming their position in life, by thorough instruction in household duties, cookery, dressmaking, fine laundry work, &c. &c.

A full description of the work of the Mission, with regulations for admission to the "Anchorage," will be sent on application by letter to Mrs. H. STUART-WORTLEY, Rosslyn House, Grove End Road, N.W. (President of the Ladies' Committee), to whom, or to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, subscriptions may be sent.

THE LAND and HOUSE PROPERTY CORPORATION, Limited. Capital £1,000,000, in 200,000 Shares, £5 each.

DIRECTORS.

The Right Hon. the LORD MAYOR (Alderman Henry Edmund Knight), Chairman.

Edwin Fox, Esq (Fox & Bousfield), 99, Gresham-street, Bank (Director, Grand Junction Waterworks).

The Hon. Reginald A. Capel, Little Cassiobury, Watford (Director, Great Northern Railway Company).

Charles Horsley, Esq., C.E., 21 and 22, Wharf-road, City-road, N.

James Carlile McCosh, Esq., M.P., 42, Notting-hill-square, W.

William Alves Raikes, Esq., 12, King's Bench walk, Temple, E.C.

Vincent Biscoe Tritton, Esq., 63, St. George's-square, S.W.

BANKERS—Barclay, Bevan, Tritton, & Co.

DIVIDEND of 5 PER CENT. PAID for PAST YEAR.

The highly satisfactory results which have been attained by kindred institutions are evidence that the profits will be very considerably increased as the operations of the Corporation extend.

FIRST ISSUE of 20,000 SHARES (£100,000) completed.

SECOND ISSUE of 20,000 SHARES NOW OFFERED at PAR.

Allotment will be made according to priority of Application, and no further Issues will be made, except at a premium.

Payable 10s. on Application, 10s. on Allotment, and balance in calls not exceeding £2 each, at not less than one month's notice.

Forms of Application and copy of last report, &c., at the Company's Bankers, or at their Offices, 28 and 29, Cheapside, E.C.

WILLIAM C. McLEWIN, Secretary.

FIELD LANE REFUGES for the HOMELESS POOR,

VINE STREET, CLERKENWELL ROAD, E.C.,

Training Homes for Destitute Boys and Girls.

President—THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

THIS INSTITUTION maintains 300 of the "DESTITUTE." Holds Religious Services for the Outcast and Homeless. Gives FREE BREAKFASTS on Lord's Day Mornings to 500 of the HOMELESS POOR attending the GOSPEL SERVICE. 450 POOR MOTHERS helped weekly. A CRECHE is much wanted to further assist these DESERVING MOTHERS, who would thus be HELPED TO WORK if their Infants could be taken care of. WE HAVE THE SPACE, BUT NO FUNDS TO FIT IT UP!

Provides FREE DINNER for 150 CHILDREN four days a week.

FUNDS VERY URGENTLY NEEDED to meet expenses.

Donations, &c., will be thankfully received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of "THE CHRISTIAN," 12, Paternoster-buildings; the Treasurer, W. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; and Messrs. RANSOME & Co., 1, Pall Mall East; or by the Undersigned, PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary at the Refuges, as above.

Neatly printed in Blue Ink on tinted paper, suitable for enclosing in Letters, or for general distribution.

Price 3s. 6d. per 100 (post free 3s. 9d.)
50 for 2s.; 25 for 1s. (either post free).

A CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR'S GREETING TO "BLUE RIBBONS." FROM Mrs. EVERED POOLE.

"I could not let this happy Christmas season pass without sending you a few words of warm and loving greeting; and I feel sure that just at this time, when so many temptations will certainly cluster round your path, the beautiful promise with which I head my letter, will come to you with special comfort and strength-giving power."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

BRYANT & MAY'S MATCHES.

EPPS'S (BREAKFAST) COCOA.

GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.

JAMES EPPS AND CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.

ALLEN & HANBURYS'

"PERFECTED"

"Is as nearly tasteless as Cod Liver Oil can be."—Lancet.

"Has almost the delicacy of salad oil."—British Medical Journal.

"No nauseous eructions follow after it is swallowed."—Medical Press.

COD LIVER OIL

Sold ONLY in capsuled Imp. ½-pints 1s. 4d.; ½-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s. Of Chemists everywhere.

Third Edition. Post-free, Twelve Stamps.

SKIN DISEASES.

A Practical TREATISE explaining the Causes, TREATMENT and CURE of these Diseases; with directions for Diet and Baths. These Essays describe fully all the various forms of Skin Diseases. By S. BERRY NIBLETT, Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians. Published by Mr Williams, 10, Oxford Terrace, Hyde Park, London.

GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

Fry's Cocoa Extract

Guaranteed Pure.

"If properly prepared, there is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.

"Strictly pure, and well-manufactured."—W. W. Stoddart.

"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin.

SIXTEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED

RUTH, THE MOABITESS.

A Series of Bible Readings on The Book of Ruth.

By HENRY MOORHOUSE.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

CONSUMPTION

AND ALL OTHER

CHEST DISEASES.

MR. G. T. CONGREVE'S NEW WORK.

POST FREE SIXPENCE, or LARGE EDITION, 1s. (Post Free 1s. 3d.), from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, PATERNOSTER ROW; or from the AUTHOR, COOMBE LODGE, PECKHAM, S.E.

THE Editor of the Christian Age says:—"THIS MARVELLOUS WORK touches the sympathies of human hearts everywhere." "Here is hope for the despairing."

ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES ARE GIVEN IN THE BOOK.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"

WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will select ONE (at least) recent case, not published before, for publication in this Journal every week.

Case for this Week.

ASTHMA.—Case of MISS JANE GILL, CAMBUSNETHAN, WISHAW, N.B.

This was a case of confirmed spasmodic asthma of long standing, which, like that of Lady Georgiana Bromley, reported in my book (page 41, or page 90 of large edition), had baffled every means.

The patient, like Lady B., has been about two years under my treatment, with marked improvement from the first. In all such cases long perseverance is absolutely needed to conquer the foe. Her recovery, however, would have been completed earlier, no doubt, had she not suffered an interval to occur without medicine at several periods.

The following are extracts from some of her letters:—

"I cannot tell you the good I am receiving through your Balsam."—October 24, 1881.

"I am still improving, and getting fat. I am sending your books to friends of mine."—November 17, 1881.

"I am keeping pretty well. I have not any pain or cough now. . . . Would there be danger for me to stop taking medicine now?"—February 6, 1882. (There would have been danger of relapse, and I told her so; but again reduced the charge for medicine to meet her circumstances).

"I have not been so well for five years. I thank the Lord for directing me to your medicine. Please use my testimony as best you can."—August 7, 1882.

BIBLE READINGS,

By HENRY MOORHOUSE.

Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.

"We do not wonder that those who heard Moorhouse's Bible Readings found them full of power and suggestion. To him the Word of God was a sword—the only one worth using in spiritual warfare."—Liverpool Courier.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And of all Booksellers.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS.

(Nos. 1 and 2 Combined, Consisting of 441 Hymns.)

COMPILED BY IRA D. SANKEY,

And sung by him at Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Meetings.

The Book, as now extended and enlarged, forms a specially cheap and comprehensive collection, well adapted for

SUNDAY SCHOOLS, MISSION SERVICES, AND EVANGELISTIC WORK.

IT GIVES NO LESS THAN

441 Hymns for One Penny. Music and Words, 1s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.

		s.	d.
1 A.	Ruby Edition Sewed	0	1
2 A.	" Printed Cloth	0	2
1 B.	Nonpareil Ed. Tinted Covers	0	3
2 B.	" Printed Cloth	0	4
1 C.	Medium Type Limp Cloth	0	6
2 C.	" Cloth Boards	1	0
3 C.	" Morocco	2	6
1 D.	F'cap. 8vo. ed. Tinted Covers	1	0
2 D.	" Limp Cloth	1	6
3 D.	" Cloth Boards	2	0
4 D.	" Morocco	4	6
1 E.	Ex. Large Type Tinted Covers	1	0
2 E.	" Limp Cloth	2	0
3 E.	" Cloth Boards	2	6
4 E.	" Morocco	5	6

MUSIC AND WORDS.

		s.	d.
F.	Old Notation.. Tinted Covers	2	6
F.	" Limp Cloth	3	6
3 F	" Cloth Boards	4	6
4 F.	" Do. Gilt Edges	5	0
5 F.	" Morocco	8	6
1 G.	Tonic Sol-fa.... Tinted Covers	2	6
2 G.	" ....Limp Cloth	3	6
3 G	" ....Cloth Boards	4	6
4 G.	" ....Gilt Edges	5	0
1 H.	Old Notation. CHEAP EDITION (In Smaller Type) Tinted Covers	1	6
2 H.	Do. ....Limp Cloth	2	0
3 H.	" ....Cloth Boards	2	6
4 H.	" ....Morocco	5	6

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS, No. 2. CHEAP EDITION.

MUSIC AND WORDS. OLD NOTATION.

For the convenience of the large number of persons who already possess the Music of SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS (271 Hymns), the whole of the second part of the book (being No. 2), Music and Words (170 Hymns), can be OBTAINED FOR SIXPENCE.

At this low price it will be within the means of every one to make their copies complete.

Any Bookseller in the Kingdom will procure the book in a few days without extra charge. Or, if preferred, it will be sent free by post from the Publishers on receipt of 6d.

The SOL-FA EDITION of Songs and Solos, No. 2 (170 pieces), may be had for 1s.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller or Musicseller in the Kingdom.

EDITIONS OF SACRED SONGS & SOLOS,

(Nos. 1 and 2 Combined, Consisting of 441 Hymns),

COMPILED AND SUNG BY IRA D. SANKEY.

Specially prepared for use by THE BLUE RIBBON ARMY.

WORDS ONLY.

		s.	d.
1 A.	Sewed	0	1
2 A.	Cloth	0	2
1 B.	Tinted Covers	0	3
..	Printed Cloth	0	4
1 ..	Cloth Limp	0	6

MUSIC AND WORDS.

		s.	d.
1 H.	Tinted Covers	1	6
2 H.	Cloth Limp	2	0
	(In Larger Type.)
1 F.	Tinted Covers	2	6
2 F.	Cloth Limp	3	6

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller or Musicseller in the Kingdom.

Complete in One Volume, Handsomely Bound in Cloth extra, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, Price 7s. 6d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS, No. 2.

IN QUARTO SIZE.

Giving the 170 New and Additional Pieces (numbered from 272 to 441).

LARGE TYPE, SUITABLE FOR ORGAN, HARMONIUM, OR PIANO.

Uniform with the Quarto Edition of No. 1 Book of 271 Pieces.

The issue of the New Pieces of SONGS AND SOLOS, of which there are 170, is uniform with the Quarto Edition of the earlier pieces (of which there were 271). By the present publication the new tunes can be obtained in a convenient form for the instrument. And those who already possess the original work can complete their sets, by ordering this edition of the later pieces.

The book will also be published in Eleven Monthly Parts at 6d. each. Part III. now ready.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"The Christian" will be sent by the Publishers post-free to any address in the United Kingdom, for 12 months, for 6s. 10d., including Double Numbers.

"The Christian" (weekly) and the HERALD OF MERCY (monthly) will be sent to the United States or Canada, for 12 months for $2, which may be remitted by a Two-Dollar Bill

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 677.] THURSDAY, JANUARY 18, 1883. DOUBLE NUMBER [TWOPENCE. POST FREE, 2½d.

CONTENTS.

The Churches in Relation to Evangelistic Work 5
Notes and Comments 6
The Need of God-sent Workers 7
Messrs. Moody & Sankey in Dublin.. 8
Mr. F. Murphy in Dunkeld..... 9
For the Young 10
A Temperance Fete at Cairo 11
Lost! 11
A Cry from Constantinople..... 11
Evangelistic Movements 11
Conference of University Men 12
Poetry—"Your Heavenly Father Knoweth." 12
The Voices of the Valleys 13
Two Death Scenes 14
Co-Operation, not Competition 15
Conference on Home Missions 16
Sevenoaks Conference..... 18
Italian Workmen at Nice 18
Week of United Prayer. Addresses by—
Rev. Archdeacon Richardson ...19
Rev. G. W. Olver 19
Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon 20
Rev. J. Fuller Gooch 21
Rev. J. T. Briscoe..... 22
Mr. A. J. Arnold 22
Rev. J. Stringer Rowe..... 23
Rev. A. Sandison 24
Rev. Dr. McEwan..... 24
Rev. Dr. Donald Fraser 25
Rev. C. Campe 27
Rev. Dr. Charles Stanford 27
Rev. J. Bennett 28
A Sheaf Fully Ripe 31
Miss Macpherson and her Helpers.. 31
Poetry—My Refuge..... 31
Amongst Factory Employes 31
The Salvation Army 32
"O Death, where is thy Sting?" ...32
The African Settlement Society..... 33
The Figueras Mission, Spain 33
Mr. T. E. Murphy in Kendal 33
Mission to the French Ouvriers..... 33
The Gospel in Brazil 34
Common Lodging-House Men..... 34
Notices of Books 34
Letters to the Editor 35

CHURCH·PAROCHIAL MISSION SOCIETY,

21, JOHN STREET, ADELPHI, W.C.

Object—To provide a Staff of Mission Preachers, Clerical and Lay.

Conference of Mission Preachers: a full Report of the proceedings during the two days' Conference of Mission Preachers, held January 3rd and 4th, will shortly be issued. Orders may be sent to the office.

THE SURGICAL AID SOCIETY.

ESTABLISHED 1862.

President—The Right Hon. the EARL of SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

The Society gives all kinds of surgical appliances to the afflicted poor. Number of appliances given last month, 610; since commencement, 42,100. FUNDS are earnestly SOLICITED to enable the Society to relieve the increasing number of patients. Bankers—Messrs. Barclay, Bevan & Co., 54, Lombard-street. Offices—Salisbury-square, Fleet-street, E.C.

WILLIAM TRESIDDER, Secretary.

JUST PUBLISHED.

A CHEAP EDITION OF

THE LIFE OF GEORGE WHITEFIELD,

By J. R. ANDREWS.

Price Sixpence. In Cloth (with Portrait), One Shilling.

Superior Edition in large type, for Presentation, cloth, bevelled boards (with Portrait), price 5s.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS;
And may be obtained of any Bookseller.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,

BOUND IN MOROCCO.

(Nos. 1 & 2 Combined, containing 441 Hymns).

SUNG BY IRA D. SANKEY,

		s.	d.
	WORDS ONLY.
3 C.	Medium Type Edition	2	6
4 D.	Foolscap 8vo. ditto	4	6
4 E.	Extra Large Type ditto	5	6
	MUSIC AND WORDS.
5 F.	Old Notation	8	6
6 F.	Ditto, flexible, kid-lined	12	6
4 H.	Ditto (in smaller Type)	5	6
5 H.	Ditto Ditto, flexible, kid-lined	10	6
5 G.	TONIC SOL-FA	8	6

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Sacred Songs and Solos.

(Nos. 1 and 2 Combined, Consisting of 441 Hymns.)

COMPILED BY IRA D. SANKEY,

AND SUNG BY HIM AT

Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Meetings.

The Book, as now extended and enlarged, forms a specially cheap and comprehensive collection, well adapted for

SUNDAY SCHOOLS,
MISSION SERVICES, AND
EVANGELISTIC WORK.

IT GIVES NO LESS THAN

441 Hymns for One Penny. Music & Words, 1s. 6d.

	WORDS ONLY.				MUSIC AND WORDS.
1 A.	Ruby Edition	Sewed ... ... 1d.	1 F.	Old Notation	Tinted Covers 2s. 6d.
2 A.	,,	Printed Cloth ... 2d.	2 F.	,,	Limp Cloth ... 3s. 6d.
1 B.	Nonpareil Ed.	Tinted Covers ... 3d.	3 F.	,,	Cloth Boards. 4s. 6d.
2 B.	,,	Printed Cloth ... 4d.	4 F.	,,	Do. Gilt Edg. 5s. 0d.
1 C.	Medium Type	Limp Cloth... ... 6d.	5 F.	,,	Morocco ... 8s. 6d.
2 C.	,,	Cloth Boards 1s. 0d.	1 G.	Tonic Sol-fa	... Tinted Covers 2s. 6d.
3 C.	,,	Morocco ..... 2s. 6d.	2 G.	,,	... Limp Cloth ... 3s. 6d.
1 D.	F'cap. 8vo. ed.	Tinted Covers 1s. 0d.	3 G.	,,	... Cloth Boards. 4s. 6d.
2 D.	,,	Limp Cloth... 1s. 6d.	4 G.	,,	... Gilt Edges 5s. 0d.
3 D.	,,	Cloth Boards. 2s. 0d.	1 H.	Old Notation.	CHEAP EDITION.
4 D.	,,	Morocco ..... 4s. 6d.		(In Smaller Type)	Tinted Covers 1s. 6d.
1 E.	Ex. Large Type	Tinted Covers 1s. 6d.	2 H.	,,	Limp Cloth .. 2s. 0d.
2 E.	,,	Limp Cloth ... 2s. 0d.	3 H.	,,	Cloth Boards. 2s. 6d.
3 E.	,,	Cloth Boards. 2s. 6d.	4 H.	,,	Morocco .....5s. 6d.
4 E.	,,	Morocco ... 5s. 6d.

SACRED SONGS and SOLOS, No. 2 (Cheap Edition).

MUSIC AND WORDS. OLD NOTATION.

For the convenience of the large number of persons who already possess the Music of SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS (271 Hymns), the whole of the second part of the book (being No. 2), Music and Words (170 Hymns), can be OBTAINED FOR SIXPENCE.

At this low price it will be within the means of every one to make their copies complete.

Any Bookseller in the Kingdom will procure the book in a few days without extra charge. Or, if preferred, it be sent free by post from Publishers on receipt of price.

The SOL-FA EDITION of Songs and Solos, No. 2 (170 pieces), may be had for One Shilling.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12 Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Institutions.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving from "Sympathy" 5s.; G. D. 5s. Yes.

MARCUS.—Send particulars of the cases of sick and unconverted ones, and the Lord's people shall pray for them.

The Infant Day Nursery opens at 7.30 a.m. Children's Services every Wednesday evening at 6. Rations of food are supplied to hungry Children, and the destitute clothed. Classes for Girls under thirteen. Classes and Meetings for Elder Girls and Young Women. Industrial Classes for Lads. Helpers required. Mothers' Meetings. Mission to Inebriate Women. Sewing Classes for poor Women in want. Evangelistic and Lodging House Services. Helpers much needed.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND SCRIPTURE READERS' ASSOCIATION. Office: 56, Haymarket, London, S.W. This Society is employing 120 Scripture Readers amongst the poor and destitute of London. They go from house to house, and from room to room, reading the Word of God, pressing its precious truths on men's acceptance, pleading with God in prayer for a blessing, and directing all with whom they come in contact to Jesus the Saviour of Sinners. We want to multiply Scripture Readers, for nothing, we believe, can supply the place of house-to-house visitation, and as surely bring the Word of God into immediate contact with individual souls. Funds are urgently needed, and will be thankfully received by either of the undernamed: MARCUS RAINSFORD, Clerical Secretary; J. RODDAM TATE, Lay Secretary; or Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for contributions in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest gifts in money and clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee. Gentlemen's cast-off garments are much needed, especially trousers.

DE BREEDE EN DE SMALLE WEG.—A descriptive Lecture, entitled, "The Broad and the Narrow Way" illustrated by a copy of a curious Dutch Picture (size, 9 ft. by 12) will be delivered by GAWIN KIRKHAM, Secretary of the Open Air Mission, as under:—Thursday, Jan. 18, Rickmansworth; Friday, Jan. 19, Y. W. C. A., Old Cavendish-street; Wednesday, Jan. 31, Harvey-street, Hoxton; Monday, Feb. 12, Hertford; Tuesday, Feb. 13, Clavering, Herts; Thursday, Feb. 15, Rochester Institution, Walworth-road; Monday, Feb. 19, St. Benet's, Mile-End-road; Tuesday, Feb. 20, King-Edward-street, Mile-End New Town.—Open Air Mission Office, 14, Duke-street, Adelphi, London, W.C.

MISS RYE'S EMIGRATION HOME for Destitute Little Girls, Avenue House, High-street, Peckham. Miss Rye is now ready to receive into the above Home a few fresh cases, between the ages of six and thirteen. Applications should be made at once to Miss RYE, at the above address.

MEDICAL LADIES FOR INDIA.—Zenana Bible and Medical Mission (Indian Female Normal School and Instruction Society) 2, Adelphi-terrace, W.C. The Society is prepared to receive applications from fully qualified Medical Ladies willing to go to India as Missionaries. The Society is also anxious to secure Lady Pupils who would go through the regular four years' course of Medical Training, with a view to going out to India as Medical Missionaries. Applications to be made to the Secretary, at the Office, where all particulars may be obtained.

THE DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—Meetings will be held for the deepening of Spiritual Life, at the Town Hall, Cambridge (the Lord willing), from January 30 to February 2, inclusive. Christians, pray!

HOME FOR DESTITUTE LITTLE GIRLS, The Dale, Upperton-road, Eastbourne, Sussex (late of Plaistow).—Contributions received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT; or Miss LEE, at the above address.

SEASIDE CONVALESCENT HOME.—Warmly recommended to readers of The Christian. Protestant and Evangelical. Open all the year. Sunny situation. Food excellent. Funds needed.—For terms, &c., address, Rev. E. FORBES, Christ Church, Clevedon.

GREAT COLEMAN'S, near Ongar, is now opened by Dr. and Mrs. S. C. GRIFFITH to give change of air and rest to educated people of limited means. For particulars, apply to 45, Finsbury-square, E.C.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, College-avenue, Hackney, London, E.—Subscriptions are greatly needed to assist in maintaining the children, and to pay off the debt upon the building. Contributions gratefully received by Miss RYE, or Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

COW CROSS MISSION.—Central London Established Evangelistic Agency Funds urgently needed for heavy expenses of Gloucester Hall Gospel Services, Dinners to Destitute Children, &c.—WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, N.

MRS. WILKES proposes to be at home every Wednesday from Two till Five o'clock, for the purpose of seeing friends of Rescue Work. Trains from Liverpool-street to St. James-street Station, Walthamstow, every half-hour. "The Elms" is within five minutes' walk of the station. The Elms, Coppermill-lane, Walthamstow, Essex.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS are received at the HOUSE OF REST, Kilburn, and the Seaside Branch, Eastbourne. Also, Missionaries from abroad. All must be well accredited.—Miss MASON, 7 and 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W.

ZENANA AND MEDICAL MISSION, Home and Training School for Ladies. Vincent-square, Westminster, S.W.—Lord Brabazon, £3; Messrs. Burgoyne & Co., two large hampers (medicines, &c.); D. Radford, Esq., £1 1s.; Miss Derbishire, £1; C. Oates, Esq., £1 1s. Funds earnestly asked towards free or partially free scholarships.—Hon. Treasurer, G. J. GREEN, Esq.; Hon. Sec., Dr. GRIFFITH. New Session, January 6, 1883.

PREVALENT INFIDELITY.—The wide spread of doubt and disbelief calls for energetic action. The reasons for assured belief in the fundamental truths of Christianity should be re-affirmed, as consonant with modern research and culture. The errors and tendencies of atheism and agnosticism should be exposed. It is the sole and special function of the Christian Evidence Society to carry on this work. It is undenominational in its constitution and action. Considerable funds are very urgently needed at the present moment. Appeal is confidently made to all earnest Christians to aid in the maintenance of Christian truth for the conviction and conversion of those that are going astray. Contributions may be sent to, and information respecting lectures, sermons, personal interviews, classes, and literature, may be obtained from the Secretary, 13, Buckingham-street, Strand, W.C.

MISSION WORK IN CENTRAL LONDON. — "Martyrs' Memorial Church" Missions for the parish of St. Peter's, Clerkenwell. (Population, 8755.)

1. Northampton Mission, under a Curate.
2. Compton Mission, under a Lay Reader.
3. Ashby Mission, under a Scripture Reader.
4. Spencer Mission, under an Evening Reader.

The whole under the Vicar, the Rev. B. Oswald Sharp (St. Peter's Vicarage, Ashby-street, E.C.), and 12 laymen as Council.

House to house visitation, Bible and Tract distribution, Open-air Preaching services, Schools, classes, and lectures.

"I shall be happy to give my name to your appeal, and enclose a Post Office Order."—Yours faithfully, SHAFTESBURY.

Treasurer, J. D. Allcroft, Esq. Bankers, Barclay, Bevan & Co. Donations received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

Educational.

AN OLD PUPIL desires strongly to recommend his former School. The excellent education, the Christian influence, and the healthy locality give him the greatest confidence in doing so.—A. G. GREENWAY, M.D., West Derby Village, Liverpool.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL, WELLINGTON, SALOP.

Principal—Dr. CRANAGE, M.A.

Vice Principal—Robert Weston, Esq., T.C.D., Head Master—T. Woodcock, Esq., 23rd Wrangler, late Scholar and Exhibitioner, Christ's College, Cambridge; Second Master—H. May, Esq., B.A., late Scholar of Brasenose College, Oxford; Modern Language Master — Mons. Rieunier, Graduate of the University of France; Music and Drawing Master—E. D. Griggs, Esq.; Shorthand Teacher—T. Nicholls, Esq.; Secretary—G. A. Ash, Esq.

TO GODLY PARENTS.—The undermentioned (who is in no way connected with the school) is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL, DELIGHTFULLY SITUATED FACING THE SEA on the South Coast, a short run from London, in which a thorough and first-class Education is given, based upon the teaching of the Holy Scriptures.

It is one of the few remaining schools in which the power of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ influences the hearts and conduct of the pupils.

The success, happiness, and training of the Boys have been so remarkable in this School that a BOOK OF TESTIMONIALS GIVEN BY THE PARENTS should be read to appreciate results so unusual. Two Vice-Chancellors have placed their sons as pupils in the school. Reference kindly permitted to Dr. THORN, Paddington, London.

THE WOODLANDS, Hitchin, Herts.—Select Boarding School for Boys. For prospectus apply to the Principal, ISAAC SHARP, B.A., a member of the Society of Friends. Careful personal training. Efficient staff of masters. Excellent recreation grounds.

BLACKHEATH. ELIOT PARK SCHOOL.

Principal—EDWARD G. ELLIS.

A sound and thorough Education on Christian principles. SUBJECTS:—Classics, Languages, Mathematics, English, Science, Book-keeping, &c. Number of boarders, 12. Eminent success. Position highly recommended by medical men.

References permitted to

Rev. J. T. WIGNER .....Brockley, S.E.,
Dr. MCKILLIAM .....Blackheath,
Dr. GAGE-BROWN.....Sloane-street, W.,
W. B. FISHER, Esq.....Greenwich,
J. W. C. FEGAN, Esq.....Southwark, S.E.,
and other Parents and Guardians.

The next term commences (D.V.) January 19.

BACKWARD YOUTHS do best under private tuition. In schools these are usually left to inexperienced assistants. Mr. WILLIAM PENN devotes his PERSONAL ATTENTION to such pupils, of whom he receives four or five as Boarders. Candidates are prepared for all PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS. Reference permitted to Dr. BARNARDO, Mrs. PENNEFATHER, and others. Studies recommenced Sept. 22nd.—Apply, 52, Clapton-common, London, E.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for little Boys, near Brighton.—Locality healthy. Home comforts. Christian training. Special attention to delicate, backward boys. Separate beds. Visiting masters. Twenty guineas.—LADY PRINCIPAL, Hamilton Lodge, Hurstpierpoint, Sussex.

Ora et Labora.

THE SCHOOL HOUSE, Weston-super-Mare.—Mr. H. PENN receives sons of Gentlemen to train and educate. Preparation for Army and University entrance; and London Matric. Exams., and the Professions. Liberal diet, and plenty of open-air recreation. References to parents. For terms apply as above. The next Term commences Thursday, Jan. 18, 1883.

KILBURN COLLEGE FOR BOYS. Happy Home. Christian Influence. Pupils of 12 and 13 years successful at Cambridge Local Examination. PRINCIPAL, Henry Carvill, 9, Somerset-terrace, 30 and 50 guineas. Referees, Rev. Grattan Guinness, &c.

MONKTON COMBE SCHOOL, near Bath.—Pupils prepared chiefly for Oxford and Cambridge. Reference to Lord Radstock, and many other parents and guardians whose sons are at the School.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for Young Gentlemen (Established 14 years), 2, Woodside-villas, Victoria-road, Gipsy-hill. Principal, Miss SMITH, assisted by certificated governesses and visiting professors. Pestalozzian Classes. Special arrangements for pupils whose parents are abroad. References to clergymen, medical men, Indian officers, and parents of other pupils. Term commences January 23rd.

WORTHING.—The Sons of Gentlemen, under 15, receive the highest Christian education, and home comforts. School of nine years' standing. House facing the sea. A large field for outdoor games. Terms £55 inclusive. Under ten, £45. References kindly permitted to Rev. E. L. Roxby, 8, Lansdowne-place, Brighton; Rev. W. Kelly, late Vicar of Hove, Brighton; and others.

PRINCIPAL, Giddinap House, Worthing.

FIRST-CLASS EDUCATION for little boys, combined with home comforts, care, and kindness. 12 only received, £1 16s. a month, including laundress. Two vacancies.

M., 374, Holloway-road, N.

CAPTAIN MORETON recommends with pleasure Mr. Foster's School. Preference given to children of believers. A reduction made to parents wholly engaged in the Lord's work.—Eldon-park School, South Norwood.

HOME, WITH TUITION.—A Gentleman receives six little boys to educate with his son. Parental care, and superior education. Highest references.

SIGMA, 25, St. Auhyn's, West Brighton.

BETHANY HOUSE SCHOOL, Goudhurst, Kent. Principal Rev. J. J. Kendon. The object of the Principal is to thoroughly educate his pupils, and to carefully train them up in the love and service of Jesus. Terms from 24 guineas per annum.

LADIES' COLLEGE, Goudhurst, Kent. Conducted by the Misses Kendon, daughters of Rev. J. J. Kendon. A kind, Christian home and school for girls and delicate children. Terms 24 guineas per annum. For prospectus with reference to parents, apply to Miss R. KENDON, M. C. P.

HOME SCHOOL. — A Lady, of much experience in teaching, residing in a beautiful part of Derbyshire, receives a limited number of Pupils. There is a resident foreign governess, and visiting English master. First-class instruction in every branch. References to Clergymen and the parents of pupils. Terms moderate.—PRINCIPAL, The Ferns, Duffield, Derby.

CRAVEN HOUSE, Leicester.—The Misses VICCARS' School will be re-opened on Wednesday, January 24th. Vacancies for boarders. Prospectus and references can be obtained from the PRINCIPALS.

HIGH CLASS EDUCATION.—University Examinations. Earnest Gospel Ministry and watchful Christian training. All Teachers engaged required to be true Christians. The Principals of this well-known establishment having a few vacancies for resident pupils from unavoidable circumstances, will receive one or two young ladies on reduced terms.

References to Clergymen, Ministers, and Christian parents, many of whom have expressed a desire to give details of the benefits their own daughters have derived from the training.—ALPHA, care of Mr. Boulton, Bookseller, Worship-street, Finsbury, London.

HIGHBURY HOUSE, St. Leonards-on-Sea.—Boys prepared for Commerce, Public Schools, or the Universities. Upper, middle, and preparatory departments. Seven resident masters. The junior division taught by ladies. Delicate boys requiring a mild climate receive every kindness and constant care.—For prospectus apply to Mrs. DUFF, the Lady Principal. School duties will be resumed January 20th.

HIGH-CLASS GIRLS' SCHOOL.—Principal, Miss BASTIN, Glebe-place, Stoke Newington. Efficient Masters and Governesses. Limited number of boarders. Watchful care and home comforts. Pupils prepared for Cambridge Local Examinations. One or two pupils can be received on reduced terms to fill vacancies. Referees—Rev. GORDON CALTHROP, 3, Highbury Grange, N.; Rev. WILLIAM SPENSLEY, 20, Lordship-park, Stoke Newington, N.

HAMMERSMITH HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.—The next term will commence January 18th, 1883. Boarders received at the house of the Head Mistress. Last report and full particulars forwarded by post, on application to Miss MARY E. PAGE, High School, Hammersmith, W.

BRIGHTON KINDERGARTEN and Educational Home, for children from three to twelve years of age. Thorough preparatory education, combined with Christian training and motherly care.

PRINCIPAL, Dover House, Clifton-hill, Brighton.

SEASIDE EDUCATION.—Two clergymen highly recommend a Christian school for twelve girls. References to officers of high rank, whose daughters are pupils there. Terms very moderate. Rev. J. Johnson, Britwell Rectory, Watlington, Oxon.; Rev. W. Clarke, Hook Vicarage, Surbiton, Surrey.

PRINCIPAL, 5, Sussex-place, Southsea.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE FOR LADIES, 1, Carlton Mansions, Clapham-rise, S.W. Principal — Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. Next term commences January 29th, 1883. Terms moderate and inclusive.

"I have the utmost pleasure in standing as reference. I can highly commend Mrs. Hale, and have the greatest confidence in her capacity, management, and character, having known her for several years."—C. H. Spurgeon.

EDUCATION.—A few vacancies exist in an old-established Ladies' School, within easy distance of London, where pupils receive Christian training, and watchful care. Locality extremely healthy. Large house and grounds. Certificated English and foreign governesses. Good references. Moderate terms.

BETA, 53, High-street North, Dunstable, Beds.

MISS PALMER, assisted by excellent governesses and masters, successfully prepares girls for Cambridge Local and Dulwich High School examinations. Specially suited for children whose parents are abroad. Home comforts. Healthy situation. Careful training. Term begins 24th January. References to parents of pupils.—Fernside, 17, New Rosendale-road, West Dulwich, near London.

LADIES' SCHOOL.—Two vacancies. Good resident governess. Principal's time devoted to pupils' health and education. Evangelical Church of England teaching. Highest references to parents of present pupils.

Miss PEACH, 56, Cambridge-road, Hastings.

SCHOOL near the sea-side, for the Board and Education of little Girls, conducted by Mrs. and Miss SNOW. Comfortable home, combined with Christian training. Terms moderate. Good references.—Stoke Fleming, Dartmouth, South Devon. The next Term begins January 15, 1883.

HOME EDUCATION FOR TWO LITTLE GIRLS.—The Vicar of Great Driffield, East Yorkshire, can with the greatest confidence recommend to any parents or guardians seeking the above for two children under eleven, a home where such might be had, with two Ladies and a younger sister of twelve; and with every confidence as to the religious and other instruction given, the example set, and influence exercised.—Applications, giving references, and stating the terms offered, may be made to the Rev. HORACE NEWTON, Driffield, East Yorkshire.

MARLBOROUGH COLLEGE FOR YOUNG LADIES, Larkbeare, Exeter, Devon.—Residents only received. Specially desirable home for girls of delicate habit. References to Christian Parents, of all denominations.

A LONDON VICAR most strongly recommends to parents, seeking wise and intelligent training for their Daughters, a Lady of highest attainments, Christian culture, and experience, in a salubrious seaside spot.—Referee, Rev. J. KIRKMAN, St. Stephen's, Hampstead, N.W.

FIRST-CLASS FINISHING SCHOOL for the daughters of gentlemen. Strongly recommended by parents of present and former pupils. Efficient staff of masters and governesses. Music and harmony by an eminent London musician. Careful training and refined home. Prospectus on application to PRINCIPAL, Branston Lodge, Waverley-road, Southsea.

MILTON HOUSE SCHOOL for Young Ladies, Plympton (near Plymouth), South Devon.—Limited number received. Home comforts. Advantages for French. References to parents of pupils.

KINGSTON HOUSE LADIES' SCHOOL, Abbotsford-road, Bristol.—First-class education careful Christian training. Vacancies for boarders. Pupils prepared for University Examinations. Special class for little girls under eight years of age.

EDUCATION. (Little girls).—The sister of a beneficed Clergyman has one vacancy. Six only received. Thorough English, music, French (conversational), resident teacher. Highest references. Terms £40 per annum.

L., 23, Bardolph-road, Camden-road, N.

A LADY, having a large country house, and 15 acres of pine woods, on the South Coast, can take charge of a few more children. Judicious training and education. If delicate, they would have special care. Cheerful holidays, if parents abroad. Soil gravel climate health-giving. Sands within 100 yards. References exchanged.—MATER, Chaddesley Glen, Parkstone-on-Sea, near Bournemouth.

PARIS.—Mdlle. TALLON, Parisian, Protestant, Diplômée, receives Ladies and Young Ladies. Reference to M. le Pasteur Bersier. Prospectuses to be had, 196, Boulvevard Péreire Sud, Près l'Arc de Triomphe.

PARIS. — Protestant Boarding School for Young Ladies (Passy, near the Bois de Boulogne). Very select Establishment. Excellent references. Only a few pupils admitted.—Apply to Madame VIVIER, 87, Rue de la Pompe, Passy, Paris.

CLARENS.—Montreux, banks of the Lake of Geneva.—Mme. QUIBLIER receives six young Ladies to educate. Every comfort and attention. References: Mme. Merle d'Aubigne, Geneva. Pastor and Mme. Ponchet de La Harpe, French Parsonage, Haywards-heath, W., and the parents of pupils.—Mme. LOUIS QUIBLIER, Clarens près Montreux, Vaud, Switzerland.

A MINISTER desires to place his daughter (17) as Junior Teacher, where, in return for her services, she would receive the advantages of a Christian home.
M., Proudfoot's Library, Lower Norwood, S.E.

A LADY particularly suited to little children, desires a resident engagement. English, music, drawing, and rudiments of French. No agents. Good references.—E. C., Mr. Nunn's, Stationers, Netherwood-road, West Kensington Park.

A LADY (experienced) desires a re-appointment. Lately vacated a three years' engagement. English, French, music, drawing, elementary Latin. Good references.
F. E., 18, Lambridge-place, Bath.

TO CHRISTIAN PARENTS.—For Companionship. A Gentleman's daughter can be received on half terms, into a small first-class School on the South Coast. Highest references.
23, Newmarket-road, Norwich.

HOME EDUCATION.—A Lady wishes to receive three girls, daughters of Gentlemen, to educate with two under her care. Terms, inclusive, fifty guineas. Excellent references.
M., Mr. Friend's Library, Brighton.

KINDER-GARTEN TRAINING COLLEGE, 83, Gloucester-road, South Kensington. Vacancy for Pupil-teacher who can teach good French, and music. Small premium required. Next term begins January 15.—Address LADY PRINCIPAL for prospectus.

FRENCH GOVERNESS, Christian, diplomée, wants a situation in the South of England.—Mme. MARZIALS, 73, Mildmay-park, N.; Mrs. FIELDEN THORP, York.

GOVERNESS.—A Lady highly recommended, and experienced, seeks a situation as Governess, to two, or three children. Would prefer a Clergyman's family, being interested in Parish work and accustomed to a small organ; she is also a good amanuensis.—Miss RAWLINGS, 58, Lordship-park, Stoke Newington, London, N.

A LADY can strongly recommend a superior Christian Governess, for girls about 15. Kind, firm training, and first-class teaching. Good salary.—DIRECTRESS, 81, Mildmay-grove, N.

NURSERY GOVERNESS.—Clergyman's daughter (23) seeks engagement as above. English, music, harmonium, organ, French, rudimental Latin, German, drawing. Good reference. State salary given, not high desired.—BETA, 176, Camberwell-road, London.

NURSERY GOVERNESS.—A Lady experienced, domesticated, and highly recommended by late employer, seeks re-engagement. Valuable with young children. En. elementary music, and French, needlework. Salary about £30.
C. S., 15, Hampton-road, Forest-gate, E.

AS NURSERY GOVERNESS to one or two young children.—A young Lady, who can teach English and music, and is seeking a comfortable Christian home more than much salary.—M. M., 67, Great Portland-street, W., near the Circus.

AS GOVERNESS.—A Lady (22) seeks a re-engagement, to young children. Thorough English, music, drawing, and the rudiments of French. Good needlewoman. Salary, £10. Comfortable home in a Dissenter's family preferred.
MABEL, Miss Plume, Bures St. Mary, Suffolk.

AN EXPERIENCED GOVERNESS with young children desires a re-engagement. English, music, singing, the rudiments of French and German, latter acquired abroad.
H. R., 5, Howard-square, Eastbourne.

GOVERNESS.—Young Lady (Certificate of Honour), desires engagement in a family. Thorough English (including advanced arithmetic), good French, music, drawing, and Latin. Pupils 8 to 14.—Miss BALLS, Hinckley.

GOVERNESS.—A young Lady desires an engagement in a family where good Evangelical teaching will be valued. She has recently completed a two years' residence in France, is A.C.P. of London, A.A. of Oxford, and holds a certificate for science from Kensington. Good salary required.
Miss STRANGE, 1, Castle-street, Ludlow.

NO SALARY.—A Finishing Governess requires a comfortable home, in a family or school, in return for tuition. Resided abroad 18 years.
SIGMA, 88, Park-street, Regent's-park.

GOVERNESS.—Wanted, a Christian Lady Governess. Small family. Country, near London. Experienced in teaching. Thorough English, music, French, with rudimentary German, and drawing. Must be companionable with young children, and possess undeniable references. Letter to TOKEN, care of J. W. Vickers, Nicholas-lane, London, E.C.

GOVERNESS.—Wanted, immediately, a Lady, decided Christian, Church of England, or Presbyterian, about 30, as above, for three children, eldest eleven. Thorough French, English, and needlework. Musician.—Address, stating salary, and particulars as to experience, &c., Mrs. HUNT, Southwood, Torquay.

NURSERY GOVERNESS Wanted, to take charge of children aged from eight to five and able to teach English and music. True Christian desired, and good needlewoman. Age about 25.—Address, stating full particulars, Mrs. BARRETT, Grove Lodge, Slough, Bucks.

A YOUNG LADY of experience in teaching, seeks re-engagement in a family or school, or as companion. English, French, music, and drawing.
E. R., 476, Old Kent-road, S.E.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

A GENTLEMAN who has had many years' experience in banking, and a good accountant, seeks position of trust, or partnership in safe business. Moderate capital.
C. S., 35, Colveston-crescent, Kingsland, E.

AN EVANGELIST whose labours have been abundantly blessed, seeks the pastoral oversight of small chapel or mission hall.—J. S., care of Mrs. Arnott, 37, Ambra-vale East, Clifton Wood, Bristol.

EMPLOYMENT wanted by Advertiser and daughter, in any sphere. Accustomed to sickness, needlework, and fond of children. As children's nurses, or manage small home. Abstainers.
G. N., Newsagent, 6, Clarence-road, Hackney, E.

A YOUNG LADY is desirous of obtaining a situation as Under Matron in an Orphanage; or Lady's Companion. Evangelical.—Z. A., 40, High-street, Salisbury.

AS MATRON. — Experienced. Many years a Christian, and been engaged in Mission work. Abstainer.—A.N., 230, Manningham-lane, Bradford, Yorks.

AS DISTRICT NURSE, or care of Mission Hall. Two years' good reference; has had care of children's nursery.—A. L. C., Gospel Mission, 103, Euston-road, King's-cross, N.W.

AS BIBLE-WOMAN, Mission or Temperance-worker. North of England preferred. —Mrs. S. A. B., Killinghall, Ripley. Total abstainer and experienced. Highly recommended by Rev. G. Austen, The Rectory, Whitby, or H. G. Hopkins, Clifton Vicarage, York.

A LADY, aged 30, the member of a respectable and happy home, who has for many years been engaged in Sunday-school and other parochial work among the poor, desires an engagement as Companion, travelling or otherwise, or to an elderly Lady; or any situation where a comfortable home might be obtained (country preferred). Reference allowed to the Rev. Samuel Charlesworth, Maitland House, Clapham-common, S.W.—A. J. J., care of Mr. Clark, Stationer, Lower Addiscombe-road, West Croydon.

AS COMPANION, or Companion Housekeeper.—A Lady wishes for an engagement as above, or any place of trust. Highest references. Small salary required.
F. S. H., 15, Ashborne-road, Derby.

AS COMPANION to a Lady, or Useful Help.—A Lady, age 25, seeks an engagement in a Christian family. London preferred.
H., 31, St. Mary's-road, Canonbury.

COMPANION, or Lady Housekeeper.—Wanted an engagement as above, by a middle-aged Lady, well connected; highest references. Salary a secondary consideration.
R. G., Stationers, 88, Park-street, Regent's-park.

A CHRISTIAN WOMAN seeks engagement as useful Companion and Housekeeper to Invalid Lady or Gentleman. She is a thorough nurse, and a total abstainer.—D. H., care of Mr. Scott, Minister of the Gospel, 8, Westhill-road, Brighton.

AS ATTENDANT upon an elderly Lady, or as Wardrobe-keeper in a School. A Lady wishes highly to recommend a widow (age 38). Full particulars will be given by Miss JESSIE COOMBES, The Institute, Torquay.

A WIDOW LADY of much experience desires a situation as Housekeeper, Companion, Matron, to manage or to assist a lady in the management of a boarding-house.
J. B., Shelton & Childs, Bell-street, Reigate.

AS HOUSEKEEPER to a Widower or single Gentleman, by a thoroughly respectable, domesticated Christian person. Good manager, and one who would study the comfort and happiness of home. An abstainer.
S. C., 86, High Town-road, Luton, Beds.

HOUSEHOLD ASSISTANT. — A Lady strongly recommends a Young Lady (24), active, capable, pleasant-tempered, quick at needle, accustomed to household management; of sterling Christian principle. £30, and laundress.—FRANCES, Glenluce, Scotland.

USEFUL MAID to one Lady.—Middle aged, Christian, and abstainer. Good dressmaker and needlewoman. Writes well. Thoroughly trustworthy, 2½ years' character. Also GIRLS, 14 to 18.
Miss GREENE, Midgham, Reading.

AS COOK, in a Gentleman's family. Wanted, a situation.
M. E., The Grove, Carshalton, Surrey.

AS NURSE.—Wanted, a situation, to one or two young children. Useful with the needle. Good character. Suburbs preferred.
E. S., 74, High-street, Camden-town, London.

WOULD A CHRISTIAN LADY take a French orphan Girl?—Roman Catholic. Well disposed. Good needlewoman, very pleasant. Age 18.—Rev. TH. MARZIALS, Barnave, Luc-en-Diois, Drôme, France.

TO CABINET-MAKERS AND BUILDERS.—A widow Lady is anxious to find active employment for her Son (16), where no premium is required. He is clever with his tools, quick, and willing to make himself useful.—H., care of Rev. W. F. Gooch, Chatsworth-road, Lower Norwood, S.E.

ASSISTANT MATRON, or Sewing Mistress.—Wanted by a Christian woman, who has had seven years' experience in Industrial School work. Salary, £30. Good testimonials and references. Near London preferred.—MATRON, Girls' Industrial School, 58, Churchgate, Stockport.

NURSE.—A Lady wishes to recommend a highly respectable person, of much experience, as above to an invalid, Useful Companion, or any situation of trust.
D. L., 3, Pavilion-street, Sloane-street, Chelsea.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

ADVERTISER has a nice opening for a Christian temperance man, with from 3 to £5,000. To such, would hand over a well-organised Cotton Mill, and assist until the business became quite familiar.
John S. BARON, Astley-gate, Blackburn.

NEATH YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—Wanted immediately, a man as Navvy Missionary, for the Neath New Dock Improvements. His whole time required.—Apply, with testimonials, to Mr. Thos. WILLIAMS, Hon. Secretary, Neath.

TWO EVANGELICAL MISSIONARIES required, to work in populous districts near Swansea. Welsh not essential.—F. S. BISHOP, Welwyn Lodge, Swansea, with testimonials.

NO SALARY.—Wanted, a Christian man, to carve for, and dine daily with, the Invalids at the Invalids' Dinner Table, 47, Earl-street, Lisson-grove, London, and to read and pray with them afterwards.
LADY SUPERINTENDENT, as above.

A CONTRACTOR'S ESTIMATING CLERK wanted.—Address, stating qualifications, and salary expected, CONTRACTOR, 6, Portland-place North, Lower Clapton, E.

STATIONERY AND PRINTING.—A Junior Assistant wanted. Must be well educated, and of good address.
HARRISON PENNEY, Darlington.

APPRENTICE.—A leading Bookseller, Stationer, and Librarian, in the South of England, has a vacancy for a gentlemanly, well-educated Youth. Thorough business training, with home comforts and supervision. Unexceptionable references given and required. For particulars as to premium, &c., address, AMICUS, care of Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co., 9, Paternoster-row, London.

BUTLER. — Wanted in Clergyman's family, an unmarried man, willing to be generally useful. No beer. Reference required.—A. WOLSELEY, West Bank, Bakewell, Derbyshire.

GARDENER.—Can any Lady or Gentleman recommend a lad as Gardener, milk two cows, and look after a pony and carriage. To live in the house.
Major F.. Fishlake House, Woolwich.

HOME AND REGISTRY for respectable servants of all classes requiring situations. Ladies can be suited from the above, fee from 2s. 6d. when suited; servants from 1s. 6d. Lodgings for servants from 2s. 6d. per week. Apply to S. LOVEJOY, 33, Sydney-street, Fulham-road.

WANTED, FEBRUARY 11th, a Capable Woman, as Matron in Training Home for Girls. A thorough knowledge of plain cooking, washing, bread-baking, and needlework required. State age, salary, with testimonials, to SECRETARY, 11, St. Paul's-road, Bradford WORKING MATRON wanted, domesticated.—A good plain cook, able to train girls for service. A Christian would be valued.

Miss BECKINGSALE, 46, St. Ann's-st., Salisbury.

TEACHER wanted in February, for a Home of 30 destitute Girls under 16 years of age. Certificate not essential. Age under 55. Apply, stating experience, to Mrs. C. FAIRLIE, Bowdon, Cheshire.

TO DRESSMAKERS.—Wanted, a thorough General Hand. None but those with good experience need apply. Christian would be valued.—Address, with photo, J. W., 179, Old Christchurch-road, Bournemouth.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted in a small Christian family.—Mrs. DAINTREE, Lynton Villa, St Peter's-road, Croydon.

COOK (good plain) and HOUSE-MAID wanted at once in a Christian family. Total abstainers. Must be willing to make themselves useful. Early risers. Good characters. State age, wages, and all particulars, to Mrs. NEALE, Glenside, Cotham-park, Bristol.

COOK (good plain) wanted in a Gentleman's family. Must be a Protestant; a good character indispensable. Assistance given. Apply by letter, stating wages, age, &c., to M. P., 6, St. Mary's-terrace E., Colchester.

WANTED, a woman of good character, who can wash and do plain cooking.
C. M., Torville, Prospect-hill, Walthamstow.

A USEFUL MAID wanted, or Upper Housemaid (over 30), to do needlework, help in illness, and be generally useful. Abstainer.
E. W., 1, Norman-place, Archway-road, N.

A USEFUL MAID wanted.—Must be a thorough needlewoman and experienced in dressmaking, having already filled a similar situation. From 28 to 30 years of age, and tall. Wages £20, all found. Apply personally before 1 o'clock, or by letter, to Mrs. STACEY, Elmhurst, Brucegrove, Tottenham.

NURSE wanted immediately.—Age over twenty. Must be very tidy, and have some experience, and be fond of children. A good needlewoman. Good character indispensable. State wages.—K., Holly-cottage, Milford, near Godalming, Surrey.

PARLOURMAID.—Wanted, a thoroughly efficient Parlourmaid, in a large family, in the country. Liberal wages will be paid to a competent person of Christian character, and a preference will be given to a member of a Congregational, Presbyterian, or Baptist Church. Apply in first instance, by letter, to F. T. D., care of Mrs. Gillett, Godden-green, Sevenoaks, Kent.

HOUSE AND PARLOUR-MAID wanted. Must be well recommended; another Housemaid kept. Beer not allowed.—Apply, stating age and length of character, to Mr. M. ASHBY, Northlands, Englefield-green, Staines.

GENERAL SERVANT.—Can any Lady recommend a Christian young woman as above, to two Ladies? Between 20 and 30. Must understand plain cooking, be neat, respectable-looking, and a total abstainer. State wages.
C. L., 7, North-street, Bromley, Kent.

AS GENERAL SERVANT.—Wanted, respectable girl, one with a knowledge of plain cooking preferred. Apply, stating age and wages required, to Mrs. CLELL, Magnolia House, Swanage, Dorset.

£20.—Wanted, thorough General Servant to cook, and share housework with Nurse and Mistress. Man cleans boots. Abstainer preferred.
Mrs. VIDAL, Bayford Vicarage, near Hertford.

AS HOUSEKEEPER.—Wanted by Medical Man, an educated Lady about 45. Must be methodical, economical, abstainer, and able to make home bright and happy; an earnest Christian. Comfortable home and moderate salary to suitable Lady. State age, salary, and full particulars to SIGMA, 6, Portland-place North, Lower Clapton, E.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL,
40, Bedford Place, Bloomsbury Sq., London, W.C. This First-class Private Hotel is close to the New Law Courts and the British Museum. Spacious Coffee and Ladies' Drawing-rooms, and Private Sitting-rooms. Rev. R. MILNE, Abbey Church, Edinburgh, writes:—"Quiet, cleanliness, comfort, and moderate charges, are the characteristics of this house." Also recommended by Dr. ALGERNON DOBBIE, Oldham; Rev. J. GARWOOD, M. A. London City Mission; Dr. YOUNG, Florence.
Tariff on application to Miss PERCY.

WEST CENTRAL HOTEL.
97, 99, 101, Southampton-row, London, W.C. Patronised by numerous readers of The Christian. Plain Breakfast or Tea, 1s. 3d. Beds, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. Tariff on application to FREDERIC SMITH.

LONDON.—Mrs. GREATLEY'S Christian Boarding-House is highly recommended for comfort, economy, and being convenient to all parts. References kindly permitted to the Rev. Dr. THAIN DAVIDSON. Terms from 2s. 6d., bed and breakfast.
17, Tyndale-place, Upper-street, Islington.

APARTMENTS.—Furnished Parlours, communicating; also Drawing-room with large bed-room. Use, attendance, and home comforts. Terms moderate. Good cooking. Comfortable home for Christians.
39, Northumberland-place, Bayswater, W.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE.—A Christian Lady is desirous of meeting with a Lady Boarder, who would find a friendly, comfortable home. Terms moderate.—H., Bachhoffner, Bookseller, 168, High-street, Clapham, S.W.

BOURNEMOUTH, Clairville.—Superior Boarding House, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Jackson. Visitors will meet with an excellent family home. Charming sea views. Near church and sea. Most liberal table.

BOURNEMOUTH, Marlborough.—First-class private Boarding House. Facing the sea, south aspect, close to pier, baths, library; liberal table, every comfort. Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Roberts.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Board and residence offered to Visitors. A sheltered and pleasant house, with every home comfort.
Y. BIRTLEY, Crescent-road, Bournemouth.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE at BRIGHTON.—Central position, near to the Pavilion, Aquarium, and Piers. Sea view. Liberal table. Every home comfort.—Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Box, 56, Old Steine.

BRIGHTON. — Board and Residence offered to a Lady in a comfortable home, where six only are received. Small room vacant. Terms moderate.
A. G., Shaftesbury Lodge, 10, Powis-square.

BRIGHTON.—A Lady residing near the West Pier, wishes to receive a Lady to live with her, and share the comforts of a home. Permanency preferred and references required. Address by letter only.
H. A. R., Friend's West End Library, Brighton.

[Carried to page 39]

THE OFFICIAL CATALOGUES

Of the Paris Electrical Exhibition, 1881, and the Crystal Palace Electrical Exhibitions, 1882-83, contained the following Notices of Mr. B. COPSON GARRATT'S Method of Treatment by Magneto-Electricity —

"These exhibits show the latest and most approved methods of applying the aura or currents discharged from permanent magnets enclosed in various garments. Mr. Garratt claims that he has solved the problem of the adaptability of Electric treatment to intricate cases by introducing compound magnets of various power in different positions, according to the requirements of the patient. The extreme lightness and flexibility of his special magnets enable him to concentrate the necessary degree of power at any given point, without discomfort or objectionable weight.

"He has for many years past made the adaptation of Magnetism to particular cases his special study, and has tested by various experiments every known kind of Magneto-Electrical appliance with the view of obtaining the maximum effect with the minimum of inconvenience. The magnetic material now used by him is superior in power and therapeutic value to that of any former period. This power is scientifically arranged so as to induce more freedom of action from nerve centres throughout the whole organism, ensuring in chronic complaints all the advantages usually obtained by more costly and inconvenient methods of applying Electricity, affording the best aid to recovery, even when vital organs are affected, without unduly exciting or depressing the constitution. Worn with all the comfort of a garment, they facilitate freedom of action by the importation of elasticity and energy to the system, but do not in any way interfere with the usual style of dress. Experience has demonstrated how marked and speedy, as well as permanent, are the benefits obtained by a large class of chronic sufferers, whose ailments have been pronounced incurable. (See list of 800 patients to whom reference is permitted

"Gratuitous information on Curative Magnetism and its energising properties in mental as well as physical affections, will be found in Mr. Garratt's published essays:—'Magnetism and Electricity: their Curative Properties explained;' 'The True Philosophy of Health and Healing;' 'Mental and Physical Maladies;' 'Worry: its Dangers and Remedy;' 'Nervous Exhaustion and Physical Prostration: their Cause and Cure,' &c.; to be obtained at his consulting rooms, 16, Finsbury Square, London, E.C., and at No. ( ), North Nave, Crystal Palace, Sydenham, S.E."

Mr. GARRATT will be happy to confer with inquirers in search of health, or with any scientific or medical gentleman, either personally or by letter, upon any phase of the subject, or any case for treatment.

"REST FROM SORROW,"

By the Rev. WILLIAM GUEST. 3s.

The New Journal for Preachers and Workers says: "It is a book which treats of one of the oldest of human problems with the freshest of touches. Such great power and depth of utterance is all too rare. The chapter on 'The Varied Intentions of Suffering' has a philosophic breadth joined with a practical issue, such as is seldom seen in these days of hasty things. For mourners, as well as for students, the work will more than repay perusal."

RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY, 56, Paternoster-row, E.C.

Further Issue. Shortly Ready.
Cloth, 8vo. 1150 pages. Price FIVE SHILLINGS.

THE CHARITIES DIGEST AND REGISTER.

LOCAL, VOLUNTARY, GENERAL AND ENDOWED.

A Book of information regarding the Charities, in or available for the Metropolis, and the Legal and other provisions for the Relief of the Poor; Friendly, Benefit, Benevolent, Savings Banks, &c.

"An excellently seasonable publication, gives a fuller account of the scope and working of each institution than other guides to the Charities, adding thereto some facts which suffice as a rule, and enable the reader to form in each instance a notion for himself of the extent of its benevolence."—Daily News.

It will be undoubtedly the standard work of reference on the subject of London Charities and Charity.—Christian.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co., Paternoster-row, E.C.
CHARITY ORGANIZATION SOCIETY, 15, Buckingham-st., Strand, W.C.

FRANCIS MURPHY.

PRICE ONE PENNY. 100 Copies for 7s. 6d.

For Gratuitous Circulation, £3 per 1000.

Francis Murphy:

Founder of the Blue Ribbon Movement in America,

A SKETCH OF HIS LIFE AND WORK

(With Portrait).

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Price 1s. per 100 (post free, 1s. 2d.). 6s. per 1000.

THE "MURPHY" PLEDGE CARD.

As used by Mr. FRANCIS MURPHY, and his Son, Mr. T. E. MURPHY, at their Gospel Temperance Meetings.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Gospel Temperance Songs

AND

BLUE RIBBON HYMNS.

REVISED AND ENLARGED.

USED BY
MR. FRANCIS MURPHY, AND HIS SON, MR. T. E. MURPHY,
AT THEIR
GOSPEL TEMPERANCE AND BLUE RIBBON MEETINGS.

Very many of these Hymns and Tunes are ORIGINAL, and have not hitherto been known in this country. Both Words and Music will be found most suitable for use in Temperance work.

BOOK OF WORDS, One Penny. CLOTH, Twopence.
MUSIC BOOKS, Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Toned Paper, Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Sample Copy of Words sent free on application.
Sample Copy of Music sent free for 1s.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Neatly printed on tinted paper, suitable for enclosing in Letters or for General Distribution.

Price 6d. per packet of 12 Tracts.
3s. 6d. per 100, either assorted or of any separate Tract.

"GLADNESS OF HEART" TRACTS.

A Series of Narratives, each complete in itself, recording striking Conversions.

BY

J. P. WILSON,

Author of "Gladness of Heart," &c., &c.

CONTENTS OF PACKET.

1. A Young Clerk in the Last Century.
2. A Prize Runner. A Beershop-Keeper's Daughter.
3. A Preacher brought to Christ.
4. Ignorance of Sin.
5. George Robinson, of Grasmere. Dr. Edmund Staunton.
6. Time required for Conversion. "I've Found the Lord." A Young Pharisee.
7. Conversion of an English Heathen.
8. Found of One who Sought Him not. "How long have you to Live?"
9. A Weary One finding Rest.
10. Finding the Pearl of Great Price. "The Sorrows of Death."
11. Mary Harrison, of Havant.
12. Count Zinzendorf.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WINNING WORDS.

A New Series of Text Cards. Envelope shape. Illustrated with Etchings. Price Sixpence, post free.
JOHN G. WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park, London, N.

HOW TO

READ THE BIBLE.

Neatly bound, 6 copies for 6d. 6th Edition. 20,000th.
This momentous question answered. A little book of vast importance. Ideas short and pithy. Readers of it thus write:—"A most excellent work." "Supplies a great want." "I pray that every household in England may possess copies."
Apply to Rev. C. LYNE, Westgate-on-Sea, Thanet.

ISRAEL, AND GOD'S PURPOSE. Price 2d. By JOHN WILKINSON. A reprint of his Address at the last Mildmay Conference.
JOHN F. SHAW & CO., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.

Also, by the same Writer,
"ENGLISHMEN NOT ISRAELITES." Price Sixpence. And "THE TEN TRIBES, WHERE ARE THEY NOT? AND WHERE ARE THEY?" Price 4d.
JOHN F. SHAW & Co., and WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park.

Neatly printed on Tinted Paper, suitable for enclosing in Letters. Price 1s. per dozen (post free).

THE WHITE FIELDS OF ENGLAND.

An Entreaty to Communicants.

By REGINALD RADCLIFFE.

"What Christian does not long for the Gospel to be spread on the Continent of Europe? And who that reflects can fail to observe that the gross state of our large towns arises very much from their being grossly neglected by us communicants. Their sad state is patent to every observing foreigner whom business brings into the midst of us, and he naturally looks with contempt and abhorrence on what he styles our "Christianity."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE A & H "TASTELESS" CASTOR OIL

Is pure, active, and absolutely free from odour and unpleasant taste—a result never before attained. "It is taken both by children and adults without the slightest difficulty, whilst its aperient effects are unquestionable. It possesses all the advantages claimed for it."—Lancet.

Of Chemists, at 6d., 1s., 1s. 9d., and 3s.

Sole Manufacturers,
ALLEN AND HANBURYS,
Plough-court, Lombard-st., London.

EPPS'S (BREAKFAST) COCOA.

GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.

JAMES EPPS AND CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.

Weekly Numbers, One Halfpenny. November Monthly Part contains Two Coloured Plates. Threepence.

"Our Darlings."

THE CHILDREN'S TREASURY, EDITED BY DR. BARNARDO.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.; and all Newsagents.

The Christian.

THE CHURCHES IN RELATION TO EVANGELISTIC WORK.

PRIZE ARTICLES

By Rev. EDWD. SMITH, Fairfield, Manchester.

CHAPTER VI.—(Concluded.)

IF a very plain-speaking Christian were listened to, he might add to all this, and say, "These tyrannous and ultra-refined people are apt to clique together. They are social almost to the extent of being convivial. They feel as if the Total Abstinence movement fixed a brand on them, and so they are either obstructively passive in Temperance efforts or else they indulge in unworthy allegations against the cause and its supporters. They speak evil of any religious earnestness which takes this shape in the presence of friends and of children. They keep intoxicants on the sideboard and on the table, and then rail both at fervid piety and aggressive 'teetotalism.'"

No experience the writer has ever had, either as pastor or evangelist, would warrant him in contradicting such statements as these, though he would be very glad to do it if he could. "Refined" minorities and anti-temperance are often closely leagued together; and both alike, whether they recognise it or not, are giving new nerve to the arm which would snatch the crown from the head of Jesus.

Are those who constitute this tyranny amenable to reason? No doubt numbers of them are. Those who are superficial and coarse, but who desire to be "in the swim" with their "betters," are the worst to be dealt with. Rational pleading has specially hard work to gain its point in so-called mission-rooms and in village sanctuaries, where the practices of the art-loving churches are most ambitiously copied. But the thoughtful and high-strung are selfish, more *uncon*sciously than consciously. They do not intend to indulge in tyrannous coercion or repression. They would not willingly disfranchise, unjustly, the mass of their less-talented fellows. And so firmness and mildness of appeal will often suffice to break up

THIS PERNICIOUS DESPOTISM.

At any cost it must be broken up. It is verily and enormously blood-guilty. That word is not a whit too strong and sweeping. Things would not have been as they are now but for the tyranny of refinement; and they can only be mended by that tyranny being in some way crippled or quenched. Withal, the hope of thus reducing its power is all the stronger when we remember that its best constituents are approachable from the side of loving argument. And if the latest modern movement for the good of the wrecked and the drifting [the Salvation Army] had done nothing else, it is amply justified by its having encouraged a new flexibility in the evangelical churches.

Let the refined consider! Can they expect one who has been used to the ranting, roaring chorus of a public-house, to enter into the sweet-sounding minor or the weird Gregorian? The tunes born in past revivals of religion are most suitable for the lowest strata of the land to-day. Compositions such as those which excite an American camp-meeting will go with a swing, and will delight the natures in which strong feelings are habitual. They enjoy a banquet of melody. They will swallow much unpalatable truth if only it be sweetened with music. That pathetic tune set to "Come, birdie, come," has been made use of most ingeniously by being sung to "Come, Jesus, come," and, no doubt, the euphonious yet glowing lines of the adaptation have come with novel force to many a soul. Those who do not understand music as an art are profoundly moved by it. Even as was Dr. Guthrie, who said, "Though I have never composed music, music has often composed me."

Religiously, moreover, numbers of English people are very little above those poor slaves with whose inartistic but emphatic rhymes the Jubilee Singers have made us familiar. And if refinement denies them such psalmody and insists on using exclusively the measured productions of great musicans, then such high-handedness must be attacked as being just so much inexcusable selfishness. The armies who first chanted the Marseillaise, shouted rather than sang it, and its stormy strains helped them to many a victory. Let, then, every facility be afforded in some parts of Church life, and notably in some neighbourhoods for resonant, vehement, inartistic singing. Let newly converted men and women be exhorted to find out the treasures of their voices and to employ them in bursts of such harmonies and sentiments as best fit into the mind and the soul. So shall many a reproach be removed and many a trophy gained.

No need for the formation anywhere of two parties. There is nothing more to be dreaded and avoided. Such a formation soon gets chronic and is fatal to any advance. Compromise can be tacitly agreed upon. Let the æsthetic have a portion of the Church-service and the Church meetings, but, if there be any giving way it ought to be on their side, because they are the more enlightened; and then let the others have their fill of what pleases them best. A poor man was once informed that "he was not in tune." His answer was, "My heart was so much in tune that I really did not know my voice had got awry." Can any condemnation be too pronounced for the Church opinion which interferes with the utterances of "tuned hearts"?

And can the refined who help to make up building committees refuse to choose sites and structures with the design of giving the hearthstone feeling to those who attend? Cosiness, and the crowding of the audience around the speaker should be aimed at. But if the Gothic is to be insisted upon without any modification or any adaptation to the needs of our countrymen, why, let such tyranny first be remonstrated with, and then, if it relent not, be somehow brought to share the fate of the Tarquinian tyranny at Rome.

We need, too, in most churches

A NEW ELASTICITY.

Variations may be largely introduced. They will be grateful to most attendants on the services. The less developed a mind, the greater its craving after variety; and most minds are but poorly developed. The millennium of mind is far distant. We shall never hasten it by declining to meet the present wants of the population. Let charity be had both in thought and in practice. Some of the most powerful prayers I have ever heard have set all grammatical rules at defiance. They have been literally the out-pourings of the souls of men, once brutalised, but now regenerated. What if the quantities are false, and the expressions painful to cultured organisms? Would not any complaint about them grieve that Holy Spirit who has dictated the petitions if not the phraseology?

The tyranny that would prevent certain variations of service and the public exercises of illiterate men, ought to be looked upon as factious opposition to the behests of God. Liberty for testimony and prayer, bands of singers in the streets, responses aloud to the Mission-room addresses, boisterous utterance of the songs of Zion, are all within the lines of the Spirit's work, and any formal or informal combination that would reflect upon them is of Antichrist.

The tyranny of refinement refuses the emotional its fair place. But God gave man his emotional nature, and the Christian religion has ever striven to give it proper vent. The basis of religion is rational, not emotional, but to have and to display feeling is a sanctified luxury. Our fathers had sense enough to recognise that. When Bishop Burnet preached in the great cathedral two hundred years ago, loud "hums" of approval arose from his auditory. Let place be found in every church, in or around which are the uneducated and effervescent, so that they may display their feelings in their own way.

Kingsley, himself—one of the most classical and refined of men—has affirmed, "I wish for no heaven but what pot-boys and navvies may share with me." And who was more refined than our Lord? He was more sensitive to all manner of discord than is an aspen leaf to the wind. Yet in illustration of one of his profoundest teachings, he used the figure of an old leathern bottle; and in restoring the blind man, he anointed the sightless eye-balls with a mixture of spittle and clay. And to-day God fills with the Holy Spirit the ignorant as well as the literate.

To all this the churches ought to wake up. The tyranny so repeatedly spoken of is of secret growth. Men see not at the beginning to what it will attain. At last its proportions are great and its features grim. He who dares to assault it must make up his mind to do so at the risk of being personally unpopular. He who insists on a give-and-take system may expect an ugly reputation in some quarters. Any disturbance of an existing régime, however palpably harmful that régime may be, is sure to be met by the accusations: "Thou art a divider of the brethren; a lover of novelty for novelty's sake; a person of coarse grain, without sympathy or breadth."

But the issues at stake are too great to permit of our being lightly frightened out of our duty. Let the weapons of reason be employed to the utmost extent possible, and then there will be the less necessity for the hand of iron. But if the labouring, suffering, sinking populace is to be seized and ennobled, the tyranny of refinement in the churches must be upset. Agitation will force the question upon the attention of the great public assemblies. They are already looking at it. Mission hymn-books, containing tunes often despised as "ranting" and "jiggy," are being compiled and sent out under the official stamp of great denominations. There is more and more a disposition to acknowledge any agent or method however irregular, whose operation is pro, ductive of good.

But other steps should be taken at an early date. The bold counsels, daring deeds, fixed determination, quiet banding together of the haters of this gross, though often unconscious tyranny, will do much to effect its partial or total overthrow; and the thoughtfully refined will say: "I will consent to give up some of those public æsthetic pleasures that are meat to me, but by which 'my brother stumbleth, or is offended or is made weak.'"

Notes and Comments.

REV. DR. A. B. EARLE, author of "Bringing in Sheaves" (Morgan & Scott) last year concluded the fifty-second year of his ministry. To mark the event, a company of friends, to the number of 300, gathered at Newton, Mass., and vied with each other in expressions of affectionate regard for this venerable servant of Christ. Despite his advanced age, Dr. Earle is still in the thick of the fight. Since the beginning of the year, he has been preaching thrice each day in Brooklyn, New York, and he was to commence a series of Revival meetings in Tremont Temple, Boston, on 17th inst.

A contemporary recently announced that Mr. Mayor, who has laboured so successfully in Kabylia, was dead. This is not the case. We are glad to say that he returned to his work after a short visit to Europe, and is much better in health. Our dear friends Mr. and Mrs. George Pearse are still in Algiers, and write us that the appeal for helpers to which we recently gave prominence is likely to have good result in several volunteers—men and women.

Anything more exquisitely beautiful, or gratifying to the eye, than the groupings and colouring of the Alpine flowers in Baroness Helga von Cramm's Album, could scarcely be conceived. This fine floral portfolio is entitled "Sunbeams from the Alpine Heights," and contains twelve groups of plants, comprising more than thirty distinct species. A table is prefixed giving the name of the plant, where it is found, and the time of flowering. The profits arising from the sale of this charming souvenir of the "Alpine Heights" are devoted to a charitable purpose. The Album may be procured of Mr. S. Jennings, 16, Duke-street, Manchester-square, W., price 21s.

Under the title of "Romanism in Ireland," by Rev. Professor Croskery, we have in The Catholic Presbyterian a most interesting and suggestive article, showing that the Romish Church in Ireland is, on all sides, losing its hold upon the people. Many causes have helped to bring about this result; in the first place, the influence of O'Connell and of "the Young Irelanders" tended decidedly to weaken the ascendency of the priests; there has also been a remarkable development of opinion of a deistic or unitarian kind through the influence of John Mitchell and his writings in The Irish World; whilst a widespread religious indifferentism has been sapping, to its very foundations, the hold of the priests over the people.

Other striking facts are brought forward as important factors in the case. Nearly all the leaders of Irish Nationalism have been Protestants. Mr. Parnell, the present idol of the Irish nation, and nearly all the chief leaders of the Irish rebellion in the last century, have nominally been Protestants. The most prominent of Mr. Parnell's lieutenants in Parliament are reputed free-thinkers; and the American-Irish, upon whom the Nationalist party mainly depend for monetary resources, are largely anti-clerical in feeling. At the same time, Protestant co-operation in securing political reforms has largely tended to diminish sectarian animosity.

Religious interest, we are told, is completely in abeyance at the present time over a great part of Ireland; the people are breaking away from the control of the priesthood, not only in political, but in all other relations of life. They are passing through a social revolution, and they can think of nothing else for the time.

In this article the present position of the Romish Church in Ireland is brought before us by one who has a thorough grasp of the situation. On the question of obedience to Rome or to the cause of their country, the Irish priesthood has been divided. Archbishop McCabe, of Dublin, upholds the law, Archbishop Croke, of Cashel, identifies himself with the extreme party, whilst the bishops are also divided upon this question. Of the Romish Church authorities in Ireland who have ranged themselves on the side of order, the bishops of moderate views never had so little authority over the priests, and the priests who are moderate never had so little authority over the people.

Perhaps, however, one great secret of the loss of power on the part of the Romish Church in Ireland has been that "in its anxiety to hold the people it has connived at great crimes, which threaten the moral disintegration of society"—such crimes as murder, outrage with torture, and perjury in the witness-box, which are condemned by the instinctive conscience of mankind. In relation to such crimes the people must feel—whilst perhaps the bishops and clergy being in political sympathy with them have allowed such things to go on without protest—that their conduct has been unjustifiable on every ground of religion and morality.

The opportunity was given to the Romish Church in Ireland to raise her voice on the side of the common principles of morality, and she sacrificed her moral prestige for fear of weakening the bonds that had hitherto bound the people to the priests. In refusing to administer absolution to Ribbon-men upon the scaffold she would have crushed Ribbonism long ago—but whilst refusing absolution to a professed Ribbon-man in daily life, she gives it to him when, guilty of murder, he is about to die. A noted Ribbon-man once said, when asked what he thought of the priests' denunciations of the Ribbon Societies, "Oh, it does not signify; the clergy will not desart us when we come to die."

Policy rather than conscience has been Rome's motto in Ireland, and so her very adherents look upon her with secret contempt. As intellectual enlightenment comes to the people in spite of the Church, and it is coming; they will have less and less respect for a Church devoid of fixed principles for their moral guidance. The writer well concludes with these weighty words: "The saying of Guizot concerning the Jesuits, that they have always failed through want of faith, because they trusted to policy rather than religion, may be exemplified in the future history of the Church in Ireland."

This striking article may well stir-up the adherents of the Reformed faith to increased activity in prayer and Gospel-work for Ireland, in order that she may not fall away into actual atheism and godlessness, but that the people may wake up from superstition and ignorance to receive the Word of God, by which alone any land can be truly ennobled and blessed.

We venture to direct the attention of those of our readers resident in or near London to the "Convention on the State Regulation of Vice," which is to be held next week, and particulars of which may be found in another part of this issue. We trust these most important gatherings will at least give a death-blow to that "conspiracy of silence" on the part of the Christian teachers of the land which has helped, more than anything else, perhaps, to perpetuate the régime of these demoralising and immoral enactments.

Further, our earnest wish is that the Convention, and the more public meetings to be held on the evenings of Wednesday and Thursday next, will serve to enlighten the public mind as to the real nature, intent, and results of these Acts. If that object can only be thoroughly accomplished, their existence, we believe, would be comparatively short-lived. The struggle may be severe and even prolonged; but the issue is certain. With the exercise of a faith and courage that are inspired by a holy cause, and unhindered by obstacles, from whatever quarter, the advocates of social and national purity may confidently reckon on ultimate success. The chivalry of Britain's Christian manhood, aided by a womanly devotion, well-nigh born of despair, ought to make short and sure work of a system that utterly degrades so many of our unhappy sisters, and virtually dooms them to a living death, that is but the vestibule of an eternal hell.

As the mouthpiece of the Shop Hours Labour League, Dr. Norman Kerr has sent to the daily papers an earnest plea for a reduction of the working hours of those employed in places of public refreshment. He asserts from professional experience that much physical, mental, and moral mischief results from the excessive strain thus caused to body and mind.

> There would be much less drunkenness, and it would be more advantageous, for the publican as well as for the public, if public-houses were closed at an earlier hour than half-past twelve. Were these places shut an hour and a half earlier, there would be little need for coffee-palaces and eating-houses being open later. And it would be an immense boon to health and morals if sensational theatrical performances and hysterical assemblies were over by half-past ten at night.

The phrase, "hysterical assemblies," seems to require further definition and elucidation; and we would fain see the suppression rather than the regulation of "sensational theatrical performances." But, of course, half a loaf is better than no bread at all, and we cordially echo the Doctor's sentiment. In any case, there is ample room for an extension of the principle of the Factory Acts to other branches of industry, where little regard is paid to the legitimate requirements of the wage earning classes.

Surely that ancient story of the old man who tried, in the treatment of his patient quadruped, to please everybody, and pleased nobody, was written for the behoof of editors, who, if they should make the same attempt, would inevitably arrive at the same result. Indeed, without trying to please anybody, but to tell the truth on both sides, we have found this peculiarly the case with reference to the Salvation Army.

"Neither curse them at all, nor bless them at all," says one; "Curse them altogether," is the advice of another; "Bless them altogether," is the counsel of a third; "Let them alone; ignore them; say nothing at all about them," recommends a fourth. But God says: "Tell the truth;" and we mean to obey God and conscience.

One says, "See what harm you are doing to other organisations by sounding the praises of the Army; they take away or spoil our best workers." Another writes that those who once supported the Army now refuse to do so on account of what they have read in The Christian; while a lady expresses her disapproval in red ink on a post-card. On the other hand, an old friend cannot forgive us for the certainly not extravagant commendation that "a living dog is better than a dead lion," and rebukes us for ever having said a good word about them.

Commissioner Railton, at a meeting of Army friends and supporters last week, took to himself all responsibility for what others regard as irreverence in print, and defended himself in this wise: "God has always set his face against irreverence and has promptly resented it; but the War Cry has doubled its circulation: you all believe that this has been by the blessing of God: therefore there has been no irreverence." And his representation (here condensed, but in no way distorted) was received with assent by a meeting of two or three hundred picked Christian people, amongst whom were some well-known clergymen.

In reply, we refer to such a handling of Scripture as the following, and say that the test must be the Word of God, and not the success of a periodical:—

This people have I formed	Military arrangement.
for Myself.	Absolute government.

There can be no doubt that Jehovah is speaking as in his own person: "I" and the "Myself" represent the covenant God of Israel; and to assert that this passage is fulfilled in the Salvation Army and its General would still be irreverent, though the circulation of the War Cry were in hundreds of millions instead of thousands.

Mrs. Booth gave her view thus: "People have admitted to me that they believe this work to be of God; but say there are some things in it which they do not like. I reply: Do you not see your inconsistency? If it be of God, who are you that you should set yourself up against it? God does not pick bits here and there; He blesses it as a whole." With charming inconsistency a gentleman who had just been telling us that we ought to commend the Army or let it alone, replied to Mrs. Booth, that a movement might in the main be of God, while yet there were faults in it that others might point out.

It is impossible that a Christian journal should ignore a world-wide movement like the Salvation Army. If we did so our readers would justly complain. It is equally impossible that we should endorse all that is said and done by it; and also impossible that we should condemn in toto a work which can produce so many trophies of its success in reformed and regenerated men and women.

How could we endorse, for example, the following, from the War Cry of Jan. 8, which occurs in the report of a big tea-meeting, at Regent-hall, on New Year's night:—

> Chaplain Gill explained that a favourite phrase of his was, "I'm glad I'm saved," and went on to explain how it was possible to live in such a way as that there should be no need to ask God to forgive or blot out anything in our lives.

On the other hand, how can we but be thankful for the wise and gracious spirit of such men as Mr. Clibborn, of Paris, or of the present "Captain" at the Grecian Theatre?

"General" Booth's address, reported in another column, is an extraordinary account of work accomplished; and Mrs. Booth was safe when she challenged the world to produce anything like the facts recorded in "Our Figures"—the twelfth chapter of their recently published Report, "The Salvation War."

Because this work is so magnificent in its extent, so tremendous in its operations, it is of the highest importance that its foundation principles, and the structure reared upon them, should be minutely scrutinised, in order that wherein it is sound and strong it may be maintained and imitated; that wherein it is weak it may be strengthened; and wherein it is wrong it may be corrected. Neither the Church nor the Press, neither the Nation nor the World, can afford to ignore it. They cannot be silent if they would; they cannot wholly commend nor wholly condemn it. The only right thing to do is impartially to judge it, and fearlessly to tell the truth about it.

We hope the statement in the daily papers, that the announcement of a meeting by the "Church Army" in Westminster closed with the words "Come if you dare!" is incorrect. The offence of the Cross has not ceased, but we need not make the preaching of the Cross unnecessarily offensive. With the air full of revolution and anarchy, it is impolitic and mischievous to assume a provocative and defiant attitude towards the masses. More than this. It is inconsistent with the Gospel of peace and at variance with the record: "Then drew near unto Him all the publicans and sinners for to hear Him." We are in danger of getting a new and unscriptural representation of the Church Militant.

These meetings at Westminster are conducted mainly on the lines of the Salvation Army. Previous to the service, a procession, with a flag, is made through the adjoining streets, which apparently only serves the purpose of giving employment to a rival organisation. We are glad to say, however, that the meetings are marked by a reverent, devout, and prayerful spirit. Testimonies are given by converts which seem greatly to touch the audiences. On Sunday evening at the close of a very impressive service, a large number of young men and women came forward as inquirers, and many professed conversion.

The Week of Special United Prayer has passed by, leaving with us much cause for thankfulness to God, who, by his Holy Spirit, has been with us of a truth. Of many of the addresses given at the meetings held in London we publish full reports, and, without specifically referring to them, we may briefly allude to one or two characteristics of the week.

A spirit of joyful confidence and expectation has been largely manifested throughout the meetings; there is a widespread conviction that the past year has been one of almost unequalled blessing, in comparison with years gone by. The possibilities of faith seem to be laid upon the hearts of God's people, and they seem more than ever prepared to expect great things of their Great God.

The reproach of aimless contemplation cannot certainly be brought against the meetings of the past week, for the addresses have been pre-eminently practical, bearing most forcibly upon Christian responsibility, character, life, and work. We question whether any previous Week of Prayer has found the Churches so thoroughly in the mood for work, and so anxious, in the power of God, to reach the vast populations in all lands as yet unsaved.

Christian union has been exemplified very truly; and the real oneness of true believers has been shown by the fact that had anyone listened to the various addresses delivered, without knowing to what particular denomination the various speakers belonged, the addresses themselves certainly would not have furnished any clue by which they could have determined that minor question. Above all, there has been real spiritual waiting upon God, in a lowly self-abasing spirit, in the attitude of grateful, adoring confidence and of child-like faith. And we venture to think that selfish motives have not brought fellow-disciples thus together, but that above the mere desire for personal enjoyment through the meetings, a strong, deep longing for the glory of God and for the blessing of the Churches, and the outside world still unsaved, characterised this daily waiting upon God in fervent believing prayer.

We trust that the exhortation of the Apostle Paul will be remembered, now that the Week of Prayer is over, in case there be any disposition among us to diminish the amount of daily prayer, both public and private: "I will, therefore, that men pray everywhere, lifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting."

THE NEED OF GOD-SENT WORKERS.

A STIRRING little book, entitled, "How shall I follow Him I Serve?" has been written by Miss J. McLean, for eleven years a worker among the women of China. We extract the following paragraphs, and hope the earnest exhortations of our sister will fall into prepared and willing hearts. The little book is published by Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co. (1d.):—

A great deal has been done; a great deal is being done: but the needs of China alone at this very hour proclaim aloud that a far more Herculean power must yet be put forth. Oh for the companies of men and women which characterised Pentecostal days, when all "went everywhere, preaching the Word." Surely the decline from so aggressive an agency, from so hopeful a beginning, must be a decline from a state which the Holy Ghost meant to be the normal state of the Church—a decline which must be traced only to man's failure, or rather to the Christian's failure—the Christian's sin.

Multitudes may be selected and sent forth by well-meaning men; means may be used which, in themselves, are lawful, promising, and good; but only those individually trained of God, and filled with the spirit of Pentecost, can be God's instruments for effecting his great purposes. All missionary societies may be represented in heathen lands—we may rightly and lawfully identify ourselves with them—but unless we are baptized with the Spirit, and thrust out of our selfishness into the harvest field by the Lord of the harvest, we shall only be clogs on the chariot-wheels of the Gospel, and impostors on the heathen; for we, as the ambassadors of Christ, should, in the clearness and power of the Divine Spirit, declare so plainly our message that it must be either a received or a rejected message, not a message continually falling to the ground because delivered unintelligibly in the words of man's wisdom instead of in the burning, penetrating words of the Holy Spirit.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION. — Portions for week ending January 27:—Jan. 21, Isaiah liv. 7-17; Jan. 22, Isaiah lv. 1-13; Jan. 23, Isaiah lvii. 15-21; Jan. 24, Isaiah lviii. 5-14; Jan. 25, Isaiah lix. 1-13; Jan. 26, Isaiah lix. 14-21; Jan. 27, Isaiah lx. 1-12.

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY IN DUBLIN.

MY last letter was occupied chiefly in giving an outline of some of the permanent results of Mr. Moody's and Mr. Sankey's former visit to Dublin. In this I purpose to give some little account of their present efforts and the apparent results.

The fact that for the first day or two of the Mission the crowds were not so overwhelming as they very soon became, is to me a most satisfactory consideration, for it proves that it was not the men that the people came together to see; but when the Gospel was preached, Christ uplifted, and the heart reached, then the chord of sympathy was touched, and the wave of popular enthusiasm rose. Long before the first week of the Mission had expired, the crowds overflowed into three adjoining churches, and on some occasions nearly filled Trinity Church (Episcopalian), which accommodates about 2000 persons.

Mr. Sankey, with the utmost readiness, went in turn to all these churches each evening, and sang his beautiful Gospel hymns. Mr. Moody confined himself to the large hall of the Christian Union Buildings, which holds nearly 4000 persons. Here he held three services daily (Saturdays excepted), at noon, at 3, and 7.30 o'clock; but long before these hours the great hall was thronged with an earnest and expectant audience, the interval being pleasantly and profitably spent in singing the now familiar hymns.

It is a cause for great thankfulness that on this occasion a large number of the ministers of all the Churches rallied round the Evangelists right loyally. On the former occasion many of the clergy of the Episcopal Church stood aloof, on the ground of "undue and ephemeral excitement," and preferred to assume an "attitude of observation." The consistent lives, the ceaseless labours, and the undoubted usefulness of these men of God, so evidently owned of Him, decided a large body of the most eminent of my Evangelical brethren in the ministry, in and around Dublin, to stand by them in their labours. Mr. Moody expressed his satisfaction at this, observing to me, "The ministers of your Church are very hearty this time." Now that the Mission has almost closed in this city, I can safely say that all the ministers of all the Churches who co-operated with him thank God for it, and account themselves happy that they had the privilege of taking part in this blessed work.

No one could fail to be hopeful for the future of the cause of Christ in Ireland, who has seen the zeal and heartiness with which the clergy worked in the inquiry-room. To-day, thank God, all the Churches, and nearly all the clergy, are more or less in sympathy with Mr. Moody and his work, and have learned the blessing attached to "Christian union."

It was not always so. For years some few of us who prayed and worked for the "fraternisation" of the various Protestant Churches, met with little sympathy from our brethren. They honestly thought we were aiming at something that was visionary and Utopian, even though desirable, and not to be hoped for in our time. To-day the dream is fulfilled; the vision is a grand realisation, and all are experiencing "how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." If the present Mission produced no other result, our American brethren might be well content with this!

Everything has been favourable. The weather has been for the most part fine. The hall in which the services are held is all that could be desired. To this must be largely attributed the grip which Mr. Moody has had on his audience from the first—evidenced by the hundreds of anxious inquirers which passed into the inquiry-room every night. Already the Christian workers have returned the names and addresses of over 1300 "young converts," of all ages and of both sexes who have professed to have accepted Christ, since this blessed Mission began, a number which will no doubt be largely increased before it comes to a close.

It is peculiarly interesting to observe the number of Roman Catholics who have attended these services. It has been stated on good authority that hundreds of these were present each night. Many of them passed into the inquiry-room, and not a few have confessed Christ as their only and their all-sufficient Saviour.

Even the "corner boys," and waifs and strays of the streets, seem to have learned something of the true nature of the Mission. One of them, standing in the midst of a group of his fellows, was heard to inquire "what Moody and Sankey were doing in the Union Buildings?" when another gave this true and prompt reply: "They are telling the people that if they won't go to heaven, they must go to hell!"

Perhaps the most remarkable, as well as the most useful, part of these Evangelists' work here is among the young men. A meeting for "men only" was held each night at nine o'clock. At its close, Mr. Moody invited all who wish to be prayed for, and to start in the Christian life, to rise. More than one hundred every night obeyed the call. But the crowning night was on Thursday, when the most remarkable sight probably ever seen in Dublin was witnessed. Mr. Moody declared it was one of the most wonderful nights he had ever experienced.

It is not too much to say that thousands have already received blessing during the last fortnight. Arrangements are being made for the continuance of the work, both unitedly and also in connection with the several Churches. May the wave of blessing roll on until it covers the whole island, hastening the day when Ireland shall be won for Christ!

By the time these lines are in print, our dear brethren will have left our shores Never shall we all meet again in this world, but we shall meet on high, when those who have sown, and those who have reaped, and all those who have been gathered in, shall rejoice together. May God have our dear brethren in his holy keeping!

JAMES S. FLETCHER, A.M.,
Hon. Clerical Secretary.

St. Barnabas Parsonage,
Dublin, Jan. 13.

To those who can look back to the former visit of these Evangelists, perhaps not the least interesting and important feature of the present one has been the presence at the gatherings, either as workers or Christian hearers, of many who nine years ago were spoken of as "Mr. Moody's converts," not a few of them now labouring as hard-working ministers of the Gospel, or in other capacities in the great vineyard. To me, the sight was full of pleasurable emotions, for I can well remember the cold water thrown upon many of those who professed Christ at or after the Great Exhibition gatherings—many who, I am glad to say, have from that day to this walked consistently after the Master.

That the present visit will be followed by even greater results none can doubt, the evident results already being marvellous. Mr. Moody himself does not hesitate to consider the meetings, and especially the men's meetings at 9 p.m., as about the most remarkable he has seen in his long and varied experience; and looking at the Ireland of to-day, with her deep need of light and truth, and her search in crooked ways for the liberty which is only to be found in Jesus, anyone who has a single good wish or hope for the future of the country, cannot but thank God that the old Gospel has lost none of its wondrous power, and that our brethren's visit should thus be made the means of a great and mighty ingathering of souls.

To see Mr. Moody, with an absence of effort that in the ordinary orator would be the highest art, but which in him is the unconsciousness of a man resting upon a strength not his own, sway the vast audiences, calling up a ripple of smiles over the sea of faces, or a rain of tears over time-seared countenances; to watch the young lad's eyes brighten at a cheery word of encouragement, and the old man's fill with a longing for a fuller and deeper love, was swiftly to recognise the grand fact that the speaker is a man thoroughly under the influence of the Holy Spirit. Upon no critical calculation could the work and its results be estimated; there is something in it and above it utterly beyond all ordinary laws of criticism; and it is to be found only in God's wonderful answer to the numberless prayers for the guidance and blessing of the Holy Spirit upon speaker and singer and hearers.

At every meeting the place has been crammed long before the time announced; there have been large overflow meetings every night, and an improvised fifth daily meeting for those who wished at once to confess Christ. The interest, for it is not excitement, has deepened day by day, the addresses have been very fully reported by the Press; and all this in a city the Protestant population of which is scarcely one fourth of the whole. Surely here is ground for thanksgiving throughout the whole Church of Christ.

Referring to the attitude taken by the Press, I may just say that to my mind one of the most remarkable things has been the position with regard to the movement taken by the leading Roman Catholic organ, a journal owned and edited by Roman Catholics, and upon Roman Catholic lines. On the occasion of the last visit of the Evangelists, that paper did not stop short at sneers and abuse; it descended to criticisms of the doctrines taught, criticisms that one could not glance at without keen pain. But to-day all has changed; there has been an absence of anything disparaging either of the men or the truths, and day by day there has been a fair and somewhat full report of the addresses, a report which will circulate through thousands of thousands of Roman Catholic homes. Discount this noteworthy fact as one may, it remains simply wonderful.

Thursday last was in more senses than one a special one. At the afternoon meeting the address was a most powerful and visibly affecting one, Mr. Moody's comments upon the verses being full of what I could only term a spiritual intuition of the deeper meanings of the passages, and the deeper needs of men's and women's hearts. At the evening gathering, with its array of officers upon the platform, and soldiers of the many regiments quartered in Dublin gathered in hundreds in the hall—"a military night," as the papers termed it—a sight was witnessed such as perhaps has not been seen in this city before. At the close of the address, to which over 3500 men had listened intently, Mr. Moody asked the soldiers who wished to be prayed for to stand up, and led by two grey-haired old veterans, ultimately 130 stood up and made their confession; then in the galleries 150 civilians stood up, and these 280, and more with them afterwards, adjourned to the adjoining building for the inquiry-meeting.

There is to me only one note of sadness in this visit, which God has so signally blessed, and it is that the engagement was so short. The good work, however, will not be suffered to droop or drop. JAMES BOWKER.

The following is extracted from the full and able report in The Daily Express of Friday last, with reference to the meetings of the preceding day:—

The meetings held yesterday in the Christian Union Buildings were crowded, notwithstanding the severity of the day. Indeed, the evangelistic work carried on with such earnestness and enthusiasm by Messrs. Moody and Sankey appears to have awakened in many thousands of the citizens a fresh religious zeal which refuses to be overcome by the unfavourable character of the weather, or any of the numerous petty difficulties that sometimes block the way between the worshipper and the place where the Word is being preached. As the Mission of the American Evangelists draws to the close, their services seem to be more heartily and more thoroughly enjoyed. Regret is generally expressed that the time for parting with Messrs. Moody and Sankey is so near. Their meetings have given much comfort to multitudes, and, doubtless, to many souls they have been greatly blessed.

The attendance at their prayer-meetings, held daily at noon, has steadily increased from the first, and, at the afternoon and evening meetings, hundreds, unable to find room in the Christian Union Buildings, have either to return to their homes or to join the overflow-meetings which are held in the neighbouring churches. Yesterday's prayer-meeting was conducted by Mr. Moody, who delivered a brief address on Holiness and the importance of living pure and unspotted lives. At the three o'clock meeting Mr. Sankey was present, and conducted the singing. Mr. Moody delivered an address. On the platform were—Rev. James S. Fletcher, Rev. Mr. Tristram, Rev. D. Mullan, Rev. J. Hanson, Rev. T. P. Ball, Rev. M. G. Whyte, Rev. Canon Marrable, Rev. James White, Lord James Butler, Mr. J. R. Fowler, Mr. David Drummond, Mr. T. P. Law, Q.C., &c.

Mr. Moody said the meetings in Dublin had been most successful. He was afraid the people of Dublin did not appreciate this building to the extent that they should appreciate it. He had been in most of the cities in America, both North and South, and he had visited nearly all the leading cities of Great Britain, and, without exception, he considered this place in which they were assembled one of the finest evangelistic halls he had ever spoken in. It was well lighted and ventilated; besides, it was cheerful, and everyone in it could hear distinctly what any speaker on the platform said. The architect who superintended its erection had done his duty satisfactorily and well. Mr. Moody concluded by stating that it was in this hall the Young Men's Christian Association held their meetings, and on behalf of that association a collection would be taken up next day.

THE SOLDIERS' NIGHT.

Never, perhaps, did the Metropolitan Hall present a more novel or interesting sight than that presented by it last night. It was essentially a "military night." Large crowds of the soldiery were present, and it may be safely said that every regiment in garrison was represented, and that largely, too. The proceedings throughout partook—if we may so speak—of a military character. Soldiers formed a considerable proportion of the audience, and the language employed was couched in the vein familiar to their ears, while the appeals to their courage and their position were well calculated to rouse religious enthusiasm. Nor did they fail to do so, for, in a manner hitherto unknown in these meetings, successful as they undoubtedly have been, the effect of the speaker's words was evidenced by the bold and fearless confession by many of an awakened sense of sin and a desire for a higher and a holier life.

Long before the hour announced for the commencement of the proceedings the hall was filled by men—soldiers and civilians—of whom fully 3500 were present. The scene presented by the gathering was an interesting one in the extreme, and possessed many elements of the picturesque. Grouped together in the central portion of the hall were the members of the different regiments, their bright and handsome uniforms shown to full advantage beneath the bright gaslight, while, behind, the rows of civilians, garbed in their black and more sombre garb, threw them into bold relief. Brave and splendid-looking fellows all were the military, many of them possessing the marks of good conduct recognition, while not a few wore the insignia of bravery's reward. Young and old, the beardless lip and the bright boyish face side by side with the iron-gray moustache and the tanned, and sometimes scarred, face—all quiet, attentive, and evidently impressed with the importance of the invitation which had brought them together. All were seated happily together, their clear, strong, and cheery voices joining sweetly in the music, and sending forth such singing as the buildings do not often echo. It was, indeed, surprising and gratifying to find the military possessed of such an accurate knowledge of the hymns, while the earnestness of their manner, and the happy ring of their voices, testified to an intimate knowledge of the truths they sang of. Seated on the platform, and grouped around the speaker, were several of their officers, whose presence, no doubt, proved a source of encouragement to them; while, scattered throughout the audience, were numbers of non-commissioned officers, whose powers for good amongst the younger soldiers cannot be over-estimated.

Now a word for the civilians. They, too, were present in great force. Men apparently of every class were there, and, if outward signs betoken anything, their attendance was not without profit. Heads stooped forward, and eager, anxious looks evidenced deep attention, while many a softly breathed "Amen!" proved the desire for the fulfilment of the speaker's earnest prayer.

The proceedings were, as usual, opened by the singing of a number of hymns, led by Mr. Sankey, who accompanied on the American organ. Mr. Moody again adopted his plan of part-singing, and portions of the hymns were sung at first by Mr. Sankey alone, then in conjunction with the choir, then with the civilians' voices included, and lastly with the assistance of the soldiers. Here it was the value and volume of their musical powers were shown, and then the singing began in real earnest. At half-past seven Mr. Moody announced that they "must now close up the ranks and go forward," and with this the meeting proper commenced. Prayer was offered, and another hymn having been sung, Mr. Moody proceeded with his address.

Never was Mr. Moody heard to better advantage. As he himself prefaced his remarks, "he liked to talk to men." He felt at home, and that especially amongst the soldiers, the presence of so many being evidently an unmixed source of delight to him. Earnestly and thoroughly he went to work, and in an address occupying about forty minutes he spoke "as a man unto men," in forcible argument and striking pungent truth, now adopting the military style of language, and again using the homely social phraseology. Watching the varying lights and shades of his hearers' faces, no doubt could exist regarding the good effect of his remarks, while his stirring appeal for decision that night was answered by quick, impulsive cries of "Yes!" from very many. His address, as usual, concluded with prayer, but before the petition was offered he requested all who wished to be prayed for to stand up.

Now was the decisive moment—now the time that called for an exhibition of moral courage. Quickly the speaker's glance swept the hall, and he was not disappointed. Without a pause two grey-haired soldiers stood up, followed by three young comrades from another portion of the hall, and in quick succession different forms arose till it was almost impossible to count them. Sharply the numbers rang out as the count was made, till that of 133 of those on the floor was recorded. Next the gallery was appealed to, and almost as many, if not more, followed the example. Prayer was then offered up, and Mr. Moody left the hall, and adjourned to the Presbyterian Church opposite to an inquiry-meeting, whither he was followed by those who had stood up but a moment before. A prayer-meeting then took place; and thus was fittingly brought to a close one of the most successful and interesting meetings yet held in connection with the Mission.

The correspondent of The Belfast Witness writing on Wednesday last week says:—

There are times when Mr. Moody seems to speak with a veritable "tongue of fire." This was especially the case on Thursday evening last. His text was from Genesis vii. 1: "The Lord said unto Noah, come thou and all thy house into the ark." For graphic description, pathos, pointed application, and thrilling appeals to his audience to consider their relation to the true Ark—whether or not they were in Christ—we have never heard anything equal to it. The breathless stillness and solemnity were at times painful. We should not have been surprised if voices had cried out, "Sirs, what must we do to be saved?" That saving impressions were made in the hearts of many we cannot but feel certain.

Mr. Moody held a special meeting last Sabbath morning for Christian workers at 8.30. Even at that hour the crush was tremendous. This fact, as well as others, clearly shows us how groundless are the excuses often made by many of our people whose attendance is irregular at Church ordinances, or unpunctual as Sabbath-school teachers, &c. When under the impulse of a powerful motive, even though it be no higher than that of curiosity, every difficulty vanishes, and excuses are out of the question. Let us hope that, even in an incidental way, the present Mission may reveal to many how little risk after all they run in venturing to the house of God when the sky is lowering, and how it would secure punctuality if they were very anxious to obtain a seat, and afraid of finding the doors shut. That is the very least of the good that may come out of it. But not a few, we feel confident, will have reason to bless God that their footsteps were guided to these evangelistic services.

MR. F. MURPHY IN DUNKELD.

A GREAT impetus has been given to the temperance movement, and much encouragement to the labourers here, by a two-days' visit from Mr. Murphy, on the occasion of his conducting a Mission in Perth. The City Hall of Dunkeld was filled to overflowing, and at each meeting for an hour and a half Mr. Murphy spoke to his rapt audience. The earnestness of the man, his thrilling history of the desolations of drink; his appeals for the sake of everything loving and lovely to let the poison alone; his deep and touching pathos, greatly impressed his hearers.

At the close of the meetings two-thirds of the population of the town, or one-third of those living in it and the district for three miles round, were enrolled as total abstainers.

Rev. J. S. Mackenzie, minister of the Church of Scotland, an old abstainer, presided at the meetings. The minister of the Free Church, the chief magistrate of Dunkeld, and others of position in the district, were also on the platform. Altogether the meetings have been a great success, and a deep impression has been left upon those who have not had the courage of their convictions by signing the pledge. Mr. Murphy and his work are followed by earnest good wishes from all in Dunkeld who have had the privilege of meeting him.

PARIS Y.M.C.A.—An interesting Christmas fête was given by the Paris Y.M.C.A. to the soldiers of that city, among whom are many of their fellow-members. This institution is showing much vitality, and is most useful in the assistance it renders the various voluntary religious works.

For the Young.

THE CROSSING-SWEEPER.

ONE cold winter's day, I was on my way to church with my little grandson. We were well wrapped up—I in furs and a thick veil over my face, he in white soft comforter and warm greatcoat. At the long crossing just before the railway bridge there was, for a wonder, a crossing-sweeper. This was a poor little deformed boy, about twelve, pale and thin, in clean, well-mended clothes, but of the lightest material.

I could not pass him without some notice, but it was a trouble to get out my purse, so I told my grandson to give him his church penny, and I should give him another when we got there. The poor little fellow was grateful. I asked his name, and where he lived, and I then said, "But who got you this crossing?" (thinking to find out more about him from his benefactor). He looked down for a second or two, then raising clear, calm eyes to mine, he quietly answered, 'God." H. C. H.

"HIM DID."

Baby Ellie is three years old. She is such a bright, roguish darling, whose winning ways find love for her in everybody's heart. Baby loves to go out. Nothing pleased her more in the bright summer days than to muddle her golden curls under her tiny bonnet and march out into the sunshine. Now winter's cold is here, but the world looks just as bright for all that to Baby, and she starts for a walk with her little sisters in her very sunniest mood.

But Mabel, Baby's sister, doesn't enjoy her walk at all. Nothing seems to go right for her just now. Instead of the little face wearing its bright, merry look, such a cross, unhappy expression is there. "No, I won't be a good girl, mother," she says when she comes in, "and I don't want to kiss you." Baby looks up in wonder for a minute. She does not want her sister to be naughty; then away she goes by herself.

When she comes back, little Mabel is just kissing mother. Baby is delighted to see this. She rushes up to mother in high glee, "Him did! Him did! mother," she says. "Who? Baby," asks mother. "I vill tell you. I kneels down just zere," pointing to a corner of the room, "and I says, 'Please God, help my sister Mabel to be a good girl,' and Him did, mother, Him did;" and Baby jumps about for joy.

Dear little reader, is there anything marring your joy to-day? If so, take it where Baby Ellie took it, and, with her child-like faith, leave it there, for Jesus says, "Ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full."

FANNY.

SINGING IN SPRING-TIME.*

DEAR YOUNG FOLKS,—A few weeks ago, when we turned to Leviticus xi. 16, I said that some of our Hebrew scholars believe that the old English word which you read there as cuckoo should be seagull, and we, therefore, had a pleasant and, I hope, a profitable chat about the bird so well-known by those of us whose lives are spent by the sea. But the cuckow appears there in the good old book; and we can take the cuckoo to-day as another of our Bible birds and see what lessons we can derive from what we know about the bird and its habits.

During the past week or two of wintry weather I have seen each morning quite a little flock of birds waiting near my windows for their breakfast of crumbs and corn; birds of all sorts and sizes, thrushes and wrens, tom-tits and blackbirds, redwings and robins, starlings and sparrows, all gathered together in the search after food, but I didn't see a single cuckoo, and I question if you would find one if you looked the whole country through. And do you know why? Simply because the cuckoo is another of those birds which, like the swallow and the swift we talked about a few Sundays since, observe the time of their coming and know their appointed time for going (Jeremiah viii. 7). And, therefore, in the early autumn, almost before the leaves begin to change colour, the cuckoos set off on their wonderful journey over land and sea, far away from our wintry days, to a country where the sun is shining brightly and the flowers are blooming, and the trees are full of foliage, many of them going to the Holy Land and staying there in the Jordan valley until, as the Bible says, "the winter is past, the rain is over and gone, the flowers appear on the earth, and the time of the singing of birds is come," and then coming back to us at the end of April to tell us that summer is drawing near.

The people in the mountains between Damascus and Sidon call our little visitor Jacob's bird, or, in their language, Ya-hoob, a word the sound of which is something like the bird's cry. Well, the first thought I get from the cuckoo is this, that it sings in the spring-time, and there is a lesson for young people in that. Let your early life be full of singing, the right sort of singing, what the Bible calls "melody in your hearts."

I know plenty of people who have no knowledge of music, but it would do you good to hear them sing "The old, old story," and when they do sing it people ask them to tell again about "Jesus and his love." Go about thanking God, not merely with your lips, but in your daily lives, and wherever you go people will say, "Why, here's summer coming, there's a sound of gladness and joy." Yes, dear children, let everybody see from your lives and hear from your singing that you have in your hearts the warmth and the summer feeling that Jesus gives.

Sometimes, when the cuckoo sings, other birds, such as the willow-warblers, come and perch on the branches to listen, but the cuckoo does not change his song to suit his company; yet the birds go on listening till he is tired of singing. I am afraid some of us, perhaps all of us, are too fond of changing our tune. I am, I know. Are you? If you meet with a silly companion, do you at once begin to talk silly talk? If you meet with a sinful companion, do you listen to or even speak sinful words? If you have summer in your hearts, don't let there be winter on your lips. If you are Christ's, don't be ashamed to own Him in the play-ground or the school, or wherever you may be.

But there is another lesson for us in the life of the cuckoo. Strange to say, the bird doesn't build a nest for itself, but leaves its eggs in other little birds' nests to be hatched, and that is something like our bad examples, and many of our sins. When I was a boy, in the North of England, sometimes when we passed through a village the lads would run after us, and throw at us pieces of a plant they had dragged out of the hedgerow, and it was very difficult to clean our coats from it, for the seeds and stalks were full of little hooks that had to broken before the bits could be pulled off; and it is just the same with our bad and foolish words. We may say them thoughtlessly, or we may say them knowing well that they are wrong and sinful, and we may forget them, but they often enter the heart of a companion, and with all the strength of their little hooks fasten themselves there, and do very much harm before they are dislodged.

I have a garden, and I could keep it much clearer of weeds if the wind did not every day carry over the wall from a neighbour's neglected plot of ground the flying seeds of docks, and dandelions, and groundsel, and perhaps some boys and girls would be better than they are if it were not for your foolish and sinful words and bad example. Just think of that when you are tempted to set a bad example or to say bad words. Your own lives always will have far too many weeds in them, but Jesus will strengthen you in keeping them down. Ask Him to keep the seeds of sin from flying from your little plot of ground into anyone else's garden.

Well, there is another and a more pleasant lesson, and it is the last one. It is just this, that the cuckoo sings in the autumn when our winter is coming. He sang in the spring and he sings in the autumn, and if you begin with Jesus in the springtime of your lives, there will be the melody in your hearts in the autumn also, when the days are getting shorter and the dark hours longer. Just as the cuckoo sings, knowing the appointed time, and perhaps with a foretaste, and a longing in her heart for the far away land where the sun is shining and the flowers blooming, and the Jordan river rippling, those who love Jesus and who have been washed in his precious blood that cleanseth from all sin can sing even in the darkening days, and with earth's winter coming on, of that far-off home of light, and peace, and bliss by the river,

> "With its crystal tide forever > Flowing by the throne of God."

If any of you cannot sing the song to-day, ask God to give you the Holy Spirit and to enable you to sing it. He will answer you, and your voice, it may be a weak and trembling one, will be full of the joy and the peace that only those possess who have been washed in the blood of the Lamb.

JAMES BOWKER.

HOMES FOR AGED POOR.—A New Year's Tea was given on the second instant in a private house at Notting-hill to the inmates of the Homes for the Aged Poor, Anerley. About 60 out of 100 invited guests were present, the others being unable to come on account of sickness and infirmity. They were all over sixty years of age, and several over eighty. A bountiful tea and supper were provided, which all seemed to enjoy. Several friends gave suitable words of cheer and encouragement, and at the close gifts of warm clothing were distributed. A very pleasant and profitable evening was spent. These Homes during this year will need increased support. The secretary is Miss T. A. Harrison, 5, Grand Acre-terrace, Anerley, London, S.E.

RAGGED SCHOOL UNION.—Two interesting events have taken place this month in connection with the Nelson-street (Camberwell) branch of this Mission. The first was a New Year's meeting of the workers for mutual encouragement, conference and prayer, held on Tuesday, 2nd inst. The building in which this work is chiefly carried on is situated in the very centre of the class which the Mission is intended to benefit. Work has been carried on for the last hundred years in these premises, and they have now purchased the freehold. At a second meeting, by Mr. J. Kirk's invitation, about forty young men of the district, between the ages of sixteen and twenty, met him at the Mission-room for "tea and a little chat." Tea over, Mr. Kirk, in a kind and friendly way, invited them to join him in starting an evening class. All agreed to attend. It is to be hoped that this effort may be the means, with God's blessing, of bringing many from darkness into light, which is, after all, the principal object of the work.

* From one of a series of Sunday afternoon addresses on "Bible Birds" to the children of "Bird's Nest," Kingstown.

A TEMPERANCE FETE AT CAIRO.

A VERY pleasant and interesting meeting took place in the premises of the American Mission, Cairo, which had been placed at the disposal of Mr. Gelson Gregson for a Christmas gathering of the soldiers in Cairo. As our readers will recollect, Mr. Gregson is now organising Temperance work in connection with the Soldiers' Total Abstinence Association in the army of occupation in Egypt. The room was very tastefully decorated, while the court-yard was adorned with flags and lighted with lamps in true Oriental fashion. In the court-yard the tea tables were laid with cakes and tea for the men, as they came in from the different barracks. The school-rooms were utilised as smoking rooms, where the men met their comrades and talked of other Christmas days and soldier experiences. From the merry laughter and happy faces it was evident that intoxicating drink was not necessary to a happy Christmas.

At the subsequent meeting the lecture-hall was crowded in every part. Mr. Gregson presided, and introduced the speakers. The Chaplain of Cairo, Dean Butcher, in a short and effective speech, told the men that the meeting was the best and pleasantest gathering he had seen in Cairo. He hoped they would not only faithfully represent the honour and power of their country in Egypt, but also leave behind them a good impression of their Christian faith and life, so that the Egyptians might remember the Army of Occupation with respect and gratitude.

After the Dean's speech the meeting adjourned to a large and commodious chapel in another part of the premises, where there was better accommodation for the men. In addition to the addresses, Mr. Gregson gave a Temperance lecture, illustrated with dissolving views; he also exhibited a series of views of English scenery, which awakened home associations in the minds of many who were thinking about Christmas and loved ones at home.

The following gentlemen addressed the meeting: The Revs. McTaggart, Presbyterian chaplain; A. Male, Wesleyan chaplain; Mr. Mackay, officiating Presbyterian chaplain; Dr. Lansing; and Dr. Grant Bey, the resident physician at Cairo. One of the most interesting speeches of the evening was delivered by a minister of the Mission, who was formerly a Coptic monk. The Rev. Dr. Lansing translated the speech, which was delivered in Arabic. The Christian community of Cairo feel that the English army saved them from a fearful massacre. That extraordinary march to Cairo after the battle of Tel-el-Kebir was accomplished just in time. General Drury Lowe reached Cairo on Thursday night, and it had been arranged to murder every Christian in the city, of whatever faith or nationality, on the following morning. To the honour of the Christian community of which this Presbyterian minister is pastor, it should be known that they met every Sunday for divine worship, after the Europeans had left Cairo, showing the Mohammedan rabble that they were neither ashamed nor afraid to worship God according to their consciences. As this fine old man stood up on the platform, the soldiers gave him a hearty cheer. His appearance was imposing; though somewhat bent with age, he stood about six feet, his long white beard giving him a grand Oriental bearing.

ZENANA MISSIONS.—Miss Manning, the accomplished sister of the late secretary to the Religious Tract Society, has received, through General Ponsonby, Queen Victoria's approval and promise of support for the providing of fully qualified medical women for the Zenanas of India.

MISS LEIGH'S HOMES, PARIS.—The tenth anniversary of Miss Leigh's Homes for Englishwomen in Paris was celebrated last week. During the past year the Home has had 442 admissions. Several gentlemen present at the meeting spoke enthusiastically of the good work done and of the need of its further development. For the English Orphanage, which has now received a total of 230 children, the late M. Galignani by his will orders that his usual annual subscription of £300 shall be continued for at least ten years.

LOST!

DEAR SIR,—Within the last twenty-four hours six poor lost girls were refused at No. 4, Kirbey-street, Poplar, for want of room. We are offered an increase of accommodation but lack means. Oh, how hard it is to send them away! The lady who works there told me, with tears in her eyes, of one girl who prayed to be sheltered, even if she slept on the stairs, last night. The medical attendant on the Home has forbidden its over-crowding, and so the poor, weary wanderers are constantly sent away.

I plead for help in the name and for the sake of Him who would not that one of these should perish. I thank the Lord for the numbers who have already been saved from a life that is far worse than death.

If Christians will only help us to continue this work, the sum of saved girls will mount up to thousands instead of hundreds! And in the world to come the joy over saved souls will be great. "There is joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth." There has been, and is, true belief in the heart of many a poor girl who has found shelter in the open door at Kirbey-street.—Faithfully yours, ANNA WILKES.

"The Elms," Coppermill-lane,
Walthamstow, January 11.

A CRY FROM CONSTANTINOPLE.

WE have fairly entered upon another "Week of Prayer" in Constantinople; the scattered workers will gather on certain days to unite in supplication and intercession at the throne of grace; and, surely, if ever God's grace was needed in any place, it is in this great city of Stamboul! As I pen these words, the paper issued by the "Evangelical Alliance," with topics for the week, is brought in. Oh, that God would open the windows of heaven and pour upon us a mighty shower in answer to the petitions of his people all around the world on Thursday and Saturday of the week.

First of all, we who are here to labour for souls need a baptism of the Spirit, a fresh anointing for our work. We need to have the burden of souls so rolled upon us that we shall agonise for their salvation, and find no rest till sinners are brought to Christ. When that is the case there will be no lack of earnest, faithful, tender personal dealing with individual cases on every side. And until that is done I see no prospect of an awakening and an ingathering of souls in this wicked, God-forgetting capital. Infidelity is rampant; Satan is luring men to destruction with his gilded snares, and death is busy. What is to be done must be done quickly.

Dear Christian friends, will you not make this vast Eastern centre a special subject of prayer, not only during the days, but also the weeks and months to come? Remember Constantinople! Plead for Constantinople! As you ask for a blessing upon the "Mohammedan" as well as the "pagan and the Jew," it may be an encouragement to know that one of their number, who accepted Jesus as his Saviour twenty-two years ago, and followed Him faithfully even when in fear of his life, died in the city a few weeks ago, in the enjoyment of all the peace and comfort which the Gospel imparts, leaving a bright track of light behind him in the consistent walk which proclaimed his profession to be a verity even to the end.

We thank God for this testimony from one of the Moslem race. Among some of the interesting cases that have occurred at our "Rest," in this city, is that of a Turk, who is so thoroughly imbued with Christian truth that he argues with unbelievers more powerfully than any of us can do, proving "that this is the very Christ," the Saviour of the world! The Testament, which he has purchased of us, is his daily companion and study, and although he does not yet call himself a Christian, his companions have unqualified testimony to his godly life. They are all nominal Christians, and his case makes a profound impression upon them. It is very touching to see this Moslem preaching Christ and a living Christianity to those who learn the name, but are yet as much without Christ as the heathen!

Oh! what a power will be utilised for winning souls when this native element can be brought to wield its regenerated forces upon the strongholds of Satan in this city! Put the constraining love of Christ into the heart of one who knows how to deal with his own people, and the people of his own country, and give him the "tongue of fire," and no foreigner can compete with such a one in power for Christian service, in SOUL-SAVING. But the love must be a consuming fire! It must burn away the dross. Pray that God will raise up an army of such soldiers of the Cross in this land.

Ever yours, for the Master,
Constantinople, Jan. 8. MARIA A. WEST.

P.S.—I must add one word about our work at the "Rest," and its needs. The past months have brought severe trials in the opposition roused against us by former native employés, embittered because they were not retained in our service, which was the result of our efforts to make the workself-supporting; Mr. Burgess had come to take charge of the coffee-room as a voluntary worker. This was far more malignant and wide-spread than we could have imagined, much as we know of ungoverned tongues and tempers in this unchristian land. Consequently, our receipts have greatly fallen off, and our funds are running very low with unusual and constant demands, not only for current expenses of the "Rest," and our own daily support, but also to satisfy certain "claims and indemnities," brought against us by the persons above mentioned. All these have been settled; there is a new work slowly building up at the "Rest," more hopeful and spiritual we trust, and we are looking to God to carry us through the months to come with fresh hope and courage. We believe that while we work for Him He will provide the "daily bread." Pray for us!

M. A. W.

EVANGELISTIC MOVEMENTS.

Mr. Robinson Watson is under the necessity of relinquishing public Evangelistic work for a time through ill-health.

Dr. Ziemann has again visited Westphalia. The warm welcome he received shows that the interest has not abated. God's Spirit is moving amongst the people. Are there no others who will enter upon this ripe harvest-field?

Mr. W. Forbes has held a five days' Gospel Temperance Mission at Falmouth. The large Drill Hall was crowded nightly. Upwards of 1300 persons (a large proportion being new abstainers) put on the Blue Ribbon.

Mr. and Miss Parker have concluded a series of Evangelistic services at Ventnor, where they met with much acceptance from crowded congregations. They have recently been assisting at the meetings held in various places by Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

Mr. Jno. B. Bain has concluded an eight days' Gospel Mission at Drummond-road Baptist Chapel, Bermondsey. Blessed results have ensued: believers have been quickened, and precious souls have been born again. Some of these cases have been very cheering. A goodly number are still inquiring the way of life.

Mr. Henry Varley conducted special Evangelistic services daily, from January 7th to 12th, at the N.W. Metropolitan Young Men's Christian Association. Large numbers of young men attended each service, and there were many evidences of spiritual awakening. The Word was truly with power. Mr. Varley is conducting services in Exeter Hall on Sunday evenings.

Rev. G. S. Spencer, of Erdington, near Birmingham, over sixteen years pastor of the Old Town Congregational Church, Walton-under-Edge, paid a visit to his old friends at the close of the year, and conducted a series of Evangelistic and Gospel Temperance services in the chapel with marked success. Mr. Spencer spoke with great power and clearness, combining the rich experience of a forty years' ministerial life with the heat and fire of youth.

CONFERENCE OF UNIVERSITY MEN.

A CONFERENCE of Oxford and Cambridge men, and others interested in Christian work in those Universities, was held on Monday afternoon, January 8, in the Council Chamber of Exeter Hall. The objects of the Conference were to consider future work at the Universities, and especially to seek by consecration and prayer God's blessing upon all engaged in such work, and in any work for Christ.

The chair was taken by Hon. ARTHUR F. KINNAIRD, who read, as a key-note to the meeting, the words "Lord, why cannot I follow Thee now?" (John xiii. 37). He also read Num. xiv. 24, "But my servant Caleb, because he hath another spirit in him, and hath followed Me fully, him will I bring into the land whereunto he went, and his seed shall possess it." There is need for putting to ourselves the questions, "Why have I not followed Jesus more fully? Why have I not given myself up entirely to Him?" The writer of Psalm lxiii. 8 says: "My soul followeth hard after Thee." One object of the Conference is to show us how we may follow the Lord more fully.

Rev. H. W. WEBB-PEPLOE put the question "Are we prepared, cost what it may, to take our stand on the side of the Lord Jesus and serve Him for ever?" We are met here to-day to dedicate ourselves entirely to the service of the Lord. That is by no means so easy as at first sight it may appear. To be saved at all will be a glorious fact with regard to any human being on earth, glorious to God, but not necessarily glorious to the man himself. It by no means follows that because you recognise your salvation to be entirely the result of God's free grace, you are necessarily given up wholly to the glory of God. The satisfaction coming from personal salvation arises not merely from realising that we are saved, but from rendering up to God a full and faithful account of our stewardship.

We are not here to speak of the elementary doctrines of the Atonement and of Justification; at the same time we believe, unless there be the faith that takes up the position of a beggar before God in seeking salvation, there is no possibility of being accepted in the great day of account. There is a great deal more than this, however. To be saved merely for self-satisfaction is without exception the most utter degradation a man is capable of, except the service of the devil. It is to dishonour the dignity of humanity. It is a glorious thing to be saved, not because it brings us self-satisfaction, but because it carries out the purpose for which God, in his infinite mercy, has designed us. That purpose is, that we should be exemplars of the Saviour, and co-workers with Him here on earth, and that we should, by our spiritual service, hasten on the day of the Kingdom of God. Then for the first time the Lord Jesus will see absolutely of the travail of his soul, and be satisfied in offering to God the Father such a gift as can satisfy even the Most High.

The man of God is called to occupy a threefold position, according to the figure of the Apostle Paul: that of a soldier, a competitor in the races, and a husbandman in the field. The character of the soldier involves definite strife. There are foes all around us: are we prepared, in the sight of God, to dedicate ourselves to one distinct, perpetual warfare against the mighty foes who are seeking on every hand the destruction of each man's soul, and the overthrow of Christ's kingdom? Mr. Webb-Peploe dwelt upon the four crowns held out to the Christian in the word of God, "the crown of life," for those who shall endure; "the crown of righteousness," for those who have stood out against the foes of God; "the crown of rejoicing" for those who have sought and brought to God poor lost, outcast souls; and "the crown of glory" for those who have edified the Church of God, have built up the saints, have been faithful to their stewardship, and have given food to all those who are the sheep of the Lord. All this subject involves endless self-denial and ceaseless effort.

The speaker then dwelt upon the need in the Christian warfare of resigning the pleasures, occupations, and glories of this world, and especially all that would be a source of danger. No Christian has a right to engage in that which would hinder the advancement of the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ in his soul. Alluding to the figure of victor in the games only being crowned if he had striven lawfully, he explained how service for Christ could not be called striving lawfully, if there were in it such petty jealousy as led to the attempt to trip up a brother, or the mean self-seeking that would prevent one Christian rejoicing in another's advancement. Such petty jealousies are "unlawful," and cause the onlooking world to say with scorn, as they regard the narrow lines of rival systems, "see how these Christians love one another!" In striving lawfully we have to bear in mind the commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." The utterance of the Christian worker would be, "Who is sufficient for these things?" the answer comes from God's word, "Our sufficiency is of God."

Rev. J. NEVILE SHERBROOKE said: We need to read the Word of God, not merely in a scholarly way, but in a spiritual way. Get all you can about the word of God; we need to have our sword as sharp as we can get it—to be such good swordsmen that we shall not be afraid to meet anyone in the field. It is possible, however, to be a good worker, to tickle people's ears, and get a large congregation, without being approved unto God. We need not merely to get people into our churches or rooms, but to be ourselves "approved unto God." Then we must "rightly divide the word of truth;" we must be so intimately acquainted with the truth, that as each soul comes before us we know what portion to give. Then we shall have the joy given to us of leading souls into peace. All have not the same gifts, but there is scope in Christianity for every talent. The world may call us fools—we are fools in one sense, because we are looking after the invisible things.

After an earnest exhortation to holiness the speaker said: I was with the First Sea Lord of the Admiralty the other day, and he said to me, "Have you considered how it was that Sir Garnet Wolseley attempted what he did at Tel-el-Kebir? Because he knew what was behind him, and he suspected what was before him, and he was right in that." And so is it with us; we have the spiritual power, the grace of God, behind us, and we can go forward relying upon his grace.

After some observations by Rev. J. Stewart, Rev. G. Sutton, and Mr. A. Coote, Rev. H. MOWLE expressed the wish that all Christian men at the universities would deal personally with the unsaved as a matter of duty. He testified that many of the students were thankful to be spoken with, and told of a friend, a surgeon, who said to him, "I should never have been converted to God but for your persistency."

Mr. WAIN described a Bible-class he had started for men of his own year, and stated that out of fifteen invited not one refused to come. One hesitated about promising, but afterwards came. Out of the fifteen, five gave their hearts to Christ.

Mr. A. P. Cox stated that since he had resolved to speak personally to men at Oxford, the last term had been the happiest he had had; in such work he had received great blessing to his own soul.

Hon. G. WALDEGRAVE testified that it was easy to follow the Lord up to a certain point, but that in moments of darkness or difficulty the tendency was to follow Him afar off. He spoke of the words of Jehoshaphat, who had laid his difficulty before the Lord: "Be not afraid nor dismayed by reason of this great multitude; for the battle is not yours, but God's." He told of College Bible-readings as being means of blessing.

Mr. JOSEPH WEATHERLEY dwelt on the need of personal, individual dealing, referring to the large number of cases of conversion in the New Testament through personal dealing.

The CHAIRMAN stated that there was in contemplation some scheme for united Gospel work at the other universities and large public schools of England and Scotland.

"YOUR HEAVENLY FATHER KNOWETH."

MATTHEW vi. 42.

FROM A NEW YEAR'S ADDRESS BY THE REV. W. BURROUGHS, MARINERS' CHURCH, KINGSTOWN.

MY Father knoweth who trust in Him,
Though the trust be weak, and the hope be dim;
Enough that we even try to trust,
For He remembers we are but dust.

My Father knoweth the way I take;
Safely the journey of life I'll make,
For the hand of my Guide will hold me fast,
Till I cross the Jordan river at last.

My Father knoweth what things I need,
Why should I to fears and doubts give heed
When the word of a King is pledged to me
He will give whatever my need may be?

And where I dwell doth my Father know,
In the wealthy home, or the cottage low;
Lonely, perchance, or where dear ones be,—
'Tis the place that He hath appointed me.

Home after home hath been broken up
Since first I tasted Life's bitter cup;
Where will those tired eyelids close?
I cannot tell—but my Father knows.

I cannot tell, when the light unfolds,
What the day that is coming holds,
But my Father knows—and his word to me
Is, "As thy day so thy strength shall be."

Before my Father the balances lie
That hold my day and my day's supply,
And if I begin without taking my store.
What marvel I faint ere its hours are o'er.

He knoweth my frame, and He doth not chide
When I cease to struggle 'gainst wind and tide:
Nay, He bids me rest—for the battle is sore—
Till the weak hands are strengthened to fight once more.

He knoweth my sorrows—and if they press
With the double burden of loneliness,
I have but to lean upon Him, and know
I never was helped and comforted so.

He knoweth how to deliver my soul.
Tempests may rage, and waters may roll;
Oh! to rest on those waves for the voice of One
Who will say "Be still!" when their work is done.

He knoweth my days, be they short or long,
Compassed with sorrows, or glad with song;
The time is set for whate'er may befall,
Then home and heaven and rest after all!

And so, I would leave my year with One
Who has marked each step till its course be run;
I have but to trust as a child would do,
Whose mother leads it the darkness through.

"What I do thou knowest not now;"
There is calm on the heart, and peace on the brow,
Whenever we trust without seeking to know,
Lord, give me love that can trust Thee so!

M. G.

[Copies of this Poem may be had from Mr. Caswell, Broadstreet, Birmingham. 4d. for 25, post free.]

BROOKLYN, U.S.—Some of the Brooklyn Churches are working hard, and especially in the line of distinct conversion. Rev. G. F. Pentecost preaches every Sunday afternoon in the Academy of Music to a packed house, admitted by ticket, and largely composed of young men. This he does in addition to his two regular services. Mr. Pentecost has few equals as a preacher of a clear, simple, affectionate Gospel.—Freeman.

METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE.—Mr. Spurgeon's many friends will be pleased to learn that although he was so full of pain on Monday, while presiding at the first meeting of the Week of United Prayer, he was able on Thursday last to preach his usual week-day sermon. We are sorry to record the death of Mr. William Higgs, which occurred on the 3rd instant. He was the well-known builder of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, and one of Mr. Spurgeon's deacons. The sorrow caused by the death of Mr. Higgs has since been intensified by the sudden decease of Mr. Mills, another deacon of the Tabernacle, on Friday last.

THE VOICES OF THE VALLEYS;

OR, LESSONS LEARNED IN LOWLY PLACES.

By GAWIN KIRKHAM.

"Glorify ye the Lord in the valleys."—ISA. xxiv. 15 (margin).

HAVING already through these columns listened to "the voices of the snow," and "the voices of the sea," let us now wander among the valleys, and hear what they have to say. "The everlasting hills" (Gen. xlix. 26) may speak more majestically, for they are called upon to hear the voice of the Lord (Micah vi. 1), and also to praise Him (Ps. cxlviii. 9). When "the God of glory thundereth," and "breaketh the cedars of Lebanon" (Ps. xxix. 3, 5), their echo is magnificent, proclaiming, "Let all the earth fear the Lord; let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of Him" (Ps. xxxiii. 8). But, for the present, we will "go down by the valleys," where God "sendeth the springs" (Ps. civ. 8, 10). There we shall see how the flowers bloom and the fruits grow (Cant. vi. 11); and, perhaps, before our return we may be so fortunate as to find "the lily of the valley" (Cant. ii. 2), which will serve as a memento of our walk in days to come.

For my part, I confess to a preference for the valleys, on the ground of security. I remember how the immortal Bunyan represents a shepherd boy as singing—

He that is down need fear no fall,
He that is low no pride;
He that is humble ever shall
Have God to be his guide.

I am content with what I have,
Little be it or much;
And, Lord, contentment still I crave,
Because thou savest such.

And if I am inclined to prefer the hills, I am reminded, by the frequent accidents to tourists, how dangerous they are. Only during the past summer, in less than a fortnight, two valuable lives were sacrificed in our own country—a minister and a lawyer—one on Scawfell, in Cumberland, and the other on Snowdon, in Wales. So if we would be safe from "vaulting ambition," let us "glorify the Lord in the valleys."

I. We will first pay a hasty visit to the vale of SIDDIM, and learn to avoid danger. Though this is the first valley mentioned in Scripture (see Gen. xiv. 3), it is not a place to stay in, as it was the scene of the first battle recorded in sacred history, and has been the cause of many serious accidents, and the loss of many valuable lives. In ancient times it was full of slime pits, which swallowed up two kings in one day, and so terrified their followers that they fled to the mountain. (Gen. xiv. 10.) Soon after this, Sodom and Gomorrah, and the neighbouring cities were destroyed by fire from heaven, which the Lord rained upon them; and at present this Vale of Siddim "is the Salt Sea." (Gen. xiv. 3.) A residence in this valley almost cost Lot his life. Once he was taken captive, and when the cities were destroyed he only just escaped, his sons-in-law perishing in the ruins. So, as we gaze upon this desolate place, we may learn how dangerous is the friendship of the world; and that if we will be friends with the world, God will reckon us his enemies. (James vi. 4.)

II. Close by is the Vale of SHAVEH (Gen. xiv. 17), where we may learn how to worship. Here, as we gaze upon Melchizedek blessing "the most high God" and blessing Abraham also (Gen. xiv. 19, 20), we may learn something of Him who, while "a Priest after the order of Melchizedek" (Psalm cx. 4) is also "over all, God blessed for ever" (Rom. ix. 5). It will do us good to walk in this "king's dale" (Gen. xiv. 17) and meditate upon Him who is to us both King and Priest, as Melchizedek was to Abraham. We "glorify the Lord" when we honour his Son.

III. We will now pass on to the valley of ACHOR, and learn the bitterness of sin (see Joshua vii). Achan saw a wedge of gold and a goodly Babylonish garment among the spoils of Ai, which he coveted, and took, and hid in his tent. How like the act of Eve! She saw, desired, took, ate, and gave the forbidden fruit (Gen. iii. 6). But the pleasures of sin are soon turned into bitterness. Achan is discovered by lot, and this act costs him and his whole family their lives. That heap of stones under which they lie preaches its silent but eloquent sermon to all generations, and warns men not to bring their families into trouble by their sins. Yet this valley of Achor (trouble) becomes both a door of hope (Hosea ii. 14, 15) and a place of rest (Isa. lxv. 10). How true a picture of human experience in all ages! We sin, we sorrow, we repent, we pray; and, by way of Calvary and its bitter agonies, we see a door of hope, until our Achor becomes a place for herds to lie down in. Thus we obey the voice of the Good Shepherd: "Come unto Me all ye that labour and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest" (Matt. xi. 28).

IV. Let us next visit the famed valley of ESHCOL, and learn the penalty of unbelief. The story of the twelve spies is deeply instructive (Num. xiii.) God had promised to give the land of Canaan to the people of Israel; and these twelve men, in their forty days' exploration, saw that it flowed with milk and honey; and exhibiting to the wondering gaze of the people a splendid cluster of grapes cut in the valley of Eshcol, —which required a staff and the shoulders of two men to carry, they said, "This is the fruit of it" (Num. xiii. 27). But they had also seen the cities "walled and very great," in addition to men of great stature, and came to this conclusion: "We be not able to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we." Hence the defeat at Ai, and thirty-eight years' wandering in the wilderness till this race of unbelievers had died out. "They could not enter in because of unbelief" (Heb. iii. 19). "Let us, therefore, fear, lest a promise being left us of entering into his rest, any of you should seem to come short of it" (Heb. iv. 1). Why should we also so often suffer defeat when we might have a succession of glorious victories?

V. We will hasten therefore to the valley of BERACHAH, and see the triumph of faith (2 Chron. xx. 26). Few Bible narratives will better repay perusal than the glorious victory which Jehoshaphat gained over "the great multitude" composed of Moabites, Ammonites, and the inhabitants of Mount Seir. First, he "set himself to seek the Lord." Then "Judah gathered themselves together, to ask help of the Lord." Here was a great prayer-meeting of men, women and children, led by the king. Then the Spirit of the Lord came upon Jahaziel, who said, "The battle is not yours, but God's," and gave directions how to meet the enemy. So confident was the king now of victory that "he appointed singers unto the Lord, that they should praise the beauty of holiness as they went out before the army." So the victory was gained before the battle was fought, "and they were three days in gathering of the spoil, it was so much." "And on the fourth day they assembled themselves in the valley of Berachah (blessing) and there they blessed the Lord: therefore the name of the place was called, The Valley of Berachah unto this day." Oh for a similar overcoming faith on our part in every attack of the world, the flesh, and the devil! Our life would then be a constant succession of valleys of blessing; and the sevenfold promise to the overcoming ones would be abundantly verified (see Rev. ii. and iii.)

Oh, come to this valley of blessing so sweet,
Where Jesus will fulness bestow;
And believe, and receive, and confess Him,
That all His salvation may know.

VI. We will next look into the valley of JEHOSHAPHAT, and consider God's latter-day judgments (Joel iii. 2, 12): "Come to the valley of Jehoshaphat: for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about." The sickle must be put in, "for the harvest is ripe:" "the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great." This is "the valley of decision" (ver. 14), which we so often contemplate when thinking of numerous sinners deciding to serve the Lord. "Multitudes, multitudes, in the valley of decision," and God has doubtless often blessed that use of it; but in reality it is the Lord's decision as a judge that is referred to, as may be seen in the margin, where it is called the valley of threshing. How vain will it be to contend with the Lord in that day! and yet even the wicked will be compelled to give glory to God because his judgments are just (Rev. xii. 13).

VII. Our next visit shall be to the more familiar valley of BACA, where we may learn dependence upon God (Ps. lxxxiv). This is not an inviting place; and as we pitch our tents, we wonder where our supplies are to come from. There is no water. What shall we do? Sit down in despair? No! Let us dig wells in the sand. But there is no sign of water! Never mind. Set to work! We shall find beneath this hot sand, a cool, refreshing spring. The command is, "Make this valley full of ditches" (2 Kings iii. 16); and if water is not found below, it will come from above, for the rain will fill the pools. Faith uses the means, and leaves the results with God. There now! You see that water! Listen! "I will open rivers in high places, and fountains in the midst of the valleys. I will make the wilderness a pool of water and the dry land springs of water" (Is. xli. 18). Will you ever doubt God's providence again? After all, in one sense, things are very much what we make them. Circumstances and surroundings do not make so much difference as the spirit in which they are encountered. A simple, child-like trust in the living God turns a desert into a springing well. As God "sendeth the springs into the valleys" (Ps. cxiv. 10) of the natural world, so does faith send springs of joy and comfort into the shadier passages of our spiritual experience. "Have faith in God" (Mark ii. 22). Do not be for ever looking on the darker side of things; but watch for the rifts in the clouds which give promise of bright sunshine. Learn thus to glorify God in the valleys, and your experience shall harmonise with that of good old John Newton:—

Since all that I meet shall work for my good,
The bitter is sweet, the medicine is food:
Tho' painful at present, 'twill cease before long,
And then O how pleasant the conqueror's song!

And continue to repeat over and over again, "My God shall supply all your need, according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus" (Phil. iv. 19).

VIII. We cannot finish our journey without halting in the valley of DRY BONES, where we may learn how to work for God (see Eze. xxxvii). Note—(1) The preacher's call:

"The hand of the Lord was upon me," ver. 1. (2) The preacher's place: "In the midst of the valley which was full of bones," ver. 1. (3) The preacher's preparation: "Pass by them round about," ver 2. (4) The preacher's test: "Can these bones live?" (5) The preacher's work: "Say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the Word of the Lord," ver. 4. (6) The preacher's encouragement: "I will cause breath to enter into you, and ye shall live," &c., ver. 5, 6. (7) The preacher's prayer: "Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain, that they may live," ver. 9. (8) The preacher's success, at first partial: "the bones came together." "The sinews and the flesh came upon them, and the skin covered them, but there was no breath in them;" then complete: "the breath came into them, and they lived and stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army," ver. 7—10. Another illustration of the same truth may be learned in the valley of Elah (1 Sam. xvii. 2), where David the stripling slew Goliath the giant. Seeing that "God hath chosen the weak things of the world, to confound the things which are mighty" (1 Cor. i. 27), let us glorify Him in this valley also.

IX. Finally, let us look into the valley of the SHADOW OF DEATH, and learn how to die (Ps. xxiii. 4). A reverent, thoughtful gaze becomes us here. On this, the day of our visit, the place seems bright enough. The sun is high in the heavens, and his cheering rays penetrate into the gloomiest recesses, dispelling all darkness, and even rendering it an inviting spot. But it is not always so. The sun is often obscured, and it is common for fearfulness and trembling to come upon the bravest travellers, and sorrow to overwhelm them (Ps. lv. 5). Besides, the passage is usually made in the evening, when shadows gather thickly around the head of the pilgrims; and not unfrequently in the dead of the night also, when a "horror of great darkness" falls upon them (Gen. xv. 12). There is only one way of crossing in safety. You see that Shepherd with his flock, feeding in the green pastures. Towards evening He will come this way with them. They hear his voice and follow Him now; and by the time the evening shadows are gathering, they will have acquired such confidence that even in the darkest parts of the valley you will hear them exclaiming, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." Beyond the valley there is a fold, well guarded and secure; and though some of the sheep would prefer another way of reaching it, there is no way but through this valley. Let us hear the call of this Good Shepherd now; and then, when evening falls upon us, as we follow Him into the valley we shall be able to sing:—

Through the valley of the shadow I must go,
Where the dark waves of Jordan roll:
But the promise of the Shepherd will, I know,
Be the rod and the staff to my soul.
Even now, down the valley as I glide,
I can hear the Saviour say, Follow Me!
And with Him I'm not afraid to cross the tide.
There's a light in the valley for me.

And when safe within the fold we shall exultingly exclaim—

Blessed fold! no foe can enter.
And no friend departeth thence:
Jesus is their sun—their centre,
And their shield omnipotence:
Blessed! for the Lamb shall feed them,
All their tears shall wipe away;
Unto living fountains lead them,
Till fruition's perfect day.

So may God help us to glorify Him in the valleys!

[48]

TWO DEATH SCENES.

FROM THE DIARY OF A LADY NURSE.

II.—THE ATHEIST'S DAUGHTER.

THE events of the last few days seem like a horrible dream. On Saturday a telegram was received from D—— for a nurse, and I was selected to go.

I arrived at a quiet country station at five o'clock in the evening; I found a carriage waiting; after a rapid drive of about three miles through a pretty country the carriage turned into an avenue leading to a handsome modern mansion. I followed the servant who admitted me, to the drawing-room, and sat down to wait until I should be conducted to my patient, wondering what the "case" would be, as the telegram gave no particulars. This is a wealthy family, I thought, as I looked upon the evidences of ease and comfort by which I was surrounded.

In a few minutes a lady, looking worn and anxious, came into the room. She spoke first, with a hard, cold smile, addressing me: "You have come to try your hand at nursing; how long have you been at it?" "I hope, with God's blessing, I may be some comfort to you," I said. "I have been a nurse for three years." "That's as it may be," she replied; "however, the patient is a little better to-night."

The lady (I shall call her Mrs. D.) then conducted me up a handsome flight of stairs to a room where she left me to prepare for the duties of the night. My toilet was soon finished, and when Mrs. D. returned I said, "May I ask who the patient is, as I know nothing about the case?" "Oh, yes; she is my only daughter. I have been trying to nurse her myself; and we have a woman from the village, but she is old, and does not manage well. The doctor told me a week ago that my daughter's only chance was to have a trained nurse; but I delayed, and he telegraphed for you to-day."

We now entered the sick room, and I approached the bedside to introduce myself to my patient. Propped up with many pillows, and breathing heavily, with eyes brilliant with fever, her hair in a tangled mass about her, lay a young and beautiful woman. Alas! death had his hand already stamped upon her; the fatal dropsy—the forerunner of death in her disease—was too plainly apparent.

"She is very deaf," said Mrs. D.; "you must speak loud." "Oh," said the poor girl, "I'm so uncomfortable; perhaps the nurse would move me." I soon found she was indeed deaf, and it was with great difficulty we could make her hear. We eased her as well as we could, Mrs. D., who seemed very fond of her, assisting me. She then told me what the doctor's orders were, and having kissed her daughter prepared to retire for the night.

In the meantime the old nurse, previously mentioned, had remained standing at the foot of the bed; as she began to move clumsily about, I suggested that she also ought to go to bed. "Yes, we shall go now," said Mrs. D.; "I leave my child in your care, and I shall see that you have all you require for the night." She then departed.

"Oh," said the old nurse, "I shall be glad to go to bed, and no mistake. I haven't been in bed for a month, only a snatch of sleep here and there. But dear! dear! the poor creature [pointing to Miss D.] will never see the morning!" "Take care," I said, "Miss D. may hear you." "Not she, she's been as deaf as a post this three days, and that's a very bad sign; she's asleep now—that's the opium the doctor gave her. But oh! dear! dear! to think of people dying like animals, and no clergyman; not even a prayer. Oh, it's awful."

"What do you mean?" I said. "Well, they don't believe in God; they're all atheists in this house—father, mother, two sons, and this only daughter. They can't bear you to mention the name of God. I am sorry I ever came into the place, though I am a poor woman, and they pays me high. I'm sure it's unlucky. I always sat under a clergyman, and said my prayers regular." So muttering, "I'm sure it's unlucky," she left the room.

All the night I kept watch. The patient slept heavily, only rousing to take the food given her; there was no opportunity to tell her of Jesus who could save her, and would do so now if she would but come to Him. About 5 a.m. a terrible restlessness came on, and soon she was fully roused. "I think I am better?" she said, inquiringly. Alas! I knew it was only the deceiving reaction that so often comes immediately before death.

Speaking loudly in order to make her hear, I said, "Jesus loves you; Jesus can save you; only put your trust in God." "Oh, that is all nonsense," she replied, pettishly, turning from me. In vain I implored her to listen; she covered her head with the bedclothes, saying, "I don't know God; I don't want to know anything about it."

I remained with her until 5 p.m. It was now Sunday afternoon, and a lovely spring day. All that Sabbath-day the house resounded with laughter. I could hear the click of the balls in the billiard-room, and the noise of carriages and horses passing up and down the avenue, as I kept my solitary watch. At 5 o'clock the doctor came. In a private interview he told me that Miss D. could not linger much longer. "Still," he said, "she may last days, or even weeks, and you must go to rest at once if you are to sit up to-night." So, having seen that everything was in order in the sick room, and leaving written directions with the old nurse, I went into the dressing-room adjoining, and being very much exhausted soon fell asleep.

In about two hours I was roused by Mrs. D. "Come at once," she said, "there's an awful change." I followed her quickly to the sick room. Miss D. was sitting up in bed, her eyes dilated with terror, and frantically throwing her arms about, as she almost shrieked, "I'm dying, dying! call them all in to say good-bye. Oh, go and fetch them!" she cried, as her mother hesitated. In vain I tried to soothe her. The deafness had increased so that no sound could reach her ears. "Oh!" she shrieked, "can nothing be done to save me? It's too late, too late! I don't know where I'm going to; I don't know God."

Her mother now returned with her other relatives. Very awful was the scene, as she called upon one and another to save her from such an awful death. This fearful struggle lasted for three hours. Not able to endure the painful scene her relatives left the room, and I was alone with poor Miss D. Calling out, "I never thought I should die like this: oh, why have I to die? I don't want to die; I'm not ready; I don't know where I'm going to!" she settled down upon the pillows.

I prayed, but my faith was weak. I knew not what to ask; all seemed dark. Suddenly there was a dread silence; I drew nearer the bed: she was dead!

CHRISTIAN INSTRUCTION SOCIETY.—The Committee invite friends who may wish to assist in preaching the Gospel, to communicate with the Secretary, Rev. Dr. Wickson, Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, E.C.

CO-OPERATION, NOT COMPETITION.—7.

By Rev. WASHINGTON GLADDEN.

CONSOLIDATING THE CHURCHES.*

IT must not be supposed that the Christian League Club had lived and wrought all these years in New Albion and been heard of by nobody. Its members took no pains to advertise its doings, neither did they have any secrets; many things had come to pass of late in this thriving town; a new spirit of co-operation and of enterprise had taken possession of the Churches; their power was more perfectly concentrated and more effectively expended than ever before, and the results were beyond question or cavil. The source from which these good works proceeded could not be hid. At first there was a disposition on the part of some of the uninvited to speak sceptically about "secret conclaves" and "close corporations," but as it became evident that nothing nefarious was hatched in these conferences, that the club assumed no power, and only served as an apparatus for generating and directing public opinion, and that its conclusions had no more force than there might be in the reasons by which they were supported, the ungraciousness of finding fault was recognised by most sensible persons, and the club became a highly popular organisation. A little conversation which occurred one day between Captain Conover, a Baptist, and Dr. Duncan, a Methodist, in the office of the latter, fairly illustrated the public sentiment:

"The fact is," said the Captain, "that we haven't got but one Church here in New Albion. There are several different meetin'-houses, and several different congregations, and they have various ways of workin' and worshippin', but there aint but one Church. We all stan' together pretty solid, I tell 'em. We all move as one body. There aint any pushin' of Baptist interests or Meth'dist interests or Congregational interests or 'Piscopal interests; the only thing we're pushin' is the kingdom of heaven. I tell you what it is, it's ben a-comin' faster these three last years 'n I ever see it come before."

As the Captain's heart warmed, his dialect strengthened.

"You are right," responded the Doctor. "We've got things on a very good basis. I was afraid that when Brother Thorpe went away we might get a minister who wouldn't work in so well with the rest; but Brother Hartwell seems to have been fairly captured by the League, and he will do his part, you may depend. As for the Methodist laymen of New Albion, you can always count on them. They have some solid reasons for thinking well of this club. It will take them a good while to forget that Sunday afternoon when the little chaps walked up the aisle of our church, one after another, with the letters that proclaimed to us deliverance from our bondage of debt. I don't think much of shouting as some of our folks do, but I shouted then, as loud as the loudest of them."

"Well," said the Captain, "this new way is a pretty old way after all, I guess. It's about the way they did it in Ephesus and Antioch, when the disciples was called Christians,—not Baptists nor Meth'dists. There was only one Church there, 'n yit like enough there was half a dozen congregations. P'r'aps they didn't all have jest the same rules, nor jest the same ways of worshippin', but they all worked together. This is the kind of Christian union that plain and sensible folks believe in. Some of the brothering that run the machines don't think much on't; but the rank 'n file are sound. We've been a-prayin' for years that all Christ's disciples might be one, and makin' no end of talk about it, but it was mostly talk; now we've got down to business."

Captain Conover was a sort of village oracle, and his shrewd comments reflected the prevailing opinion.

Not only within the precincts of New Albion, but beyond its borders, the unity of its Churches became a theme of conversation. In three or four of the larger towns in the neighbourhood similar clubs had been formed, and the experiences of New Albion were repeated with some variations. The notion that the relations of Christian Churches ought to be those of co-operation rather than of competition, began to get a firm lodgment here and there in Bradford County. The small country towns, back among the hills, away from the railroads, were the places into which it was hardest for the new Gospel to find entrance. In many of these towns, with populations of less than a thousand persons, there were from three to five Churches—sometimes two of the same sect. The members of these Churches generally regarded the peculiarities of their several sects as matters of supreme importance, and repelled with heat any suggestion of closer relations between the Churches. The narrowness of the laity in these towns was not likely to be mitigated by their religious teachers—the feebleness of the Churches making it difficult for them to secure pastors of intelligence and breadth—though this rule was not without shining exceptions.

One Monday forenoon in November, Mr. Strong with Mr. Hartwell, the new Methodist minister, a man of fine scholarship and excellent spirit, had dropped in at Dr. Sampson's study, and were holding a rather jovial conference with him, when a weather-beaten, covered buggy stopped opposite the house, and a venerable man, with a clean-shaven face, and a fringe of grey beard under his chin, passed by the window of the study and rang the bell.

"That's Father Crane of Monroeville," said the Doctor, going to the door; "come in, Father Crane: come right into the study; I want you to know my friends;" and the Rev. Jonas Crane, pastor of the Baptist Church in Monroeville, was formally presented to the other two clergymen and cordially received by them.

[By a strange coincidence the Congregational and Methodist pastors of Monroeville, Mr. Slade and Mr. Towne, shortly appeared on the scene. It transpired that all three had come to New Albion to seek help from the sister churches of that community. The conversation turned on the church arrangements of Monroeville, and it was discovered that with a population of less than a thousand, it had the three settled pastors named above, besides occasional services by the Episcopalians and the Adventists. If New Albion were provided with churches in the same ratio with respect to its population, the number of these would have been forty-seven instead of ten. Mr. Strong energetically explained the incongruity of this state of affairs, and said that practically the people of Monroeville would be as well served by one church located at some central point.]

While this conversation had been going on, Father Crane had been nervously stroking his bald head.

"Brother Strong seems strangely oblivious of the circumstance that Christian people, in the rural communities as well as the urban, have convictions of their own respecting the doctrines and ordinances of religion which they consider themselves under obligation to maintain. We have, in Monroeville, those who are Baptists because of unfeigned and unalterable persuasion; and Congregationalists, I presume, of whom a similar state of mind might be predicated; and Methodists, who also devotedly desiderate their own peculiar forms and ceremonies. Why have we not an equal right with the dwellers in more populous places to indulge our predilections?" Father Crane's rather pompous sentences were full of the warmth of sincerity.

"Our venerable brother goes for the root of the matter the first time," said Mr. Strong. "The reason why there are three Churches in Monroeville instead of one, is that everybody thinks he must have his pet notions gratified in the fashion of Church life and work. These fashions, like many other fashions, may well enough be followed if folks can afford it. Here's my neighbour, with wages enough to live in comfort, if they are wisely expended. But he thinks that his wife must have just so many ribbons on her bonnet and so many laces on her cloak, and that his girls must have just such a style of shoes; and so much money goes for all these fine fixings that he has to come around once or twice a year and ask his neighbours for flour and coal."

"But," protested the old gentleman, "you do not intend to insinuate that there is any similitude between the vain adornments you have mentioned and the distinctive principles of a religious denomination."

"That is exactly what I mean. Ribbons and laces are not necessarily vain adornments. They are beautiful, and may be indulged in with thanksgiving, if one does not sacrifice in getting them that which is of more consequence. In like manner, the various denominational peculiarities are innocent enough; but they add nothing to the real value of the Gospel of Christ, any more than the laces add warmth to the cloak. Believing in these denominational peculiarities does no man any good whatever. It nourishes no man's manhood; it saves no man's soul. The only effect of exalting these things is to belittle the manhood and to shrivel the soul. Yet it is by exalting these small distinctions that the Christians of Monroeville maintain three Churches when there is barely room for one."

"You fail to see some of the aspects of this case," said Mr. Slade. "I have always thought it better for every family to have a home by itself, even though it may cost a little more than it would to put three or four families together in the same house. I would rather have my own fire and my own table and my own family altar. Such an arrangement is in the interest of peace and happiness."

"I thank you for that illustration," answered Mr. Strong, "because it is familiar, and because I wish to show that it wholly misses the point. The Christians in Monroeville do not belong to three families. They are all members of one family. The case is like this: An old mother and two daughters have income enough to live together in comfort. But there are some small matters about which they disagree. They love one another dearly—so they say; they often get together and tell one another how much they have in common, and yet they insist on living apart. The rent of three houses must be paid, three fires must be fed, three lamps must burn; the expense of living for the three is more than twice as much as it would be if they all lived together. Their income will not support them. So every year they go around among the neighbours and take up a collection to enable them to keep up these three separate establishments. Is it any wonder that the wisdom of this arrangement does not always appear to the persons who are asked to subscribe?"

"You disapprove of denominations, then?" queried Elder Crane.

"Let us stick to Monroeville for the present," Mr. Strong proposed. "The real question now is whether there ought to be three Churches in Monroeville."

* Abridged from The Century Magazine.

"Of course," said Mr. Slade, "if you come to that, there ought not to be more than one,—but——the real difficulty is to know which two of these Churches ought to commit suicide for the benefit of the third. I suppose that the Congregationalists of Monroeville are all agreed that there ought to be but one Church in that town, and that the Congregational Church is the one; and that the Baptists have the same opinion about their Church, and the Methodists ditto. For my part, I own that I am inclined to stand with my own people."

"So far as I am concerned," said Dr. Sampson, "I am not prepared to abandon the Baptist ground on this subject: but in view of the mischiefs arising from division in small communities, I am ready to go to the verge of my principles in promoting unity."

"Is it not true, brethren," Mr Strong went on, "that the real differences of doctrine and of worship among the Christians of Monroeville are wholly insufficient to warrant the existence of three separate Churches?"

Mr. Towne and Mr. Slade at once confessed, and denied not. Elder Crane was less acquiescent.

"I am now an old man," he said, "and I do not readily accommodate myself to new measures. I acknowledge the justice of much that Mr. Strong has urged—especially the historical references that he has adduced; but I could not consent to have my little church on the hill abandoned. There are too many precious memories." The old clergyman paused, and there were tears in his voice as well as in his eyes. In a moment he went on: "My time is nearly come, however. One part of my errand to-day was to consult about laying down the burden that has become too heavy for me. And I shall not stand in the way of any plans of reorganisation which my people may wish to adopt."

"I understand and respect the feeling of Elder Crane," said Mr. Strong. "The old associations are sacred. It is hard to give up the old home. But when it costs for repairs more than we can possibly raise, and we are in danger of being buried in its ruins, judgment must prevail over sentiment."

"But here's the rub," said Mr. Towne. "How are you going to make the people of Monroeville see this thing as you do?"

"With your help," answered Mr. Strong, "the thing can be done. Will you not confer together, and then call on us for any help we can render? We have learned, you know, here in New Albion, how to dwell together in unity, and we would be glad to show our neighbours how they may go and do likewise."

The two younger ministers of Monroeville promised to look it over, and to see what could be done; and thus the conference ended.

DRINK AND EMIGRATION.—The Sunday at Home for January contains "Notes of a Journey to the North-West Land," by a lady who went to Canada by the Allan steamer Sardinian. Respecting her fellow-passengers she says:—"There are people of all sorts going out. It is sad to find how many are young men sent off from their homes on account of drink. There surely ought to be some control of ships' companies as to the quantity of stimulants they sell. On both sides of the ship there is far too much drinking. I have succeeded in obtaining some pledges, but wish I could get many more. I think it would not be too much to say that in the steerage and intermediate, among the English-speaking passengers, nine-tenths are leaving home, directly or indirectly, on account of drink, and if they do not land with temperance principles, they will only go into greater temptation, unless indeed they go straight through to the North-Western territory, which is happy enough to have a prohibitory liquor law."

[50]

CONFERENCE ON HOME MISSIONS.

(Concluded from last week.)

THE AFTER-MEETING.

THIS subject came on for discussion at the Conference at Exeter Hall, on Thursday morning, January 4. Rev. W. H. Aitken (chairman) said: I have not yet found out the proper way of conducting an after-meeting; I think it must depend upon circumstances. The Mission preacher, it seems to me, needs to be directly inspired by the Holy Ghost as to the modus operandi. I do not think anyone can learn how to conduct an after-meeting except by experience. It is not a pleasant thing to be told by an oculist that nobody can properly operate in a case of cataract until he has spoilt a basinful of eyes; but it is something similar with regard to our mistakes in the conduct of after-meetings. Our comfort is, that we are in the hands of a gracious Father; so we may hope that many things which have looked like blunders have been used by God as means to success.

You have, in the first place, to consider the character of your audience. Methods suitable enough in the East-end of London, for instance, would not be applicable in the West-end; methods that will reach the very lowest stratum of society will not be available for those who belong to the better class of artisans. Another thing is, the amount of blessing in the Mission. God is sovereign, and He shows his sovereignty in this as well as in other things. You believe the blessing will come, but you do not know how it will come. A careful Mission preacher will watch to see what the impression is—whether the people are so aroused and moved that they are ready to come forward and present themselves, or whether there is only a general interest awakened, and no real break-down. He will also take into account the circumstances of the parish with respect to the presence or the absence of a sufficient staff of Mission workers; for a single Mission preacher can only speak to a limited number of persons himself. He has only, say, three quarters of an hour, and if he has talked to five people in that time, and done them any real good, he has done very well. Sometimes the Mission preacher finds himself only assisted by the clergyman, the curate, and one or two Mission workers. If at this period he were to enter upon work with individuals to a large extent, he might defeat the object of the Mission. Large numbers of persons might be willing to be spoken to, and go away disappointed; and it does great harm for them to have to go away without any direction from anybody. All I want to insist upon is, that in order to do this work as well as it can be done, we need to take a great many things into account. We must proceed in a tentative kind of spirit, and not conclude too hastily that because one method has succeeded admirably in one place it will succeed in another equally well. There are to which I would call attention. To begin with, one ought to be very cautious indeed in anything that scares the people at the beginning of a Mission. You must bring about personal contact with individuals with the utmost possible caution, so that people may not be alarmed, but may have the full benefit of the Mission services. I find it beneficial at the beginning of a Mission to act something after this fashion:—You end your sermon, and invite the people heartily to remain to the after-meeting—"as many of you as can remain." You tell them it is for the purpose of hearing a Gospel address. Then you come down to the aisle and on a level with the congregation. Taking up some particular point you endeavour to illustrate that point—something introductory—and speak for about five or ten minutes. I do not think a greater mistake can be made than to give a second sermon in an after-meeting; it should not be a talking meeting, but a business meeting. Then it is very useful to get the people to kneel in silence for a few moments, and put a few points to them, their sin, their need, a few words of confession, endeavouring to assist them collectively.

A FEW GENERAL PRINCIPLES

This, altogether, will perhaps take twenty-five minutes, and there are but twenty minutes left. Then you address to the congregation such words as these: "I am sure there are some of you who do not feel this matter quite settled; will you not stay behind and settle it?" You say you want to give them further instruction and help, and if they would like to remain they may do so. Out of 300 or 400 at the first meeting perhaps seventy or eighty remain; and you say presently, "Now, if you have no objection, we will endeavour to help you by conversation. If you have any objection to being spoken with, say so, and we will not intrude upon you; but we think it will help you if you will let us talk with you." Then the workers pass quietly round. Perhaps on the first night ten or a dozen souls are reached in this way and brought to a decision. That process may be repeated until the people begin to be thoroughly aroused, and thoroughly in earnest. When you begin to feel that a deep impression has been made, and the people are all eagerness to obtain the blessing you have been preaching about, you can be a little more bold in your operations.

The method I adopt is dependent upon the presence of a coadjutor, and I think the Mission preacher should aim at having a coadjutor. You may not be able to have such an one as I have to aid me in the work; but you may know of some young clergyman who has a strong leaning to Mission work, and who has never had any experience in the work. Write and ask him to come and help you; the probability is that while he is helping you you will be

MANUFACTURING ANOTHER MISSION-PREACHER.

Within the last few months I have had several applications from clergymen who are anxious to be engaged in this work as Missioners pure and simple. In each case when I put to them the question, "Have you had any experience in this work?" they said "No;" consequently we have no idea whether they are fitted for it or not. If these gentlemen had been fortunate enough to be intimate with any Mission preacher, and had been invited to help him in the work, they would have found out whether they had any special gift for it, or whether they were fitted for purely parochial work. If they found they had no gift for it they would have returned home, if not sadder, at any rate wiser, men. If, on the other hand, they found that God used them in this particular branch of spiritual industry, the Mission preacher would be doing a three-fold service—to the Mission, to the man himself, and to the world at large.

Arriving at this point in the Mission, my way is to ask my helper to hold a meeting for believers in some adjacent building. There are two classes of persons who remain to these after-meetings, one class remaining from sympathy. I ask them to withdraw, say to the school-room, where the Assistant Missioner will give an address. Those who desire to hear a short address on the way of salvation, and are anxious to obtain it, I ask to remain in the church. You thus get your congregation weeded out to a certain extent, at any rate. There are some dear old saints who remind me of sleek tabby cats purring by the fire, and whom you cannot clear out. They like it, and they will not go, unless you push them out, head and shoulders.

Then you have before you the particular class of persons you want to benefit, and if you have the right kind of helpers, you can go to the work with a will. After a brief address get them on their knees, and let the choir begin to sing very softly some well-known hymns bearing on the subject in hand, penitential hymns, hymns of experience, &c. Whilst the soft singing is going on the work of the after-meeting can proceed better than where there is absolute silence. When there is perfect stillness people begin to be self-conscious; perhaps they take up their hats and go away. Many a man gets a blessing while the hymn is being sung, without being spoken to. Perhaps he gets hold of a hymn such as "Just as I am, without one plea," and sings it for the first time. I hope and trust that no Mission preacher will ever be disposed to think lightly of personal contact with individuals in the after-meeting. I am persuaded that if the day comes when that is thought lightly of, Missions will have ceased to be the large blessing that they have been in the past.

HOW TO REACH THE UPPER CLASSES.

Rev. J. SHOLTO DOUGLAS spoke upon the question, "Is the after-meeting likely to prove the best way of reaching those in the upper classes of society? If not, how can it be supplemented?" He said: Whilst publicity seems to be the means of bringing out the lower class, who like to speak and tell their experience, in the upper class we have to deal with those whose whole life is lived in comparative seclusion as to spiritual matters. If there is one thing about which they are diffident, it is that. If we have to deal with them, we may perhaps bear in mind the words of Paul, "But privately to them who were of reputation."

Our great object is personal dealing; that never alters. We have to say to ourselves, "What is the class of persons I have to deal with?" "What are their peculiarities?" They may be exceedingly patronising, and at the same time they may be exceedingly ignorant. In the upper classes we have to deal very much with people who probably know little more about their Bibles than many of the converts of the Salvation Army. Here is a worldly family for instance; they have every possible means of developing worldliness. We know that, with a few exceptions, little time is given to Scripture from the time they are boys and girls. The boy goes on to a public school, and as a rule he learns nothing of the Scriptures there. Then he goes on to Cambridge or Oxford; we know how men run about there asking, "Can you tell me a good book to cram up for the examination?" perhaps they are told of "Pinnock's Analysis." They have never had to learn the facts of the Old Testament as they learnt the multiplication table and the alphabet.

In one case at a Cambridge examination Judas was made to live before the Flood, and the conversion of Saul was confounded with the Transfiguration. In the Senate House a man was once asked, "Who was Matthew?" The answer was, "He was a fisherman." In the usual cool way the examiner said, "A fisherman; thank you, sir." "No, sir," said the man, "I think he was a publican." "Thank you, sir," again replied the examiner. At last the student exclaimed, "No, sir; I will stand by the fisherman." In an equally imperturbable manner the examiner said, "Thank you, sir, a fisherman." Many of the best men—I mean men who are going to take good degrees—have great struggles with their Scriptural examinations, and are almost "plucked" in that subject.

I feel thankful for good sound Bible instruction in my early days. We do not know how much has been done by godly nursery-maids who have taught children to pray and to sing hymns; hence the importance of those meetings we have heard spoken about for young domestics. We do not know how much good may have been done by the governess, in connection with Confirmation, for instance. The season of Confirmation is to me an annual Mission; then is the time we get hold of those people most. Confirmation is considered by the parents to be the proper thing; but it is considered by them to be a very improper thing if we succeed in the conversion of their children. Still, they would rather we should go on, although we may be undermining all their wishes with regard to the future of their children. Confirmation time is the best time we ever have with the upper classes. They leave the nursery, and the school-room, and the upper schools, and what have they got? They go forth to the world as ignorant of Bible truth as those people we were talking about yesterday morning.

Now, as regards the After-meeting, I think, as a rule, that is not the way in which we can obtain an entrance into their hearts. Are we therefore not to have Missions? Certainly, we are to have them. Then what are we to do? You may get one or two to remain for the after-meeting, and be spoken with; but there is the feeling of timidity, and the violation of that feeling is often very dangerous. My opinion is that the best way of reaching them is in their own homes. Sometimes people who go to a Mission find fault with the Mission preacher. Well, I do not ask you to defend the preacher, but suppose you say, "He did raise one or two points, did he not? Let us see his reason for it." Then you have the opportunity at once. Or perhaps you say, "You do not seem to understand that man. He did not say that. Will you let me bring him here?" In that way you can probably get the Mission preacher into their own homes. You must then do as circumstances seem to direct; go with certain principles in your mind, and God does not intend to lead you into a mistake.

After-meetings may take place in the morning, but, as a rule, I suppose it is in the evening they take place. Do we get those people out in the evening? We must not make too much of the difficulty of people dining at half-past seven. The fact is, many people will do anything when they are really in earnest. We should not get the lower classes together at eleven in the morning, and so we must try to reach the others, and consider their institutions. We must accept all these things. We must endeavour to use the great channel of privacy. The incumbent of the parish should himself have access to them; in that way the Mission preacher may get in. We must adapt the time for holding services, to their peculiar condition and customs.

WORKERS FOR THE AFTER-MEETING.

Rev. J. STEPHENS spoke on "How to obtain a sufficient supply of competent workers in after-meeting work." In the course of his remarks he said: When a Mission is held in a parish I think it would be well to request the vicar to call a meeting for such workers. A second meeting might take a more conversational tone, in order that any difficulties existing in the minds of the workers may be removed. The prayers should all bear upon the one special need of special grace for this special work. As the time draws near, meetings should be held leading up to full consecration to God; private interviews should be sought with the workers, and a strenuous effort made to have them set on fire by the Holy Ghost, and filled with zeal and devotion, before the Mission commences. At Birmingham, before the Missioner went into the pulpit for the first service, the Vicar said, "I want to tell you that I have had more blessing among my people in preparing for the Mission than I ever expected from the Mission itself." It is a good thing to select a score of texts, bearing on the class of people generally to be found in the after-meetings, and calculated to lead the soul to immediate decision or definite trust. These texts may be printed on cards and given away, or the helpers might get them marked in their Bibles and so become perfectly familiar with them.

It is a great gain if the Missioner can go to the parish beforehand and meet the workers. The next best thing, if the Missioner cannot go to the parish beforehand, is to meet the workers as soon as he can after the Mission has commenced. However much preparation there has been before the Mission this is very important. In Missions where no helpers are to be found, or where the supply falls very far short of the necessity, the Missioner must supply them during the services. Some may be gleaned from the district visitors; but it is very important that truly converted Sunday-school teachers should be drawn into this work. When in prayer or before prayer some such questions as these may be asked: "Do you know of any special obstacle in your own life that hinders you in work for God?" or "Are you sure of your own acceptance with God?" If they say "No," you may say, "Then how are you going to help anxious souls?" I thus found out a lady who had been trusting to baptismal regeneration plus her own good works, and I was able to point her to Christ. I was once very hard pressed from lack of workers, and I sent a young lady of thirteen who had found the Lord to speak to a girl of ten. In a little time she came and said, "Oh, Mr. Stephens, do come and talk to this child, for she says she has got a blessing, and I fear it is not so." I found, however, that the child was right, and afterwards her consistent life in an almost Unitarian family led three to decide for the Lord.

New workers will perhaps feel very shy. The after-meeting at the children's services is a very good place for them to be introduced to the work; after helping in that there will not be much difficulty in getting them into the general after-meeting. The Missioner or his assistant should see the workers fairly engaged before going to his own work. I have known inexperienced workers receive nearly their death-blow by going to some person who is looking about, who is not really anxious, and who is rough or rude when spoken to, perhaps it was some person who is old, and with whom they can do nothing; or, perhaps, some person who tells them she has been converted several times, and has gone back every time. It is a good plan to beckon up a worker, and, just as the worker is nearing you, to say, "I will ask this lady to help you, and will come back presently." By returning, you ascertain the capacities of the worker, and also ensure the inquirer getting real help Kneeling down and praising God with them is a help to both. More than once I have returned to find the worker bathed in tears of joy over some soul truly led to Christ.

Towards the end of the after-meeting, a judicious friend can make the round of the pews, and find out the state of those remaining, and can get those who have come to a decision to leave. This lessens the danger of people leaving the church without a blessing. Of course, there are always a few persons who can only be spoken to by the Missioner himself.

HOW TO AVOID WASTE.

Rev. JOHN HASLAM, speaking upon "How to avoid waste of time and labour, and to ensure the maximum of usefulness along with the minimum of annoyance," said he considered that the Mission might be taken as one continuous after-meeting. He advocated the holding of several services every day to reach the various classes, in order that none might go away without being spoken to if they wished it. He dwelt upon the great importance during Missions of believers being instructed in regard to spiritual life and spiritual activity. A short service for servants should be held in the afternoon; very often in the houses of the rich the only missionaries and testifiers for the truth are the servants, therefore no pains should be spared to get hold of them. Mr. Haslam alluded to the idea prevalent among working-people that in carrying on Mission work the clergy had some hidden design; it was, therefore, most important to be perfectly honest and straightforward, and so plain and distinct in dealing with the people, that all could understand. He strongly urged the inadvisability of having people come to the church in twilight hours to see the Missioner. If people are brought up to the point of real earnestness, they will be willing to come out before the preacher and before the people, and say, "What must I do to be saved?" He also urged the need for those engaged in such work to educate their hearts in real sympathy, so that dealing with them one by one those who are anxious might be led to Jesus.

The speaker thought that if the after-meeting were put off until a quarter-past nine in the evening, it would be comparatively a failure; there were times in the day when all classes could be reached, and the Mission should be a reaping-time all through.

Rev. J. Grundy deprecated the formal way in which boys at public schools had their names put down for confirmation as a matter of course. He dwelt upon the need for specially reaching young men of the upper classes, between school-days and marriage.

Rev. C. J. Atherton stated that he had never had any difficulty in getting efficient workers to deal with inquirers. He met them three or four weeks before the Mission. It was needful that the workers should themselves have intimate communion with God. He suggested that in a large Mission there should be someone appointed to see that the workers had specific work in a special part of the church set apart for those who remained behind. He strongly condemned the practice of several workers dropping upon one person, and considered that it would be a good thing for persons to state that they had been spoken to already. If the workers had not "a grip" in dealing with souls—not being able to bring them right out into true liberty—he considered they should consult the Missioner; in such cases a really competent person should be put on at once. So the rather ineffective workers would be helped by the more effective ones. Speaking on the much debated question as to whether people would come out boldly, he stated that at a recent Mission, a man of the highest position walked up the whole length of the church, saying that he knew he wanted the Lord, and he ought not to be ashamed to go and find Him.

Rev. Dr. S. C. Morgan was of opinion, after having conducted forty or fifty missions, that no definite rule could be given as to conducting after-meetings—it must be "an inspiration at the time." He quoted the saying, "In the sermon you cut off people's heads, and you must not put them on again until you have got them in the after-meeting." He dwelt upon the need of workers, when going to speak to an anxious soul, asking God to give at that moment the message for that particular soul. Without a card from the Mission preacher and the clergyman, nobody should be allowed to work in the after-meeting; each worker, before receiving a card, should be seen personally. He advised the continuance of the after-meeting after the close of the Mission, and strongly advocated the practice of going among the people in their homes, speaking personally to them.

Rev. H. Dening distinguished between after-meetings for saints and after-meetings for sinners. The saints' after-meetings should be for prayer and self-examination before God, to see if there was anything keeping back the blessing. At a Mission in Kingstown the church was partitioned off at the after-meeting, one part being set aside for inquirers. He advised that at after-meetings all who had been spoken to should move to a particular part of the church, so as to ensure that none went away without being spoken to. In his own parish he had a mission service in a mission hall every Sunday evening, after which there was always an after-meeting; some always remained to be spoken with. He mentioned one striking instance of a Swedish sailor who came into port there, and had to leave port with his ship on the Monday; on the Sunday evening he came to the service, remained to the after-meeting, and went away rejoicing in Christ as his Saviour.

Rev. R. W. Aitken cautioned workers against an over-weening desire to see fruit ripened before it could really be expected to come to maturity. This is one of the plague spots of Mission work. Speaking of the lamentable ignorance of people in many Church congregations, he said: You tell them to be saved, or to come to Christ, and they have not the smallest idea what it means. The Mission preacher must come from his pulpit, and not be ashamed to give the very simplest explanation of the meaning of the things he has been speaking about. We must also bear in mind that salvation is a work between God and the soul. If the work could be done without human intervention, we should have the very soundest basis for the future religious life. One great thing at a Mission, therefore, is, if possible, to get souls to God by themselves. The most important point in After-Meetings is to present to the seeking sinner the living Saviour, and get the seeking ones to speak to Christ. Too often in such work the personality of Christ is not sufficiently brought before anxious souls.

Rev. J. H. Lester advocated at the Mission services, after a short sermon, a plain simple explanation of the way of salvation; then the people might be told to go home, and settle the matter with God. At the same time, if they wished to remain longer to be spoken to they might. Numbers of persons he believed went home dissatisfied, came back again, and remained of their own accord. He was of opinion that the soundest conversions were in the cases of those who had found Christ without anybody coming in between. For reaching the upper classes he recommended the holding of a Bible-reading in a private house during the Mission, at which persons should be asked to send in questions in writing. By this means confidence was often established between the missioner and some unconverted inquiring people; in the end they were led into the light and liberty of Christ."

The Chairman, as a means of reaching the upper classes, advised the practice during a Mission of spending some period of the day in the vestry, and announcing that you would be there to speak to anyone.

Rev. E. H. Hopkins spoke of God's order: (1) fact, (2) faith, (3) feeling; the devil always tries to reverse it, and make it (1) feeling, (2) faith, (3) fact. Workers should speak as though they saw the Lord Himself. When inquirers kneel you can often deal with a whole row at once. Get them to step out upon the warrant of God's Word. As to persons coming out boldly and showing their desire for salvation, he expressed his belief that not only could people do it, but that much more of such boldness on the part of those wrought upon by the Holy Spirit would be seen in the future than had been seen in the past.

In the evenings of both days of the Conference, devotional meetings were held, and were seasons of much spiritual refreshing. Mr. Aitken gave a suitable address on each occasion.

SEVENOAKS CONFERENCE.

THE quarterly conference of evangelists and others took place on Friday, the 5th inst., at the Vine Hall, Sevenoaks. These quarterly meetings have been the means of strengthening the hands of many of the Lord's servants who labour more especially in isolated places in Kent, Sussex, and Surrey.

On this occasion the morning was spent in prayer, praise, and exhortation. The afternoon was devoted to the consideration of questions previously written relative to difficult portions of Scripture, methods of work for the Lord, &c. These questions usually form a very helpful service to those assembled. The second part of the afternoon was devoted to the study of the seven parables of Matt. xiii. There was but little variation of judgment on the interpretation of these parables. Space will not allow of the excellent exposition given by Mr. Lake, and subsequent remarks by others.

The Lord's Supper was partaken of in the evening, at which about sixty sat down, and together praised Him "who gave His life a ransom for many."

PASTOR CHINIQUY is expected in London this week. He is well known throughout America and our colonies, as well as in Great Britain, as an eloquent advocate of Temperance, and as a powerful opponent of the errors of the Church of Rome. He has been perhaps the most successful of all modern converts in bringing Roman Catholics to a knowledge of the truth, as held by Protestant communities.

ITALIAN WORKMEN AT NICE.

[BY A CORRESPONDENT.]

I THINK the readers of The Christian may be interested to hear of a new field of work which became accidentally known to me, and to which, so far as I am aware, their attention has not been hitherto directed. Towards the close of a visit made to Nice last spring, a friend who was leaving, asked me to distribute some texts and Epistles among the Italians. I offered some to the servants in my hotel, but found they were mostly Protestants from the north of Italy, Vaudois who had attended Protestant schools, and were well provided with Bibles, &c.

Being almost a stranger in the place, I was puzzled what to do with my portions of Scripture, when one day passing a large building in the neighbourhood where there was a number of workmen employed, I suddenly remembered having heard that they were Italians brought over from the north of Italy on account of their superior workmanship. The next time I passed that way I offered my texts and Testaments, with some trepidation, to one or two of them. I was soon surrounded by a crowd eagerly inquiring what they were about. I explained there was nothing in them Roman Catholics should not read, since it was the Word of God. "Oh!" they exclaimed, "we are not afraid to read them;" and as they pressed forward my supply was soon exhausted, to the disappointment of many, to whom I promised to return with fresh copies.

This little incident impressed me so much that I was encouraged to visit other buildings, with always the same result—a respectful greeting and a rush for my papers. On one occasion a workman pointed out to me the Testament I had before given him, which he had placed behind a stone, adding that he had put it there to read when resting. On further acquaintance with them, and communication with the Italian pastor, I ascertained there were from 5000 to 10,000 Italian workmen in Nice employed in the construction of houses, which is proceeding on a large scale. They are disliked by the Nicors, who have a great jealousy of them. Frequent brawls ensue, too often ending in bloodshed, the Italians, who are very passionate, using their knives freely.

But how can orderly conduct be expected from such a large body of men, among whom, so far, no civilising element had been at work. For at the time I speak of, some nine months ago, absolutely nothing was done. The Italian pastor, M. Muston, having a considerable permanent congregation, could not attend much to the floating population; he was greatly interested in it, but his hands were already full. They seemed, on the whole, indifferent to the Roman Catholic religion, and ripe for Protestant truths. I rejoice to hear that this winter a Mission-room has been opened, and religious instruction is being given there to the men and their families. The children crowd in to such an extent that there is not sufficient space for them. More workers and funds are sorely needed, or this important work must necessarily languish. What can one or two evangelists do among several thousands?

What a grand opportunity of sowing the good seed is at present awaiting any Christian women who will go and work among them? The Italian disposition, although impulsive, is so kindly and pliable, that they make apt pupils; and they have a charm and show gratitude seldom found in our own lower classes. To enlighten them would be in every sense of the word a labour of love. Of course, some knowledge of Italian would be necessary, but given that, sufficient colloquial expression could be easily acquired. What makes the call to English people as regards this town more urgent than that of any other on the Riviera, is the fact that it is principally resorted to by worldly, pleasure-seeking visitors, who have no thought or care for the serious claims of its inhabitants. The Italian pastor, M. Muston, Pension Jourdaln, Passage Gioffredo, Nice, will give further details and thankfully receive help on behalf of the work.

WEEK OF UNITED PRAYER.

PRAISE AND THANKSGIVING.

Address by Rev. ARCHDEACON RICHARDSON,

AT STEINWAY HALL, PORTMAN SQUARE, MONDAY, JAN. 8.

IT is a very blessed privilege to be permitted to meet here and to realise that not only here upon earth, but around the throne of God in heaven, human beings are pouring out songs of praise to God. If we can only get our hearts in tune, ourselves in the right place, and the Lord Jesus Christ exalted to his throne in our hearts, then we can praise God. It seems to me as though the world, at this time, presented a very special aspect, from the standpoint of the throne in heaven. One feels that there is rising up now, all the world over, a wonderful crowd of those who offer to God thanksgivings, and songs of praise, so that the Churches of Christ are all standing conspicuously out in the presence of an ungodly generation to testify whose they are, and whom they serve. It is a very solemn privilege, and we ought to feel that we must look to God, not man—God the Everlasting Father, the sympathising Saviour, and the sanctifying Holy Ghost.

We are gathered together to think upon this subject of praise and thanksgiving. I think we may resolve our thoughts into particular channels. In the first place, we may think of

OUR PERSONAL ESCAPES.

There is the great and glorious deliverance from the burden, the tyranny, and the misery of sin. We ought to come before God to-day with a very thankful feeling, because the Lord Jesus Christ has broken Satan's bondage, and admitted us into the freedom wherewith Christ makes his people free. God says: "Your sins and iniquities will I remember no more." We are "accepted in the Beloved," and are forgiven subjects of God—living in conscious union with the Lord Jesus Christ, as reconciled children in the presence of our Father. But, besides this, how many escapes we have had from things we might have feared. The personal history of each of us will tell of wonderful deliverances from things we scarcely knew to be dangerous; various forms of doubt and difficulty or distress with which the enemy of our souls has been pressing us. All these deliverances and escapes ought to be a special cause for praise and thanksgiving.

Then we ought to thank God also for our experiences. What wonderful things God can teach his people! Possibly He may have taught us wonderful things during this last year. And what strange ways He has of communicating instruction! Some He takes aside into solitary places, and there deals with them. At other times He strikes with chastening hand, and his servants say, "It is good for me that I have been afflicted." Sometimes He admits the soul into more intimate communion and fellowship with Himself, and we can say, "My Father has brought me near to his own bosom;" my experiences there cause me to feel deep gratitude and praise to God." Let us look further into this matter of PERSONAL EXPERIENCES.

What have we learnt during the past year? What has there been of deeper experience in our own spiritual life? For these things let us thank God. What a privilege it is to be one of the Lord's servants, to be identified with the advance of that great enterprise—the extension of the knowledge of the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. It is, indeed, a blessed thing to live in this age of ours, notwithstanding its opposition and worldliness, its tendency to fall away after the things of earth. It is also an age of great blessing, of breaking away the barriers between the friends of Christ. It is a great missionary age, and one in which God is proving that He is mighty in working by the Sword of the Spirit. It is a great thing to be permitted to stand forth and feel that we are consecrated, set apart, given up heart and soul and life and energy to the spreading of that truth which is able to make men wise unto salvation.

Again, we ought to thank God for our expectations; we are called upon largely to expect of God. "As your days, so shall your strength be." There is a deep mine of heavenly wisdom in God's word for us; there are wonderful depths in God's love, there are living waters, soothing, cooling, sustaining, to the thirsty soul. We may drink whenever we are thirsty. Most of all, there is that great crowning blessing, the glorious appearing of our great God and Saviour Jesus Christ. This blessed hope is the brightest thing of all, which beckons us onwards and upwards, which makes us say to our own hearts, "What a high position we fill in this world of ours, and in this weak flesh, to be looking for and hasting unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ."

There are two important points connected with our subject, as to the way in which these feelings may be expressed. Real praise and thanksgiving involve

A SENSE OF OUR UTTER UNWORTHINESS.

The more we can bring self down into the dust, and trample it under our feet, the more we can see God's great grace and glory. Then again, the Lord Jesus must be lifted up on high, triumphant above all things. What a wonderful statement that is, "All power is given unto Me in Heaven and on earth." If there be one thing more than another which startles the soul of the true servant of God, it is the thing which materialises and lowers our ideas of the Saviour whom we love. If we lower our estimate of Him, we lowers the expression of our thanksgiving. Just in proportion as we present Him before our own hearts with a beauty we cannot describe—the Lord Jesus Christ as Head over all things, to his body, the Church, as receiving the homage of angels, as administering the affairs of the universe—in proportion as we come into the very dust, and the Son of God and Son of Man is lifted up, even as God, shall we have a right idea of what true praise and thanksgiving ought to be.

As to the manner of expression, we must remember there is the language of the heart, and also the language of the life. Men should see not only by what we say, but by what we do and are, that we live in an atmosphere of praise to God. We must give ourselves entirely up to our God. Then there is the testimony of the lips. I believe many people feel a difficulty in regard to this; but every true believer is bound to utter a testimony; he must lift up a standard, so that all may see what he is and what he means. There is a wonderful power that goes forth when a humble man dares to face all evil, following in the train of his Divine Master. If in the future you and I can present the whole offering of thanksgiving, and praise, and testimony, before God, in the name of the Lord Jesus, then we shall find that our gratitude has a reality about it, and we shall thank God for the privilege of this week's services.

REASONS FOR THANKSGIVING.

Address by Rev. G. W. OLVER,

AT CENTENARY HALL, BISHOPSGATE, MONDAY, JAN. 8.

THE subject which especially occupies our thoughts to-day is that of "Praise and thanksgiving to God." The recollection of God's mercy to us very often rebukes our fears and chases away doubts that would otherwise perplex and disturb us. I have no doubt that I speak to the consciousness and experience of most who are here, when I say that, very often a Christian soul goes to its wonted place of prayer, cast down, distressed, disheartened, almost in despair; in the very moment when the knees are bent on the old spot, the recollection of all that God has done there in times past is a sufficient answer to every doubt, and chases away every fear. We are here this morning to give thanks to God, not simply for the sake of thanksgiving, but in order that we may encourage ourselves to take hold of the promises of God, through all the succeeding days of the week and the year.

We are invited to-day to think of what God has done for us. It is in itself a great mercy that we are here, permitted to open a new year, as some of us have opened years that have gone, in this place. What a volume of mercy is wrapped up in that simple fact. We are here, in the presence of our God, at the throne of grace, having fellowship with the Father and with his Son, Jesus Christ, our Lord.

INDIVIDUAL MERCIES.

Will you let your thoughts run over the past, and think of the mercies God has bestowed upon you individually: help in time of trouble; guidance in hours of perplexity; light when the darkness has seemed too great to be borne; life when death has seemed to threaten. How abundant the mercies God has bestowed upon us in our own heart life, our individual path. Think of the mercies of your own home; how sorrows have been made bright; how the cup that was so bitter has been made a means of help; how often the threatening danger has been turned aside. Where is the Christian home, whatever may be the record of sorrow that may lie upon its pages here and there, that has not been gladdened and made beautiful during the year that is gone by the presence and fellowship of Jesus?

Let us count up these mercies if we can. Mercies bestowed! And then of sin forgiven; of unfaithfulness pardoned. If we think of duties only half performed, if not utterly neglected, and yet remember that, in the midst of all, the long-suffering and tender mercy of our God has never failed us; how our hearts, if not compelled to be silent by the very sense of shame, will be constrained to utter thanksgiving to God that He yet allows us to be partakers of his grace. We must begin here, in the privacy of our own life, to count up our mercies, in order that we may gather strength to go out and look upon those around us.

But we are asked to-day to thank God for his presence and power all around us. Now, it seems to me if there is one thing for which Christian men may unite to praise the Lord to-day, it is that all around, in this land, and in every land, there is an evidence of the like of which our fathers never saw. Religious questions, deeply affecting the interests of men and their salvation, occupy a place not only in public thought and conversation, a place not merely in religious journals and periodicals. In the ordinary publications of the day they have a prominence which to those who look back upon the history of the past must be truly surprising. Do not let us forget what the Apostle Paul said, "Some indeed preach Christ even of envy and strife; and some also of good will: the one preach Christ of contention, not sincerely, supposing to add affliction to my bonds: but the other of love, knowing that I am set for the defence of the Gospel. What then? notwithstanding, every way, whether in pretence, or in truth, Christ is preached; and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice." All the events around us are constraining men to think and speak concerning Christ and Salvation; and that blessed Spirit who dwells in the midst of men, claiming a redeemed world in the name of the Saviour, is present wherever the truth is spoken—whatever may be the motive with which it is spoken—present there to take hold of that truth and apply it to the conscience of the needy one here, there, and everywhere. And it is in the presence and power of the Holy Spirit using the truth that our confidence must ever be.

RELIGIOUS ACTIVITY

Blessed be the Lord God of our fathers that at this day in our midst, in our country, and throughout the world, there is this intense activity in connection with the religion of Jesus Christ. And what a mercy that you and I are permitted to have any part in it. While Christ sits in patience on the throne, waiting until the world is brought to his feet, you and I are allowed to help Him in securing the accomplishment of his heart's desire—the salvation of the world. How we ought to prize the opportunity and the privilege! How careful we should be that our whole character, bearing, and practice everywhere, should give force to the appeals which we make.

NATIONAL BLESSINGS.

There are a thousand topics which are present to our minds at such a meeting as this. We are asked to thank God for his blessing upon the nations of the earth; that He has, in his goodness, preserved peace amongst the nations of Europe. This, in itself, is of no small import to us, as a people, politically, or as a Christian nation. I hope we shall not forget to thank God at this season, and to praise Him that, though peace was disturbed (when we were brought into conflict, all Christian hearts deplored it, as they always will deplore war, however it may arise), that He of his great mercy, and in a most wondrous manner, speedily put an end to the conflict. The intervention of the power of God, so marked, as I believe, may well call forth from us our praise to-day.

Whilst we dwell upon these things and upon the abundant blessings that the Lord has poured upon us individually, and as families, and collectively, let our faith be quickened to take hold of Him. Praise is valuable to God, because it is of worth to us. Our praise cannot make much difference to Him. We cannot add to his glory; but He loves to have our praise when that praise quickens us to claim yet larger blessings from Him.

Now, I do not hesitate to say that if we were to lose this opportunity this morning; if we failed to come to his footstool in the true spirit in which we are invited to come, the power of the after days of the week would be so much lessened. If we are drawn nigh by our gratitude to Him so that we are brought into close communion of thanksgiving, the greatness of his goodness, the inexhaustibleness of his grace, will enable us to ask largely and not to falter. For every prayer and for every gathering there will be abundant blessing from the beginning to the end of the week. So let us praise, that our praise may kindle into prayer; and then let us pray, that our prayer may, in itself, become a hymn of thanksgiving to God.

REMARKS BY MR. W. MORLEY, CHAIRMAN.

Let me wish you a happy and prosperous New Year. One hardly knows how to commence good wishes for a new year such as we are entering upon; but I think there is one idea that it will be as well for us to take away, if we can, in the power and comfort of God's Holy Spirit.

If we know the mind of God I think we shall get on much more happily and easily than if we have doubts of what the mind of God is towards us. I read in the Psalms, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits?" There is evidently a soul there wishing to do something for God out of gratitude to Him; and I fancy, as I look around me, that half the spasmodic efforts arise from not knowing what God would have us to do. The answer to that is, "I will receive the cup of salvation." God's mind toward each one of us is that we receive, receive, receive. Keep receiving out of the fulness which He has given to us. Christ is God's perfect gift. Whoever receives Jesus is perfect, wanting nothing. But we are foolish, ignorant, and unholy; and it strikes me that every morning we ought to receive from Jesus out of his fulness, so as really to thank God out of our hearts for what He is unto us.

It is the great device of the enemy to turn our thoughts inside. Now, in my flesh dwelleth no good thing, and never will, and never can; but God has made Jesus unto me, and to you, wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption, and in Him we are complete. If every morning we could start with being perfect in Jesus, though utterly failing in ourselves, we should give glory to God every moment of our lives.

LOVE, COURAGE, AND LIFE.

Address by Rev. CHARLES H. SPURGEON,

AT METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE, JANUARY 8.

A MEETING for united prayer, in accordance with the invitation issued to Christians throughout the world, was held on Thursday evening last, at the Metropolitan Tabernacle. The Rev. C. H. Spurgeon presided, and was assisted by the Revs. Alfred Strawbridge, James Spurgeon, B. Senior, Burman Cassin, D. A. Herschell, G. W. McCree, John McKenny, and Mr. Cox. There was a large attendance of Christians of all denominations, a great many ministers in South London occupying the platform. At the conclusion of the devotional service, Mr. Spurgeon delivered the following address:—

I am expected this evening, according to the programme, to give an address, but I do not think I shall. This praying and talking together are better than any one person occupying the time. But I do wish to say how very heartily I invited men to come here, and how thankful I am to them that they came—that they came at half-past five to tea—and that we had a good time. I hope that another year we shall have all the brethren round about, without exception, if God so pleases, and that, knowing each other better, and engaging in one common service, we may be more helpful to one another.

We want beyond all things that God should be glorified by the salvation of men through faith in Jesus Christ. I have come to this, that I think all things beside this to be a puff of wind, a handful of dust only fit to be flung into men's eyes. There is nothing worth our lingering for here except that we may glorify God. I do not know that there is any other reason for our going to heaven but that, and certainly no other reason for our stopping out of it. All time is lost that is not spent for that—all money wasted, all talents lost and misused; everything is vanity of vanities except it be used to glorify God by the salvation of the sons of men. When you have been in the sickroom sometimes where you saw your father, your mother, your wife die, you felt when you came downstairs again, as if the man that drove the waggon, and the other man who carried the basket, and all the others that you saw busy in the streets were all foolish, for they were not thinking of the fact that they must die. I have felt that many times when I have seen men dying. Well now, the impression is connected with a mistake, for these affairs of life must be attended to; but at the bottom of it there is a great truth. It is so—that the weightiest concern of men is so to live as they shall wish to have lived when they come to die; and the only true form of life is that which we could wish to prolong beyond this present life, and continue in eternity, world without end. And what is that? What can that be but the glorifying of God? That we feel is the only thing worthy of our desires here.

Now about this bringing of men to Christ; I never could adopt the theory that the world would not be converted to Christ. I feel within my soul it must be. The other thought is not worthy of God. He that made it shall new-make it yet. The mastery of it He will win back from the arch-traitor. Here, where He seemed to be defeated, He shall assuredly win the victory. I do believe that as certainly as ever sin has overgrown this earth, so shall righteousness cover it from its lowest place to its highest, and the Lord God shall not have ended the mighty drama of the world's history until all along the line the "Hallelujah" shall rise, and God omnipotent shall reign. But when is it coming? I know not. But this I know, that there have been many things to hinder it; and I want to say one or two things that will help it. The first is

WHEN THE CHURCH OF GOD SHALL ALL GET TOGETHER.

If there were no victories to an army, and I heard that that army was divided with internecine strife, I should understand it. If a nation were not conquered by an invading army, and I heard that that army had many leaders, and that sometimes they drew their swords fiercely upon one another, I should understand that its victories could not be very rapid. You know how it was with the Crusaders, who had swept everything before them when they fought the Paynim, but were themselves divided when they began to question who should wear this crown, or who should take and be the master of that citadel, or who should lead that department of the army: only when they were one they were invincible. And it is so with the Church of God. It is no use our sitting down and crying, and saying it ought to be different. The proper way is for every one of us to do all we can to make it different.

I have heard men say there is no love among Christians. Well, as a general rule, the brother that says that is himself one of those whose conduct goes to prove it—generally so. He does not see any love among Christians because he has not got any himself. But it is very curious how you shall find another who rejoices that there is so much of it, because he has so much in his own heart. I believe that the permanent unity of the Church will come, by God's grace, through our all getting nearer to the truth. Every man that advances truth advances what in the end will be real unity; and every time I correct a mistake of mine, every time my brother prays God that he may be set right if he is wrong, or that I may be set right if I am wrong, every time we get nearer the Statute Book of the Master, we get nearer to one another. You see we get away by degrees and break up.

I believe that we have been attempting each one of us to get together, but somehow or other we do not do it very often. Perhaps we shall one of these days, by God's grace, succeed. First pure, then peaceable; first the truth, then unity in the truth. But that would not be enough. The next is, for every one of us in everybody that has got anything of Christ in him. If you see a spot, a bit of Christ in a man, say, "My Master is there." "I do not know why my Master should choose such a man." You will perhaps say, "I should not." But then you will have to think, "I wonder why He should choose me?" for are we not all like the good old woman, who was sure she was elected before she was born, or God would never have elected her afterwards? Well, we must all feel that as God has an infinite sovereignty in choosing the unworthy, when we see that He has done it we are not to be picking away at the unworthiness, but to rejoice in the choice that the Lord our God has made. Let us be more ready to see what is right in a man than to see what is wrong in him. Then let us begin to feel more love for one another than we have ever done. It is a small place for a soul to live in, this (although my friend Mr. Cassin and myself have both a little more room than some of you); I mean, inside one's own ribs; there is not enough accommodation for a soul, I fear. It is too tight a fit. If the soul grows and enlarges itself it wants ampler quarters. It begins to love; and the more you love another the more you become one with him; and if it be difficult at first to love, it soon becomes exceedingly easy and an intense delight. Wherever you go, dear friends, and meet God's people, love them. Wherever you are, and can say a word for unity's sake, take care to say it; and may all that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity be found more and more manifest in Him!

TO TRY AND SEE ALL THAT IS OF CHRIST

But next, in order to win this great battle there is wanted, what I trust we are receiving—

A GREAT DEAL MORE COURAGE.

If you heard that an army was deficient in courage you would not wonder that it was also deficient in victories. Looking back a little while ago, I do think that our Christianity was a cowed thing. People were afraid. Those objectors—those wonderful objectors, those learned men—all the anxiety was to answer them and preach at them. That showed a great deal of fear, because there was not one of them, nor the whole of them together, worth a farthing rushlight wasted on them. I feel there is no strength in them, and that we can afford to go on our way leaving them alone. But there was also a fear of doing anything out of the usual way You remember the horror of great darkness that fell on the souls of some at the idea of the Gospel being preached in the Surrey Music-hall; I have at home a good many tracts upon whether it was right to do it, and some of them are decidedly of opinion that to preach the Gospel anywhere but in the parish church or the meeting-house was a wrong thing. We remember well when the idea of preaching in the street was horrible to some people, and if they had heard that someone had done so—especially if any clergyman of the Church of England had done so—they would have said: "He will be in Bedlam before long. It is a mark of insanity." The very things that the Master did, and that his servants have done time out of mind, were looked upon as dreadful.

But somehow or other the Church of God is not cowed now. At this present time there is more courage among Christians. They can speak one to another, and they can venture to speak good sense too. I do not say they all can, but there are a great many more do so now than used to do it, and courage is infectious, like cowardice; just as when one runs the whole runs, so when one stands the whole lot stands. And thus it will be with us; we shall have regiments that will stand fire, and we shall see the victory. But you are afraid when you get with the ungodly. Will you please to recollect that the Spirit of God dwells in those that trust Him, and that the Spirit of God is someone high and mighty and exceeding full of majesty. You will be surprised if you will just venture to place yourselves into what you think the den of lions, and speak in that humble way of yours, that broken way, that unpolished way, just about Christ—you will be surprised to find what power there is about you. You have not any idea of it, dear friends—I mean you good people—sisters that are so very retiring, and you good brother that is so exceedingly reticent. You have no idea what power is in you if you would trust in God. And when we have once become conscious both of our own feebleness and the divine strength with which we are girded, then I am persuaded we shall go on to victory. Fear them not; the Lord has delivered them into your hands. Only go forward with confidence, and it matters not whether they be infidels, blasphemers, or drunkards; advance in the conquering name of Jesus with the doctrine of the Cross on your lips, and you shall overcome them by the Blood of the Lamb. If we can get over these two difficulties—want of union and want of courage—we shall do well.

And then, dear friends, there has to some extent been

A WANT OF LIFE AMONG US, and I am not sure but that is our great deficiency now. You know I have often used this figure. You take out a number of men from the Brompton Hospital—from the consumptive ward; you want, say, to build a railway, and there is a cutting to be made. You say, "There are the picks, the shovels, the barrows, and everything else. Now, my good fellows, go to work and make this cutting. There is that tunnel to be made." When do you think the railway will be finished? Well, not till all these men are dead. See, they are so tender about the lungs they cannot work above ten minutes before they are worn out. They have no stamina in them. It is hard work for them to do very little. Well, we will send them back to their beds, dear souls. But here are some great brawny fellows who can eat a pound of beefsteak at a meal. Now then, come along. There are some two or three hundred of you. Here are the picks and the barrows; set to work. And they make the tunnel almost while you are talking about it. There the embankments spring up, and here comes the train—get out of the way. They have done it all directly. What is the difference between the two sorts of men? The difference lay in this, that the one set had no stamina, and the other had, and they could do the work. Well now, we must have life—plenty of it, and then the work will surely be done. Don't you know it is not good works that make a man—no, it is the good man that makes the good works, and it is not the strong work that makes the strong man, it is the strong man that does the strong work. It cannot come out of you till it is first got into you. Do you see it? Then before we talk about doing anything for Christ, the thing is for Christ to do everything for us, and for us to know the full power of what He can do. For when a notable miracle is wrought upon a man, then that is the man with Christ in him, who shall do notable miracles for Christ. First, faith in the Lord and in the power of his might, and then the works get to be done.

LIFE MORE ABUNDANTLY,

Imagine now, with regard to Egypt, if our Government had sent out all the weak, poor, puny creatures that could be found, to fight the Egyptians; I am afraid we should not have seen many of them return. They would have been left lying on the Egyptian sands, or drowned in the Nile, had our Government done anything of the kind. Here they come marching on. There, is a captain with a lame leg. There, is another with a broken arm. See that one wheezing and groaning, and another with a bad headache. And all manner of diseases are amongst the troops. The Egyptians say, "What care we for them?" But affairs take another colour when they see our great fellows coming along. Those Highland regiments, for example. You can fancy you hear one of the Mahommedans saying, "Look at that Highland regiment marching along with their great big bare legs. Allah! God is great, and some of his creatures are amazingly powerful;" and he takes to his own legs and runs. And so, depend upon it, when the world sees true Christians come forth, they will not only say "God is great, and many of his servants powerful," but they will be made to feel it. But that is the thing we must have—inward stamina, divine life, and that is only to be got, dear friends, by living in communion with God—in real communion with God, not in talking about it and wishing we had got it, but in getting right up to God, and living and dwelling in Him till you are bathed in spiritual power, and saturated with it as Gideon's fleece was with the dew of heaven. May that be the portion of every one of you to-night, and all the rest of this year, and right on till years shall end, when we shall see the face of the King in his beauty.

HUMILIATION AND CONFESSION.

Address by Rev. J. FULLER GOOCH,

At Steinway Hall, Tuesday, Jan. 9.

WE are called this morning to two solemn acts of a serious and heart-searching kind, spoken of as "humiliation and confession;" and these feelings are to be excited in our hearts and minds by a general outlook on the Church and on the world in its present condition. There is a sense in which the spirit of humiliation and the spirit of confession should always be found characterising the children of God; although, at the same time, God, in his infinite grace and love to us in Christ Jesus, has given us so sure a standing on the merits of Christ, that our humiliation and confession need not take the form of depression and gloom, but may be associated with confidence and joy in the sense that we are justified and accepted of God. Yet it is sometimes difficult for us to avoid the spirit of depression. Sometimes, when we are engaged in Christian work, those signs of the times which the Church of Christ presents to view are very saddening and depressing. There is a difficulty in drawing Christians together in anything like true and close spiritual union. It is also difficult to avoid in our Church life the spirit of worldliness, which is spoken of in our subject to-day. Then, again, there is an increasing difficulty in finding a disposition to cling to the old verities of the Cross and Passion of our Lord—his Resurrection and Ascension, and his Coming again.

ENCOURAGEMENTS.

These and other considerations often weigh heavily on Christian workers. And yet our blessed Lord is at our side; the Divine Spirit is in our hearts, if we are truly the blood-bought ones of God. And when we turn away from the depressing outlook around us, and look unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith, however humbled we may be, we can yet rejoice and lift up our hearts, because even in the midst of the sins and the abounding evil we see signs that the day of our redemption draweth nigh. David had two maxims; he said: "My sin is ever before me." It will be well if it is so with us. Let us never ignore the fact that sin dwells in our fallen nature. But David says in another place: "I have set the Lord alway before me." And as we look away from our sin unto the Lord Jesus, the propitiation for our sins, then we get comfort, and strength, and joy.

We ought, however, as Christians, when we look around us on the Church, the nation, and the world, to be humbled, as Jehoshaphat, the king of Judah, was humbled in his day, when he saw the spiritual and moral condition of the people over whom he ruled. We know how Jehoshaphat humbled himself and made confession to God. The speaker then read 2 Chron. xxix. from verse 4 to verse 7, remarking in connection with the putting out of the lamps, "Oh, in how many places, even in the midst of the Churches of Christ, the lamps of truth are being put out!" After reading to the end of verse 11, he continued: Is not this just the attitude we should take to-day, and throughout this year? If it is in our hearts to be humbled by what we see and to make confession of what we see, shall it not be in our hearts to make a fresh covenant with the Lord our God. Oh, if we could only realise more fully in our Christian life and practice our true relationship to the Lord Jesus, and our oneness with him, that realisation would serve to put us right, and keep us right in relation to all the demands made upon us as to the signs of the times.

RESPONSIBILITIES.

We are each one of us responsible just in pro portion to our own personal influence. We are apt, perhaps, to be guided somewhat by human standards, or by the force of the associations in which we may be placed. What we need is this: to realise that One is my Lord and Master, and One only, my ruler, and my guide. We are reminded to-day that there are divisions among the Churches; how shall we cure them? Surely by faithfulness to our Lord's teaching about the spiritual nature and character of his Church. Christian union leads us all to one centre and to one head; and while we are faithful to the Lord Jesus, as the one spiritual head, we shall not be troubled by minor differences of organisation and of opinion which exist among Christians. We shall be occupied with Christ; we shall feel that whatever a man's position is ecclesiastically, if he is faithful to Christ he is a brother. We have only to do with him as he is in Christ, and as Christ is in him. While we recognise these differences we want to see Christ, the head of each one and the head of all, and to love one another, and be bound one to another in Christ.

As to worldliness, faithfulness to Christ would soon cure that. Jesus said, "They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." "How would Christ act, and think, and speak in circumstances like these?" should be our daily inquiry. We speak of atheism and infidelity. Let us remember that Christ is the Truth. Faithfulness to Christ will take us away from the thoughts of men; we shall not be unsettled by the thoughts of scientists, or unbelieving men of high intellect. I would, like Mary, sit at the feet of Jesus, with a child-like mind, learning only of Him.

We look abroad among the nations, and we see our need of faithfulness to Christ. What is our duty in regard to intemperance and other great evils? I would take my politics simply from this: as Christ was in the world, as He looked at political matters, so must I. The soul must realise that all things exist for the glory of God, and are to be so regarded.

In these times we are called upon to get near Christ, to realise more that we are stewards for Him, sentinels placed at the post of duty for Him, servants and witnesses called to shine for Him, feeling that his coming draweth nigh. It is for us to live and testify, and so draw together with all who are Christ's, that when He comes we may be found ready, with our loins girded, our staff in our hand, and our lights burning, like unto men that wait for their Lord. And the more humble we are, the deeper our confession is; the more we look up to Him who hung upon the accursed tree, but who is now exalted to the glory at the Father's right hand, the more shall we be enabled to take our stand as true servants of God, and the more shall we be faithful unto our Lord.

THE VALUE OF TRUE CONFESSION.

Address by Rev. J. T. BRISCOE,

At Centenary Hall, Tuesday, January 9.

I AM anxious to deal this morning, not so much with the syllabus given in the programme of this week, as with the grand subject of Humiliation and Confession. On looking at the themes of yesterday and to-day I was struck with the contrast, although we shall find upon reflection that there is more correspondence than contrast. For, unless I mistake "Humiliation and Confession," they represent the seed out of which grow praise and thanksgiving. In proportion to our repentance and confession is the depth of our joy; so that if we truly humble ourselves under the mighty hand of God to-day, this will represent a state of spiritual prosperity for which we dared scarcely hope just now.

The reason why we need to humble ourselves before God lies in the fact that the human element is mingled with the Divine in the Christian life. One of our hymns has these two lines:—

> Accept what is thine own,
> And pardon what is ours.

This sentiment we all heartily endorse. The human element represents weakness and sin; we carry it into all that we attempt for the Lord. We are not fully developed, nor can we be in this life. Then there is the corruption incidental to this sinful state. And yet the human element is that through which the Divine works. The human is the earthen vessel, out of which the Divine shines. The divinity is the light within. The human element is in rebellion against the Divine, and too often impairs our Christian work.

Some time ago an attack was made upon the Liturgy of the Church of England on the ground that men, by confessing their sins, Sunday after Sunday, acknowledged that they made no progress in Christian life. I am speaking on unsectarian lines. I have nothing to say on the subject of the Liturgy; but such a supposition is to my mind incorrect. The more progress we make the less we appear to make; that is to say, the more progress we make, the more conscious we are of failure. This conviction of sin is not the same as when first we were converted. We find out far more evil in our hearts after conversion. The discovery and mortification represent real progress in the divine life; hence there is continual need of confession. Suppose it were possible, and it is, to live without wilful and determined sin, what becomes of our omissions and imperfections in our duties? What becomes of the failures in much that we attempt? All this is incidental to the human element, and because of this there is need of humiliation and confession before God.

MOTIVES FOR CONFESSION.

To come to a second topic, and one nearer to our minds—let us consider what the motive for humiliation and confession should be. I believe, and I suppose you do, that when God converts a sinner He appeals to the lower motive of self-love. Hence we have the first question so often asked, "What must I do to be saved?" which is purely selfish. But though God begins with the lower motive, He does not end there. We begin with the fear of hell, but go on to the hope of heaven. Though, subsequently, our motive be purified, is there one who dares to say that his motive is absolutely pure? Shall we not, upon a strict analysis, find so much self-love within as to render our service very imperfect, and needing to be presented through Christ the great High Priest of our profession?

It seems that the Christian passes through three stages in the divine life. He begins by renouncing rebellion; this is succeeded by submission. But this is not the highest stage. After submission comes acquiescence in the will of God. It is one thing to have our will in a parallel line with God's, so that there shall be no opposition to the Divine will; but it is another thing to have our will fused into the Divine, and for us so thoroughly to acquiesce in the Divine will as to be able to say, as our Master said, "Not my will, but thine be done," our human will being swallowed up in the Divine, and comprehended in it.

Then, if we further consider our Christian experience, we shall find much ground for humiliation. Have we not a high ideal before us which we have not realised? I suppose that every Christian, while below, is able to say with the Apostle: "Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect." I do not know what your views are with regard to Christian faith, but my own impression is that if we could rise to a clear apprehension of our possibilities in Christ Jesus, we should never talk of the days of miracles having passed. It appears to me that our faith is faulty. If we could trust God to do more, He would never be below the occasion. When a man can take hold of the arm that moves the world, as George Müller has done, never let us say that the days of miracles are gone.

Then we have much cause for humiliation when we take into account what we might have and have not done; and what we have done imperfectly. How much more faith, love, and endurance might we have thrown into our Christian efforts! How often have we been governed by the fear of man or the hope of securing human approbation! How frequently, instead of having a single eye to our Master's glory, have we had another object in view! Therefore, in whatever direction we look, we ought to be filled with shame and humiliation in consequence of our failures.

Let us inquire into the character of our humiliation and confession. I have the impression that the humiliation of the Christian before God is another thing from that of the penitent sinner before he has received forgiveness through the Atonement. Understand me; we all have sins to confess and deplore, but when a Christian man comes before God to confess and deplore, he does not come as he did to receive pardon at the first. When we come to Jesus Christ we come with something like servility in our nature, and with such a question, "Can such a sinner as I be saved?" But that question is answered within us, once and for all, when we receive Christ as our Saviour. I do not say that we may always have the joy of faith. Alas! the hymn sung at the commencement of this service too often represents our experience:—

> Where is the blessedness I knew,
> When first I saw the Lord?
> Where is the soul-refreshing view
> Of Jesus and his Word?

But backsliding is not apostasy; the loss of a sense of God's love is not the loss of his love. With God there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning; and when we prostrate ourselves before Him we do not come as slaves but as sons—disobedient sons, if you will, but still as sons. It seems to me that the essence of all acceptable repentance lies in

OUR RECOGNITION OF SONSHIP.

If I repent as a slave, because I fear the lash, it is not acceptable to God; but if I repent because I have wounded the heart of Infinite Love, it gives poignancy and blessedness to my grief.

Let us come loyally to God to-day. I do not understand wilful disloyalty to God. Can you understand it? I do not want to understand it. I do not want to ask whether it is possible; I would rather not know. I will not go as near as I can to the edge of the precipice. I will rather keep away. I take it that our hearts are loyal to the Lord, that we have been moulded anew in Jesus Christ, and have received the Atonement; and now, in humbling ourselves, we are resolved in his strength to struggle against sin.

In the book written by Thomas à Kempis, called "The Imitation of Christ," I find the following sentiment, which, though written by a Roman Catholic, I endorse: "As long as thy soul is struggling against sin, thou canst never be conquered by sin." True, we may have failed in the struggle; we may be in despondency, but we are not in despair. We are spared; we have the Gospel; we have the Cross; we have the indwelling of God's Spirit; and though the odds are terribly against us, yet "If God be for us who can be against us?" One man with Jesus Christ at his back may, like Athanasius, defy the world, when he exclaimed, Athanasius contra mundum. Because Christ is against the world, we shall be victorious over the world, the flesh, and the devil. We shall conquer by the power of our Master, and my earnest desire is that the prayers of this week may have the effect, not only of humbling, but of exalting us. May we see our sin on the one hand, and God's great Atonement on the other. May we see our weakness on the one hand, and God's strength on the other. May we see how we deserve hell on the one hand; and, on the other, may we see the very gate of heaven opened to our faith.

THE WORK OF THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE.

Address by Mr. A. J. ARNOLD, Secretary,

At Streatham Hill Congregational Church, Jan. 9.

THOUGH I hold that prayer-meetings should be chiefly devoted to prayer, you may be interested in my reporting a few facts in connection with the Evangelical Alliance. This is only one of the works in which the Evangelical Alliance is engaged, and upon which God has set the seal of his blessing in the past. At the present time, while we are met at Streatham-hill, Christians in all parts of the civilised world are now uniting with us at the Throne of Grace, in the same confession of sin, praise to God, prayer for the Churches, prayer for our families, prayer for the nations, and prayer for Foreign Missions. All through this week, throughout the length and breadth of the wide world, Christians are found gathered together, and every year in increasing numbers. This, I think, is an encouraging fact, and though we meet here only a few to-night, yet it is most delightful to think that the few are merged and embraced in the many hundreds of thousands who are gathered in the same cause.

If I had time I might give you one or two delightful instances of the way in which this blessed season of prayer is received in different parts. Let me only give one. In the Rarotonga group of Islands in the South Seas, where every year the Week of Prayer is observed, there the hundreds and thousands of converted heathens gather together in large numbers every day in the week and unite with us in prayer. The missionary reports to us that these converted heathen seemed to realise from the first time when they commenced this observance of the Week of Prayer that they were brethren—that they were members of the one great Catholic Universal Church. This is the grand truth that our Evangelical Alliance has sought for so many years past to bring before Christian people.

CHRISTIAN UNITY.

Do we expect the world to be brought to Christ? Are we doing all we can to bring the world to Christ? We are reminded by the subject of confession of the lack of brotherly love amongst Christians of the Church of Christ. Until the Church realises its responsibility in this direction and endeavours to live up to that closing prayer of our Lord's when He prayed that his people might be one, and that the world might believe—until we live up to that standard, and realise our responsibility in that direction, we cannot expect the whole world to be brought to Christ. God is blessing the efforts made to unite his people, and to make manifest to the world that they are united.

We have many interesting proofs of the growth of this Union. Nearly 3000 people assembled last night in the Metropolitan Tabernacle, presided over by Mr. Spurgeon, having on one side of him a Church of England clergyman, and behind him two other Church of England clergymen: on the other side of him Wesleyan Methodists, Primitive Methodists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists—all uniting as one body having but one object—to glorify Christ—forgetting for the time being that they were members of separate and distinct organisations, remembering and manifesting before the people that they were members of the One Body of Christ. This is the spirit which we want more of; it is a pleasing fact to find that the cause of Christian union is growing to this extent, that such a manifestation was possible in the Metropolitan Tabernacle last night, when we had addresses by one or two Church of England clergymen and other ministers.

THERE IS ANOTHER STRIKING FACT

in connection with the Week of Prayer, and that is its universality. I have spoken of the great number of countries in which the Week of Prayer is being observed, but I could not even give you a list of the languages in which the prayers are being offered. Does it matter what the language is in which we approach the Throne of Grace? We pray to-night in English, but throughout the Continent the languages employed are French, German, Italian, Spanish, Dutch, Danish, Swedish, Russian. And then, out in the far wider world, there are Christians away in the mountains of Persia, praying in the languages prevalent there, in India, China, and Japan. In all the countries where Christian missionaries are to be found there the people are gathered together, and in the language of the people prayer is being lifted up.

Whilst we are gathered here, comparatively a few, we should bear in mind, for our encouragement, that we do not represent the whole of South London to-night. It is a pleasing record of the success of the Week of Prayer that every year we find there is an increasing number of series of services. In and around London this week, there are no less than thirty distinct series of services. Whilst we are meeting here there is another series at Tooting, another at Clapham, another in the Norwood direction, and so on all around London. Therefore we may say that though we are a few here, and though God has promised the blessing to the few, yet we have the many at our back; and there is a vast number of people just at this time who are lifting up their hearts to God in unison with us. This is one of the grandest works of the Evangelical Alliance.

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY.

There is just another to which I may refer. The Alliance has always made it a great object to secure and to bring relief to the oppressed and persecuted Christians throughout the world. Wherever they are to be found the Evangelical Alliance uses its power (and God has given it power) for their relief, well knowing of course that it can do nothing except as God gives the blessing. Just now we have taken two important steps with reference to the Christians in Egypt. We have appealed to the Khedive of that country to give to his Christian subjects who are employed by Government, the rest of the Sabbath day, of which they were now deprived. We ask Christians everywhere to join in prayer that God would so incline the heart of the ruler of that country as that these Christian subjects of his shall have the Lord's Day as a day of rest.

Another subject in connection with Egypt is that of religious liberty, which is allowed according to the laws of that country, but it is possible, if care be not taken, that those who have enjoyed it hitherto may lose it. The Evangelical Alliance has petitioned Her Majesty's Government, which has now so large a share in the re-organisation of Egypt, to see that in all the arrangements that may be made by Lord Dufferin at Cairo, there may be secured for the whole of the subjects of the Khedive full religious liberty. We ask you to remember these two points, that you may thus strengthen the hands of the Alliance in this work—a work which is not for any one part of the Church of Christ, but refers to the whole of those who call Christ their Saviour.

THE KINGDOM IN THE FAMILY.

By Rev. G. STRINGER ROWE,

AT STEINWAY HALL, WEDNESDAY, JAN. 10.

AFTER the manner taught us by our Lord, we continually pray, "Thy kingdom come." It is well in this, as in every other prayer, that we should distinctly set before ourselves what we mean by the petition we present. What do we expect it will be when that prayer is fully answered? It has been answered from the very first moment that a believing disciple took it from the lips of the Lord, and offered it at the mercy-seat. I remember a good plain Christian working-man saying, "God stacks our prayers, and threshes them out in his own good time."

The Lord is answering this prayer. But what will it be when it is fully answered? Take the Gospel words of New Testament prophecy: it will be when "the kingdoms of this world shall have become the kingdom of our God and of his Christ"—when, I take it, all the kingdoms of darkness will have passed away, and all powers whatever amongst men shall be exercised, and shall be obeyed according to the will of God.

THE LIMITS OF PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY.

When we think of that glorious consummation, and then look at the present state of things, our faith is sometimes appalled, and there is great danger lest our sense of responsibility should become paralysed by the tremendous facts of wickedness that meet us on every side. This consummation seems to us terribly far off, and yet, at the same time, we are bound to admit as Christian disciples, that we have each one a personal responsibility in regard to this matter. How far does the responsibility extend? Well, surely thus far: The great mass that we look to see affected is made up of units. I am responsible, to begin with, that my unit should be given up to God. We begin there, but we must not stop there. What are we doing with our personal influence? We cannot take it by itself. There is all the difference between my personal influence by itself, and my personal influence as taken up into God's work, that there was between the five loaves and the two fishes in the disciple's basket, and the same food when it was put into the hands of Jesus. Our responsibility extends as far as our personal influence taken possession of and used by the grace of God.

Now here, again, we are always in danger of losing the practical use of this truth, bewildered by the sense of the work that is to be done. You see what I am coming to; the more we do in the circle that is to be affected, the better we appreciate our influence in regard to it. As citizens of the State—our unit seems nothing; for the State looks so great and so enormous. Yet we are each responsible that so far as in us lies we will contribute to the righteousness of the State; that we will see to it, so far as our personal influence extends, that our legislation shall never be for the promotion of vice; that it shall not be for impurity or intemperance, or in any sort make "provision for the flesh to fulfil the lusts thereof." Then we come to the municipal life; but here again in this vast London we lose ourselves. It is almost like being in the great world itself.

But we come to the family, where this influence is clearly appreciated; we have already had our minds directed towards this, by passages from the Old and New Testament. The Lord God puts his hand upon the kingdom in the family, and claims it for Himself. And just as in regard to the multitudes about me, so I am responsible that my household shall, as a unit of households, be a godly one, and a pattern to others, and so that the prayer that daily ascends shall be consistently followed out: "Within these walls, O Lord, where I have empire given to me on thy behalf, thy kingdom come; I bind myself to see to it, so far as in me lies, that it shall be established, and that all things shall be done here according to thy will!"

THE CHURCH IN THE HOUSE.

Now, are we prepared to take this stand and to accept all that it means? I believe that we are. As we knelt together at the mercy-seat we were reminded of those apostolic words in which the Apostle recognises what was evidently a familiar thing. Paul speaks about the Church, both in the house of Aquilla and Priscilla at Rome, and in the house of Philemon at Colosse. That refers, no doubt, to a state of things in which it was impossible for Christians to assemble in public for their common worship, so they gathered together in united households. We have got a long way beyond that, but have we entirely gained in our progress? Have we not lost something as well as gained something? Is there not loss in having the Church something distinct from the household? May we not, and ought we not, to strive to do all we can to come back to that ideal, though we cannot, and should not, wish to have it carried out as it was in those days? Yet let us see that our greater privileges do not extinguish this domestic churchism where the whole household is framed on sanctuary rules and great temple principles.

In speaking thus of the family, let us not leave out the servants. They are as integral a part of the family as any other of its members. The Lord recognised this in his earliest legislation: "Thy man-servant and thy maid-servant, and the stranger that is within thy gates." Servants and visitors, everybody that crosses my threshold is to know this—not to be set forth ostentatiously, but very clearly. Let us keep in remembrance those who serve in our homes.

We have already joined in the earnest prayer that our children may be saved from the perils that are in the world, the perils of an evil literature, and all the other evils that surround them. Now, how shall we behave ourselves herein, with a true wisdom? Am I to be so strict as to insist that nothing shall be done in my house but what is of a purely religious character? Am I not to make some concessions? Am I not to guard against the danger that I shall disgust the young people growing up into life, with religion, by making its claims too strict and stringent? Here I cannot but express in a parenthesis that the only dimness that comes over my gladness in seeing this assembly is to see so very few young people.

IT IS A FACT WELL WORTH PONDERING.

Much harm has been done by an over-rigorous and peremptory making of the yoke of purity, and truth, and unworldliness, intolerable. I have seen most lamentable results from that; but, on the other hand, what is the evil you have to shun? You say that these children are growing up without vital religion, and therefore they have no taste for that which is purely spiritual and Christian; that we must make concessions to them in our household arrangements, in the entertainments we give, and in many other ways: we must do all that, lest we should disgust them and turn them aside. Very well—assume that that is a danger that ought to be avoided. I grant that it is to a certain extent, but what is the danger on the other side? That you train up these young people to regard religion as an elastic and accommodating thing that can be made to hold anything, and that is capable of making concessions at every point. How much there is to be done upon this point—how much to be thought over and prayed over!

I want, by God's grace, to secure this, that if it should ever come to pass that any child of mine should wander into the ways of dissoluteness, and profligacy, and wickedness, he shall never be able to say, "The path that led me here began at my father's hearthstone." I sat beside a friend in an assembly of Christian people a little while ago—I will not enter into particulars—and he said, "Is this just the right sort of thing? Is it not the half-way house on the wrong road?" Let us take care that we avoid setting up in our homes anything that is the half-way house on the wrong road. I believe that if our prayers go from a spirit which thus directly recognises our duty in the matter, we shall act more intelligently and more according to the will of God. May God save in all our homes, and may we have grace so to live, that no members of these homes shall ever have to say that we hindered them in seeking after God.

Mr. Donald Matheson, Chairman, in the course of some remarks, alluded to the fact that Mdlle. Louise Michel was holding a course of lectures in the hall every evening; speaking of the sympathy which all Christians would feel in her endeavours to aid the poor suffering women of Paris, he asked all to pray that God would lead Mdlle. Michel to a knowledge of the truth. What a great blessing it would be to Paris and to France if this highly gifted woman were living and working for Christ.

A STRONGHOLD IN THE FAMILY.

Address by Rev. A. SANDISON,

At Centenary Hall, Wednesday, Jan. 10.

THE subject of prayer to-day is "Our Families;" but the relationships in our families are so mixed and manifold that I have felt, while an apostle could write grand things for all time in respect to our relationships in the family, it would be impossible for me to say anything worth your while to listen to if I wandered over all those relationships. If we allow our eyes to glance over the pages of a book we glean next to nothing of its contents; but if we fix them on a single sentence, we may be enabled to extract its meaning.

I purpose to speak on the relations between the children of the family and the grown folks. While God has put this into my heart, I trust that He will put it into your hearts to pray especially for the children, and that we who are parents may be to them what He designs us to be. I hardly thought so much of speaking of the reciprocal duties in families as of the privileges of parents in possessing children. We look to the duties and not often enough to the privileges which come to us from these God-sent messengers and teachers, as truly they are.

The children always come to one in connection with Ps. viii. 2, quoted by our Lord in the Temple, and which is so often mis-read, because the true meaning is only in the margin, viz., "Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings thou hast founded a stronghold." David was speaking of real and not ideal children; nor yet of such children as are now-a-days spoiled through false conventionalities. Sometimes I almost fear, when I see the families of my friends, that there is a conspiracy abroad in the world to stamp true childhood out of them. Children are so un-child-like in many homes—so vain, so pampered, and dressed and attended to in so unwise a fashion, that it is something rare to meet with a child who is indeed a child.

If God has given them to be a stronghold for us, then we must notice how we use them. He has founded a stronghold, not built it. Then we have to build; and being built, we have to keep it from the enemy. Of what use will it be to us if it be in the power of the adversary? The foe can only be kept out by garrisoning it with the army of the Kingdom.

We think of the children as incomplete. That is a vain dream. Childhood is as complete as manhood or old age. It is as complete and necessary a part of life as any other stage of man's progression from the cradle to the grave. Our Lord himself increased in wisdom and in stature. Paul says that he was a child, and thought, and felt, and expressed himself as such; then when he became a man he put away childish things. But there are some who are never suffered to become children; and so they come back again to childish things. The man thus reared, instead of having power to overcome the wicked one, betakes himself to the follies of the world. The woman makes a doll of herself, or her children, because, it seems to me, her dolls were taken away too soon. Have you not noticed that nothing grows very great which has not had a true childhood? To everything that God means should be great, both in the natural world and with man, He gives a true childhood. If this be denied to children, it seems to me that they avenge themselves when they come to what ought to be full and mature life.

THE CHILDREN ARE NOT INCOMPLETE;

they are only immature. We mistake about children when we suppose them incomplete. An incomplete thing is a house with walls erected, but lacking the handiwork of the carpenter; a ship on the stocks; or a picture where the heads of the characters are finished but the drapery and surroundings not filled in. These are incomplete. But a rose-bud is not incomplete; it is as complete as the full-blown rose. An apple-blossom is as complete as the ripe apple. The unfledged nestling, downy and callow thing, is not incomplete; it is only immature. Incomplete things advance towards completeness from the outside; and they are stationary until you proceed to complete them; but immature things advance by imperceptible progression towards maturity. Leave off building a house or a ship, and stop painting a picture, and there they remain; but feathers will come to the nestling, and the rose-bud will open up into the full-blown flower.

So with the child: its immaturity will advance to maturity, and it behoves parents to watch, lest, in progression, their tendrils do not cling to that which is injurious, and thus mar their true maturity of being. It is a trite saying that children are quick enough at everything but learning, but it seems to me that some are saved only through their dulness. There is much difference between children. A child does not care to do what it is told; but it always does what it is taught. All children copy what they see going on around them; they imitate what they hear. A child's life advances to a right or wrong maturity according to the material we lay to its hands.

WHAT WE TELL AND WHAT WE TEACH

Children are like plants, to be trained up. But sometimes, like Topsy, they are dragged up. Our homes are the soil in which our children take root. If you find that a plant is not thriving, you do not beat the plant; you stir up and improve the soil; or you let it have more water or sunshine. If our child is not maturing as it ought, we must look to our family life, to the soil in which it is rooting itself. Let us make that richer, and stir up our own lives rather than lay the blame on our children. Let us see that they get more of the sunshine of love; thus will they advance toward the healthful completeness of their being. That healthful completeness means that they are, as David said, a stronghold founded by God for us.

As we are suffering their lives to be built up, so we are suffering to rise up in our families what may be a perpetual fortress whereunto we may continually resort and find comfort. But no child can be a comfort to the family if we have permitted the evil one to get possession of the growing life. What good, I ask, is a fortress to a country if it be in the hands of the enemy? How can a child be a stronghold to us, to keep us from the enemy and the avenger, if we have allowed the enemy and the avenger to take up their abode in the heart of that child? You must wake up to keep out the evil one. He will surely come in; and unless we can fill the life of the child with holy impulses, with all those spiritual means which are the very army of the living God, to keep that child safe for God and for ourselves, we shall have no stronghold to which to resort, as a resting-place from the wear and tear of city strife, or the anxieties and responsibilities of domestic life.

There is no way to get darkness out of a room save by letting the light come in; and there is no way to keep evil out of the heart save by bringing the spirit of the child into living and loving contact with the eternal God.

Some have no comfort because they have not found their way to the fortress. The way to the fortress should be found not when the enemy is in the land. The way ought to be so well known that access can be obtained though the foe surround and darkness prevail. We ought to know the password at the utterance of which the heart, the door of the fortress, opens.

IN TIME OF PEACE,

Have you never gone into a room in which children were getting great delight from their artless play, and, banging the door, immediately the entrance to the fortress was shut. Their gay gambols were stopped, and their lively prattle was hushed into whispers? The cares of the children interrupt all our peace; and if we suffer cares to get into their hearts we can derive no comfort from our loved ones.

Aye, friends; but most of us have lived long enough to find that there is a disquiet, a dispeace, an enemy, from which we cannot find refuge in the children. They open the Eastern windows, they look towards the sun, they help, they brighten, they comfort us; but they cannot do that which we require in the hour of our spirit's extremest need. So, because the enemy and the avenger were too strong, He founded that other fortress when the Son of God took upon Himself our flesh, the building of which was finished on Calvary, and was for the salvation of all people. To enter this refuge no password is needed, save that look which the Israelites might have cast upon the brazen serpent in the wilderness; for whosoever cometh to Him He will in no wise cast out. The Lord Christ, the Child of Bethlehem, is the fortress that alone can be our stay when the enemy cometh in upon us like a flood. Though we avail ourselves of all God's help in the children, yet we will never lose sight of this, that there is a time of need coming upon everyone of us wherein the children and the grown folks and the aged saints cannot help us, wherein only Christ can be our Refuge and Rock of Defence.

THE RELIGIOUS NURTURE OF THE YOUNG.

Address by Rev. Dr. McEWAN,

At Clapham-road Presbyterian Church, Wednesday, Jan. 10.

IT is no small work that the Evangelical Alliance has accomplished in thus moving all Christians to open the mouth as one mouth, and to unite their hearts as one heart, in presenting prayer to the Throne of Grace during this week. It is not expected that I should say much on this occasion. We are met rather for speaking to God than speaking to each other; yet it is thought fitting that I should say a few words. Let me direct my thoughts to the subject that is especially intended to be made a theme of prayer this evening.

The subject has been well chosen, and is of grea importance. It embraces all the varied influences which come in contact with the young life of our country, and which are really to determine what the young and rising generation are to become intellectually, morally, and spiritually. Such a subject must command our interest and awaken our deepest sympathy; it must stir all Christian hearts. It ought to quicken us into intense earnestness at the Throne of Grace, in pleading for a blessing, when we reflect how much the present and future welfare of our country depends upon the answer that we obtain to such prayer. I can only touch on one or two of the prominent agencies that bear directly and practically on the religious life of the young; but there is one that has been much alluded to to-night in prayer, which holds in this respect the relation of the root to the tree, or even of the soil to the root—a subject to which too much importance cannot be attached. I refer to the all-potent and

PARAMOUNT INFLUENCE OF HOME.

Nothing can be more beautifully suggestive than the words which God addressed to Abraham, or the eulogy which He accorded to him: "Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation . . . for I know him that he will command his children and his household after him." The words imply, not only that the piety of the parents is the best way of securing piety in the children, but also that faith and piety in the family is the surest way to develop strength and moral excellence and enduring prosperity in a nation.

THE FAMILY LIFE OF ENGLAND,

I have always thought, is one of the grandest features of our national character. From that of the Queen's palace down to the humblest peasant's cot, it has been the means of imparting great blessing to our country. It has done much, under the blessing of God, to maintain purity, peace, and good order amongst our people, and we ought to be exceedingly jealous, I think, in these days, of all fashions and popular follies which tend in any degree to weaken the family tie, or to give it a lower place or a weaker influence than that which it has so long held. There are few parents, I fear, who are fully alive to the greatness of the responsibility which rests upon them in relation to the training of their children practically in religion, and also to the greatness of the power which God has committed to them to wield to the wisest ends for this purpose. A child, everyone knows, receives truth without a glimpse of evidence or even of the necessary connection which exists betwixt it and the evidence which supports it. The child receives truth as truth simply without a question. Therefore, the power of the parent at this stage of the child's life is almost absolute. The power of one finite mind over another can hardly be more complete than in the case of the power which a parent's mind exercises over the mind of his child.

And while this power lies at the basis of all parental authority and control, it is a power encompassed with the most solemn responsibilities. It tells on the child's whole future, and it goes down with the child even to the grave. The scenes of home, and the lessons learned there, when the mind first begins to open to the influences of the world without, are engraven on the memory of a man in characters that can never be erased. It is this power that renders so important. What does that mean? It means, I think, three things. It means family worship, the acknowledgment of God in the family in some form, either in the reading of the word, or the singing of praise, or prayer, or, best of all, by all three combined, as a commentator observes. And then, in parental instruction and Christian example. No one values more highly than I do the great agency of modern times, the Sunday-school; well may we pray that God may direct all those who take part in so good a work; but much as I value these schools, and profoundly as I appreciate the mighty influence they have exerted, ever since they were formed, for the good of our country, yet there is no school of spiritual instruction, in my opinion, so precious or so potent as that of the Christian home or the teaching of parents by their own fireside.

RELIGION IN FAMILIES

Yet mere home teaching, however good, cannot be real or lasting unless it is accompanied by

CHRISTIAN, PRACTICAL EXAMPLE.

A parent may teach his child to say his prayers, but if that child never sees his own father kneeling at the throne of grace, he is very apt to feel as the little boy who said he wished he were a man, for then he would be like his father, and would not need to pray at all! The character and example of Christian parents give weight to all their words and to their whole being, and in no sphere is the maxim more true that example goes before precept. A truly pious Christian home—what in this world can be so precious? There is nothing to equal it, nothing that can be a substitute for it. There is something in its very atmosphere which you cannot define, which its members breathe almost unconsciously, but which is constantly telling on their whole character and disposition, and forming them for future lives of usefulness and virtue. How many men of the highest eminence trace that eminence to a mother's teaching, to a father's counsel, and to their parents' prayers! To a man toiling along the rough path of life, struggling with its temptations, and battling with its cares, I know nothing so precious and sacred as the hallowed memory of godly parents, or the memory of a pious home. Oh, how it clings to him amidst all his varied experiences in life, long after that home, with all its varied circle of friends, may have passed away! The parents that graced and gladdened it may be in their graves; sisters and brothers may be no more; seas and continents may even separate him from the very locality where it stood, but the memory of it is with him still as true as ever, and as fragrant as ever, like an abiding and sacred presence!

We have been told of guardian angels, who are said to watch over the objects of their care all through life, and stand by them even in death, soothing their spirits and ministering to them amidst the dissolution of the flesh; and happy a father and mother would feel themselves to be could they but call down some such angel, bright and pure, to be with their child in every temptation, to help him in every conflict, and go with him to the very verge of life on earth. They cannot do that, but they will do something quite equal to this in influence and in power, if they send him forth into the world carrying in his heart the memory of a pious home. Often it will stand like in the moment of temptation and danger. Often it will hold him back by its restraining influence, like an unseen hand, from doing evil. Even though he wander, like the prodigal, away from the paths of virtue, yet it will follow him there into the far country, whispering hope and beckoning him to return; and amidst desolation itself it will hover over him like a thing of brightness pointing him to the Father's house above, and to the home there of unclouded day.

A GUARDIAN ANGEL BY HIS SIDE

Now, another branch of the subject of prayer that deserves most serious attention is one that cannot be too much remembered. I refer to the responsible position of those who are in our great schools and universities. We live in an age of great intellectual activity, and never perhaps was there a time when men of intellect have had more influence in moulding the opinions and directing the religious convictions of our young men. There is a mistaken, though very common, impression abroad in our country, that men of science are against religion or against the Scripture. You may be aware that during one of the meetings of the Association for the Promotion of Science more than 600 men of the highest scientific eminence signed a statement of their faith in the great leading truths and doctrines of religion. We may well pray, however, that God would keep our men of intellect, as they are called, from the snare and curse of intellectual pride, and from the conceit that so often tempts some to fall into infidelity. These men occupy towards society at large the relation of the mountains to the valleys. They should be sending down streams of healthful influence, but when they are irreligious they wholly fail to do so. "I have been striving to gain the highest seat in the literary world, but now I would willingly resign it for the lowest seat in heaven," said an eminent writer on his death-bed.

THE INSTRUCTORS OF OUR YOUTH

There is another thing I will just notice. I refer to

YOUNG MEN AND YOUNG WOMEN ENGAGED IN BUSINESS.

A world of good has been done by the organising of young men and young women in Christian Associations, and more recently by the institution of homes and boarding-houses, on reasonable terms and conducted on Christian principles. These agencies deserve our sympathy and prayer, that they may be a blessing in the future, as they have been in the past. A great responsibility rests, however, with employers, and if it be true, as is stated, that upwards of 200,000 shop people are employed from eighty to ninety hours per week—about fourteen hours per day—it is high time that a Christian community should let its voice be heard crying upon such treatment. I wish that some of the kindness and consideration which men show to their horses and hounds were just extended to the young people under their care. Let us be faithful to God and God will be faithful to us; but let us be unfaithful, and farewell to all our national prosperity and our national happiness and renown. God has blessed us in the past, greatly blessed us, and He will bless still if we seek the blessing, if we seek that righteousness which exalteth a nation and shun that sin which is a reproach to any people.

"SHAME!"

GOD'S LIVING TEMPLE.

Address by Rev. Dr. DONALD FRASER,

AT STEINWAY HALL, THURSDAY, JAN. 11.

THERE is a great comprehensiveness in the list of subjects given to us to-day. In thinking how we are to embrace it all, it seems to me that we are asked to pray for the evangelising of the whole Church of God; and I do not know that I can get any part of Scripture to bring all these subjects before us better than a passage which I hope you all know well, from 1 Cor. iii. There Paul, with that admirable boldness which he often shows in his illustrations, describes the whole Church of God as "one living Temple." It is a favourite thought of his. Anything that is dead, he says, is a stone. He takes that peculiarly dead thing and figures it as all alive, and a whole Temple all alive, all the stones alive, the foundation-stone especially alive, and all the builders alive—life all through.

Our dispensation to speak properly and directly does not give the title of sanctuary or Temple of God to a house made with hands, but gives it to the people of God, the Church of God which is the habitation of God through the Spirit. It is essential to remember that this rests upon a Stone, a Living Stone, which God Himself has laid, which is Christ Jesus. We do not even rest upon the institutions which Christ appointed, or upon the deep and far-reaching words that He spoke, but upon Himself, a living, loving, faithful friend and Lord. And in what life? Not in the life which He received when He was born of the Virgin Mary. That human life was extinguished on the Cross. They who date the Church from the Incarnation are not so correct as they who date it from the Resurrection. That life, I say, was extinguished on the Cross. That Stone which was disallowed of the builders was cast down into the dust of death. He whom men rejected God accepted. Whom men cast down God raised up, and He who was crucified and put to death and slain, was raised in life. This life emanates from Him, diffuses itself over the whole living Temple, which lives because He who is the chief Foundation Stone lives.

A tried Stone too; and, therefore, precious to us—wide enough, and deep enough, and strong enough to bear anything, however great the strain, however vast the superstructure. We read of terrible things happening when

FOUNDATIONS GIVE WAY.

This Foundation can never be moved. Oh! if He is not alive we are not alive, and our hopes are vain; we are, as the apostle says, of all men most miserable, because we are befooled. If this Stone is not perfect, if there can be any flaw found in Him, then our salvation is nothing, for our Christian comfort is vain. But He is approved of God. Nothing is perfect but what is approved of God; nothing is stable which is not of God.

Paul says here, "I have laid the foundation." How did Paul lay the foundation if God laid it? He laid it by instructing the people of Corinth about the death and resurrection of the Lord Jesus. It is only in that sense that human builders can lay the foundation. Let us pray that all builders may themselves be alive and may know how to show the people where is the great foundation and source of life in Jesus Christ—believing upon Him in simplicity. We need also to pray that the builders may not have any foolish jealousies amongst themselves. What said Paul? "One of them says: I am of Paul, and another of Apollos." Eloquent Apollos went to Corinth after Paul, who found the people had been so foolish as to make parties, as they have been, permit me to say, foolish ever since. One said, "I like Paul better than Apollos," and another said the reverse. "I belong to Paul," "I to Apollos." But Paul says, "I belong to you and so does my brother Apollos, and we all belong to Jesus Christ." Paul was not jealous of Apollos because people made a party about him. He says at the end of that epistle, "My brother Apollos will come back to see you." So far from not wishing them to see him, he says, "You shall see him when he shall have a convenient time; and I am right glad he is coming." There is an example for us all. Anybody who knew the truth was welcome to enter into the labours of Paul, and to build; but with this proviso, that the man who came should not presume to shift the foundation. That must not be touched. That could not be improved, and, hence, the builder must take good care what he builds thereupon.

What are we to do? To gather bare, dead stones that God may make them alive; and not only gather them, but build them together, to edify them in faith and in love one towards another. By what means and by what power? By the same means and by the same power that we have now. There is no improvement in these things to be got or wanted. The means—by the exposition of the unchanging word of the Lord, and the exposition and application of it to the people with tenderness, with pointedness, with comprehensiveness, with fearlessness, and with constant fidelity. But many a man has got some hold of the Word who can do very little with it for the building up of the Church, because there is the power required, for which we have been praying.

THE POWER IS OF GOD.

"Except the Lord build the house they labour in vain that build it." Paul built, Apollos built, others built, but you are not Paul's building. Do you remember how he says, "You are God's building." You are not of any man's Church; if you are of a real Church, you are all God's Church. Even when we speak of a Church, of a district, or a combination of Churches, we speak of the Church in an inferior manner. Any Church, every Church that is a Church, is God's Church, and into that Church we are placed and kept and instructed by God's Spirit. How are we to take the dead stones and quicken them together with Christ? It is God that has the power, not only to grant us the remission of our sins, but to give us that repentance unto life which is the very transfusion into us of the spiritual vitality and eternal life which is in Jesus Christ, God's dear Son.

What are the objects of this Building? I think they are three—

HOLINESS, UNITY, VARIETY.

Above all things, holiness. "Holiness becometh thine house, O Lord, for ever." That building which Solomon erected, which was called the Temple of God, was a holy and beautiful house, but it had only an external beauty. That was the time of external appointments. When it was defiled by the intrusion of heathen images and altars into its courts it still was a beautiful house. It cannot be so with the Church of God. Spoil its holiness, corrupt its character, and all its beauty is departed.

How is that beauty of holiness produced? By the abiding and indwelling spirit of holiness, and not otherwise. Not by a message from the Spirit, not by the "influence of the Spirit." I am happy to say that that phrase is nearly going out of fashion. I have been longing for it to go out of fashion nearly all my life, because it has led the people to a very imperfect idea of what the relationship of the Holy Ghost is to the Church upon the earth. Our Saviour is in heaven. Our Comforter is with the Church on earth.

When we ask for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit we do not mean to ask that the Spirit may come now, as if He had never come. What we mean is that there should be a more powerful operation of the Holy Ghost in all parts of the Church. Now the Spirit is given to us as the Spirit of holiness. Do you remember how Christ said, talking about the Temple, "I tell you that in this place there is One greater than the Temple." Wherever the Temple of the Lord is, and wherever two or three are gathered in his name, there is One greater. Wherever the people of the Lord are called with a holy calling, and come together, there is One, even God's Holy Spirit, who is present there, and who is greater than the Church.

I find many people dreadfully afraid about the prospects of the Church. They seem to think that Jesus Christ has abdicated, and that the Holy Spirit has lost his power. Oh! do not let us so dishonour God. There is often great concern about the cause of truth: "What if truth should be swallowed up of error?" There has always been such a danger in the past; but the security that truth will not be swallowed up of error is that

THE HOLY SPIRIT OF TRUTH ABIDES.

How do we know that the Church will not be swallowed up of sorrow? Because the Spirit, the Comforter, is given. What prevents the Church being destroyed by the formalism that has done her so much harm? The presence of the Spirit of grace and supplication. What is it that produces and sustains the Holy Church in the midst of the antagonistic influences that are around her? It is the presence of the Spirit of holiness. It concerns his glory to have his habitation made pure, and while the Church is holy in her calling of God, she must be made holy in her faith and practice.

There is no little talk of consecration in these days. For my part, I do not believe a man can "consecrate" himself at all; and I do not much care about the language of self-consecration. I would as soon tell a man to save himself or justify himself as to consecrate himself. You cannot do it: it is God's work. You may dedicate yourself, devote yourself, submit yourself, commit yourself unto the Lord, but it is the Lord that consecrates the whole building, and every part of the building, making it holy. Thus it is that the King's daughter is all glorious within.

Then unity comes amongst the subjects—unity not made by man. We don't want negotiations. We don't want legislation by anybody to make unity in the Church of God—it is all made by God himself, and cannot be otherwise made. You are by one Spirit baptized into one Body. While people are talking about this body and the other body, and the religious bodies, do not let your minds be dispersed amongst these ideas of separate bodies. There is the one Body and the one Temple of the Lord, and so it is esteemed by Him. What we have to do is to feel that more and recognise it more; and without finding fault with others, do well ourselves. Let us try to worship and work together, and sympathise and help each other, and eat of that bread and drink of that cup together, not as partisans and as witnesses for "isms," but as fellow Christians who are sharers in the same Christ, guided by the same Spirit, and comforted by the hope of the same salvation.

For we must ever recognise the fact that in the one Temple there is variety. The Lord knows how to build his house, and He must be allowed to build it. Man is always making mistakes, but the Lord is somehow or other raising a house, compactly built together. I remember how I used to go and look at those Law Courts that have lately been opened. I thought, "What muddle and confusion are here! It will never be in shape or have any unity." But the architect knew what he was about; and so the Great Builder of all knows how to bring order out of all our confusion.

WE MUST HAVE PATIENCE WITH OUR DIVERSITIES.

There are different rooms and different wings and different administrations. But if these are all pervaded by the faith and love of Christ, there will be room for different people in different places. Paul says, "I saw pillars in the Church of Jerusalem." In all those ancient temples they had a good many pillars. They had no arches. They had vertical pillars supporting entablatures, because at that time the arch was unknown, and so I see men who are supports and pillars of the truth. Everybody cannot be a pillar, but everybody must be a stone somewhere in the temple, and must be content to be placed where God puts him. It is a great honour to be put even into a little corner behind a window or behind a tower. It is a great honour to be put anywhere where you can show forth the glory of Christ and add in any little measure to the strength and efficiency of that glorious Building which is to be compactly built together.

There is a very solemn warning in the Scripture which we should take to heart. I think it reads "defiled" in our authorised version, but it is corrected in the new one. "If any man destroy the temple of God him will God destroy, for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." We must take care that while speaking about the building up of the temple we do not ourselves do something to mar it, for you may mar it without destroying it. Oh! how we may spoil it by anything at variance with its holiness, or with unity and brotherly kindness among the people of God. We may build it up of incongruous materials—dust, dross, and stubble.

People say, "How nice it is to have no rules at all in the Church. Let everybody be admitted. Make no distinction. How nice and charitable and comprehensive it is." What did the Apostle say: Man's work should be tried, and if he is saved he is saved only as by fire. But if we put in incongruous materials, and exercise a false liberalism, we may do the building much harm, though we cannot touch the foundations. We may sadly spoil the building by bringing the tables of the money changers into the Courts of the Lord's house. That old story is so true still, and the need of the whip of small cords is as great as ever to drive out the selfishness and the worldliness from the Courts of the Temple—anything that brings unholy practices and doctrines into the Church. Hence those sharp words in the latter part of the New Testament about the Nicolaitanes and those that held the doctrine of Balaam. All people of corrupted faith and life are especially displeasing to the Lord, for they destroy the holiness of the Temple, which is its chief attraction.

Then disunion is spoiling the unity and harmony of the Church. Oh! what a lot of people have had pickaxes in the wall: disputers—ecclesiastical disputers. They seem to have been going about with pickaxes, striking into the wall; persons who are, as old Richard Baxter said, "of a separating humour." The longer I live the less I like them. All separatism is pride, and all uncharitable disunion is just the striking of an unhallowed pickaxe into the mortar, weakening the wall and threatening to bring down the holy Temple. May God give us the spirit of wisdom in all these things.

CHRIST'S INTERCESSION FOR HIS CHURCH.

Address by Rev. C. CAMPE,

At Centenary Hall, Thursday, Jan. 11.

IN offering a few simple thoughts on the beautiful intercessory prayer of our Lord (John xvii.), I think the first thought which will strike every one of us is the deeply interesting circumstances under which it was offered. These circumstances seem to me to bring out in a very remarkable and striking manner the evidence of the love of the Lord Jesus Christ for his own chosen people, for his own Church. Sometimes, and in times like the present, when we see how prevalent error is in all branches and sections of the Christian Church, many believers are wont to tremble. And truly, as we look around us, there are many causes for misgiving. But, inasmuch as this chapter reveals to us the everlasting love of Christ for his Church, and when we know that He has almighty power, we have abundant cause for comfort and consolation.

This chapter teaches us that the Lord Jesus Christ, who is the great Head of the Church, loves his Church a great deal better than we can love it; consequently, among all that is conflicting and distracting, He will take care of her and keep her unto the end. "Having loved his own that are in the world, He loved them unto the end." As I have said, the circumstances under which this prayer was offered disclose to us the love of Jesus for his Church. Think of the time when our Lord prayed this beautiful prayer. It was just before his crucifixion and death; just before He was about to drain to the very dregs the bitter cup that his heavenly Father had put into his hand for our salvation. And yet, with all this before Him, with Gethsemane's agony before Him, with the desertion of his disciples before Him, and, above all, with that trying hour before Him, when his Heavenly Father was to hide his face—with all this before Him, if we examine this prayer, we scarcely find a single petition on the part of the Lord for Himself. All his petitions were for his people—that they might be kept, sanctified, preserved in the truth; and afterwards made partakers of his own glory in the world to come. So that we may truly say, Christ's first thoughts were for his people; his last thoughts were for his people; and his only thoughts were for his people—that they might be kept, guided, and preserved, even to the end.

Then let us think of the part we, as Christ's disciples, have in this prayer. For whom did our Lord pray? He prayed not only for the little band of disciples gathered around Him then. What gracious words they are which He introduces into this prayer when He says, "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on Me through their word." So that He intercedes here for all his followers, to the end of time. If you and I are united to the Lord Jesus Christ by the bond of a living faith, we have as deep and as intense an interest in this intercession of the Lord Jesus Christ as had Peter, James, and John. We are still borne on the breast-plate of our Great High Priest, who intercedes for us in the Holy of Holies above.

Then it seems to me that another thought is suggested by this beautiful intercessory prayer on behalf of his people; teaching us that real spiritual prayer is for the communication of his richest blessings to his people. Let us consider our Lord's precious promise, "Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name I will do it." What a promise! If we have all of us, this day, come up to this meeting in the faith of that promise, and in the faith of the Promiser, I am quite sure we shall not go away without a blessing. "Whatsoever ye shall ask." What more can you, or I, or any other guilty, needy, helpless sinner want than such a promise from the lips of such a Saviour. Let us not limit the Saviour's promises. I may be speaking to some who have a longing desire for themselves or for some one who, or thing which, may be upon their minds. Yet, in a spirit of unbelief you say, "But God will not give me that." Jesus says, "Whatsoever;" and when Jesus says it, He means it. We have no right to limit it to this, that, or the other person, or thing.

GOD'S APPOINTED CHANNEL

Then, again, in looking through this beautiful prayer, notice the satisfaction which our Lord himself expresses with reference to his work when he says, "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do." What a blessed truth it is! If we turn to the 40th Psalm we find that our Saviour thus speaks: "I delight to do thy will, O my God; yea, thy law is within my heart." There we have Him in the councils of eternity, undertaking the work which the Father gave him to do. Here, in this beautiful prayer, we have Him showing his intense satisfaction: "I have finished the work which Thou gavest Me to do."

On that finished work rests the whole of his Church, in whose behalf we are met together to implore the Divine blessing to-day. The work of Christ is a finished work. He came to obey the law on his people's behalf. Of Him, and Him alone, it can be said that He travelled the whole circuit of God's law; and in his flight through that circuit He never faltered, nor failed in spirit, word, or deed. On that finished work the whole Church of the living God rests. It is by the proclamation of that finished work, accompanied by the power of the Holy Spirit, that God's people are gathered out of this evil world, and brought into the fold of the Church of Christ.

IN THE WORLD, BUT NOT OF IT.

There is one thought more. You will find, as you look through the chapter, this beautiful verse, and a very suggestive verse it is: "I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil." I dare say that some Christians sometimes ask in their own minds why God does not take his people to Himself as soon as He has converted them. We may be quite sure that there is no unwillingness on the part of God to take his children home. I believe that no father desires to have his children under his own roof so much as God desires to have his people with Him, and to have his whole family in heaven. But there are very practical reasons why God's people should remain here below. One reason is, that they may be a blessing to the world and the Church. Believers are said to be "the light of the world" and "the salt of the earth." The ungodly little know what they owe to the earnest, believing prayers of God's Church. Therefore, if sometimes, you and I, with a feeling of impatience, are led to wish that God would take us out of this world, let us remember that such a desire is not a mark of spirituality. It is no such thing.

In one of Daniel Moore's sermons it is said that such a desire is "the thought of suicide clothed in the language of the Gospel." So it is. We are here to shine as lights for God. We are kept here, too, for the exercise of the graces of patience, meekness, gentleness, and a variety of other Christian virtues.

God also keeps us in the world because we have a work to do for Him. I hope there will not be one in this room who will go to heaven without taking—if I may use the expression—some soul with him. Fathers! think of this in reference to your children; husbands, think of it in reference to your wives; friends, think of it in reference to your friends. You are left here to be witnesses for Jesus; to tell to others that they may be brought to the Saviour whom you love, so that you may be the means, in the hands of God, of assisting to gather out of the world the number of his elect, and increasing his Kingdom and the numbers of his Church below.

The old, old story, of Jesus and his love;

LOVE FOR THE UNIVERSAL CHURCH.

Address by Dr. CHARLES STANFORD,

At Denmark-place Chapel, Camberwell, Jan. 11.

I SUPPOSE I must say a little, but I am sorry to have to speak so as to interrupt the flow of your thoughts up to God. However, I hope I shall not do that. You must excuse me if I wander in thought a little. I shall try to keep to the point, and to help you to keep to the point. I think the point is this: the thing that we are met to pray for is substantially this: that there may be an increase of love in the Universal Church.

But the question is, What is the Universal Church? Christians themselves sometimes differ in their definitions, but there is a man at Rome who is regarded by many as a great authority. If you asked him to answer this question, he might tell you that he has already answered it in a statement that he made to an English deputation a few years ago. That statement was to this effect: "Unworthy as I am, I alone am the successor of the Apostles. I alone am Christ's vicar on earth. I alone have the commission to steer and guide the barque of St. Peter. I am the way, the truth, and the life. All who are with me are within the Church. All who are not with me are without the Church, without the way, without the truth, without the life. Let all men understand this, that they may not be led away by those fancy Catholics who teach and desire something very different from what the head of the Church teaches and desires."

Now this has the merit of what Mr. Matthew Arnold calls "lucidity" in language. But it does not satisfy our Christian conscience, and it does not satisfy our common sense. Why, those who most venerate that oracle whose words I have quoted, will say, at any rate, that we must all mind what the Virgin Mary says. The Virgin Mary, pointing to Jesus Christ, used this language: "Whatsoever HE saith unto you, do it." We have a book, the New Testament, full of His sayings, and amongst the central, amongst the most imperial, amongst the most conspicuous of them, is that saying which the Pope has appropriated to himself. Jesus Christ says: "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life; no man cometh unto the Father but by Me." If we have come to the Father by Jesus Christ, we are related to all those who have done so. All those who have done so all over the world make the one Universal Church. Jesus Christ has found out for us

THE SECRET OF UNITY.

We know what it is to be one, and how to be one, when we know Jesus Christ. We know Him when we have not merely heard other people tell what they know of Him, but when we ourselves know Him. We know then what it is to be one with all His people. Our teachers teach that one and one make two. Later life teaches that one and one make one. But later still, grace teaches that thousands upon thousands who have come to Christ, and who through Christ have come to the Father, are one. A million waves, one sea; a million stones, one temple; a million branches, one vine. This is the Universal Church.

Now, briefly, what do we mean by prayer for the increase of love in the Universal Church? First, the increase of love amongst Christians.

Love that shall not wait before giving love, love that shall not wait before giving itself, until all Christians are of one denomination. A notion and a definition are abroad to this effect, that a denomination is a sect. A denomination is not of necessity a sect. A sect is a section of the Church which regards itself as the Church, a section of the Church appropriating to itself the reality and meaning of the word "Church." Whether that principle thunder from the Vatican or feebly whisper from the dust, there is sectarianism. In the measure in which we have that principle we are sectarians; but we can be true to the friends with whom we are associated in other denominations, and yet feel that this does not weaken the force nor impair the expression of our entire catholicity. I do not think the New Testament says that these denominations, in the present state of the Church, are, in themselves, traitorous or sinful. I understand Paul, in the Epistles to the Galatians and Colossians to say that denominations are nothing—circumcision or uncircumcision, Greek or Jew, barbarian, Scythian, bond or free. These names, and, on the like principle, all other names, are nothing. Perhaps but as to that which makes Christians Christians they are nothing. We must learn more to realise this. Oh for the pouring out of the Spirit that you are asking God for now, which is life! What we want is not better rules or clearer revelations, but life; life of the right kind; life that will not make us one in circumstantials, yet of one mind in the Lord.

THEY MAY BE TRANSITIONALLY USEFUL,

The love of which we want the increase is the love of all Christians to all Christians, without waiting till the persons loved are attractive, or free from imperfection, and infirmity. It is very easy to love those who are loveable. John Bunyan, in his last sermon, said this: "Dost thou see any man with the image of God in him—love him, love him, love him. That man and I must meet in heaven some day. Oh, love him! Do good to him." Yes, but I must not insist upon seeing in a soul that special family likeness that John Bunyan calls "the image of God" before I love that soul. I must not wait until I can see all that I want to see. No, and I must not mistake for love, romantic tenderness for the distant and the dead. Much of the charm that good men in past years have for our minds now is the charm of distance—distance in space, distance in time: "distance lends enchantment to the view." It is distance produces the magic tints of the visionary picture; but if we were now to come in contact with the actual counterpart to some of the men of whom we speak, who have lived in distant places or times, that contact would shatter our dreamy misconceptions, and cause our radiant fancies to fade.

We are to love those who sorely try our loving power. You think that, as a matter of course, Christians love one another; but what is matter of course is not matter of law. It is because it is not matter of course that Jesus has given us such a law about it. It is sometimes very difficult and sometimes very easy to love. Yes, it is easy to love a patriarch, to love a prophet, to love a psalmist, to love an apostle, to love a Lollard, to love a Puritan; but it is not always easy to love that saint whom I have to meet in a committee. Let but his temper clash with mine, let his weaknesses cross my weaknesses, his angularities grind against my angularities; then it will be the miracle of Jesus Christ to heal us, perhaps not only from his sin, and from my sin, but possibly from infirmity without meaning any harm at all, perhaps from mere neuralgic excitement—excitement caused by much work, or much pain, yes, and even by much love. My excitement may make me utter words, without meaning any harm, that drop like the sparks on some explosive, and set on fire all his denominationalism, and

EVERY OTHER UNDELIGHTFUL "ISM."

So we need special help, and therefore we pray. We pray God we may recognise always and everywhere that the man who has not God in him is a poor creature; to recognise faith even when it is but weak, and to love what we see of Christ however little that may be. Be sure of this: if we belong to Jesus and another person belongs to Jesus, that person belongs to us and we belong to him, whether he know it or not, and whether we know it or not. There will be a great deal that very much strains and tries the loving faculty in me and him. Yes, whatever the weakness, whatever the drawback, whatever even the vulgarity may be, when Christ is in a life, under all this there is the family life. Under everything else there is sense under the nonsense; soul under the body; within the poor cracked earthen pitcher the heavenly fire; behind the rough shell the pearl; below the rugged thorns the treasure, concealed for a time by much, perhaps, that may cause the scorn of the foolish and the tears of the wise. There is that which will come out gloriously in the day of the manifestation of the sons of God. Oh, let our brothers wait for us. Let us wait for them and love them, meanwhile, in the spirit of Him who knows the worst of us, but who loves us, and has always loved us—loves us, and loves us, and loves us with a love that has "for ever" written on it.

Again, we want more love amongst all Christians, for all Christians, without waiting until the objects of our love are perfectly educated and enlightened. There is a great difference as to the educational standing of Christians; yet this difference may be looked upon by spirits in light as making no particular difference. It will make none whatever as to the standing of such persons before God—no more difference than between one sect and another. Mr. Spurgeon was speaking yesterday about the old story of the man who loved Christ whom somebody asked what his doctrine was. "Well," he said, "I don't know whether I have any, but I know

I am a poor sinner, and nothing at all,
But Jesus Christ is my all in all."

He had the light that the Spirit kindles, and the light that when glorified makes heaven. This very week I have been amongst poor suffering people of God, more than one case being those of poor old women, ignorant of everything, and knowing little more about the nineteenth century than persons did who lived three centuries before. Yet they knew about Him whose presence makes heaven, makes the joy of heaven, and the light of heaven to all the happy and all the glorified. Yes, and I heard things spoken, and I saw signs of character exhibited, that seemed to make me fear to show myself again there as a Christian. Oh, I felt myself so small before those great saints. There were words of experience, words of hope, words of patience, words of lovely, adoring friendship for the great Friend, which so touched me that I felt if I were to translate those words into Latin I could pass them off for the words of St. Bernard.

Oh, let us not take too much notice of the mere roughnesses that come from want of secular education, nor mistakes that come for the want of scientific accuracy in statement of doctrine. Let there be ever so little real knowledge of Christ in anyone, and if you have any knowledge of the same Saviour, you two are one. Let us pray for love for the friend next to us—the person who is in Christ but who is so trying to live with; the Christian with whom we come in contact, the Church that we have most to come in contact with next to our own Church. Let us pray especially for the ministers. Let us pray for those who stand as representatives and spokesmen for others. Let us pour out our hearts to God in prayer for ourselves, that we may not keep back or chill down the love of any dear Christian.

Let each one be sure that he is a Christian. Come home, you poor wanderer, if there be any wanderers here to-night. The Father has been looking for you; come home. All the Christian life begins in the life of the individual. The night before Dr. Chalmers died he was walking in his garden, and was overheard to say, "Oh, my Father, my Heavenly Father!" Through Christ can you say that? Then every other man in the wide world who can also say it is your brother. Now we have the secret of what is meant by the Universal Church, let us go on with loving prayer for the Universal Church.

THE CHRISTIAN CITIZEN.

Address by Rev. J. BENNETT,

At Steinway Hall, Friday, Jan. 12.

AS I was sitting here just now, I was thinking how a gathering such as this meets the reproach which is brought against our evangelical conception of Christian truth—that it is essentially selfish. I could not help thinking what a mistake that reproach is. Here we meet as brethren and sisters in Christ; there is not much selfishness in that. We claim his promise, "Where two or three are gathered together in My name there am I in the midst." We come not primarily to seek anything for ourselves, but to pray for blessing to others. That is, supposing we have each received the blessing for ourselves, for without that a man cannot do anything that is good; and so in regard to spiritual life we can do nothing for the Lord until we have been quickened by the power of the Holy Ghost. Therefore it is absolutely essential that at the outset we do possess the blessing of salvation. Here it is that Evangelical truth takes its stand, in a day of materialism and unbelief on the one hand, and of sacramentarianism on the other; it is refreshing therefore to meet with those who believe that the Spirit of life flows to such as are individually believers in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Having then, this Spirit of life, being brought ourselves into personal union with the Lord Jesus Christ, we are next brought into the position of kings and priests unto God There is a priesthood; Christians are not sham kings and imitation priests. They are not kings who cannot reign, and priests who cannot minister; they are kings who have power with God and with men, and priests who go continually into the holy place. And the more we make intercession for others, the more blessing we receive ourselves.

How is it with children? They have their toys, and they are taken up with themselves. What do spiritual children live for? Alas, how often they, too, are taken up with themselves! We go about from meeting to meeting, and from place to place, to get comfort for our own souls; how selfish it is! Some people are always saying, "My leanness, my leanness!" when they ought to say, "My laziness, my laziness!" Spiritual joy is not something that God measures out in a great quantity in heaven, and sends down to earth when we ask for it. It comes to us from doing the Lord's will, and whilst we are going in and out among men for the Lord; and if my heart is a truly consecrated heart, then I shall have peace and joy in believing, and my life will be a testimony with power.

Our subject for prayer to-day comprises in general. I suppose we ought to feel that men as men stand in a certain relationship to God; believers as believers also stand in a certain relationship to God. Every creature has a definite relationship to the Creator, and if the creature cries the Creator can hear. But that relationship is different from the relationship of the new-born soul. The world stands in a relationship to God, but believers stand in a covenant relationship to God. We should never confuse the relationship as such as to their Head, and the relationship of men in their national capacity, as to the great Ruler of all. I suppose we all agree upon this subject, that our efforts and prayers should be directed to the passing of such measures as will make it easy for people to be and do what is morally right, and difficult for them to do what is wrong. You cannot make people moral by Act of Parliament; you cannot make them sober. But you can encourage them in ways of honesty, sobriety, and truth, by legislation. Just as we have personal religion for the salvation of our own souls, and family religion in our homes for the instruction and blessing of our families, so we ought to have national remembrance of national concerns at the throne of grace.

GOVERNMENTS, KINGS, AND NATIONAL MATTERS.

I would point out the great principle with which the Apostle follows up the chapter that has been read to us (Rom. xiii), the principle on which we ought to act in all these matters, and by which we ought to guide

OUR DEALINGS WITH OUR BRETHREN.

He says, "Him that is weak in the faith receive ye, but not doubtful disputations." So we learn that there were plenty of controversies in those early days. The Apostle seems to say, "There is that which is definitely right, and there is that which is definitely wrong." Our attitude in regard to all matters should be governed by what the word of God says; and if each individual believer will make that his standpoint, we shall have far less difference of opinion. If I think one thing and you think another, we cannot both be right. For instance, as regards temperance, there is a right and there is a wrong, only each must seek honestly to do that which in the sight of God he believes to be right. You may know in regard to a subject that which another brother does not; let us not judge one another. It is the tendency of ignorance to judge others. "To his own Master he standeth or falleth."

Then the Apostle goes into the matter of the observance of days; and at the 8th verse he gives us the principle, "Whether we live we live unto the Lord, and whether we die we die unto the Lord; whether we live therefore or die, we are the Lord's." Let us see how that principle applies. There is the Sabbath question, for instance; some persons in these days do not like to call it the Sabbath. In regard to such a question all of us feel this: we want that day to be set apart for the Lord. Then let us govern the arrangements of the day. Do we want cabmen, omnibus-men, railway porters, and postmen to go to hear the Gospel?—we need not go into detail. Is not this the principle: the day is for the Lord? Then let us settle the question between each of our souls and the Lord, so that we may not be a hindrance to any. It ought to be known that there is being made just now to break down that which has hitherto been one of the glories of London, the non-delivery of letters on the Lord's Day. There is a proposal to commence the delivery of business letters on that day in London. That is a thing we ought to know, and on which we ought to make our influence felt, and not merely by prayer alone. I heard a brother say the other day, "If in Sodom Lot had prayed for the conversion of his children, the best answer would have been to have taken them out of Sodom." Let us then endeavour to hand down the Lord's Day as a heritage to others after us.

A DETERMINED ATTEMPT

So also in regard to intemperance; we want legislation in regard to it. We may differ with respect to some of the details, but there are certain things connected with the subject about which all Christians surely must agree. When, for instance, I walk to church on a Sunday evening, and pass a number of public-houses with flaming lamps, and filled with people drinking, we all agree, surely, that it would be a vast deal better for the people if those places were closed on the Lord's Day. Here we have a definite point, then. Shall we not join in praying and in bringing influence to bear upon that? Then, again, with regard to cruelty, whether to man or beast—let us make that also a subject for prayer.

The Church of Christ should be taking an active part in all these matters. We begin with the salvation of our own soul; we make that perfectly clear; we must be washed, and justified, and sanctified. But when that is the case, we must not live for ourselves; we are the light of the world, to give light to all in the dismal darkness of this world. We are the salt of the earth amidst the wide-spread corruption; and whilst we earnestly seek the salvation of souls, whether at home or abroad, let us not forget the thirteenth chapter of Romans and the second chapter of Timothy, where we are exhorted to use what influence we have, that moral good may be done, and such legislation carried out as will render it difficult for people to do wrong and EASY FOR THEM TO DO RIGHT.

As regards the matter of intercession at the throne of grace, do we personally remember these things? Then as to our efforts made for the salvation of souls or in the direction of this day's subject, what are they? May we, during this coming year, learn the secret of beginning each day in the presence of the King, so that, if we live, we may live unto the Lord, and if we die, we may die unto the Lord, so that living or dying, we may be the Lord's.

[Several remaining addresses must be postponed to succeeding issues.]

CONFERENCE HALL, MILDMAY PARK.

THE call to prayer was heartily responded to here. Each morning and evening large and devout gatherings attested the fact that there is a people whose faith in the power of prayer is unshaken, and who have solemnly resolved, as God's remembrancers, to give Him no rest till He open the windows of heaven and pour out such a blessing that there shall not be room to receive it. At times the feeling was very deep, and the touching pleading of those who led in prayer met with a hearty response from the entire audience. The order of subjects differed somewhat from those of the Evangelical Alliance, being the one followed at the daily prayer-meeting all the year round.

MONDAY.

"To the Jew first," is the Divine order. Hence Monday was devoted to God's ancient people, and took the form of the anniversary of the Mildmay Mission to the Jews. Room No. 6, where the meetings were held, was at the first gathering too small, so some listened in the large hall through the open door.

Rev. JOHN WILKINSON, the Director, told of the growth of the Mission since its commencement in 1876, till now it has twenty-four workers and an income of £4,000 a year. Dr. DIXON, one of the medical missionaries, described the rapid growth of this department, till from small beginnings there were last year 2,672 new patients.

Rev. GORDON CALTHROP, Vicar of St. Augustine's, Highbury New Park, reminded the meeting that the purpose of God in this dispensation was to gather out a people for His name, and not the conversion of the whole nation. He also observed that the hardness of heart on the part of the Gentiles equalled that of the Jews, saying, "The Jews cannot be converted," &c. In any case, as Archbishop Leighton says, "We miss an important part of our Christian duty if we fail to pray for the Jews every day." The speaker then gave an exceedingly interesting personal narrative of a sermon to the Jews in Whitechapel, and another in his own church (having some 600 Jews in his parish), and closed by pointing out that Israel's resurrection and the Coming of Christ were the hope of the world.

In the evening Mr. Wilkinson repeated his statement of the principles and progress of the Mission, and addresses were given by Dr. Marshall, Dr. Elder Cumming, of Glasgow; Dr. Lazeron, of Tottenham; and Rev. Frank White, of Notting Hill.

TUESDAY.

On Tuesday, January 9th, the subject was—"Our Land and Rulers." Mr. J. E. MATHIESON began by reading Rom. xiii., and said there was much to call forth our prayers in the present state of our country. It was impossible to tell what might be before us—to what men may come in sudden outbursts of passion. It was acknowledged on all hands how increasingly difficult it is to rule. The absence of recognition of the Divine power in the counsels of the nation was a matter of real concern. India, too, needed our prayers. It was the intention of the Government to give a great increase of local government to the natives, and to largely increase the elementary education of India. These things must make a great difference to the country, and were sufficient to call forth prayers on behalf of India.

Rev. D. B. HANKIN spoke chiefly on 1 Tim. ii., &c. He pointed out how God did not deliver the Church from temporal persecution, and that the one means He had put into her hands for opposing the great antagonistic force which was arrayed against her in those days of the blood-thirsty tyrant Nero was prayer. But that placed at its disposal the Divine hand. It was so now. God had given us the means of influencing the Government by prayer. Perhaps there was nothing people were so sluggish about as prayer for those in authority; our thoughts concentrate so often upon ourselves and our own immediate surroundings. Mr. Hankin then pointed out the need there was to pray for our rulers at the present time, both collectively and individually. But let us not omit the giving of thanks. There was much to thank God for in the blessings which were falling on our nation.

At the evening meeting, Mr. MATHIESON read 1 Peter ii. In Deuteronomy, which many of us have of late been reading, the character of the nation which God honours is depicted. What would it be if God could look down upon even one nation in which the people were holy, amidst all the foul impurity which exists! Surely never was a nation so exalted or privileged since the days of the Israelites as ours. Let us remember that in a country like ours, the Government is but a reflection of the people, so that if there are evil laws the people are to blame. We have grave responsibilities both with regard to our own national life and our relations to other nations.

Rev. A. BAX said he should like to dwell upon several interesting truths implied in the prayers which had been offered up: (1) A universal need is implied in these prayers. (2) An abounding fulness in God's grace to answer our need. (3) The missionary character of our holy faith. (4) The great privilege all Christians have in intercession. (5) What a sphere of usefulness it opens out to us all. He then dwelt upon the urgent need for prayer as we look round upon our country, Ireland, India.

WEDNESDAY.

On Wednesday the subject for prayer was Foreign Missions. At the morning meeting, Mr. JAMES E. MATHIESON, who presided (as he did, with rare exceptions, through the week), gave an exceedingly graphic and interesting sketch of the growth and prospects of Mission work throughout the world. He was followed by the Rev. GORDON CALTHROP, who gave a valuable and suggestive address on three points: (1) The large number of people who are thirsting after religion; the Ethiopian eunuch was quoted as an illustration. (2) The need of properly-qualified men to teach these inquirers; justly observing that none but spiritual men could do spiritual work. (3) The need of prayer to call out and send these qualified workers; our Lord's allusion to the need of labourers for the harvest, and prayer to the Lord of the harvest, served to illustrate this truth. The closing illustration, that of a sunrise in the Alps, where the tops of the mountains were flushed with light, while the valleys lay in darkness, was given to show that Christian workers were only as watchers on the mountain-tops compared with the glory to be revealed when the Sun of Righteousness should fully arise with healing in his wings.

In the evening, the Rev. WILLIAM GRAY, secretary of the Church Missionary Society, dwelt upon the self-extension of native Churches, as manifested in the present day, and gave as an instance the Church of Tinnivelley, which is not only supporting its own pastors, but sending out missionaries to the Mauritius, and to help General Haig on the Godavery.

Mr. CAMERON, of the China Inland Mission, also spoke of the difficulties which beset the work of a missionary in China, dwelling specially on the importance of female workers.

THURSDAY.

On Thursday the subject was the rising generation. In the morning the Rev. Dr. JOHN EDMONDS, of Park Church, Highbury, spoke on Ezra viii. 21, specially dwelling on the importance of seeking "a right way" for ourselves and for our little ones.

In the evening the Rev. JAMES STEPHENS, of Highgate, gave an address on the education of children, dwelling on the importance, in the present day, of care in the selection of their teachers. Many showed great earnestness in this matter.

FRIDAY.

On Friday the subject was the sick and suffering, nurses, doctors, &c. In the morning a singularly fresh and striking address was given by the Rev. E. A. STUART, Vicar of St. James', Holloway, on "A fire of coals" (John xxi. 9). We are brought face to face with the permitted mystery of suffering. As we look at the large hospitals filled with sufferers we might ask, why is all this? Yet as we looked at Calvary and saw the awful sufferings of the Son of God on account of sin, there was a sufficient cause, but still we had not grasped the problem. Worldlings might say, Is this your God whom you call a God of love? It is an old problem, as old as the oldest book in the Bible, the book of Job. His friends said Job must have been a hypocrite, or he would never have suffered so. Job defends himself with glorious triumphant faith: "Though He slay me, yet will I trust in Him." Elihu tries to account for the suffering in another way: it may not be merely a punishment for sin, but a trial of virtue. Thus the Lord God steps on the scene, and demands, "Canst thou by searching find out God?" Thus we know not the reason for many of his dealings. It is enough to know that a Father's hand holds the rod, and that a Father's sun shines above the cloud.

Suffering is as a refiner's fire. In passing through Weardale last summer he saw the process of melting lead. The first process was to deliver it from the dross; but there was another and a much hotter fire to separate the silver from the lead. There were two fires in the Gospel of John, one at xviii. 18, and the other at xxi. 9. It was the same disciple in both. The first fire purged out the dross, and the second discovered the silver. Thus we have a picture of how the Lord deals with his children in affliction.

First, the Lord Jesus Christ is seen more clearly at the fire than at any other time. From the sea, in the morning mist, the form was dimly seen, but when they came to the fire, all knew it was the Lord. We have been out fishing, and have lost sight of the Lord Jesus. We have been so busy with his work that He has been but dimly seen. The work has raised a dust which has hid Him from our sight. So He draws us away from the work to the fire, and we easily recognise Him.

At the fire we can hear the voice of Jesus saying, "Come and dine." Thus there is food at the fire. Oh, for power to write over every sick chamber, "Come and dine." Jesus withdraws us from our work that He may feed us. There was an opportunity for asking pertinent home questions: "Lovest though Me?" Then came the grief and the protestation, "Thou knowest that I love Thee." The highest position in the Church does not exempt from this question. The example of Judas rings the death-knell of official position. It may be a pastor, an elder, an open-air preacher, a nurse, a deaconness, but the question must be asked, "Lovest thou Me?" Those who have great privileges are not exempt. Peter had been on Mount Tabor, and in Gethsemane, had seen both the joy and the sorrow of his Lord, yet he was not exempt from the question, "Lovest thou Me?" Nor will a great amount of knowledge excuse this question. It was at the end of the Gospel when it was asked, when much knowledge had been consummated. So it must be asked at the end of each sermon, and at the end of each experience, "Lovest thou Me?"

In the evening the address was given by the Rev. WILLIAM CUFF, of Shoreditch Tabernacle, who emphasised the importance of Christians not only living blameless lives, but actually seeking out the sick and the suffering, and ministering personally to them.

SATURDAY.

On Saturday the subject was the Church of Christ, and Home Missions. In the morning, the address was given by the Rev. GEORGE WILSON, who took a bright view of the progress of the Gospel. In the evening, the Rev. FREDERICK GREEVES, while recognising and rejoicing in the blessing vouchsafed upon last year's efforts, emphasised worldly conformity as the greatest hindrance to a still greater blessing. There was also far too much reliance on mere machinery and organisation, instead of faith in the living God. A brief Gospel address to the unsaved, by Mr. G. KIRKHAM, brought the week of prayer to close.

CONFERENCE HALL, ECCLESTON STREET.

Meetings for prayer and praise in the morning, and for prayer and addresses to believers in the evening, were held in one of the smaller halls connected with this building, from Monday to Friday inclusive. The services were well attended. A spirit of deep devotion and of waiting upon the Lord in united and believing prayer was manifest throughout.

Lord RADSTOCK struck the key-note for the week on Monday evening, when he said they had not met so much to talk about God as to meet Him. Too many people, he said, attended meetings year after year to hear speakers, rather than to meet God. Our attitude also should be a waiting one. He mentioned that he had received good news from Russia, where the work of the Lord is prospering and deepening. Although the Christians there had greater difficulties to meet since their public services were stopped, they had learned to walk with God and not trust to meetings.

In Hebrews i. 3, we have the great idea of Christ being in perfect rest; having "Himself purged our sins," He "sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high." This is in contrast to Hebrews x. 11, where it says the priest "standeth daily." Many of us Christians used to think that Christianity was a system of religion by means of which we might be saved and go to heaven; but Christ has settled the matter once for all, and now we enjoy sweet fellowship with Him. Much of the weakness amongst us is caused by our uncertainty as to the relationship between us and God. When children come to their father's table, they have no doubt as to whether they will get a piece of bread. That is the thought brought out in this Epistle to the Hebrews. If the Lord Jesus is at rest about the question of sin, why should we have any doubt as to our acceptance? There should be a deep, blessed realisation of relationship, filling the soul with joy.

In the 9th chapter we are told about the privileges of believers; in the 12th verse there is eternal redemption, and in the 15th, eternal inheritance, depending upon relationship again. The Christian, like the vessels in the holy place in the Temple, is set apart for the service of God. Our life is a Holy Ghost life all through. Many Christians are in a state of conflict, and wanting to get their own way. They are not content to rest and wait upon Him. The strength of the believer is to sit still; that is how we are to be educated. We shall be like the trees planted near the refreshing streams, bringing forth fruit in due season.

Several friends took part in the proceedings during the week.

NAILSWORTH, GLOS.

The Week of Prayer has been observed in this place; the three congregations uniting. Service was held two evenings in each chapel. Earnest Gospel addresses were given by the different pastors and laymen. Fervent prayer was offered each evening by members of the several Churches. We have had a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. The meetings were fairly well attended. J.

BATH.

I have attended some of the meetings held during the Week of Prayer. It was a most impressive sight to see the large room at the Guildhall so crowd with people in the middle of the day. One lady told me she had come an hour before the time in order to obtain a seat. This was especially gratifying when we remember that this large assembly had met together entirely for prayer and the reading of God's word.

All sections of the Christian Church seemed to be represented on the platform. We do thank God and take courage, for these many praying men and women must prove "the salt of the earth" in this pleasure-loving city of Bath.

Bath. V. M. SKINNER.

CHESTERFIELD.

The Week of Prayer has been observed here, as in former years, under the auspices of the Chesterfield Town Mission. Meetings have been held every day at noon in the Stephenson Memorial Hall, the clergy and ministers of the town presiding and delivering suitable addresses A special meeting was also held on Tuesday evening, when addresses were delivered by the Rev. A. T. Field, B.A., and the writer.

Christian people have been greatly refreshed and revived; they have been brought nearer to each other, and their risen and ascended as well as soon expected Lord. His spiritual presence has been experienced in an unmistakable manner, and we have found there can be a blessed unity even without outward uniformity. We have found it more profitable to speak and think about those things in which we all agree, than about minor points in which we differ.

The Gospel Temperance Movement continues to make great progress in this town; and a branch of the Church of England Temperance Society has been formed. Will the Lord's people pray that the Divine blessing may rest on the work of our Town Mission, and on the various Temperance organisations? As a medical man of nearly forty years' experience, I strongly recommend total abstinence as the best, the wisest, and most Christian remedy for our great national sin. JOHN ROSE, M.D.

BERLIN.

Writing from Berlin with respect to the Week of Prayer in that city, Baron Von Ungern-Sternberg says: "We have been able to arrange for three prayer-meetings each evening in this city; thirty-six pastors and preachers have undertaken to preside or assist on these occasions. What a change has taken place in public opinion since we began this work. It is with us as if rain and sunshine had fallen on a newly sown field; the seed is visibly springing up and becoming green.

On Monday, in the great hall called the "Eiskeller," at seven p.m. above 800 people were assembled for prayer, and at the same time a large prayer-meeting was held in the Nazareth Church, at no great distance. When these meetings were over at about half-past eight, another meeting was held in a hall in the Wedding Platz, about half-way between the two former places of meeting, where more than 300 bowed the head in prayer and joined in praise, while three pastors guided the devotions. Many other meetings were held at the same time.

Only a few years ago who could have believed this to be possible in Berlin? We are looking forward for a rich blessing, as the way of the Lord has been prepared by a large and judicious distribution of tracts and books, and much secret prayer.

The authorities of Berlin have this time granted us the large halls of the public High Schools. We are making use of five public City Schools and one Royal Gymnasium, besides private lecture halls and churches. The schoolmasters are, to a large extent, estranged from the Word of God, and now these meetings bring the Gospel within the halls, where the good word is seldom heard. There has been of late an increasing desire for hearing the Gospel, and we are waiting for the fruit.

A VILLAGE PRAYER-MEETING.

It was my privilege to be present at a united prayer-meeting held in a village in Bucks. There are three chapels in the place, Wesleyan,

Congregational, and Primitive Methodist. Representatives of each, numbering about thirty, mostly men, met in a poor blind woman's cottage, the congregation bringing their own seats and lamps. The fire kindled with the first hymn—

Come ye that love the Lord.

The prayers that followed in quick succession were pointed, earnest, and short, so that all were able to take part. "Bless Him!" "Yes!" "Amen!" "That's it!" uttered as only country people can utter such responses, testified that the petitions were in harmony with the spirit of the meeting. "Oh, Lord," said one, "we are unworthy; but not unwelcome." "What a mercy!" responded a good Primitive brother. "It is a faithful saying," said another, "that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, and we are just the characters." In which fact all rejoiced.

Anything like monotony was avoided by brethren starting hymns, which were sung upon our knees. At one time it was, "Am I a soldier of the Lamb?" Then the chorus—

We'll stem the storm, for it won't be very long.

A little further on we had a true Methodist ditty—

Oh brother! keep believing, to see God's work revive.

with a ringing chorus—

For He will grace and glory,
And all your wants supply;
We are going home to glory,
Never more to die.

For the comfort of the aged blind woman in whose cottage we were met, it was proposed that cheering texts should be quoted; and it was verpleasing to see the knowledge of Scripture possessed by our little company. The Doxology was to close the meeting; but the brother who led could not resist the temptation to have "one more;" so "Glory, honour, praise, and power!" rang forth, and concluded our happy united prayer-meeting. WILLIAM LUFF.

We have also received notices of united meetings held at Darlington, Eastbourne, and Hopton Harling (Norfolk).

A SHEAF FULLY RIPE.

MANY a reader of THE CHRISTIAN will hear with regret that Mrs. Way, the dear friend of the Jewesses, has been gathered home from the very midst of her work. It was my painful duty last Thursday to tell her weekly gathering of Jewish women that they would see their friend no more on earth. Such a scene we never witnessed before of deep and heart-felt grief. One poor woman was seized with a fit, and on awakening from it exclaimed, "I have lost my more than mother!" Others who are Christians became deadly pale, and the whole sixty-eight literally sobbed. How glad we were to pour in the balm of a risen Jesus for wounded hearts. We know how our loved departed friend would want us to use the opportunity for trying to win souls for Jesus.

For forty years Mrs. Way has most persistently laboured among our Lord's own kinsfolk from the West-end, coming, though lame, weekly to address them, ever since we opened this Home. Whilst teaching them how to work, she sowed the good seed of the kingdom with untiring patience. Her kindness to the Jewesses in seasons of illness or want was most Christ-like. Now her work is a legacy, not of earth, but from heaven, to her nieces, Mrs. Orchard and the Misses Barton; they have drunk into Mrs. Way's spirit of deep love for these Jewesses, who come willingly to hear of their Messiah and our crucified and risen Lord. We ask the prayers of our Christian sisters that this triumphant entrance on the last Lord's day morning of 1882 into the glory, may issue in an abundant and increasing spiritual blessing on this work.—Yours in Jesus, ANNIE MACPHERSON.

MRS. K. YEOLAND, Mornington House, Clapham-road, London, asks us to say that she is desirous of occupying some permanent sphere of labour. During the past year she has visited forty different towns, in each of which she has been made a blessing to many souls.

MISS MACPHERSON AND HER HELPERS.

AS an almoner for many a reader of THE CHRISTIAN, permit me, with my fellow-workers, to return heartiest thanks for all the cheer we have been enabled to give during this happy season. We only wish you could have seen the delight and gratitude of each recipient, and heard their thanksgivings to God and humble prayers for all the dear makers of garments, and midnight stitchers.

Our old Beehive has regaled hundreds of old and young, just like those who came to Jesus, "mothers and their children." Your Dorcas gifts made many of them warm, and your drawing-room work has brightened thousands who, while passing year after year in our neighbouring workhouses, growing gradually more wrinkled and aged, have thought that nobody cared for them.

Who will write the histories of these warm knitted cuffs? Shall the recording angel note the interwoven prayers in the "book of remembrance"? Who can estimate the value of a pair of socks such as we gave this morning to a poor fellow suffering from St. Vitus's dance? Who can tell the comfort conveyed through the woollen scarf put around the poor man blind for twenty-nine years, and without a friend on earth. Methinks the angels envy these opportunities of getting such ears to listen to the story of God's love. Some delicate lady asks, "How came their needs to be known?" Simply by a friendly visit to the holes and corners where the poverty stricken live around us.

We have been greatly encouraged by the results of the past year's labour amongst the factory girls. Over 100 have been subdued by the devotion shown to them, and a few have been savingly changed. Their future lives, as wives and mothers, we keep in view; by teaching them to sew and cook, we seek to prepare them for their early struggles.

The annual gathering of the Jewesses, last evening, was very touching, being the first without their friend, Mrs. Way. Fifty of their children Miss May had taught during the last two months to sing some sweet hymns; so we had the mothers as the audience to listen to their own children lisping the praises of Jesus. Oh, we wish you could have seen the dark eyes of the Jewish children sparkle, and heard them exclaim, "That's my little Rachel, and the other sitting by her is my sister's Gershom!" They each received from Mr. George Holland an almanack, in Hebrew characters. Very little resistance is given now to any kindnesses shown. When offering a tract to a Jew, he asks, "What is it?" and when you interest him by conversation, he asks, "Where can I hear more of this?"

Oh, that this year we may, like one of old, see a hundredfold for our seed-sowing, whether among Jew or Gentile! (Gen. xxvi. 12.) There never was such willingness to be spoken to; we find this even in the Bird-fair, where men congregate by hundreds, and with an eager gaze listen to the Gospel amid the terrible desecration all around. Thank God, we have no longer to beg and implore labourers to come and help. Working men of every class are being raised up. One said, "If I never went to college to learn to read, bless God, I can read now. Come and see my Bible, full of bits of leather, where I have texts, proved to be true cheques upon the Heavenly Banker."

More than one million of written texts are now circulating among the East-end poor, given by the loving hands of the Bible Flower Mission workers, during the past seven years, in the centres of sorrow and indigence. Dear readers! it is your prayers for us that will cause all efforts to redound to the praise of our Emmanuel.

Our family of destitute children increases; including a few girls from situations, about a hundred spent a happy Christmas Day at the Training Home, Hackney.—Yours, in his service, ANNIE MACPHERSON.

MY REFUGE.

Psalm XLVI.

BY MRS. ANNIE WITTENMYER.

THE Lord is my refuge and strength,
A present and Infinite Friend;
I've learned the sweet lesson at length:
My soul on his love may depend.

In seasons of sorrow, and doubt,
When friendless I journey alone,
His mercies encompass about;
His presence, and love are made known.

When storms fill the earth with alarms,
And mountains are rocked by the tide,
He gathers me safe in his arms,
And under his feathers I hide.

The earth may remove from its place,
The mountains sink into the sea,
No change, while beholding his face,
Can trouble, or terrify me.

A City I soon shall behold,
Where He is the centre and light,
And walk on its pavements of gold,
And know no more sorrow nor night.

There, safe from temptation and strife,
I'll dwell in that blissful abode,
Beside the pure river of life,
That gladdens the City of God.

AMONGST FACTORY EMPLOYES.

ON Wednesday and on Thursday evenings, 10th and 11th inst., Messrs. Peek, Frean and Co, biscuit manufacturers, invited their numerous workpeople, and such personal friends as they liked to bring with them, to attend a lecture on the "Early Life of Christ," illustrated by means of a powerful oxy-hydrogen lime-light apparatus. The invitation to this exhibition, which was the fourth of its series, was so generally accepted that the Bermondsey Town-hall, seating 1500 persons, had again to be hired, and was crowded on both nights.

On each occasion the chair was taken by one of the partners, and two others of them undertook the whole work of exhibiting and explaining the pictures. The marked attention throughout indicated no small interest on the part of the spectators, and this was further helped by the interspersion of appropriate hymns, some of which were thrown on the screen, so that all could follow. Others were sung as solos by a gentleman from the office.

From beginning to end the original object of presenting the Gospel was kept steadily in view, and it is confidently believed that the truths thus simply and earnestly pressed on the conscience, through both eyes and ears, will have found entrance into hearts which will have to glorify God throughout eternity.

JERSEY.—The Blue Ribbon Army, according to The Jersey Express, is making great progress in numbers, influence, and stability in that island. Premises have been secured near the harbour, which will shortly be opened as coffee shops, &c., sleeping accommodation also being provided at a low rate. Other projects are in hand which will tend to make the cause a permanent one in the place. Great hopes are entertained that the action of the Licensing Board in disconnecting public-houses from grocers' shops will be productive of much good.

EVANGELISATION OF ITALY.—The Annual Meeting of the Italian Evangelisation Society was lately held in Edinburgh. Rev. Dr. Andrew Thomson presided. Mr. J. Campbell Lorimer, Honorary Treasurer, read the annual report, showing a very satisfactory state of matters. Reference was made to the great freedom now existing in Italy for the circulation of the Bible and tracts. Nearly £500 will be distributed amongst the various Missions. The Waldensian Church, which has undergone much persecution, is making steady progress over the whole continent.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

A MEETING of the friends of the Salvation Army was held at Headquarters, 101, Queen Victoria-street, last Friday afternoon. About 300 persons attended by special invitation. It is intended to hold meetings here, and also at the Clapton Training Home, once a month, for the purpose of acquainting friends with the progress of the movement.

Rev. E. H. Hopkins opened the meeting with prayer.

General BOOTH said: Objections will always be found to the special lines of operations of the Salvation Army. This meeting is not held for the purpose of answering their objections, but rather to give friends who agree with us an opportunity of asking questions as to the condition of the Army. I ask the sympathy of friends who approve generally of our motives and plans. Nobody will approve of them altogether; I myself do not. But I stand here in the presence of God, and with all sincerity of heart say, I am doing my best. We cannot deal with men and women as if they were pieces on a chess-board. We cannot move them here and there, or make them talk grammatically, logically, and politely.

There is no sign that the Army is losing its charm or power over the multitude. In London, with the exception of one or two small places, every hall is crowded to excess. The other night there marched out from the "Eagle" a corps 400 strong of men and women who have been converted there. Between two to three thousand people have gone to the "penitent form." Similar accounts could be given of the Clapton and the other halls. We have now 455 corps, an increase of 135 since last August. We have 1095 officers; last August we had 760.

My eldest daughter and her staff have gone to Geneva to commence the work there, but the soldiers at Paris are keeping up the meetings with tokens of great blessing.

At Geneva, twelve of their soldiers, who, previous to their conversion, had been great blackguards, were examined by the police, who were satisfied with the interview, and said, "Well, if this is the work of the Salvation Army, let it go on." A hall has been taken at Lausanne, and, as far as possible, the converts will go all through Switzerland. This country is looked upon as a centre from which they hope to evangelise Italy, Germany, France, and the surrounding countries. We have some Germans and others of different nationalities in the Training Home, who in a short time will be sent to their own countries to work. Our soldiers have occupied Melbourne and Sydney. We have sent out 35 servant-girls and eleven men, as emigrants, who will be able to conduct meetings. From America and Canada we have better news than we have formerly had.

The tidings from India are like a romance. The Army has settled in Calcutta, and got about £400 to buy a hall. Major Tucker has passed through India from Bombay to Calcutta, taking the principal towns en route. One of the Princes of Delhi welcomed him to Delhi and gave him the use of buildings to hold meetings. One of the leading Mohammedans said to him, that if the Salvation Army could not do anything for India nobody could. This showed the kindly attitude of the natives, who attend the meetings in large numbers and listen to addresses, not only in their own tongue but also through interpreters. In one place a native corps had anticipated the Major and had started a branch. The advance guard is looking up Madras. The attitude of Christians is most pleasing. They lend the Army chapels and help them in every way.

To show the completeness of the organisation, Mr. Booth said that they knew how many were at knee drill at the 450 stations last Sunday morning; how much money was received; how many anxious inquirers they had. When any irregularity is heard of, some one is at once sent to inquire into it.

There is a debt of £8000 on the Eagle, and that amount must be cleared off within twelve months. Until the proper time has come we must go softly, but we hope to spread through Europe during the present year. Last year our friends gave us £33,000 for the Eagle and Clapton Hall, but the General Fund has suffered in consequence.

I do not say we make no slips or mistakes; but in the main we are sound in doctrine, in heart, and in motive. Our one motive is to glorify God. We are not faultless; we don't claim to be advocates of perfection. We believe in loving God with all our hearts and souls. In reply to a question, Mr. Booth said that most of their operations in India had been towards securing the attention and respect of the natives. Some natives had been saved, and had been sent back to their own friends to preach the Gospel.

Mr. G. RAILTON said that not only were they adding to their numbers, but they were continually developing gifts and graces. They were getting hold of working-men and women who are making up their minds to spend their whole lives in this work, and who are striving in every possible way at their own expense and in their own time to qualify themselves to take positions in the Army. Remarking about the alleged irreverence in print, Mr. Railton said he wished to take the whole blame on himself. He was almost astonished at these charges. The enormous increase in their numbers was due to divine power. If the Salvation Army was guilty of irreverence, surely God would resent it. Yet the War Cry had doubled its circulation.

Mr. HAIG MILLER spoke of a pleasing visit he paid to the Salvation Army meetings at Brighton. The hall was crowded with the very sort of people they tried to reach. The Scripture was read and lucidly explained.

The General here remarked that the Scriptures were regularly read and expounded in all their meetings.

Mrs. BOOTH said some people admitted that the work was of God and rejoiced very much in its results, nevertheless there were a great many things of which they could not approve. In reply she would say, "Who are you, that you should set up yourself against a work that you believe to be of God? God does not pick bits here and there. He blesses it as a whole." She believed that the volume entitled The Salvation War bore the stamp of divinity. The chapter on Finance was one of the most wonderful in Church history.

Mr. T. A. DENNY gave his testimony to the value of the work, but counselled caution in several of the undertakings. There is no doubt, he said, that God has worked through the Salvation Army; still there may be faults. He would pay respect, as far as possible, to the opinions of Christians outside the movement.

Rev. Mr. RYDER, Mr. T. D. MARSHALL, and others added words of encouragement to the work.

"O DEATH, WHERE IS THY STING?"

DEAR SIR,—The honoured name of Esther Beamish will never again appear in your pages as the writer of one of her clear, concise letters; for the ready hand that held the pen; the active brain that was always at work on some scheme for the benefit of others; the eloquent lips that so frequently gave her Master's message, and were so richly blessed by Him to the conversion of many; the noble, brave, and faithful heart so full of love to God and souls—all, all are silent in the grave, to which we committed her on Saturday, December 30. I am writing to you for three reasons. First, because I think your readers may be glad to hear of her victorious death; second, to give you some idea of the effect that the power of her simple goodness and consistent Christian life had had here in Algiers; and thirdly, to ask if the scheme for the establishment of the Convalescent Home and little parsonage at Spa, in connection with the church she had built there, is to be allowed to fall through for want of funds. She spoke, thought, and wrote about it within a few hours of her death, and it was one of the last objects of her prayers.

My little girl of seven years old, her small disciple and friend, who with my son had the inestimable benefit of her Bible teachings almost daily for three years past, caught diphtheria on Sunday, December 17. Though a restless child in health, full of fun and mischief, as soon as the hour of trial and suffering came for e she showed how she had profited by Miss Beamish's instruction and prayers; for she bore five days of indescribable suffering with heroic courage and gentle patience, saying of her own accord, "Je souffre tout cela pour Jésus." When we told her that she was going to God, she only begged that the "angels might come soon to fetch her." I told her that she would have a happier Christmas-day than we should, but she answered, "Oh, you must be very happy, too, and not grieve for me, for I shall not really leave you." Then she told Miss Beamish "that she would be with her in a few days," and so without a struggle she yielded willingly her sweet spirit to God on Friday, December 22.

Those in the room who witnessed her sufferings and her Christian death, including two young men not yet thirty, and the doctor (who said that he never saw any pain so patiently borne before, either by a child or a grown person), were indescribably affected, and I think that my little one's witness for Christ will sink deep into their hearts.

That night Miss Beamish, who had nursed her devotedly, complained of sore throat, and was very ill next day. She showed, as might be expected, the same noble patience during six days of alternate hopes and fears, but on Thursday, 28th, her case was declared hopeless. When suffering indescribable pain, she seized the doctor by the arm, and said, "It is in moments like these that we can feel the presence of Christ, and know the power of his might." I told her that all hope was over, and asked her if she had any fears, but she smiled brightly in my face, and said, "How can I be afraid, when I am going to Him that I have lived with and lived for all my life?"

She passed the night in prayer and praise, repeating texts and hymns, writing clearly her last wishes, and sending loving, appealing messages, some actually written by her own hand, to unconverted friends for whom her soul was travailing even in death. She saw separately all the servants, speaking to each of the joy of knowing Jesus, and witnessing for Him. Towards morning, seeing the light on her face and hearing more frequently the Saviour's name, I asked her if she saw Him, but she said, "No, only his glory!" So she continued, conscious till the end; the last words we heard from her lips were: "O Lord! O pity! O love!" With this last aspiration towards the divine love, this faithful servant entered his presence, and heard his greeting, on Friday morning, Dec. 29.

Her influence in this place was untold. High and low, Protestant and Roman Catholic, even the light and worldly—all have recognised her great worth since she left us, and the earnest-minded of all denominations have clasped hands round her open grave. Again I ask if your readers, some of whom loved her, and have been helped and cheered by her noble eloquence, will suffer the work at Spa, which she toiled so hard for in her life, and thought of even at the last, to languish for want of funds.—Yours truly,

OLIVE SEBRIGHT.

L'Olivage, Mustapha, Algiers, Jan. 7.

DRUNKENNESS IN PARIS.—On Saturday week, a few hours after the burial of Gambetta, no less than eight hundred persons were arrested for drunkenness in Paris.

A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION has been taken at the Rev. R. Dale's chapel in Birmingham, and also by the Rev. Newman Hall, in partly abolishing the pew-rent system. At the former place all seats are free on Sunday evenings, and at Christchurch, Westminster, persons are invited to take sittings whether they can pay or not.

A PERTINENT QUESTION.—Can anybody explain how it is the Manchester Magistrates are able to seize and destroy offensive publications which are openly hawked in the thoroughfares of the Metropolis. If the Manchester authorities are right, the London police are lacking in their duty; if the London police are not lacking in their duty, the Manchester police have exceeded theirs.—Echo.

THE AFRICAN SETTLEMENT SOCIETY.

THIS Society has been formed for the purpose of establishing a Christian settlement in Africa, on the principles adopted and successfully carried out by the Moravians. The intention is to offer facilities to young persons in the various charitable institutions in this country to emigrate to a land where, under the supervision secured by the family system, it is hoped they will continue to develop in moral character, and earn for themselves the advantages of an honest livelihood, with a prospect of independence. We have commenced sending out children to Christian colonists in Cape Colony, who have agreed to receive them into their families, following the system pursued for many years in Canada.

It must be borne in mind that the boys and girls brought up in the different Homes of this country cannot be kept until their characters are sufficiently formed to insure their continuing in the course in which they have been trained.

Miss McPherson, Dr. Barnardo, and others, are doing the noble work of rescue. They want us to take out a hundred children, and we have returned answer to them, that if the Christian public send us the funds we shall.

Both boys and girls will have to attend school at the settlement for a certain time every day, when they will be taught reading, writing, arithmetic, and such other subjects as may be thought advisable. Boys fitted by nature and disposition for field work will be trained and educated as agriculturists, and those lads who have been brought up as tailors, bootmakers, bakers, carpenters, &c., will be further trained and employed in such occupations Girls will be instructed in domestic duties, the general work of a household and home concerns, needlework, &c.

The climate being good, and milk procurable in winter, parties can be sent out at any time, winter or summer. The Government of Natal have given a large tract of land in Alexandra County on most favourable terms, for the purposes of such a settlement, and will grant free passages to our settlers and children.

The Bye-laws prohibit the introduction into the settlement, as well as the production and sale therein, of every kind of alcoholic liquor. It is intended that the pioneers of the settlement shall consist of six families, the heads of these to act as managers of different departments; upon them will also devolve the duty of erecting houses. Upon the completion of these preliminary arrangemen s, parties of boys and girls of about fifteen years of age will follow

The Society's staff will begin and continue, by God's blessing, Sunday services in the outlying districts, and in this way carry on direct Mission work around the settlement, among European settlers, so that an opportunity may be given to all to hear the Gospel call.

The Society earnestly asks for the prayers and the substantial help of Christians everywhere.

Copies of the Society's pamphlet will be sent free on application to the undersigned.

W. WRIGHT, M.A.
115, Fleet-street, E.C. Hon. Sec.

TOTAL ABSTINENCE IN THE CITY. — An interesting gathering in connection with the City of London Total Abstainers' Union took place at the warehouse of Messrs. Leaf, Sons & Co., Old Change, on Friday evening. Dr. Norman Kerr, in the course of his remarks, said out of twelve new patients he had to attend the other day, all high-class persons, five were suffering from diseases brought about directly by alcohol, and three indirectly from the same cause. It was a matter of great satisfaction to him that so many of the medical profession had gone over to the temperance cause, and he trusted the number would continue to increase until the whole fraternity had become abstainers. The general public had no idea of the evil effects of alcoholic drinks upon the body. As a medical practitioner he had no hesitation in saying a temperance man had far greater powers of endurance than the moderate drinker, and he had a much better chance of recovering from any disease with which he might be afflicted. Mr. Hugh M. Matheson expressed his gratification at the hold the temperance movement was taking of the populace. Mr. Crombie gave an account of the progress of teetotalism in Canada.

THE FIGUERAS MISSION, SPAIN.

WE have received an interesting communication from Dona Emilia Rodriguez, who lately returned to her post in Figueras, after her marriage with the young Spanish pastor whose name she now bears. Having described the children's fête on Boxing Day, for which we have not space, she proceeds:—Next Thursday we had a similar fiesta in our new Mission station, in Vilabertran. My husband's voice being somewhat exhausted during the evening, I suggested that his brother should give an address, but was told that he was needed in the basement below, as two men, instigated by the priests, had entered with the intention of setting fire to some straw kept there. Had not their plan been frustrated by the presence of Don Alexander and some of our friends who could not get into the hall, the result would, indeed, have been terrible. But "the angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear Him, and delivereth them." One night lately, when on our way to hold a meeting in the village, we received a friendly warning not to go as usual by the short cut across the fields, so we went by the high road, making our way with no small difficulty, partly owing to the darkness of the night, and partly because the roads had been inundated by heavy rain, and were ankle-deep in mud. On nearing the village we were not a little cheered by the sound of voices singing our sweet Gospel hymns. A party of men and boys of our Sunday-school had come to meet us, and conducted us through the dark street till we came to the old Monastery, in one of whose halls we hold our meetings.

Just this time last year the Sereno, or Watchman of the village, was murdered at the church door, having incurred the anger of the priests for his valour in joining the heretics; but a few days previous to his death, the poor man had made us a liberal gift of evergreens for our Christmas fiesta. His widow, who has attended our meetings regularly ever since, and sent her children to our Sunday-school, has to support not only her five fatherless little ones, but also an aged grandmother, and a poor idiot boy who is friendless. One night last August, on leaving the hall, she said to my brother-in-law, "The good words which I have heard have brought a peace to my heart which I could never find in the Church of Rome."

The other day we heard from Barcelona of the loss of the Compeador off the English coast. We fear this Christmas has been a sad one to those thus made widows and orphans. While spared such sorrow, it was a great disappointment to learn that a large chest sent by my parents from London had gone down with the ship. It contained all our precious books, family letters, wedding presents and clothing, besides many things which I have treasured for years; a number of pretty text-cards which we had received after drawing-room and other meetings, also 500 copies of El Obrero, a paper similar to the British Workman, were in the lost chest. We had looked forward to distributing them among the people, who would have hung them up in their houses and valued them much.

Any help for the Mission should be sent either to Colonel Baynes, 87, Elgin-crescent, Notting Hill, London, W., or to Pastor Rodriguez, Calle Pedro, 8, Figueras, Spain. Text-cards to the latter address only.

YOUNG WOMEN IN SOUTH LONDON. — Miss Catherine Ellis, of Tryon House, 115, Sloane-street, London, S.W., writes: We joyfully offer a note of praise and thanksgiving, and tell of the faithfulness of our God during the past year, the twentieth of the work. It has been a year of much spiritual blessing, although one of great pressure from lack of funds. These being exhausted, and the expenses very heavy, it was suggested in September that preparation should be made for a sale of work. We felt that the Lord could help without resorting to this, and prayed that if the sale were not for his glory it might be avoided. From that time money began to come in. We have closed the year with only a loan of £100 to be paid off. We are praying and looking for this also to come.

MR. T. E. MURPHY, IN KENDAL.

A SUCCESSFUL Gospel Temperance Mission was conducted by Mr. T. E. Murphy, in Kendal, from January 2nd to 10th. The largest hall in the town, which holds some 1700, was crowded to excess, especially during the last nights of the Mission. Most of the clergy and ministers took part in the work, which was thoroughly united and hearty. The effort was greatly assisted by a choir of about 120 voices. On Wednesday, January 10, Mr. Murphy was supported on the platform by his father, Mr. F. Murphy; the great audience, which overcrowded the hall, had the pleasure of hearing both gentlemen, and of giving them their hearty good wishes in their future work. On Thursday evening 1150 persons, most of whom had taken the ribbon, sat down to tea, after which a praise meeting was held in the Friends' Meeting House.

The Mission has reached hundreds to whom drink has been the greatest enemy, and it was good to see many of these at the noon-prayer meetings, seeking for help from God in their conflict with temptation. During the Mission 2525 pledges were taken, and 3878 Blue Ribbons given, which out of a population of 14,000 is a wonderful result. This number is being daily added to, as many are now taking the pledge who could not be induced to do so previously. Many in Kendal are very thankful to God for Mr. Murphy's visit. W. H. SOMERVELL.

MISSION TO THE FRENCH OUVRIERS.

THE Christianisme au 19e Siècle publishes the following appeal, which is a gratifying proof of the high estimate in which the work of our beloved brother, Mr. McAll, is held by French Christians. The proposition which it makes shows also that the churches of Paris are alive to their duty of affording practical help to a Mission which is doing so much for their own countrymen. It would be a mistake to suppose that they have left the entire expense of this evangelistic work to foreign aid. Besides their ordinary subscriptions they have again and again made special efforts in aid of the Mission.

"APPEAL TO ALL FRENCH PROTESTANTS.

"A great number of persons belonging to different evangelical churches of Paris have long desired to give to Mr. McAll some striking testimony of their gratitude and of their sympathy in the great work which with so much of devotion and success he has accomplished in our country. The idea has arisen of organising une vente (a bazaar), to help in meeting the heavy expenses necessarily incurred by the rental of the numerous halls opened in Paris and in the departments for the evangelisation of the masses of the people.

"The idea of a bazaar has been adopted in the hope of enlisting the concurrence of all who are favourably disposed to the work, and with the conviction that all Christians who worthily bear the name will esteem themselves happy thus to manifest their adhesion to an enterprise which the Lord has so abundantly blessed. We therefore make an earnest appeal to our brethren and sisters in Paris, and in the departments, praying them to encourage us by a speedy assurance that our appeal has found an echo amongst them."

(Here follow the names of many Christian ladies forming the Paris Central Committee.)

"We desire to express our lively and Christian sympathy for the admirable work conducted by our venerable brother, Mr. McAll, and we heartily adhere to the project entertained by our Christian ladies to sustain him in it."

(Here follow the names of several of the pastors of Paris of different communions.)

LEEDS.—The friends of Evangelistic work in this place are making ample preparations for the forthcoming campaign by Messrs. Moody and Sankey, which commences on March 16. As no building is to be obtained large enough to accommodate the numbers who are expected to attend the meetings, the committee have decided to erect a temporary wooden building. A united "Church Mission" is about to be held in the town.

THE GOSPEL IN BRAZIL.

A BRIEF communication lately received from Mr. Maxwell Wright, by Dr. Kalley, of Edinburgh, will interest those who are praying for work in Brazil. Campinas is about 200 miles from Rio de Janeiro. From last letters it was probable that Mr. Wright would leave Brazil on the 9th or 24th of the present month:—

Campinas, 6th December, 1882.

I found St. Paulo, where I preached every night from the 11th to the 29th ult., very hard. Several, however, stood up at the close of the meetings, indicating that they desired to be saved. One young lady who had only attended the last three or four services, remained for conversation the last night, and seemed to be deeply impressed. She was in a great struggle when she left.

Last Sunday I spent at Sta. Barbara, where a number of Americans from the South settled after the war. They are very scattered, but word was sent round that there would be preaching, and quite a little congregation gathered in the mud church. A humming-bird that had built its nest inside seemed to enjoy the singing amazingly. It was most picturesque to see the whole of the congregation riding in on horses and mules. In the evening, I rode into the village, and got the use of a large room; walking about the streets with two friends, we invited those we saw about the shop-doors to the meeting. Soon we had the room full, with some seventy odd most attentive hearers, and many outside. These little country places seem very ready for the Gospel.

H. Maxwell Wright.

COMMON LODGING-HOUSE MEN.

NO class of the community probably contains so many veritable "waifs and strays" of society as that which is represented by the inhabitants of common lodging-houses. Occupiers of these abodes, to whom the sweetness of home-life is more of memory than reality, are not forgotten, however, by the charitable and missionary agencies. Special agents of the London City Mission, indeed, are appointed to visit the common lodging-houses, and while carrying the "sweetness and light" of religion to the inmates, the social side of life is not overlooked. Under the auspices of the London City Mission some 500 of the "lodging-house men of Westminster," last Friday night, were entertained at the Lecture-hall, James-street, Westminster, by the kindness of Sir Joseph Bazalgette, the engineer to the Metropolitan Board of Works, and others. A substantial tea, with cold roast beef as a concomitant, was the first part of the entertainment, and this was followed by music, interspersed with some brief speeches.

That the occasion was an attractive one to the lodging-house men was shown by their congregating in large numbers in the narrow side street adjoining the lecture-hall some considerable time before the hour announced for the commencement of the feast. There was no chance, however, of any but men of the right sort obtaining admission, for Mr. A. Walshe, of the City Mission, whose work lies among the common lodging-houses of Westminster, knew the guests he had invited to partake of the hospitality of Sir Joseph Bazalgette, having distributed tickets to those whom he considered the most deserving. Armed with these passports, therefore, the lodging-house men of all ages, from grey and feeble old men, through the varying grades of matured and stalwart manhood, down to the striplings just emerging from boyhood, streamed into the well-lighted lower hall, where the tables were already spread.

It would have been instructive, had it been possible, to learn the present position and means of livelihood of these, in too many cases, destitute-looking men and boys, poorly clad, and yet seemingly happy enough. Some of them, it was remarked, are fairly constant dwellers in the lodging-houses, in fact, regular frequenters of the same abode, and these were mostly men who come under the general designation of street hawkers. Others were described as the pickers up of odd jobs, many being handicraftsmen, such as carpenters, shoemakers, or tailors, who had come down in the world, and were now out of regular employment. Others again were anything that opportunity offered, and of the class known as "loafers." Men, in fact, once comparatively well-off, even officers in the Army, but now fallen in the social scale, united with those who have never risen much from the gutter.

After full justice had been done to the "meat tea," as it was styled, an adjournment was made by the motley company to an upper hall, where the second portion of the evening's proceedings was proceeded with. Sir Joseph Bazalgette took the chair, surrounded by a number of friends of the missionary movement, including the Dean of Westminster, who was unable, however, to remain long; Rev. Mr. Grundy, Rev. H. Simon, and Rev. T. S. Hutchinson. It would be difficult to say which the common lodging-house men and boys appreciated most—the short addresses or the sweet singing. Speaking to those who were without earthly friends, the Chairman told of One who sticketh closer than a brother. Mr. Thurston Holland spoke impressively of the power of influence, and the need of moral courage in spurning the wrong and choosing the right. Rev. H. Simon, in a simple and brotherly way, pointed his hearers to Christ for salvation and the power to lead a manly life. Captain Lowe, Rev. T. S. Hutchinson, Mr. Sewell, Mr. Walshe and others, also addressed words of sympathy and counsel to the motley throng. What with the good cheer for the body, partaken of in the room below, and the choice mental fare provided in the hall, these 540 guests are not likely soon to forget the occasion. We trust the memory of it will help to brighten their lot through all the year.

OMEGA HALL.—On Thursday last, a number of the aged poor and unemployed of this neighbourhood assembled together to partake of a bountiful tea at this branch of the Evangelistic Mission. Stirring Gospel addresses were delivered by Messrs. Phillip Gough, Barnard Smith, and James Sprunt. The people listened with the greatest attention. Messrs. Smith and Sprunt are preaching here on Sundays and Fridays throughout January.

DR. SOMERVILLE.—Letters have been received from Dr. Somerville, from the Cape, Mossel Bay, and Port Elizabeth, dated 14th and 16th December. Both the doctor and his companion, Mr. Cumming, were well. Though they had intended remaining at Cape Town, they have been strongly advised to go on to Natal, as small-pox is still raging at Cape Town, and the inconveniences of quarantine are great. They therefore fixed to commence work at Durban, Natal. The voyage, after leaving Madeira, was pleasant. There were other clergymen on board, one being the Bishop of Cape Town. Dr. Somerville preached once on the voyage.

YOUNG WOMEN IN NORTH LONDON.—Last Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Weatherley entertained, at their house in Gordon-square, the members of the Young Women's Christian Association of the North London Branch, Mornington-Crescent. After tea, dissolving views were shown in the drawing-room, representing various parts of India, the costumes, and manners of the people, chiefly bearing upon Mission work in the Zenanas. The views were extremely interesting to those who have few opportunities of learning what goes on outside their own daily life of toil, and were well fitted to awaken their interest and sympathy towards the women of India.

A GERMAN REVIVAL IN PHILADELPHIA.—Our German Churches, writes the correspondent of the Chicago Standard, are just now enjoying a gracious revival. The First and Second Churches and the Mission are all sharing this blessing. Strange to say, the revival seems to have begun with a birthday celebration in honour of Rev. J. S. Gubblemann, pastor of the First Church. Our German friends made this an occasion for prayer and consecration. Before the evening was over, a number rose for prayer. The work spread from that time, and Pastors Gubblemann, Linker, and Schmidt have been kept busy ever since holding meetings, directing inquirers, &c. Forty or fifty persons have professed conversion, and there seems to be no diminution of interest. The Churches, as well as their pastors, are greatly encouraged.

Notices of Books, &c.

The Ragged School Union Quarterly Record Volume vii. Kent & Co. A review of the past year's Ragged-school work is here given, which ought to prove of great interest to all the friends of this noble work.

Woman's Work. S. W. Partridge & Co. The volume for 1882 is indeed an invaluable treasury of knowledge in relation to the labours of Christian women and spiritual truth relating thereto. This book will be found most helpful and encouraging to all, and especially to lady workers.

Dr. Adam Clarke's Commentary on the Holy Bible. 1s. Ward, Lock & Co. This publication has now reached Part xxi., which takes us to the book of Daniel. The notes are clear, profuse, and helpful, and bring the work up to the present standard of Biblical knowledge.

The Church Missionary Intelligencer and Record. 6d. The Church Missionary Gleaner. 1d. Seeley, Jackson & Halliday. The Monthly Reporter of the British and Foreign Bible Society. ½d. 146, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. These magazines give short accounts of the good work carried on in many lands. The former has an important article contributed by the Bishop of Victoria on "China's Call."

The Salvation War. Under this title a sixpenny book has been issued from the publishing office of the Salvation Army, containing a large amount of information with respect to its work during the past year. Balance-sheets are appended, containing the details of receipts and expenditure for the year. Many facts are given, which will be read with interest by all whose sympathies are with this remarkable movement.

A Life of Consecration. J. Nisbet & Co. We have here given to us the memoir and letters of Mrs. Mary Legge, "a woman devoted to her family and to Christian work." The devotion of her life was of no ordinary kind. These records, so lovingly and truthfully given, of ceaseless activity and true devotion to God and her children, will be found well worthy of thoughtful perusal. To Christian mothers especially the book will be invaluable.

Archibald Campbell Tait. By Mr. A. C. Bickley. J. Nisbet & Co. Within brief compass this volume gives a compact summary of the career of the truly Christian Archbishop whose loss the country now deeply deplores. We have here no mere dry record of the events of an unusually interesting and exalted life; the writer has written with sympathetic appreciation of the character of a truly great and spiritual man, and the interest of the reader is sustained throughout. We trust that through this admirable little book it may be truly said, "He being dead yet speaketh."

"Only A Cousin." By Catherine Shaw. 3s. 6d. J. F. Shaw & Co. A story of everyday life, with all the everyday sin, and need, and sorrow recorded in their due proportion. With all this there are a realistic pathos and a heart-sympathy that make the book most profitable reading. Worldly life is depicted in its emptiness, and the blessed story of sinners "coming home" to Jesus is unfolded with so genuine a narration that we feel as though we could stretch out to them the hand of loving welcome. We trust Mrs. Shaw's admirable narrative will be widely read, and greatly blessed of God.

From Home Words Office: The Fireside (6d.), for January, contains a richly varied store of information for home reading, suitable to all ages. Home Words. 1d. This little serial gives, amongst other good things, "Home Lessons," for children, contributed during the present year by Rev. G. Everard. There is also the commencement of the life of Thomas Edward, the Banff Naturalist. The Day of Days (1d.) is a staunch advocate for the proper observance of the Sabbath-day. The Church Standard. 1d. This periodical gives forth no uncertain sound on the many questions that are engaging public attention, especially on the attempt to Romanise the Church of England.

Good Friday: A Chronological Mistake. By the Rev. James Gall. 1s. Gall & Inglis. Will it alarm any readers of The Christian to find that there are strong reasons for believing that the institution of Good Friday is a traditionary error? In an eminently lucid and readable manner Mr. Gall unfolds these strong reasons, and shows that the blessed though awful events which are commemorated on that day really took place on the day we call Thursday. For his arguments we must refer interested readers to the book itself, merely premising that if his reasoning be correct, it will tend to confirm the Scriptures in many points on which commentators have been unable to agree, and bring into a clearer light the literal fulfilment of the prophecy of which our Lord quoted Jonah as the antitype.

GOD'S ANSWERS. By Miss Clara M. S. LOWE. Nisbet & Co. We would that this deeply interesting record of the work of our esteemed friend Miss Macpherson and her fellow-labourers could be in every Christian home throughout the United Kingdom. It is a true and unvarnished tale, and yet we doubt if any Christian could read it without feeling his heart stirred to the very depths by its touching story of sin and suffering, rescue and salvation. The book is hallowed by reminiscences of well-known workers in the great Mission field, now in the presence of the King; it is full of the pathos of true heart-sympathy with the wandering and the outcast, and it tells of faith, hope, and love triumphing over difficulties and discouragements in the strength of the living God. Miss Lowe has brought before us the records of work in which she herself took an active part; she has done good service in giving to the world at large a condensed history of this noble work from its commencement.

THE EPISTLE TO THE EPHESIANS: ITS DOCTRINE AND ETHICS. By R. W. DALE. 7s. 6d. Hodder and Stoughton. "I have learned," says the author in his Preface, "that there are large numbers of Christian people to whom Expository Lectures of this popular kind are of more service than ordinary commentaries." And, it may be added, there are large numbers of people who would not take the trouble to study so profound a portion of Scripture as the Epistle to the Ephesians, even with the help of an ordinary commentary, who might be induced to read a well-written book such as this, giving a popular exposition from the pen of a well-known and popular preacher. For such readers we rejoice that a book of this kind may bring them into contact with the Word of God, and may on many points smooth the difficulties which present themselves to the ordinary reader. That Mr. Dale has gone deeply into the teaching of this profound Epistle we cannot affirm. His dislike to "Calvinism" leads him to confound exaggerations of the teaching so-called with the more sober statements for which the Epistle itself is responsible, and to condemn both. Thus the words "by nature the children of wrath" lead Mr. Dale to attack both the Standards of the Presbyterian Churches and the Articles of the Church of England, because in both the words are taken in their plain and obvious meaning as implying a state or condition which we inherit by birth. But Mr. Dale first exaggerates this doctrine by describing it as "the dreadful doctrine that by our mere birth we incur the Divine anger, and that apart from any voluntary wrong-doing, we are under the Divine curse. This appalling theory receives no sanction from either the Old Testament or the New." And then, as the words must mean something, explains them thus: "This terrible destiny is, I repeat, according to Paul, not their inheritance by birth, but their inheritance by choice." But a depraved "choice" may be traced back to its origin in "birth," so that there need be no such contrast between the two views—the one springs out of the other. But the innate depravity of human nature is evidently the truth which the Apostle teaches.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

From S. W. Partridge & Co.: WOMAN'S WORK. Vol. xi.

From The National Temperance Publication Depot: THE BROOKLET RECITER. By Harriet Glazebrook.

From Passmore & Alabaster: AMUSEMENT AND RECREATION. By Evangelist Hopewell.

From Elliot Stock: THE HOME PRAYER-BOOK. By Henry T. Dix; BOY LIFE. By W. Winters.

From C. Griffin & Co.: THE STORY OF THE BIBLE FOR THE YOUNG. By Charles Foster.

From J. F. Shaw & Co: IN DEFENCE. By H. Sinclair Paterson, M.D.

From J. Nisbet & Co: FILLED WITH THE SPIRIT. By the Rev. Ernest Boys; THE CHRISTIAN VISITOR'S HANDBOOK. By Rev. C. Neil; LIFE OF ARCHBISHOP TAIT. By A. C. Bickley; GOD'S ANSWERS: A Record of Miss A. MacPherson's work. By Clara M. S. Lowe; A LIFE OF CONSECRATION: Memorials of Mrs. Mary Legge. By One of her Sons.

BURMAH RAILWAY MISSION.—The work that Mrs. Ingalls has been so successfully carrying on amongst the railway men in Burmah reached another stage on Monday, December 4. On that evening, at the railway station at Letpadan, a new free library was opened for the use of the employés. There are 750 volumes, besides a number of maps, scientific instruments, &c. Rev. Dr. Cushing, Rev. W. Kidd, Lieut.-Col. S. Moncrieff, and several other friends, were present at the opening, and shortly addressed the company.

Letters to the Editor.

WHAT DO YOU READ?

DEAR SIR,—As your paper has a wide circulation among Christians, not only in England but in other countries, might it not be helpful to many if some of your readers would, through the medium of your columns, mention from time to time what books have been particularly helpful to them in their Christian walk and work?

There are many readers of your paper, I doubt not, in other lands particularly, who might thus benefit by the experience of others, as it is often very difficult for them to know what books to select to help them in their study of the Divine Word and in their work for Christ.

Might I be allowed to suggest to those workers in God's vineyard who are discouraged for want of success, to read Mr. Moody's work "Power from on High."—Yours faithfully,

A YOUNG C.M.S. MISSIONARY.

FRESH FIELDS WANTED.

DEAR SIR,—Eleven years ago the students of Regent's-park College formed a society for the two-fold purpose of helping small churches unable to support a pastor, and establishing Mission stations in and around London. In this matter we are thankful to say that we have been very successful, as our yearly reports will testify. Our work during the past year has been abundantly blessed. We are now, however earnestly desirous of new spheres of work. During the past twelve months, three churches, hitherto under our care, have seen their way clear to support a settled minister. While this is a source of gratification to us, it is in one sense a loss to our society. We are willing to supply any small churches in need of help, and Mission stations requiring occasional assistance.—Yours sincerely, Regent's-park College, London, N.W. W. E. BLOMFIELD.

"BETHSHAN."

SIR,—It seems strange that at the meetings of the friends who believe that the power to heal disease by Faith alone still remains with the disciples of the Lord Jesus, no incredulous person should have called for a medical certificate stating the nature of the disease, and a few details of the organic mischief done by the malady. And if this were followed by another medical certificate, bearing witness to the reality of the cure said to have been effected, it would go a long way towards convincing people.

These documents should come from impartial experts, men above a suspicion of prejudice, and on whose statements their medical brethren could entirely depend. And they might be produced at the meetings, if required.

As there are many cases in which disease lurks undiscovered, so, doubtless, on the other hand, mistakes have been made, which, being rectified by sufficient scientific authority, ought to help in making this question clear.

Then, again, the sufferers often themselves innocently draw conclusions for which there is no foundation, and these certificates appear likely to close the door against such errors.

It is very natural that those who have exercised saving Faith, and felt the powers of the world to come, should readily accept the honest statements made in these meetings, and believe in a power which, however, does not form a necessary part of Christian doctrine.

And certainly as many unauthorised and apparently miraculous cures are advertised daily by persons whose sole object is gain, it seems highly desirable to claim for Christianity this power, if it really exists.

The object of this brief note is to ascertain the truth, and for that end I beg to suggest that this test be applied.—Yours, &c., A SURGEON.

BIBLE READING v. HUMAN WRITINGS.

DEAR SIR,—I have only just read what you lately published under the head of "A Workhouse Hospital." I feel urged to suggest the "broken reed" of the girl who is mentioned as having said she should read "Madeline" when tempted. Surely her case must remind many of that father of whom we read in the 17th of St. Matthew, who brought his lunatic son to Christ's disciples, and found—as, doubtless, this poor woman will too—that "they could not cure." I have never forgotten one of the most devoted women I know saying to me: "At one time I used to read a chapter by Miss Havergal whenever anything troubled me, but I have learnt now that nothing really does any good except 'taking it to the Lord.'" Now, if the pure found that, how much more will the sinful! "I have laid help upon One," says God; and He alone can succour the tempted.

I have not seen the book referred to by your correspondent; but, as another visitor of the sick wards of our London infirmaries, I would plead for the power of the Holy Scriptures in preference to any human writings, except to give away before leaving. I not only read and try to explain the Bible at Ratcliff, but also pray with these "lost sheep" (so dear to the Good Shepherd), and can testify to their attention and reverence. When we remember how far removed their outcast lives are from any right influence, dare we miss the opportunity of carrying to them the only words that never return void?

For the last three weeks I have watched with indescribable interest the death-bed of one child—only twenty—whose face of utter anguish has quite darkened my own Christmas. Three months ago she was working respectably in a shop, which then failed, and in so short a time her soul was required of her. In this large city she had not a single friend to summon to her death-bed. I could not hear what she said when I saw her last Tuesday, but she could understand me. Thank God that thrice at least she heard the message of reconciliation. I only write this to prove the urgent necessity of using the best means.—Yours truly, ONE WHO WORKS AMONG THE FALLEN.

P.S.—Perhaps your readers may not know "Lucy," lately published by Mrs. Wilkes, at the request of a woman who died at "The Elms," Walthamstow, E.

PRAYER FOR FUNDS.

DEAR SIR,—Having been a reader of your valuable paper from the beginning, yes, before it was called THE CHRISTIAN, I cannot fail to notice the increasing and urgent appeals for money, all said to be for the Lord's work. I hope the few remarks I may make will not be taken as finding fault, or wishing to hinder workers or givers. For, looking back on the last fifty years that I have professed Christ, my own shortcomings would check me.

It is not so much to the giver that I would now say a few words, as to the kind, benevolent people who have taken these responsibilities upon them. I do not desire to dictate, but, as an aged brother, to give a hint or two.

Many a kind and tender heart, moved with pity, commences a work, and up to a certain point it is a success. I have seen many things that began well end in trouble; and, generally, from not observing that a law in mechanics will apply to society. That is, if the circumference is too large for the centre, the wheel will fly to pieces. The enemy to all good, who cannot prevent a good work from being commenced, will seek to push it on, that man may have something to glory in. He will get the Lord's children to seek for great things, well knowing that that will grieve the Holy Spirit, who would have Christ's followers to walk in his footsteps, who "made Himself of no reputation." If it is the Lord's work, will He not take care of his own?

Many say we are not to expect miracles in our day; but do all the texts that exhort us to "trust in the Lord" belong to the past? Are they not for us also? Surely such passages as Matt. vi. 31, Phil. iv. 6, 1 Peter v. 7, are given to the believer that his faith might be in God—now. Have we not a proof in the case of Mr. Müller of Bristol, and doubtless in the experience of many more, that God still hears and answers the prayer of faith?

It was my privilege to see and know a great deal of that man of God (Mr. Müller) some forty years ago. I then watched the Lord's work in his hands with intense interest, and though I have not seen him for the last fifteen years or more, the reports show me the Lord will honour those who honour Him. I never knew Mr. Müller do anything more than make his requests known to God; yet it is well-known that the money has come in, not only for those extensive buildings at Ashley Down, and the needs of such a large number of orphans and attendants, but for the large amount of assistance given by him to missionary and other purposes.

I think the secret of his success is this: he takes God's Word for his rule, and really rests upon its Author, who tells us to trust in Him at all times. "He that spared not his own Son . . . how shall He not with Him also freely give us all things?" (Rom. viii. 32).

Mr. Müller felt that the work was the Lord's, not his, therefore it needed no earthly patronage. I learnt his secret by a little expression from his own lips. At the time he was opening the third house in Wilson-street (long before the great houses were thought of), he was talking of visiting his father. I said, in my simplicity, "It is difficult for you to leave home just now." He looked me in the face, and with great earnestness said, "Brother, the Lord knows no difficulties." Can you wonder that this short sentence rings in my ears when I see the urgent appeals for money in THE CHRISTIAN to help the Lord's children out of their difficulties?

There is another thing which I think Mr. Müller has ever remembered, but which some of the Lord's workers may forget. The Word tells us to "seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all other things shall be added."

I will relate a little circumstance that I know to be true. Before the orphans were removed from Wilson-street, a young man, well known to Mr. Müller as being in rather an extensive way of business, but working it with much borrowed capital, called at his house. Mr. Müller asked him a few close questions respecting his business affairs, knowing that the young man was liberally disposed, and helped the poor in the district in which he lived. Mr. Müller took out his purse, which contained some gold and silver, emptied it on the table, saying, "Take that, brother, and use it for the need of the poor saints around you; but let me beg of you not to take a penny for anything out of your business until you know really how you stand with the world."

I could say more, but will not trespass further on your time and space. That these few remarks may be for the good of my younger brethren and sisters engaged in charitable work and the glory of Him they seek to serve, is the prayer of—Yours in Christ, AN OLD MAN.

Requests for Praise and Prayer.

"Rejoice evermore. Pray without ceasing. In every thing give thanks; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."—1 THESS. v. 16, 17, 18.

PRAYER.—For a blessing on the Christian Education Union during the present year.

PLACES.—For ten days' Mission-work in the parish of Holy Trinity, Armley, Leeds, Jan. 20—30, by Rev. A. R. D'Arcy.——For much blessing on the Mission of Messrs. Moody and Sankey in Birmingham, Jan. 18 to Feb. 7, and that some friends of the writer may be converted.——For a nine days' Mission at Blandford, by Mr. W. Mapstone, of the Evangelisation Society.——Lady Ogle has taken the Gaiety Theatre, at Brighton, for a few weeks longer. She requests praise for blessings on the services held, and prayer for continued blessing.

CONVERSIONS.—That all in my Sunday-school class may be brought to Jesus.——For a student of Trinity College, Dublin.——For one who has long resisted the Gospel, and is inclined to be sceptical.——For a young man, the only son of a widowed mother.——For a mother and two daughters.

Notices.

Mrs. WALLER, Lower George-street, Wexford, will be much obliged by information respecting any society for the suppression of profane swearing, with which the branch she desires to establish could be affiliated.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—G. Bickle, Evangelist, Medrose, Camelford; W. Pode, Rope-maker, Launceston; Capt. Heswell, Salvation Army, Camelford; M. Coates, Chilcombe, Bournemouth; B. Barnard, 92, Warner-street, Derby; A. Newman, The Grove, Westcote, near Dorking; T. Leadbetter, Hockley-road, Broseley, Shropshire; J. Appel, 12, Goldney-road, St. Peter's-park, Paddington, W.; Mrs. Willmot, Dursley, Gloucestershire; T. De La Mare, Post-office, Guernsey; Mrs. Barnes, Coventry House, High-street, Shipston-on-Stour; Miss E. M. Mason, High-street, Shipston-on-Stour; W. Robertson, Leslie, Fife, N.B.; H. Bridger, opposite Red House Inn, London-street, Whitchurch, Hants; F. Charlton, 36, Commodore-street, Mile-end-road; W. Ford, 2, Albion-place, Dunstable-street, Ampthill, Bedfordshire; W. Mills, High-street, Lindfield, Hayward's Heath; J. Robinson, 3, Hawthorn-villas, Sidney-road, Hayward's Heath.

Communications received with thanks—E.C.S. E.G.B. E.G. H.G. C.E.H. A Surgeon, D.S. M.C. C.R.H. H.R.F. M.W. J.W.H. A.M. G.W. L.L. M.B.J. H.M. G.F.M. F.P. M. B.S. H.C. W.G.L.M. K.Y. J.B.T. B.B. W.E.B. H.M. H. M.W. G.C.N. J.H. J.G.M. J.H. G.C.M. A.W. C.G. I. von D. W.L. S.S. M.M. S.M. W.W.W. A. McL. E.J.B. G.F.H. G.M.S. W.S. J.C.M. R.C. A.C. E.S.B. W.H. W.A. C.E. W.D. J.C. L.V. F.M.S O.S. H.F.G. J.P.G. W.T.M. H.C. G.F. K.R. E.B.S. J.S. A.M.C. E.J.M. A.K. E.D.A. B.S. K.A.S. G.W.B. W.H.M. J.T.D. H.R.W. J.R. H.M.B. W.F.S. C.W.P. C.E.H. M.A.W. A.T. J.E.M. W. H.H. D.F.W. N.A. J.K. J.S.F. S.B. J.T.M. J.R.

Forthcoming Meetings.

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY'S FORTHCOMING ENGAGEMENTS—1883—Jan. 18 to Feb. 7, Birmingham; Feb. 11 to 18, Belfast; Feb. 20 to 23, Leicester; Feb. 25 to 28, Nottingham; Mar. 1 to 15, Manchester; Mar. 16 to 30, Leeds; Mar. 31 to April 14, Liverpool.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales, on due notice. Apply, Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-st., Strand, W.C.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply, Hon. Sec., 30, Surrey-sq., S.E.

THE IRISH EVANGELIZATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

CONVERSION OF ISRAEL.—Meeting for Prayer, at 4, Guildford-place, Russell-square, each Friday at 8 p.m.

REV. W. H. AITKEN'S ENGAGEMENTS.—Jan. 21 to Feb. 7, Leeds, Canon Jackson's Church; Victoria-hall, Feb. 8 to 28; March 4 to 19, Weymouth; March 31 to April 16, Wareham; April 22 to May 6, St. Matthew's, Bayswater; May 26 to July 2, South London.

Y.M.C.A., THE PRIORY, 193, Upper-street, N.—Thursday, Jan. 18, 8 p.m., lecture on the Moravians and their Missions, with Dissolving Views, by Rev. James Henry, admission free. Wed., 6 to 10, anxious Souls and Strangers are seen by the Secretary.

EXETER HALL.—Thursday, Jan. 18, at 8 p.m., Mr. Henry Varley gives a special address to Men only, by ticket free. Sunday, 7 p.m., Special Service conducted by Mr. Henry Varley. Saturday, 8.30 p.m., Bible-reading by Col. Puget.

CONFERENCE HALL, MILDMAY PARK.—Jan. 21, at 3.30 p.m., Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7 p.m., Ned Wright.

AGRICULTURAL HALL SERVICES.—Sunday, Jan. 21, 3.30 p.m. Dr. Thain Davidson; 7 p.m., Mr. Elvin, and Miss Clark (service of song).

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—During January, Sun 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Mr. Denham Smith; also at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, W., Wednesday, at 8 p.m.

STEPNEY MEETING HOUSE, Spring Garden Place, E.—Mrs. G. S. Reaney will give an Address to Men and Women every Sunday, at 3 p.m.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.—Mr. Banaster at Bognor till Jan. 22; at Salisbury, Feb. 12 to 18; Mr. Spiers at Paignton.

THE DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—Stafford Rooms, Tichborne-street, Edgware-road, on Friday, January 19, at 3.30 p.m., Rev. W. Haslam; subject, "Rest in Believing."

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W. Friday, Jan. 19, at 7 p.m. (tea at 6 p.m.), "Deepening of Spiritual Life," Rev. A. C. D. Ryder, M.A.; Tuesday, Jan. 23, at 11.30 a.m., "Second Advent," by Miss Mason.

THE "MERCHANT'S LECTURE," Weigh House Chapel, Fish-street-hill.—Lecturer for January, Rev. Dr. Allon. Tues., at 12 noon.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN'S UNION, CLAPHAM BRANCH, 102, Clapham-road.—Prayer-meeting on the first Thursday in each month, at 3 p.m.

OPEN-AIR MISSION.—Monday, Jan. 29, quarterly meeting, Christ Church Schools, Gardiner's-lane, Westminster (near St. James's-park Station). Tea and coffee at 6 p.m. Meeting at 7 p.m. Rev. Flavel Cook, D.D. on "Altering the Gospel." Commander Dawson, R.N., Chairman.

MEETINGS FOR PROMOTION OF HOLINESS.—Mrs. Boardman's Bible-class at 11.30 a.m., every Wed. Rev. W. E. Boardman Tues. at 3, Rochester-sq., Camden-rd., 6 p.m., Conversational meetings, 7 p.m. Bible reading. 1st Tues., each month, afternoon meeting at 3.30.—Surrey Chapel, Blackfriars-road, Sat. 7.30 p.m., Rev. B. Senior presiding.—Every Mon., at 7.30 p.m., at 39, Park-lane-terrace, Albion-rd., Stoke Newington (Mildmay-park Station).—Bethshan, 10, Draytonpark, Highbury, Sun., 6.30 p.m.; Wed., 3 p.m., Holiness and Healing.—At 5, Northampton-place, Upper Holloway-road, N., Thursday, 7.30 p.m.—Croydon, Leslie-grove, Mission Room, Cherry Orchard-road, Monday, Jan. 22, 3.30 p.m., meeting for the promotion of spiritual life, conducted by Mrs. Boardman.

EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—"The Oxford" Music Hall, 6, Oxford-street, W.: Sunday, at 7 p.m., Mr. Geo. Tomkins, Subject: "Will Not; and his Loss." Mornington Hall, corner of Granby-street, Hampstead-road: Sun. at 7 p.m., and Tues. at 8 p.m., Mr. Herbert R. Francis; Mon., Tues., and Wednesday, 22nd, 23rd, and 24th inst. at 8 p.m., three special addresses by Mr. Henry Varley Kilburn Hall, Kilburn-gate (not Town Hall): Sun., 7 p.m., and Wed., 7.30 p.m., Mr. W. R. Lane, special Bible-reading by Pastor J. Wilkinson (Mildmay Mission to the Jews) every Mon. at 7.30 p.m. Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock Hill; Sun. at 7 p.m., and Thurs. at 7.30 p.m., Mr. Geo. Hucklesby. Temple of Varieties, King-street, Hammersmith: Sunday, 3.30 p.m. Mr. W. R. Lane, and Mr. E. Ives at 7 p.m. Anchor Mission Room (Upper Room), late Anchor Assembly Rooms, King-street, Hammersmith: Tues., at 8 p.m., Mr. E. Ives; Thurs. at 8 p.m., Mr. R. W. Lane. Bignold Hall, Bignold-road, Station-road, Forest-gate: Sunday, 7 p.m. (Subject: Religious Heathen), and Wed., 24, 8 p.m. (Subject: Power for Service). Mr. F. C. Spurr. Wednesday, 6.30 p.m., Children's Service. Omega Hall, Omega-place, Alpha-road, Regent's-park: Sun. at 3.30 and 7 p.m., Tues. and Fri. at 8 p.m., Messrs. W. H. Smith and J. Sprunt. 190, Alexandra-road, St. John's-wood: Wed. at 10.30 a.m., Prayer-meeting for workers. Dalston Hall, Dalston-lane, near the Juaction; Sun., 3.15 p.m. (subject: The Life of Nehemiah), Mr. J. E. Jack; and at 7 p.m. special lectures by Mr. Geo. Hucklesby, on "The Tabernacle in the Wilderness," illustrated by a model and diagrams; every Tues. at 8 p.m., and every Thurs. at 8 p.m., Mr. J. E. Jack. Saturdays, at 3 p.m., Children's service.

FALLEN ASLEEP.—On January 3, aged 73, Mr. Samuel Alexander, for many years a faithful servant of Jesus Christ in London, and during the last ten years at Berkhampstead, where he died.

Subscriptions received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Saturday Morning, January 13, 1883.

 Donations should be sent by cheque or Post-office order not by stamps. Cheques to be drawn in favour of Morgan and Scott, and crossed City Bank; P.O.O.'s payable to Morgan and Scott, at G.P.O.

	£	s.	d.
Field-lane Refuges—H. B. S. 10s.; E. Z. H. £1; E. P. 10s.; H. W. S. 5s.; H. S. S. 10s. Ragged-school—H. B. S. 10s.	3	5	0
Woman's Mission to Women—H. B. S. 10s.; E. Z. H. £1; E. J. S. £1 10s.	3	0	0
Friendless and Fallen—H. B. S. 10s.; E. Z. H. £1; H. S. S. 10s.; G. H. H. £1; E. J. S. £1 10s.; K. H. B. £2; K. P. 2s. 6d.; T. P., Clapham, 5s.; Dr. F. W. J. 15s.	7	12	6
East London Mission—H. B. S.	0	10	0
Evangelistic Mission—H. B. S.	0	10	0
China Inland Mission—H. B. S. 10s.; J. K. £1 1s.	1	11	0
George Yard Ragged School—Isaiah xli. 6, £2 10s.; J. K. £1 1s.; M. A. C. 10s.	4	1	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—H. B. S. 10s.; H. R. 10s.; H. S. S. £1; G. H. H. £1; K. H. B. £1; J. K. £1 1s.; "Thank-offering" £2; M. A. C. 10s. Inverness House—E. Z. H. £3	10	11	0
Homerton Mission—Isaiah xli. 6, £5; J. K. £1 1s.; H. B. S. 10s. Free Meals—C. L. 10s.; Dr. F. W. J. £1	8	1	0
Poor Jews (Mr. D. C. Joseph)—C. L. 10s. Hebrew Almanac—Mrs. H. £1	1	10	0
Miss Whately's Work, Cairo—C. W. R. £1 5s. School—S. T. P. 10s. Medical Mission—S. T. P. 10s.	2	5	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—C. W. R.	1	0	0
M. Armand de Lille's Work, Paris—L. M.	5	0	0
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, E.—C. W. R. £1 10s.; Dr. M., 10s.; H. G. K., £1	3	0	0
Miss Weston's Work in the Royal Navy—C. W. R. £1; H. S. S. 10s.; J. K. £1 1	2	11	0
Mr. Pascoe's Work, Mexico—Miss M.	5	0	0
Irish Evangelisation Society—Miss M.	2	10	0
Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland—Miss M.	2	10	0
Miss Leigh's Work, Paris—Miss M. £2; H. S. S. 10s.; J. K. £1 1s.	3	11	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—Miss M.	2	0	0
Dock Labourers' Mission—Free Lodgings—A. U. 2s.; O. V. C. 2s. 6d.; J. M. 1s.; G. W. B. 2s. 6d.	0	8	0
Surgical Aid Society—Isaiah xli. 6	5	0	0
Sick Children's Dinner Society—Isaiah xli. 6, £2 10s.; "Walthamstow," 2s. 6d.	2	12	6
Salvation Army—H. B. S. 10s. Paris—Miss M. £1. France—K. H. B. £2. India—K. H. B. £2	5	10	0
Gratuitous Circulation of THE CHRISTIAN—Isaiah xli. 6, £2 10s.; Mrs. S., 8d.	2	10	8
Miss Mittendorff's Home—Isaiah xli. 6	5	0	0
Homes for Working Girls—Isaiah xli. 6	5	0	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—Isaiah xli. 6, £5; C. L. M. T. £1. Missions—C. L. M. T. £1	7	0	0
Home for Worn-out Governesses, etc.—Isaiah xli. 6, £5; G. H. H. £1; E. G. S. 5s.	6	5	0
Army Scripture Readers' Society—Isaiah xli. 6	2	10	0
Cow-cross Mission—J. K. £1 1s. Poor Children's Dinners—Isaiah xli. 6, £5	6	1	0
A. Robin's Dinner—"Friend in Canada"	0	4	0
Work among Navvies (Miss Bubb)—E. H.	0	1	0
Work at Bethlehem—(Christmas Gift) E. H.	0	1	0
Books and Tracts for Egypt (Mrs. Poole)—E. H.	0	1	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—C. C. A. T. 10s.; J. McD. 3s. 1d.; M. A. G. £1; H. R. 10s.; H. S. S. 10s.; Mrs. M. H. £5; G. H. H. £1; "A Lady," 5s.; T. C. 10s.; E. H. £3; T. & A. G. £2; K. H. B. £1; J. K. £1 1s.; E. W. 10s.; K. P. 2s. 6d.; M. A. C. 10s.; R. S. T. £4	21	11	7
Gray's Yard Ragged School and Church—J. K. £1 1s. Free Meals—E. Z. H. £1	2	1	0
National Lifeboat Institution—"Walthamstow"	0	2	6
London Medical Mission—"Walthamstow"	0	2	6
Home for Blind Children (Miss Rye)—"Walthamstow"	0	2	6
Mrs. Hilton's Creche—M. K. £1; M. A. C. 10s.	1	10	0
Thames Church Mission—M. A. G.	1	0	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—H. R. 10s.; "Thank-offering" £1	1	10	0
Punrooty Mission—J. C. £1 1d.; L. M. £10.	11	0	1
Female Education in the East—S. T. P.	0	5	0
Indian Female Normal School Society, Zenana Mission—Per E. H. G.	0	10	0
Sailors' Welcome, Portsea—H. S. S.	1	0	0
Mrs. Fisher's Work among Young Women—"Anon."	5	0	0
Spitalfields Gospel Mission—"Anon.," £5: F. C. £1	6	0	0
Cancer Hospital, Brompton—G. H. H.	1	0	0
Distressed Jews in Jerusalem (Mrs. Finn)—E. T. £1; E. W. 5s.	1	5	0
Syrian Colonisation Fund—E. T.	1	0	0
Drury-lane Christian Mission—E. H.	1	0	0
Richard Weaver—J. B.	0	15	0
Asylums at La Force—E. D.	10	0	0
Mrs. Meredith's Prison Mission—T. & A. G. £1 10s.; T. P., Clapham, 5s.	1	15	0
London City Mission—K. H. B. £2; M. A. C. 10s.
Our Veterans—K. H. B. £1	3	10	0
British and Foreign Bible Society—K. H. B. £1; M. A. C. 10s.	1	10	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—K. H. B. £1; T. P., Clapham, 5s.	1	5	0
Ragged School Union—K. H. B.	1	0	0
Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth—J. K.	1	1	0
St. Giles's Christian Mission—E. Z. H. £3; Isaiah xli. 6, £5; E. P. 5s.; H. S. S. 10s.; G. H. H. £1; K. H. B. £1; J. K. £1 1s.; K. P. 2s. 6d. Prison Gate—H. B. S. 10s.; T. & A. G. £1 10s.	13	18	6
Home of Industry—J. K.	1	1	0
Rev. R. W. McAll's Work, Paris—J. K.	1	1	0
British Syrian Schools—J. K.	1	1	0
Church Missionary Society—C. L. M. T.	1	0	0
Working Men's Lord's Day Rest Association—C. L. M. T.	1	0	0
Mrs. Ginever's Orphan Home—E. G. S.	0	5	0
Miss Cole's Orphan Home—T. P., Clapham	0	5	0
Mr. Toye's Orphanage—M. A. C.	1	0	0
Rescue of English Girls (Mr. Dyer)—Dr. F. W. J.	0	15	0
	£216	5	4

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

St. Giles' Christian Mission—Work amongst Discharged Prisoners—T. H. B. £2 10s.

Widows' Friend Society (11, Laurence Pountney-lane, City)—Mrs. Pease, £1; Messrs. Barclay, Bevan & Co., £5; Miss M. Cooper, £5. CHAS. E. CÆSAR, Secretary.

The London Samaritan Society and Homerton Mission—For Destitute Poor—E. H., Naples, £2; Anon., Haddington, 7s.; S. D. £5; Broseley, 1s. 3d.

Help in Time of Need.

MR. BARLOW KENNETT offers £50 to Mrs. Parsons, for her Work among the Orphans, on condition that £150 more can be obtained within two months, in any sums, large or small.

As Money for the Homes is URGENTLY NEEDED, friends are earnestly asked to respond speedily to this generous offer.

CUMBERLAND HOUSE,
WALTHAMSTOW, ESSEX.

JOHN WINSOME'S HOME; or, Hints and Helps to Christian Parents in their Endeavour to Train their Children in the way in which they should go. By the Rev. J. E. SAMPSON, Vicar of Barrow-on-Humber, Hull. Cloth, price 1s.
LONDON: PARTRIDGE & CO., PATERNOSTER ROW.

BUTTER'S SPELLING.
Four hundred and sixteenth Edition, 1s. 6d.
BUTTER'S READING AND SPELLING IN EASY GRADATIONS, on an Original Plan, making Words of two Syllables as easy as those of one. Seventy-eighth Edition, 1s. 6d.
SIMPKIN, MARSHALL & CO.; and all Booksellers.

A CHRISTIAN CONVENTION

For Prayer and Conference concerningthe present crisis in the movement for the abolition of the State Regulation of Vice, will be held on WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY, January 24th and 25th, on the capacious premises of the Society of Friends, at DEVONSHIRE HOUSE, Bishopsgate, London. (Entrances—12, Bishopsgate-street Without, and in Houndsditch.)

The proceedings will commence each morning with a meeting for prayer, from 9.30 to 10.45, open to both men and women. The other sittings will be from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., and from 2.30 to 4.30 p.m.

Tickets of admission can be had on application to Alfred S. Dyer, Secretary, Amen Corner, Paternoster-row, London.

PUBLIC MEETINGS IN CONNECTION WITH THE CONVENTION.

On Thursday Evening, January 25th, a Public Meeting will be held at Exeter Hall, London. Among the speakers will be His Excellency Sir John Pope Hennessey, K.C.M.G., Governor of Mauritius, and late Governor of Hong Kong; William Fowler, Esq., M.P.; Professor James Stuart, M.A., LL.B., of Cambridge; Mr. Henry Varley, one of the Editors of The Christian Commonwealth; Rev. H. P. Hughes, M.A., of Oxford, and Mrs. Josephine E. Butler. The Chair will be taken at 7.30, by Sir Thomas Chambers, Q.C., M.P., Recorder of London. Doors open at 7. For Adults only.

On Wednesday Evening, January 24th, a Public Meeting, for men only, will be held in the East London Tabernacle, Burdett-road, Mile End, London. Speakers:—Benjamin Scott, Esq., F.R.A.S., Chamberlain of London; Mr. Alderman Rees, J.P., of Dover; R. C. Morgan, Esq., Editor of The Christian; Rev. J. Jenkyn Brown, President of the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Ireland; Rev. J. P. Gledstone; Henry J. Wilson, Esq., J.P., of Sheffield; Pastor G. Appia, of Paris; and Pastor Archibald G. Brown. Chair will be taken at 8 o'clock by T. A. Denny, Esq. Doors open at 7.30.

On Wednesday Evening, January 24th, also, a Public Meeting for women only, will be held in the Great Assembly Hall, Mile End Road, London (kindly lent by Frederick N. Charrington, Esq.) The Chair will be taken at 8 o'clock by Mrs. Hind Smith. Doors open at 7.15.

To the Former Subscribers to the Funds of the "Cow Cross Mission."

DEAR FRIENDS,

I regret to say, through failing funds and the death of our old friend, Major Cooper-Gardiner, of "The Destitute Children's Dinner Society," we find ourselves at this moment absolutely penniless, in mid-winter, in the centre of this vast metropolis, surrounded by some sad, very sad, cases of poverty—even amongst them who are of the "household of faith."

I have made promises to my people to carry on the Halfpenny Dinners during January, February, and March, but unless considerable help is immediately forthcoming (we dare not go into debt) I see no alternative but to close the doors upon the little ones at the end of the present week.

Yours in the risen coming ONE,
WILLIAM CATLIN, Gen. Supt.,
17, Claremont Square, Pentonville, N.

Monday, January 15th, 1883.

THE ANCHORAGE.

Hebrews vi. 19.

SPECIAL BRANCH of the MISSION OF HOPE AND HELP.

For the reception of the more respectable class of young women in trouble.

Conversion of heart, according to the simple Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, is the one thing prayerfully and faithfully sought.

The young women are fitted for resuming their position in life, by thorough instruction in household duties, cookery, dressmaking, fine laundry work, &c. &c.

A full description of the work of the Mission, with regulations for admission to the "Anchorage," will be sent on application by letter to MRS. H. STUART-WORTLEY, Rosslyn House, Grove End Road, N.W. (President of the Ladies' Committee), to whom, or to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, subscriptions may be sent.

SECOND ISSUE OF CAPITAL AT PAR.

THE LAND & HOUSE PROPERTY
CORPORATION, Limited.
Capital £1,000,000, in 200,000 Shares, £5 each.

DIRECTORS.

The Right Hon. the LORD MAYOR (Alderman Henry Edmund Knight), Chairman.
Edwin Fox, Esq (FOX & Bousfield), 99, Gresham-street, E.C. (Director, Grand Junction Water-works).
The Hon. Reginald A. Capel, Little Cassiobury, Watford (Director, Great Northern Railway Company).
Charles Horsley, Esq., C.E., 21 and 22, Wharf-road, City-road, N.
James Carlile McCoan, Esq., M.P., 42, Notting-hill-square, W.
William Alves Raikes, Esq., 12, King's Bench walk, Temple, E.C.
Vincent Biscoe Tritton, Esq., 63, St. George's-square, S.W. (Director, Southwark and Vauxhall Water Company).

DIVIDEND of 5 PER CENT. PAID for PAST YEAR.

The satisfactory results attained by kindred institutions are evidence that the profits will be very considerably increased as the operations of the Corporation extend.

FIRST ISSUE of 20,000 SHARES (£100,000) completed.

SECOND ISSUE of 20 000 SHARES NOW OFFERED at PAR.

Allotments will be made according to priority of Application, and it is not expected that any further Issues will be made, except at a premium.

Payable 10s. on Application, 10s on Allotment, and balance in calls not exceeding £2 each, at not less than one month's notice

Forms of Application and copy of last Report, &c., at the Company's Bankers, or at their Offices, 28 and 29, Cheapside, E.C.

WILLIAM C. MCLEWIN, Secretary.

BRYANT & MAY'S MATCHES.

Works by D. L. Moody.

Power from on High; or, The Secret of Success in Christian Life and Christian Work. By D. L. MOODY. TWELFTH THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"This series of earnest and solemn Addresses bear throughout that stamp of honest, eager earnestness, which is so striking a characteristic of the writer's labours as a preacher."—Clerical World.

"Every page is full of stimulating thought for Christian Workers."—Commonwealth.

"A stirring and timely little book, by the American preacher, Mr. Moody. It is a good statement of the secret of success in Christian life and work, by one who has some claim to speak on such a theme."—The Outlook.

Addresses by D. L. Moody. Revised.

HUNDRED AND FIRST THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"With the effect of these Addresses when spoken the whole land is acquainted, and now that they are written they will tend to keep in force the impression they have already made. The book is clearly printed, on good paper, is handy in form, and is sure of a wide circulation."—Primitive Methodist.

The Faithful Saying. A Series of Addresses. By D. L. MOODY. EIGHTH THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Fresh, direct, pictorial, and powerful; they are admirable examples of the readiest way to reach the hearts of men with the truths of Christ."
General Baptist Magazine.

"These discourses are full of power and homely beauty, and exemplify very fully the strong points of the great evangelist. Nothing surprises us more in Mr. MOODY than his marvellous power of illustration. His anecdotes are so fresh, so pointed, and touching."—King's Highway.

Heaven; Its Hopes, its Inhabitants, its Riches, its Rewards. By D. L. MOODY. THIRTY-SECOND THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Practical, full of anecdotes and point, and in many circles calculated to be of much service."—The Friend.

"Scattered throughout this volume are many direct home-thrusts at fashionable follies, many sharp rebukes of unrighteousness, much serious and urgent exhortations to Christliness of life, and many solemn warnings of the sad consequences of disregarding the love and mercy of the Saviour."—Primitive Methodist.

The Second Coming of Christ. By

D. L. MOODY. EIGHTH THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 4d.; Cloth Limp, 6d.

CHEAP EDITION, for General Distribution, 2s. per doz., post free.

"The moment a man takes hold of the truth that Jesus is coming back again to receive his followers to Himself, this world loses its hold upon him. Gas stocks, and water stocks, and stocks in banks and railroads, are of very much less consequence to him then. His heart is free, and he looks for the blessed appearing of his Lord, who, at his coming, will take him into his blessed Kingdom."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ONE PENNY. 12 Copies and Upwards sent Post Free. 7s. per 100.

"The Christian" Almanack

FOR 1883.

WITH SEVEN STRIKING ILLUSTRATIONS.

Grandmother's Bibles.	"Little Children Love One Another."
A Train Delayed by Prayer	Are you Safe?
Harvest Time.	Doing Good.
Little Sermons.

"The Christian" Almanack, in addition to the above illustrations, contains a carefully-selected Text of Scripture for each day in the year, and Descriptive Letterpress for all the Engravings. Also Postal Regulations, Changes of the Moon, &c. &c., and is an attractive Almanack for the Walls of Mission Hall or Cottage.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Attractively bound in White and Gold, price 2s. 6d., post free.

MARRIAGE AND HOME.

A VOLUME OF KINDLY COUNSELS TO THE NEWLY MARRIED.

"A marriage gift, to show the nature of marriage in the Lord, and to help young husbands and wives to live together unto Him in all things. A very neat little book."—British Messenger.

"Full of wise counsel and Christian teaching. There is certainly no better book for a bridal present."—The Freeman.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Handsome Gift Books.

THE LARGE-TYPE QUARTO EDITION OF

Sacred Songs and Solos. Enlarged Edition, 271

Pieces. Music and Words. Specially prepared for use at the Organ, Piano, or Harmonium. Cloth Elegant, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 10s. 6d.; handsomely bound in Morocco, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 17s. 6d.

"This beautiful edition of old favourites is a splendid specimen of music typography. A capital arrangement for piano or organ. We wish it wide circulation."
Penuel.

"The typography, paper, &c., is everything that can be wished."
Methodist New Connexion Magazine.

Foxe's Book of Martyrs. A Complete and Authentic

Account of the Lives, Sufferings, and Triumphant Deaths of Primitive and Protestant Martyrs in all parts of the World. With Illustrations. Complete, handsomely bound in cloth, 10s. 6d.

At a time like the present, when, in Great Britain, Popery, and its evil progeny Ritualism, are both insidiously and openly seeking to gain the supremacy, it is necessary to the well-being of our country that the story of FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS should be regarded as an essential part of the education of our children. The issue of the present edition, at a low price, and in the convenient form of MONTHLY PARTS (16 parts at 6d. each), places this valued book within the reach of almost everyone.

Cruden's Concordance to the Old and New

TESTAMENTS. Handsomely bound in cloth, price 7s. 6d. Popular Edition, cloth, 5s.

THE SPECIAL FEATURE in this Edition is the NEW TRANSLATION, Revision, and Extension of the PROPER NAMES of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENTS, with their Meanings in the Original Languages. By Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A., Author of "The Proper Names of the Old Testament Scriptures, Expounded and Illustrated."

For nearly a century and a half CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE has held its place in public estimation. No minister's study has been deemed to be properly furnished without possessing a copy of this treasured book.

Searching the Scriptures in Order to ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also, Suggestions for Bible Reading and Study, and a PLAN for CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING. By Dr. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S., London. Cloth, bevelled boards, price 3s. 6d.

"It is impossible to speak too highly of this volume, which is the result of immense labour and consecrated talent. To the Bible Student, the Sunday-school Teacher, or Local Preacher, its aid is indispensable, for it is the most able condensation of larger and numerous works, which places it within the reach of all who aspire to become mighty in the Scriptures, and always ready to give a reason for the hope which is in them."—Christian Age.

John, whom Jesus Loved. Sketch of the Character,

Writings, Theology, and Influence of the Beloved Disciple. New and Enlarged Edition. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. With Chromo-Lithographic Views of the "Sea of Galilee" and the "Isle of Patmos." Cloth, bevelled boards, 3s. 6d.

"This is not a book to be taken up lightly, read hurriedly, and carelessly dismissed. It merits, and will reward, a quiet, thoughtful perusal."—The Record.

"Thy First Love." Christ's Message to Ephesus. By Rev.

Dr. CULROSS. With Chromo-Lithographic Frontispiece. Cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"A clear and thoughtful exposition. Dr. Culross writes in an easy, interesting manner; sometimes quaintly, always pointedly. Many a laggard in the heavenly race would be stirred to activity by reading Dr. Culross' exposition."—Penuel.

"Behold, I stand at the Door, and Knock."

Christ's Message to Laodicea. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. Tinted covers, 1s. cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"A most opportune book. Would that every professing Christian would thoughtfully and prayerfully peruse it. Sunday-school teachers also would find it immensely stimulating and reviving."—Hive.

Notes for Bible Readings. A Collection of over Six Hundred Subjects, carefully compiled and arranged. Suitable for Bible Readings, Cottage Lectures, Sermons, Addresses, Sabbath-school Lessons, &c. Cloth, bevelled boards, 3s. 6d. A cheap edition may also be had in tinted cover, 2s. 6d.

"This is a book which every Bible student should possess. It will be of special value to the class-teacher, and an assistance also to the preacher. It brings together an immense number of subjects, with groupings of Scripture texts on each. It supplies valuable matter for private meditation; and those who conduct Bible readings will find it most suggestive."—Christian Progress.

Christ Lifted Up. By Rev. ROBERT GILCHRIST. Handsomely bound in cloth, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.

"Mr. Gilchrist preaches a full Gospel. The fulness of Christ for every need of fallen humanity is set forth in a clear and convincing and attractive manner."
Christian World.

"Old-fashioned divinity presented in a pleasing form. May its readers be many.
Sword and Trowel

The Gospel according to Moses: as seen in the Tabernacle and its Various Services. By Rev. GEORGE RODGERS. Frontispiece. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s.

"No young Christian, and especially no preacher, should be ignorant of the truth which this small volume very simply but very forcibly enunciates."—The Record.

LONDON:
MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

(Continued from page 3.)

To Let, Apartments, &c.

EASTBOURNE. — Comfortable apartments, consisting of large drawing-room with bed-rooms. Best part of town, close to Devonshire Park, baths, and sea. Very moderate terms. References exchanged.—G. J. A., Handel House, 2, Compton-street, Devonshire-place.

LATE ABODE OF FAITH.—Mrs. DALBY has in her private residence vacancies for two young Ladies who cannot remain at home, or those mentally incapacitated (childish), not insane cases. Terms, two guineas weekly.
3, Oppidans-road, Primrose-hill.

HYDROPATHY.—Dr. OWEN'S establishment, "The Arboretum," Leamington. The mansion is built on gravel, and heated throughout by warm air, which makes it a perfect winter residence for visitors and patients. Electric and all other baths.

INTEMPERANCE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, &c.—Private Home for limited number of Ladies, in a desirable Winter locality. Experienced medical treatment. Christian influence, judicious supervision, and home comforts.
MEDICUS, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

PRIVATE HOME for Deaf and Dumb Ladies. Congenial society and every domestic comfort.—Mrs. THOMAS, 8, Burlington-buildings, Redland, Bristol.

A DOCTOR IN PRACTICE, Crystal Palace district, is open to give board, residence, and medical attention to one or two Invalids, or persons needing attention; to such, a bright, cheerful Christian home is offered. Terms reasonable. Highest references.—DOCTOR, Mrs Gearing, Lordship-terrace, Lordship-lane, S.E.

HASTINGS, Castle House.—Select boarding establishment. Land and sea views. Sheltered situation. Three minutes from sea. Home comforts. Terms moderate.
Apply to the Misses BIRD and PINDER.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Private Boarding House. South aspect, facing the sea. Specially suited to Invalids and delicate people during the winter months. Excellent references. For terms address—
Miss SMITH, Cleve House, 79, Marina.

KONIGSHEIM, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—A temporary residence for Lady Christian workers, or those engaged in tuition, who wish to make a short stay in a quiet Christian home, at a pleasant watering-place.—Further particulars to be obtained from the LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

TORQUAY.—Board and residence, with home comforts, in a pleasantly situated, detached villa. Terms moderate.
BETA, Tucker, Stationer, Lucius-st., Torquay.

Apartments, &c., Wanted.

A LADY wishes to share a house, unfurnished, with a private family, near Gloucester-terrace, Hyde-park.
A., 15, Oxford-terrace, Hyde-park.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE required by a Lady in a cheerful Christian home, not boarding house. London or suburbs preferred. Terms moderate and inclusive.
M. A., Belmore House, Cheltenham.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian again earnestly invites such to write.
EVANGELIST. Clapham, S.W.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a remedy for affording immediate relief.
C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

PIANOFORTE by Collard & Collard. — Sweet-toned, full compass cottage trichord, cost 63 guineas, to be sold for 35 guineas. Another in walnut, 23 guineas. American Organ, 11 stops, rich tone, 26 guineas. Beautiful condition; sent on approval. Real bargains.—Gloucester House, Bowes-park, N.

A SET OF DIAGRAMS on the PILGRIM FATHERS wanted.—Apply, stating number, condition, and price, to Rev. W. SUMMERS, The Manse, Mere, Bath.

A CLERGYMAN working populous district would deeply value the voluntary help of a godly brother or sister to kindly take the Organ in Mission Church.—H. M., care of Mr. ROGERS, 46, Thornhill-road, N.

WASHING.—Wanted by an experienced Laundress, a few families' washing. Good supply of water, good drying ground, open to fields. Terms moderate. Good references.
Mrs. HODSON, 34, Walmer-road, W.

PORTRAITS! PORTRAITS!! PORTRAITS!!! Faithfully painted in oils from one guinea. Testimonials post free. Send approved Photograph.—G. R. GILL, 26, Leighton-road, London, N.W. 2 Thess. v. 25.

CURE FOR DIABETES, BRIGHT'S LIVER, DROPSY, AND KIDNEY DISEASES, by GLENN'S and Bethesda Mineral Waters. Cure for Bronchitis, Asthma, and Chest Complaints, by ALLEN'S Euphorbia. Testimonials by Physicians, Ministers, &c., from Rev. T. PENROSE, Reading.

FRANCIS' BRONCHIAL PROTECTOR
Registered.
For BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, TIGHT BREATHING, all THROAT COMPLAINTS. } SURE REMEDY
Mr. J. D. Fisher, Chemist, Blackpool, says:—"I have tried it myself, and have received great benefit from it. My customers speak highly of its virtues." Of Chemists, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., or for Stamps sent to
FRANCIS & CO., Belgrave Gate, LEICESTER

Publications.

NEW YEAR'S BOOKS FOR 1883,
With Covers beautifully printed in Chromo-Lithography, 32 pages. One Penny each, or 1s. per dozen.

DO IT NOW: A New Year's Motto. By the Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A., Wolverhampton.

BE IN TIME: A New Year's Address to the Young. By J. FORBES MONCRIEFF.

GOSPEL BOOKS with Covers beautifully printed in Chromo-Lithography. By the Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. In Two Packets, 6d. each. Packet I. contains:—1. Do It Now. 2. The Four Looks. 3. Crossing the Bridge. 4. The Heavenly Ladder. 5. The Door Open and the Door Shut. 6. Deepen the Well.
Packet II. contains:—7. All for Christ. 8. Shine as Lights. 9. The Blood More Precious than Gold. 10. Nearer to Thee. 11. The Four Alls. 12. A Christian's Prayer in Six Words.

BLUE RIBBON SERIES. Twelve little 8-page Books, Illustrated, Tinted Paper. By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. Packet of 50, assorted, 6d.

WELCOME TO JESUS. Four-page Floral Tracts, with beautiful design, printed in Chromo-Lithography, on first page. By C. H. SPURGEON. Two Packets of 32 Tracts each 6d. per Packet.

CROWN SERIES. Twelve Illustrated Little Books, 16 pages, Tinted paper. Packet of one each, 6d.

ARMY SERIES.—Six Illustrated Little Books for Soldiers. 16 pages, Tinted paper. Packet of 12, assorted, 6d.

COURT LEAFLETS. On thick cream-coloured paper, with coloured border, 4 pages. Packet III., 50 copies, assorted, 6d.

COME TO JESUS. Four-page floral Tracts, with beautiful design printed in Chromo-Lithography on first page. Two packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per packet.

THE SINNER'S FRIEND. Four-page Floral Tracts, as above. Two packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per packet.

THE CHRISTIAN SOLDIER. Thoughts suggested by the War. By Rev. A. R. M. FINLAYSON, Alderley Edge. 32 pages. Price 1d

Illustrated Monthly Periodicals.

THE BRITISH MESSENGER. Price 1d.
THE GOSPEL TRUMPET. Price ½d., or 3s. 6d. per 100.
GOOD NEWS. Price ¼d., 3 for 1d., or 2s. 6d. per 100.
The three Periodicals for one year 2s. 6d.
DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling, N.B.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.

Now Ready, Four Pages 4to., price 2s. per 100; 18s. 6d. per 1,000.

A NEW YEAR'S GIFT FOR 1883.

A Collection of Gospel Invitations, Tender Warnings, and Earnest Exhortations, in Prose and Poetry.

STRIKINGLY ILLUSTRATED.

CONTENTS.

WHAT ARE YOU GOOD FOR? A Question for the New Year. (Will full-page Illustration.)
A NEW YEAR'S HYMN.
REST ON THE SABBATH.
CALL ON CHRIST.
COME. (Poetry.)
THE KNOWLEDGE OF GOD.
CARVING A NAME. (Illustrated.)

The "NEW YEAR'S GIFT" is issued for the purpose of enabling Christians to send their unconverted friends and acquaintances a few loving words appropriate to the season, by which they may see their sad condition, and turn to Him who alone is able to pardon and cleanse. The present issue bears an attractive appearance, and it is hoped that, with the Divine blessing, many may be led, through its short, pointed appeals, to surrender their hearts to Christ.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

In Handsomely Illuminated Covers. Price One Shilling.

The Herald of Mercy

VOLUME FOR 1882.

Profusely Illustrated.

The Yearly Volume of the "Herald of Mercy" is a rich storehouse of stirring Narratives, Sketches of Real Life, Solemn Warnings, Tender Invitations, Poetry, &c.: and, being bound in a neat and attractive cover, will be found a suitable book either for lending or giving away. "THE CHILDREN'S PAGE" forms a feature of this year's volume: twelve pages are devoted to short stories and poems specially adapted to youthful minds.

"Contains many simple and touching evangelistic papers, largely illustrated by anecdotes."—The Friend.

"This is one of the most attractive as well as affective magazines of a purely evangelistic nature we have ever seen. The fulness of God's mercy, the blessedness of accepting and the danger of rejecting it, are most strikingly set forth by narrative, appeal, illustration, and poetry. The pictures are admirable."—Wesleyan Methodist Magazine.

"We know of nothing better for a Sunday-school reward or present to cottagers. Rich and poor alike may read it with profit."—United Methodist Free Churches Magazine

"The yearly volume contains much excellent reading, well calculated to call attention to the most important of all topics."—The Rock.

"Really a valuable collection of interesting and instructive matter, well calculated to be widely useful."—Good Templars' Watchword.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Bagster's Bibles

IN FRENCH MOROCCO CIRCUIT. ELASTIC BAND. Facsimile, Maps, References, Help 4/-

MY RAMBLE THROUGH BIBLE LANDS, 1882. 1s., post free, from the author, W. J. RIDGES, Wolverhampton.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM, as contained in the Word of God, by FRANK H. WHITE. S. W. Partridge & Co. Post free 4½d., of Mr. Joseph Everett, 75, Cornwall-road, London, W. "The best little book on Baptism it has ever been our lot to read."—Messiah's Witness.

MRS. GRIMKÈ'S TEXT CARDS,

A MISSION TO MANY LANDS.

New varieties suited for the Season at 3s., 2s. 6d., 2s., and 1s. 6d. the 100. Also photographs, lithographs, quilt texts, &c. Nos. 1 and 2, Lighthouse Tracts, 4s. per 100. For list send stamped envelope to Prestwich, Manchester.

Twelfth Edition, Post-free, 1s.

DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c., 5, Bulstrode-street, Cavendish-square, London.
London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

WASHING WANTED by a thoroughly experienced laundress. Small things by the dozen. Good grounds. Plenty of water. All work punctually sent home on Friday. No machinery.—S. W., 13, Silchester-terrace, Kensington-park, Notting-hill.

SERIES OF SMALL BOOKS.

NETTIE'S MISSION

A Set of 6 Books, suitable for Birthday Gifts, Rewards, &c., for the Young.

Cloth Boards, 6d. each

Superior Edition, Toned Paper, 1s. each.
NETTIE'S MISSION; or, "Hallowed be Thy Name."
LITTLE MARGERY; or, "Thy Kingdom Come."
MARGERY'S HOME; or, "Thy Will be Done."
MAGGIE RILEY; or, "Give us this Day our Daily Bread."
ROSY CONROY; or, "Forgive us our Debts."
NED DOLAN; or, "Lead us not into Temptation."

The Set may be had in a Neat Box, price 3s.

"A story of the right sort. Short, telling, with a thoroughly sound, moral, and religious ring about it."—From a Review of "NED DOLAN" in the Sword and Trowel.

"Without exception, among the very best books for children ever published. Nothing better as gift books for the young can be desired."—The Hive.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, Paternoster-buildings
and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

McCALL'S PAYSANDU OX-TONGUES.

IN TINS, READY FOR IMMEDIATE USE.
Sold by all Grocers.

Terms for Advertisements IN "The Christian" (PREPAID.)

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding 30 Words	3	0
,, 39 ,, ...	3	9
,, 48 ,, ...	4	6

And 2d. for every additional line of nine words or under. The address being in all cases charged for.
Scale for larger Advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

To prevent disappointment, it is necessary to say that in no case must Letters be addressed to a Post-office, unless permission be previously obtained at such Post-office.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive and forward Replies to Advertisements.

☞ In order to secure insertion of Advertisements in the following number of THE CHRISTIAN they should reach this office on or before Friday, and at the latest by Saturday Morning first post.

"The Christian."

SUBSCRIPTIONS for 3, 6 or 12 Months.

INCLUDING ANY DOUBLE NUMBERS.

			£	s.
13 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	.. ..	0	1	9
2 Copies ,,	1d.	.. ..	0	3	5
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	.. ..	0	5	2
4 ,, ,,	2d.	.. ..	0	6	10
26 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	.. ..	0	3	5
2 Copies ,,	1d.	.. ..	0	6	10
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	.. ..	0	10	3
4 ,, ,,	2d.	.. ..	0	13	8
52 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	.. ..	0	6	10
2 Copies ,,	1d.	.. ..	0	13	8
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	.. ..	1	0	6
4 ,, ,,	2d.	.. ..	1	7	4

CONSUMPTION

AND ALL OTHER

CHEST DISEASES.

MR. G. T. CONGREVE'S NEW WORK.

POST FREE SIXPENCE, or LARGE EDITION, 1s. (Post Free 1s. 3d.), from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, PATERNOSTER ROW; or from the AUTHOR, COOMBE LODGE, PECKHAM, S.E.

THE Editor of the Christian Age says:—"THIS MARVELLOUS WORK touches the sympathies of human hearts everywhere." "Here is hope for the despairing."

ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES ARE GIVEN IN THE BOOK.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"

WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will select ONE (at least) recent case, not published before, for publication in this Journal every week.

Case for this Week.

EXTRACTS from LETTER of REV. B. DAIN, DOUGLAS (1st Circuit), ISLE OF MAN.

Writing me for a deserving case, and requesting me to supply medicine at my usual reduction for the poor, Mr. Dain says: "I have sent for more than twenty bottles altogether of your largest size. I have not known a single case of failure when duly persevered with."

Writing me again, Oct. 10, 1882, he says: "You are quite at liberty to publish my letter, and may add that I have received great benefit myself, as well as several members of my family."

NOTICE.—The times for personal Consultation at Coombe Lodge, are TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY MORNINGS ONLY (Country patients had better select one of the two former days.) Mr. Congreve's son-in-law, J. Alex. Brown, M.R.C.S., L.S.A., is now associated with him.

BIBLE READINGS,

By HENRY MOORHOUSE.

Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.

"We do not wonder that those who heard Moorhouse's Bible Readings found them full of power and suggestion. To him the Word of God was a sword—the only one worth using in spiritual warfare."—Liverpool Courier.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And of all Booksellers.

THE BRISTOL ORPHAN HOUSES.

The Rise and Progress of the Orphan Homes, Ashley Down, Bristol, under the direction of Mr. GEORGE MÜLLER. With Five Illustrations of the Homes. Tinted Covers, 2s.; Cloth, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

FIFTH THOUSAND.

"This is a fourth and enlarged edition of the history of one of the most remarkable movements of modern times. The book was written without the knowledge of Mr. Müller, and is therefore an independent testimony to the work he has been honoured to achieve. It is full of interest."—Freeman.

"A most marvellous record of faith in God."
Sunday-school Teacher.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

Fry's Cocoa Extract

Guaranteed Pure.

"If properly prepared, there is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.
"Strictly pure, and well-manufactured."—W. W. Stoddart.
"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin.

SIXTEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED.

Third Edition. Post-free, Twelve Stamps.

SKIN DISEASES.

A Practical TREATISE explaining the Causes, TREATMENT and CURE of these Diseases; with directions for Diet and Baths. These Essays describe fully all the various forms of Skin Diseases. By S. BERRY NIBLETT, Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians. Published by Mr. Williams, 10, Oxford Terrace, Hyde Park, London.

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION

After many years' trial is universally pronounced by Physicians and Doctors to be the most valuable and successful preparation ever recommended in the treatment of Consumption and all wasting diseases. Dr. ALABONE, of Lynton House, Highbury Quadrant, N., in his treatise, "Consumption: its Cure by an entirely New Remedy," states: "I have rarely ever found the Emulsion fail in arresting the rapid wasting of consumptive patients, and to increase flesh and strength. I have recommended it to some thousands of patients, with marvellous results." Send for copy of testimonials received from Doctors, Clergymen, Ministers, and late sufferers, of its wonderful effects. Price 4s. 6d., 11s., and 21s. per bottle. Considerable saving is effected by taking the larger sizes. To be obtained at all Chemists. Wholesale—BARCLAY & SONS, Farringdon-street, E.C.; or from the Proprietor, W. B. TRICK, A.P.S. Chemist, 92, Green-lanes, London, N.

Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth, 1s.

BOOKS FOR ENQUIRERS AND CONVERTS.

Young Converts; or, Beginners in Zion's Ways. By Rev. R. BOYD, D.D. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

I have been continually asked by young converts where they could get a book in which they might find advice that would be helpful to them. This book seemed just the thing needed at this time. I have known the author, Rev. Dr. Boyd, for many years as a dear father in Israel. I have read his work carefully, and recommend it to all young Christians for prayerful meditation." D. L. Moody

The Way of Life. A Book for Enquirers. By Rev. ROBERT BOYD, D.D. Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth Boards, 1s.

"About fifteen years ago this little book attracted my notice. I read it with interest, and felt so much profited that I re-read it several times, and then circulated hundreds of copies among the soldiers during the American war. The number that then seemed blessed through reading the book has induced me to ask Messrs. Morgan & Scott to republish it, hoping that it may be the means of good in this country, as it has been in America." D. L. Moody

All About Jesus. Thoughts and Reflections on the Person and Work of Christ. By ALEXANDER DICKSON. This book was printed at the express desire of Mr. D. L. MOODY. Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s. 6d.

"The volume sets forth Jesus very much in Scriptural language, for we have counted over 1340 passages of Holy Writ, chastely and lovingly interwoven in the discourses. Throughout, Jesus is the subject of delightful meditation, affection, and adoration."
The Methodist.

Addresses to Young Men. By Rev. DANIEL BAKER. With preface by D. L. MOODY. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

"These discourses were designed to be of an awakening character. They were preached (in substance) in numerous revivals, and were blessed to the hopeful conversion of many precious souls, of whom some fifty or more have become ministers of the Gospel. May He who was pleased to bless these discourses when they came from the pulpit, bless them also now." AUTHOR'S PREFACE.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be had of any Bookseller.

Tinted Covers, 4d.; cloth, 6d.

FROM STRENGTH TO STRENGTH.

Four Addresses to Young Believers.

By Rev. ANDREW A. BONAR, D.D., Of Glasgow.

(Reprinted from "The Christian.")

Delivered in connection with Messrs. MOODY & SANKEY'S Meetings in Glasgow.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C. And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Complete in One Volume, Handsomely Bound in Cloth extra, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, Price 7s. 6d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS, No. 2.

IN QUARTO SIZE.

Giving the 170 New and Additional Pieces (numbered from 272 to 441).

LARGE TYPE, SUITABLE FOR ORGAN, HARMONIUM, OR PIANO.

Uniform with the Quarto Edition of No. 1 Book of 271 Pieces.

The issue of the New Pieces of SONGS AND SOLOS, of which there are 170, is uniform with the Quarto Edition of the earlier pieces (of which there were 271). By the present publication the new tunes can be obtained in a convenient form for the instrument. And those who already possess the original work can complete their sets, by ordering this edition of the later pieces.

The book will also be published in Eleven Monthly Parts at 6d. each. Part III. now ready.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"The Christian" will be sent by the Publishers post-free to any address in the United Kingdom, for 12 months, for 6s. 10d., including Double Numbers.
"The Christian" (weekly) and the HERALD OF MERCY (monthly) will be sent to the United States or Canada, for 12 months for $2, which may be remitted by a Two-Dollar Bill

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 678.] THURSDAY, JANUARY 25, 1883. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

CONTENTS.

The Churches in Relation to Evangelistic Work 5	Co-Operation, not Competition 8	An Appeal for Missionaries 13	Miss Mittendorf's Orphan Home ...16
Thames Church Mission 5	Bible Readings on the Holy Spirit. 9	Cheer for Distant Workers.....13	The Gospel in France 16
National Blessings. By Rev. Dr. Edmond 6	Our Women and Children 10	Messrs. Moody and Sankey 14	Aged Poor at the "Edinburgh Castle" 17
Moral and Spiritual Deserts. By Rev. Thomas Brockway..... 6	Medical Mission to Mohammedans.10	Legalised Vice in the Colonies 15	Two Hints to Young Evangelists ...17
	For the Young 11	The Late Mrs. Brealey 15	Poetry.—"Lord, Is it good to be here" 17
	Poetry—Jesus, Our Rest 11	Asiatic Rest, Limehouse 15
	Notes and Comments 12	Gospel Temperance Work 16

Sacred Songs and Solos.

(Nos. 1 and 2 Combined, Consisting of 441 Hymns.)

COMPILED BY IRA D. SANKEY,

AND SUNG BY HIM AT

Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Meetings.

The Book, as now extended and enlarged, forms a specially cheap and comprehensive collection, well adapted for

SUNDAY SCHOOLS,
MISSION SERVICES, AND
EVANGELISTIC WORK.

IT GIVES NO LESS THAN

441 Hymns for One Penny. Music & Words, 1s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.			MUSIC AND WORDS.
1 A.	Ruby Edition	Sewed ... ... 1d.	1 F.	Old Notation	Tinted Covers 2s. 6d.
2 A.	„	Printed Cloth ... 2d.	2 F.	„	Limp Cloth ... 3s. 6d.
1 B.	Nonpareil Ed.	Tinted Covers ... 3d.	3 F.	„	Cloth Boards. 4s. 6d.
2 B.	„	Printed Cloth ... 4d.	4 F.	„	Do. Gilt Edg. 5s. 0d.
1 C.	Medium Type	Limp Cloth... ... 6d.	5 F.	„	Morocco ... 8s. 6d.
2 C.	„	Cloth Boards 1s. 0d.	6 F.	„	„ flexible, kid-lined ....12s. 6d.
3 C.	„	Morocco ..... 2s. 6d.	1 G.	Tonic Sol-fa	Tinted Covers 2s. 6d.
1 D.	F'cap. 8vo. ed.	Tinted Covers 1s. 0d.	2 G.	„	Limp Cloth ... 3s. 6d.
2 D.	„	Limp Cloth ... 1s. 6d.	3 G.	„	Cloth Boards. 4s. 6d.
3 D.	„	Cloth Boards. 2s. 0d.	4 G.	„	Gilt Edges 5s. 0d.
4 D.	„	Morocco ..... 4s. 6d.	5 G.	„	Morocco ..... 8s. 6d.
1 E.	Ex. Large Type	Tinted Covers 1s. 6d.	1 H.	Old Notation. (In Smaller Type)	Cheap Edition. Tinted Covers 1s. 6d.
2 E.	„	Limp Cloth ... 2s. 0d.	2 H.	„	Limp Cloth ... 2s. 0d.
3 E.	„	Cloth Boards. 2s. 6d.	3 H.	„	Cloth Boards. 2s. 6d.
4 E.	„	Morocco ... 5s. 6d.	4 H.	„	Morocco ..... 5s. 6d.
			5 H.	„	„ flexible, kid-lined .....10s. 6d.

SACRED SONGS and SOLOS, No. 2 (Cheap Edition).

MUSIC AND WORDS. OLD NOTATION.

For the convenience of the large number of persons who already possess the Music of Sacred Songs and Solos (271 Hymns), the whole of the second part of the book (being No. 2), Music and Words (170 Hymns), can be OBTAINED FOR SIXPENCE.

At this low price it will be within the means of every one to make their copies complete.

Any Bookseller in the Kingdom will procure the book in a few days without extra charge. Or, if preferred, it will be sent free by post from the Publishers on receipt of 6d.

The SOL-FA EDITION of Songs and Solos, No. 2 (170 pieces), may be had for One Shilling.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12 Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WORKS BY D. L. MOODY.

Power from on High; or, The Secret of Success in Christian Life and Christian Work. By D. L. MOODY. THIRTEENTH THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"This series of earnest and solemn Addresses bear throughout that stamp of honest, eager earnestness, which is so striking a characteristic of the writer's labours as a preacher."—Clerical World.

"Every page is full of stimulating thought for Christian Workers."—Commonwealth.

"A stirring and timely little book, by the American preacher, Mr. Moody. It is a good statement of the secret of success in Christian life and work, by one who has some claim to speak on such a theme."—The Outlook.

Addresses by D. L. Moody. Revised.

HUNDRED AND THIRD THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"With the effect of these Addresses when spoken the whole land is acquainted, and now that they are written they will tend to keep in force the impression they have already made. The book is clearly printed, on good paper, is handy in form, and is sure of a wide circulation."—Primitive Methodist.

The Faithful Saying. A Series

of Addresses. By D. L. MOODY. EIGHTH THOUSAND. Tinted Covers' 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Fresh, direct, pictorial, and powerful; they are admirable examples of the readiest way to reach the hearts of men with the truths of Christ."

General Baptist Magazine.

"These discourses are full of power and homely beauty, and exemplify very fully the strong points of the great evangelist. Nothing surprises us more in Mr. Moody than his marvellous power of illustration. His anecdotes are so fresh, so pointed, and touching."—King's Highway.

Heaven; Its Hopes, its Inhabitants, its Riches, its Rewards.

By D. L. MOODY. THIRTY-SECOND THOUSAND. Covers, Tinted 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Practical, full of anecdotes and point, and in many circles calculated to be of much service."—The Friend.

"Scattered throughout this volume are many direct home-thrusts at fashionable follies, many sharp rebukes of unrighteousness, much serious and urgent exhortations to Christliness of life, and many solemn warnings of the sad consequences of disregarding the love and mercy of the Saviour."—Primitive Methodist.

The Second Coming of Christ.

By D. L. MOODY. EIGHTH THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 4d.; Cloth Limp, 6d.

CHEAP EDITION, for General Distribution, 2s. per doz., post free.

"The moment a man takes hold of the truth that Jesus is coming back again to receive his followers to Himself, this world loses its hold upon him. Gas stocks, and water stocks, and stocks in banks and railroads, are of very much less consequence to him then. His heart is free, and he looks for the blessed appearing of his Lord, who, at his coming, will take him into his blessed Kingdom."—Extract.

PENNY ADDRESSES by D. L. MOODY.

GOOD NEWS.
"WHERE ART THOU."
"THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE."
CHRIST SEEKING SINNERS.
"LET THE WICKED FORSAKE HIS WAY."
THE WORK OF THE HOLY SPIRIT.

Price One Penny each; 1s. per dozen; 7s. 6d. per 100, either Assorted or of any separate Address.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Institutions.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving a parcel of fracts from H.

The Infant Day Nursery. Week-day and Sunday Schools. Children's Services. Invalid Children's dinners, and Rations of food to hungry Children. Special work amongst Little Girls. Various Classes for Lads, Classes and meetings for Elder Girls and Young Women, on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays at 8.30 p.m., Saturdays at 3.30, and Sundays at 3 p.m. Sewing-classes for destitute women on Mondays and Wednesdays at 2.30 p.m. Gospel Temperance Work. Evangelistic and Lodging House Services every Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

DE BREEDE EN DE SMALLE WEG.—A descriptive Lecture, entitled, "The Broad and the Narrow Way," illustrated by a copy of a curious Dutch Picture (size, 9 ft. by 12), will be delivered by GAWIN KIRKHAM, Secretary of the Open Air Mission, as under:—Wednesday, Jan. 31, Harvey-street, Hoxton; Monday, Feb. 12, Hertford; Tuesday, Feb. 13, Clavering, Herts; Thursday, Feb. 15, Rochester Institution, Walworth-road; Monday, Feb. 19, St. Benet's, Mile-End-road; Tuesday, Feb. 20, King-Edward-street, Mile-End New Town; Feb. 26, Field-lane Ragged Schools.—Open Air Mission Office, 14, Duke-street, Adelphi, London, W.C.

ZENANA AND MEDICAL MISSION Home and Training School for Ladies, Vincent-square, Westminster, S.W.—Readers of the "Christian," £5 15s.; Miss Henry, £1; Mr. Bowles, £1 1s.; Dowager Lady Outram, £5; Messrs. Fremlim, £3 3s.; Hon. Mrs. Baptist Noel, £1; R. C. L. Bevan, Esq., £10; Mrs. Rose, £2. Funds earnestly asked towards free or partially free scholarships.—Hon. Treasurer, G. J. GREEN, Esq.; Hon. Sec., Dr. GRIFFITH. New Session, January 6, 1883.

£2,000 REQUIRED for restoration of Church in poor parish.—Will any Christian friends send contributions to assist in furnishing a stall at a Bazaar, which it is hoped will raise £1,000 towards above object? The Church is going to decay. The parish is very poor, and the people cannot give much; but there are many good and willing workers, if money can be got to purchase materials for articles for the stalls. For this object, Mrs. HOOPER, Gateshead, Fell Rectory, Gateshead, will be very thankful to receive help.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS are received at the HOUSE OF REST, Kilburn, and the Seaside Branch, Eastbourne. Also, Missionaries from abroad. All must be well accredited.—Miss MASON, 7 and 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W.

A SALE OF WORK will be held this spring, in the Albert Hall, for Miss M. L. Whately's Schools and Biblewoman in Cairo. Contributions of work, &c. will be thankfully received by Mrs. WHATELY, 21, Belmont-park, Lee, S.E. They should not be sent later than Wednesday, April 11th.

THE DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—Meetings will be held for the deepening of Spiritual Life, at the Town Hall, Cambridge (the Lord willing), from January 30 to February 2, inclusive. Christians, pray!

HOME FOR DESTITUTE LITTLE GIRLS, The Dale, Upperton-road, Eastbourne, Sussex (late of Plaistow).—Contributions received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT; or Miss LEE, at the above address.

SEASIDE CONVALESCENT HOME, —Warmly recommended to readers of The Christian. Protestant and Evangelical. Open all the year. Sunny situation. Food excellent. Funds needed.—For terms, &c., address, Rev. E. FORBES, Christ Church, Clevedon.

GREAT COLEMAN'S, near Ongar, is now opened by Dr. and Mrs. S. C. GRIFFITH to give change of air and rest to educated people of limited means. For particulars, apply to 45, Finsbury-square, E.C.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for contributions in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest gifts in money and clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee. Gentlemen's cast-off garments are much needed, especially trousers.

MRS. WILKES proposes to be at home every Wednesday from Two till Five o'clock, for the purpose of seeing friends of Rescue Work. Trains from Liverpool-street to St. James-street Station, Walthamstow, every half-hour. "The Elms" is within five minutes' walk of the station. The Elms, Coppermill-lane, Walthamstow, Essex.

Educational.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,
WELLINGTON, SALOP.
Principal—Dr. CRANAGE, M.A.
Vice-Principal—Robert Weston, Esq., T.C.D. Head Master—T. Woodcock, Esq., 23rd Wrangler, late Scholar and Exhibitioner, Christ's College, Cambridge; Second Master—H. May, Esq., B.A., late Scholar of Brasenose College, Oxford; Modern Language Master — Mons. Rieunier, Graduate of the University of France; Music and Drawing Master—E. D. Griggs, Esq. Shorthand Teacher—T. Nicholls, Esq.; Secretary—G. A. Ash, Esq.

CHERTSEY HOUSE,
EARLSWOOD ROAD, REDHILL, SURREY.
MISS SHRIMPTON & MISS M. BUTLER GERDS

Receive a limited number of Young Ladies to Board and Educate. The system and subjects of teaching pursued have strict reference to the individual capacities of Pupils. Loving care and training, with careful regard to the spiritual and moral well-being, are made special features in the instruction imparted to Pupils in every department of study.

FEES PER TERM.—Resident Pupils (English and Music, French, and best home comforts), £12 12s. Weekly Board and Tuition, £10 10s. References kindly permitted to the Parents of past and present Pupils. Further particulars on application.

THE WOODLANDS, Hitchin, Herts. —Select Boarding School for Boys. For prospectus apply to the Principal, ISAAC SHARP, B.A., a member of the Society of Friends. Careful personal training. Efficient staff of masters. Excellent recreation grounds.

BLACKHEATH.
ELIOT PARK SCHOOL.
Principal—EDWARD G. ELLIS.
A sound and thorough Education on Christian principles. SUBJECTS:—Classics, Languages, Mathematics, English, Science, Book-keeping, &c.
Number of boarders, 12. Eminent success. Position highly recommended by medical men.
References permitted to
Rev. J. T. WIGNER .....Brockley, S.E.,
Dr. McKILLIAM .....Blackheath,
Dr. GAGE-BROWN.....Sloane-street, W.,
W. B. FISHER, Esq.....Greenwich,
J. W. C. FEGAN, Esq.....Southwark, S.E.,
and other Parents and Guardians.
The next term commences (D.V.) January 19.

BACKWARD YOUTHS do best under private tuition. In schools these are usually left to inexperienced assistants. Mr. WILLIAM PENN devotes his PERSONAL ATTENTION to such pupils, of whom he receives four or five as Boarders. Candidates are prepared for all PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS. Reference permitted to Dr. BARNARDO, Mrs. PENNEFATHER, and others. Studies recommenced Sept. 22nd.—Apply, 52, Clapton-common, London, E.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for little Boys, near Brighton.—Locality healthy. Home comforts. Christian training. Special attention to delicate, backward boys. Separate beds. Visiting masters. Twenty guineas.—LADY PRINCIPAL, Hamilton Lodge, Hurstpierpoint, Sussex.

CAPTAIN MORETON recommends with pleasure Mr. Foster's School. Preference given to children of believers. A reduction made to parents wholly engaged in the Lord's work.—Eldon-park School, South Norwood.

Ora et Labora.

THE SCHOOL HOUSE, Weston-super-Mare.—Mr. H. PENN receives sons of Gentlemen to train and educate. Preparation for Army and University entrance; and London Matric. Exams., and the Professions. Liberal diet, and plenty of open-air recreation. References to parents. For terms apply as above. The next Term commences Thursday, Jan. 18, 1883.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS. —A Lady wishes to recommend a good school for boys, at the sea-side, South coast, where the religious and moral training, on strictly Evangelical principles, is carefully attended to. Excellent secular instruction. A thoroughly good and comfortable home.—OBSERVER, Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton, 27, Paternoster-row, London.

FINISHING SCHOOL for Ladies near Crystal Palace. Reduced terms will be taken, to fill up a vacancy. Great educational advantages and home comforts.
MADAME, care of Mr. Larner, Anerley-road, S.E.

BETHANY HOUSE SCHOOL, Goudhurst, Kent. Principal Rev. J. J. Kendon. The object of the Principal is to thoroughly educate his pupils, and to carefully train them up in the love and service of Jesus. Terms from 24 guineas per annum.

LADIES' COLLEGE, Goudhurst, Kent. Conducted by the Misses Kendon, daughters of Rev. J. J. Kendon. A kind, Christian home and school for girls and delicate children. Terms 24 guineas per annum. For prospectus with reference to parents, apply to Miss R. KENDON, M. C. P.

HOME SCHOOL. — A Lady, of much experience in teaching, residing in a beautiful part of Derbyshire, receives a limited number of Pupils. There is a resident foreign governess, and visiting English master. First-class instruction in every branch. References to Clergymen and the parents of pupils. Terms moderate.—PRINCIPAL, The Ferns, Duffield, Derby.

A LADY and Daughters, experienced in tuition, wish to purchase transfer of School, near Evangelical ministry; or to receive information where a decidedly Christian School would meet with appreciation and support. Strictly confidential FAITH, 4, Rock-crescent, Monmouth.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for the Daughters of Gentlemen.—Miss PENN and Fräulein ESSER receive a limited number of Pupils at Grove House, Upper Clapton, London, E. Detached house. Large garden. Large and efficient staff of Masters and Governesses, German and French the languages of the house. Careful training and Christian influence, with individual supervision. For prospectus and references apply as above.

BRIGHTON KINDERGARTEN and Educational Home, for children from three to twelve years of age. Thorough preparatory education, combined with Christian training and motherly care.
PRINCIPAL, Dover House, Clifton-hill, Brighton.

MILTON HOUSE SCHOOL for Young Ladies, Plympton (near Plymouth), South Devon.—Limited number received. Home comforts.—Advantages for French. References to parents of pupils.

HAMMERSMITH HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.—The next term will commence January 18th, 1883. Boarders received at the house of the Head Mistress. Last report and full particulars forwarded by post, on application to Miss MARY E. PAGE, High School, Hammersmith, W.

MARLBOROUGH COLLEGE FOR YOUNG LADIES, Larkbeare, Exeter, Devon. —Residents only received. Specially desirable home for girls of delicate habit. References to Christian Parents, of all denominations.

A LONDON VICAR most strongly recommends to parents, seeking wise and intelligent training for their Daughters, a Lady of highest attainments, Christian culture, and experience, in a salubrious seaside spot.—Referee, Rev. J. KIRKMAN, St. Stephen's, Hampstead, N.W.

FIRST-CLASS FINISHING SCHOOL for the daughters of gentlemen. Strongly recommended by parents of present and former pupils. Efficient staff of masters and governesses. Music and harmony by an eminent London musician. Careful training and refined home. Prospectus on application to PRINCIPAL, Branston Lodge, Waverley-road, Southsea.

MISS PALMER, assisted by excellent governesses and masters, successfully prepares girls for Cambridge Local and Dulwich High School examinations. Specially suited for children whose parents are abroad. Home comforts. Healthy situation. Careful training. Term begins 24th January. References to parents of pupils.—Fernside, 17, New Rosendale-road, West Dulwich, near London.

MONKTON COMBE SCHOOL, near Bath.—Pupils prepared chiefly for Oxford and Cambridge. Reference to Lord Radstock, and many other parents and guardians whose sons are at the School.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for Young Gentlemen (Established 14 years), 2, Woodside-villas, Victoria-road, Gipsy-hill. Principal, Miss SMITH, assisted by certificated governesses and visiting professors. Pestalozzian Classes. Special arrangements for pupils whose parents are abroad. References to clergymen, medical men, Indian officers, and parents of other pupils. Term commences January 23rd.

HIGHBURY HOUSE, St. Leonards-on-Sea.—Boys prepared for Commerce, Public Schools, or the Universities. Upper, middle, and preparatory departments. Seven resident masters. The junior division taught by ladies. Delicate boys requiring a mild climate receive every kindness and constant care.—For prospectus apply to Mrs. DUFF, the Lady Principal. School duties will be resumed January 20th.

SEASIDE EDUCATION.—Two clergymen highly recommend a Christian school for twelve girls. References to officers of high rank, whose daughters are pupils there. Terms very moderate. Rev. J. Johnson, Britwell Rectory, Watlington, Oxon.; Rev. W. Clarke, Hook Vicarage, Surbiton, Surrey.
PRINCIPAL, 5, Sussex-place, Southsea.

SCHOOL near the sea-side, for the Board and Education of little Girls, conducted by Mrs. and Miss SNOW. Comfortable home, combined with Christian training. Terms moderate. Good references.—Stoke Fleming, Dartmouth, South Devon.

A LADY and her sister in a healthy sea-side place, on the South Coast, will be happy to receive little girls who require care and whose education has been neglected. Inclusive terms for English, French, German, music, and drawing. Pupils prepared for examinations if desired. Good references.—Miss HOPEWELL, Mr. Stace, Guildhall-street, Folkestone.

PARIS.—Mdlle. TALLON, Parisian, Protestant, Diplômée, receives Ladies and Young Ladies. Reference to M. le Pasteur Bersier. Prospectuses to be had, 195, Boulvevard Péreire Sud, Près l'Arc de Triomphe.

CLARENS.—Montreux, banks of the Lake of Geneva.—Mme. QUIBLIER receives six young Ladies to educate. Every comfort and attention. References: Mme. Merle d'Aubigne, Geneva. Pastor DU Pontet de La Harpe, French Parsonage, Bayswater, W., and the parents of pupils.—Mme. LOUIS QUIBLIER, Clarens près Montreux, Vaud, Switzerland.

HOME FOR ENGLISH GOVERNESSES IN PARIS.—Advantages of French. —Apply to Miss PRYDE, 16, Rue de Tilsitt, for further information.

PARIS.—Protestant Establishment for Young Ladies. Sciences, Arts. French only language of the house. Terms £40. Ladies with a private bedroom, £5 a month. References: Rev. Baron HART, 21, Avenue de la Grande Armée; Rev. L. VERNES, 7, Rue des Batignolles, Paris; Rev. D. J. WATT, 331, Amhurst-rd., Stoke Newington, London. Principal, Mme. FLAMANT, 63, Rue Truffaut Paris.

A GERMAN FINISHING GOVERNESS, good musician and linguist, with excellent references, desires to find a re-engagement tin a Christian family.—Fraulein P——N, 16, Wyndham-place, Bryanston-square, W.

LADIES' SCHOOL, Oak-Gate House, Taunton.—Miss CLARK, assisted by efficient teachers, receives a limited number of Young Ladies, for instruction in the usual branches of a sound and useful education. While devoting her best attention to the mental improvement of her pupils, Miss CLARK desires to secure to them, as far as possible, the comforts and advantages of a Christian home, and to train them with a view to the efficient discharge of the duties of life. Terms moderate and inclusive. For prospectus, address as above. The next Term will commence on Monday, January 22.

TO CHRISTIAN PARENTS. Dr. Laseron, of Tottenham, desires to recommend a Lady as teacher of music (classical) and German, holding very good Testimonials from renowned London master. He would especially draw the attention of godly parents to it, the Lady being a decided Christian.
Miss E. B., 6, Mildmay-park, N.

NURSERY GOVERNESS, or Mother's Help, wanted in Switzerland, by February 15th, to teach and take charge of a boy, aged five. Elementary music, experience and kindness required. Must be a decided Christian. State age, salary, references.
Mrs. LANDIS, Oerlikon, Zürich.

EXPERIENCED FRENCH PROTESTANT (has prepared for Cambridge Examination) wishes re-engagement in gentleman's family—children under 12. French, German, English, music, rudiments drawing, needlework; £45.
M., 49, Richmond-road, Westbourne-park, W.

YOUNG LADY required immediately in a small Ladies' Boarding School, to assist with junior pupils, and superintend practice, in return for comfortable home and instruction.
A., Cotswold House, Dursley, Gloucestershire.

A GOOD MUSIC TEACHER wanted (piano) in a middle-class Ladies' Boarding School. Must be a Christian, and thoroughly efficient.
Rev. J. J. KENDON, Goudhurst, Kent.

RESIDENT GOVERNESS. — A Lady, with ten years' experience, seeks re-engagement. English, French, music, German, and rudimentary Latin.—E. J., care of Mrs. Francis, 34, Bath-street, Leamington.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

PARTNERSHIP WANTED by a Christian man with small capital. References exchanged.—A. B., care of Mr. Hubbard, 6, Red Lion-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

AN EVANGELIST whose labours have been greatly blessed seeks the pastoral oversight of small Chapel or small Mission hall, or any similar work for the Master. Moderate salary.—H. S., Mrs. Johnson's, St. Ann's Hill-road, Chertsey, Surrey.

CLERK.—Wanted by a Christian man, age 27, a situation as above, or any place of trust. Good bookkeeper. Excellent references
A., 3, Clifton Marine-parade, Gravesend.

CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN, married, age 27, abstainer, seeks re-engagement as Cook in a Coffee Tavern, or Temperance Institution of any kind. Good reference given.
G. S., 39, Northumberland-place, Bayswater.

AN INTELLIGENT CHRISTIAN Young Man (total abstainer), who writes a fair hand, seeks a situation in a Warehouse. Highest references.
JOSEPH S., 42, Brook-street, Leamington.

COACHMAN.—Wanted situation as above. Thoroughly understands his duties. Age 25 years. Excellent character. Country preferred.
R. O., Sudbury Lodge, Harrow, Middlesex.

GARDENER. — Situation wanted by a respectable Young Man, single-handed. No objection to make himself useful. Good character. Total abstainer.
T. H., Mr. Boddy, West-place, Herne-hill.

AS GROOM, or Under Coachman. —Wanted by a Christian young man, age 19, a situation. 18 months' good character.
52, Stowe-road, Goldhawk-road, Shepherd's-bush.

FOR HOUSE, STABLE, OR GARDEN.—A strong, intelligent Lad, aged 15, not been out before, but can be well recommended. Also, two strong Girls, aged 14 and 16, for house or kitchen.
Hon. Mrs. LOWTHER, Ampthill, Beds.

A RE-ENGAGEMENT wanted as useful Companion or Secretary to a Lady, as Housekeeper in a small Christian home, or as Wardrobe-keeper in a select school. Good references.—J. S., J. Haynes, Esq., Milford, Hartland, N. Devon.

ASSISTANT MATRON, or otherwise.—Wanted by a Christian person, age 26. Willing to make herself useful. Good accountant and needlewoman. Near London preferred. Good references.—A. C., 4, Denmark-place, Portland-road, S. Norwood.

A CHRISTIAN WOMAN seeks engagement as useful Companion and Housekeeper to Invalid Lady or Gentleman. She is a thorough nurse, and a total abstainer.—D. H., care of Mr. Scott, Minister of the Gospel, 8, West-hill-road, Brighton.

AS HOUSEKEEPER to a single Gentleman or Widower by a thoroughly respectable and domesticated Christian person; good manager, and one who would study the comforts and happiness of home.
B., 7, Heathfield-street, Swansea.

TO WAIT ON AN ELDERLY LADY.—Good needlewoman. Or Working Housekeeper to a Gentleman. Age 38. Abstainer.
A. B., Oak Cottage, Selsfield, East Grinstead.

LADY HOUSEKEEPER or Matron.—Re-engagement required by a Widow Lady, who has had large experience, both in public and private institutions. Moderate salary. Excellent references.
M. F., 29, Temple-street, Brighton.

AS ATTENDANT upon an elderly Lady, or to assist a Matron; or in any office of trust. A highly respectable widow seeks a situation. Wages £20.
F. W., 32, Sydney-street, Fulham-road, S.W.

AN EXPERIENCED MIDDLE-AGED LADY desires an engagement in a Christian family, to superintend domestic arrangements or instruct children. Salary small. Good references.
DELTA, Inquiry Office, Hereford Times, Hereford.

HEAD NURSE.—Wanted by a middle-aged person, a situation as above. Understands the management of a baby, or to attend to an elderly Lady. Can be well recommended.
74, Samuel-road, St. Margaret's, Ipswich.

NURSE.—Wanted by a respectable young person, in her 18th year (who has not been out before), a situation in a Christian family as above, to one or two little children. Suburbs preferred.—ROSE FIELDER, London-road, Frimley, Farnboro' Station.

AN EXPERIENCED NURSE, middle-aged, is highly recommended by a Lady in whose family she has lived over four years. Only leaving through family circumstances. She would prefer taking a Lady's first baby in a Christian household. Wages £22 to £25.
R. M., 19, The Gardens, Peckham Rye, S.E.

USEFUL MAID.—A Lady wishes to recommend a middle-aged person, who has been in her family some years as above, to an elderly or invalid Lady.
G. L., Mrs. Rimer, 205, Brompton-road, S.W.

AS GENERAL SERVANT.—A Young Woman needs situation.—C. COLEMAN, Dock Labourers' Mission, 32, Chamber-street, London Docks.

AS MOTHER'S HELP.—A Young Lady (17), to assist a mother in the management of her family (fond of children), or to attend upon an invalid lady.
T. W., 8, Westbourne-terrace, Addiscombe.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

ADVERTISER has a nice opening for a Christian temperance man, with from 3 to £5,000. To such, would hand over a well-organised Cotton Mill, and assist until the business became quite familiar.
John S. BARON, Astley-gate, Blackburn.

TWO GENTLEMEN of Christian principles wanted as Directors of a Limited Company established to advance Gospel Temperance work.—Apply by letter only, F. B. WINTER, Esq., Solicitor, 26, Basinghall-street, E.C.

VILLAGE MISSIONARY.—Good, earnest Christian wanted to carry on the general work. A knowledge of music almost indispensable.—Apply by letter only to SAMUEL G. SHEPPARD, Leggatts, near Potter's Bar.

TO TAILORS.—Wanted a good general hand in a middle-class trade, for a permanency. Must be member of a Christian Church, and married.
C. UNDERWOOD, Church-street, Twickenham, S.W.

MAN AND HIS WIFE, of some previous experience, wanted immediately, for small coffee tavern in Cambridge.—Apply by letter to A. ARMAN, 1, Newmarket-road, Cambridge, enclosing copies of testimonials, and state salary required.

INDOOR SERVANT wanted, out of livery, single-handed, about 30, who thoroughly understands his duties in every respect.—Apply personally before 12 o'clock, or by letter, to A. B., Park-hill, Upper Tooting, a mile from Balham Station.

MATRON.—Wanted, an active managing motherly Woman, aged from 35 to 45, as Matron in a small Sanatorium for children. Accustomed to sickness. Salary £20. Must be an abstainer.—MRS. WHITING, Headingley, Leeds.

MISSION NURSE wanted for Visiting in poor district. Decided Christian. Thoroughly qualified for the post.—Dr. SAUNDERS, London Medical Mission, 47, Endell-street, St. Giles.

BIBLE-WOMAN NURSE.—Wanted earnest Christian, wise to win souls, to act as above. Member of Church of England. Total abstainer. Salary £40.—M., care of Mr. HARDY, 104, High-street, Cheltenham.

FEMALE MISSIONARY wanted for Rescue work.—Can any clergyman recommend thoroughly active, zealous, and discreet person (Churchwoman) for the above work, in an important town? Salary not less than £40.—Apply, stating age, to Mrs. PITMAN, Wyborne, Cheltenham.

NURSERY GOVERNESS OR NURSE wanted in an abstainer's family, to take the charge of four little children, eldest seven. Of Christian character, experienced among and fond of children, domesticated, and a good needlewoman. Under Nurse kept.
Mrs. S. Birchwood, Dedham, Colchester.

MAID.—Lady in Kensington wants capable Maid; good Dressmaker, Milliner. Also thorough HOUSEMAID. Single-handed. Wages, former £20, all found, no beer; latter £18, ditto.—Mrs. SNELGROVE, 12, Newland-terrace, Kensington.

WORKING HOUSEKEEPER.—Person wanted with diploma of cooking, South Kensington, to attend daily for a few weeks as above in a family, and teach her art. State terms per week.—Mrs. M., care of May's, 159, Piccadilly, London, W.

HOME AND REGISTRY for respectable servants of all classes requiring situations. Ladies can be suited from the above, fee from 2s. 6d. when suited; servants from 1s. 6d. Lodgings for servants from 2s. 6d. per week. Apply to S. LOVEJOY, 32, Sydney-street, Fulham-road.

COOK (good plain) and HOUSE-MAID wanted at once in a Christian family. Total abstainers. Must be willing to make themselves useful. Early risers. Good characters. State age, wages, and all particulars, to Mrs. NEALE, Glenside, Cotham-park, Bristol.

COOK, in a Gentleman's family in the country.—To assist in housework. Early riser. Age 30 preferred. Good wages to a trustworthy person.
Mrs. FRY, Great Bookham, Leatherhead.

COOK.—Wanted, a Christian Woman as good plain cook; one who has lived as general servant preferred. Total abstainer.—M., care of Mr. Hardy, 104, High-street, Cheltenham.

COOK.—Wanted, a thoroughly experienced good Cook, about 38. A small dairy. Kitchen-maid kept. Wages £30. Good character indispensable. Apply by letter.
Mrs. WILSON, The Cedars, Beckenham.

NURSE.—Wanted, a Christian woman, as Nurse to young children, to go to Canada.—Mrs. A. F. GURNEY, Heatherside, Bournemouth East.

AS HOUSEMAID.—Can any Lady recommend a thoroughly respectable, conscientious young woman? She must be a good servant, and willing to make herself generally useful. Two children.
Mrs. R. POTTER, East Dereham, Norfolk.

HOUSEMAID.—Wanted in a Christian family, a thoroughly experienced Housemaid, able to help wait at table. Good plain needlewoman. One who has had some experience in sickness much valued. Wages according to capability. Not under 25.
Mrs. L., Summerfield, Forest-hill.

HOUSE AND PARLOUR-MAID Wanted. Must be well recommended; another Housemaid kept. Beer not allowed.—Apply, stating age and length of character, to Mrs. M. ASHBY, Northlands, Englefield-green, Staines.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, with good character. Aged 25 to 30, for one Lady. A quiet, comfortable home, and liberal wages given.—Miss STRUTHERS, 21, Whiteheadsgrove, Chelsea, S.W.

A GOOD GENERAL SERVANT Wanted in a Clergyman's family.—Mrs. G. NOEL STORRS, Bridlington-quay, Yorkshire.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted in abstainer's family.—State age, wages, and all particulars.—Apply by letter to Mrs. GODDARD, 3, Vanbrugh-park-road, Blackheath, S.E.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL,
40, Bedford Place, Bloomsbury Sq., London, W.C.
This First-class Private Hotel is close to the New Law Courts and the British Museum. Spacious Coffee and Ladies' Drawing-rooms, and Private Sitting-rooms. Rev. R. MILNE, Abbey Church, Edinburgh, writes:—"Quiet, cleanliness, comfort, and moderate charges, are the characteristics of this house." Also recommended by Dr. ALGERNON DOBBIE, Oldham; Rev. J. GARWOOD, M. A. London City Mission; Dr. YOUNG, Florence.
Tariff on application to Miss PERCY.

WEST CENTRAL HOTEL.
97, 99, 101, Southampton-row, London, W.C.
Patronised by numerous readers of The Christian. Plain Breakfast or Tea, 1s. 3d. Beds, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. Tariff on application to FREDERIC SMITH.

LONDON.—Bernard's Private Hotel, 1, Granville-square, King's-cross-road.—Central; convenient for City or West. Highly commended by Rev. T. Harley; Mr. Russell Hurditch, London; Dr. Baedeker; Rev. Dr. W. R. Williams, New York. J. Gibson, Esq., Edinburgh, writes after nine days' stay: "Found cleanliness, comfort, economy, and everything that could be desired, and shall recommend it. Bed, breakfast, plain, 3s.; tea 10d.

A DOCTOR IN PRACTICE, Crystal Palace district, is open to give board, residence, and medical attention to one or two Invalids, or persons needing attention; to such, a bright, cheerful Christian home is offered. Terms reasonable. Highest references.—DOCTOR, Mrs Gearing, Lordship-terrace, Lordship-lane, S.E.

RESIDENT PATIENT.—A Medical Man (married) wishes to receive a patient requiring country air and medical attention into his house. Every kindness and attention will be shown. Address (in first instance), Mrs. VIDAL, 3, Upper-park-place, Richmond, Surrey.

A LADY wishes to recommend a Country Home, for one or two children about five years of age, to board and lodge with a respectable middle-aged person (formerly a Bible-woman), without family, who would be a kind caretaker.
Mrs. ALDRIDGE, Great Stanmore, Middlesex.

COMFORTABLE, REFINED, CHEERFUL HOME offered in a superior French private family (Protestant). Healthy, central situation. References exchanged.
H. V., care of May's, 159, Piccadilly.

THE CONVALESCENT HOME, Copped-hall-green, Waltham Abbey, is now open, and receives respectable poor Women on payment of 7s. per week. Lady Superintendent, Countess of Gainsborough.—Apply to Miss HIBBITT.

A LADY wishes to meet with another, to share furnished rooms with her in the comfortable home of a clergyman's daughter. Terms moderate.—A., Campsbourne Villa, Campsbourne-road, Hornsey, N.

BOURNEMOUTH, Marlborough.—First-class private Boarding House. Facing the sea, south aspect, close to pier, baths, library; liberal table, every comfort. Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Roberts.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE at BRIGHTON.—Central position, near to the Pavilion, Aquarium, and Piers. Sea view. Liberal table. Every home comfort.—Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Box, 58, Old Steine.

BOURNEMOUTH, Clairville.—Superior Boarding House, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Jackson. Visitors will meet with an excellent family home. Charming sea views. Near church and sea. Most liberal table.

LATE ABODE OF FAITH.—Mrs. DALBY has in her private residence vacancies for two young Ladies who cannot remain at home, or those mentally incapacitated (childish), not insane cases. Terms, two guineas weekly.
3, Oppidans-road, Primrose-hill.

HYDROPATHY.—Dr. OWEN'S establishment, "The Arboretum," Leamington. The mansion is built on gravel, and heated throughout by warm air, which makes it a perfect winter residence for visitors and patients. Electric and all other baths.

INTEMPERANCE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, &c.—Private Home for limited number of Ladies, in a desirable Winter locality. Experienced medical treatment. Christian influence, judicious supervision, and home comforts.
MEDICUS, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

PRIVATE HOME for Deaf and Dumb Ladies. Congenial society and every domestic comfort.—Mrs. THOMAS, 8, Burlington-buildings, Redland, Bristol.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Board and Residence offered by a Lady, in a detached villa. Sunny aspect. Close to West Cliff; near sea, church, and West Station.—R., Leigh Wood.

HASTINGS, Castle House.—Select boarding establishment. Land and sea views. Sheltered situation. Three minutes from sea. Home comforts. Terms moderate.
Apply to the Misses BIRD and PINDER.

TWO OR THREE LADIES can be received in a first-class Boarding House, in the best position of Southsea, at a guinea a week. South aspect. Liberal table.
17, South Parade.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE, 80, Warrior-square, St. Leonards on-Sea. Near pier, baths, churches, and station. Sea view. Late dinner. Moderate terms.
Apply to Miss BENTLEY.

VENTNOR.—A Lady, wishing to leave Ventnor for a time, is anxious to meet with some Christian friends to occupy her small furnished villa. Rent secondary object. Healthy, lovely locality.
S., 3, Cyprus-villas, Ventnor, Isle of Wight.

EXCHANGE.—A Lady wishes to exchange for a year, from March 25, a 14-roomed private house, comfortably furnished, every convenience, perfect drainage, best end of Weston-super-Mare, for Small House in healthy part of London or suburbs (not less than five bedrooms); no objection to the tenant taking boarders; or would let for £130 per annum. This is a rare opportunity for widow lady with children, Weston-super-Mare being celebrated for its salubrious air and good schools.
C. K., Scotney's Library, Weston-super-Mare.

HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS.—Air dry and mild. Terms 18s., 21s., and 25s.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Erriswell-road, Worthing.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian again earnestly invites such to write.
EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W.

CURE FOR DIABETES, BRIGHT'S LIVER, DROPSY, AND KIDNEY DISEASES, by GLENN'S and Bethesda Mineral Waters. CURE FOR BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, and Chest Complaints, by ALLEN'S Euphorbia. Testimonials by Physicians, Ministers, &c., from Rev. T. PENROSE, Reading.

PIANOFORTE by Collard & Collard.—Sweet-toned, full compass cottage trichord, cost 63 guineas, to be sold for 35 guineas. Another in walnut, 23 guineas. American Organ, 11 stops, rich tone, 26 guineas. Beautiful condition; sent on approval. Real bargains.—Gloucester House, Bowes-park, N.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a remedy for affording immediate relief.
C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

TO LADIES'-MAIDS and others. Lessons in dress-fitting and cutting, £1 1s. the course, fit guaranteed, patterns included; privately, £22s. Ladies patterns taken from 1s. 6d.
Mrs. JUDD 9, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.

WASHING WANTED by a thoroughly experienced laundress. Small things by the dozen. Good grounds. Plenty of water. All work punctually sent home on Friday. No machinery.—S. W., 13, Silchester-terrace, Kensington-park, Notting-hill.

KINDNESS TO ANIMALS.—Card pictures with suitable anecdotes, coloured borders, seven varieties, specially adapted for schools and free distribution: dozen 8d., score 1s., hundred 4s. 6d., carriage free.—C. BARROW, 11, Ampton-road, Birmingham.

THE NATIONAL THRIFT BUILDING SOCIETY, of 33, New Bridge-street, London, E.C., issue £10 shares, payable in one sum, or by instalments, without entrance fees or fines; the interest, with bonus, for 1882 having been six and seven per cent. Deposits are received for short or long periods, and current banking accounts opened, two and a half per cent. being allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Advances are promptly made, on reasonable terms.

FRANCIS'S BRONCHIAL PROTECTOR
Registered.
FOR BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, TIGHT BREATHING, } SURE REMEDY
all THROAT COMPLAINTS.
Mr. J. D. Fisher, Chemist, Blackpool, says:—"I have tried it myself, and have received great benefit from it. My customers speak highly of its virtues." Of Chemists, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., or for Stamps sent to
FRANCIS & CO., Belgrave Gate, LEICESTER

Publications.

NEW YEAR'S BOOKS FOR 1883,
With Covers beautifully printed in Chromo-Lithography, 32 pages. One Penny each, or 1s. per dozen.

DO IT NOW: A New Year's Motto. By the Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A., Wolverhampton.

BE IN TIME: A New Year's Address to the Young. By J. FORBES MONCRIEFF.

GOSPEL BOOKS with Covers beautifully printed in Chromo-Lithography. By the Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. In Two Packets, 6d. each. Packet I. contains:—1. Do It Now. 2. The Four Looks. 3. Crossing the Bridge. 4. The Heavenly Ladder. 5. The Door Open and the Door Shut. 6. Deepen the Well.
Packet II. contains:—7. All for Christ. 8. Shine as Lights. 9. The Blood More Precious than Gold. 10. Nearer to Thee. 11. The Four Alls. 12. A Christian's Prayer in Six Words.

BLUE RIBBON SERIES. Twelve little 8-page Books, Illustrated, Tinted Paper. By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. Packet of 50, assorted, 6d.

WELCOME TO JESUS. Four-page Floral Tracts, with beautiful design, printed in Chromo-Lithography, on first page. By C. H. SPURGEON. Two Packets of 32 Tracts each 6d. per Packet.

CROWN SERIES. Twelve Illustrated Little Books, 16 pages, Tinted paper. Packet of one each, 6d.

ARMY SERIES.—Six Illustrated Little Book for Soldiers, 16 pages, Tinted paper. Packet of 12, assorted, 6d.

COURT LEAFLETS. On thick cream-coloured paper, with coloured border, 4 pages. Packet III., 50 copies, assorted, 6d.

COME TO JESUS. Four-page floral Tracts, with beautiful design printed in Chromo-Lithography on first page. Two packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per packet.

THE SINNER'S FRIEND. Four-page Floral Tracts, as above. Two packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per packet.

THE CHRISTIAN SOLDIER. Thoughts suggested by the War. By Rev. A. R. M FINLAYSON, Alderley Edge. 32 pages. Price 1d

Illustrated Monthly Periodicals.

THE BRITISH MESSENGER. Price 1d.
THE GOSPEL TRUMPET. Price ½d., or 3s. 6d. per 100.
GOOD NEWS. Price ½d., 3 for 1d., or 2s. 6d. per 100.
The three Periodicals for one year 2s. 6d.
DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling, N.B.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

McCALL'S
PAYSANDU OX-TONGUES.
IN TINS, READY FOR IMMEDIATE USE.
Sold by all Grocers.

[Carried to page 23.]

WINTER COLDS,

ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS,

HOW TO PREVENT THEM.

OF all the diseases known to the medical profession, none have received more attention and study and are more to be dreaded than the above maladies, which are so incidental to our climate, and which ultimately result in phthisis; and yet the most eminent physicians are compelled to admit themselves baffled when confronted with a case of real consumption.

The efficiency of MAGNETO-ELECTRICITY in all affections of the chest and respiratory organs has been most uniform, owing to its permeating and soothing properties, which reach the congested organs, clear the capillary vessels, and produce an even circulation. Moreover, by heightening the resisting powers of the system, it becomes a most valuable protection against external influences.

The bracing effect of a clear frosty air as compared with a negative and damp atmosphere, induces a healthy condition of the system, under which we feel better and work better then we should on a damp and foggy November day; but we do not consider that we are prodigally using our vitality because we are enabled by natural means thus to exert ourselves. These are as truly outside influences as the influence of MAGNETO-ELECTRICITY; but the latter supplies to the weary one the most natural, penetrating, and permeating influence known, aiding the invalid to recover a normal state of health. Through the skilful application of MAGNETO-ELECTRIC currents a patient may be surrounded by an energising influence like the free electricity of the Swiss mountain air, and may obtain, without leaving home, the re-animation or re-creation for which many toil and travel at so great an expense.

The usual effect is precisely that produced upon the debilitated and exhausted patient by far more expensive means, such as a sea voyage, or lengthened residence at a watering-place, at once showing the natural, though almost imperceptible, character of the change produced and of the agent employed.

These facts are being abundantly proved by personal experience, as the following statements will show:—

REV. T. THOMPSON, Alton, Hants, says:—"I think it is only right to yourself and the public, that I should bear my testimony to the benefit derived from your treatment. After suffering for many months from violent pains in the head, the result of exposure and overwork, I made use of your appliances, found relief at once, and eventually entire freedom from them."

Miss E. J. WHATELY, daughter of the late Archbishop Whately:—"Your last communication reached Cairo after I had left it, and there were numerous delays, so I have only just received it. For nearly twelve months I have not as yet had a single attack of my dreaded enemy, Spasmodic Asthma. Both in London and Paris last October I was exposed to cold and damp, but got over it without any attack at all, and I have several times since got over threatenings of cold without their coming to anything serious, as they used to do, and this, to my mind, is a proof that Magnetic Treatment has had a good effect."

MR. W. WILES, Retreat Cottage, Grove-place, Stamford-hill, N., November 30th, 1882:—"I and my wife have both tried your treatment with great advantage. After three months I was raised from a state of lassitude and general debility. My wife was so delicate before placing herself under your care that we despaired of her. She is now much better than she has been for years, and I have little doubt this is owing to the increased vitality derived from Magnetism, which started her on the road to improvement. Its protection against external influences is especially marked in winter, my wife's lungs being the seat of her weakness."

Let no one despair of checking the progress of organic disease until he has tested the electrician's medical skill. Although he may have tried Magnetic remedies in vain, he has yet to learn the value of the restorer properly applied. By putting himself in communication with us he may obtain fuller information on the method of treatment with which long practice and continued research have familiarised us.

The fullest information concerning this method of Magneto-Electric treatment may be obtained of Mr. B. COPSON GARRATT, at his Consulting Rooms, 16, Finsbury-square, E.C.

THE QUIVER.

For Sunday and General Reading.

The FEBRUARY PART, price 6d., contains

The First London Soup Kitchen.
David a Pattern of Courage.
The Other Side. Short Story.
"Come Sing with Me a Song of Praise." New Music.
God's Sympathy Man's Solace.
At a Working Men's "Free-and-Easy."
Scripture Lessons for School and Home.
On Going into the Harbour's Mouth.
The Child's Year.—February.
The Old Hundredth Psalm Tune.
The Oldest City in the World, and its Testimony to the Faith.
"Only a Seabird's Cry." Short Story.
The Book of Enoch.
Flower Lessons.—The Violet.
The Rich Man and the Beggar. (Parables in the Light of Our Everyday Life.)
Good Wives of Great Men.—Margaret Baxter.
An Old Parable in a New Dress.
Poems on the Lord's Prayer.—Thy Kingdom come.
Short Arrows.
"The Quiver" Life-Boat Fund.
"The Quiver" Bible Class.

SERIAL STORIES:—
Barbara Street.—A Family Story of To-Day.
Marvellous in Our Eyes.—A Story of Providence.

CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN & Co., and all Booksellers.

A Gift-Book for the Newly Married, and for those Contemplating Marriage.
Just ready, price 6s.

THE MARRIAGE RING.

By WILLIAM LANDELS, D.D.
Royal 16mo., white leatherette, gilt edges, in box.
London:
CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN & Co., and all Booksellers.

MR. UNWIN'S MISSION BOOKS.

MODERN MISSIONS: THEIR TRIALS AND TRIUMPHS. By ROBERT YOUNG, Assistant Secretary to the Missions of the Free Church of Scotland. With Illustrations and a Mission Map. New and Revised Edition. Crown 8vo., 5s.

MASTER MISSIONARIES: Studies in Heroic Pioneer Work. By ALEXANDER H. JAPP, LL.D., F.R.S.E. With Portraits and Illustrations. Crown 8vo., gilt edges. New and cheaper edition, 3s. 6d.

T. FISHER UNWIN, 17, Holborn Viaduct, E.C.

Just published, Double Number. Price Sixpence.
AFRICA: A Quarterly Record and Journal.
S. W. Partridge & Co., 9, Paternoster-row, London.

THE MESSIAH KING. By JAMES WITHERS. Crown 8vo., cloth, 5s.

SATAN'S GUILE AND SATAN'S WILES; or, The Battle Field of Two Worlds. By E. LLOYD JONES. 8vo., cloth, lettered, 3s. 6d.

THE HERO OF DANZIG; or, Konrad the Standard Bearer. By FERD. SONNENBURG; translated by SUIGI. With Engravings. Imp. 16mo., cloth, 3s. 6d.
S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.

Neatly printed on tinted paper, suitable for enclosing in Letters or for General Distribution.

Price 6d. per packet of 12 Tracts.
3s. 6d. per 100, either assorted or of any separate Tract.

"GLADNESS OF HEART" TRACTS.

A Series of Narratives, each complete in itself, recording striking Conversions.

BY

J. P. WILSON,

Author of "Gladness of Heart," &c., &c.

CONTENTS OF PACKET.

1. A Young Clerk in the Last Century.
2. A Prize Runner. A Beershop-Keeper's Daughter.
3. A Preacher brought to Christ.
4. Ignorance of Sin.
5. George Robinson, of Grasmere. Dr. Edmund Staunton.
6. Time required for Conversion. "I've Found the Lord." A Young Pharisee.
7. Conversion of an English Heathen.
8. Found of One who Sought Him not. "How long have you to Live?"
9. A Weary One finding Rest.
10. Finding the Pearl of Great Price. "The Sorrows of Death."
11. Mary Harrison, of Havant.
12. Count Zinzendorf.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WINNING WORDS.

A New Series of Text Cards. Envelope shape. Illustrated with Etchings. Price Sixpence, post free.
JOHN G. WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park, London, N.

HOW TO

READ THE BIBLE.

Neatly bound, 6 copies for 6d. 6th Edition. 20,000th.
This momentous question answered. A little book of vast importance. Ideas short and pithy. Readers of it thus write:—"A most excellent work." "Supplies a great want." "I pray that every household in England may possess copies."
Apply to Rev. C. LYNE, Westgate-on-Sea, Thanet.

Further Issue. Shortly Ready.
Cloth, 8vo. 1150 pages. Price FIVE SHILLINGS.

THE CHARITIES DIGEST AND REGISTER.

LOCAL, VOLUNTARY, GENERAL AND ENDOWED.

A Book of information regarding the Charities, in or available for the Metropolis, and the Legal and other provisions for the Relief of the Poor; Friendly, Benefit, Benevolent, Savings Banks, &c.

"An excellently seasonable publication, gives a fuller account of the scope and working of each institution than other guides to the Charities, adding thereto some facts which suffice as a rule, and enable the reader to form in each instance a notion for himself of the extent of its benevolence."—Daily News.

It will be undoubtedly the standard work of reference on the subject of London Charities and Charity.—Christian.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co., Paternoster-row, E.C.
CHARITY ORGANIZATION SOCIETY, 15, Buckingham-st., Strand, W.C.

BY REV. JOHN MACPHERSON.

CHEAP EDITION, Cloth, 2s. 6d. SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION, 1s. 6d.

LIFE OF DUNCAN MATHESON, the Scottish Evangelist.

"This is a book full of interest. It tells of the life-work and success of amost excellent and able lay revivalists of the best sort. No Christian can read it without profit. It is highly calculated to instruct and encourage such of God's servants as make the labour of saving souls the business of their life."—Methodist Family.

LARGE PRINT EDITION, Cloth, 1s. 6d; Paper, 1s.
CHEAP EDITION for Distribution, Cloth, 1s.; Paper, 6d.

THE CHRISTIAN HERO. A Memoir of Robert Annan.

"No better book could be put into the hands of town missionaries."—United Methodist Free Churches Magazine
"We heartily thank the Rev. J. Macpherson, for his well-written, graphic, and telling life of this 'Christian Hero.' It is a book to be read by all, but especially adapted to do good to the working classes."—Baptist Messenger

MESSRS. MOODY & SANKEY'S FIRST VISIT TO GREAT BRITAIN.

A Graphic Account of the Labours of these well-known Evangelists during their First Visit to this country will be found in

REVIVAL AND REVIVAL WORK.

CHEAP EDITION, Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s. 6d. SUPERIOR EDITION, Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 4s. 6d.

From The Record—"The Author of the 'LIFE AND LABOURS OF DUNCAN MATHESON' is always sure of a cordial welcome from the Christian Public. His publications have been circulated by thousands and even myriads, and many are the testimonies to the value of his soul-stirring narratives of the loving power of faithful Gospel preaching and earnest prayer. We hope that our readers will make the acquaintance of 'REVIVAL AND REVIVAL WORK,' and the interesting details with which it abounds."

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The Christian.

THE CHURCHES IN RELATION TO EVANGELISTIC WORK.

PRIZE ARTICLES

By Rev. EDWD. SMITH, Fairfield, Manchester.

CHAP. VII.—THE LORD'S IRREGULARS.

And when Apollos was disposed to pass into Achaia, the brethren wrote, exhorting the disciples to receive him; who, when he was come, helped them much who had believed through grace.—(ACTS xviii. 27.)

"Our little systems have their day;
They have their day and cease to be;
They are but broken lights of Thee,
And Thou, O Lord, art more than they."

"IN England there are twenty religions, and there is only one sauce." The Frenchman who made that comment intended it as satire; it is really a compliment. It illustrates our sturdy independency of thought, while it more than hints at a national contempt for condiments and delicacies. During the period which has elapsed since the observation was made, we may perhaps have degenerated in the matter of bodily appetite; but as to our continued use of our privilege of thinking for ourselves, there is no "perhaps;" we are as fond of freedom of opinion as ever we were. The British character, then, as expressed by the Churches, is sure to portray itself in ways irregular, as well as regular. In doing so, it rejoices to be in accord with that Bible which constantly asserts and cherishes the right of private judgment.

We are thus not at all surprised at finding that in Great Britain, and especially in England, the Lord's Irregulars are very strong in numbers and in energy. How can they best be utilised? That they ought to be utilised is all but self-evident. Did Paul hesitate to reap profit from the irregular labours of Apollos? Worldly policy, as well as Scriptural precedent, would lead us to such reaping. Frederick the Great did a very prudent thing than when he organised his famous "Free-Corps." In it were found the dashing, daring men who were competent to carry the war into the enemy's country, and, by rapid marches, swiftly executed enterprises, deft manœuvres, to keep the foe in a state of perpetual alarm, and to effect diversions invaluable to their warlike king. Equal wisdom may be shown by the Evangelical Churches, in their employment of agencies distinct from the stereotyped ones, and in their careful absorption of the results of irregular efforts to save souls. Nor must it be forgotten, that much that now falls under the heading of "routine" was once striking and exceptional; and much that to-day excites notice and surprise, will yet resolve itself into cuts in which the ecclesiastical wheels will laboriously move onward. What poets are in the region of secular thought, religious lobbyists often are in that of Christian duty —the pioneers of a great army yet to follow.

GODLY NOMADS ARE MULTIPLYING.

They go everywhere preaching the word. No badge of sect is worn by them. And the word "unsectarian" acts as a powerful magnet. Many who do not attend regular services are brought under the influence of the truth. The message is all the more mighty because, to many ears, it is strange. In town halls and temperance halls, in disused warehouses, and large upper rooms, in theatres and market squares, God's proclamation is trumpeted forth. The divergencies of creed among these Gospellers are not great. Sin, Love, Atonement, Salvation, Responsibility, Judgment, are the staple doctrines descanted upon. On these words the changes are rung.

As a consequence, numerous souls are awakened and saved. Here is a case in point. An Evangelist took a large room in a Lancashire town. Among the hearers was seated a well-known character, who, though the son of a lay-preacher, was a drunkard and a gambler. He had witnessed the imprisonment of some of his companions and the death of others without disturbance of heart. His freaks and evil-doings would make up a narrative as curious as sad. His latest iniquity had been to curse God at the grave of his child. That very man, through that series of services, was seized by the invisible hand, wrenched from his evil ways, led to join the Church of his father, and is now a devoted and prominent Christian.

Now the inquirers and converts in such meetings may be "beads without a string," but they are beads, and jewelled ones too; and there is no reason why they should not be strung together in Church fellowship with others who have been threaded into unison by the regular ministry. The Christian teacher who has been so useful to them has soon to go to another locality. To him, and therefore to his methods, they are naturally attached. And so the danger is that, when the emanations of his will are removed, the souls illumined will relapse into and the fruits of his consecrated labour disappear like winter's snow from Snowdon's summit.

A SORT OF TWILIGHT CONDITION,

How can these precious souls be preserved from evil and led into good? Let them be regarded aright. Who says "It is thankless work taking care of another man's converts? you have always the feeling that they are making comparisons highly uncomplimentary to you." That may be true, but are they not Jesus Christ's converts? And ought not that to be sufficient to silence all cavillings? It is, perhaps, the most difficult of all religious work to follow up the toils of a nomadic Evangelist, but, if patiently pursued, it yields rich reward. This is testified by many who, after the great central services of our American friends, got the lists and ferreted out the individuals. It is practicable to solicit these newly-enlightened ones to join the Church most suitable, and if that Church be worth joining, they will be eagerly welcomed.

No doubt each Evangelist has his preferences. He would be worth little if he had not. But he should ever look at the actual state of a Church, more than at its comparative approach to what he believes to be exact orthodoxy. A slight variation in the code of doctrine is overweighted by a greater spirituality and liveliness. While the agent of good leaves each one to his own choice, yet if his advice be sought he should prompt the inquirers to a union with the community which, in that particular place, is, religiously, in the best condition.

Generally, the Evangelist will be met more than half way by pastor and officials. One of the happier signs in Church-life now is the drawing together of extremes among ministry and people. On all sides we hear it said, "I cannot myself go in for just your kind of work, for my mental constitution forbids it, but I appreciate it none the less and will do my best to help you." Thanks be unto God for this

GREATER BREADTH OF FEELING.

Any minister or officer who does not help it on is indeed blameworthy. Almost certainly an interview or correspondence will end in the extension of the brotherly hand to those impressed in undenominational services. If this be not done, some will give up their profession, and others will wander from place to place until their faith suffers from chronic debility. "Unattached," unless in very robust souls, means "impoverished." Too much must not be expected from those who settle in organised Churches. Change of air and diet is troublesome to God's tiny children, but, after a time, they become "seasoned vessels."

And if the objection be made that these irregular labourers are irresponsible as to actions and character to any Church Court; that "a proportion of them have sown seeds of discord in the Churches"; that they "ought to be content to work in narrower spheres and in duly authorised fashion"; the answer is not far to seek; most of them have not the requisite qualifications for concentrated and successful labour, and those who do possess these would have to twist and almost to strangle their conscience in order to desert their present vocation. Many illustrations of this occur to me as I write. And if God chooses to glorify his name by saving souls through the agency of angular or even of inconsistent men, shall the Church decline to profit by such choice on the part of its Head? The happy penalty of witnessing in one place is often the command to witness in another, even as Paul was directed to succeed his testimony at Jerusalem with a new testimony at Rome.

(To be concluded.)

THAMES CHURCH MISSION.

THE many friends of this good work will be interested in reading the following valuable testimony extracted from a letter to the secretary of the Mission (31, New Bridge-street, E.C.), by a correspondent and a comparative stranger:

I am truly sorry to find on perusal of your report that your funds are not what they should be for such a great good work in the cause of our blessed Lord. The Thames Church Mission has especially come under my personal notice from having during the past two years been at sea for health's sake.

I was present at services held on board the ——— by one of your missionaries when we were leaving, and at New York, Boston, and on to Buffalo and Niagara Falls I met many emigrants who showed me the papers, &c., your missionaries had distributed at the services held on board their ships. Again, when I was recently returning from Boston to Liverpool by steamer, an aged sailor and a young engineer spoke most feelingly of their conversion to Christ at one of the Mission services held by the Thames Mission while their vessel was lying in the Port of London.

These facts have dwelt in my mind so much I am resolved to help in the good work of making your Mission more widely known wherever I may be visiting. I gladly become an annual subscriber, and will give a donation also from time to time, and circulate any paper you may send me. Wishing you God-speed, I am, yours most sincerely, BODMIN, CORNWALL.—Mr. George Blaiklock has conducted a short Gospel Temperance Mission here. The meetings were enthusiastic throughout. More than a fourth part of the population have now signed the pledge.

SPEZIA MISSION.—The district of Pistoja, where there is a branch of this Mission, was the scene of a very interesting event on New Year's Day. A faithful disciple of the Lord, who died in the hospital, was buried there in the presence of about 300 persons, who listened very attentively to the earnest and faithful words spoken at the grave. A number of Gospel tracts were distributed, and a deep impression has been made on many.

WEEK OF UNITED PRAYER.

NATIONAL BLESSINGS.

Address by Rev. DR. EDMOND,

At Centenary Hall, Friday, Jan. 12.

AFTER dilating, first, on the peculiar position and privileges of the Jewish nation, and then on the distinctive characteristics of those in all the nations who are subjects in God's spiritual kingdom, by the second birth, the speaker proceeded:—

I have touched upon this (though not in a literal sense included in our prayer for the nations) because, after all, it is this that makes any actual nation's prosperity—viz., the extent to which it becomes leavened and imbued with the principles that actuate this inner, holy, spiritual nation.

"The religion of a people," says someone, whose writings met my eye the other day—"the religion of a people enters into its nationality, and, if it could be taken away, it would have no coherence as a nation." And Christian peoples, as we call them, have been foremost in all that is virtuous, just, and noble, in proportion as the principles of Christianity have characterised them. So to touch upon this spiritual relation is to touch upon that which will give strength, and permanence, and power to actual nations on the earth.

When Mr. Herbert Spencer was in America, as you know, he was interviewed; and he gives an account, in The Contemporary Review for this month, of the questions put and the answers which he returned. One of these answers struck me much as I read it. He said something like this to his interviewer: "He was afraid that the American people were in danger of losing their freedom," when the interviewer demurred at this sombre anticipation. "But will not education and the diffusion of knowledge enable a people to maintain its free institutions?" Mr. Spencer's reply was remarkable; he said: "Scarcely.

IT IS NOT A MATTER SO MUCH OF KNOWLEDGE AS OF CHARACTER."

It is this that preserves a nation. And we Christians believe that character in the mass of mankind can only be formed by reconciliation to God, and return to subjection to the Divine rule. We believe that the perishing of Christianity from any land would be the signal for its decrepitude and decay; and if we lose hold, in this country of ours, or if America should lose hold, of the principles of Christianity, which heretofore have, more than anything else, moulded and shaped their destiny and course, then we shall begin to go down an inclined plane towards national destruction.

Here one cannot but say that these times of ours are not without peril with regard to national permanence and with regard to national pre-eminence; not without peril from the socialistic tendencies of the day; from the infidelity of the day; from the doubts as well as the denials of the day. Yet it would be a very faithless view of things, as I take it, that would regard these aspects of our times as indicating a decrepitude of Christianity itself. It is not so. It is yet a power in the earth, not less than ever it was. The Bible will be, yet, its own answer to infidelity; and the Christian life of Christian men will be the best barrier against divisions of the land; and the scepticism and doubt that prevail will yet flee before a simpler and more child-like faith—a faith that fights its way higher and higher through all the mists and fogs, and fastens its hand upon the throne of the everlasting God. "What one nation is like this nation?" we again repeat.

But one cannot close without recollecting that the nation which was the symbol and figure, as well as the precursor of this spiritual nation, whose principles must permeate the world if it is to be preserved for God—that nation has lost its national capacity. The Jewish people have no longer a visible kingdom. They are amongst the nations but not of them. They have lost their coherence and unity as a people. Separate from others, but not united amongst themselves, in a national capacity, I hope for them—I am not going to discuss the question by the briefest statement of argument—

A RESTORATION TO THEIR OWN LAND.

At the same time, though the land is kept empty for them, and they scattered and mingled with other nationalities, but not of them, I wish to say this, that no such restoration will be the hope of Israel; no restoration to Palestine, enriched as before, and even beyond its former fertility, will give these wearied tribes of God the rest, as a nation, that is predicted: they must return to the Lord their God and find Messiah, their Prince. Who can look at the scattered descendants of God's ancient people and remember what we know of them, without doing as we are to-day, including them especially and by name in the circle of our subjects for prayer?

One word more of a personal kind. We reckon ourselves, not unjustly, to belong to a very privileged country; and if we do it in a humble and grateful spirit, we can say, "Bless the Lord that we were born on British soil, and have a country with Laws and Government and Institutions such as cannot be found elsewhere." This is a true patriotism, which a man may cherish without derogating in the least from our love for all mankind; but a man may be an Englishman and not belong to "the happy nation." He may be born in this country, and yet not "born from above." Therefore, it is for us to look within and ask ourselves whether we add to the privilege of being born in this "Island of the Sea," so honoured by God, the privilege of being born again? Notwithstanding, brethren, in this let us not rejoice, that we are born in these happy days, and on this happy soil; but in this let us rejoice, that our names are written in heaven.

MORAL AND SPIRITUAL DESERTS.

Address by Rev. THOS. BROCKWAY, Missionary from Madagascar.

At Steinway Hall, Saturday, Jan. 13.

The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose. It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing: the glory of Lebanon shall be given unto it, the excellency of Carmel and Sharon, they shall see the glory of the Lord, and the excellency of our God.—Isaiah xxxv. 1, 2.

ONE cannot read the Book of God, and follow the course of God's providence intelligently, without realising this fact: that God never sends a servant of his to warfare at his own charges, in the physical world, in the social world, or in the spiritual world. In every sphere of God's government there is found a principle of compensation, so that when God sends a servant of his to severe toil He always provides him with Divine comfort; and this comfort sometimes takes the form of abounding joy.

That was the case with the prophet Isaiah. We see him as he toils on in those dark days of Uzziah and Jotham, those kings of Judah who were ever inclined to turn to God in times of sorrow and adversity, and to deny Him when the trouble was past. With a feeling almost like despair, Isaiah says, "The whole head is sick and the whole heart faint; from the crown of the head to the sole of the foot there is no soundness in it, but wounds and bruises, and putrefying sores." But, O man, there is a God who has sent you to this toil. He has respect to the sorrow of his servant; and by and by, when the man would despair, because of the lack of results of his toil, there comes to him a vision of future glory, for "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man to conceive what God hath prepared" for the man that waiteth for Him. So God gives to him a vision of that future glory, the full realisation of which we shall not witness, until God, pitying us in our distress, hearing us in our earnest supplication, finding how we fail as we endeavour to bring earth up to heaven, will bring heaven down to earth. The tabernacle of God will be with men and He will dwell with them. Then this terrible reproach of heathenism, of which in this land you think so little, will be wiped off from all the earth.

I would give one minute to the exegesis of this text. Perhaps, as you read it in this favoured land of God, you think the prophet has piled metaphor upon metaphor needlessly; but there is no superabundance of words in God's Book. What does he mean when he speaks of the wilderness, the solitary place, the desert? A wilderness is a vast area of God's earth, which God blessed and man cursed. Every spring God carpets it over far and wide with its carpet of grass, and every season there springs up verdure there. This is a "man-forsaken" land; and the first wilderness I ever crossed I viewed with a feeling almost of trepidation. I thought, as I traversed it, how, if we had earnest settlers from this land, it would be covered over with corn; but it was a land without inhabitant. A bird of prey was fattening on the remains of a murdered man's skull; even the people you met seemed to look at you with averted faces; all seemed to hurry on to inhabited places. The solitary places are areas of God's earth where the everlasting hills are seen, the granitic rocks; there the lizard glides along, and the bird of prey circles in the sky, watching for its daily meal. In that land people fancy there are the ghosts of the dead.

Then again the prophet speaks of the desert. No doubt many of us here have crossed the desert. There the heavens above are as brass, and the earth beneath would be as brass too, were it not that it is nothing but shifting sand. Our lips are parched with thirst; our eyes are blinded with the dust. By and by both beast and man think they see on the far-off horizon a lake of water. You can almost fancy you see its rippling surface. You urge on your weary beast, and you think he will drink and you will bathe before the sunset. Not at all; you are simply following the mirage of the desert. It is these suggestive figures of that God makes use of. He thus illustrates what man is naturally, and then goes on to show what He can make him when he becomes the subject of the new birth. As soon as he becomes a child of God, then it may be said, "it shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing." "The glory of Lebanon," with its noble cedars, of Carmel, with its excellences of fertility, and of Sharon, with its beautiful wealth of flowers, shall change under the influence of the ministers of the grace of God.

MAN-CURSED AND HUMANITY-FORSAKEN EARTH

You say, "But is it so?" If it were not so we would still believe God. But it is so. You know what a wilderness, a desert, the heathen world is, both manward and Godward. I might speak of the ignorance of the heathen world, of the cruelty, of the falseness, of the degradation, of the immorality, of the suspiciousness, of the oppressions of the heathen world, until you would go home realising more than you had ever realised before what a wilderness this heathen world is, both manward, and Godward. But I want to deepen your earnestness when you pray, and inspire you with a deeper feeling of thankfulness when you praise; therefore let me present to you one or two facts connected with the Mission field.

I was travelling many years ago in Southern Africa; for my work has not always been in Madagascar. I was accompanied by one or two native teachers, for it was during a disturbed period in our history when war was imminent. The native teachers I had with me were very intelligent, and my plan was this, to visit kraal after kraal, reading, and speaking, and praying. When I was thoroughly tired, then the native preachers would carry on the work in turn. A great crowd would often gather together when I was preaching. On one occasion I was rejoicing in the apparent deep earnestness of the people, their great interest, and the uninterrupted silence with which they listened. But it is not always as we think and hope. I had scarcely finished my sermon when my native preachers said to me, "We dare not have preached to-day as you have." "Why?" I asked. "Oh, sir," they replied, "if we had preached as you have, these people would have taken our lives." Thinking I had done something very wrong, I said, "What have I done or said, that would have endangered your lives?" The answer was, "Again and again in your address you have uttered the word 'death.'" "Of course I have," I said, "because I have been insisting on the fact that it is appointed unto men once to die, and after that the judgment." "But these people," they replied, "never utter the word 'death,' nor will they allow anyone to utter it in their hearing." Just as the silly bird in the desert, hiding its head in the sand, thinks it is safe because it cannot see danger, and therefore will not die; so these silly people hide away the thought and the mention of death, and therefore think they will be immortal. What a contrast is with what I might tell you of in another Mission-field: even the looking forward to death with joy. There was one man, who in his youth was a very wicked man, but the lion was turned into a lamb, and he became a pillar of the Church below. He was feeling downcast and troubled as his end was drawing near, for Satan had seized the occasion to try him. He had no comfort, and the Missionary could give him none. One morning, however, the Missionary found the old man with his eye looking bright and his face looking cheerful. He asked him about himself, and he said: "It is all light now; last night I dreamt a dream." Then the Missionary feared that it was all a delusion, but said to him, "Pray tell me about it." He continued: "I dreamt I was far away from home, but I did not fear, because there was still an hour or two of daylight. Suddenly, there rose up to my view a vast chain of high mountains; I looked on all sides, but I was troubled, knowing that I must cross this mountain before I reached home. Its steepness was very great, and I endeavoured to climb over it but I could not, and I wept. As I wept, I looked heavenward, and now the evening stars were beginning to shine out brightly in the sky. Then I saw one star unlike to every other star, and I fixed my attention upon it. I saw it move, and it came nearer and nearer to the earth. I saw as it came nearer that it was no star, and something seemed to whisper to me that it was a drop of blood. I saw it come nearer and nearer until it touched the top of the mountain, and the mountain dissolved. Then I leapt to my feet and I was soon at home."

THIS DESERT OF HEATHENISM

The Missionary said to him, "And what did the mountain mean?" "It meant, sir, that the blood of Jesus Christ, God's Son, cleanseth us from all sin. It cleanses me from sins which I committed, which I dare not tell to you, but which I have confessed to God." And in the joy that truth gave, this aged saint passed into the presence of his Saviour to join the white-robed throng.

There is another feature of the Missionary's labour of which I should like to speak, of which we seldom hear in this country, and yet nothing strikes a man more, coming from heathen lands, than this matter. When he is privileged to enter into your homes he sees wonderful sympathy for the sick. Go where I will in this land I hear of people thinking, and toiling, and feeling for the sick. I find cottage hospitals, the poor cared for because they are sick, and children's hospitals for sick children.

OH, THE UTTER CONTRAST TO ALL THIS

in these heathen lands! A little English girl said, "I like to be sick, because when I am sick people bring me such good things." Among the heathen Malagasies, when a chief is dying, his friends will cover him with a mantle, and leave him alone until he passes away. In heathenism sympathy is a word unknown. Let me illustrate, in connection with this point, how the wilderness rejoices and blossoms as the rose. One day two or three of our native Christians came to see me, and said: "Oh, master, is it possible for you to go into the heathen town?" I said "Yes; what is wrong?" They said, "There is an old woman, a heathen, so ill we are not sure you will see her alive. We think, perhaps, you can save her." I went at once, taking with me such medicine as I thought would meet her case. I found her stretched out as if dead; her eyes were open; her hands were closed as if grasping something, but there was a slight flutter of the heart. My difficulty was intensified by the impossibility of my making any diagnosis of the sickness. So there commenced a battle with death, which went on somewhat in darkness for sixteen hours. At last we conquered, and the woman was saved.

Then we discovered the cause of her sickness: the woman was poisoned. She was one of a very poor class of women who get their living by gathering silk-worms, which they cast into the boiling water in order to separate the cocoon from the worm. Hunger compels them to eat the silk-worms. The silk-worms generally are not injurious; but there is one kind found in the centre of Madagascar which, if eaten, is poisonous; and it was this kind of silk-worm the woman had been eating. She was saved, and it did not afterwards need much from me, except my tonics, to restore her to health, but it needed all the kind Christian women's care. Bless God for the presence, in heathen lands, of Christian women. Well, she needed all their care day by day, and nourishing food to strengthen her. I thought at one time she would lose her reason, but gradually she grew strong. One evening her shadow came upon the window, and she came in to see me, and said, "Oh, sir, I want to learn something of this praying;" that is the term the heathen always apply to Christianity, as praying is one of its marked features. It was not that native women under our direction had watched her day and night, but that the white man and woman from over the sea should be ready to care for her; this had broken her heart, so she said, "Teach me about this Christianity." She was taught about it; and not long after this, when we met at the Lord's Supper, out of a little band of candidates, the first to be baptized and to come to the Table of the Lord was this poor old woman, saved from death and from heathenism.

THE JOY AND HAPPINESS

which the Missionary takes to these heathen lands no tongue can ever tell. Because of this we ask you to pray for us. I might occupy not twenty minutes but twenty hours in telling you about the work in heathen lands. There are hundreds to-day in heathen lands who are thinking of you praying here to day. Some of us are quite old enough to call to mind the short, sharp war of the Abyssinian expedition. You remember King Theodore kept two or three British subjects in prison, and no entreaty, no expostulation, no threat, could induce him to release them. At last the British nation arose and said, "At all costs the prisoners must be released;" and so General Napier led his army along the defiles over the mountains. At length he came to Magdala, the capital of Abyssinia. You remember how King Theodore was conquered and slain, and so General Napier ascended to the capital. But perhaps some of you do not know that as General Napier rode into the city, those captives, bowed down with their long imprisonment, came near to him, and laid their hands upon his horse's saddle and thanked him as their deliverer. He said to them, "Do not thank me; God is the deliverer. The Christians in England have been praying for you."

Oh, the strife is hard; sometimes a dark shadow comes over the Missionary's spirit; and it will only be as you pray for us, we shall conquer. Yes, we shall conquer, "for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." You may go out in the evening when you are very weary in that heathen land. As you walk along you look heavenward, and as you gaze upwards, you see that wonderful constellation which we call "the Southern Cross." There it burns brightly, and as you gaze upon it, it reminds you of one who died on Calvary, who said, "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." So we, inspired with the confidence that you have been praying for us, will lift up that Christ, until the day shall come when Christ shall be King over the whole earth, and there shall be one Lord, and his name one. May the Lord hasten that time!

BOURNEMOUTH.

Meetings were held daily in the Town Hall from 12 to 1. Earl Cairns presided on the first day. United meetings of Nonconformists were held at the Congregational Chapel.

STRATFORD.

The Week of United Prayer here has been a very blessed season indeed. This year we must praise God for added favours, alike in the tone of the meetings and in the attendance. While due place was given to the addresses founded upon the special petitions for the day, more time than hitherto was devoted to praise and prayer. The number of special requests sent in from day to day were far in excess of any previous year. At all the meetings, both morning and evening, the pleadings were mainly for the indwelling unction and power of the Holy Ghost, the fuller consecration of individual believers, and that all the Churches of Christ might this year be aroused to greater directness and earnestness of effort for the advancement of the Redeemer's kingdom.

At Christ Church, Amhurst-road, West Hackney, the week of prayer was inaugurated by a tea given to a number of poor people. Revs. A. T. Cox, C. Graham, Dr. Boardman; Messrs. R. Paton, A. J. Arnold, and Haig Miller gave addresses. The week was observed, amongst other places, at Sheffield, Portsmouth, Ilminster, Paignton, Devonshire, Creetown, N.B., Brighouse and Rastrick, &c., &c.

CHRISTIAN VERNACULAR EDUCATION SOCIETY FOR INDIA (7, Adam-street, Adelphi, London, W.C.).—Rev. Henry Seeley has been appointed Organising Secretary of this Society, and has resigned the incumbency of St. Philip's, Old Kent-road. Mr. Seeley will be glad to preach for the Society in any churches that may be open to him, and also to arrange for drawing-room and public meetings.

RICHARD WEAVER has been labouring for nine days in Byrom Hall, Liverpool, with much success; the meetings increased up to the close. On the Sunday many hundreds had to be turned away. His old friend Reginald Radcliffe took part one night, and it seemed like old times. Many have been the slain of the Lord; to Him be all the praise. Our brother is now going to labour in Cardiff; he asks the prayers of our readers on his behalf.

ANTI-VIVISECTION.—The annual meeting of the Scottish Society for the Suppression of Vivisection was lately held at Edinburgh. It was stated on the occasion that £15,000 had been withdrawn from the Edinburgh University in consequence of the practice of vivisection by one of the Professors. During the past year about sixty petitions, bearing 30,000 names, were presented to Parliament from Scotland, calling for the total suppression of vivisection.

BANFFSHIRE GOSPEL VAN. — A praiseworthy attempt is being made by Rev. G. S. Muir, Grange, Keith, N.B., to reach the farm-servants in Banffshire, many of whom do not attend any place of worship. With the help of several friends he purchased a van, which is taken by two young men to the fairs and feeing markets; by combining the evangelistic and colporteurs agencies, the workers are enabled to meet all the wants of the agricultural classes. During the past year, which was the first, great progress has been made; many of the farm-servants and their masters have been benefited, and there is every encouragement to proceed with the work. The cost of the Mission is not more than £120 per annum, and friends from many parts have helped.

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.—The Committee of the London Female Preventive and Reformatory Institution, 200, Euston-road, N.W., held a service of prayer and praise on the 10th inst. It was attended by matrons and friends of the institution. The Secretary was desired to make arrangements for the admission of all suitable applicants to the utmost capacity of the Homes and Open-all-Night Refuge, irrespective of any fluctuations of income, believing such a course to be in harmony with the merciful purposes of God through Jesus Christ. The statistics for the past year show that the cases admitted to the Open-all-Night Refuge during the year were 629; new cases admitted to the Homes, 497; number of inmates at the close of the year, 194.

CO-OPERATION, NOT COMPETITION.—8.

By Rev. WASHINGTON GLADDEN.

HOW FIVE FEEBLE BANDS BECAME ONE.*

THE report of the conversation in Dr. Sampson's study furnished a theme for the next meeting of the Club.

"Since our talk that morning," said Dr. Sampson, "I have taken pains to get at a few of the facts about the small towns in this county. Monroeville is the type of a class. There is Stapleton, with a population of eleven hundred, and with four Churches; Scantico, with six hundred people, and three Churches; Rowell, with nine hundred people, and four Churches, and so on. Eight towns in this county, with an aggregate population of nine thousand one hundred and thirty-four, support thirty-seven religious societies. Of these at least fifteen are receiving more or less aid from the various home missionary organisations."

"Even when the societies are self-supporting," said Dr. Phelps, "the support is generally meagre, the membership is small, and the terms of the pastorates are lamentably short."

"It is plain," said Mr. Hartwell, "that the Churches in these small towns ought to unite. What hinders them?"

"First," answered the Doctor, "is the strength of the sectarian prejudice,—always more intense in the small places than in the large ones. Then there is a sentiment much less reprehensible—the attachment to the local organisation, around which many grateful memories cling. The people do not like to give up a Church which may have a noble history, and which is sure to be the shrine of sweet associations."

"Certainly," said Mr. Hartwell; "those hindrances are obvious. They may be called sentimental; even so they are not easily overcome. Are there any other practical obstacles?"

"In most of these towns," said Mr. Peters, "the only way of uniting would be to abandon the old organisations and form a new one,—a Union Church, like ours at Cyprusville."

"There is another practical difficulty," said Mr. Franklin, picking up the thread of the discussion where Mr. Peters had dropped it, "more serious than the legal disability. When you have got your union Churches formed, they belong nowhere. Now, people like to feel that they do belong somewhere. If they are weak and small themselves, they enjoy the knowledge that they are members of some respectable body in whose interests they have a part. These union Churches have nowhere to go, unless we invite them into our Congregational conferences, as we generally do. But then the other sectarians say that a union Church is nothing but a Congregational Church. There is truth enough in what they say to make it necessary to devise some means by which these union Churches may find a less ambiguous fellowship; and I propose a Convention of all the Churches in the county to meet twice a year for consultation about Christian work in the county."

"Who should call such a Convention?" asked Mr. Hartwell.

"This Club," answered Mr. Franklin. "A committee, consisting of the minister and one layman from each of our Churches, should issue the call, summoning every Church in the county to send its pastor and a lay delegate to such a Convention, at which a permanent organisation should be effected."

The Club discussed the proposed Convention vigorously for an hour, and then, no one dissenting, the committee was appointed and the call was speedily issued. The object of the Convention, as stated in the call, was "to promote union and efficiency in Christian work, and to secure a more systematic evangelisation of the destitute neighbourhoods throughout the county." The organisation effected was simple. It was named "The Christian League of Bradford County." The only permanent officer was the secretary. An Outlook Committee of five was to be appointed at each meeting, whose duty it should be to make inquiry respecting the feeble Churches, and to secure, as far as possible, co-operation or consolidation. Meetings were to be held twice a year, on the first Tuesdays of April and October. Papers and addresses showing the waste and mischief caused by sectarian divisions and the need of unity were to be provided by the Outlook Committee for each meeting. The principal object of the League, as defined in the preamble, was "to generate and disseminate right opinions respecting the duty of Christians to co-operate, to see that the waste places are cultivated, and to extend the fellowship of all believers to those Churches that have no denominational fellowship."

There was some hesitation, at first, about this project; but the representatives of the New Albion Churches all threw themselves into it with such heartiness that the doubts and scruples of the rest were vanquished, and the constitution was adopted with some enthusiasm.

Not many days after this, a letter from Monroeville invited a deputation from the Churches of New Albion to come up and hold a public meeting in the interests of Christian union. The three ministers who had part in the accidental conference in Dr. Sampson's study responded to this call, taking with them Dr. Strickland, of the Episcopalians, and Elder Bates, of the Adventists. They found the Town Hall crowded with a curious and not very sympathetic assembly. It was evident that there were not a few of these auditors who were quite of the mind of the historic deacon: they were ready to be convinced, if they were in error, and would like to see the man that could do it. But the New Albion delegation had no misgivings. They knew that the idea they advocated was right and reasonable, and they talked like men who expected to carry their point. The speech of the evening, all things considered, was that of Mr. Hartwell. Several years of his earlier ministry had been spent in these small towns, and he spoke from a full experience of the evils of sectarian division.

"I never was in Monroeville before," he said; "but I have lived in towns just like it, and I can tell something about the state of things in this town which will be no news to you, but which it may do you no harm to hear. Your five little societies, living here at a poor, dying rate, do not have a very good time. You cannot live without help from outside; that is confessed. With all the help you can get, none of these Churches is able to offer its pastor a decent living. The salaries are so small that the grade of men you are able to secure is extremely low. Now and then a man of good gifts and great fidelity, like the venerable pastor of the Baptist Church, settles in a town like this and stays many years; but the great majority are young men, who will not stay more than a year or two, or men who have failed everywhere else, and who sometimes fasten themselves on you and give you plenty of trouble in getting rid of them. The Methodists have a way of managing such cases; but the Methodist Churches in these small towns rarely keep a man through the three years that the discipline allows, unless he is a man they do not want. Is not that true?

"The consequence is that your Christian work is poorly done. Many waste places in the corners of these towns are sadly neglected, and are becoming rapidly heathenised. The religious wants of these communities are not so well provided for as they were in the days when there was but one Church. You say that you are sending down to the cities a constant stream of your young men, and that is true; but the young men that you are sending us now-a-days are not of so good a quality as those you sent fifty years ago. The young men of your town do not get so much benefit from your Churches as they got fifty or sixty years ago. How can they? What have you here to attract the attention and command the respect of intelligent young men? Your feeble, half-alive Churches, that struggle for existence, and are afflicted with chronic debility, do not strongly appeal to the enthusiasm of young men.

"The social life of your town is marred by these hateful divisions. The people of each Church are a little clique; there are not enough of them to make it lively when they get together; petty sectarian jealousies keep you apart. If the Methodists have a fair or a supper, very few go but their own folks; if the Congregationalists try to have a course of lectures, they must depend mainly on their own congregation for an audience. Of course there is some denominational reciprocity, but it is limited. The barrenness of your social life is largely due to these sectarian divisions. They constitute one of the principal reasons why life here is undesirable—why people, especially young men, get away as soon as ever they can.

"So, then, even as things are now, with all the help you are getting, I am sure that you yourselves can see that you are not succeeding in doing for your town, with your present machinery, what needs to be done.

"The devotion and the earnestness of many men and women here are worthy of all praise; but the results of their work, as they will admit, are meagre and unsatisfactory. If, then, things could go on upon the present basis, there would not be much encouragement in the prospect; but I am bound to tell you that I doubt whether things can go on much longer upon the present basis. I do not believe that the Christian people of the country will be willing much longer to contribute money for the perpetuation of these sectarian divisions. Many are beginning to see pretty clearly the foolishness and sin of them, and to demand that they shall cease. This is a fact to which you must give due heed. You are wise enough to make a virtue of necessity.

"Think, if you can, how much better it would be to have one religious society here instead of five. You could have one good church edifice; you could take the largest and best of your three and renovate and beautify it for your place of worship, and fit up one of the others for a lecture hall and for other social purposes. You could have one first-rate minister, and pay him a good salary, and not need to beg a cent of it from anybody. You could have your pick of all the singers in town for your choir. You would have one fine congregation,—large enough to make preaching, and listening, too, much more inspiring. Your minister would be likely to remain with you several years,—long enough to get acquainted with the absentees of the out-districts, to gain their friendship, and to mature plans of successful work among them. Your social life would be improved. By combining all your forces you could have singing schools, concerts, courses of lectures, reading circles, various literary and musical diversions of an excellent character. Monroeville would be a pleasanter place to live in; people would not be in such a hurry to get away; property would cease to depreciate.

* Abridged from The Century Magazine.

"What is the condition of all this gain? Simply that you should drop your small, sectarian prejudices, and begin to be what the disciples were called at Antioch—Christians, nothing more nor less. Simply that you should learn to love Christ and his cause better than you love your own pet peculiarities of doctrine or worship. Is that impossible? Does anybody mean to say that the members of these Churches in Monroeville are so narrow and obstinate that they cannot make so small a sacrifice for so great a good; that they will insist on maintaining, in a town of eight hundred inhabitants, five separate, starving sectarian organisations, instead of one vigorous Christian Church? Does any man tell me that the people of Monroeville, after coming together and looking this question in the face, are going away to say, 'It is of no use; we are too selfish and bigoted; we cannot live together peaceably; we must stick to our separate Churches, though they perish, and religion and virtue and social life perish with them?' No, my friends. I have a better opinion of you. You have remained in this unhappy condition because you saw no good way out of it; now the way is open, and you will walk in it."

Mr. Hartwell's speech carried the day. A committee, consisting of the pastor and two members from each of the societies, was named on the spot and instructed to mature a plan of consolidation, to be presented to each of the Churches. Within two months all the old societies had been disbanded, and a new one formed under the style of Unity Church. The meeting-house of the Congregationalists, which was largest and most central, was retained as the house of worship; that of the Baptists was refitted as a social hall, and that of the Methodists was purchased by the town for a school-house,—the money thus obtained being devoted to a renovation of the other houses. The Apostles' Creed served the new Church for its confession of faith, and its organisation was in most respects similar to that of the Church in Cyprusville. Mr. Slade easily found another field of labour in Kansas; the end of the conference year terminated Mr. Towne's stay in Monroeville, and Elder Crane, who continued to reside in the town, gratified the universal wish by taking charge of the new organisation until a pastor could be found. The behaviour of the good old clergyman in all this experience was eminently judicious and Christian. His rhetoric was turgid and his opinions were not modern, but his heart was sound and the people loved him.

Thus it was that five feeble bands of sectaries in one small town were united into one efficient and self-supporting Christian Church.

BIBLE FLOWER MISSION.—Mrs. A. Dove, 110, Cannon-street, E.C., Hon. Superintendent of this Mission, in her report of this month states that the number of bouquets, cards, lavender bags, and presents received in December, for distribution among the patients in the hospitals, was 24,637.

GLASGOW SEAMEN'S FRIEND SOCIETY.—For sixty years this society has been steadily working among the sailors who visit the port of Glasgow. There are now seven agents, who, with a band of voluntary workers, visit the ships as they arrive, direct the men to respectable lodgings, and try to induce them to bank their money. A free reading-room and institute is constantly open, and Gospel meetings are held, and largely attended. Special attention is paid to the widows and orphans of seamen. Foreign sailors are heartily welcomed. Over one thousand persons last year professed to find the Saviour at the various meetings.

BIBLE READINGS ON THE HOLY SPIRIT.

By GEORGE C. NEEDHAM.

VI.—THE HOLY SPIRIT AND SERVICE.

WE know that one effort put forth in the power of the Holy Ghost is worth a whole life-time of service without Him. While meditating on this subject I have been impressed with the need there is in these days that Christian workers should be more fully anointed with power from on high. Why cannot we, as the disciples of old, wait for ten days before the Lord, that we may receive a baptism of the Spirit? I am sure we all feel that we are not filled full as we wish to be. Where is the hindrance? Is not the Lord willing to pour out a blessing according to his promise? I do not know that it would be a waste of time if our Christian merchants were to close their shops, and our ministers close their studies, so as to meet in some central place from day to day and cry for an outpouring of the Holy Ghost. Indeed, I do not know, but I may in these remarks be occupying precious time that ought to be spent on our knees. But if they should lead us to our knees afterwards, the time will not be misspent.

Service implies that we are already brought into relationship with the Lord. And if we are Servants, that involves the still closer relationship of Sons. "Son, go work to-day in my vineyard." God employs not hirelings, but sons. I remember going with my wife to visit an interesting lighthouse on the New Jersey coast. She made the remark to the light-house-keeper: "When you hear the wind blowing and the storm raging, are you not filled with fear for your safety?" "Oh, no," he replied, "my own safety is secured. I bend all my energies to keeping the reflectors bright and the lamps filled with oil; I think about the safety of others." So when the Christian knows that his own safety is secured, he will endeavour to shine out upon the dark waters of sin for the safety of those who are perishing in their unbelief.

For this service we need power. In Micah iii. 8, we read: "I am full of power by the Spirit of the Lord." Any man who rebukes a backsliding people needs to be full of power. Our Lord said to his apostles, "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high." (Luke xxiv. 49, Acts i. 8.) So that we in New Testament times need the very same power that the Old Testament prophets had, whether our services take the form of rebuking sin, or witnessing for Jesus and inviting sinners to Him.

This power of the Holy Spirit may be represented in a twofold manner—power within us, and power resting upon us. "The water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life" (John iv. 14). This denotes the personal life and experience of the believer. "He that believeth on Me, out of him shall flow rivers of living water" (John vii. 37)—not a well only, but a fountain. This is the real secret of ministry—not receiving the Spirit once for all, but putting ourselves under the Divine inflow, that He may flow through us in the form of service and ministry for others.

When God made choice of a man to do the work of constructing the Tabernacle, he must be endowed with wisdom by the same Spirit as fitted Moses for the work of leadership. In all the detail work of the Churches we need men qualified by the power of the Spirit dwelling within them.

It is said of John the Baptist that from his birth he should be filled with the Holy Ghost (Luke i. 15, 16). He was to be a Nazarite—one separated into God from the womb. Think of his marvellous ministry, which lasted only about nine months. For further instances of the enduement with power in the early Church, see Acts ii. 4, iv. 31, vi. 3—5.

But there is something beyond; we want not only to be filled with the Spirit, but to overflow. "I am full of matter, the Spirit within constraineth me, I will speak that I may be refreshed" (Job xxxii. 18—20). Our testimony from the Lord ought to refresh us if we are like Elihu. "My heart is inditing a good matter"—bubbling up like those hot springs that burst from the earth—"I speak of the things which I have made touching the King" (Ps. xlv. 1). When a man is full of the Holy Ghost his talk will not be about himself. Let us pray that there may be such a fulness of the Spirit within us that it must find vent: that we must talk that our our hearts may be refreshed.

The other thought is, the power of the Spirit upon us. In this aspect the Spirit is represented by the oil. How frequent, in the symbolic rites of the Old Testament priesthood, was the use of the consecrating oil! As illustrations of the power of God resting on his servants, see Joshua—Num. xxvii. 18; Deut. xxxiv. 9; Gideon—Judges vi. 34; Samson—xiii. and xiv.; Elisha—2 Kings ii. 9; Zechariah—2 Chron. xxiv. 20. See also, Is. xxxii. 15; Ezek. xxxvii. As we go forth to service among the dry bones of this great city, or elsewhere, let us claim the promise of the Holy Ghost upon us. If we continually feel our entire dependence on Him, He will not leave us. He will be in us and upon us, clothing his own word with mighty power.

MR. ELI JOHNSON.—During his lecturing tour in Victoria, Mr. Johnson was seized with an attack of apoplexy, resulting from having to sleep in a damp room. We are glad to say that by latest advices he was out of danger, though still weak. He expects to continue his lecturing tour in Dunedin, New Zealand.

PENANG CHINESE GIRLS' SCHOOL.—The work of Mr. and Mrs. Green amongst the young at Penang, though carried on amidst much trial, many discouragements, and bodily weakness, gives cause for much thankfulness and encouragement. A Government grant is given for the day-school, but in this Mrs. Green does not participate. In the year just closed, the balance has been on the wrong side. The percentage of passes last obtained was eighty. The Sunday-school is well attendep by boys and girls. A good work is done by Mr. Green amongst the European soldiers stationed in that district.

THE TWO VACANT BISHOPRICS have been filled up, and in a manner which can create no surprise. Canon Wilkinson has been chosen to succeed Dr. Benson at Truro. Already a Canon of the Cornwall See, there is probably no one to whom the new Archbishop would have more contentedly resigned his diocese. Canon Wilkinson's views may be considered as coinciding closely with his own, and the new Bishop will no doubt continue the work which has been developed with so much activity and success by his predecessor upon the same lines. Thankful as we feel for the evangelistic zeal which has always shone forth both in the pulpit utterances and the parochial labours of Canon Wilkinson, we cannot but express an earnest hope that in his new position of increased power and responsibility, he may be led to a more complete view of Scriptural truth. The mixture of high sacramentarian doctrine with the most earnest and faithful preaching of the Gospel has hitherto produced a painful confusion in his teaching as a whole, which renders it difficult to use words either of praise or of disapproval concerning it without being misunderstood. The Venerable Richard Lewis, a Welsh-speaking clergyman, who has been very active as Archdeacon of St. David's, succeeds good Bishop Ollivant. The new Prelate adds another to the unbroken line of Mr. Gladstone's High Church appointments. He signed the Dean of St. Paul's Memorial for toleration of Ritualism of two years ago.—The Record.

OUR WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

THE readers of THE CHRISTIAN have given such earnest attention to the papers I have already written, on the vital question of the prevention of the degradation of women and children, that I feel sure they will allow me to make one more suggestion, which I owe to the Hon. Mrs. Stuart Wortley, and which strikes me as a valuable plan for raising the tone of our working-class girls, and one singularly easy of execution.

It is, that we should open our own houses for an hour or two on Saturday afternoons to the elder girls of the nearest week-day school, who would be children, for the most part, between twelve and thirteen. The school-teacher would give us a list of their names; we could invite them in school—holding out little inducements for them to come; and if there is no time to go round to the parents individually, each child could be given a little note to take home, asking their permission.

The children having been at lessons all the week, the Saturday class must be made something of a treat, and the teacher might report a child who has been guilty of bad conduct, and attendance for the next Saturday might be forfeited. It would be easy enough to make it very attractive, and yet at the same time really instructive. I should suggest the dressing of dolls with clothes to come off and on, made exactly the same as their own, or their little baby-sisters', first of all cut out from paper patterns, and then from memory. This would give them a good knowledge of cutting out and making. Crewel-work might also be had recourse to, as well as making up scrap-books for sick or workhouse children; or the Saturday afternoon's work might be appropriated to a little sale for some Home for destitute children, which would form an absorbing interest to the girls. An interesting book would be read out, and the whole would conclude with singing, and a very few earnest words. The class would be held by the mistress of the house, or her daughters, or even at times by our Christian servants, when some engagement fell on the Saturday.

But may I not earnestly plead that the class should be held in our own houses, and not shunted into a school-room or a mission-room to save our carpets, or avoid the personal trouble and inconvenience which is the very salt of the sacrifice? It does seem to me we do not make half enough use of our own houses. If our very bodies are not our own, still less can our comfortable houses be so. The culture and beauty with which we are often able to fill them are surely given us that we may have more to spend for the good of the many, than if we were all ugly, and dirty, and ignorant in back streets together. Only, alas! without thinking, we too often keep all these pretty things round ourselves, and forget to use them to bring brightness and beauty into the uncultured lives around us. The very refinements of these houses of ours would do much to raise the tone of our working-class girls, while intercourse with ourselves would tend to teach them self-respect and shrinking from low ways and coarse familiarities. I was much amused at one of my educated girls, who are coming forward so nobly in the north, to work among rough factory girls, and open club-rooms for them, telling me how they could always get rid of any low expressions or rude ways by saying gravely, "Oh, you know, we don't consider that good taste." Our working-class girls would quickly catch our tone if there were more habitual intercourse between us; and every Christian house should be a training home for fine manners and pure living and high thinking, the grace and beauty of our Lord Jesus Christ.

This suggestion strikes me as the more valuable, now the stricter educational arrangements of our secular schools make it impossible for ladies to take a class and teach, as they frequently used to do. The amateur teaching was doubtless in most cases very bad, but at least it had the advantage of bringing us into intercourse with our working-class girls. But the suggestion made would secure the advantage without any counterbalancing disadvantage.

Out of such a Saturday afternoon class as I have described, of course a great deal would naturally spring. In some cases, I should hope cookery lessons might be found feasible. We should naturally see to their having a respectable start in life; seeing after their first situations, and I trust more and more of us undertaking to give a girl some training under our own upper-class servants; drafting them into the Girl's Friendly Society or the Young Women's Christian Association, getting them into Bible-classes, &c.

In this way we might, through our week-day schools, get the whole mass of our working-class girls under our influence, and train the future wives and mothers of England to a higher standard of womanhood, a womanhood which would be a fountain, not, as it often is now, of low traditions and bad training, but of love, and life, and purity. "Gagnez les femmes," said the great emperor. Let us gain the future wives and mothers of England for God and purity, and the next generation will be very different from this.

Surely all the anguish we Christian women feel over the degradation of our own womanhood is not for nothing. Surely our God, who is Love and Consuming Fire, has suffered this pit of hell in our midst for some divine purpose. Surely in the fires of this conflict we are to be fused and welded into a common womanhood such as the world has not seen; a common womanhood, which will look upon it as a matter of course to give up the Saturday afternoon to raising our dear working-class girls, and helping them to work out the Divine possibilities of this womanhood of theirs; that will lead us to hold any culture and refinement we may possess, as a trust for the toiling women beneath us, shut out from our advantages; that will make us realise that God has made this poor darkened humanity of ours in his own one and indivisible image of Love, and that not the weakest member of the mystical body can be suffered to know corruption, without the whole body suffering loss and dishonour. Mothers write to me, saying, "I feel that God will not bless my efforts for my own sons, unless I do my utmost for these poor tempted and unfriended girls." Women write to me in trouble and perplexity, with regard to some servant or shop-girl: "Before I read your books, I should have turned her off at a moment's notice, but now I feel the deep responsibility we women have to one another."

In conclusion, may I earnestly thank the readers of THE CHRISTIAN for the sympathy and co-operation they have given me in circulating "Grave Moral Questions"?* That, in two months after publication, the little pamphlet should have reached its 45th thousand, shows how generously they have responded to my appeal to take fifty copies, and distribute them quietly and prayerfully among their friends. It is doing much to prepare the way for the petitions we are desirous of starting with the opening year from all our large towns in favour of the protection of minors from corruption. However much we may naturally shrink from publicity, there is evidently no getting a radical reform of the criminal law of England in the protection it affords to the young from all attempts to lead them into a dissolute life, without a wide appeal to public opinion. In the present state of public ignorance on the whole question, such a reform is simply impossible. I would, therefore, ask my kind and thoughtful readers not to slacken but redouble their efforts to get the facts known, and to continue circulating "Grave Moral Questions" by fifties and hundreds, till we have sufficient public opinion on our side to ensure a protection to the young, at least equal in stringency to the protection the English law accords to property.

ELLICE HOPKINS.

Percy House, Brighton.

* "Grave Moral Questions," 45th thousand, price 2d. Half-price for fifty copies. Hatchards, Piccadilly, W.

MEDICAL MISSIONS TO MOHAMMEDANS.

DEAR SIR,—A question has been asked in your columns concerning the best method of approaching Mohammedans with the Gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Mohammedans may be placed in the same category with the Jews in one particular, that they are most difficult of access, and for a very obvious reason. The more of truth there is in any false or defective religion, the harder will be the task of those who seek to displace it or supplement it by the presentation of the truth as it is in Jesus; and as Jews and Mohammedans alike firmly hold the great truth of the unity of the Godhead, it becomes very difficult to persuade them that there is a trinity in unity, and that God sent his Son to be the Saviour of the world. Hence the absolute need of the most thoroughly Scriptural presentation of the Gospel to people with opinions firmly rooted in truth.

And what is the most Scriptural presentation of the Gospel? We had better take, simpliciter, our Saviour's earliest commissions to the Twelve, as recorded in Luke ix. 1, 2: "He sent them to preach the Kingdom of God, and to heal the sick;" to the Seventy (Luke x. 9), "Heal the sick, and say unto them, the Kingdom of God is come nigh unto you." Medical Missions offer to missionaries the most powerful weapon they can wield—the Gospel associated with the healing art. The proofs in heathen lands are now sufficiently numerous and well known. As regards Jews, I may be allowed to mention that Mr. Wilkinson's experience of the value of the medical missionary in the East-end of London, in disarming prejudice and gaining a hearing for the Gospel, is so satisfactory that he is now about to engage the services of a second fully qualified Christian doctor.

As regards Jews and Mohammedans combined, I may point to the successes in the Medical Mission at Jaffa, and to the action of the Church Missionary Society, which has just sent a doctor to the help of Mr. Bruce in Persia, and is in want of another for the Mission at Gaza. A medical missionary has recently been appointed to Damascus, and General Haig is earnestly desirous to see such a Mission provided at Aden, for the Sommalis and other Mohammedans, who in vast numbers visit that station; I may also mention Hebron, and other towns in Palestine, now in urgent need of this sort of Mission agency, without which the preaching missionary can make but little progress in winning souls.

I might speak of spots nearer home, in our own dark places of London, where the ministry of love and healing wins its way, and makes it easy for the preacher to follow, but I forbear.—Yours ever sincerely,

J. E. MATHIESON.

Mildmay Conference Hall, N.

For the Young.

THE SNOWDROP'S LESSON.

DEAR YOUNG FRIENDS,—Do you not miss the Summer flowers? I am sure I do! I miss them as sweet familiar faces; and as I hear the wind sweeping through the leafless woods, it seems to me as though it was also seeking them, and sighing as it sought in vain. They are wonderfully beautiful, these wild flowers, that come trooping into the meadows and woods at the first call of Spring; and only leave us when Winter drives them away. Yet even now, if you could come with me into the deserted woods, we should find some treasures left. Some bright crimson leaves are still clinging to the brambles, and in the tangled hedge you may see some ivy leaves, delicately veined and tinted with rich colours, climbing over the soft green moss.

And the fungi—do you know them? Some are like little stools and umbrellas; others like tiny white trumpets; best of all is the bright scarlet cup-moss. This grows on the damp pieces of wood in hedges and ditches. Such a bright scarlet cup, the colour of your favourite holly berries.

I wonder which is your favourite flower? Perhaps, like me, you have a great many, and can hardly say which of all these you like best. Well, I will tell you one of my great favourites, and then I will tell you a few things it said to me. "But flowers don't talk." Hush! you must not be too sure. There are a great many voices in the woods that you cannot hear until you listen very attentively. I think, if you love the flowers very much, and watch them with earnest eyes, and are willing to learn, they will teach you a great many things. Lessons are not always pleasant, but a flower is a very patient teacher. Perhaps rather too patient, for it could only teach those who were anxious and willing to learn. Little boys and girls are not always quite so willing as they should be, and sometimes think it would be very nice to have no lessons at all!

The favourite flower I wanted to tell you of is the little Snowdrop. One of the very first flowers to greet us in the Spring, and show us that the Winter, the long cold Winter, has gone at last. Is not my Snowdrop one of your favourites too? It is such a modest little flower. So pure, so fragile, and yet so fearless. It is one of the very first to push its way through the moist brown earth; first a delicate little green sheath comes up, and then, unfolding, shows a lovely white blossom that stands courageously amid the cold winds, almost alone in the garden.

I think the birds must be very glad to see the Snowdrop, for it has a message for them as well as for us. Do they understand it, and know that Spring is coming at last, and that all the trees will soon shake out their green leaves, the swallows return, and there be an end to the days of cold and hunger for the patient robins?

Have you seen a snowdrop-root? "O yes," you say, "it is a little browny-white bulb." Dear children, have you ever thought what a wonderful power must lie hidden inside that little bulb? You have taken it in your hand; if you did not know, would you ever have guessed what a lovely flower would grow out of that little brown lump? You put it into the ground some few inches down, covered it over, and then—what happened? Did it stay there just as it was when you put it in? No, a wonderful change soon took place.

I don't think I could make you understand if I tried to explain what a chemical process is. But you will quite understand me when I say that the moisture, warmth, and air, woke up a power that had been lying asleep in that little bulb. What is this power? It is called LIFE. Wise men can explain to you when you grow older how it works in that snowdrop bulb; but I cannot tell you how it comes, nor can the wisest man. We only know it to be Life—that same power that brings the great oak-tree out of the tiny acorn, and that brings a chicken out of the egg which you find at breakfast to contain nothing like a chicken.

It is this wonderful power, then, that makes this little brown thing so different to a stone. Why, you might bury a stone ever so carefully, and water it every day, and take away all the weeds that grew over it, and yet nothing would ever come up. But the snowdrop will grow up, even without your special care. The pale green sheath will break through the earth, and push aside the little stones that are in its way, getting taller each day until the sweet flower stands in all its beauty, the herald of Spring.

Now, what did that little brown bulb remind me of? What was its lesson? It showed me what our hearts are by nature, and what they are when changed by the Spirit of God. Every little girl and boy is born into this world with a sinful heart; a heart that cannot please God unless it is changed. It is like that little bulb as it lay in your hand dry and useless, without the power to send up any lovely flower. No, the change had to come first. And so the Lord Jesus must have your little heart; then He will fill it with his love, and there will be a new power working within you. A silent, but wonderful change, that will change your heart from a stony heart into a heart full of love to Him. That little stone I spoke of could never be changed into a root that would send up a lovely flower, but the Lord Jesus can change the very hardest heart. Then, what a lovely life will grow out of that changed heart; a life that will be a comfort and blessing to all around, pure and white in the midst of a great deal of evil. Passing through this world as the snowdrop passed through the soil, without defilement.

Dear children, shall we not pray together for this new heart? I cannot explain to you this change, but read what is said about it in the third chapter of John's Gospel. There our Lord said to Nicodemus, "Ye must be born again." Nicodemus could not understand how he could be born again. And I cannot explain it to you any more than I can the life in that little bulb. But I know it is a new life, and all can see its effects. Foolish children might say the first time they saw a bulb, "It is only a little sort of stone, I won't believe a white flower can come up out of it." But, if they wait, you know what they will see. Ignorant men may say they do not believe in any real change, but they dare not question that there is a mighty power at work when they see it working before them. A gentle, modest, Christian child, loving to all around her, will shed an unconscious influence wherever she goes; she will show that there is a power keeping her—a power that is stronger than the world, the flesh, and the devil.

There is one other thing to remember; Life must show itself. The white snowdrop could not remain hid in the earth; it must come up; it must little by little unfold its sheathing leaves. The flower is not seen suddenly; first it is but a tiny blade; but the sun smiles on it, the rain nourishes it, and little by little it rises higher until the blossom opens—a perfect snowdrop.

You remember what was said of the Lord Jesus during his beautiful childhood. "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man."

Was not this just like the words spoken about Him many, many years before He was born? "He shall grow up before Him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground." His beautiful life was indeed that of a lily among thorns. I wish the life of each one of you might be like a tender plant, growing up to his glory. For it would be his Life reflected in you, and his Power made perfect in your weakness.

Dear little friends, when you welcome my favourite snowdrop among the golden and purple crocuses in your gardens, don't forget its lesson, and remember that the Lord Jesus wants your life to be like this little flower, pure, gentle, and modest. A. M. C.

JESUS, OUR REST.

IN our world-weariness we often sigh
For the bright home
Far, far, beyond the starlit temple's dome,
And azure sky,
And say that there is rest
To make us blest.

We see our earthly lights go one by one
Up there to shine,
While we remain in loneliness to pine,
Till work is done;
And look for joy and rest,
Still further west.

This is world-weariness, not faith, hope, love:
They smile and tell
That all, if in our Father's hands, is well.
Not there above,
But here, God's will is best,
And He gives rest.

World-weariness, thou art not his, so fly!
'Tis unbelief
That comes, in thee, to sully holy grief
With wish to die;
For faith, hope, love, shall rest
On Jesu's breast. J. H. S.

LAMB AND FLAG SCHOOLS AND MISSION.—Mr. J. C. Sherrard, Hon. Superintendent of this Mission, is in want of a lady teacher competent to take a class of about thirty young men and women, from sixteen to twenty-one years of age, at three o'clock every Sunday afternoon. His address is 7, Oxford-square, Hyde Park, W.

CARING FOR THE POOR OF PORTSMOUTH.—In connection with Miss Robinson's work, Miss Van Sommer writes an interesting little book, entitled "A Helping Hand," which gives an excellent idea of the work carried on in Portsmouth with so many evidences of God's favour. Until lately Miss Robinson has been able to care only for the need and comfort of soldiers, their wives and families; but she has been led to take up the case of the many poor people in Portsmouth, who are practically unreached by any organisation. She has already, with the aid of her helpers, rescued many from misery and degradation. It is intended to open a branch of the institute in a degraded part of the town. The cost of a freehold site would be £1450, besides the expense of the building and furnishing.

KINGSLAND GOSPEL MISSIONS.—The work of this Mission now embraces five centres of active labour in the North and East of London. This is an addition of two during the year now closed. The work at Millwall is carried on by one of the converts. The hall there is always crowded, and sinners are being converted through the preaching of the Word. A larger hall is urgently required. At Old Ford two rooms have been made into one, but is insufficient to accommodate the large numbers that wish to attend. The whole of the work at this place is voluntary. The Gospel, in all its fulness and power, is preached at all the halls by working men to working men; and the work in all its branches has been greatly blessed. Mr. William Chorley, 79, Norfolk-road, Islington, N., superintends the Mission.

Notes and Comments.

IN another column we notice "Footsteps of Truth," the new magazine started by Mr. C. Russell Hurditch. We wish it the good success which the first number promises it will deserve.

Rev. R. W. McAll has issued an important letter to his fellow-labourers in the Mission to the French ouvriers, with regard to the manner of preaching of the Gospel suggested by the recent visit of Messrs. Moody and Sankey to Paris. A résumé will be given in in our next.

Our friend, Mr. Gordon Forlong, writing from New Zealand, sends us very earnest words as to the need of young converts being led into the deeper teaching of God's Word. He writes: "It is one thing to give birth to infant converts, one thing to rejoice in them as infants, milk-fed babes, but quite another thing to make able, calm, powerful men of them; deep, well-taught, sound Bible scholars; accurate in doctrine, and able to go deep into the mind of God." We agree with him as to the urgent necessity in these days for careful Bible instruction, in order that converts may not be led away into prevalent errors, but may be mighty in the Scriptures.

The Dublin correspondent of The Lady's Pictorial has made friendly reference, in the last two issues of that journal, to the recent Mission by Messrs. Moody and Sankey. The testimony is valuable as coming from one whose pen, as a rule, is occupied in recording the doings of the more fashionable and frivolous portion of society. In the last week's letter the writer says:—

Messrs. Moody and Sankey have done, and are doing, a very remarkable work—regard it in what light we may—and one which I believe will not soon be forgotten in our city. I have again to record the cruel selfishness of certain so-called Christians, chiefly women, who block up the seats at every service, to the exclusion of the really anxious inquirers, and those who stand most in need of the Word. And this, not to derive any religious benefit, for, according to their own account, they were "saved" long ago; but for the selfish gratification of boasting that "indeed they never missed a single service." Such conduct is, in my opinion, most blameworthy.

Probably the writer errs in supposing that these faithful attendants on the services did not wish "to derive any religious benefit;" at the same time, the reproach of "selfishness" is not uncalled for, and it behoves all Christians, who are worthy of the name, to consider, first and mainly, the pressing needs of the unsaved multitudes around them.

A series of letters on Lay-preaching is appearing in The Nonconformist and Independent. One, by "A Lay-preacher," contains the following passage:—

The more I think of it, the more it seems to me that this notion of a settled "congregation" to be "attracted" to a chapel, tempted to pay pew-rents, and kept hearing something or other, year after year, without being converted to God by it, is simply appalling! I do not know how our ministers feel about these respectable people who hear them thus, and, to all appearance, are no better for it; to judge by their way of preaching, some do not seem to care about it at all, for they do not preach as if they wanted to convert them, or thought they needed conversion. On the other hand, it does not seem to me that one of the Apostles—say Paul—would have cared two straws about getting a man to hear him at all, except with a direct view to that man's conversion; and any Apostle's preaching to him, judging by some three or four addresses we have on record, would have been very directly fashioned to that end. The man would, at least, have been made to feel very "uncomfortable" till he was at peace with God; a process which a large proportion of our ministers seem rarely to attempt, and still more rarely to succeed in.

A little further on he says:—

An essay about some text or about some moral duty may be well in its place, but it is not "preaching." I once attended a church for six months during "supplies," and only once during that period was the Gospel preached. I do not want to split hairs over what the Gospel is; I mean that not any Gospel was preached during that time except once; that people were only once told that, if unconverted, they were in any danger or extremity, and invited to any kind of deliverance or salvation! Laymen hardly ever preach like that; and a little of their preaching would bring back some of our ministers to evangelicalism, and the primary duty of their office.

The remarkable thing is, that this is even in some sense recognised. Dr. Clemance says laymen would be heard where clergymen would not, because theirs would be recognised as solely a labour of love; and we "ought" to "go out" and evangelise the masses. In plain words, it seems that while people who are supposed either to value Christian truth as priceless, or at least to have been brought to feel some interest in it, in our "congregations," must and will listen to none but a minister, we are thought best capable of reaching people who make no pretence of caring for the Gospel at all! Let us have done with this mockery, and look facts in the face. If ministers can preach the truth best, then, in God's name, let them come and take up the chief share of their chief duty. If, on the other hand, laymen have "advantages," then let our sleeping congregations have the benefit of these also.

Another correspondent writes that early in November, services were commenced in connection with the Church at Grafton-square, Clapham (Rev. J. Guinness Rogers, B.A., pastor), at a Mission Hall large enough to hold about 400 persons, at Queen's-place, Wandsworth-road, every Sunday and every Friday evening: the services on Sunday evening conducted chiefly by lay members of the Church; those on Friday evening by Mr. Noakes, the theatre preacher, of Bethnal-green. The attendance was most encouraging; last Friday and last Sunday there were about 200 persons on each occasion. One result has been the discovery of preaching talent in six members of the Church, and another the presentation of the four following propositions by the writer of the letter:—

Firstly.—The poor of London are now, as in Apostolic days, ready to hear, receive, and accept the Gospel.

Secondly.—The work of preaching to them should be undertaken chiefly by the lay members of our metropolitan Churches.

Thirdly.—All our Churches possess the requisite lay talent for the purpose, which only needs developing and guiding.

Fourthly.—That it is our duty as a denomination, and that of each Church individually, to set all this vast machinery in motion at once for the promotion of Christ's kingdom.

No one can read this correspondence without having forced upon him the conviction that there must be something radically unsound in the system by which ministers are prepared for their vitally important work, and in the relationship between ministers and their congregations.

In a letter to the Home Secretary, which has been published, Mrs. Bayly (author of "Ragged Homes and How to Mend Them") refers most forcibly to what has been a great curse of London, and has brought incalculable misery upon tens of thousands of wives and children — Saturday evening drinking in public-houses. With perfect truth she shows that Sunday drinking is comparatively a small evil, when viewed alongside of the Saturday night excesses. She therefore urges, and the plea is worthy of all thoughtful consideration, that Saturday evening closing, either at 10 o'clock (after which hour, we are told by Mr. Weylland, Superintendent of Public House Missionaries, the drinking is only "forced" drinking), or earlier, is one great remedy for meeting the great curse of drunkenness, and lessening the awful consequences which are entailed upon the innocent and the weak.

Of the drunkard's home we read in this admirable letter:—

While mutual recriminations [between husband and wife] are going on, the children huddle together, and look on in mute terror; they do not cry—such children seldom shed tears; nature could never furnish a fountain to meet such demands. Sometimes they will make their escape, and wander about for hours in a condition of starvation. Often after the father has left the scene, children almost in a state of insensibility from suffocation are drawn out from under heaps of "night-straw" or dirty rubbish of some kind. There, in their place of concealment, they will, as they are able, listen to what is passing. The elder ones may in some way have earned a few pence in the course of the week; the father will find this out, and take the money to expend at the public-house. To get rid of the father in any way is the one absorbing desire; until his foot is heard going down the stairs no one can breathe freely.

We trust this important subject of Saturday evening drinking may speedily receive the considerations of the authorities.

The lamentable want of strong public sentiment in regard to drunkenness is shown in the fact that tens of thousands of persons weekly and habitually become thoroughly intoxicated in the various drinking houses of London; and yet, although those houses are under the direct supervision of the police, and are only able to carry on their trade with the licence of the magistrates, scarcely ever is any person engaged in selling drink prosecuted for knowingly promoting drunkenness by serving with drink a person no longer sober. If the renewal of licences were refused to persons convicted of thus conniving at and promoting drunkenness, and if the authorities really saw to it that the police took the matter in hand, we believe a great step would be taken towards removing our national disgrace.

In the abolition of dens of drunkenness for the national benefit, there can be no cry raised of "confiscation." It is time, in this age of civilisation, that, at any rate, every public-house in which the law is habitually ignored in regard to the serving with drink persons no longer sober, should be shut up: and then well-conducted houses may be dealt with upon another basis. We cannot see why such countries as Norway and Sweden should put us utterly to shame in regard to the management and supervision of the drink traffic.

In contemplating the memorials of the late well-known Bishop of Winchester, as unfolded in the third volume, recently published by his son, Rev. Reginald Wilberforce, we are greatly struck with the revelations of his inner life, in which we find a strange lack of happy religion, of "the joy of the Lord." The Record rightly observes:—

Spiritually he walked in the shade, not in the sunshine. We should not allude to this subject, but that it must force itself on the attention of any thoughtful Christian reader of the volume. The question naturally occurs, What was the cause of Bishop Wilberforce's constant depression and ejaculations de profundis? Was it that his busy career, and his continual contact with society, stunted the growth of his spiritual life? Or was it that his religion was not bright because it was not evangelical? Perhaps both these causes were at work. Anyhow, it is a thing to be marked and pondered over, that while the men he called "Puritans," a Venn, a Baring, a Waldegrave, so far from being gloomy in creed and morose in life, enjoyed the sunshine of God's countenance, and diffused light and warmth around them, he, the great leader of the High Church party, and a man with every natural gift, and every token of success to make him happy, longs and yearns all his days for a conscious sense of peace, which somehow he never seems to grasp.

The one thing needful, indeed, is to cling to Christ as the only Saviour; and that Samuel Wilberforce did so no one ought to doubt for a moment. But to be happy and useful in the highest sense it is necessary to know and rejoice in a present salvation. The tendency of the Bishop's religious system would be to stamp this as presumption; and when we see the effect of his own system on his own mind and spirit, we cannot but feel that some whom he opposed and despised could have shown him a more excellent way.

These are words of wisdom and of truth; and those who from this volume see into the heart-life of this highly gifted man, will thank God for the blessed Gospel of present salvation, and for the possibility set forth in God's world of continually walking in the light, being endued with power, and rejoicing in God through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

History is repeating itself in the revival of the deadly errors of bygone ages. That in the nineteenth century, in our highly-favoured land, the custom of praying for the souls of the departed should be extending, seems well-nigh incredible; and yet such is the fact. Not long ago the examining chaplain of one of our Southern bishops published an able book in defence of this Popish custom; now we have to regret the very unsatisfactory way in which it has been dealt with in a letter by the Bishop of Peterborough.

The Bishop says, "The belief was general in the early Church that the souls of the faithful, though free from all suffering, were capable, while awaiting their final consummation and bliss, of a progress in holiness and happiness; and that prayer for such progress might therefore be lawfully made on their behalf by the Church on earth." He adds that the Church of England has not formally condemned the practice, and that it has power, if it think fit, to revive the practice, in exercise of its "power to decree rites and ceremonies." It seems that the Bishop is of opinion that "the celebration of the Holy Communion for the repose of Dr. Pusey's soul" was not unjustifiable. He also appears to assume that there is a distinction between the Roman doctrine of purgatory and prayer for the faithful dead, as he says, that during the time of their "sleeping in Jesus" they might make "a progress in holiness and happiness;" this latter theory, he states, was entertained by primitive Christians, and has never been condemned by the Church."

We call attention to this subject as affording a striking illustration of the paramount importance of following only the Word of God. That prayers for the dead, celibacy of the clergy, undue exaltation of Mary the mother of Jesus, hierarchical pretensions, and many other gross errors, existed in the germ during the early Christian centuries (the fourth and fifth, at any rate), is clearly shown from reliable early Church history; but that such errors are clearly opposed to the Word of God is no less clear. God forbid that it should be said of our land, blessed with an open Bible, "Ye have made the Word of God of none effect through your traditions."

AN APPEAL FOR MISSIONARIES.

WE, the undersigned members of the China Inland Mission, having had the privilege of personally labouring in many provinces of this needy land, and having seen with our own eyes something of its extent, and of the great spiritual needs of the untold millions of its inhabitants, feel pressed in spirit to make a united appeal to the Churches of the living God in Great Britain and Ireland for earnest, persevering prayer for more labourers.

We saw with thankfulness a few years ago the generous sympathy called forth by a knowledge of the terrible famine of the bread which perisheth in the northern provinces, and some of us personally took part in distributing the practical fruits of this sympathy among the needy and dying. Many lives were saved, many hungry ones were fed, many naked ones were clad, needy and destitute children were taken in and cared for, some of whom are still under Christian instruction.

A more widespread and awful famine of the bread of life now exists to-day in every province in China. Souls on every hand are perishing for lack of knowledge; more than a thousand are passing away into death and darkness every hour. We, and many others, have been sent by God and by the Churches to minister the bread of life to these perishing ones; but our number collectively is utterly inadequate to the crying needs around us. Provinces in China compare in area with kingdoms in Europe, and average between ten to twenty millions in population. One province has no missionary; one has only one, an unmarried missionary; in each of two other provinces there is only one missionary and his wife resident; and none are sufficiently supplied with labourers. Can we leave matters thus without incurring the sin of bloodguiltiness?

We plead, then, with the Churches of God at home collectively, and with our brothers and sisters in Christ individually—

1. To unite with us in fervent, effectual prayer, that the Lord of the harvest may thrust forth more labourers into his harvest in connection with every Protestant missionary society on both sides of the Atlantic.

2. A careful survey of the spiritual work to which we ourselves are called as members of the China Inland Mission has led us to feel the importance of immediate and large reinforcements; and many of us are daily pleading with God in agreed prayer for forty-two additional men and twenty-eight additional women, called and sent out by God to assist us in carrying on and extending the work already committed to our charge. We ask our brothers and sisters in Christ at home to join us in praying the Lord of the harvest to thrust out this "other seventy also." We are not anxious as to the means for sending them forth or sustaining them. He has told us to look to the birds and flowers, and to take no thought for these things, but to seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto us. But we are concerned that only men and women called of God, fully consecrated to Him, and counting everything precious as "dross and dung for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus our Lord," should come out to join us; and we would add to this appeal a word of caution and encouragement to any who may feel drawn to offer themselves for this blessed work.

Of caution, urging such to count the cost, to prayerfully wait on God, to ask themselves whether they will really trust Him for everything, whenever He may call them to go. Mere romantic feeling will soon die out in the toilsome labour and constant discomforts and trials of inland work, and will not be worth much when severe illness arises, and perhaps all the money is gone. Faith in the living God alone gives joy and rest in such circumstances. But also of encouragement, for we ourselves have proved God's faithfulness and the blessedness of dependence on Him. He is supplying, and ever has supplied, all our need; and if not seldom we have fellowship in poverty with Him who for our sakes became poor, shall we not rejoice if the day proves that we have been like the great missionary apostle, "poor, yet making many rich; having nothing, yet possessing all things"? He makes us very happy in his service, and those of us who have children desire nothing better for them, should the Lord tarry, than that they may be called to similar work and to similar joys.

May He, dear Christian friends at home, ever be to you "a living, bright reality," and enable you to fulfil his calling, and live as witnesses unto Him in the power of the Holy Ghost.

Yours faithfully in his service,

[Signed by Mr. Hudson Taylor and all the workers of the Mission, numbering nearly eighty.]

CHEER FOR DISTANT WORKERS.

MY DEAR SIR,—Some kind but unknown friend has for a long time past been sending me The Christian, and kindly continues so to do, but to my former address at Cradock. Will you allow me space to thank the kind donor, and at the same time to indicate the change of my address to "Fort Peddie," as below?

Let me also assure the sender that such kindness is not unappreciated. The paper is read with much interest in my own family, and frequently passed on to others, whose hearts are comforted by its simple records of faith and love manifested in earnest and successful Christian work. Such an example is worthy of imitation. There are doubtless many who, after they or their families have read their weekly illustrated or Christian paper, might with ease send such contributions to cheer the toiling missionary, afford pleasant reading to his family, or give him opportunity of passing over to needy and suffering ones some helpful and encouraging reading.

Commending to others this simple and easy way of casting bread upon the waters, I am, yours sincerely, Edwin Gedge,

Fort Peddie, Wesleyan Missionary.

Eastern Province, South Africa.

[As we have frequently stated, we shall be glad to supply the address of a foreign missionary to any reader who is disposed to fall in with Mr. Gedge's suggestion. Now that postal facilities are so great, a wide and effectual door is opened through which all may become helpers of missionary work.]

DRAWING-ROOM MEETINGS.—In connection with a forthcoming series of Drawing-room Gospel meetings for young women in the South of London, Mrs. Meredith asks us to state that there are many openings for the help of Christian women who are qualified to address such gatherings. Any friends who are willing to engage in this service are invited to communicate either with Mrs. Meredith, Nine Elms Mission, Wandsworth, or Mrs. Darwin Fox, Bedford-gardens, Kensington, W.

HOME OF REST, WALTON-ON-THE-NAZE.—By the liberal gift of a kind friend, Mrs. R. H. Moore, of 102, Regent's-park-road, N.W., has been enabled to open this Home for the relief of poor people needing rest and change of air. The rent has been paid by a lady. During the past year over sixty mothers and nearly the same number of children were received at the Home. All were suffering from some bodily trouble, and in many cases they returned home restored. While the body is cared for, it is endeavoured to bring the love of Jesus before the inmates.

MISSION TO ITALIANS.—In commemoration of the fifth anniversary of the founding of the Italian Mission in London, an entertainment was given last week to mothers and children at the Mission Schools, Onslow-street, Farringdon-road, in the heart of the Italian colony of the metropolis. Tea was provided in the afternoon for the juveniles and their mothers, some of whom brought their babies with them. Illuminated text-cards were presented to the children, and bright red handkerchiefs, which the girls placed on their heads after the Italian fashion. A number of ladies and gentlemen interested in the Mission were present. The hope is entertained of erecting at some future date a Protestant church for Italian worshippers in the metropolis, or, at all events, near it.

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY.

BIRMINGHAM.

THE work of Messrs. Moody and Sankey at Birmingham commenced on Thursday last. The letter of invitation, asking them to revisit Birmingham, was signed by a much larger number of ministers of all denominations than the one preceding their last visit, there being this time about an equal number of the signatures of clergymen and Nonconformist ministers. A spirit of union and brotherly feeling has been on the increase in Birmingham, especially through the "blue ribbon" movement, in which so many Christian workers of all denominations have co-operated heartily, with great mutual advantage and blessing. Still, there can be no doubt that Birmingham, in many respects, presents a far less favourable field for the labours of our brethren than many of the places they have visited; hence we may specially thank God for having sent them to the place where they are particularly needed.

In December last special united prayer-meetings were held in connection with the forthcoming Mission, and during the present month those meetings have been resumed; though not very largely attended, they have been of the right kind. The mid-day prayer-meeting on Saturday, January 20, at the Y.M.C.A. rooms, was very good; and the spontaneous petitions of the brethren assembled, contrasted very favourably with the somewhat formal prayer-meetings carried out according to pre-arranged (and sometimes printed) programmes, which were held in some places during the recent Week of United Prayer.

On Thursday evening a large number of influential Christian men assembled on the platform of Bingley Hall, to show their sympathy with the work of the Evangelists. The meeting was a very mixed one, and it was cheering to see that those outside the membership of the churches evidently mustered in great force. The hall has been arranged to seat 9000, and probably nearly 8000 were present on Thursday evening. The singing was heartily taken up; in contrast with the vast volume of congregational singing, Mr. Sankey's solos, so full of heart melody, were very striking, and produced a visible effect. Mr. Moody preached with his usual impressive power on the subject of "Repentance."

The attendance on Friday evening was not so large, there being probably nearly 6000 people present. This was to a very large extent accounted for by the fact that Friday evening is an inconvenient one for many working people. The interest in the work seemed to deepen, and the heart-searching words of Mr. Moody were well calculated to arouse Christians to pray and work and expect great things. There was no after-meeting, but the great bulk of those present remained to a prayer-meeting in which a great many took part.

The meeting on Friday opened with the singing of the hymn, "Man of sorrows, what a name!" by Mr. Sankey, the choir joining in singing the last line of each verse. The contrast between the touching pathos of the words and music descriptive of the Saviour's sufferings, and the burst of joyful adoration, "Hallelujah! what a Saviour!" was very telling indeed, and the meeting seemed wonderfully touched, not by mere music, but by the pouring forth of Christian hearts in song. Mr. Sankey also sang during the evening, "Hark! the voice of Jesus crying," and "Must I go, and empty-handed?" Mr. Moody delivered a rousing and appropriate address on "The Qualifications for Christian Work."

It was very cheering to see on Sunday afternoon the constant streams of incomers flowing into the hall; before three o'clock the hall was full. Some few seats in the gallery were vacant, but, on the other hand, the gangways between the seats in the body of the hall were filled with masses of people standing. Probably there were not less than 10,000 present. There were more men than women in the vast assembly, which was not made up of ordinary go-to-meeting people. Working men were there in thousands; indeed, in glancing over the huge assembly, it seemed to be more a working men's gathering than anything else. It was very striking also to note the presence of so many young men and young women. It might well be said that the right kind of people had been brought to the meeting.

At the close of the service, a short prayer-meeting was held, during which Mr. Moody asked any who wished to be prayed for to stand up; a considerable number responded, of all ages and classes. At the close of this prayer-meeting, the workers went amongst inquirers, and some deeply interesting cases rejoiced the hearts of those who had been praying, and waiting for the blessing. In one case a husband and wife stood up, and were afterwards spoken with personally. The wife had backslidden, and the husband for the first time was seeking the Lord. Many Christian workers are gathering from all parts, and "there is a sound as of abundance of rain."

Mr. Moody, having previously read from Ez. xxxiv., and also Ps. cxix., clxxvi., took for his text the words, "The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." He said: I know of no verse in the Bible that has more in it; from it we learn what Christ's mission in this world was. He seems to delight in his name, "Son of Man." There are 256 different titles given to Christ in the Bible; but 38 times He used this title of "Son of Man." Every heathen religion shows us man trying to work his way up to his god, whatever that may be; but the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ is God revealing Himself to man.

Mr. Moody said God was always the seeker after man, though man ought to be the seeker after God. Dealing with the subject of Christ seeking us, he brought home the truth, showing that every Gospel sermon, every tract given, every invitation to come to Christ sent in a letter, every visitation of sickness, every bereavement causing men to follow to the grave with sad hearts those whom they loved, are so many ways in which Christ is seeking that He may save. He graphically pictured the narratives of the restoration of sight given to Bartimeus, and the conversion of Zaccheus. He remarked that two classes of persons believed in the conversion of Zaccheus: the poor, for he gave half his goods to feed them, and those whom he had defrauded, for he restored to them fourfold. I would not give much for a religion, added the speaker, that is all gush and sentiment, and does not enter into every-day life. A woman came into one of our meetings some time ago, and four or five bottles of wine came up before her soul. She said, "I stole them from my master, and he is dead." I said, "Has he no heirs?" "Yes," she said, "he has a son." I told her to give the value of the wine to his son. She took a £5 note to him, and insisted on his taking it. Then she came back telling me what light and praise filled her heart. I knew a man who gave about £300 restitution-money before he could receive Christ.

Nearly half an hour before the time of the evening meeting the hall was full, and the doors had to be closed. A large crowd, unable to gain admission, were from that time waiting outside, where they were directed to a Presbyterian chapel, in which an overflow-meeting was to be held. Open-air addresses were also given in the streets; two lady workers specially being usefully engaged in that way.

Within the hall the sight was well calculated to gladden the hearts of those who had been praying and waiting for the blessing of God upon these special services. Every seat was full, and there were masses of people standing on all sides. Certainly more than 11,000 people must have been present at the evening meeting, and a more completely mixed assembly as to age, class, character, &c., it would be impossible to conceive. It seemed as though the singing of the Christians assembled was specially heartfelt and earnest, and when Mr. Moody, with fire and force unabated, spoke to the vast audience, he struck home with an intensity of pleading, convincing simplicity and earnestness which went to the heart and conscience, and won solemn attention from all. Mr. Sankey sang with all the old power, "There were ninety and nine that safely lay," and also "Waiting and watching for me," amidst a hush of universal stillness.

Mr. Moody at the outset of his address announced that he intended to take for his text a question, an exhortation, and a command; the question being "What seek ye?" the exhortation, "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found;" and the command, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." He alluded in the course of his address to the many various motives that had brought them there, and, after forcibly dwelling upon the various motives, told a story of a man in Philadelphia, who had gone to a hall before the meeting to see 10,000 empty chairs, who then wanted to see the empty chairs filled, and therefore remained to the meeting, and was converted to God. Mr. Moody, exhorting to earnestness, and having accused men to-day of not being in earnest about salvation, drew a vivid picture, contrasting the sorrows and sins of earth with the eternal life in heaven, where there are no grey hairs and stooping forms, no cemetery, where perpetual youth is stamped on every brow, and there are life, and peace, and joy with Christ for ever. Mr. Moody then dwelt upon the command, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God," which he said meant that each one was to seek the kingdom of God before leaving the hall that night,—"now, this very moment."

After a very powerful exhortation to seek the Lord at once, Mr. Moody asked all who wanted to be saved to meet him in one of the side galleries of the hall, which was separated from the main building by a curtain. Between 300 and 400 of all ages and classes responded to the invitation, and Mr. Moody addressed them, specially dwelling upon the words, "God is my salvation" (Is. xii. 2). Cards were given to all present, upon which they wrote their names and addresses. It is to be hoped that these inquirers will be further helped. They were then dismissed; but from inquiry amongst them, it was very manifest that they required much personal dealing and instruction.

After a short prayer-meeting, the great gathering in the hall dispersed, many seeming anxious still to remain, but there was no further invitation given, and therefore it was impossible for Christian workers to deal with them.

THE WORK IN PLYMOUTH.

Sir,—More than three months have passed away since the Evangelists left Plymouth, and it is time to answer the question, "Does the work last?" Unhesitatingly, I answer, it does; nay more, it is ever increasing. The Christians were so quickened at the time that they have gone forth with double their old vigour to work for the Lord, and the new converts have been letting their light shine far and wide. Bold and brave in the confession of their faith, they have often put to shame those who think it right to hide their light beneath a bushel.

Without entering into interesting details of individual conversions, the life of the work has been seen in the maintenance of the religious services. Adjourning to a hall that holds about 1200 people, some of the Committee, with the help of Evangelists from the Evangelisation Society, have carried on the work, and gathered in many precious souls. Those whose hearts were touched by Mr. Moody's preaching, but who had not the courage to come forward at the time, have decided for Jesus at these meetings, and gone on their way rejoicing.

In addition to this, Light has been carried into the Villages. Many cases have been deeply interesting. A man came one night in pouring rain from a village four miles from Plymouth. He was converted. No sooner had he gone back than he gathered his friends and neighbours together to tell what Jesus had done for his soul. We hear of crowded meetings to listen to the young Evangelist. Two villages had groups of noisy, scoffing young men. Whenever any good was going on, they would occupy the seat of the scorner. The ringleader from one village got a blessing under Mr. Moody; others followed, and now from these young men has been formed a band of earnest and devoted Christians, who are doing all they can to win souls for Christ. Speaking of the blessing in these places, a gentleman who lives in the country, and knows it well, writes to me: "I should not think there is a village in the neighbourhood where converts have not become the centres of blessing."

The "'Bliss'ful Brothers Club" is another outcome of the Mission. Under the preaching of Mr. Moody and Mr. Bliss many drunkards were converted. These men agreed to meet every Saturday evening for prayer and praise at a small hall which they had hired. Some Christian gentlemen attend their meetings to help them. The members subscribe sufficient money for expenses, and for help to any sick member. If any one is absent, from sickness or other cause, the members visit him. One hundred members are now enrolled.

I may add, that the character of the work carried on by Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey has deeply impressed many of us. Had the converts been the result of excitement and feeling, then the work would quickly have died away. But the Scriptural basis of the work manifests itself in the lives and conduct of those who have found peace. On all sides of us we see the manifestations of a deep and spiritual fervour, and while the number of communicants has greatly increased in churches and chapels, the labourers in the Lord's vineyard are also multiplied.—Yours faithfully, GEORGE F. HEAD.

Vicar of Charles, Plymouth.

LEGALISED VICE IN THE COLONIES.

SIR,—I rejoice much at the space you give to the Social Purity movement. I learn that some, with more prudery than piety and humanity, have been offended at you for giving room to such writings as those of Ellice Hopkins. Let me tell of benefit which has accrued to distant Australia through the matter you have from time to time inserted on this subject.

As you are aware, there is a large party (and up till lately a growing party) in favour of enacting Contagious Diseases Acts in the various colonies of Australia. Queensland has such a law, and one has been introduced and read a first time in New South Wales, very much I believe by the influence of the authorities of the Royal Navy. In order to raise the standard of purity, of righteousness, and health, I was led when visiting Sydney to call a conference and to lecture on the Hygienic Failure of State Regulation. This eventuated in the formation of a Social Purity Society for New South Wales, in which are to be found many influential persons; and I found that the articles in THE CHRISTIAN had prepared many to take up the question with earnestness.

Materialists are pressing forward State Regulation everywhere; let Christians throw aside false shame, and speak out and uphold chastity of walk and conversation.—Yours, &c.,

Port Adelaide. J. C. KIRBY.

MR. SPENCER WALTON'S ten days' Mission at St. Michael's School-room, Bournemouth, resulted in about two hundred names being taken as inquirers, the larger number of whom, we believe, professed faith in Christ. Some were very noteworthy cases. Mr. Walton has now gone to Pendeen, Cornwall.

"A CRY FROM EGYPT."—Mrs. Evered Poole desires to thank the kind friends who have come forward in response to her appeal, and furnished her with the means to send an ample supply of Bibles, Testaments, hymn and text books, and carefully selected Gospel tracts and books to Egypt, for the use of the soldiers. Four cases have been sent by P. and O. steamer, to avoid delay in supplying the need expressed. Mrs. Poole has been able to purchase some beautiful wall texts for the small Institute just being opened, and to further add to its comfort and adornment.

THE LATE MRS. BREALEY.

DEAR SIR,—Please permit me a little space to thank many of your readers for their letters of sympathy in my sorrow and bereavement. As some have wished to hear particulars of my beloved, departed one's last days, I subjoin a few of her words.

About three weeks before she was called home I returned from a meeting, and her first words were, "I have had two hours with Jesus. I never thought it possible that such joy could be known in this life. I was feeling very weak, and wished to go home, when it seemed as if someone had come between me and the Lord. I was very wretched, for it seemed as if that someone was Satan, making me see myself and my unworthiness. I cried to the Lord for deliverance, and my eye fell upon the words opposite my bed: 'Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world!' As I read those sweet words, they were brought home to my heart as never before. It seemed as if my Lord talked with me, and there was nothing between us then; Satan had gone." And her face was lit up with a Divine joy which I had never seen before, though she had been a very happy believer for nearly fifty years, and a great sufferer for fifteen years, more or less.

Her sufferings at times were great, but her patience was wonderful. We got continual answers to prayer from God for her. "He holds my hand," she said, as she neared her departure. "Yes," I replied, "He will be our guide over death (Ps. xlviii. 14.), just as at the passage over Jordan by Israel of old." Once I asked her if she was perfectly happy. "Yes," she replied, because the Lord is my portion; He changeth not. I have often grieved Him, which is now a grief to me; but I did not want to grieve Him, and He knows it. Oh, how many have been my sins and failings; but, how much more his love and grace!"

As the disease increased she became delirious, yet the one theme, "His precious blood," "The white robe," were mixed up with her utterances. I asked if she had any wish to express, or if she had any care. "No," she said, "all my desires have been granted—I have not a care. All my dear children are in the Lord, and all are his servants. We are an unbroken family in the Lord, and shall all meet in heaven, never more to part. A little while, and we shall be all caught up. You will put this poor body under the earth, but Jesus will come for it, and a glorious body shall take the place of this poor corruptible thing."

And thus she closed her life pilgrimage. Her last words were, "Jesus"—"White robe"—"I have seen it." Another glorious change passed over her face, which was lit up as if a ray from the face of her risen Lord had fallen upon it; and soon she breathed out her soul into his hands who had redeemed her; she was with the Lord!

Oh, the joy and the sorrow mingled at such a time! Jesus knows how to come in and fill the gap made. We can sing by faith, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" Thanks be to God for the victory given in Resurrection, which will give back to us our loved ones in Him.—Yours faithfully,

GEORGE BREALEY.

Clayhidon, Wellington, Somerset.

AFRICAN SETTLEMENT SOCIETY.—Through a clerical error which crept into the MSS., a mistake occurred in my letter of the following paragraph: "The climate being good, and milk procurable in winter" should read, "The climate being good, and mild in the winter."—W. WRIGHT, M.A., Hon. Sec.

OPEN-AIR PREACHERS.—Mr. Haig Miller last week gave an address of a very interesting and practical nature at the Y.M.C.A., 186, Aldersgate-street, on the qualifications requisite for successful open-air preaching. The following points were commented upon, and strikingly illustrated: A good voice, self-possession, naturalness of manner, good illustrative power, knowledge of Scripture, a large and loving heart, entire dependence on the Holy Spirit, a close walk with God, and a consistent walk before men.

ASIATIC REST, LIMEHOUSE.

WE are pleased to learn from our friend Mr. Salter that the past year has been one of special encouragement. He reports that a spirit of inquiry seems to be general among the Asiatics coming to this country, and that they are far more willing to listen to, and to converse upon, the truths of Christianity than ever before. Formerly the missionary was looked upon as an intruder, and his visits were often resented on shipboard, but now the man and his work are more understood, and his visit is taken, not merely as a matter of course, but as a matter of interest.

Some idea may be formed of the importance of this work of visiting the ships (which forms one branch of our friend's work) by bearing in mind the fact that on the average more than 500 Asiatics come into the docks every week, and that as many as 10,000 Asiatics and Africans, including East Indians, of various races, Chinese, Japanese, Persians, Malays, Africans, of various races, &c., come to the docks in the course of a year. Very many men of all nationalities visit the Rest (which is situated at 377, East India Docks-road, Limehouse, E.) in order that they may inquire further about the Gospel of Christ; and books in all languages are ready there for them in the reading-room, to which Mr. Salter can refer in dealing with them.

During the past year the missionary's heart has been cheered, and the usual solitariness of the work relieved, by having on various occasions native Christians from foreign lands joining with him in simple meetings for prayer and praise. These meetings have included Christians from the "Palm Tree Church," Lagos, from Northern Persia, converted Mohamedans from India, a converted Hindu from Burdwan, an African from the Lower Nile, &c. And we are glad to learn that these only represent in a small degree the many converted Asiatics who through this agency and others are witnessing for Christ on ship-board.

The Asiatics coming to London are principally Mohamedans; and we have reason to believe that there is a wonderful mental awakening commencing throughout the Mohamedan world. Men will, at least, talk of Jesus, though they may be unwilling to admit the truth concerning his Divine Sonship and his atoning work, which the Koran so utterly rejects.

We feel more than ever that the old religions are losing their hold—they are dead; Asia and Ethiopia seem to "stretch out their hands to God." Are living Christians ready to go forward with the message of the living Christ, that the fire and sword of the Spirit may carry on a mightier work than the destroying fire and sword of Mahomed of old?

"A spirit of revival is in the air," it has been said; we thankfully accept the saying as applying to those among whom the valuable labours of the agent of the London City Mission at the "Asiatic Rest" are carried on.

MR. J. F. SHOREY, of New York, who has been evangelising in various parts of England and Scotland for the last twelve months, has now returned to the United States, where he purposes to resume Mission work. His labours in the past have been much owned of God, chiefly in connection with Gospel effort among intemperate men.

SIDMOUTH, S. DEVON.—Some eighteen months ago a branch of the Y.W.C.A. was formed at this pleasant little seaside town; through its different agencies it has been of considerable service to the young women in the place. There is a lack, however, of suitable and attractive periodicals for the table of the reading-room in High-street, and good books for the library. If any well-wishers of the work can help in supplying these deficiencies they will not go unrewarded.

SUNDERLAND Y.M.C.A.—The increased attendance of young men at the devotional meeting on Sunday evenings has caused a decision to be come to for the erection of a lecture hall, which is to be commenced as soon as the estimated cost is obtained. It is believed this extension of the premises will increase the efficiency of the Association, and afford scope for the continuance and expansion of the present religious agencies. Young men coming to the town will receive a cordial welcome.

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE WORK.

LANCASTER.

THE Gospel Temperance work in Lancaster continues to be carried on with increasing success and blessing. The meetings are kept up with unabated interest, and that without any exterior help. A quiet, earnest spirit prevails, and the work seems increasing in depth and real solidity. Every Sunday afternoon a service is conducted by Rev. Adam Scott, and our largest hall is filled; last Sunday many had to be turned away from the doors. On an average about forty pledges are taken at each service. But, best of all, we trust that the Gospel, which is faithfully and lovingly put before the people, is being received in not a few hearts; indeed, the simple words of testimony which are heard from time to time in the meetings show that some of those who have signed have gone a step further and taken Christ as their Saviour.

One good feature of the movement is the feeling of brotherly kindness which has been called out amongst the members of the different denominations. Perhaps the most important part of the work is that done by the visitors, whose unobtrusive but earnest and persevering labours are proving most fruitful. They not only help by their interest and sympathy to encourage those who find it hard to keep their pledges, but secure fresh adherents. During the first fortnight of this year more than 200 new pledges have been taken, over 100 of which have been gained by personal effort. Everywhere the visitors have been most cordially welcomed; indeed, the hearts of the people in many places seem to have been prepared beforehand, and it is the joy of these harvesters just to go in and gather the sheaves.

In some cases the visitors have been asked to come. Perhaps a wife wants her husband to sign; or one neighbour brings in another from the next house. One little girl led a lady to a house where three adult pledges were taken. In another a woman asked the visitors to come to her home, where she, another woman, and three men, took the pledge and ribbon. It is most encouraging to find how few, comparatively speaking, have broken their pledges, certainly not ten per cent. so far as we can learn—of these many have been induced to try again, and are being carefully visited. C. J. W.

MR. FRANCIS MURPHY AT BOURNEMOUTH.

The Mission was commenced by a meeting with Mr. Murphy and the committee and workers at the Y.W.C.A. Institute, on Saturday evening (13th). Earnest and strong were Mr. Murphy's words on the great and all-absorbing question of Gospel Temperance, and how to conduct its warfare. Peace and love, in truest charity, he urged upon the workers, that so the erring might be won, the weak strengthened, and the strong brought over to our side.

At 3 p.m., Sunday afternoon, in the Theatre Royal, the first public-meeting was held, and well attended by all classes, but principally of the lower orders. Mr. Murphy had the entire conduct of the meeting. Earnest and impressive words went home to the hearts of the people.

Monday afternoon's meeting was presided over by Admiral Sir B. James Sulivan, who gave valuable testimony to the importance of total abstinence.

On Monday evening Mr. Murphy had an enthusiastic audience; and if some rather shrank from the vivid portrayal and depicting of the vice we so deplore, yet we thank God if the poor drinker was led to despise and hate it also, and seek God's grace to sign the pledge and give it up.

Space will not allow of allusions to every meeting, or the many interesting incidents. On Tuesday Mr. Murphy had a monster mass meeting at Poole, and 150 pledges were taken. On Wednesday afternoon Admiral the Hon. George Grey was in the chair. His words were unanswerable—just, and full of manly English common sense. In the evening there was an immensely full house. An earnest Gospel address was given by Mr. Spencer Walton. A stirring and convincing speech came from Mr. Glover, who counts his Gospel Temperance converts, through God's grace, by thousands. Mr. R. C. Morgan spoke on the important question of the unfermented wine for sacramental use. While we know the difficulty, we must not hide from ourselves the necessity of adopting this substitute for alcoholic drink. Mr. Murphy's address was brightened with many telling anecdotes, intermixed with his Irish humour, and the ready wit that quickly allayed a would-be rowdy listener. 150 new pledges were taken.

Amongst those who have attended these meetings have been the Countess of Cottenham, the Countess of Dalkeith, the Lady Frances Pepys, the Lady Caroline Lister Kaye, the Lady Blanche Keith-Falconer, the Hon. Mrs. George Grey, Mrs. Dobede, Mrs. Cromyn, &c., &c. The Lady Blanche Keith-Falconer put on the "blue ribbon," also Mr. J. Monteith Douglas, an old abstainer of thirty-four years, and many a strong and hearty man and woman, young and old, beside little children, to whom we look forward that they shall, by God's grace, hold up the Temperance flag in years to come. In addition to Mr. Murphy, the speakers during the week have been Major-General Hutchinson, Admiral the Hon. G. Grey, Admiral Sir James Sulivan, Mr. J. Monteith Douglas, Dr. H. Nankivell, Mr. W. Mate, Mr. Glover, Rev. W. De Vear, Rev. H. M. Bull, Rev. S. Eldridge, Rev. G. Burgess, Rev. R. Colman, Rev. G. Everard, of Wolverhampton, whose admirable Gospel books are so known and valued by all; Miss Wingfield Digby, and Miss Le Geyt, who are invaluable workers in the cause of Gospel Temperance. Rev. A. C. Thiselton, of Dublin, also takes part in these meetings.

The number of fresh pledges taken has now reached 700. Those who signed on Monday last are now busy working in the cause, taking the signatures of others, and becoming occupied in this great work. Whole families have joined. Friends in the use of alcohol have now become brothers in its disuse, and wear "the little bit of blue."

On Friday afternoon, Colonel Hutchinson read Lord Wolseley's recent testimony to the benefits of abstinence in the army, as exemplified in the late Egyptian campaign. At the evening meeting Mr. Murphy read a letter he had received from Mr. R. T. Booth, at Mentone. He is getting better, and hopes to return to work in April. Mr. Murphy proposed that the meeting should send a telegram of sympathy and congratulation, which was carried with acclamation. The message was immediately dispatched.

On Sunday night, while the meeting in the theatre was being conducted by Mr. Murphy, the crowd outside was addressed by Rev. G. Trusler, Mr. Glover, and Miss Wingfield Digby.

A seven days' Mission has been held by Mr. W. Forbes in Maidstone. Large audiences assembled nightly in the Corn Exchange, and during the first four days upwards of 600 put on the Blue Ribbon.

A series of meetings has been held at the Shoreditch Tabernacle, Hackney-road, in furtherance of the Blue Ribbon movement. During the week nearly a thousand pledges have been taken, and 2000 blue ribbons donned.

The Danes are conducting a vigorous war against drunkenness in their capital, Copenhagen. The number of public-houses is to be reduced from 1350 to 300. No showily-dressed girl is to be allowed to stand behind a drinking bar to fascinate youth of the other sex. Landlords are forbidden to serve out drink to any person under eighteen years of age, male or female, or to any one already under the influence of drink. A drunken person is to be conveyed to his own dwelling in a cab or covered carriage at the expense of the landlord in whose house he took the last glass.

A YOUNG ENGLISH LADY, who purposes engaging in Christian work among the Huguenot population, in the Department Drôme, France, is anxious to meet with a suitable lady companion. She must be a fellow-labourer in the work of the Gospel, desiring only to lead souls to Christ. It is also essential that she should be able to defray her own expenses. Any communications, addressed to Miss D——, and sent to our care, will receive immediate attention.

MISS MITTENDORFF'S ORPHAN HOME.

DURING another year this devoted sister has been enabled to continue her labour on behalf of orphan girls. While she has had many mercies for which to thank God, she has passed through a year of no ordinary trial.

In July, scarlet-fever broke out among the children. This was all the more unfortunate, as at that time the house was being rebuilt. When it was supposed that this trial had passed away, the disease broke out afresh, and two of the little ones were taken away by death. The anxiety of all this brought Miss Mittendorff herself very near to death; but, happily, her life was spared.

The new building is nearly completed, and she hopes soon to increase her foster family to the former number, viz., 100 children. This institution, we may remind our readers, is for training destitute and deserted girls as domestic servants. Great pains are taken at the same time to lead these tender plants to an experimental knowledge of the Saviour.

The address of the Home is Clayton House, Epsom, Surrey, and it is open on Thursday afternoons between 2.30 and 4.30 for visitors.

THE GOSPEL IN FRANCE.

SIR,—Your readers have no doubt been interested in Miss Geldard's letters from the Drôme, where she is labouring with Miss Mudie. They commenced their work in France by a residence of two months with M. Marzials at Barnave. After becoming better acquainted with the circumstances of the neighbourhood, and with the language, they visited several of the surrounding villages before settling at Vercheny. As Miss G. has told you, there is a wide field of labour open to the unsectarian evangelist; the very same where, 150 years ago, the martyred Roger and Rane proclaimed the Gospel in days of more active persecution.

At Barnave, Pastor Marzials and his devoted wife are energetically carrying on various departments of Mission work, schools, orphanage, dispensary, and a Temperance café, the first of its kind in France, and one which has already produced good results. Beside all this, they arrange for evangelistic services in neighbouring villages. When I was in the neighbourhood last autumn, they arranged a meeting for me in their own Temple at Barnave, which was crowded, some Roman Catholics even being present, and the next day at noon in the village of Poyols, where in the dinner-hour a large company came together at very short notice, as well as at Châtillon the same evening. I feel sure that any earnest evangelist able to speak French freely, would be cordially welcomed in these villages of the Diois.

Madame Marzials is now in Scotland, seeking to interest Christians in the work, and she is forming a committee, including three or more of the neighbouring pastors, and several English and Scotch friends. Mrs. Lucas Shadwell, of Fairlight, Hastings, has written an interesting sketch of the past history and present condition of the Churches of the Dauphiné; and her daughter, who has visited Barnave, is a member of the Mission Committee.—I am, yours respectfully, York, Jan. 16. Fielden Thorp.

LORD'S DAY REST ASSOCIATION.—In a New Year's address issued by the committee of this society, a brief but comprehensive review of the present position of the Sunday question is given. The ever-increasing activities of commercial life are dangers threatening the Sabbath as a day of rest, and need the constant attention of all who value the Sabbath. The tendency of several departments of the Government has been to give up portions of the Sabbath, as in the Post Office, and in allowing Sunday bands in the parks. The movement for closing public-houses on Sunday is yearly growing in strength. On the Continent, some improvement is taking place in the observance of this day.

AGED POOR AT THE "EDINBURGH CASTLE."

AMONG the festivities of the New Year, which have been got up with a view of benefiting the most needy classes, the dinner given by Dr. Barnardo, through the kindness of one friend, at the "Edinburgh Castle," Limehouse, was, perhaps, the most striking. The guests numbered one thousand. With a few exceptions all were over sixty years of age; but though they had arrived at a time of life when domestic comforts are most essential, all were habitués of casual wards or lodging-houses, and were thus not possessed of any settled home. The faces, nevertheless, presented striking contrasts, for though many were of the low-born type—the victims of ignorance and vice—not a few showed signs of having seen better days. Some even retained marks of culture; but whatever they were, or had been, they practically represented one class as they occupied the long, narrow tables prepared for them.

The great hall of the "Edinburgh Castle" and an adjacent smaller room were quite filled, and by six o'clock the plentiful dinner, consisting of hot roast beef and plum-pudding, was brought in. After the repast had been heartily enjoyed, Dr. BARNARDO explained that, having been more accustomed to deal with boys and girls, he had looked forward with some misgiving to this gathering; but the behaviour of his elderly friends had been quite unexceptionable. Having referred to the fact that the good cheer had been given by a gentleman who did not wish his name to be known, the Doctor went on to remark that all present had gone through a hard experience, and it was difficult to say a suitable word to them. The illustration of the echo was then given to show how, by accustoming themselves to kindly ways and words, they would get the same in return. It was advisable to go quietly along in life; for while in any case they received as many raps as they needed, those who went along quietly, trusting in God, were sure to do well. Dr. Barnardo addressed the company as being made up of many persuasions, a Jew, among others, having been noticed.

A very appropriate prayer then followed, after which came the hymn, "Have you any room for Jesus?" and then the Gipsy Brothers Smith were introduced. In a way likely to tell upon such an audience, these friends drew largely upon their own early rough experience, while pressing the Gospel and Temperance upon the acceptance of the men and women before them.

Mr. GROVES, who followed, also made several good points. When he heard that a dinner was to be given to a thousand homeless old people, he had involuntarily exclaimed, "Then it's not at an infidel hall of science; it's at some Christian place." The case was narrated of a man, described as having been "six feet of rags and bones," who was completely transformed into a happy, prosperous being by reading one verse from a twopenny Testament—"God so loved the world," &c.

This singular New Year's party separated soon after nine o'clock, all concerned having been gratified with a success which will, it is hoped, not be without permanent, good results.

TEMPERANCE IN TORONTO.—In Toronto and several other cities in the Dominion a fresh impetus has been given to the Temperance movement by the introduction of a branch of the Church of England Temperance Society and also of the Blue Ribbon Army. Many of the most prominent men in the city have identified themselves with either of these societies. A large number of persons have been induced to sign the pledge and adopt the ribbon.

TURKISH MISSIONS' AID SOCIETY.—A quarterly record, called The Star in the East, has been commenced this month by the above society, with a view to the advancement of Christian Missions within the Turkish Empire, and also in Persia and Greece. The work in Egypt, Sidon, Oronter, and Mount Olympus is commented on in the present number. A paper entitled "Among the Nestorians" will appear in the next issue. Copies may be had from Rev. T. W. Brown, 7, Adam-street, Strand, W.C.

TWO HINTS TO YOUNG EVANGELISTS.

BY AN OLD DISCIPLE.

I HAVE often thought that your excellent publication might be made (more than it has been) the vehicle of giving hints to evangelists, from Christians of some experience.

The two thoughts that I wish to impress on my dear young brethren may be well illustrated by a saying of my father's, and one of my mother's, sixty years ago. My father was fond of mechanics, and often pursued his researches after "perpetual motion," or the mending of some machine, till late, and it was my task to hold the candle, for gas had not then come into use. The often repeated injunction on these occasions was, "Now, John, hold the candle so that you can yourself see, and then I shall see." This illustrates the first thought I would impress on evangelists, viz., that they should endeavour by a prayerful study of the Word, and in dependence on the Holy Spirit, to get a clear view of the truth they wish to bring before their hearers, and to have some distinct aspect of truth before their minds, so as to prevent their addresses from being vague and pointless.

When we hear such addresses, in which no distinct impression of anything has been made, because everything has been touched upon, we are tempted to wonder if he is holding the candle so that he can himself see, or if he is just catching at any thought that arises, so that it has some reference to Jesus and salvation.

How different to this is the preaching and teaching recorded in the New Testament, which goes direct to the point aimed at, and leaves nothing vague or uncertain. Mr. Moody may be cited as a proof of the power of simple, direct preaching, in which everything that would obscure his main design is carefully excluded. We have, then, to seek the guiding of the Holy Spirit, so that our testimony concerning the person and work of the Lord Jesus may be what we have ourselves clearly apprehended and enjoyed.

My next illustration of the manner of some evangelists is an equally homely remark of my dear mother's. We lived in the country, and when we had friends to tea, and the meal was drawing near its end, my mother, thinking some one might want half-a-cup more, would call the girl and give her a whispered direction to put a little more water in the teapot; but the thoughtless girl would fill it, and when the expected demand was made for the half cup, and it was poured out, it presented such an appearance that my mother would unconsciously exclaim: "Oh, that girl—she has drowned the teapot!" This, as it appears to me, applies to those speakers who, after they have said what they really have got to say, and said what is likely, through God's blessing, to have good effect, go on to weaken that effect and weary the hearers by endless repetition and wearisome dragging out of the address.

"The drowning of the teapot" may be, therefore, taken to illustrate a crying evil in the preaching of many young evangelists especially. No doubt it often arises from a desire to make the truth more plain and forcible, but none the less does it tend to weary the attention and weaken power. Let us again look to apostolic example, as we have it, for instance, in Acts xiii. By historic reference and clear argument Christ is exhibited as the Saviour, and the cheering promise of pardon and full justification, with the solemn warning, is set forth, and all is left upon the heart and conscience. Our faith in the increase-giving God, and in his gracious purpose of giving efficacy to "the Word that goes out of his mouth," should be manifested in finishing when we have done. J. R.

IRISH CHURCH MISSIONS.—The New Year's meeting of this society, which has been held for years on January 16, took place in Lower Exeter Hall. The chair was occupied by Captain the Hon. Francis Maude, R.N., who said that although Ireland formed the subject of their meeting, they had not met to speak as politicians, but to pray both for Protestants and Roman Catholics. Brief addresses were given by Rev. W. H. Webb Peploe and Rev. N. Sherbrooke; prayer was offered by them and others present.

"LORD, IT IS GOOD TO BE HERE."

BY THE LATE CAROLINE W. LEAKEY.

FIRST PART.

LORD, it is good to be here,
'Neath the care of Thy staff and Thy rod,
With reverent watching and fear,
To walk in my heart with my God.

It is good to catch glimpses of grace,
And think what the fulness must be,
When, beholding thy glorified face,
We shine back a likeness to Thee.

It is good to soar on Faith's wing,
Still upward and ever on high,
And praise till each note that I sing
Goes even beyond the blue sky.

It is good to feel safe in his love,
To know that that love cannot cease,
But as long as my God is above,
Will ever, must ever, increase.

SECOND PART.

Lord, it is good to be here,
But better it is to be gone,
For the sun now arising so clear
May be darkened at earliest dawn.

'Tis better, for here dwelleth sin,
And here we too often forget
That he who would happiness win,
His affection on heaven must set.

'Tis better, for sorrow and death
Cloud over the fairest earth scene,
And vanishing, just as a breath,
Are the pleasures on which we would lean.

'Tis better, for youth flies apace,
We never can tell what shall be,
Nor read what is written in space,
What future our God shall decree.

THIRD PART.

Lord, it is good to be here,
And better, still better, to go—
To be gone where there's never a fear
That our garments a sin-spot shall know.

But may be 'tis best after all
To patiently wait and abide,
At work till the night-shadows fall,
And bid me now rest at thy side.

May be it is best to toil on,
Yet ever be ready to start
When the summons shall say to each one,
Arise now, arise, and depart.

May be it is best to stand strong,
Nor count up the moments that fly;
It will only just make them seem long,
Ere I'm called to my home in the sky.

[The Memoir of C. W. L., recently published, called "Clear Shining Light," may be obtained of the author, EMILY P. LEAKEY, 26, East Southernhay, Exeter, price 3s. 6d., post free.]

Requests for Praise and Prayer.

PRAISE.—For much blessing received in connection with services at Martock, Somerset, by Mr. Opie Rodway.

PRAYER.—For an outpouring of God's Holy Spirit on a large Bible meeting.

PLACES.—For a week's Gospel services at the Wesleyan Chapel, Watchet, to commence on Sunday the 28th inst., by Mr. Opie Rodway.——For the outpouring of God's Spirit during a Mission to be held at Upper Armley, Leeds, from Jan. 20 to Feb. 2.——For a Mission to be conducted by Rev. R. D. Monro, at Pakefield, near Lowestoft, from Jan. 20 to Feb. 3.——For a week of Evangelistic services, in the old school-house, Rathmines, Dublin, commencing 22nd inst.

CONVERSIONS.—For myself, that I may be truly converted, and have the assurance of sins forgiven.——For a husband, two sons, and a daughter.——An aged father requests prayer for the conversion of his son, the father of a large family.

Notices of Books, &c.

The beautifully-prepared Calendars issued by Messrs. Judd & Co., will be found very suitable for office or home use.

The Kingdom of Grace Triumphant. By Mr. John Coutts. F. Pitman. In a cheap form we have given to us a vast amount of matter, in which we find a sound tone and much thought.

Henceforth. By J. W. T. 6d. per dozen. F. W. Partridge & Co. There are many words of caution, as well as of cheer and encouragement, in this booklet, which will be very helpful to Christians.

Messrs. S. Hildesheimer & Co., 14, Silk-street, E.C., forward to us an attractive packet of cards—Seedtime and Harvest, each card displaying some rural scene, with Scripture texts, illustrative verses and graceful floral designs to match.

Eliza Smith; or, Be Warned in Time. ½d. S. W. Partridge & Co. Many wise and loving words of counsel, and also of hope and encouragement, are given in this little book. It will be found very suitable for distribution among working girls.

The Kingdom and the Restoration. By a Student of Prophecy. Elliot Stock. The Second Coming of Christ, and all that prophecy gives us as preceding and following the return of our Lord, form the subject-matter of this book. It will be read with interest by many Christians.

Heart Harmonies: Poems, Songs, and Sonnets. By Edward Croasdaile. Elliot Stock. These poems are evidently the work of one whose soul communes with nature, and with the God of nature; they have in them a ring of genuine feeling.

The Christian Visitor's Handbook. By Rev. Charles Neil, M.A. Nisbet & Co. This little book will be found useful by Christian workers. It gives references to passages of Scripture arranged under upwards of eighty different headings, with a number of references under each.

Christian Work. By J. C. Smith. James Blackwood & Co. This book contains the actual experiences and observations of one who has been labouring in Gospel work for nearly thirty years. The incidents narrated are full of interest, and are employed to bring before the mind the most solemn and the most helpful Gospel lessons.

Jubilee Temperance Almanack. 2d. and 1d. Pioneer Publishing Company. Every abstaining head of a household would do well to possess a copy of this almanack. It is full of interesting facts and recollections attaching to the history of the movement, besides giving portraits of eminent pioneers of the good cause.

The British Women's Temperance Journal. 1d. This monthly periodical has been started by the Committee of the B.W.T. Association, to provide a means of communication between the various branches of the Society. We heartily wish it success. The current issue gives evidence of vitality and usefulness.

A packet of very pretty floral Birthday Cards is issued by Mrs. Daniel Tomkins, Great Yarmouth. The verses of sacred poetry each express some wish suitable for the natal day, suggested by the flower on the card. They are flowing and musical, but not marked by any striking originality of thought or expression.

Across the Water. By Mrs. Payne. 2s. 6d. Religious Tract Society. A tale fraught with practical value to young men. A timely warning is sounded against the fascinations of the "social glass," and the perils of self-sufficiency. The issues of an unselfish life, and the peace and harmony of a home where God is in the heart, are finely portrayed.

Elsie's Footprints. By Mrs. Lucas Shadwell. 2s. 6d. Religious Tract Society. A little book well worthy of attention. These footprints lie along a path of lights and shadows, and carry much consolation to the vineyard-labourer; whilst the sure growth of the "little leaven" is true encouragement to those who are tempted to grow weary in well-doing.

Hid in the Cevennes; or, The Mountain Refuge. 3s. Religious Tract Society. Religious liberty that needs to be fostered in glens and caves has its privations, yet never lacks its compensating victories. The youthful heroine of this narrative, betrayed from her Christian home by cruel jealousy, resents all attempts to overthrow her convictions, and, escaping from her foes, finds a retreat among the rugged Cevennes. The triumphs of her brave martyr-spirit, her deliverance from peril, and restoration to home, are vividly described, and form a thrilling story.

Filled with the Spirit. By Rev. Ernest Boys, M.A. Nisbet & Co. This little book is a treasury of Bible teaching in regard to the Holy Spirit. The New Testament has been carefully searched, in order that all truth relating to the Divine Spirit may be dealt with. Mr. Boys formulates no extreme human theories; the light of God's word is simply thrown upon this all-important subject.

The Shipwrecked Mariners' Magazine. George Morrish. The volume of this Magazine for 1882 is worthy of all praise. Whilst prominently advocating the work of that invaluable organisation, The Shipwrecked Mariners' Society, it also gives much useful information and instruction upon many matters, together with a variety of admirable illustrations. Above all, the religious matter contained in it is thoroughly evangelical and to the point.

The Congregational Year Book. Hodder & Stoughton. This volume for the year 1883 contains the usual large collection of valuable information with regard to the Congregational Churches, and also many reports of addresses which are more worthy of careful perusal than is generally supposed. The short memorials of pastors who have fallen asleep during the past year, including many men well known to all denominations, are specially interesting.

The Indian Female Evangelist. 3d. Jas. Nisbet & Co. This quarterly record of the Indian Female Normal School and Instruction Society deserves the heartiest support of all who wish well to the women of India. The current issue is full of readable and interesting matter in connection with the society. Young ladies who are anxious to find out the niche they ought to occupy in the great temple of Christian work may have some light cast on their path by an earnest perusal of this serial.

Philip Phillips: The Story of his Life. Illustrated. 6d. Wesleyan Methodist S.S. Union. An authentic and vivid sketch, in outline, from the pen of Dr. Alexander Clark, of the life and life-work of the "Singing Pilgrim." The profuse illustrations, including portraits of Mr. Phillips and his son, give an added interest to the brochure. In using the word "authentic," we must make one exception: a brief notice of Mr Phillips's Song Sermons recently given in Exeter Hall, that appeared in our columns, is credited to a contemporary.

Intimations of Immortality. By Rev. W. Garrett Horder. Elliot Stock. We have here a thoughtful and readable treatise on immortality. We find much of excellence in the various chapters; we cannot but regret, however, that the main arguments in favour of immortality should not have been taken more largely from the facts and teachings of Scripture, and above all, from the great fact of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus. No treatise on immortality can ever approach that contained in the 15th chapter of Paul's first Epistle to the Corinthians, and it is to that that the minds of men need to be specially directed.

Gesta Christi. By C. Loring Brace. 12s., Hodder and Stoughton. We regret that space does not allow of any elaborate notice of this book. Historically, it is most valuable, as giving an able and exhaustive statement of the condition of European nations before the teaching and influence of Christianity were brought to bear upon them. The writer also portrays the incalculable results produced by Christianity upon the nations, especially in regard to the position of women, the treatment of children, national institutions, marriage, law, slavery, and a variety of matters during the Roman period, the middle ages, and modern times. As we have said, a brief notice cannot do justice to this able work, relating to a subject too little considered.

Stepping Stones to Higher Things. By Capt. Seton Churchill. Elliot Stock. This book has been written specially for the purpose of bringing home the Gospel to those who are unsaved. We trust that it may be circulated among educated people, for which class it is more especially suited. It is sound in its teaching, and is written in a colloquial style, such as suits the taste of the present day. Referring to saving faith, the author writes: "A young man was once discussing this subject with an old clergyman. The young man said, 'Well, if that is true, I can believe and do what I like, and yet be saved.' 'True,' replied the old clergyman, 'do what you like; but if yours is a real saving faith you will like to do what God likes.' When once we really do believe in Christ as our Saviour ourhearts are changed, and henceforth his service is no longer a duty to be performed nolens volens, but it is our highest pleasure. It is useless to talk of loving a person if we do not do our best to please him."

The Baptist Handbook. Alexander & Shepheard. From this well-prepared handbook we glean many interesting statistics of the Baptist denomination. We find that in the United Kingdom there were 1902 Baptist pastors during the year 1882, being an increase of 17 over the preceding year. At the same time the total membership has decreased in the same period by about 4000, the total for 1882 being 290,918. We imagine one chief cause for this has been the revision of the Church rolls, which has been more extensively carried out than heretofore. Nearly 100 new chapels have been erected, and for aggressive work there exists a body of 3300 evangelists. A paper by Mr. W. P. Lockhart, on "The Church and the World," is well worthy of attention, together with other addresses, notably that of the President of the Union.

Lessons from Moses' Bible; Illustrated, for Children. By Alex. Mackeith. Charles Glass & Co., Glasgow. This is a perfectly unique book, the fruit of much experience in Gospel work among the poor children of Glasgow. It embodies the gist of two years' study of the first five books of the Old Testament, and contains a vast amount of Gospel instruction clothed in a form suitable to the apprehension of the youthful mind and heart. It is a work that will be most useful to Sunday-school teachers, and the leaders of children's services, especially if they can utilise the numerous illustrative and other helps with which the book abounds. Details regarding the special work of which this book is one outcome may be had from Mr. John Steel, 239, St. Vincent-street, Glasgow.

Footsteps of Truth. 3d. J. F. Shaw & Co. Under this title our esteemed friend and fellow-worker, Mr. C. Russell-Hurditch, has issued the first number of a monthly magazine, the object of which is "to assist in furnishing sound Scriptural teaching for those recently brought into the family of God, and also to provide another useful channel through which men of spiritual understanding may communicate with each other." We find in it an admirable article by the Editor, entitled, "What is Truth?" and a great deal of other valuable matter. We cordially wish God-speed to this very promising and edifying magazine.

Life of Hannah More. By Miss Anna Buckland. 3s., Religious Tract Society. The issue of this book will be hailed with universal satisfaction. We have before us the memorials of one of the most highly gifted of women, who in the midst of a life of brilliant intellectual success, and surrounded by worldly allurements, laid all upon the altar of sacrifice, and meekly took up the cross for Christ's sake. Soon after this step was taken she felt called upon to give her testimony as to prevailing evils. On publishing "Thoughts on the Importance of the Manners of the Great to General Society," she wrote: "When the author is discovered, I shall expect to find almost every door shut against me; mais n'importe, I shall only be sent to my darling retirement." She was led to commence her glorious work for the salvation of the ignorant and the debased; in this she was truly the pioneer of the later Mission enterprises, now, thank God, so universal. The state of the people at that time baffles description, but we gather some idea of it from this book. It is interesting to read in regard to the gifted Dr. Samuel Johnson, that when dying he said to the doctor in attendance: "My dear doctor, believe a dying man: there is no salvation but in the sacrifice of the Lamb of God." Believing that the testimony would do good, when writing his will, after the usual legal formulæ he wrote: "I offer up my soul to the great and merciful God; I offer it full of sin, but in full assurance that it will be cleansed in the blood of my Redeemer." Miss Buckland's book is well worthy of wide circulation.

Wesley's Designated Successor: The Life, Letters, and Literary Labours of the Rev. John William Fletcher, Vicar of Madeley, Shropshire. By Rev. L. Tyerman. Hodder & Stoughton. This is an octavo volume, of 581 pages, printed in excellent type, on toned paper, with a portrait of Mr. Fletcher. Mr. Tyerman is well known as the biographer of Wesley and of Whitefield. No life of Wesley has appeared so replete with information concerning that eminent man as Mr. Tyerman's, and of his life of Fletcher we may make a like affirmation. The knowledge that both Fletcher and Wesley were firm believers in the pre-millennial advent of our Lord, we chiefly owe to Mr. Tyerman. This life of Fletcher we have read with deep interest and much profit. Since the death of the Apostle John, it is a question if there has been a holier man on the earth than Fletcher of Madeley. "His goodness," says Melville Horne, "raised him above all the ministers of his day." "In holy temper and holiness of conversation," says Wesley, "one equal to Mr. Fletcher I have not known; no, not in a life of fourscore years." Equally strong are many other unexceptionable testimonies.

In nothing, if we except his love to Christ, was Fletcher's grace more eminent than in his humility. He was the exemplification of his own memorable sentiment: "That which will be something will not let Christ be all." Of himself, ministerially and personally, his views coincided. "If one person," he said, "receive a good desire in ten years by my instrumentality, it is a greater honour than I deserve—an honour for which I could not be too thankful."

His charity to the poor "constantly exhausted his purse; frequently unfurnished his home; and sometimes left him destitute of the common necessaries of life. That he might feed the hungry, he led a life of abstinence and self-denial; and that he might cover the naked he clothed himself in the most homely attire." His deadness to the world he evinced in choosing the parish of Madeley in preference to one with double its income, and not half its work; and not less so when he refused promotion by the Government, saying, he wanted only more grace. But eminently as he shone in grace, Fletcher is perhaps best known by his controversial writings. In these, unlike most of his opponents, he never descended to personalities. He was at all times the Christian and the gentleman. He was an acute and forcible reasoner, yet all his arguments will not hold water. One is struck with his accurate and extensive knowledge of Scripture. In coming out as the champion of Wesley he was careful not to defend the unguarded expressions of his "Minutes." While we do not endorse all Fletcher's tenets, we cannot doubt that his "Checks on Antinomianism" accomplished much good. His and Wesley's doctrine of "the rewardableness of good works," is now generally, if not universally, received by Christians. Mr. Tyerman does not defend the action of either Fletcher or Wesley rushing into the arena of politics on the outbreak of war between England and her American colonies. Fletcher's style is ornate, but is often deficient in force from want of concentration.

Walking with God as he did, the ministry of Fletcher was a ministry of great spiritual power. And few men were ever more instant in season and out of season than he. In preaching the Gospel publicly, and from house to house, in instructing the young and visiting the sick, he was indefatigable. All his conversation and his letters were full of Christ. To win souls, to lead believers to seek the fulness of his grace, and above all to grow himself in his image, were Fletcher's aim and end. It is our earnest wish that this life may be extensively read, and that all who read it may follow John William Fletcher as he followed Christ.

PASTOR CHINIQUY was welcomed to England last week by a reception meeting held in the National Club, Whitehall-gardens. He is to deliver a course of lectures on Romanism in different parts of the country.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending February 3:—Jan. 28, Isaiah lx. 13-23; Jan. 29, Isaiah lxi. 1-11; Jan. 30, lxiii. 1-12; Jan. 31, Isaiah lxv. 17-25; Feb. 1, Psalms lxxiii. 1-14; Feb. 2, Psalms lxxiii. 15-28; Feb. 3, Psalms lxxiv. 1-12.

FEMALE INTEMPERANCE AND GROCERS' LICENCES.—Last week Canon Ellison presided at the Westminster Palace Hotel at a Conference of the Women's Union of the Church of England Temperance Society. Mrs. Ellis Cameron, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Wilson, and other ladies detailed numerous cases of ruin, madness, and death arising from the fact that women of the upper and middle class have great facilities at grocers, fruiterers, confectioners', and the stores for obtaining wine and spirits, which they can in so many instances drink on the premises. These ladies urge the abolition of grocers' and shopkeepers' licences for the sale of wines and spirits. Canon Ellison said that there had of late years been an appalling increase of female intemperance owing to the facilities afforded by grocers' licences. The society had submitted a great deal of evidence to that effect to the House of Lords' Committee making inquiries on that subject, and their report spoke of it as increasing on a scale so vast and at a rate of progression so rapid as to constitute a new reproach and danger. He believed the public were totally unprepared for the immense amount of evidence against the grocers' and shopkeepers' licences which the society would be able to bring forward, and the time, he hoped, was not far distant when the House of Commons would retrace its steps and abolish the licences.

Letters to the Editor.

"SLEEK OLD TABBIES."

DEAR SIR,—As one of the "sleek old tabbies" alluded to by Mr. Aitken, will you allow me to justify my order in a few words?

In a Mission of Mr. Aitken's, during which he did not so much "weed out" his after-meetings as he has since taken to do, I was lifted up from a cold and distant state of feeling, refreshed, helped, and sent on my way rejoicing. No one spoke to me—I did not seek that; I sat in a retired place, and the quiet time of prayer, the soft, devotional hymns, and the earnest words spoken from time to time by Mr. Aitken were very blessed to me. How much I have longed for the same help again, no one knows but God and myself. Why can it not be permitted?—Yours, TABITHA.

SANCTIFICATION AND HOLINESS.

DEAR SIR,—Are these synonymous expressions? Is not "holiness" rather the result of sanctification? If any believer states (wisely, or otherwise) that he is entirely sanctified, does he necessarily mean that he is "sinless?" Is not "sanctification" separation unto God? Therefore, entire sanctification is separation unto God, "spirit, soul, and body."

God's purpose or will for every believer is his sanctification. Holiness follows upon this, being an outcome or consequence of the sanctification. Some persons may be inclined to say this is "a distinction without a difference;" but it seems to me that a great deal of the controversy unfortunately associated with the subject arises from the want of a clear understanding as to what is the true definition and meaning of these two words.

We grow in grace, or in holiness, through continual sanctification, whether this separation be produced by the Word, by the Spirit, by trial of our faith, or by some other means. Thus, being ever more and more set apart unto God in everything, day by day, moment by moment, we are "vessels unto honour, sanctified and meet for the Master's use."

May "the very God of peace" indeed "sanctify us wholly," and may we find increasingly, that He who calleth us is faithful, who also will do it, if only we are willing that He should.—Yours truly,

Jan. 17. A. C. P. COOTE.

PRAYER FOR FUNDS.

DEAR SIR,—Occupying the position known as "the head of a Mission work" in London, I am much interested in the letter of your correspondent who signs himself "An Old Man." The subject is one that often gives me much thought, as being responsible, humanly speaking, for a large amount, annually, to pay all righteous claims, and owe no man anything but love.

But I am myself inclined to the conviction of many that the hearts of not a few of the Lord's people, who are rich in this world's goods, are not in such a prepared state of grace to be sensible of their privileges as stewards and purse-bearers, as not to need reminding of the needs of their brethren at work in the high places of the field. They look to be reminded by letter or otherwise, while doubtless there are others who are only influenced to give by the sight of their eyes, or when wrought upon by some stirring appeal. I have some devoted helpers who are living in hallowed fellowship with God, and whose gifts are only limited by their resources, either for frequency or amount; others give the stereotyped guinea annually, and others only give when some unusual need is pressed upon their attention.

I usually find that dear George Müller is cited as an example when a certain line is pleaded for, as by your correspondent. But I remember a conversation I had with a gentleman at Ashley Down some years since. The subject of giving and receiving in relation to God's work was spoken of, and he said there were times and seasons under which it was right and proper to ask for the assistance of our brethren, and Mr. Müller's line was not to be imitated under all circumstances. I could mention another institution that is rapidly assuming proportions which bid fair to equal Mr. Müller's; it has reached this position in a much less period of time than that occupied by Mr. Müller, and by a very different procedure. Therefore, if Mr. Müller's success is held up as a justification for his line, might not the success of other institutions be quoted as showing a better way? We are not much nearer a solution of the difficulty by reference to one than the other, as both could be cited to prove or justify the lawfulness of very different methods of procedure.

Nor do the subscription columns of your good journal afford any better guide for those who are seeking to know the mind of the Lord in their work for Him in the collection of funds. For it is very obvious to tho se who read your paper that those societies and institutions which spend most in advertising, and such as are most frequently mentioned in your columns, are those for which, with scarce an exception, the largest amounts are collected. Therefore, while thanking "An Old Man" for the gracious spirit and aim of his letter, I feel the question is yet a point that I am far from satisfied about.

No one, I should think, likes appealing for money for Christian work. I often feel sad when I find it necessary (as it seems to me) to do so. But till the Church of God returns to the fervour and devotion of her earliest experiences, the servants of God will find, as Paul found with the Corinthians, only too much room for stirring up the latent liberality of money-loving disciples.—Yours in the Lord, A HEAD OF A MISSION.

Jan. 18, 1883.

PRAYER FOR "HELP."

DEAR SIR,—The letter of Lieutenant Morris (Jan. 11), set me searching (Acts xvii. 11) to find out the teaching of the Bible on "asking God for help." I find that not only in the case of Asa, but in several others, the word is used in the ordinary acceptation of the term, that is, we are to do our part just as if all depended upon ourselves. At the same time, we are to ask God for help as having in ourselves "no power." There are three different words in the Old Testament used and translated "help," with of course three different meanings. The first is חָזַק, and the idea, is give strength (2 Chron. xxix. 34). The second is יָשַׁע, and is generally translated "save," but is "help" in 2 Sam. x. 11, 19, xiv. 4; 2 Kings vi. 26, 27; and Ps. xiv. 1.

The third is the one we have now before us, עָזַר and is generally translated "help." The following, amongst many other passages, are worth looking at: 2 Chron. xiv. 11; Psalm cxviii. 7: "The Lord taketh my part with them that help me" Judges v. 23: "They came not to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the mighty."

In conclusion, allow me to commend this mode of searching the Scriptures. Mr. Moody advises people to buy a Concordance rather than a Commentary. I know of no method more useful in enlarging one's ideas, or rather I will say driving out one's own ideas, and making room for God's truth, than this one of looking out the word, whatever it may be in a Concordance.—Faithfully yours,

Derby. WILLIAM OGLE.

DEAR SIR,—It is indeed well to weigh the meaning of the words we use in prayer and ofttimes to ponder on Eccles. v. 2; but I think your naval correspondent has missed the meaning of the word "help," as used so often in Scripture.

In the passage he quotes, 2 Chron. xiv. 11, we have its true meaning defined, "Help us . . . for we rest on Thee;" and in chap. xv. 8, the prophet, alluding to this act, says, "because thou didst rely on the Lord," showing that the cry for help was the outcome of entire helplessness in self and entire dependence upon God.

Let our brother go to the Psalms, the true "Book of Common Prayer," because used in common by our Exalted Head when on earth, and now by his members who "are now as He was." There we shall find this word "help" over and over again in his prayers. "O my strength, haste Thou to help me" (Psalm xxii. 19); also God is said to be by the Holy Spirit in Psalm xlvi. 1, xciv. 17, &c., "a very present help." So in Hosea xiii. 4, God says, "There is no Saviour beside me," and then in ver. 9, "in Me is thine help;" again, the Holy Spirit is said to help our infirmities (Rom. viii. 26). We are encouraged to pray for the very thing he condemns, viz., "grace to help us" (Heb. iv. 16). The Holy Spirit saith expressly that we are to say, "the Lord is my helper, therefore," &c. (Heb. xiii.); and, finally, the Apostle Paul, certainly no Arminian, says, "Having obtained help of the Lord," &c.

In fact, our brother starts from a wrong inference when he says "a petition to help implies that we will do most . . . and trust to God to the rest." The picture given in Matt. xv. 25, is one of human helplessness, the cry "Lord, help me," its expression, and ver. 28, its approval, in those gracious words, "O woman, great is thy faith."

Reading. J. L.

Mission and other Appeals.

CAGE-LANE MISSION, PLUMSTEAD.—Will our friends kindly remember the urgent need for funds to free this Hall from debt. Mr. T. A. Denny has promised another £50 when £250 have been raised, so as to reduce the £800 to £500. Miss KATE RUSSELL, 1, Thames-view-terrace, Plumstead, Kent.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND SCRIPTURE READERS' ASSOCIATION.—Owing to the death during the past year of many of the most influential and liberal supporters of this Association, several of the readers have had to be withdrawn. Unless considerable help is given during the next three months a further reduction of the already limited staff of workers will have to be made. The office is 56, Haymarket, S.W.

WALTHAMSTOW ORPHANS' HOME.—In order to meet a deficiency in the exchequer of this institution, Mr. Barlow Kennett offers £50, on condition that within two months £150 is given by others, in any sums. The same kind friend also offers a further gift of £10, on condition that four other like sums are contributed. One of these has been already promised. Let me beg the friends of orphan children that as this is a time of special need, they will respond quickly to these offers, which, when realised, will be so valuable a help. M. A. PARSONS, Cumberland House, Walthamstow, Essex.

ORPHAN AND DESTITUTE CHILDREN AT CAPRI, ITALY.—Only £85 of the £400 required to commence the work among the many poor and destitute children at Capri has been collected. Signor Sisca, it is to be hoped, will take charge of the work. This gentleman was studying medicine when he was converted; in two years he will have finished his studies, when he will be able to maintain himself, and act as director of the Home. In his spare time he holds services, and great blessing has followed. M. WARRABLE. 42, Ladbroke-road, Notting-hill, W., will be glad to furnish any information about this work.

CRIPPLES' HOME AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.—This institution, situated at 17A, Marylebone-road, has lately sustained a great loss in the death of Miss Blunt, who was for many years Hon. Secretary, and also one of its founders. The household numbers upwards of 100 girls, many of whom are cripples. They are employed in making hats, baskets, mats, &c., and trained in domestic duties. A Christian example is shown, and instruction given in religious principles. Friends are asked to assist, either by purchasing the articles for sale or by contributing to the funds. The new Hon. Secretary is Miss E. STEINMETZ, Northumberland House, 17A, Marylebone-road.

BORDIGHERA ORPHANAGE.—This institution at Bordighera, Vallecrosia, Italy, which is admirably conducted, and has already sent forth eighty young men and women as Protestant Christians, has been hitherto supported almost entirely at the expense of the founder, Mrs. Boyce. It is now in danger of being closed for lack of funds. Mrs. Boyce's resources have been so exhausted that it is absolutely necessary some arrangement should now be made for relieving her of the annual burden. Her desire is that friends in this country may be willing to raise such a sum annually for a few years as would enable the Waldensian Commission of Evangelisation to accept her offer of handing the whole property over to them; otherwise the work must be given up. Under their management, an annual sum of £400 subscribed by friends for ten years will be required in order to carry it on. The priests have lately received liberal help from a wealthy citizen of Turin to build a college at Bordighera as a rival to the Asilo. This calls the more urgently for its continuance. Help will gladly be received by Major FORBISHER, 118, Pall Mall, S.W.

MR. AITKEN AT BEDFORD.—A Mission, extending from January 5th to January 19th, has been held at St. Cuthbert's Church, Bedford. The preachers were the Rev. W. Hay M. H. Aitken and Rev. James Stephens. The Mission appears to have been greatly blessed and owned of God. A very large number of persons of all classes seem to have been brought under its influence, and it is hoped that much blessed and abiding fruit will be the result. Bedford being an important educational centre, Mr. Aitken held special services for boys every evening, which were well attended and thoroughly appreciated. As Mr. Aitken is a resident in Bedford, he was able to invite any who asked for further counsel to his own house; a goodly number availed themselves of the privilege and ranged themselves on the Lord's side.

Notices.

MDLLE. NOULETTE, Paris, has removed her boarding house from 16, Rue de Tilsit, to 26, Avenue de la Grande Armée.

CHRISTIANS residing within easy distance of Stamford-hill willing to speak or sing at Christian Temperance Meetings, are invited to address Mr. J. White, 69, Paignton-road, Stamford-hill.

A CHRISTIAN LADY WORKER, of moderate means, seeks information as to any country district in South Wales where help is needed, and would be welcomed by godly Evangelical work. Address Miss C., Ferndale, Narberth, S. Wales.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—Geo. E. Pearce, Camelford, Cornwall; Mrs. Ann Worth, Tract Distributor, St. Tudy, Bodmin; J. G. Andrews, Putney Vale, Surrey; Miss A. Blain, 35, Moore-street, Cadogan-square, S.W.; E. Ford, 1, Green Field-place, Eastleigh; John Singleton, 2, Selwyn-road, High-cross-lane, Tottenham; R. Wilson, 6, Buchanan-terrace, Paisley, N.B.; T. Wilson, 299, Parliamentary-road, Glasgow; R. Stevens, Coleford, Gloucestershire; W. Sherwood, 85, Donnington-gardens, Reading.

Communications received with thanks.—J.U. E.E.B. E.J. C.A.T. J.M. A Subscriber. J.W.D. L.R.H. E.S. F.E.W. N.B. W.R.T. J.M.C. G.D.S. E.N. E.S. S.R. T.S.L. C.T. W.O. J.L. F.P. J.A.Y. F.B. W.P.B. C.B. E.F. Mary. F.T. J.R. R.H. A.C.P.C. C.M. C.R.P. J.S.A. C.M. W.S.S. A.T.W. Miss C. J.J.J. C.C.F.A. T.W.W. W.C. C.J.W. W.H.T.W. S.T. J.V.S. W.R.T. E.G. E.H.G.V.D. C.W. M.G. B.W. W.F. N.K. Miss S. Tabitha. Senex. J.S. A.M.C. S.E.D. J.W. C.P.M. R.S. N. G. de G.G. G.S.S. C.C. A.W. H.K. G.H.P. C.M. T.S. W.B.B. W.S. S.M. J.E.M. L.E.H. J.H. B.B. S.G. M.A.P. E.P. T.P.

Forthcoming Meetings.

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY'S FORTHCOMING ENGAGEMENTS—1883—Jan. 18 to Feb. 7, Birmingham; Feb. 11 to 18, Belfast; Feb. 20 to 23, Leicester; Feb. 25 to 28, Nottingham; Mar. 1 to 15, Manchester; Mar. 16 to 30, Leeds; Mar. 31 to April 14, Liverpool.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales, on due notice. Apply, Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-st., Strand, W.C.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply, Hon. Sec., 30, Surrey-sq., S.E.

THE IRISH EVANGELIZATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

Y.M.C.A., THE PRIORY, 198, Upper-street, N.—Thursday, Jan. 25, 8-30 p.m., Rev. E. Brewer. Wed., 6 to 10, anxious Inquirers and Strangers.

——————EXETER HALL.—Sunday, 7 p.m., Service conducted by Mr. H. Varley. Saturday, 8.30 p.m., Bible-reading by Col. Puget.

AGRICULTURAL HALL SERVICES.—Sunday, Jan. 28, 3.30 p.m. Rev. T. Harley; 7 p.m. Mr. G. E. Elvin and Miss Thurston (soloist).

THE DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—Stafford Rooms, Tichborne-street, Edgware-road, on Friday, January 26, at 3.30 p.m., Rev. E. W. Moore.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W. Friday, Jan. 26, at 7 p.m. (tea at 6 p.m.), "Sanctification of Heart and Life," Rev. John Vercoe, M.A.; Tuesday, Jan. 30, at 11.30 a.m., "The Second Advent," by Miss Mason.

"STRANGERS' REST," 163, St. George-street, E.—Thursday, Feb. 1st. Bible-reading by Rev. Jas. Stephens, of Highgate-road. Tea at 6 p.m. Meeting at 7 p.m.

MILDMAY MISSION TO THE JEWS.—Monthly Prayer-meeting for the Jews, Friday, Jan. 26, 7 p.m., in the Ladies' Waiting-room, Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N. Rev. J. Wilkinson's Bible-reading every week, at 7.30 p.m. on Wednesday evening, in the same room.

SALVATION ARMY.—Mrs. Booth at Kensington Town Hall, Sun., Feb. 11, at 3 p.m.; Regent's Hall, Regent Circus, Tues., Feb. 13, at 3 p.m.; Steinway Hall, Lower Seymour-street, Portman-square, Thurs., Feb. 15, at 11 a.m.

REV. W. H. AITKEN'S ENGAGEMENTS.—Jan. 21 to Feb. 7, Leeds, Canon Jackson's Church; Victoria-hall, Feb. 8 to 28; March 4 to 19, Weymouth; March 31 to April 16, Wareham; April 22 to May 6, St. Matthew's, Bayswater; May 26 to July 2, South London.

MR. G. KIRKHAM'S ENGAGEMENTS—Jan. 27, Cheshunt; 28, Sermon-lane, Islington; 29, Westminster; 31, Harvey-street, Hoxton; Feb. 4, Stedham, Sussex; 5 to 11, Middleton, near Bognor; 12, Hertford; 13, Clavering, Herts; 14, Bermondsey; 15, Rochester Institute, Walworth-road; 16, Stanstead Abbotts, Herts; 19, St. Benet's, Mile-end-road; 20, Mile-end New Town; 21, Home of Industry, Spitalfields; 26, Field-lane Ragged Schools; 27, Battersea-park-road; 28, Mildmay-park; March 3 to 6, Cambridge.

EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—"Oxford" Music Hall: Sunday, at 7 p.m., Mr. Geo. Tomkins. Mornington Hall: Sunday at 7 p.m., Mr. Herbert R. Francis; 22nd to 24th inst. at 8 p.m., three special addresses by Mr. Henry Varley. Kilburn Hall Kilburn-gate (not Town Hall): Sun., 7 p.m., Mr. W. R. Lane. Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock Hill: Sun. at 7 p.m., Mr. Geo. Hucklesby. Temple of Varieties, King-street, Hammersmith: Sunday, 3.30 p.m. Mr. W. R. Lane, and Mr. W. Barnard Smith at 7 p.m. Bignold Hall, Forest-gate: (Second Anniversary), Thurs., Jan. 25, Rev. W. Cuff, at 3 p.m.; Drs. Lazeron and McKilliam, Messrs. F. C. Spurr, Abraham Wallis, and others at 7 p.m. Omega-Hall, park: Sun. at 3.30 and 7 p.m., Messrs. W. H. Smith and J. Sprunt. Dalston Hall, Dalston-lane: Sun., 3.15 p.m. and 7 p.m., Mr. J. E. Jack; lectures by Mr. Geo. Hucklesby, on "The Tabernacle in the Wilderness," illustrated by a model and diagrams, every Tues. at 8 p.m.

Subscriptions received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Saturday Morning, January 20, 1883.

 Donations should be sent by cheque or Post-office order, not by stamps. Cheques to be drawn in favour of Morgan and Scott, and crossed City Bank; P.O.O.'s payable to Morgan and Scott, at G.P.O

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the Missions to which they wish their donations to be applied. Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Saturday Morning. Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

	£	s.	d.
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, E.—A. B. C. £1; J. H. D. 10s.; J. J. W. £1; Mrs. M., 10s.; "Box at Rest," 6s. 3d.; "Thank-offering," £1 ..	4	6	3
Christmas Cries, &c. (Woman's Work)—L. W. 5s.; H. A. 10s. ..	0	15	0
St. Giles's Christian Mission—L. W. 5s.; M. L. A. 10s.; "R. Dresden," £5. Prison Mission—J. W. & K. A. £10 ..	15	15	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—L. W. ..	0	5	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—L. W. 5s.; J. C. £1; "A Grateful heart," £1 ..	2	5	0
Home of Industry—J. W. & K. A. £10 10s.; "Sister," £10; M. L. A. 5s. ..	20	15	0
George Yard Ragged School—J. W. & K. A. £10; M. L. A. 10s. ..	10	10	0
Chichester Training Ship (Mr. Williams)—J. W. & K. A. ..	10	10	0
Friendless and Fallen—J. W. & K. A. £10; S. S. 2s.; J. M. L. £1; R. T. £10; A. H. N. 1s.; "Thank-offering," 15s. ..	21	18	0
Rescue Society—J. W. & K. A. ..	8	0	0
National Society for the Protection of Young Girls—J. W. & K. A. ..	10	0	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—J. W. & K. A. £10; M. M. M. D. £2; M. L. A. £1; J. J. 5s.; E. D 3s. 6d.	13	8
Evangelistic Mission—J. W. & K. A. £10; Miss M., £1 ..	11	0
Field-lane Refuges—J. W. & K. A. £5; R. Dresden, £5; T. B. W. 5s. ..	10	5	0
Ned Wright's Work—J. W. & K. A. £5; Miss M., £1	6	0	0
Spitalfields Gospel Mission—J. W. & K. A. £5; M. L. A. 10s.; E. M. E. £6; "Thank-offering," £1 ..	12	10	0
Shipwrecked Mariners' Society—J. W. & K. A. ..	5	0	0
Medical Missionary Association—J. W. & K. A. ..	5	0	0
Whitefield Mission—J. W. & K. A. ..	3	0	0
Home for Worn-out Governesses, etc.—J. W. & K. A.	3	0	0
Seamen's Christian Friend Society—J. W. & K. A. ..	5	0	0
Strangers' Friend Society—J. W. & K. A. ..	3	0	0
Bible Stand, Crystal Palace—J. W. & K. A. ..	5	0	0
Association for Deaf and Dumb, 6, Oxford-street—J. W. & K. A. ..	5	0	0
Bethel Santhal Mission—J. W. & K. A. ..	5	0	0
Foreign Evangelical Society—J. W. & K. A. ..	5	0	0
Miss Mittendorff's Home—M. A. K. 1s.; J. S. 2s. 6d.;	0	3	6
Dock Labourers' Mission—S. S. B. 15s.; J. W. W. 9s.; Free Meals—B. B. 5s.; "School Boys" 1s. 9d. Free Lodgings—L. H. 2s. ..	1	12	9
Mrs. Birt's Sheltering Home—M. M. M. D. ..	2	0	0
East London Training Institute—M. M. M. D. £1; R. T. £20 ..	21	0	0
Mrs. Meredith's Work—R. T. £10. Prison Mission—F. W. R. £1 ..	11	0	0
Society for Promoting Female Education in the East, Work at Bethlehem—H. A. D. ..	0	5	0
Mrs. Hilton's Creche—S. S. 5s.; "R. Dresden" £5	5	5	0
Distressed Jews in Jerusalem (Mrs. Finn)—"Thank-offering" ..	1	0	0
Rescue Work at Poplar (Mrs. Wilkes)—S. S. 2s.; Miss M. £5 ..	5	2	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—M. L. A. £1; R. T. £10	11	0	0
Bird's Nest Mission—L. M. H. ..	0	5	0
St. Luke's Medical Mission (Mr. E. Bastin)—M. L. A.	0	10	0
Special Religious Services in Theatres—M. L. A. 5s.; "A Friend" 5s. ..	0	10	0
East-End Sewing Class Fund—J. C. ..	1	0	0
London Medical Mission—J. C. ..	1	0	0
Rev. R. W. McAll's Work, Paris—T. M. Y. 5s.; "Walworth Y. M. C. M." £2 2s ..	2	7	0
Thames Church Mission—T. M. Y. 5s.; R. T. £5 ..	5	5	0
Indian Female Normal School Society—T. M. Y. ..	0	5	0
Miss Whately's Medical Mission, Cairo—"Thank-offering" ..	1	0	0
London City Mission—"A Friend" ..	0	5	0
Midnight Meeting Movement—W. T. M. ..	5	0	0
Poor Jews in Jerusalem (Mr. Friedlander)—Mrs. E. P. H. ..	0	1	0
National Lifeboat Institution—J. J. ..	0	5	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—J. J. ..	0	5	0
Women's Mission to Women—J. J. ..	0	5	0
Miss Daniell's Work among Soldiers—R. T. ..	10	0	0
Homerton Mission—R. T. ..	5	0	0
Mr. J. Shrimpton's Boys' Home—R. T. ..	10	0	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—R. T. ..	10	0	0
Miss Leigh's Work, Paris—R. T. ..	10	0	0
Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland—R. T. ..	5	0	0
Tower Hamlets Mission—R. T. ..	5	0	0
Rev. A. G. Brown's Work at Stepney—R. T. ..	10	0	0
Spanish Evangelical Mission—R. T. ..	2	10	0
Mexican Episcopal Church—R. T. ..	2	10	0
Turkish Mission Aid Society—R. T. ..	5	0	0
Christian Community—R. T. ..	2	0	0
Kingsland Gospel Mission (Mr. Chorley)—R. T. ..	3	0	0
Stockwell Orphanages—"A Servant" ..	0	5	0
Paris City Mission—T. N. J. ..	0	10	0
Gratuitous Circulation of THE CHRISTIAN—T. N. J. 3s. 2d.; C. W. R. 6s. 10d.; C. W. 2s.; "Thank-offering," 5s. ..	0	17	0
China Inland Mission—T. S. 10s.; G. J. 4s. 6d.; E. M. E. £10 ..	10	14	6
Colar Mission (Miss Anstey)—E. M. E. ..	5	0	0
	£376	0	6

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Evangelistic Mission (Per C. R. H.) 1s.
Cow-cross Mission—A Thank-offering, A. B. D., 20s.

MR. G. C. NEEDHAM is continuing his meetings in Dublin. The Friend's Meeting House is well filled each afternoon with the leading families of the city, while at Merrion Hall each evening all classes come to hear the Gospel. Special efforts are now made for the soldiers and policemen. Pray for Dublin.

CHURCH PAROCHIAL MISSION SOCIETY.

OFFICE—21, John Street, Adelphi, London, W.C.
General Superintendent—REV. W. HAY M. H. AITKEN, M.A.
Treasurer—EDWARD M. DENNY, ESQ. Secretary—REV. S. W. DARWIN FOX, M.A.

The object of this Society is to maintain a staff of experienced Mission Preachers. Upwards of 600 Missions have been held by the Society. At the present time eight Clergymen are entirely engaged by the Society, fourteen receive grants towards Curates, while a large number give their voluntary help. Lay Agents also conduct Missions in halls, tents, or schools under the direction of the Parochial Clergy.

As at the present time there are special opportunities for extending the work, liberal help is greatly needed. Contributions may be sent to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, or to the Secretary.

THE ANCHORAGE.

Hebrews vi. 19.

SPECIAL BRANCH of the MISSION OF HOPE AND HELP.

For the reception of the more respectable class of young women in trouble.

Conversion of heart, according to the simple Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, is the one thing prayerfully and faithfully sought.

The young women are fitted for resuming their position in life, by thorough instruction in household duties, cookery, dressmaking, fine laundry work, &c. &c.

A full description of the work of the Mission, with regulations for admission to the "Anchorage," will be sent on application by letter to Mrs. H. STUART-WORTLEY, Rosslyn House, Grove End Road, N.W. (President of the Ladies' Committee), to whom, or to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, subscriptions may be sent.

SECOND ISSUE OF CAPITAL AT PAR.

THE LAND & HOUSE PROPERTY

CORPORATION, Limited.

Capital £1,000,000, in 200,000 Shares, £5 each.

DIRECTORS.

The Right Hon. the LORD MAYOR (Alderman Henry Edmund Knight), Chairman.
Edwin Fox, Esq. (Fox & Bousfield), 99, Gresham-street, Bank (Director, Grand Junction Water-works).
The Hon. Reginald A. Capel, Little Cassiobury, Watford (Director, Great Northern Railway Company).
Charles Horsley, Esq., C.E., 21 and 22, Wharf-road, City-road, N.
James Carlile McCoan, Esq., M.P., 42, Notting-hill-square, W.
William Alves Raikes, Esq., 12, King's Bench walk, Temple, E.C.
Vincent Biscoe Tritton, Esq., 63, St. George's-square, S.W. (Director, Southwark and Vauxhall Water Company).

DIVIDEND of 5 PER CENT. PAID for PAST YEAR.

The satisfactory results attained by kindred institutions are evidence that the profits will be very considerably increased as the operations of the Corporation extend.

FIRST ISSUE of 20,000 SHARES (£100,000) completed.
SECOND ISSUE of 20,000 SHARES NOW OFFERED at PAR.

Allotments will be made according to priority of Application, and it is not expected that any further Issues will be made, except at a premium.

Payable 10s. on Application, 10s. on Allotment, and balance in calls not exceeding £2 each, at not less than one month's notice.

Forms of Application and copy of last report, &c., at the Company's Bankers, or at their Offices, 28 and 29, Cheapside, E.C.

WILLIAM C. McLEWIN, Secretary.

THE CRIPPLES' HOME

AND

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS,

17A, MARYLEBONE ROAD, N.W.

The Cripple Girls are instructed in Straw work and Bonnet-making, the Sewing Machine, and Dressmaking.

The Industrial Girls are taught Housework, Washing, and Cooking. They wait on the Cripples, and are trained for Domestic Service.

Donations, Subscriptions, and orders for work will be thankfully received at the Home, by the SECRETARY.

Neatly printed on Tinted Paper, suitable for enclosing in Letters. Price 1s. per dozen (post free).

THE WHITE FIELDS OF ENGLAND.

An Entreaty to Communicants.

By REGINALD RADCLIFFE.

"What Christian does not long for the Gospel to spread on the Continent of Europe? And who that reflects can fail to observe that the gross state of our large towns arises very much from their being grossly neglected by us communicants. Their sad state is patent to every observing foreigner whom business brings into the midst of us, and he naturally looks with contempt and abhorrence on what he styles our "Christianity."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Cloth limp, price 1s.

THE HIGHER CHRISTIAN LIFE.

By REV. W. E. BOARDMAN

Author of "Gladness in Jesus."

"A book full of interesting religious incidents, all of which are related for the purpose of stimulating believing souls to higher things."—Literary World.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

BOOKS FOR ENQUIRERS AND CONVERTS.

Young Converts; or, Beginners in Zion's Ways. By Rev. R. BOYD, D.D. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

I have been continually asked by young converts where they could get a book in which they might find advice that would be helpful to them. This book seemed just the thing needed at this time. I have known the author, Rev. Dr. Boyd, for many years as a dear father in Israel. I have read his work carefully, and recommend it to all young Christians for prayerful meditation." D. L. Moody

The Way of Life. A Book for Enquirers. By Rev. ROBERT BOYD, D.D. Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth Boards, 1s.

"About fifteen years ago this little book attracted my notice. I read it with interest, and felt so much profited that I re-read it several times, and then circulated hundreds of copies among the soldiers during the American war. The number that then seemed blessed through reading the book has induced me to ask Messrs. Morgan & Scott to republish it, hoping that it may be the means of good in this country, as it has been in America." D. L. Moody

All About Jesus. Thoughts and Reflections on the Person and Work of Christ. By ALEXANDER DICKSON. This book was printed at the express desire of Mr. D. L. MOODY. Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s. 6d.

"The volume sets forth Jesus very much in Scriptural language, for we have counted over 1340 passages of Holy Writ, chastely and lovingly interwoven in the discourses. Throughout, Jesus is the subject of delightful meditation, affection, and adoration."
The Methodist.

Addresses to Young Men. By Rev. DANIEL BAKER. With preface by D. L. MOODY. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

"These discourses were designed to be of an awakening character. They were preached (in substance) in numerous revivals, and were blessed to the hopeful conversion of many precious souls, of whom some fifty or more have become ministers of the Gospel. May He who was pleased to bless these discourses when they came from the pulpit, bless them also now." AUTHOR'S PREFACE.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE SURGICAL AID SOCIETY.

ESTABLISHED 1862.

President—The Right Hon. the EARL of SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

The Society gives all kinds of surgical appliances to the afflicted poor. Number of appliances given last month, 610; since commencement, 42,100. FUNDS are earnestly SOLICITED to enable the Society to relieve the increasing number of patients. Bankers—Messrs. Barclay, Bevan & Co., 54, Lombard-street. Offices—Salisbury-square, Fleet-street, E.C.

WILLIAM TRESIDDER, Secretary.

ONE PENNY. 12 Copies and Upwards sent Post Free. 7s. per 100.

"The Christian" Almanack

FOR 1883.

WITH SEVEN STRIKING ILLUSTRATIONS.

Grandmother's Bibles.
A Train Delayed by Prayer
Harvest Time.
Little Sermons.
"Little Children Love One Another."
Are you Safe?
Doing Good.

"The Christian" Almanack, in addition to the above illustrations, contains a carefully-selected Text of Scripture for each day in the year, and Descriptive Letterpress for all the Engravings. Also Postal Regulations, Changes of the Moon, &c. &c., and is an attractive Almanack for the Walls of Mission Hall or Cottage.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Attractively bound in White and Gold, price 2s. 6d., post free.

MARRIAGE AND HOME.

A VOLUME OF KINDLY COUNSELS TO THE NEWLY MARRIED.

"A marriage gift, to show the nature of marriage in the Lord, and to help young husbands and wives to live together unto Him in all things. A very neat little book."—British Messenger.

"Full of wise counsel and Christian teaching. There is certainly no better book for a bridal present."—The Freeman.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C. And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

JUST PUBLISHED.

A CHEAP EDITION OF

THE LIFE OF GEORGE WHITEFIELD,

By J. R. ANDREWS.

Price Sixpence. In Cloth (with Portrait), One Shilling.

Superior Edition in large type, for Presentation, cloth, bevelled boards (with Portrait), price 5s.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS; And may be obtained of any Bookseller.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,

BOUND IN MOROCCO.

(Nos. 1 & 2 Combined, containing 441 Hymns).

SUNG BY IRA D. SANKEY.

WORDS ONLY.

		s.	d.
3 C.	Medium Type Edition	2	6
4 D.	Foolscap 8vo. ditto	4	6
4 E.	Extra Large Type ditto	5	6

MUSIC AND WORDS.

5 F.	Old Notation	8	6
6 F.	Ditto, flexible, kid-lined	12	6
4 H.	Ditto (in smaller Type)	5	6
5 H.	Ditto Ditto, flexible, kid-lined	10	6
5 G.	TONIC SOL-FA	8	6

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings E.C. And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

TRACTS

PUBLISHED BY MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, LONDON;

AND MAY BE ORDERED OF ANY BOOKSELLER.

NARRATIVE TRACTS.

By Mr. and Mrs. P. H. GOSSE.

Sixty different sorts. In neat packet, containing 120 Tracts (being two of each kind), 1s. In packet containing 60 Tracts, 6d. Post free from the Publishers, or by order of any Bookseller, 6s. 4d. per 1000.

For Gratuitous Distribution these Tracts are supplied at 5s. per 1000 (exclusive of Carriage) on application direct to the Publishers.

CONTENTS.

1 The Railway Ticket
2 The Sinking Ship
3 John Clarke
4 John Clarke's Wife
5 The Christian Soldier
6 The Eleventh Hour
7 The Young Guardsman of the Alma
8 The Reapers
9 Tom Fowler, the Boatman
10 The Two Maniacs
11 Oh, that Night!
12 A Dollar's worth
13 The Fall of the Rossberg
14 The Faithful Nurse
15 The Portuguese Convert
16 The Suicide
17 The Consumptive Death-bed
18 Is Christ willing?
19 The Towing-net
20 Dying by Proxy
21 College Friends
22 The New Forest
23 The Good Physician
24 The Old Soldier's Widow
25 The Negro Slave
26 The Teacher's Visit
27 The Prodigal
28 The Railway Lamp
29 The Dying Peasant Lad
30 The Power of the Word
31 Pilgrim to St. Patrick's Well
32 The Pass Ticket
33 "This is what I want"
34 The King and the Prince
35 The Stage-coach Companions
36 The Anonymous Letter
37 Thomas Winter's Stray Sheep
38 A Home and a Hearty Welcome
39 The Dying Postman
40 The Two Hospital Patients
41 The Steel Trap
42 The Scattered Tracts
43 The Bad Leg
44 Freedom
45 The Sermon on the Stile
46 What is Believing?
47 The Drunkard's Wife
48 The King's Daughter
49 Fire! Fire!
50 The Cure for Cholera
51 The Drowning Sailor
52 A Happy Family
53 Royal Compassion
54 The Bathing Woman and her Visitor
55 Mary Kelly's Letters
56 The Two Tenants
57 Love
58 "I have no time"
59 The Sceptical Traveller
60 The Prize Fighter

May also be had in a neat volume, price 1s. 6d. (post free.)

TRACTS BY BROWNLOW NORTH.

Well printed in old-faced type, ON TINTED PAPER, 16 different sorts, Packets of 48 for 6d.; or 96 for 1s. Post free from the Publishers, or by order of any Bookseller, 8s. per 1000.

For Gratuitous Distribution these Tracts are supplied at 6s. per 1000 (exclusive of Carriage) on application direct to the Publishers.

FIRST SERIES, Nos. 1 to 16.

1 Cut to the Heart
2 The Two Teachers
3 The Holy Ghost saith "To-day"
4 Infidelity
5 Mystery of the Kingdom
6 The Wayside
7 Stony Ground
8 Good Ground
9 Sown among Thorns
10 Gift of Righteousness
11 The Righteousness of God
12 Complete in Him
13 The End of the Law
14 Trust God
15 God Chose to send Jesus
16 Once too often

TRACTS BY BROWNLOW NORTH.

SECOND SERIES.—Same prices as the First Series.

17 The Cross and the Crown
18 Your Name
19 Christ the Saviour
20 Do you wish to be Saved?
21 The Faithful Saying
22 God is
23 Two Important Questions
24 You are Immorta
25 The Devil's Class
26 Hear, ye Deaf
27 A Question for You
28 Righteousness
29 Turn ye!
30 The Way to God
31 The Last Call
32 Grace and Peace

FAITHFUL RECORDS.

A SERIES OF TWELVE NARRATIVE TRACTS, specially adapted for Sick-room Visitation. In assorted packet, price 1s. (post free).

For Gratuitous Distribution, 500 of these Tracts are supplied for 30s. (exclusive of Carriage), on application direct to the Publishers.

No. 1.
"I am very happy"
The Little Fish-Girl
The Little Preacher
The Answered Prayer

No. 2.
"I remember"
"He does forgive me after all"
The Parish School-Girl
"My Own Text"
The Publican's Son

No. 3.
The Young Mother
The Red Camellia

No. 4.
"Jesus, MY Jesus"
Sowing and Reaping

No.
"I heard him Pray"
The Railway Travellers
The Little Favourite

No. 6.
"I am quite ready"
Little Annie
Light from the Fountain

No. 7.
"How am I to get to Heaven?"
The Christian Sailor's Hymn
"I would, but ye would not"
The Name of Jesus.

No. 8.
"I don't know how to Pray"
The Widow's Trust"
"My Prayer to the Promise shall Cling"
Child-like Faith

No. 9.
The Difficult Question
The Dying Beggar-boy
The Double Death

No 10
"Since I found Jesus
The Unexpected End
Anywhere with Jesus

No. 11.
Songs in Suffering

No. 12.
Christ and the Little Ones
"I am going to die, and I'm afraid to die"
"How happy I shall be!"
"I isn't afraid to die"
"You know Jesus died"

May also be had in an attractive volume, price 1s. 6d. (post free).

PICTURES OF LIFE.

A Series of four-page Illustrated Tracts, suitable either for giving away, or for enclosing in Letters. In many cases the Illustration proves an attraction, and causes acceptance, where an ordinary Tract would be rejected.

In Packets of 48 Tracts, assorted, for 6d.; or in Packets of 96 Tracts, assorted, for 1s. Each Tract has a Full-page Illustration.

For Gratuitous Distribution these Tracts are supplied at 6s. per 1000 (exclusive of Carriage) on application direct to the Publishers.

1 The Crimean Soldier
2 Fathers and Sons
3 Robert of Dundee
4 Mary Singleton
5 The Cricketer
6 A Good Confession
7 The American Planter
8 The Black Nurse

FRIENDLY WORDS ON EVERY-DAY LIFE.

A Series of Narrative Tracts on Every-Day Duties and Every-Day Experiences, including Lessons of Self-Restraint, Self-Denial, and Self-Government.

By Mrs. G. S. Reaney.

Assorted Packet, price 1s.; or 2s. per hundred, either assorted or of any separate tract.

1 Something Between.
2 Emily; or, Two Scenes in a Life.
3 Father's Dinner Beer
4 "Mother says so—so it must be true."
5 "I can't give up my Washing-day Glass."
6 Is warning enough?
7 "When Mother comes Home."
8 "I'm all Astray."

"A packet of these little helpers will be a valuable assistant to every district visitor in town and country."—Social Notes.

THE NEW LARGE-TYPE ILLUSTRATED

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE TRACTS.

By JOHN B. GOUGH. (Selected from the "Orations.")

Price One Shilling per packet of 64 Tracts. 1000 Assorted Tracts will be supplied for 12s. 6d.

1 The Doctor's View.
2 "Lord, keep me!"
3 The Drunkard's Wife.
4 "Drink's my Curse!"
5 The Sinking Ship.
6 The Giddy Height.
7 "The Weed."
8 "They're coming now."
9 "Fools make a Mock at Sin."
10 "The Wedding."
11 Man the Life-boat!"
12 The Light of the Home.
13 True Heroism.
14 "My Boy."
15 "Listen!"
16 "Don't you know?"

"No man has uttered words more burning or more piercing than John B. Gough, and we are glad to see passages from his Orations issued in the form of Tracts. Short and decisive, they appeal directly to the common sense of men, forcing them to think."—Liverpool Argus.

BLACKDOWN TRACTS.

A COLLECTION OF NARRATIVE TRACTS, adapted for general circulation. By GEORGE BREALEY, Evangelist. Admirably adapted for circulation in Villages and Agricultural Districts. Packets of each Series assorted, containing 16 different sorts, 128 Tracts, 1s.; or 64 Tracts, 6d. Post-free from the Publishers, or by order of any Bookseller, 6s. 4d. per 1000.

For Gratuitous Distribution these Tracts are supplied at 5s. per 1000 (exclusive of Carriage) on application direct to the Publishers.

FIRST SERIES, Nos. 1 to 16.

1 The Witch and the King of the Sky
2 What is Faith?
3 "I'm going home to be saved"
4 How John Wood paid his 74 years' debt
5 Swift Judgment
6 "You must die in three days"
7 Letters from the Little Ones, and how they are Saved
8 "I've left it all to Jesus"
9 The Two Purses
10 "I didn't know I was such a Sinner"
11 "Saved in Five Minutes"
12 The Wet Blanket and the Burning House
13 "I pleaded Guilty"
14 "Thank God, I'm saved"
15 "We be afeared"
16 "I can't make it out"

BLACKDOWN TRACTS.

Second Series. Same Prices as the First Series.

17 Wrath Restrained
18 Faith, Trial, and Triumph
19 Victory through the Blood of the Lamb
20 "My Husband's Name"
21 The Prey taken from the Mighty
22 "Sixty for One"
23 I can Dance for Joy now
24 Drawn to Jesus
25 "What I Gained, and What I Lost"
26 Sorrow turned to Joy
27 "Then I must be Lost"
28 "Because I was Invited"
29 The Drowning Child
30 "I'm Ready"
31 The Two Hiding-Places
32 "This Belongs to Me"

"HERALD OF MERCY" TRACTS.

A SERIES OF LEAFLETS, chiefly NARRATIVE, adapted for general circulation.

Selected by the late DUNCAN MATHESON.

First Series, 32 different sorts. Second Series, 32 different sorts. Each Series in Packets of 100 Tracts, 6d.; or of 200 Tracts, 1s., assorted. Carriage free from the Publishers, or by order of any Bookseller, 4s. 6d. per 1000.

For Gratuitous Distribution 3000 of these Tracts may be obtained at the Office of the Publishers for 10s. 6d. (not Carriage free).

FIRST SERIES, Nos. 1 to 32.

1 The Sunken Rock
2 The Stranded Ship
3 "Going—Gone"
4 Quench not the Spirit
5 The Last Dance
6 How is it with you?
7 The Plank will bear
8 The Happy Escape
9 Pleasant Floating
10 Lost in the Church
11 A Mother's Last Word
12 Behind Time
13 Eternity! (poetry)
14 Remember Lot's Wife
15 Drifting
16 A Dreadful Prayer-meeting
17 "Missed it at Last"
18 Worth of the Soul
19 Short and Long
20 Delay of Conversion
21 Where is your Fruit?
22 The First Offer
23 "I cannot feel"
24 "Jesus only"
25 The Eternal Death
26 The Last Night
27 Almost Saved
28 Contrasted Deathbeds
29 The Burning Theatre
30 A Deathbed Scene
31 God's Sabbaths Wasted
32 Quenched Convictions

"HERALD OF MERCY" TRACTS.

SECOND SERIES.—Same Prices as the First Series.

33 Eternity
34 Stranded
35 Last Words of Dying Sinners
36 Delay is Dangerous
37 If not Heaven, what then?
38 Life! Life! Only Life!
39 "I daren't, Sir"
40 No Admittance
41 Profit and Loss
42 The Lost Drummer
43 Seize the Rope!
44 Too Late
45 The Word that Awakened
46 The Half-way Christian
47 Breakers ahead
48 "I lost it"
49 The Sceptic's Dying Child
50 The Judgment-day
51 An Inch of Time
52 Christ Rejected
53 You may be Saved
54 One Word
55 The Fatal Flower
56 "Am I Lost?"
57 Singing in Heaven
58 The Wave-ripple Mark
59 Time and Eternity
60 Afraid to Die
61 What is Conversion?
62 The A B C of the Gospel
63 The Cleansing Blood
64 The Infidel and the Text

A Series of Four-page Tracts, printed in clear, bold type, with an Illustration on the first page. Price 1s. per Packet of 64; 12s. 6d. per thousand, assorted.

ILLUSTRATED HERALD OF MERCY TRACTS.

They are short, earnest, and pointed, and, presenting an attractive appearance, they are not likely to be carelessly thrown aside by the recipient.

1 The Sceptic's Dying Child.
2 The Burning Theatre.
3 The Happy Escape.
4 Stranded.
5 The Lost Drummer.
6 Breakers Ahead!
7 One Word.
8 The Last Night.
9 A Mother's Last Words.
10 Drifting.
11 Almost Saved.
12 Afraid to Die.
13 The Cleansing Blood.
14 Delay is Dangerous.
15 Behind Time.
16 Seize the Rope!

May also be had in an attractive volume, price 6d.

"Full of Gospel truth and incident, which are written so vigorously as to be well fitted to arrest the attention of even the most careless."—Sabbath-School Magazine.

PICTORIAL PAPERS.

A SERIES OF LARGE ILLUSTRATED TRACTS. Each containing Four large pages of interesting and profitable reading, both in Prose and Poetry, calculated to impress the minds of the careless and unawakened. The front page of each Tract is occupied with an attractive and suitable Illustration, 2s. per 100; 18s. 6d. per 1000.

For Gratuitous Distribution, direct from the Publishers, 15s. per 1000.

No. 1 The Eagle's Nest
A Saviour for all
A Swearer alone with God
For me He careth

No. 2 A Light in the Window
"May I tell all?"
"Because I won't let him"
The Healing Touch
Waiting

No 3 The Lame Boy
A Quiet Mind
The Whirlpool
Handwriting upon the Wall
Pardon for Nothing

No. 4 Sunset: A Tale of London Life
Remember Lot's Wife
White as Snow
Victory

No. 5 The Loss of "The London"
The Murderer and the Mother

No. 6 The Children's Prayer
The Wrong Way, The Right Way
Why does not Father pray?

No. 7 The Alpine Pass
"I don't want it there, Father"
Faith in Man and Christ

No 8 The Druid's Last Sacrifice
The Healing Touch
The Infidel's Sheep

ILLUSTRATED TRACTS.

Each Tract containing 16 pages, with Illustration. In assorted Packet, with neat wrapper, price 1s. (post-free). These will be found a very useful Series either as Loan Tracts, or for giving away.

For Gratuitous Distribution 500 of these Tracts are supplied for 30s. (exclusive of Carriage) on application direct to the Publishers.

1 Old Hunt, the Black Nurse
2 Jane Arnold; or, The Power of Kindness
3 Nelly Scott, the Orphan Child
4 John Bryant; or, The Stag Hunt
5 The Stolen Purse. By E. Brook
6 Ruth's Christmas; or, What a Girl can do
7 The Two Dreams; or, The Lost One Found
8 "No Remedy!" A Convict Woman's Account of her Conversion
9 The Book of the Dying
10 Mary's Hair: The Story of the Blacksmith's Daughter
11 Joseph Round, the Miner
12 The Three Saved Ones

(Continued from page 3.)

MRS. GRIMKÈ'S TEXT CARDS.

A MISSION TO MANY LANDS.

New varieties suited for the Season at 3s., 2s. 6d., 2s., and 1s. 6d. the 100. Also photographs, lithographs, quilt texts, &c. Nos. 1 and 2, Lighthouse Tracts, 4s. per 100. For list send stamped envelope to Prestwich, Manchester.

Twelfth Edition, Post-free, 1s.

DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c., 5, Bulstrode-street, Cavendish-square, London.
London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

BIRTHDAY VERSES (Sacred).—By Mrs. DANIEL TOMKINS. Eight different Cards, beautifully illustrated with Wild Flowers. Price 1s. 1d.—Mrs. TOMKINS, Great Yarmouth. Publishers, Messrs. BOLLANS, Castle-court, Bridestreet, London.

Terms for Advertisements IN "The Christian" (PREPAID.)

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding 30 Words	3	0
,, 39 ,, ...	3	9
,, 48 ,, ...	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under. the address being in all cases charged for.
Scale for larger Advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.
To prevent disappointment, it is necessary to say that in no case must Letters be addressed to a Post-office, unless permission be previously obtained at such Post-office.
The Publishers cannot undertake to receive and forward Replies to Advertisements.
☞ In order to secure insertion of Advertisements in the following number of THE CHRISTIAN they should reach this office on or before Friday, and at the latest by Saturday Morning after post.

Bagster's Bibles

IN FRENCH MOROCCO CIRCUIT. ELASTIC BAND. Facsimile, Maps, References, Help 4/-

Now Ready, Four Pages 4to., price 2s. per 100; 18s. 6d. per 1,000.

A NEW YEAR'S GIFT FOR 1883.

A Collection of Gospel Invitations, Tender Warnings, and Earnest Exhortations, in Prose and Poetry.

STRIKINGLY ILLUSTRATED.

CONTENTS.

WHAT ARE YOU GOOD FOR? A Question for the New Year. (Will full-page Illustration.)
A NEW YEAR'S HYMN.
REST ON THE SABBATH.
CALL ON CHRIST.
COME. (Poetry.)
THE KNOWLEDGE OF GOD.
CARVING A NAME. (Illustrated.)

The "NEW YEAR'S GIFT" is issued for the purpose of enabling Christians to send their unconverted friends and acquaintances a few loving words appropriate to the season, by which they may see their sad condition, and turn to Him who alone is able to pardon and cleanse. The present issue bears an attractive appearance, and it is hoped that, with the Divine blessing, many may be led, through its short, pointed appeals, to surrender their hearts to Christ.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Handsomely Bound. Price One Shilling.

The Herald of Mercy

VOLUME FOR 1882.

Profusely Illustrated.

The Yearly Volume of the "Herald of Mercy" is a rich storehouse of stirring Narratives, Sketches of Real Life, Solemn Warnings, Tender Invitations, Poetry, &c.; and, being bound in a neat and attractive cover, will be found a suitable book either for lending or giving away. "THE CHILDREN'S PAGE" forms a feature of this year's volume: twelve pages are devoted to short stories and poems specially adapted to youthful minds.

"Contains many simple and touching evangelistic papers, largely illustrated by anecdotes."—The Friend.

"This is one of the most attractive as well as affective magazines of a purely evangelistic nature we have ever seen. The fulness of God's mercy, the blessedness of accepting and the danger of rejecting it, are most strikingly set forth by narrative, appeal, illustration, and poetry. The pictures are admirable."—Wesleyan Methodist Magazine.

"We know of nothing better for a Sunday-school reward or present to cottagers. Rich and poor alike may read it with profit."—United Methodist Free Churches Magazine

"The yearly volume contains much excellent reading, well calculated to call attention to the most important of all topics."—The Rock.

"Really a valuable collection of interesting and instructive matter, well calculated to be widely useful."—Good Templars' Watchword.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d. post-free WITH SEVEN ILLUSTRATIONS.

JOE WITLESS.

A BOOK FOR BOYS.

By E. B. HUNTER.

"A capital book, especially for young people. It is replete with Christian truth and experience, and cannot fail to do good."—Baptist Messenger.

"We can cordially recommend it as calculated to arrest the attention and impress the conscience of the most daring and thoughtless of our youth."—Sword and Trowel.

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE COTTAGE ON THE ROCK.

AN ALLEGORY.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

"Cradled in prayer, and mourning only for the feebleness and imperfect utterance of the glorious truths so faintly apprehended, I cast this little waymark of my pilgrimage into the hands of Him whose faithfulness I have to this day proved."—EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Handsome Gift Books.

THE LARGE-TYPE QUARTO EDITION OF

Sacred Songs and Solos.

Enlarged Edition, 271 Pieces. Music and Words. Specially prepared for use at the Organ, Piano, or Harmonium. Cloth Elegant, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 10s. 6d.; handsomely bound in Morocco, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 17s. 6d.

"This beautiful edition of old favourites is a splendid specimen of music typography. A capital arrangement for piano or organ. We wish it wide circulation."—Pennel.

"The typography, paper, &c., is everything that can be wished."—Methodist New Connexion Magazine.

Foxe's Book of Martyrs.

A Complete and Authentic Account of the Lives, Sufferings, and Triumphant Deaths of Primitive and Protestant Martyrs in all parts of the World. With Illustrations. Complete, handsomely bound in cloth, 10s. 6d.

At a time like the present, when, in Great Britain, Popery, and its evil progeny Ritualism, are both insidiously and openly seeking to gain the supremacy, it is necessary to the well-being of our country that the story of FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS should be regarded as an essential part of the education of our children. The issue of the present edition, at a low price, and in the convenient form of MONTHLY PARTS (16 parts at 6d. each), places this valued book within the reach of almost everyone.

Cruden's Concordance to the Old and New

TESTAMENTS. Handsomely bound in cloth, price 7s. 6d. Popular Edition, cloth, 5s.

THE SPECIAL FEATURE in this Edition is the NEW TRANSLATION, Revision, and Extension of the PROPER NAMES of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENTS, with their Meanings in the Original Languages. By Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A., Author of "The Proper Names of the Old Testament Scriptures, Expounded and Illustrated."

For nearly a century and a half CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE has held its place in public estimation. No minister's study has been deemed to be properly furnished without possessing a copy of this treasured book.

Searching the Scriptures in Order to ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also, Suggestions for Bible Reading and Study, and a PLAN for CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING. By Dr. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S., London. Cloth, bevelled boards, price 3s. 6d.

"It is impossible to speak too highly of this volume, which is the result of immense labour and consecrated talent. To the Bible Student, the Sunday-school Teacher, or Local Preacher, its aid is indispensable, for it is the most able condensation of larger and numerous works, which places it within the reach of all who aspire to become mighty in the Scriptures, and always ready to give a reason for the hope which is in them."—Christian Age.

John, whom Jesus Loved.

Sketch of the Character, Writings, Theology, and Influence of the Beloved Disciple. New and Enlarged Edition. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. With Chromo-Lithographic Views of the "Sea of Galilee" and the "Isle of Patmos." Cloth, bevelled boards, 3s. 6d.

"This is not a book to be taken up lightly, read hurriedly, and carelessly dismissed. It merits, and will reward, a quiet, thoughtful perusal."—The Record.

"Thy First Love."

Christ's Message to Ephesus. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. With Chromo-Lithographic Frontispiece. Cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"A clear and thoughtful exposition. Dr. Culross writes in an easy, interesting manner; sometimes quaintly, always pointedly. Many a laggard in the heavenly race would be stirred to activity by reading Dr. Culross' exposition."—Pennel.

"Behold, I stand at the Door, and Knock."

Christ's Message to Laodicea. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. Tinted covers, 1s. cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"A most opportune book. Would that every professing Christian would thoughtfully and prayerfully peruse it. Sunday-school teachers also would find it immensely stimulating and reviving."—Hive.

Notes for Bible Readings.

A Collection of over Six Hundred Subjects, carefully compiled and arranged. Suitable for Bible Readings, Cottage Lectures, Sermons, Addresses, Sabbath-school Lessons, &c. Cloth, bevelled boards, 3s. 6d. A cheap edition may also be had in tinted cover, 2s. 6d.

"This is a book which every Bible student should possess. It will be of special value to the class-teacher, and an assistance also to the preacher. It brings together an immense number of subjects, with groupings of Scripture texts on each. It supplies valuable matter for private meditation; and those who conduct Bible readings will find it most suggestive."—Christian Progress.

Christ Lifted Up.

By Rev. ROBERT GILCHRIST. Handsomely bound in cloth, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.

"Mr. Gilchrist preaches a full Gospel. The fulness of Christ for every need of fallen humanity is set forth in a clear and convincing and attractive manner."—Christian World.

"Old-fashioned divinity presented in a pleasing form. May its readers be many."—Sword and Trowel.

The Gospel according to Moses:

as seen in the Tabernacle and its Various Services. By Rev. GEORGE RODGERS. Frontispiece. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s.

"No young Christian, and especially no preacher, should be ignorant of the truth which this small volume very simply but very forcibly enunciates."—The Record.

LONDON:
MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

CONSUMPTION

AND ALL OTHER

CHEST DISEASES.

MR. G. T. CONGREVE'S NEW WORK.

POST FREE SIXPENCE, or LARGE EDITION, 1s. (Post Free 1s. 3d.), from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, PATERNOSTER ROW; or from the AUTHOR, COOMBE LODGE, PECKHAM, S.E.

THE Editor of the Christian Age says:—"THIS MARVELLOUS WORK touches the sympathies of human hearts everywhere." "Here is hope for the despairing."

ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES ARE GIVEN IN THE BOOK.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"

WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will select ONE (at least) recent case, not published before, for publication in this Journal every week.

Case for this Week.

EXTRACT from LETTER of Mr. J. BALMER, 15, Jane Street, DARLINGTON.

"I write on behalf of a friend, Mr. F——, suffering from consumption, who is unable to procure your medicine at the regular price" (in answer to this I reduced the charge, according to paragraph in the APPENDIX at close of my book).

Mr. Balmer goes on to say, "Your valuable medicine did me wonderful good; for, under the blessing of God, it restored me to health, after being pronounced to be in deep consumption."

NOTICE.—The times for personal Consultation at Coombe Lodge, are TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY MORNINGS ONLY (Country patients had better select one of the two former days.) Mr. Congreve's son-in-law, J. Alex. Brown, M.R.C.S., L.S.A., is now associated with him.

Songs of The Gospel.

Edited and Composed by JAMES McGRANAHAN.

A Selection of choice stirring Hymns, with attractive Tunes, the majority being the Compositions of Mr. McGRANAHAN, and now first collected.

EDITIONS AND PRICES.—Music and Words: Old Notation—Paper Covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d. Sol-fa—Paper Covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d. Book of Words: Paper Covers, 1d.; Printed Cloth, 2d.

Specimen Copy on receipt of price.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller

"LIFTED UP." The Life of Walter Douglas. With Frontispiece. Paper covers. Price 6d. Cloth, 1s.

"In its perusal we were cheered and delighted, for here are records of the marvels of grace."—Latter Rain.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

BRYANT & MAY'S MATCHES.

EPPS'S (BREAKFAST) COCOA.

GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.

JAMES EPPS AND CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.

FRANCIS MURPHY.

PRICE ONE PENNY. 100 Copies for 7s. 6d.

For Gratuitous Circulation, £3 per 1000.

Francis Murphy:

Founder of the Blue Ribbon Movement in America,

A SKETCH OF HIS LIFE AND WORK

(With Portrait).

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Price 1s. per 100 (post free, 1s. 2d.). 6s. per 1000.

THE "MURPHY" PLEDGE CARD.

As used by Mr. FRANCIS MURPHY, and his Son, Mr. T. E. MURPHY, at their Gospel Temperance Meetings.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Gospel Temperance Songs

AND

BLUE RIBBON HYMNS.

REVISED AND ENLARGED.

USED BY

MR. FRANCIS MURPHY, AND HIS SON, MR. T. E. MURPHY,

AT THEIR

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE AND BLUE RIBBON MEETINGS.

Very many of these Hymns and Tunes are ORIGINAL, and have not hitherto been known in this country. Both Words and Music will be found most suitable for use in Temperance work.

BOOK OF WORDS, One Penny. CLOTH, Twopence. TUNE BOOKS, Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Toned Paper, Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Sample Copy of Words sent free on application. Sample Copy of Music sent free for 1s.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

Fry's Cocoa Extract

Guaranteed Pure.

"If properly prepared, there is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.

"Strictly pure, and well-manufactured."—W. W. Stoddart

"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin.

SIXTEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED.

Third Edition. Post-free, Twelve Stamps.

SKIN DISEASES.

A Practical TREATISE explaining the Causes, TREATMENT and CURE of these Diseases; with directions for Diet and Baths. These Essays describe fully all the various forms of Skin Disease. By S. BERRY NIBLETT, Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians. Published by Mr. Williams, 10, Oxford Terrace, Hyde Park, London.

IMPORTANT REDUCTION IN PRICE.

TONGA FOR NEURALGIA.

"Invaluable in facial Neuralgia. Has proved effective in all those cases in which we have prescribed it."—Medical Press.

"Tonga maintains its reputation in the treatment of Neuralgia."—Lancet.

Tonga is now sold at 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. Of all Chemists, and of

ALLEN & HANBURYS, Plough Court, Lombard St., London.

The HERALD of MERCY.

An Illustrated Messenger for Humble Homes.

ORIGINATED BY THE LATE DUNCAN MATHESON.

Twenty-fourth Year of Publication.

NEW AND IMPROVED SERIES OF

The Herald of Mercy consisting of Eight Quarto Pages, issued Monthly, commencing with January, 1883,

PRICE ONE HALFPENNY.

Each Number contains a

FULL PAGE ILLUSTRATION,

and several smaller Engravings.

The pages of The Herald of Mercy are devoted to Articles and Poems which present the Gospel in an attractive manner, the burden of each number being the glorious truth proclaimed by Christ in John iii. 16:—"FOR GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD, THAT HE GAVE HIS ONLY-BEGOTTEN SON, THAT WHOSOEVER BELIEVETH IN HIM SHOULD NOT PERISH, BUT HAVE EVERLASTING LIFE."

The Herald of Mercy

CONTAINS

Stirring Narratives,
Pointed Appeals,
Earnest Exhortations,
Tender Warnings, &c., &c.,

both in Prose and Poetry, written expressly for the unconverted.

Each number contains a page

FOR THE YOUNG,

which consists of short Articles and interesting Anecdotes in simple language, with at least one Engraving.

TO TRACT DISTRIBUTORS.

Tract Distributors and District Visitors will find The Herald of Mercy very acceptable and attractive, both to young and old, and many who would refuse an ordinary tract gladly take this paper. It is printed in a good clear type, so as to be easily read, and is suitable alike for House-to-House Visitation; for a Loan Tract; for giving away; for circulation in Hospitals, Infirmaries, and Workhouses; for distributing to Soldiers in Barracks, Sailors in Port, Agricultural Labourers, Mechanics, Factory Workers, and others; and, in fact, for circulation in any and all the channels for which Tracts are usually required.

☞ The matter is so arranged that each number may be cut up into two 4-page or four 2-page Illustrated Tracts.

The Herald of Mercy

will be forwarded to any address in Great Britain, or to any country in the Postal Union, i.e., U.S.A., Canada, France, Spain, Italy, &c., as follows:—

8 copies monthly, for		4s.	a year,	post free.
12	"	" 6s.	"	"
24	"	" 12s.	"	"
36	"	" 18s.	"	"
48	"	" 24s.	"	"
60	"	" 30s.	"	"
72	"	" 36s.	"	"
84	"	" 42s.	"	"
96	"	" 48s.	"	"

A Specimen Copy sent Gratis on application.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

"The Christian" will be sent by the Publishers post-free to any address in the United Kingdom, for 13 months, for 6s. 10d., including Double Numbers.

"The Christian" (weekly) and the HERALD OF MERCY (monthly) will be sent to the United States or Canada, for 13 months for $2, which may be remitted by a Two-Dollar Bill

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 679.] THURSDAY, FERBUARY 1, 1883. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

CONTENTS.

Preachers and People 5	A Message from over the Sea 9	Notes and Comments 12	The French in Soho 18
The Churches in Relation to Evangelistic Work 6	Poetry—Retirement 9	East-End Factory Girls 13	Revival in Philippopolis 19
Co-Operation, not Competition 7	The Salvation Army 9	Missionary Conference in India.....14	Sowing Beside all Waters 19
A Working Church 7	Prayer and Work for Missions 10	Convention on Public Morals 16	Letters to the Editor 19
For the Young 8	A Conference with "Freethinkers" 11	Poetry—Grace Sufficient 17	Notices 20
Gospel Temperance Work 8	Chicago Boys 11	Eyes to the Blind.....17	Forthcoming Meetings 20
	A Refuge in Paris 11	Evangelistic Notes 18	Donation List 20

Mr. & Mrs. H. GRATTAN GUINNESS

Will be glad to welcome friends of Foreign Missions at a

Praise Meeting and Farewell Service,

TO BE HELD AT THE

EAST LONDON MISSION INSTITUTE,

HARLEY HOUSE, BOW, E.,

ON

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 5TH, 1883,

To take leave of, and commend to God in prayer, several Missionaries about to sail for COLORADO, BUENOS AYRES, the CONGO RIVER, and NATAL.

Doors open at 4.30. Praise Meeting at 5. Tea and Coffee at 6. Evening Meeting at 7, closing before 9.

All Christian friends welcome. Tickets may be had (free) on application to Mrs. GRATTAN GUINNESS, as above.

THE SURGICAL AID SOCIETY.

ESTABLISHED 1862.

President—The Right Hon. the EARL of SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

The Society gives all kinds of surgical appliances to the afflicted poor. Number of appliances given last month, 610; since commencement, 42,100. FUNDS are earnestly SOLICITED to enable the Society to relieve the increasing number of patients. Bankers—Messrs. Barclay, Bevan & Co., 54, Lombard-street. Offices—Salisbury-square, Fleet-street, E.C.

WILLIAM TRESIDDER, Secretary.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "OH TO BE NOTHING!"

Lays of Lowly Service.

By GEORGIANA M. TAYLOR.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. Handsomely bound in Morocco, gilt edges, 4s. 6d.

Extract from a Letter by the late

MISS FRANCES RIDLEY HAVERGAL.

"Your Hymns have a special ministry of their own. I would decidedly advise your letting them be published (and this is not what I say to many!). . . . . Of the verses I have just been reading, I can say, the thought is sweet, the form is fresh, and the versification is good. As to 'For Jesus' Sake,' it is second only to 'Oh to be nothing!' I am delighted with it."

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Just Published. A Cheap Edition of

THE LIFE OF GEORGE WHITEFIELD,

By J. R. ANDREWS.

Price Sixpence. In Cloth (with Portrait), One Shilling.

Superior Edition in large type, for Presentation, cloth, bevelled boards (with Portrait), price 5s.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

A SELECTION

OF

Morgan & Scott's Publications.

Foxe's Book of Martyrs. A Complete and Authentic Account of the Lives, Sufferings, and Triumphant Deaths of Primitive and Protestant Martyrs in all parts of the World. With Illustrations. Complete, handsomely bound in cloth, 10s. 6d.

At a time like the present, when, in Great Britain, Popery, and its evil progeny Ritualism, are both insidiously and openly seeking to gain the supremacy, it is necessary to the well-being of our country that the story of FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS should be regarded as an essential part of the education of our children. The issue of the present edition, at a low price, and in the convenient form of MONTHLY PARTS (16 parts at 6d. each), places this valued book within the reach of almost everyone.

Cruden's Concordance to the Old and New TESTAMENTS. Handsomely bound in cloth, price 7s. 6d. Popular Edition, cloth, 5s.

THE SPECIAL FEATURE in this Edition is the NEW TRANSLATION, Revision, and Extension of the PROPER NAMES of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENTS, with their Meanings in the Original Languages. By Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A., Author of "The Proper Names of the Old Testament Scriptures, Expounded and Illustrated."

For nearly a century and a half CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE has held its place in public estimation. No minister's study has been deemed to be properly furnished without possessing a copy of this treasured book.

Searching the Scriptures in Order to ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also, Suggestions for Bible Reading and Study, and a PLAN for CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING. By Dr. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S., London. Cloth, bevelled boards, price 3s. 6d.

"It is impossible to speak too highly of this volume, which is the result of immense labour and consecrated talent. To the Bible Student, the Sunday-school Teacher, or Local Preacher, its aid is indispensable, for it is the most able condensation of larger and numerous works, which places it within the reach of all who aspire to become mighty in the Scriptures, and always ready to give a reason for the hope which is in them."—Christian Age.

John, whom Jesus Loved. Sketch of the Character, Writings, Theology, and Influence of the Beloved Disciple. New and Enlarged Edition. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. With Chromo-Lithographic Views of the "Sea of Galilee" and the "Isle of Patmos." Cloth, bevelled boards, 3s. 6d.

"This is not a book to be taken up lightly, read hurriedly, and carelessly dismissed. It merits, and will reward, a quiet, thoughtful perusal."—The Record.

"Thy First Love." Christ's Message to Ephesus. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. With Chromo-Lithographic Frontispiece. Cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"A clear and thoughtful exposition. Dr. Culross writes in an easy, interesting manner; sometimes quaintly, always pointedly. Many a laggard in the heavenly race would be stirred to activity by reading Dr. Culross' exposition."—Penuel.

"Behold, I stand at the Door, and Knock." Christ's Message to Laodicea. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. Tinted covers, 1s. cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"A most opportune book. Would that every professing Christian would thoughtfully and prayerfully peruse it. Sunday-school teachers also would find it immensely stimulating and reviving."—Hive.

Notes for Bible Readings. A Collection of over Six Hundred Subjects, carefully compiled and arranged. Suitable for Bible Readings, Cottage Lectures, Sermons, Addresses, Sabbath-school Lessons, &c. Cloth, bevelled boards, 3s. 6d. A cheap edition may also be had in tinted cover, 2s. 6d.

"This is a book which every Bible student should possess. It will be of special value to the class-teacher, and an assistance also to the preacher. It brings together an immense number of subjects, with groupings of Scripture texts on each. It supplies valuable matter for private meditation; and those who conduct Bible readings will find it most suggestive."—Christian Progress.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Institutions.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving from A Friend at Anerley, £1; M. A., 2s. 6d.; Anonymous, 4s.

The Infant Nursery. Week-day and Sunday Schools. Toy Classes. Rations of food and clothing supplied to destitute Children. Mutual Industrial Classes for Lads. Work amongst Elder Girls and Young Women. Services in the Common Lodging Houses. Gospel Temperance Work. Mission to Inebriate Women. Children's Services. Sewing Classes for Destitute Women. Evangelistic Services. Room to room visitation and other Agencies.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

DE BREEDE EN DE SMALLE WEG.—A descriptive Lecture, entitled, "The Broad and the Narrow Way," illustrated by a copy of a curious Dutch Picture (size, 9 ft. by 12), will be delivered by GAWIN KIRKHAM, Secretary of the Open Air Mission, as under:—Monday, Feb. 12, Hertford; Tuesday, Feb. 13, Clavering, Herts; Thursday, Feb. 15, Rochester Institution, Walworth-road; Monday, Feb. 19, St. Benet's, Mile-End-road; Tuesday, Feb. 20, King-Edward-street, Mile-End New Town; Feb. 26, Field-lane Ragged Schools; March 26 to 29, Birmingham. Copies of the Picture, 6d. and 1s each, may be had, also the Explanation, 1d.—Open Air Mission Office, 14, Duke-street, Adelphi, London, W.C.

PRINTING.

THE BOYS' HOME,

55, Southwark-street, Southwark, S.E.

Mr. FEGAN desires to announce that the Printing Plant which has been removed from Deptford, has been set up in more commodious premises here, and is now in full working order.

With efficient machinery, a good assortment of type, skilled master tradesmen and increased facilities for working, orders can now be executed with despatch, and will give satisfaction both in quality of workmanship and materials as well as in price.

Invoices, Statements, Memo forms, &c. Circulars, Handbills, Posters, and all kinds of Commercial Printing. Reports, Pamphlets, Tracts, &c. For estimates, &c., apply to The Governor, The Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E.

PREVALENT INFIDELITY.—The wide spread of doubt and disbelief calls for energetic action. The reasons for assured belief in the fundamental truths of Christianity should be re-affirmed, as consonant with modern research and culture. The errors and tendencies of atheism and agnosticism should be exposed. It is the sole and special function of the Christian Evidence Society to carry on this work. It is undenominational in its constitution and action. Considerable funds are very urgently needed at the present moment. Appeal is confidently made to all earnest Christians to aid in the maintenance of Christian truth for the conviction and conversion of those that are going astray. Contributions may be sent to, and information respecting lectures, sermons, personal interviews, classes, and literature, may be obtained from the Secretary, 13, Buckingham-street, Strand, W.C.

MISSION WORK IN CENTRAL LONDON. — "Martyrs' Memorial Church" Missions for the parish of St. Peter's, Clerkenwell. (Population, 8755.)

1. Northampton Mission, under a Curate.
2. Compton Mission, under a Lay Reader.
3. Ashby Mission, under a Scripture Reader.
4. Spencer Mission, under an Evening Reader.

The whole under the Vicar, the Rev. B. Oswald Sharp (St. Peter's Vicarage, Ashby-street, E.C.), and 12 laymen as Council.

House to house visitation, Bible and Tract distribution, Open-air Preaching services, Schools, classes, and lectures.

"I shall be happy to give my name to your appeal, and enclose a Post Office Order."—Yours faithfully, SHAFTESBURY.

Treasurer, J. D. Allcroft, Esq. Bankers, Barclay, Bevan & Co. Donations received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

A SALE OF WORK will be held this spring, in the Albert Hall, for Miss M. L. Whately's Schools and Biblewoman in Cairo Contributions of work, &c. will be thankfully received by Mrs. WHATELY, 21, Belmont-park, Lee, S.E. They should not be sent later than Wednesday, April 11th.

SEASIDE CONVALESCENT HOME.—Warmly recommended to readers of The Christian. Protestant and Evangelical. Open all the year. Sunny situation. Food excellent. Funds needed.—For terms, &c., address, Rev. E. FORBES, Christ Church, Clevedon.

GREAT COLEMAN'S, near Ongar, is now opened by Dr. and Mrs. S. C. GRIFFITH to give change of air and rest to educated people of limited means. For particulars, apply to 45, Finsbury-square, E.C.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for contributions in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest gifts in money and clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee. Gentlemen's cast-off garments are much needed, especially trousers.

MRS. WILKES proposes to be at home every Wednesday from Two till Five o'clock, for the purpose of seeing friends of Rescue Work. Trains from Liverpool-street to St. James-street Station, Walthamstow, every half-hour. "The Elms" is within five minutes' walk of the station. The Elms, Coppermill-lane, Walthamstow, Essex.

CHERTSEY HOUSE,

EARLSWOOD ROAD, REDHILL, SURREY.

MISS SHRIMPTON & MISS M. BUTLER GERDS

Receive a limited number of Young Ladies to Board and Educate. The system and subjects of teaching pursued have strict reference to the individual capacities of Pupils. Loving care and training, with careful regard to the spiritual and moral well-being, are made special features in the instruction imparted to Pupils in every department of study.

FEES PER TERM.—Resident Pupils (English and Music, French, and best home comforts), £12 12s. Weekly Board and Tuition, £10 10s. References kindly permitted to the Parents of past and present Pupils. Further particulars on application.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS are received at the HOUSE OF REST, Kilburn, and the Seaside Branch, Easthourne. Also, Missionaries from abroad. All must be well accredited.—Miss MASON, 7 and 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W.

HOME FOR DESTITUTE LITTLE GIRLS, The Dale, Upperton-road, Eastbourne, Sussex (late of Plaistow).—Contributions received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT; or Miss LEE, at the above address.

Educational.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,

WELLINGTON, SALOP.

Principal—Dr. CRANAGE, M.A.

Vice-Principal—Robert Weston, Esq., T.C.D. Head Master—T. Woodcock, Esq., 23rd Wrangler, late Scholar and Exhibitioner, Christ's College, Cambridge; Second Master—H. May, Esq., B.A., late Scholar of Brasenose College, Oxford; Modern Language Master — Mons. Rieunier, Graduate of the University of France; Music and Drawing Master—E. D. Griggs, Esq. Shorthand Teacher—T. Nicholls, Esq.; Secretary —A. Ash, Esq.

THE WOODLANDS, Hitchin, Herts, —Select Boarding School for Boys. For prospectus apply to the Principal, ISAAC SHARP, B.A., a member of the Society of Friends. Careful personal training. Efficient staff of masters. Excellent recreation grounds.

BLACKHEATH.

ELIOT PARK SCHOOL.

Principal—EDWARD G. ELLIS.

A sound and thorough Education on Christian principles. SUBJECTS:—Classics, Languages, Mathematics, English, Science, Book-keeping, &c. Number of boarders, 12. Eminent success. Position highly recommended by medical men.

References permitted to

Rev. J. T. WIGNER .....Brockley, S.E.,
Dr. MCKILLIAM .....Blackheath,
Dr. GAGE-BROWN .....Sloane-street, W.,
W. B. FISHER, Esq. .....Greenwich,
J. W. C. FEGAN, Esq. ....Southwark, S.E.,
and other Parents and Guardians.

The next term commences (D.V.) January 19.

BACKWARD YOUTHS do best under private tuition. In schools these are usually left to inexperienced assistants. MR. WILLIAM PENN devotes his PERSONAL ATTENTION to such pupils, of whom he receives four or five as Boarders. Candidates are prepared for all PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS. Reference permitted to Dr. BARNARDO, MRS. PENNEFATHER, and others. Studies recommenced Sept. 22nd.—Apply, 52, Clapton-common, London, E.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for little Boys, near Brighton.—Locality healthy. Home comforts. Christian training. Special attention to delicate, backward boys. Separate beds. Visiting masters. Twenty guineas.—LADY PRINCIPAL, Hamilton Lodge, Hurstpierpoint, Sussex.

MONKTON COMBE SCHOOL, near Bath.—Pupils prepared chiefly for Oxford and Cambridge. Reference to Lord Radstock, and many other parents and guardians whose sons are at the School.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for Young Gentlemen (Established 14 years), 2, Woodside-villas, Victoria-road, Gipsy-hill. Principal, Miss SMITH, assisted by certificated governesses and visiting professors. Pestalozzian Classes. Special arrangements for pupils whose parents are abroad. References to clergymen, medical men, Indian officers, and parents of other pupils. Term commences January 23rd.

HIGH-CLASS GIRLS' SCHOOL.—Principal, Miss BASTIN, Glebe-place, Stoke Newington. Efficient Masters and Governesses. Limited number of boarders. Watchful care and home comforts. Pupils prepared for Cambridge Local Examinations. One or two pupils can be received on reduced terms to fill vacancies. Referees—Rev. GORDON CALTHROP, 3, Highbury Grange, N.; Rev. WILLIAM SPENSLEY, 20, Lordship-park, Stoke Newington, N.

BRIGHTON KINDERGARTEN and Educational Home, for children from three to twelve years of age. Thorough preparatory education, combined with Christian training and motherly care.

PRINCIPAL, Dover House, Clifton-hill, Brighton.

MILTON HOUSE SCHOOL for Young Ladies, Plympton (near Plymouth), South Devon.—Limited number received. Home comforts. Advantages for French. References to parents of pupils.

SCHOOL near the sea-side, for the Board and Education of little Girls, conducted by Mrs. and Miss SNOW. Comfortable home, combined with Christian training. Terms moderate. Good references.—Stoke Fleming, Dartmouth, South Devon.

A LONDON VICAR most strongly recommends to parents, seeking wise and intelligent training for their Daughters, a Lady of highest attainments, Christian culture, and experience, in a salubrious seaside spot.—Referee, Rev. J. KIRKMAN, St. Stephen's, Hampstead, N.W.

LADIES' SCHOOL, Oak-Gate House, Taunton.—Miss CLARK, assisted by efficient teachers, receives a limited number of Young Ladies, for instruction in the usual branches of a sound and useful education. While devoting her best attention to the mental improvement of her pupils, Miss CLARK desires to secure to them, as far as possible, the comforts and advantages of a Christian home, and to train them with a view to the efficient discharge of the duties of life. Terms moderate and inclusive. For prospectus, address as above. The next Term will commence on Monday, January 22.

FIRST-CLASS FINISHING SCHOOL for the daughters of gentlemen. Strongly recommended by parents of present and former pupils. Efficient staff of masters and governesses. Music and harmony by an eminent London musician. Careful training and refined home. Prospectus on application to PRINCIPAL, Branston Lodge, Waverley-road, Southsea.

MISS PALMER, assisted by excellent governesses and masters, successfully prepares girls for Cambridge Local and Dulwich High School examinations. Specially suited for children whose parents are abroad. Home comforts. Healthy situation. Careful training. Term begins 24th January. References to parents of pupils.—Fernside, 17, New Rosendale-road, West Dulwich, near London.

DEAF CHILDREN.—Home and thorough education on the pure oral method. —For full particulars address J BARBER, Ingleficld, Christchurch-road, Brondesbury, N.W.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — Thorough individual coaching for Public Schools, Universities, Sandhurst, &c., with a Graduate of London University, of several years' experience. HERMANN G. HARRIS, B.A., 7, Claremont-crescent.

VILLA ST. ROCH, Lausanne, Switzerland.—Ladies' Boarding School.—Special facilities for learning French and German. Fine healthy site. Large garden. Advantageous terms.—References and prospectuses of R. ALLSOP, Esq., 7, Drapers'-gardens, Throgmorton-street, London; or of PRINCIPAL Escort in April.

BARONESS CELLI, many years Secretary of the Société Protestante, Monmouth-road, Bayswater, recommends efficient English and Foreign daily and resident Governesses and Gentlemen Professors of Languages.—19, Kennet-road, W. Corresponding with Pasteurs, she obtains reliable servants from abroad

A GERMAN FINISHING GOVERNESS, good musician and linguist, with excellent references, desires to find a re-engagement in a Christian family.—Fraulein P——N, 16, Wyndham-place, Bryanston-square, W.

AS GOVERNESS (family or school). —A Young Lady. Age 19. English, French, and music. Good references. (Meeting with "Brethren.")—MER, Morley, Music Seller, High-road, Lee, Kent, S.E.

AS GOVERNESS. — Required, a position in a Christian family or school, in or near London. Good singing, music, French, elementary Latin, and Greek. Good references. G. BODGER, Post-office, Wanstead, Essex.

NURSERY GOVERNESS (French). —Speaks, reads, and writes French and German well. Patient, and has excellent manners. True Christian. Good plain needlewoman. Too delicate for carrying children, or much walking. Reference,

Lady TANKERVILLE, The Whim, Weybridge.

A YOUNG LADY, 18, seeks an engagement in private family or school. Thorough English, music, French, drawing, German, and Latin. Highest references.

MADCHEN, 23, Wellington-park, Clifton.

A RE-ENGAGEMENT (afternoon) required by a young Lady (late pupil of Miss Buss). Certificated. Acquirements, thorough English, French, German acquired abroad; needlework. Pupils prepared for Public Examinations. Highest references from present and former engagements.

F. A., 49, Hartham-road, Holloway,

COMPANION-GOVERNESS. — A Lady by birth (28), bright, cheerful. High attainments, re-engagement desired. References, Wife of Dean H—— and Prebendary C—— (many years in the family).

Miss BAYLEY, 40, Cambridge-road, Kilburn, N.W.

WANTED IN APRIL, a Lady (Church of England) to educate four children, eldest 12. Thorough English, French, music and drawing. Comfortable home. State particulars and address.—Mrs. BORRETT, Leiston Hall, Saxmundham, Suffolk.

GOVERNESS.—A Lady wishes to obtain a situation in a school for a Junior Governess, where she would have home comforts and opportunities for improvement. She can teach music, French, and drawing.

Mrs. BENNETT, The Park School, Yeovil.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

PARTNERSHIP.—Wanted by a Gentleman, a Graduate, with a view to taking entire possession, a Partnership in a well-established Day-school for boys of a good class; where the Principal is a Christian. Excellent references can be given, and will be required.—M. A., Messrs. R. F. White & Son, 33, Fleet-street, E.C.

CHRISTIAN MEDICAL MAN, has been engaged in Mission Work, desires to correspond with a gentleman requiring assistance with view to partnership. Town preferred.

M.D., 21, Church-crescent, South Hackney, E.

AN OXFORD GRADUATE, Churchman, desires Tutorship, Companionship, or Secretaryship. Total abstainer.

OXONIAN, 4, Church-terrace, Lee, Kent.

A LADY seeks guidance to a sphere of labour for the Lord, combined if possible with a home in a clergyman's or other Christian family. Accustomed to work among the poor and the young.

FREDA, 1, Holme-villas, Matlock, Bath.

A DEACONESS of the Church of England, Evangelical principles, hospital training, desires a re-engagement. Country parish preferred.—Apply to the Head Deaconess, Church Deaconess Home, Maidstone.

SECRETARY.—A Christian Lady seeks a post as above, to a Society, or private Amanuensis to Lady or Gentleman. Mission work with remuneration not objected to.

FAITH, Shaw's, 483, Oxford-street.

WILL SOME CHRISTIAN TRADESMAN take a young person, that is wishing to learn to wait in some Fancy Business, or to improve herself in Dressmaking. Would give her time for three months, for board and lodging. Is a total abstainer. Good references given. Town preferred. Age 26.—M., Mrs Winterborne, Sand Stone Keys, Southborough, Tunbridge Wells, Kent.

ANY PLACE OF TRUST wanted by a widow, aged 55. Has a small income and a little furniture. A comfortable home desired. Could teach a servant to cook or any other house-work, but would not do any rough work herself.—ALPHA, Woodham's Library, 12, Spring-street, Paddington.

AS MATRON.—A re-engagement wanted in School or Home. 12 years' experience. Highest references.

A. B. C., 16, Brunswick-road, Highgate-hill, N.

A CHRISTIAN WOMAN seeks engagement as useful Companion and Housekeeper to Invalid Lady or Gentleman. She is a thorough nurse, and a total abstainer.—D. H., care of Mr. Scott, Minister of the Gospel, 8, Westhill-road, Brighton.

AS USEFUL COMPANION, or Assistant Housekeeper, to an Invalid Lady (children not objected to, school or otherwise), in a Christian family. Abstainer.

L., 17, Market-square, Lytham, Lancashire. (Neighbourhood preferred.)

COMPANION to an Invalid, or elderly Lady. French. Highly recommended. Nice gentle refined manners, very patient. Earnest Christian. Reads and writes French and German well. Reference,

Lady TANKERVILLE, The Whim, Weybridge.

COMPANION, Lady-housekeeper, or Matron of a home.—A middle-aged Lady, well educated, seeks the above, or any situation of trust. Highest references.

S., 6, High-street, Sutton, Surrey.

COMPANION.—A Lady is desirous to find for a relative a comfortable position as Companion or Secretary to a lady, or as Governess to children under 12. Church of England preferred.—N. N., Manor-house, Stanmore.

LADY HOUSEKEEPER, or Companion to an aged or invalid Christian in the country.—A Lady, aged 50, just leaving Evangelical Church work. Used to nursing. Good reader. Cheerful and kind. Salary small.

M. M., 8, Blandcourt-terrace, Sandown, I.W.

AS HOUSEKEEPER, or useful Help, in the house of a clergyman or medical man —A Lady desires a re-engagement. Is domesticated and accustomed to the care of invalids. Age 43. With abstainers preferred.

F., The Elms, Scarborough.

AS MOTHER'S HELP, or Assistant to a Matron.—Wanted by a Christian Mother for her daughter (a useful girl with some experience), a situation.

Mrs. GUINNESS, Harley House, Bow, E.

AS MOTHER'S HELP, or Companion to an invalid.—A Lady wishes to recommend highly, a Christian young person of pleasing manners and appearance, age 23, thoroughly domesticated. Salary £18-20.—Apply by letter to Miss PIPER, Beechwood, Highgate, London, N.

AS SEWING-MAID, or young Ladies' maid. Situation wanted. Good knowledge of dress-making. Age 22. Good references Two years in present situation.—H. H., Llandefaile Rectory, Brecon, South Wales.

AS UNDER HOUSEMAID, or General Servant, where the mistress superintends. —Wanted, a situation in the north of England, by a tall, strong girl, age 17. Has been two years in service.—Box [illegible], Post-office, Carlisle

MANAGEMENT OF COFFEE TAVERN, or care of Office, by man, wife, and daughter. Many years' experience. Total abstainers. Good testimonials, good cooks.
W. H., 3, Ellbrook-gardens, Walham-green, S.W.

AS PAGE, or in the Stable.—Situation wanted by a Lad, age 15, in a Christian family. Understands cleaning knives, boots, &c. Well recommended. Near Dorking preferred.
Mrs. MONRO, Holme Lea, Dorking

PAGE.—A Lady can recommend an industrious, well-trained boy as page. Has not been out before. Age nearly fifteen. Good references.—Apply to Miss C. GURNEY, 11, Ladbroke-terrace, W.

AS GARDENER, or Caretaker to an elderly Gentleman.—A Lady wishes to recommend a Christian man, aged 48. Married. Very high testimonials.
Miss HOWARD, Bruce-grove, Tottenham.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—Wanted, a respectable youth for the counting house, by an old-established West End manufacturing firm. Must be a good penman and quick at accounts.—Address by letter, W., Mrs. Hill, Stationer, 10, Castle-street East, Oxford-street, W.

MANAGER wanted for a large Coffee Tavern, with lodgings for single men. Good references, abstainer, and experienced in refreshments.—Apply to Miss L. S., Tramore Lodge, near Kemptown Station, Brighton.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. Employment Agency.—The above Agency is conducted by the Y.W.C.A. to benefit members and others of good character seeking employment. It is intended for LADIES, BUSINESS and SHOP ASSISTANTS and DOMESTIC SERVANTS.—Applications from them, or from Employers, should be addressed to MISS ILOTT, 17, Old Cavendish-street, W. Personal applications may be made daily (Saturdays excepted), between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.

TEACHER wanted in February, for a Home of 30 destitute Girls from 7 to 16 years of age. Certificate not essential. Age under 35. Salary from £20 to £25, according to age.
Mrs. CROSSLEY, Fairlie, Bowdon, Cheshire.

A USEFUL HELP.—Wanted, domesticated Companion, about 25, for a Lady in delicate health. Plain dress-making, distinct reading, writing required, and unexceptionable references. Church of England. Abstainer preferred. State particulars and salary.
H., 63, Grayton-road, Hampstead, N.W.

HOME AND REGISTRY for respectable servants of all classes requiring situations. Ladies can be suited from the above, fee from 2s. 6d. when suited; servants from 1s. 6d. Lodgings for servants from 2s. 6d. per week. Apply to S. LOVEJOY, 52, Sydney-street, Fulham-road.

HOUSEMAID. — Wanted in a Christian family, a thoroughly experienced Housemaid, able to help wait at table. Good plain needlewoman. One who has had some experience in sickness much valued. Wages according to capability. Not under 25.
Mrs. L., Summerfield, Forest-hill.

MOTHER'S HELP.—Experienced person. A Christian wanted to take charge of nursery, in family of six children, ages two to twelve. Must be a good needlewoman. Help given in nursery.—Box No. 82, Post-office, Carlisle.

PLAIN COOK, AND HOUSEMAID.—Lady requires two thoroughly clean, well-principled servants. Latter, good needlewoman. Small Christian family. No boots or knives. Early dinner.—Enclose photograph, state age, wages, and full particulars, to ALPHA, Williams' Library, Union-street, Bath.

COOK (good Plain).—Wages, £20. Good character indispensable. Age 30 preferred. —Mrs. C. LEA WILSON, Old Radford Vicarage, Nottingham.

COOK.—Wanted, a Christian woman as plain cook. Abstainer and early riser. Good wages to person suiting.
Mrs. S., Whitepost House, Redhill.

AS COOK.—Wanted, a thoroughly respectable young person in a Gentleman's family. Good personal character.
W. S. P., Rosecroft, Snaresbrook, E.

PLAIN COOK or good General Servant wanted.—Able to take part of housework. Also a HOUSEMAID. Early risers. Must have good characters.
Mrs. R., 11, Hampstead Hill Gardens, N.W.

YOUNG MAN wanted (indoor), who can drive well, who thoroughly understands horses, and is willing to do any other work in house or garden.—S. COWELL, Framfield Lodge, Framfield, Hawkhurst.

EXPERIENCED LAUNDRY-MAID, for country house in Cumberland.—Opportunity for mother and daughter (the latter over thirty) to live together. Cottage in village. Mother to have charge of young gardeners as lodgers. Abstainers preferred.
Box 81, Post-office, Carlisle.

AS GENERAL SERVANT.—Wanted, in a Christian household at Hornsey-rise, a young woman of good principles, and an abstainer.—Mrs. H., care of Miss Aumonier, Stationer, Hornsey-rise, N.

A USEFUL MAID wanted.—Must be a thorough needlewoman, and experienced in dressmaking, having already filled a similar situation; from 28 to 30 years of age, and tall. Wages £20, all found.—Apply personally before one o'clock, or by letter, to Mrs. STACEY, Elmhurst, Bruce-grove, Tottenham.

GENERAL SERVANT.—Can any Lady recommend a Christian young woman, age from 20 to 30, as above to two Ladies? Abstainer. State wages.
C. L., 7, North-street, Bromley, Kent.

AS THOROUGH GENERAL SERVANT.—Wanted, a Christian woman, 23 to 45. Must be good plain cook, fond of children, active and willing. Abstainer preferred. Four in family. Another servant kept. Wages £18 to £20.
Mrs. PIPER, Willoughby-house, Hammersmith.

COOK (good plain).—Must be used to dairy and well recommended. No beer allowed.—Apply, stating age and length of character, to Mrs. M. ASHBY, Northlands, Englefield-green, Staines.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL,
40, Bedford Place, Bloomsbury Sq., London, W.C.
This First-class Private Hotel is close to the New Law Courts and the British Museum. Spacious Coffee and Ladies' Drawing-rooms, and Private Sitting-rooms. Rev. R. MILNE, Abbey Church, Edinburgh, writes:—"Quiet, cleanliness, comfort, and moderate charges, are the characteristics of this house." Also recommended by Dr. ALGERNON DOBBIE, Oldham; Rev. J. GARWOOD, M. A. London City Mission; Dr. YOUNG, Florence.
Tariff on application to Miss PERCY.

WEST CENTRAL HOTEL.
37, 39, 101, Southampton-row, London, W.C.
Patronised by numerous readers of The Christian. Plain Breakfast or Tea, 1s. 3d. Beds, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. Tariff on application to FREDERIC SMITH.

LONDON.—Mrs. GREATLEY'S Christian Boarding-House is highly recommended for comfort, economy, and being convenient to all parts. References kindly permitted to the Rev. Dr. THAIN DAVIDSON. Terms from 2s. 6d., bed and breakfast.
17, Tyndale-place, Upper-street, Islington.

A WIDOW LADY and her Son, residing in one of the healthiest suburbs south of London, within easy access of City and West End, desire to have a gentleman of quiet habits, and one who will value Christian privileges, to reside with them.—A. Z., care of Mrs. Lee, Cannon House, Queen-street, Cheapside, E.C. References given and required.

BAYSWATER.—Furnished House, within five minutes of Kensington-gardens, to be Let, for 3½ guineas per week. May be seen from 12 to 4.
30, St. Petersburgh-place, Bayswater, W.

A MOST COMFORTABLE HOME offered to one or two Ladies in a private family. Healthy, pleasant locality. Late dinner. Terms, 25s. weekly.
SCHNELL, Nunn's Library, Ladbroke-grove-rd., W.

A DOCTOR IN PRACTICE, Crystal Palace district, is open to give board, residence, and medical attention to one or two Invalids, or persons needing attention; to such, a bright, cheerful Christian home is offered. Terms reasonable. Highest references.—DOCTOR, Mrs Gearing, Lordship-terrace, Lordship-lane, S.E.

THE CONVALESCENT HOME, Copped-hall-green, Waltham Abbey, is now open, and receives respectable poor Women on payment of 7s. per week. Lady Superintendent, Countess of Gainsborough.—Apply to Miss HIBBITT.

BOURNEMOUTH, Marlborough.—First-class private Boarding House. Facing the sea, south aspect, close to pier, baths, library; liberal table, every comfort. Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Roberts.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE at BRIGHTON.—Central position, near to the Pavilion, Aquarium, and Piers. Sea view. Liberal table. Every home comfort.—Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Box, 58, Old Steine.

BOURNEMOUTH, Clairville.—Superior Boarding House, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Jackson. Visitors will meet with an excellent family home. Charming sea views. Near church and sea. Most liberal table.

ELDERLY LADY can have comfortable home with Lady and Gentleman near Manchester. Large country house, gardens, farm, pony carriage. No children.—D., care of Mr. Hacking, Marble-street, Manchester.

HASTINGS, Castle House.—Select boarding establishment. Land and sea views. Sheltered situation. Three minutes from sea. Home comforts. Terms moderate.
Apply to the Misses BIRD and PINDER.

HYDROPATHY.—Dr. OWEN'S establishment, "The Arboretum," Leamington. The mansion is built on gravel, and heated throughout by warm air, which makes it a perfect winter residence for visitors and patients. Electric and all other baths.

INTEMPERANCE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, &c.—Private Home for limited number of Ladies, in a desirable Winter locality. Experienced medical treatment. Christian influence, judicious supervision, and home comforts.
MEDICUS, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

ST. LEONARDS.—To Let, on hall floor, a well-furnished sitting and bedroom combined, in genteel neighbourhood. Good cooking and attendance. Terms low.
Alma House, 5, Stockleigh-road.

KONIGSHEIM, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—A temporary residence for Lady Christian workers, or those engaged in tuition, who wish to make a short stay in a quiet Christian home, at a pleasant watering-place.—Further particulars to be obtained from the LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

A LADY, Furnishing Apartments, wishes to meet with a Christian young Lady to Board with her, companionship being desired. Terms moderate. Small bedroom.
23, Belitha-villas, Barnsbury, N.

Apartments, &c., Wanted.

UNFURNISHED APARTMENTS wanted.—Neighbourhood of Stoke Newington or Mildmay Park preferred. Good sitting-room and bed-room, with attendance. Terms and particulars to care of C. E. OLDHAM, Clooneaven, Forest-hill, S.E.

A GENTLEMAN liable to occasional outbreaks of intemperance, desires a home with Total Abstainers, with view to overcome the tendency. Terms moderate. Payment guaranteed.—B., 23, Lansdown Parade, Cheltenham.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian again earnestly invites such to write.
EVANGELIST Clapham, S.W.

LITERARY. — A Christian Editor prepares MSS. (not fiction) for the press, corrects proof-sheets, and, if needed, attends to issue. Charges moderate. Enclose stamped envelope to EDITOR, Buckland-hill, Wadhurst, SUSSEX.

FOR SALE.—A large Bi-Unial Lantern, mahogany-bodied, brass fronts, rack-work. 4-inch double lenses. Best make. A pair of Lanterns, 4-inch double lenses and rack-work fronts. Triplexicon wick, oil lamps, or can be used for limelight, with box and dissolving apparatus complete. A large Cramer's Harmonium. All to be sold reasonable.—Apply to Mr. CHAS. COOK, of Hyde-park Hall, London, W.; or 56, Richford-street, The Grove, Hammersmith.

THE NATIONAL THRIFT BUILDING SOCIETY, of 33, New Bridge-street, London, E.C., issue £10 shares, payable in one sum, or by instalments, without entrance fees or fines; the interest, with bonus, for 1882 having been six and seven per cent. Deposits are received for short or long periods, and current banking accounts opened, two and a half per cent. being allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Advances are promptly made, on reasonable terms.

FRANCIS'S BRONCHIAL PROTECTOR
Registered.
For BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, TIGHT BREATHING, all THROAT COMPLAINTS. } SURE REMEDY
Mr. J. D. Fisher, Chemist, Blackpool, says:—"I have tried it myself, and have received great benefi from it. My customers speak highly of its virtues." Of Chemists, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., or for Stamps sent to
FRANCIS & CO., Belgrave Gate, LEICESTER

WASHING AND LAUNDRY WORK wanted.—Absolute reliance may be placed that no brushes or chemicals are used. Terms strictly moderate. Established 1840. — Byron House Sanitary Laundry, Latimer-road, W.

THE WEST END SANITARY STEAM LAUNDRY,
LAUNDRY ROAD, FULHAM, S.W.
WANTED the NAMES of First-class Laundry Hands, MALE and FEMALE, to live in the Cottages provided by the Firm. Total Abstainers preferred.—Apply to Mr. HOWLAND, Manager.

WASHING wanted, by an experienced Laundress. Terms moderate.—Mrs. SMITH, 154, D-street, Queen's Park Estate, Kilburn-lane.

PURE BEDDING,
Country made, and warranted all through alike. White Feather Beds, purified feathers, Four Guineas; Superior Quality, Five Guineas.
Purified HAIR MATTRESSES, of extra quality. Carriage free, 2½ per cent. discount for cash. Price List on application.
John Tatham & Son, Settle, Yorkshire.

Publications.

GOSPEL BOOKS, with Covers beautifully printed in Chromo-Lithography. By the Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. In Two Packets, 6d. each. Packet I. contains:—1. Do It Now. 2. The Four Looks. 3. Crossing the Bridge. 4. The Heavenly Ladder. 5. The Door Open and the Door Shut. 6. Deepen the Well.
Packet II. contains:—7. All for Christ. 8. Shine as Lights. 9. The Blood More Precious than Gold. 10. Nearer to Thee. 11. The Four Alls. 12. A Christian's Prayer in Six Words.

BLUE RIBBON SERIES. Twelve little 8-page Books, Illustrated, Tinted Paper. By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. Packet of 50, assorted, 6d.

WELCOME TO JESUS. Four-page Floral Tracts, with beautiful design, printed in Chromo-Lithography, on first page. By C. H. SPURGEON. Two Packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per Packet.

CROWN SERIES. Twelve Illustrated Little Books, 16 pages, Tinted paper. Packet of one each, 6d.

ARMY SERIES.—Six Illustrated Little Books for Soldiers. 16 pages, Tinted paper. Packet of 12, assorted, 6d.

COURT LEAFLETS. On thick cream-coloured paper, with coloured border, 4 pages. Packet III., 50 copies, assorted, 6d.

COME TO JESUS. Four-page floral Tracts, with beautiful design printed in Chromo-Lithography on first page. Two packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per packet.

THE SINNER'S FRIEND. Four-page Floral Tracts, as above. Two packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per packet.

THE CHRISTIAN SOLDIER. Thoughts suggested by the War. By Rev. A. R. M. FINLAYSON, Alderley Edge. 32 pages. Price 1d.

THE WAY HOME. Little Books for Working Men. By Lady HOPE of Carriden. 16 pages. 6d. per dozen. No. 1. He laid down His Life! 2. The Beautiful Gate.

GOSPEL LEAVES. Six two-page Tracts, Illustrated. By CHEYNE BRADY. Packet of 100, assorted, 6d.

Illustrated Monthly Periodicals.

THE BRITISH MESSENGER. Price 1d.
THE GOSPEL TRUMPET. Price ¼d., or 3s. 6d. per 100.
GOOD NEWS. Price ½d., 3 for 1d., or 2s. 6d. per 100.
The three Periodicals for one year 2s. 6d.
DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling, N.B.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS,
A MISSION TO MANY LANDS.
New varieties suited for the Season at 3s., 2s. 6d., 2s., and 1s. 6d. the 100. Also photographs, lithographs, quilt texts, &c. Nos. 1 and 2, Lighthouse Tracts, 4s. per 100. For list send stamped envelope to Prestwich, Manchester.

Twelfth Edition, Post-free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c., 5, Bulstrode-street, Cavendish-square, London.
London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

PORTRAITS! PORTRAITS!!
PORTRAITS!!! Faithfully painted in oils from one guinea. Testimonials post free. Send approved Photograph.—G. R. GILL, 26, Leighton-road, London, N.W. 1 Thess. v. 25.

Bagster's Bibles FRENCH MOROCCO CIRCUIT. ELASTIC BAND. Facsimile, Maps, References, Help 4/-

PIANOFORTE by Collard & Collard.—Sweet-toned, full compass cottage trichord, cost 64 guineas, to be sold for 35 guineas. Another in walnut, 23 guineas. American Organ, 11 stops, rich tone, 26 guineas. Beautiful condition; sent on approval. Real bargains.—Gloucester House, Bowes-park, N.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a remedy for affording immediate relief.
C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

CLEARANCE.—Choice imported bulbs: GLADIOLI, ANEMONES, TULIPS, with HEPATICAS, dozen of each; twenty-four double DAISIES, four SWEET-WILLIAMS, six WALLFLOWERS, six PINKS; lot 6s. 9d. Satisfaction guaranteed.—SIMCOX, 158, Severn-road, Cardiff.

WASHING WANTED by a thoroughly experienced laundress. Small things by the dozen. Good grounds. Plenty of water. All work punctually sent home on Friday. No machinery.—S. W., 12, Silchester-terrace, Kensington-park, Notting-hill.

McCALL'S PAYSANDU OX-TONGUES,
IN TINS, READY FOR IMMEDIATE USE.
Sold by all Grocers.

Sciatica, Lumbago, and Rheumatic Affections.

Mr. R. SHERWOOD, 1, Bengeworth-road, Camberwell, S.E., writes:—

"January 18, 1883.—I had been laid up for a month with rheumatics and lumbago, but the very day after adopting your Odo-Magnetic treatment I was able to get up, and was at work again in a week. For more than two years I continued to derive the greatest benefit, until complete restoration rendered its use no longer necessary.

"A lady similarly suffering tried it, and was cured within a week.

"My wife is still experiencing very marked relief from her Spinal Belt, having been previously a great sufferer from dyspepsia."

Mrs. KIRKPATRICK, 27, Fern-grove, Liverpool, writes:—

"January 20, 1883.—I have much pleasure in letting you know that your treatment has proved effectual in removing acute rheumatism, from which I suffered very painfully, though I had tried many remedies previously.

"My daughter is quite improved in health since she has worn the appliance for debility."

Mrs. HOGARTH, Portland-road, South Norwood, writes:—

"I have worn your appliance for twelve months. You will doubtless remember that when I consulted you I suffered at repeated intervals in a way I can never describe. The pains I had in my loins were agonising; they came on suddenly when least expected. I was often attacked when engaged with friends, and had to leave them and to take to my bed for several days, not daring to move a limb for fear of increasing the pain, which all the doctors I consulted called muscular spasms, but which they could never relieve. You treated it as lumbago, and since I have used your treatment I have only had one attack, and that a very slight one."

An intelligent observer of the competition which exists between the various systems of medicine will be convinced that these systems must eventually give place to therapeutic measures which have proved to be most in accordance with natural laws. It needs but a small amount of intelligence to understand that unless the healing power of nature is itself heightened and developed, the cause of chronic ailments will remain. Cure means a renewal of energy, so as to fortify the system against the recurrence of former symptoms by removing the constitutional weakness.

There are various and almost numberless Magnetic, Galvanic, and Electric articles advertised as well as medicines, with the usual list of all known diseases and affections peculiar to all countries as curable and cured by them. But the desired results can only be attained in proportion to the care and attention bestowed on the adaptation of the remedy.

In the law of Magnetism, as applied by Mr. B. Copson Garratt, a safe and effective method is pursued, and the best illustration is afforded of what science and art, in combination with natural law, can effect. A systematised method of treatment is observed; his practice being to ascertain the causes of disease, so that the electric energy may be adapted to the requirements of each individual case.

Rheumatism often so seriously affects the joints, that a congested state of the muscular sheaths and ligaments ensues, followed by morbid secretions which prevent free movement. Magnetic influence, penetrating the joints, increases the circulation (which supplies a healthy lubricating secretion) and so infuses new life and energy from nerve centres to nerve extremities. These facts are verified in numerous instances similar to the above.

Full information of the treatment may be obtained free, personally or by letter, from Mr. B. COPSON GARRATT, Medical Electrician, 16, Finsbury-square, London, E.C.

THIS DAY. Price 3s. 6d., the FIRST PART of the CHEAPEST EDITION EVER PUBLISHED OF

MATTHEW HENRY'S COMMENTARY.

TO BE COMPLETED IN NINE THREE-AND-SIXPENNY PARTS.

This NEW ILLUSTRATED EDITION contains, in addition to Matthew Henry's famous Commentary, Original Notes, Critical, Historical, and Geographical, and a Life of the Author. Each Part will contain from 300 to 400 pages 4to., bound in stiff covers; so that, unless preferred, the work need not be re-bound when completed.

A very favourable opportunity is now given for every Minister, Local Preacher, Teacher, and Christian householder to possess this standard Commentary.

Mr. SPURGEON says:—"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word, MATTHEW HENRY. He is most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy. You will find him to be glittering with metaphors, rich in analogies, overflowing with illustrations, superabundant in reflections. He delights in apposition and alliteration; he is usually plain, quaint and full of pith; he is deeply spiritual, heavenly and profitable; finding good matter in every text, and from all deducing most practical and judicious lessons. It is the poor man's commentary, the old Christian's companion, suitable to everybody, instructive to all."

LONDON: HODDER & STOUGHTON, 27, PATERNOSTER ROW.

(Published by Request.) One Penny.

"LET IN GOD'S LIGHT!"

(A Plea for Bible Teaching in all Schools.)

By J. T. WRENFORD (Vicar of St. Paul's, Newport).

London: PARTRIDGE & Co., Paternoster-row.

WORKS BY MRS. G. E. MORTON,

Author of "Friend in Need Papers," "Wee Donald," "Stony Road," "Eighty Years Ago," &c.

THE STORY OF JESUS. 3rd Edition, with 12 Illustrations, and a Map. 3s. 6d.

"It is impossible to over-estimate the value of a work like this."—Public Opinion.

FROM THE BEGINNING; or, Stories from Genesis. Map and Illustrations, 3s. 6d.

"One of the best books of Bible stories for Children that we have ever seen."—Record.

FROM EGYPT TO CANAAN (sequel to the above). Map and Illustrations. 3s. 6d.

"The well-written work before us merits hearty praise. It will do good service, we doubt not, in thousands of schools and home circles."—Churchman.

LONDON: HATCHARDS, PICCADILLY.

Neatly printed on tinted paper, suitable for enclosing in Letters or for General Distribution.

Price 6d. per packet of 12 Tracts.

3s. 6d. per 100, either assorted or of any separate Tract.

"GLADNESS OF HEART" TRACTS.

A Series of Narratives, each complete in itself, recording striking Conversions.

BY

J. P. WILSON,

Author of "Gladness of Heart," &c., &c.

CONTENTS OF PACKET.

1. A Young Clerk in the Last Century.
2. A Prize Runner. A Beershop-Keeper's Daughter.
3. A Preacher brought to Christ.
4. Ignorance of Sin.
5. George Robinson, of Grasmere. Dr. Edmund Staunton.
6. Time required for Conversion. "I've Found the Lord." A Young Pharisee.
7. Conversion of an English Heathen.
8. Found of One who Sought Him not. "How long have you to Live?"
9. A Weary One finding Rest.
10. Finding the Pearl of Great Price. "The Sorrows of Death."
11. Mary Harrison, of Havant.
12. Count Zinzendorf.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SIXPENNY MONTHLIES FOR FAMILY READING.

New Volumes commenced with January Parts.

THE LEISURE HOUR.

The FEBRUARY PART, Now Ready, contains:—

An Old Man's Will. By the Author of "A Young Wife's Story," &c. Chapters V.—VII. With Illustrations by W. Ralston.
Sketches in the Malay Peninsula. By the Author of "A Lady's Ride in the Rocky Mountains," "Unbeaten Tracks in Japan," &c. With Illustrations.
In Alsace. By Madame Guizot de Witt. Translated by the Author of "John Halifax, Gentleman." Chapters I.—V. Illustrated.
James Clerk Maxwell.
Worlds within Worlds. By Sydney Grey.
The Channel Tunnel in Connection with the Invasion of England. With Fac-simile of an Engraving published in 1803.
Lawyers and their Haunts. By J. Cordy Jeaffreson. With Engravings.
Concerning Cats.
Dorset Folk and Dorset. By the Rev. W. Barnes, M.A., Author of "Poems in Dorset Dialect." With Engraving.
The Philosophy of Gas Burning.
Mr. Gladstone at Hawarden. With Illustrations.
Whipping by Proxy. With Page Engraving.
An Ancient Bird and its Fossil Allies. By Agnes Crane.
A Morning Parade. By George Cruikshank.
Water Snakes and the Great Sea Serpent.
Varieties.
With toned paper Frontispiece, "Edward VI. and his Whipping Boy."

SIXPENCE MONTHLY.

THE SUNDAY AT HOME.

THE ILLUSTRATED FAMILY MAGAZINE FOR SABBATH READING.

The FEBRUARY Part, Now Ready, contains:—

Gwendoline; or, Halcots and Halcombes. By Agnes Giberne. Chapters VIII.—XIII. Illustrated.
Meccah. By the Rev. Canon Tristram, M.A., LL.D. With Engraving.
The Young Men of My Church. By a Black-Country Parson.
Belshazzar's Feast. By the Rev. Prebendary Harry Jones, M.A.
The King's Sceptre. Hints of the Wonderful Unity of the Ways of God in History. By the Rev. E. Paxton Hood. II.—The Pavement: The Base Things of History.
Notes of a Journey to the North-West Land. II. With Engravings.
My Loan Library.
Visit to the Birthplace of John de Wycliffe.
The Czar and the Bible. Illustrated.
Until the Daybreak. By Horatius Bonar, D.D.
What is Being Done for Seame.
Pages for the Young:—Left to Themselves—Through the Mist.
The Home Bible Class:—Journeys of Our Lord.
Things New and Old: Varieties for Sunday Reading.
The Monthly Religious Record.

With a Coloured Frontispiece.

Sixpence Monthly. One Penny Weekly.

London: 56, Paternoster Row.

NOW READY. FOR FEBRUARY.

THE LIFE OF FAITH.

PRICE TWOPENCE MONTHLY.

A Periodical devoted to the Deepening of Spiritual Life.

CONTENTS:—An Answer to "A Cry in the Dark." Grace for Grace, Rev. C. A. Fox. "His Presence is Salvation," Capt. H. BARING. Into the Sanctuary. "Without Holiness no Man shall See the Lord," The EDITOR. Working and Shining. "Grieving the Spirit," Rev. H. B. MACARTNEY. Bible Study, H. F. BOWKER, &c. &c.

MARSHALL BROTHERS, 3, AMEN CORNER, E.C.

MR. UNWIN'S MISSION BOOKS.

MODERN MISSIONS: THEIR TRIALS AND TRIUMPHS. By ROBERT YOUNG, Assistant Secretary to the Missions of the Free Church of Scotland. With Illustrations and a Mission Map. New and Revised Edition. Crown 8vo., 5s.

MASTER MISSIONARIES: Studies in Heroic Pioneer Work. By ALEXANDER H. JAPP, LL.D., F.R.S.E. With Portraits and Illustrations. Crown 8vo., gilt edges. New and cheaper edition, 3s. 6d.

T. FISHER UNWIN, 17, Holborn Viaduct, E.C.

WINNING WORDS.

A New Series of Text Cards. Envelope shape. Illustrated with Etchings. Price Sixpence, post free.

JOHN G. WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park, London, N.

HOW TO READ THE BIBLE.

7th Edition. 41st Thousand. 6 copies for 6d.

This momentous question answered. A little book of great importance. Every reader of THE CHRISTIAN is STRONGLY RECOMMENDED to procure copies IMMEDIATELY.

Readers of it thus write:—"A most excellent work." "Invaluable." "Supplies a great want." "I pray that every household in England may possess copies." "Valuable little book." "Seems so valuable."—Apply to Rev. C. LYNE, Westgate-on-Sea, Thanet, enclosing 4d. addressed wrapper.

"LIFTED UP." The Life of Walter Douglas. With Frontispiece. Paper covers. Price 6d. Cloth, 1s.

"In its perusal we were cheered and delighted, for here are records of the marvels of grace."—Latter Rain.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

The Christian.

PREACHERS AND PEOPLE.

THE "Good Tidings of great joy to all people" have not lost their charm or power. The common people heard Jesus gladly, they drew near unto Him, they pressed upon Him and thronged Him, they hung upon his words, because He was one of themselves, lived among them, sympathised with them, and spoke the language of their common life.

When He returned to the Father, it was by men taken from the people, speaking the vulgar tongue, that the witness to Jesus and the Resurrection was borne, which filled Jerusalem with his name and doctrine; and which, passing beyond the limits of the Lord's land, so shook the Gentile nations that they cried, "The men that have turned the world upside down have come here also."

From then till now, even when men of high education and culture have been mightily used of God to gather souls into his Kingdom, it has not been in highly cultured and classical forms of speech, but in everyday language—in the vulgar tongue—that the message has gone forth.

And we think that something of the universal persistency with which the people throng to the meetings of Messrs. Moody and Sankey, in every town they visit, and of the great result in the conversion of souls, is due to the fact that the speech of the speaker and the hymns and music of the singer, are all well within the range of the people for whom they are intended.

We have a deepening conviction that in theological halls and colleges, where men are trained to be ministers of Christ, and winners of souls, the aim should be, not to cultivate a style of expression which requires an effort to understand it; but so to train the mind to arrange the thoughts, and to simplify their expression, that the great things of God's revelation may be brought within the grasp and comprehension of the most ordinary intelligence. If the vital force is absorbed in the effort to follow forms of speech with which the people are unfamiliar, it is withdrawn from the other parts of the mental and spiritual constitution, which are to that extent not brought into vivid exercise.

Everyone who has ever heard Mr. Spurgeon, Mr. Moody, or any other of the men who move the masses, must have observed that the conscience, the emotions, the affections, are all called into play; and that the thoughts, and the words in which they are clothed, are so simple and so familiar that their hearers, without effort, drink them in.

The following startling paragraph from a recent number of a Birmingham paper shows the condition of that and of many other of our large towns:—

> About fifteen years ago Mr. R.W. Dale preached a sermon at Carr's-lane, in which the following passage occurred: "I know that many of you are oppressed with the thought of the vast number of people in this town who are never present at public worship. We have among us a population larger than that of the capitals of some of the most considerable European States—larger than that of Rome, larger than that of Turin, twice as large as that of Florence, five times as large as that of Geneva—untouched by the direct influence of public religious services. Suppose you heard that not a solitary man, woman, or child in the whole county of Bedford, or of Berks, or of Buckingham, or of Cambridge, or of Dorset, ever entered a church or chapel, you would be amazed and distressed; but we have a larger population than any of these counties contains that never crosses the threshold of a place of worship, excepting at a marriage, a baptism, a churching, or a funeral.
>
> You have at this moment a population numbering 40,000 more than that of Edinburgh at the last census, 20,000 more than that of Sheffield, a population as large as that of Leeds, as large as that of Bristol, Cheltenham, and Gloucester put together, that has not entered any church or chapel in Birmingham to-day. You know it, and are grieved by it. Many of you are endeavouring to persuade those who neglect worship to form better habits; by personal efforts and by generous giving you are doing what you can. But I shall never feel that you have given full proof of your earnest desire to reclaim two-thirds of your fellow-townsmen from practical heathenism until a memorial is sent in signed by nine-tenths of those of you who worship here, intimating that you are ready to accept whatever slight personal inconveniences may result from making this place of worship open every Sunday evening at least, for all who are willing to come."
>
> Mr. Dale has at various times recurred to this proposal, and a few weeks ago more than three-fourths of the seat-holders voted in favour of carrying it out from the commencement of 1883. It is, therefore, announced in our advertising columns that on Sunday evening next there will be "no reserved seats" at Carr's-lane. The stewards will be at liberty to put strangers into seats without waiting for the commencement of the service. The experiment is a most interesting one, and if it succeeds—as we do not doubt it will—other ministers and congregations may think it desirable to follow the example.

We trust that the proposal thrown out so long ago may now be adopted by many Churches.

As we write this, Mr. Moody is saying to 10,000 women in Bingley Hall, that the promise of Matt. xi. 29 "takes in the grey-haired grandmother, the wife and mother, the young maiden—yes, it takes in that little child." The preaching that takes in all these, and all others, is drawing the people of Birmingham day by day and night by night. Eight years ago the afternoon Bible readings were held in smaller halls and chapels; but when, last week, they were resumed, Bingley Hall was needed, and the first meeting was attended by 8000 persons; and this in the busiest and most pushing centre of industry in the Midlands.

Many thought at the previous visit that it was only the novelty that attracted the people, but the interest is greater now than then, and many of the workers in the after-meetings which are nightly held, are those who were brought to Christ in the meetings in 1875.

It was thought, and indeed it is being said to-day, that much of the result of those happy days has evaporated. But at a recent meeting of ministers in Birmingham, one of them bore witness that his experience was that eighty out of a hundred of those who were gathered in at that time are still in fellowship. And that of another was still more satisfactory.

These ministers were doubtless those who threw their sympathy and their energy into the work, and naturally reaped as they had sown. If there shall be any Churches to which these great gatherings shall not yield a quota of new members, and of interested and anxious hearers to the congregation, it will surely be because their pastors and people have not had a mind to the work. Everywhere it is manifest that the blessing realised is according to the union of the ministers and Churches in the place, and their previous preparation for the work. In Dublin, where these conditions were largely fulfilled, it is thought that more was accomplished in the recent visit of a fortnight than in the five weeks spent there in 1874. The remarkable success at Portsmouth and Exeter, Plymouth and Devonport, Oxford and Cambridge, were all in great measure attributable to the same cause. And living Churches, of whatever name, will gather in the converts.

In London the evangelists preached to the whole world, and there is not a town to which these brethren go but the results of the work in London in 1875 are found, in earnest and active workers. The meetings in Bingley Hall on Sunday were a sight worth going a long journey to look upon. It is said that not more than five per cent. of our working classes go to places of public worship; but more than 20,000 persons thronged this great building on that day—women in the afternoon and men at night; and probably nearly half as many were unable to get in. Nor was it merely to hear and join in the singing that they came, for half the congregation remained to the after-meeting in the afternoon, and more than half at night. On each occasion hundreds stood up for prayer, and the response, "I will," "I will," to Mr. Moody's question, "Who will trust, and not be afraid?" seemed to come almost as rapidly as the rain-drops that were falling on the roof.

These gatherings afford an education to the ministers who attend them, of more value than a college course. To see how a great assembly is handled, so that in the good providence of God no serious accident has ever happened; to learn not only to attract the people, but to hold their interested attention; how to sift them for the after-meeting, and how to conduct that meeting; and to see the mighty power of the Spirit in evident present operation, convincing, converting, and giving peace—is of inestimable value to a minister of Jesus Christ, or to a preaching layman.

Mr. Moody diversifies the service by asking the women and the men, or the people in the gallery and then those in the area, to sing alternately. Thus a verse or a chorus containing the essence of the Gospel is sung a dozen times, until words and tune are fixed in the memory, so that you may be sure they will be hummed and sung in factories and workrooms in succeeding days, and thus the truth which saves will be instilled into the souls of the singers and of those who hear them.

An impressive part of the solemnities on Sunday night was the singing of the hymn, "Eternity," (No. 184,) by Mr. Sankey; especially as he introduced it by the story of its origin. "When I was here eight years ago, I heard that Robert Annan, of Dundee, before he left home one morning, chalked on the flagstone before his cottage this solemn word. A lad fell into the sea that morning, and Robert saved the boy, but was drowned himself; and his lifeless body was carried home over that word 'Eternity!' I mentioned it to a lady on my return to America, and she wrote these beautiful verses. May God help me to sing them into your souls." The touching prayer which he then offered prepared all hearts for the fulfilment of the desire he had expressed.

Let us all, pastors and people, in London and everywhere else, study the simplicity and sympathy, the brevity and compactness, the faith and prayer, the definiteness of purpose and the precision of aim, which are manifested in these meetings, and cultivate the same sensitive touch of the Holy Spirit and of the human heart, and God will surely revive his work on a larger scale than we yet have seen.

PARIS.—Rev. W. Gibson, Wesleyan minister, 4, rue Roquepine, Paris, is desirous of commencing Christian work in the district of St. Lazare. If the needful funds are provided, it is proposed to rent a large room, and hold services every evening. Mr. Gibson makes an earnest appeal for help towards this object.

THE CHURCHES IN RELATION TO EVANGELISTIC WORK.

PRIZE ARTICLES

By Rev. EDWD. SMITH, Fairfield, Manchester.

Chapter VII.—(Concluded.)

IN the Churches themselves is to be found a large aggregate of persons who easily enlist among the Lord's Irregulars.

CHURCH-LIFE WILL GET INTO GROOVES :

exceptions are rare indeed: whereas the great mass of outsiders will not be rescued just by routine work. With such a state of things a varying proportion of members becomes dissatisfied. They are haunted and taunted by the ideal of a more active Christianity. While clinging fondly to the system under which they have "got their good," and declaring that, with all its faults, they can find nothing to excel it, they are as restless as storm-birds. Their eyes are opened to the peril of the ungodly and to the sin of lethargy in the Church. From giving vent to their ideas in prayers and private conversations they at last proceed to action, and either attempt to cultivate ground long lying fallow, or else break up ground entirely new.

If the authorities be utterly unwise they will discountenance such proceedings. If, however, they be discerning as to the rightness of things, they will take advantage of any success gained by these guerillas. Did Ferdinand and Isabella decline to profit by the victorious advance of the Marquis of Cadiz into the Moorish country, because he had gathered together, unauthorised, a motley band of knights and men-at-arms? Did Victor Emanuel refuse to possess himself of the Italian kingdom, because the red-shirted Garibaldians who aided the Sicilian revolt were only a species of banditti?

Neither can the Churches afford to ignore the results of the independence and ingenuity of some of their constituents. It may be truthfully affirmed that, when members get impatient of restraints and of the stationary condition of matters, it is usually a product of healthy meditation. Either an outlet should be formed for their energies, or they will be apt to make one for themselves. But if, through the remissness or over-caution of the majority in a Church, the active minority have initiated schemes of their own, let all discretion be used and due sympathy be shown.

Times without number have natures impetuous and natures quietly fervid protested against the prevalent torpor, and commenced new Missions in neglected neighbourhoods. Virgin soil often and Providence, even more than Fortune, favours the truly brave. The ground has afterwards been occupied by the regular machinery, and a thriving branch-church has been the result. In the town of O——, a few faithful ones were pressed in spirit because so little was being done. Ignored, if not heavily frowned upon by some of their more apathetic brethren, they held grimly by their resolve, and took a room for religious purposes. By their faith and self-denial, many working-men were changed in heart and habits. The work spread to the larger sanctuary, and the long-standing reproach of barrenness is now rolled away.

PAYS WELL FOR THE WORKING,

New converts quite commonly start work in irregular ways. Let no man stay them! They are under the guidance of the Teacher of teachers. Their zeal is fresh and fragrant. They thrill magnetically some whom they accost. Who can tell what will be wrought by their means? How was brought about during the past winter a prodigious revival among the pitmen at F——? A young man who had been a prize-fighter was solemnised by the warnings of a dying mother, and the abiding prayerfulness of his sisters. Once renewed in spirit, he broke away from all formality, and commenced a system of personal appeals to sinners. Those who held the joint pastorate of the Church to which he allied himself, smiled lovingly on his erratic procedures, and encouraged the fervency which caused them, and have, since then,

ADDED HUNDREDS TO THEIR CHURCH-ROLL.

The King's free horses should be allowed to choose their own loads. Set-work is not so pleasant as love-work. For love-work they will need neither blinkers nor bearing-rein. Native originality may be cheered on until it displays itself in new methods of arousing the impassive. Enthusiasm will prove itself contagious. By the valiant conduct of the Lord's Irregulars, victory will the sooner fold her wings upon our standards.

No doubt a kindly, pastoral, and official supervision may be exercised over "out-of-the-way agencies." All experiment is risky, and demands attention and revision from time to time. But by no means let there be hindrance or coercion. If good is being done in irregular meetings, we can surely put up with a temporary thinning of the audience at our more orderly gatherings. These will be fed by the others before very long. And when believers cease waiting for the example of others, and begin to put themselves into shape for newly-devised efforts; when members of different classes of mind and coteries in society are driven into union for purposes of strife with evil, we may applaudingly cry out, "We wish you good luck in the name of the Lord."

Mission services, too, may be classed among the irregular means. Most of the denominations are now employing both ministers and laymen to itinerate as Evangelists. Even the religious bodies which have not yet revived this old order of workers are being compelled to a consideration of the question. These "Missioners" purposely enter into the labours of others. Both pastors and people would prefer that there should be no need for this, and that a satisfactory amount of religious decision should be manifested under the ordinary ministrations. But many of the undecided

NEED TO BE REACHED FROM A NEW ANGLE.

They have been for years nearly at the decision point, but have not passed it, and are even in danger of receding from it. A competent Mission-preacher gives a last impulse to some who have been thus slowly matured for the kingdom of heaven. But he does more than that; for if elaborate preparations have been made for his visit, if, as in the great Leeds Mission of 1875, there has been much prayer, and visitation, and printing of wall-bills and hand-bills, the curiosity of the general public will be aroused, and so will be the deep sympathy of the religious portion of it. And may not curiosity be sanctified? It is of the Divine gift, and nothing given by God is superfluous in his vineyard. It may be legitimately aroused by Mission placards and visits. And whatever stirs up the sympathies of the saints is a positive and unalloyed gain to the world.

After all this, it is tolerably certain that the Mission-preacher and his helpers will see the inner circle invaded by those who have stood in the outside ring. Among these the best sheaves will be gathered. Blow after blow will be struck upon hearts long hardened against God. Consciences which seemed seared will quiver again. Old memories will be aroused. The scenes of Pentecost will be repeated, and many a tongue shall be "filled with singing."

Upon such a preacher the strain is intense. Only a man furnished for the purpose can bear it, and only if anointed from above will he be able to keep up his power. His nerve-force is drained away; sleeplessness infests him; peculiar temptations assault him; he is imperilled anew every day by the very conditions of his labour; only by nestling close to the promises of his Master can he persist in thus endangering his life for the sake of the enslaved myriads. Only such a preacher knows what he has to give up for Christ's sake.

This being the case, he ought to be left unfettered and allowed to propound his own terms and arrangements for labour. He has the great advantage of knowing by experience what is needful. He occupies a strong vantage ground, and may apply truths closely without being personal, and may take methods which would not be permissible to those who belong to the Lord's Regulars. Let him have

A FAIR FIELD AND PLENTY OF FAVOUR.

In these Missions are converted many who never would have been if they had not been held. They emerge by whole families from this "Crisis of Being." Only, great care must be taken not to hold such services frequently in the same locality, else we shall have a new phase of an old ailment—that of saving souls by deputy—said deputy being the one who annually conducts the Mission services. Like other agencies they lose their effect, and may have a harmful reaction connected with them. Neither, taking matters generally, should one Evangelist follow quickly on the heels of another. Each has his own peculiar fashion of doing things, and even when the first has got a good hold of the population, the services are almost sure to run down under the second, however suitable and successful he may beforetime have proved himself to be.

In some villages the various Evangelical Churches would have been all but denuded of their congregations had not Evangelists been employed. But the visit of a fervid, holy preacher is quite an event in village life. Susceptibilities toward godliness are unexpectedly revealed. The village inn is forsaken. The slatternly housewife begins to delight in cleanliness. God's house is frequented by new hearers. Faithful ministers are gladdened. No longer do they lament,

> Lord, in thy field I work all day
> I read, I teach, I warn, I pray,
> And yet these wilful, wandering sheep
> Within thy fold I cannot keep.

A few months back a godly but unlettered collier obtained a fortnight's leave of absence, and went to conduct meetings for village congregations. He never professed to preach, but just gave warm addresses interspersed with experiences. The two weeks extended to eleven, and during that time among those scattered populations there were eleven hundred inquirers.

By all means, then, let Mission preachers and all others of the Lord's Irregulars take the place in the esteem of the Churches which they occupy in the economy of the Holy Ghost. By the judicious use of these, the ranks of the frivolous, the malignant, the vicious, the indifferent, shall be perceptibly thinned; and exemplified anew shall be the wisdom of that saying of Jesus, "Forbid him not: for there is no man which shall do a miracle in my name, that can lightly speak evil of Me."

CO-OPERATION, NOT COMPETITION.—8.

By Rev. WASHINGTON GLADDEN.*

(Concluded.)

A LITTLE more than two years after the Union mass-meeting in the Town Hall at Monroeville, on a delightful October evening, Old Major stopped at the parsonage door, and the parson took his seat in the open buggy.

"Let's see; how long have you been gone?"

"Eighteen months next Monday."

"And you've seen pretty much all that's worth seeing of Europe, Asia, and Africa?"

"Not quite, but enough to think of for some time."

"And you're thoroughly rested and well?"

"Never was so well in my life."

"Good! We were very anxious about you at first; but the later news comforted us. The people have taken solid enjoyment all the while in the knowledge that you were resting and recovering your health. They will give you a hearty welcome at the prayer-meeting to-morrow night."

"Bless their faithful hearts!" said the parson, his eyes filling. "How gladly will I spend and be spent for them in the coming days! But tell me the news. I've had family news often, and church news now and then, but beyond these almost nothing. How goes the Club?"

"Gloriously! It is pushing right on to conquest. At every meeting we have news of some good fruit that has grown from its sowing."

"How fares the work among the poor?"

"We've got that into excellent shape. Mendicancy and pauperism are pretty effectually suppressed. There are no more beggars at our back-doors; the tramps give us a wide berth. We hammered at the overseers of the poor till we got them to stop their careless largesses of alms to the idle and the vicious; they employ our visitors, now, to investigate their cases, and the amount of out-door relief has been reduced sixty per cent."

"But I hope you haven't ended with suppressing pauperism."

"Oh, no. Our visitors are beginning to take hold of the work of caring for the sick and of helping the poor and the discouraged and the shiftless, in a most intelligent way. The work that has been accomplished, not only in ministering to the helpless, but in lifting up degraded families, and in inspiring the miserable with hopefulness and courage and self-respect, is the most genuine Christian work that has ever been done in New Albion."

"How about Dr. Strickland's kindergarten?"

"There are three of them now, all doing excellently."

"The Young Men's Club—is that thriving?"

"It has a membership of six hundred."

"And the County League—how is that flourishing?"

"Now you begin to get down to business with your catechism. The County League, sir, has its foot upon its native hills, but its fame has gone into all the earth. Didn't you hear of it in Moab?"

"Not a syllable," answered the parson, laughing.

"Well, sir, the Moabites may as well set their meeting-houses in order, for it will be after 'em shortly. See. You helped to reconstruct Monroeville. Scantico followed suit; but that was before you went away. Then the Outlook Committee got its eye on Rowell and began to put on a gentle pressure. The result there was different from that in the other two towns. The Methodist church was pretty strong—much stronger than either of the other three, and the committee recommended elimination by substraction, instead of substitution. The Methodist Church kept its organisation, but broadened its methods somewhat, and the other people gave up their own churches and went in with the Methodists. Of course the Methodists did everything they could to make it agreeable for the others; put them into offices, got a quiet catholic-minded man for their next minister, and exercised a real Christian hospitality in their reception of the members of the other churches. I hear that they have all learned to sing the Jubilee song:

'A Methodist, Methodist, will I live,
And a Methodist will I die,' with the spirit and the understanding also. That's Rowell. In Woodford, the Baptist Church was found to be the fittest to survive; the Baptist minister exchanges once a month regularly with the Rowell minister, and then the Baptists in Rowell who can't commune with the rest have a special cammunion service, and the Pedobaptists in Woodford who want their babies baptized have that service performed for them at their houses.

In Tuckerton and Millville, union churches have been formed; and of the towns in this county where small populations were once split up among several feeble churches, all but two are now happy in the possession of one good church. Besides, our Outlook Committee has been spying out the neglected districts, and stirring up the people of the towns to occupy them; we have reports from them in the meetings of the County League, and I am sure that a great many more people in Bradford County are now under religious influences than there ever were before."

"Good!" shouted Mr. Strong.

"But you haven't got the whole of it yet," said Franklin. "To the next meeting of the County League, after you went away, a delegation of Dunham County folks, from Samsonville and Knox and other places, came in, and they got into the spirit of the movement, and went back and formed a Christian League in Dunham County. The matter began to be talked about all over the State. The newspapers took hold of it, and pushed it hard; the business men perceived the reasonableness and justice of it, and made their influence felt in favour of it, and soon every county in the State had swung into line. Midland County was the last to organise, and their League was formed last April, five months ago. And week before last the secretaries and Outlook Committees of all the County Leagues held a meeting in Bradford, and formed 'The Christian League of Connecticut.' Its object, as stated in the constitution, is 'to promote efficiency and economy in Christian work, by the suppression and extinction of superfluous organisations, by the occupation of destitute fields, and by the concentration of the efforts of Christian people.' We are to have one mass meeting every year, in November, to hear reports from the county secretaries, to read and discuss papers, and to devise measures for the prosecution of our work."

"Laus Deo!" exclaimed the parson. "Who would have believed it? Why, this is more of a miracle than your telephone, that has sprung into being since I went away. Gloria in excelsis! The unity of believers in this commonwealth is no longer merely a sentiment, it is a solid fact. Have they heard of this yet up in Massachusetts?"

"Oh, yes, they are talking about it there, and out West, too. The West, you know, is a great deal more sect-ridden than we are, and sensible people out there are beginning to see that they must organise to protect themselves against the nuisance. A little patience and sweet reasonableness, and a great deal of pluck and perseverance, will do the business. Let people once see how much better and more Christian is co-operation than competition and conflict, in doing Christian work, and the battle is won."

"I always knew that the millennium was coming," said Mr. Strong slowly, resting his eye for a moment on the mingled pearl and gold in the cloudless sky, out of which the sun had just sunk, and then dropping it to take in the soft, purple haze of the hills, and the shining depths of the placid river: "I always knew that it was coming, but I never knew before just how it was coming. Now I see."

* From The Century Magazine.

A WORKING CHURCH.

DEAR SIR,—In connection with this old and historic building, erected by George Whitefield nearly 130 years ago, we have established, in memoriam, "The Whitefield Gospel Mission." A City Missionary, a Bible woman, a Bible nurse, and a large number of young people from the great business houses, are engaged in thoroughly evangelistic mission work, and we are bent upon enlarging our sphere of action and the number of effective labourers.

I am desirous of obtaining the use of a large hall in this neighbourhood, which has hitherto been devoted to not very creditable uses, and which is now offered me. May I venture to appeal through your valuable pages for assistance in the great work we are trying to do? I desire to form a young men's club on behalf of the crowds of young folk in the large houses of business by which we are surrounded. For our Mother's Meeting, which is attended by over a hundred poor mothers, I ask gifts of cast-off clothing.

I appeal for help to all who are in sympathy with earnest work for the Master.—Yours sincerely,

J. Jackson Wray.

Whitefield's Tabernacle,
Tottenham Court-road, Jan. 16.

THE SWANSEA Y.M.C.A. moves into large and commodious new premises on the 6th inst.

LECTURES TO YOUNG MEN.—A crowded congregation attended on Friday week at St. Peter-upon-Cornhill, to hear the third lecture delivered by Rev. Dr. Cunningham Geikie, under the auspices of the Church of England Young Men's Society, on the Life and Times of Jesus Christ. It was pleasing to note the large proportion of young men present, and the evident interest taken in the subject. The closing lecture of the course was delivered on Friday evening, the subject being "The Last Days of Christ's Life."

THE MALAGASY AMBASSADORS visited the British and Foreign Bible Society's house, in Queen Victoria-street, last week. Handsomely bound copies of the Bible were presented to the Ambassadors and their secretaries. Before leaving, they expressed, through their interpreter, the pleasure and gratitude with which they would always remember the kindness of the Bible Society to themselves and to their country.

WOOLWICH Y.W.C.A. AND HOME.—The report for 1882 of this institute gives an interesting account of the sowing and planting during the past twelve months, which have already yielded some "fruits of increase." There have been real conversions to God, especially through some special meetings held by Miss Brryman (a converted Jewess), and these have been very valuable in stirring up the Christians to increased devotedness to their Lord. There are two Bible-classes and a Missionary working party, every week, also a "Question Meeting," which gives opportunity to young believers to acquire knowledge of the written Word. A Christian friend will give £20 towards the expenses if we can get five other such sums in any amounts. Further particulars will be given by Mrs. Mandeville, Y.W.C.A. Home, 100, Wellington-street, Woolwich.

For the Young.

HAPPINESS.

Sir,—As I see that the young are now contributing to the Page for the Young in The Christian, I am sending you my first attempt at anything of the kind, although I am afraid it will not be good enough to print. C. L.

I THINK we all want to be happy, so let us try to find out the best way to be so. Some of us very often say, "Oh, if I only had just this or that I should be quite happy;" or, "Of course So-and-so is happy: I should be if I were in her place."

But I think we often find that when we have got the thing we most longed for, it does not bring us the pleasure we expected, or, at best, the pleasure lasts but for a short time. I daresay if we were able to change places with the person whose lot we so envied, we should find that her path is not so smooth as we expected, and that she has troubles and difficulties of which we know nothing.

Some of us may look for our happiness in home or friends; but, if we trust to these alone, I am afraid we shall find, sooner or later, that they may fail. Our happy home may be broken up; our friends may be taken from us. Where then shall we look for true, lasting happiness? Let us go to Jesus for it, let us love Him, and try to please Him; then, having Him for our friend, we shall be happy here on earth, whatever troubles come, and happy afterwards with Him in heaven.

"SOMETHING FOR THEE."

Dear Sir,—I do so want to do something for Jesus; I hope the little word I now write may be of some use, however small, in gathering sheep to his fold.

It is so nice to read of what God graciously allows even his "little ones" to do for Him, such as ministering to the temporal wants of his poor. But better still is it to meditate on what our blessed Lord has done and is doing for us. "While we were yet sinners, Christ died for the ungodly"; and since we rejoice in so great salvation, should it not be our constant delight to call in others, to see and know our Jesus, whom to know is life, peace and joy?

Oh! how blessed it is to know we are verily translated into the kingdom of God's dear Son. I do wish all the children in old England were children of God through faith in Christ Jesus, and believed on Him who said, "They that seek me early, shall find Me."

Let those who desire to be his, remember the sweet texts: "Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out"; and, "Come, let us reason together saith the Lord, though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." I should be so glad if any dear young friend would seek Jesus now; they would never, never repent of it. This is the experience of one of the weakest of His lambs. "Behold now is the day of salvation."

January 11. Kathleen (age 13).

A CHILD'S TRUST.

Two little girls were sitting at their mother's knee one day, listening with deep interest to the daily Bible lesson. She was reading a story of which they never tired—the wonderful story of our blessed Saviour's life on earth. Often as she read and talked to them about his holy life, and of all He did and suffered for them and for us all, she would be interrupted by the earnest little voices saying in a half whisper, and with intense feeling, "Oh, how good and kind Jesus was; I do love Him."

On this particular morning the beautiful story, which they had heard so often, was ended. The account was given of how the tender Saviour had taken his last walk with the disciples whom He loved so much; how He had led them to Bethany, and had his last talk with them; how He promised that the Holy Spirit should soon be poured down upon them, with which they were to go and tell people everywhere that He had died for them, and was risen again; and then how, as He was lifting up his holy hands in blessing, He was parted from them, and a cloud received Him out of their sight.

The eyes of both the children were intently fixed upon their mother's face, as if they feared to lose a word. When the book was shut, little Mary, the youngest (a plump wee maiden, between three and four years old), heaved a deep sigh, and said, "Oh, mother, how I shall pray to Jesus every day to make me good, that I may go and live with Him always? I want to be with Jesus!"

Their mother told them that there must always be trying as well as praying. Jesus said, "Watch and pray; strive to enter in at the strait gate." It is of no use to pray to God to help us to be good, if we do not intend to make an effort ourselves to overcome the sins and temptations that come to us every day. Satan tempts children just as he tempts older people; and he would never cease trying to make them do wrong things; but—"

Here she was interrupted by little Mary's eager voice again: "When Satan tempts me, I shall pray to God and say, 'O God, don't let me listen to Satan; let me do what You want, not what Satan wants.'"

"And I must pray to God to make me patient," whispered Eva, who was little more than a year older than her sister, and who knew well where her great temptation lay.

On the evening of that same day, the children had been peacefully sleeping in their little beds, when Mary suddenly woke, screaming violently, and putting her hand to the side of her head in evident pain. It was only ear-ache; but those of my little readers who have ever suffered from it know that the pain it causes is very sharp. Her kind nurse tried to soothe her, but all her cry was for "Mother." So "Mother" was quickly fetched; and as she took her little darling in her arms, the suffering child's first words amidst her sobs, were, "I know God loves me, mother, though He sends me this pain."

Snugly covered up in a blanket, the mother held her on her lap by the fire, rocking her and softly singing to her till the sobs died away. So still she lay, not moving except occasionally to press her little hand against her ear when some sharp twinge of pain was felt.

A now there came a plaint from another little bed: "Mother, I can't go to sleep again since Mary woke me" (only she called her sister Maly; for she could not pronounce the r's). "I'm so tired, and I can't sleep."

"Be patient my child," was the answer; "sleep will soon come. And think how thankful you should be that you have no pain! You are only tired, and you are in a comfortable bed and will soon rest. Ask God to make you sleep."

"Yes, mother, I will," little Eva replied, in a quite happy and contented voice; for she knew that to pray was always the best way out of all her difficulties.

And a little voice came from the bundle in the blanket, "I must be thankful too, mother; for God has taken a little bit of my pain away," Soon afterwards Mary was laid in her bed again, and she whispered to her mother, who was giving her a last good-night, "Do pray to God to let me sleep!"

And her parents did ask God for this blessing, and He granted it, and gave her a sweet and peaceful night. While as for Eva, she was fast asleep before her sister was taken back to bed! God had answered her prayer.

Jesus hears and answers prayer. Do you ever pray to Him? I know you "say your prayers;" but do you speak to God from your heart, meaning every word you say? When you have done wrong, do you feel unhappy till you have asked God to forgive you for Jesus' sake? When you are in trouble or sorrow of any kind, do you tell Jesus and ask Him to help you? He will always listen to you, be sure of that: and He will either take away your trouble or help you to bear it. He is always the same loving, tender Saviour—He never changes—and He cares for you so much. Even now He is praying in heaven for you. (Heb. vii. 25.)

Dear children, ask Him to make your hearts clean by his Holy Spirit, that you may love Him and obey Him upon earth, and afterwards live for ever with Him in heaven.

H. Morton.

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE WORK.

LITTLEHAMPTON.

A TEN days' Blue Ribbon Mission has been held by Mr. Geo. Blaiklock at this place. More than a fifth of the population have now signed the pledge. Mr. Blaiklock has returned to labour in Cornwall for fifteen days.

RUTHERGLEN.

At a meeting of the Rutherglen Blue Ribbon Army, held in the Town Hall, on Wednesday week, it was stated that since the beginning of the movement a year ago 4450 pledges had been taken in Rutherglen, out of a population of about 13,000. The shopkeepers in the town, such as drapers and grocers, had received an increase of business; the income of the public-houses had very much diminished, and several of them are offered for sale.

It is proposed to build an Institute for Christian work in the town, similar in constitution to that of the Christian Institute in Glasgow, and the Carrubbers Close Mission in Edinburgh. This movement was inaugurated by a largely attended soiree a week or two ago. The meeting was one of the most enthusiastic ever held in Rutherglen, and it was agreed to proceed at once to raise the necessary funds.

LINLITHGOW.

A Gospel Temperance Mission, commenced here about two months ago, is having most encouraging success. The meetings are held weekly in the Vennel Hall. They have been so largely attended of late that it is now proposed to hold them in one of the churches. On Monday week a social meeting was held in the Town Hall, which was filled to overflowing. Rev. Mr. Burns, of the United Presbyterian Church, occupied the chair, and addressed the meeting. Rev. Mr. Mitchell, the newly ordained minister of the Free Church, expressed his thorough sympathy with and readiness to help in the good work. Rev. Mr. McAlpine, of Gorebridge, and Mr. James Pringle, C.A., Edinburgh, gave spirited addresses. Miss Watson, of Rivalsgreen, sang two solos.

Nearly 500 have already joined the Union, and donned the Blue Ribbon. This is a large number in propertion to the population. There have been many peculiarly interesting cases of reclamation in connection with this Mission, and it is believed that with God's blessing much good has been, and will be, effected.

We are requested to say that a "Blue Ribbon Prayer Union" has been formed; all information with respect to it may be obtained from Miss Keyworth, St. Hilary, Hastings,

A MESSAGE FROM OVER THE SEA.

OF all my papers The Christian is the most welcome. I find myself cutting the wrapper with all the eagerness of the child for a fairy tale, or the maiden for the novel. Its contents are often stranger than the wildest fairy tale, and, to those who have learned to take life at its true value, more absorbing than the most brilliant scenes of romance.

As a fellow-worker for that Master whose great name unites our hearts in grateful sympathy across the water, I clasp the hands of Ellice Hopkins and Josephine Butler; for in the same field of labour I have learned the mind of Christ toward the "lost." In growing spheres of usefulness I follow Lady Hope, out among the poor drunkards—brothers still: turning ever to her books upon my table for words of cheer and suggestions of guidance.

With Mr. Radcliffe I tread the low streets of London, knowing many such in my own land by experience, longing for the day when all who call themselves by Christ's blessed name shall be found "occupying" these places for Him whose right it is to reign and conquer darkness. With the Indian workers, and with Miss Macpherson, and a host of others, I seem to have been long and intimately acquainted. I rejoice to know that as your paper moves on in its blessed Mission, it is gloriously answering that last prayer, "that they all may be one, as Thou, Father, art in Me and I in Thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me."

But to-night it is Mrs. Reaney who has stirred my soul to write you. As I read in the paper of December 21st of her Christmas party, I felt that I would, too, like to tell to the children and their loving mothers the story of a Christmas party, held in the house where I write, nine years ago.

God gave to me our little darling. Early given to his love and service, she was taught to pray. Kneeling on my lap, with her arms about my neck, from the very first I encouraged her to pray in her own words. The attitude, with its suggestions of a loving rest, and the heart-utterances, made prayer the great pleasure of the day. To her Jesus was a dear friend, and as she realised the great fact of his Mission, she sought Him, that she might lay both sin and sorrow on his sympathising heart. So real was the friendship, that when weary and sleepy she often said simply, "Dear Father, I'm so tired—good night!" I never urged for more at such times.

Thus, in the midst of the joyous play, often we would find a pause, and a little form kneeling to tell Jesus of the ugly word or deed, and then rising up again in glad tone, "It's washed out now—it's all right with Jesus and me!" And so, too, the glad things were brought Him for thanksgiving: the new doll, the happy visit, the child friends; all that made life what it was to her. I learned from my own child what it was to walk with God.

She was born on the 20th of December, and when she was three years old it was proposed that she should have a party. I told her its meaning. I told her, too, of little ones who had no toys, no bright homes, no mother-hands to love and caress, and said, "Will you have your party for children like yourself, or for poor children?" And gladly she replied, "for the poor children." And so she had them to the number of one hundred, from the asylums and charity schools.

I can see them now, looking back through misty eyes—the brilliant drawing-room, the laden tree, the eager faces, the beloved young physician who personated "Santa Claus"—some from the one rank, and some from the other, have met again, met where the joyousness and the brightness are never ended!

This was her first and only party. Little Minnie sleeps in Jesus. Three years longer she stayed with us, a happy child, visiting at times a few poor widows with her little basket of dainties; singing for a few poor invalids in dreary homes the sweet songs of Beulah land, ever asking, "Let me be useful, Let me take the 'tired' off somebody;" and then her work was done!

But this Christmas season, in a Memorial Home for young children that bears her name, other little children danced around a Christmas tree, and her mother rejoiced to know that the desire of her little heart was granted, and that in the years to come these and other neglected ones from Christless homes will bless her memory, as they gather year by year on the Christ-child's birthday, for a "Christmas party." In the reception-room of the Home a life-size portrait of the child makes the little ones familiar with the face that shall one day, we trust, welcome them all to the heavenly home, and the tablet bears the following inscription:—

MINNIE,
Daughter of Charles and Aminta E. Green, was called from earth to heaven
March 28, 1878,
in her seventh year.
To fulfil her oft-expressed desire "to be useful,"
this Memorial Mission to rescue the perishing is established by her mother.

I have written thus to-night, desiring to say a few words to the loving mothers of living children in the many homes where The Christian enters. Bring your little ones early in life to know Jesus, as near and dear not alone in personal intercourse, but in the person of his poor. Let them know as soon as they can talk the blessed meaning of the "Inasmuch." Bring them into contact with God's poor from the very nursery; encourage them to spend their pennies not for self but for others. This, to my view, is what the Church wants to-day: a missionary spirit nursed at the breast, cherished on the knee, cultured by familiarity with the homes of the widows and fatherless, before the world absorbs the interests and taxes the energies.

Let every Christian mother train her children thus, ever looking unto Jesus, through whom we can "do all things." Then we shall not have to plead for workers and for money to evangelise the heathen world; from thousands of consecrated nurseries and school-rooms there will come young men and women glowing with the ardour of first love, crying "Send me! I come, O! my God, to do thy will."

And should your child, oh, grieving mother, be early called to serve in the "house not made with hands," seek no solace in the costly marble which must crumble when Christ returneth, but write in living hearts, in sorrow's great family, the blessed truth you love—that God is love, and in Him is no darkness, and the whole family in heaven and earth are one in Him. A. E. G.

Savannah, Georgia, U.S.A.,
Jan. 7, 1883.

THE ZENANA BIBLE AND MEDICAL MISSION have published a very interesting little book, describing the Zenana system of India, the condition of women and girls who are secluded in the Zenanas, and the great need there is for increased missionary work amongst them. Copies may be had from the office of the Mission, 2, Adelphi-terrace, W.C.

RETIREMENT.

YE things terrestrial that crowd me round;
Ye mean, unworthy cares that much abound;
Ye many-tongued calls that ask my ear;
Ye many off-springs of mistrust and fear;
I charge ye, hence—away! away!—
Let me go up "Apart to Pray"!

Ye tinselled vanities, robed in deceit;
Ye gods of gold that tempt aside the feet;
Ye vain desires that give the heart unrest;
Ye evil tempers that pollute the breast;
I charge ye ever hence away,
Let me go up "Apart to Pray"!

Ye gentler things; ye all but heavenly things—
Home flowers, that round the heart entwine their strings;
Ye kindly voices, and ye tender hands,
That hold me softly by love's silken bands;
I charge even ye, awhile away,
Let me go up "Apart to Pray"!

There in meek stillness would I lend my ear
To the sweet counsels of my Father dear;
List to his teachings in each bitter cross;
Learn what rich grace He gives for my small loss.
Thus from earth's busy noise I would away,
And up the mountain go to learn and pray.

In holy boldness, there would I inquire
Knowledge of such as angel-minds desire.
With eagle eye my faith would gaze and gaze
On God's resplendent truth with glad amaze.
Thus from earth's dusty vale would I away,
And up the mountain go to muse and pray.

There, wait the signals of the Gospel sky,
Revealing Christ the King of Glory nigh;
There, watch the first glad ray that meets the sight,
And breaks his day of everlasting light.
Thus from earth's darksome mists would I away,
And up the mountain go to watch and pray.

Up on the mountain—oh, how sweet to feel
Heaven's balmy zephyrs o'er my spirit steal!
How good to reach fresh vigour from the sky,
And catch new fire from God's refulgent eye!
So let me from earth's elements away,
And up the mountain go "Apart to Pray."

E. G.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

GENEVA.

A YOUNG Englishman, at present on the Continent, sends us an account of a meeting held in Geneva in connection with the Salvation Army. The meeting took place in the Salle de la Reformation, which holds some 4000 people. During the earlier part of the meeting some disturbance was caused by the presence and interruptions of a small but noisy band of students. The writer says:—

The noise increased, so we sang, "My all is on the altar." Miss Booth, after again speaking, asked those who were desirous of pardon to stand up. A large number did so. They could not continue on account of the noise, so Mr. Clibborn asked the seekers to come into an adjoining room. There we had a glorious meeting. One after another went forward and gave up all to God. I nearly jumped off my seat when I saw one of my fellow-students get up, go forward, fall on his knees, and pray for salvation. How I did pray for him; he was the last to find peace, but what glory when he found it! How glad we were; we even kissed each other, and I don't know what. Tell me the Army is excitement! That young fellow thought before going there that he was really saved; it was when he found himself sifted by the Holy Ghost that he found out his position. Glory be to God that the Army has come to Switzerland.

KONIGSHEIM HOUSE OF REST, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—This Home was opened on January 23, 1882, to provide a temporary residence, with board, for governesses and lady Christian workers. Since that time fifty-six ladies have been resting here; letters have been received from many of them referring to the benefit derived from the institution. Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Currie, Edinburgh-place, Weston-super-Mare.

PRAYER AND WORK FOR MISSIONS.

Address by Rev. E. W. MOORE.

At Centenary Hall, Saturday, Jan. 13.

IN one of the passages of Scripture annexed to our subject in the paper to-day, you will find a remarkable utterance of our Lord, which seems appropriate to occupy our attention. It is Luke x. 2: "Therefore said He unto them, The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that He would send forth labourers into his harvest." We have here three points: the Field, the Labourers, and the Petition.

THE FIELDS.

Our Lord, as we know, frequently employs the operations of husbandry as a figure to illustrate spiritual work and service. Let us look at a few points of similarity. I think He must have been standing and looking, as the time of harvest drew near, and was struck by its extent. And the first thought that we have, when we contemplate the Mission field, is its boundless extent. If we think of the Mission field in London alone we are overwhelmed at the thought of the multitudes who are as "sheep without a shepherd." Our Lord, when He was in Judea, seemed oppressed with the multitudes of people. At any time a great multitude is a solemn sight, when we reflect upon the number of conflicting interests and sorrows represented there, and on the present occasion we have to think of the vast multitudes in connection with service for Christ.

Think of the millions of heathen! I remember to have heard of one who was led to go into the missionary field on being informed that there were five hundred millions of human beings in spiritual darkness. He could not get away from the thought of five hundred millions in the shadow of death, and this was the cause of his offering himself to the service of God as a missionary. Well may these millions of perishing souls be compared to a mighty harvest field.

Again, the Lord had in his mind, surely, the value of the harvest. We are, of course, aware that the whole staff of life is drawn from the harvest fields; but we do not fully realise how valuable and variable they are, and how much depends upon the harvest every year. We may not have observed that there is never more than one and a half year's provision for the world in store at one time; if the harvest were to fail all over the globe, in any given year, its inhabitants would starve. Not even the riches of the millionaire would be of any avail. We are kept dependent on God for our daily bread in a way that we little dream of; the value of the harvest for the support of the life that now is, is incalculable and impossible to overrate. But what is the value of the natural harvest-field compared with that of which Christ spoke when, referring to a single stalk, He said, "What is a man profited if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul; or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" If in the mind of Him who could properly estimate the value of all things, one man's soul outweighed the worth to himself of the wealth of the whole world, what must be the value of the hundreds of millions of individual souls that people this globe, and are living without God and without hope?

I believe we do not feel the need of missionary effort because we do not bring ourselves face to face with these facts. We do not meditate upon them, and ponder them in the light of God's Word and experience. We do not realise the value, not of the millions, but even of a single soul in the sight of God. I am more than ever struck with the importance of coming face to face with things thoroughly to appreciate their real importance. Have you ever been struck with this fact? You may have read, for instance, in a newspaper, during the recent campaign between France and Germany, that thousands of people had perished, and a thrill of horror occupied you for a moment; but it would not affect you like the sight of a little child run over just opposite your door. In one case you see the whole accident; you rush out with your heart full, and you desire to render any assistance in your power; and you would be more moved by this single incident than by a catastrophe which involves the misery of thousands of families. And why? Because in the one instance you saw the accident, and in the other you only read of the terrible affair.

Now, it is not until we bring ourselves into the very presence of the value of souls, be they one or more, that we can properly estimate the importance of missionary effort. It was when Jesus Christ had the object present to his mind, when He beheld the doomed city of Jerusalem, that He wept over it. We may not be able to realise the need of vast multitudes, yet we can readily understand the worth of individual souls. May we be led to inquire whether there is not someone to whom we have immediate access, over whom we may have special influence, whom we know to be perishing, and the value of whose immortal soul we have not properly estimated. If we consider the value of this single stalk in the spiritual harvest-field, let us ask, "Am I doing what I can for its salvation?" We judge of the value of a thing by what it costs, and we know that it cost the life of the incarnate God to ransom a single soul.

There is another thing to be considered: the extraordinary readiness, or the ripeness, of the field for the hand of the worker or reaper that prevails everywhere. The spirit of hearing the Gospel is prevalent to a remarkable extent in the day in which we live. On the occasion referred to by our Saviour, the fields were ripe to the harvest. And so there are certain times in the history of individuals, and communities, and the world, when God seems to set before us an open door. He says, "Now is the accepted time; now is the day of salvation;" for that soul, or that city, or that nation, or for this particular part of service into which He sends us. It is, I say, a characteristic of the days in which we live, that there never were such openings for the extension of the Gospel of the grace of God as now. I am astonished at the readiness with which the people receive tracts, and allow religious conversation.

I cannot recollect the state of things fifty years ago; but those who do, notice a marked change on the surface of society. At one time religious conversation was tabooed altogether. It was considered quite out of place, and could not be introduced into many circles. Even where it was tolerated, it was very superficial, and by no means of a soul-searching and soul-saving character. What a call this is! Surely the fields at home and abroad are ripe to the harvest. May we have the spirit to go in and reap!

Then again, harvest-time is the season in which the work must be done. If the reaping be neglected, then it cannot be overtaken. The period is a limited one. So it is with the souls whom we would seek to save. We are constantly reminded of the rapid flight of time, and how short the life is, as well of the workers as of those among whom they work. Time seems to fly more rapidly the further we advance in years. To the boy at school how wearily time drags along; but in after-life we feel it is fast slipping away. What have we done? What are we doing? Are we losing our opportunities? If we do not seize them, we shall have to give an account of our stewardship. We cannot redeem our misspent time.

THE LABOURERS.

See what the Lord says as to the labourers: "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that He would send forth labourers into his harvest." Then how much preparation is needed for those who would be true labourers in the Mission field? First of all, a labourer is one who understands what work means. He is not one who comes to look on, to comment, to criticise, to find fault, and to loiter about the field. The labourer does not pay other people to do the work. He is personally engaged; and he finds it real work, not play. Sometimes, when prosecuted in earnest, extreme toil results in the utmost weariness and fatigue. Much self-denial and temperance have to be practised to qualify the labourer for his work. When the sun has risen with a burning heat he is not to go and sleep in the shade. "A son that sleepeth in harvest causeth shame." He must be prepared to "bear the burden and the heat of the day," no matter how intense it may be, in the service of the Master.

The labourer postpones everything for his work. Labourers in harvest time toil early and late; and sometimes deny themselves the necessary time for food, because they feel the importance of the work. And the Christian worker, if he enter into the spirit of the work for the Master, must postpone his own interests and put Christ's first. He must seek first the extension of the Redeemer's Kingdom. We must put Him first, literally, actually, and ourselves second; and trust Him with the results. If a minister of Christ were to seek first his own popularity, his own income, or whatever personal consideration it might be, how strongly would it be felt that he was acting inconsistently with his Christian profession. But, whatever position we occupy in the vineyard, we have no right, either of us, to tarry over our own affairs. There should not be the distinction between the sacred and secular days of the week which obtains in this respect. Our Christianity is not to be ventilated only on Sunday, and to be left alone the rest of the week. Let us carry it with us into the counting-house, on the mart, and everywhere else. Let us have the extension of Christ's Kingdom and glory at heart, as the first and foremost concern of our daily life.

We must not forget that special preparation is required for labourers in the Mission field. If I were asked to summarise the special aptitudes of these labourers I should say,—First, they must be prepared; second, they must be authorised; third, they must be equipped. Christ would not send us unless we are prepared for his service; and the amount of soul preparation needed to be a successful worker for Jesus is not adequately apprehended. We often complain of the want of the results of our work, and we must be content to wait; but there is a time of harvest spoken of when we are expected to reap and see results.

In a religious paper, recently, a writer asked his friends to explain how it was that he who was himself converted and had preached Christ faithfully, had not found results. People were pleased and instructed, but he did not see in his class or his parish, persons brought to Christ, broken down under a sense of sin, and finding pardon and peace, as was the case with some others of whom he spoke. Answers were given, but they did not touch the root of the question. In order to have results the labourer must be prepared by God himself.

I do not say that God does not use us from the beginning. He does. But to have results to an appreciable extent we want hearts cleansed and purified by the fire of the Holy Ghost; so that the vessel which is to be filled with the living water, and whose thirst is to be quenched, may be also clean. There is an indissoluble connection between inward purity and power for service. God leaves the vessels on the shelf that are not fit for his service. "Be ye clean that bear the vessels of the Lord." May we be taught the deep and full meaning of this. I believe it is the great want of the Church in the present day.

Another thought is that the labourer must be equipped. What would be the use of a labourer going into a harvest-field without scythe or sickle, or for a soldier to go into the battle-field without a sword? So with us; we must take with us into this work for the Lord, and know how to use it, the blessed Word of God. This is the one great means which the Holy Spirit employs for reaping in heaven's harvest-field. We must know how to furbish it, and keep it free from rust. If we go to our Master's work from the closet, the Word will be carried home with convincing power to the hearts and consciences of those to whom we may be privileged to speak. If, however, the Word be allowed partially to rust, this sickle of the Holy Ghost will become comparatively useless.

THE PETITION.

Before concluding, I must say one word about the prayer. Pray for labourers. Why? Because only God can raise them up. God is willing so to do, but He waits for us to entreat Him. Though He be willing and able, He cannot do it consistently with his own purposes in revelation unless his children plead with Him. "Thus saith the Lord God: I will yet for this be enquired of by the house of Israel to do it for them." May God give us the spirit of grace and of supplications; then we shall not only see more labourers thrust out into the harvest-field, but they will be more certainly commissioned and better equipped for doing His service.

A CONFERENCE WITH "FREETHINKERS."

ON Sunday, Jan. 21, a number of Libres-penseurs invited several of the Christian ministers of Paris to a discussion in the Salle Levis at Batignolles. Dr. de Pressensé and Pasteurs Hollard and Theodore Monod accepted the invitation. The spacious hall was well filled with men and women.

The audience having named the assessors, one of whom was the famous Louise Michel, who however, was not present, the discussion was opened by an aged Libre-penseur, who denounced the Gospel as encouraging idleness, because it said, "Take no thought for the morrow;" and theft, because it said, "If any man will have thy cloke, let him have thy coat also." However, the speaker soon went off into a long discussion on Catholicism. To the first part of his argument, M. Frank Puaux replied in a few pithy remarks, rebutting the charge of encouragement to idleness by reference to the words, "If a man will not work neither shall he eat."

A Catholic orator then arose, but his efforts to defend his Church were quite unacceptable to the audience, who utterly refused him a hearing. He stoutly stood on the right of free discussion, which was supported by the Chairman and Pasteur Monod; nevertheless the audience would not hear him, so that he was obliged to retire. A very eloquent half-caste then got possession of the tribune, and tried to turn the tables on the pasteurs, declaring that they also were materialists.

When he sat down, Dr. de Pressensé rose to speak, and having given the audience some admirable teaching on true free-thinking, he said that he would put the discussion on the right ground. It was to-day not a question of this Church or that Church. The grand point in dispute was the existence of God. It was said that science had disposed of this and all such questions, but he was a little too much of a Libre-penseur to accept this dictum. Science might refer all things to atoms, but what was it that made the atoms live? Two very distinguished savants at the College of France had lately admitted that this was the problem they could not solve. And yet in it was involved this very question of the existence of God. How then could it be said that Science had resolved the question? Could they explain that interior voice which reproached them when they did evil? (Clamour.) Well, if they had not heard the voice he had. Finally, he showed that human liberty depended on a personal God, for if the power at the basis of things was blind force, men were only machines, and might be treated as such.

After a speaker who trotted out the old sore of the burning of Servetus, an orator arose who avowed himself there neither as a Liber-penseur nor as a Christian, but as a representative of the Parti Ouvrier. This speaker divided the interest of the discussion with Dr. de Pressensé, for he clearly showed that the real opposition to religion in the minds of working men was not to any intellectual arguments which could be offered on its behalf, but to the fact that modern Christianity was the support of the capitalist and plutocrat. He declared the question was not at all one of the brain but of the stomach. It was useless to offer men mental or spiritual food until you had satisfied their bodily hunger. Dr. de Pressensé had spoken of Lincoln and Garfield, but American Christianity was a bourgeois religion, seeking only to support men in their avid collection of individual wealth. To every description he gave of the evils inflicted on the working classes by the plutocracy, he added: "These gentlemen need a God to support them in their doings." He then drew a picture of society as the socialist would have it.

Pasteur Hollard, with many interruptions, and at a late hour of the meeting, offered some remarks on the burning of Servetus, and on the question of the formation of the conscience, which the last speaker had described as simply the ideas of the centre in which men were reared, reflected on their brains. If so, M. Hollard asked, whence did progress come?

The discussion must have been beneficial to both the Libres-penseurs and the Christians present—to the former, in showing them that the Christian pastors are not in the least degree afraid to meet them; and to the latter it must have taught the lesson that the working man's objections to Christianity are not after all intellectual but social—that his real objection is that it is no longer a Gospel to the poor, but a religion used to shield the rich and the strong in working to their own advantage the thousands who are poor and weak. Whether we think this charge true or false, it is of the highest importance that Christians should know that this is what thousands of the working classes throughout Europe think.

CHICAGO BOYS.

DEAR SIR,—A series of Boys' Meetings was recently held in our city by Mr. J. S. Smithson, well known to you. The meetings were held eight consecutive evenings, and were composed of audiences gathered from the streets and alleys down town as well as from the homes in residential parts of the city. The bootblacks, newsboys, and street boys were held with an interest as intense as that which held the adults in the galleries evening after evening through the series.

Though he has been but a short time in Chicago, Mr. Smithson has made himself felt to an unusual degree in the religious circles of the city. He is a member of the Evangelical Committee, and through his efforts the recent Conference of 500 ministers and laymen of the North-west was held. He delivered a lecture in Farwell Hall on Egypt, which brought the Y.M.C.A. 1000 dollars for the refurnishing of their building. And now his "Talks to Boys" have reached out in another direction, with an influence more potent than this present time can reveal. His methods and manner, as well as his zeal, remind us of Mr. Moody. As a Christian business man his influence is felt among business men, and in benevolence and in service he is an example to them.

INCIDENTS OF THE MEETINGS.

A list of 200 names of boys who remained to the second meeting was obtained. These have been visited at their homes by ladies interested in the work. Many are found to belong to irreligious families and to be attending no Sunday-school.

At the closing meeting on Sunday night, sixty boys gave their names to Mr. Smithson, with the word "worker" attached, signifying their trust in Christ, and their purpose henceforth to serve Him. To some were added such sentences as the following: "I am glad I went to the meetings, for I have found Christ." "Jesus loves me and I love Him." "I love the Lord." "I have found the Lord this week." "I am going to be a Christian." Some made the decision at the first or second meeting, and give good evidence of a change of heart.

A lad of fifteen years from the Newsboys Home, unable either to read or write, the first night of his coming, upon being assured that he could receive salvation free, with joy accepted Christ as his Saviour. For two weeks he gave himself to the study of the Ten Commandments, that he may enter the Sunday-school. A sense of shame for his ignorance forbade him to go until they were committed to memory.

Two young lads, motherless, and with an intemperate father, give good evidence of a change of heart. Two other young lads, upon whose young shoulders burdens have already been laid, give clear testimony—the only witnesses of Christ in that family.

A young man of nineteen, whose rough contact with the world was only too evident, on the second night made the unconditional surrender of himself. Clothed, and in his right mind, he now attends Sunday-school prayer-meeting and the pastor's class of instruction, giving good evidence of the grace of God in his soul.

The list of names embraces boys of all nationalities, representing all faiths and all denominations. One touching feature was the large number of motherless boys. The names of the boys attending different Sunday-schools were sent to the pastors or superintendents of these Sunday-schools to be looked after and nourished in the new life.

The good results of the meetings were not confined to the boys. Many girls were reached, and every Sunday brings some for special conversation. A woman went out of the room one evening rejoicing in the hope that her infidel husband, for whom she had prayed for twenty-two years, had accepted the Christ he had so long rejected.

The presentation of truth by Mr. Smithson, though addressed to boys, and holding their close attention for forty minutes each evening, was no less instructive to adults, and to Christians. The results of the meeting are not easy to sum up. The illustrations given are a few out of many. In addition, there is the wider result of a large increase of attendance upon the Sunday-school and the pastor's class of instruction, and a boys' prayer-meeting in the church, where the meetings were held. But, above all these, those interested believe that the larger harvest will be seen at that day when the invisible results of all work are manifested.

Another leading feature in the results of these meetings has been their influence upon the lads in Christian families, in bringing them to a sense of their responsibility, and to open confession of Christ.

A REFUGE IN PARIS.

IN a communication received from Pastor Appia, of Paris, he says: We are anxious to interest your readers in our Refuge in Paris, which was opened seven years ago. These years of painful toil have borne good fruit. It was the visit of Elizabeth Fry, in 1835, which led to the formation of the Committee of St. Lazare, one member of which, our venerable friend Mdlle. Dumas, still lives. Subsequent efforts were made in connection with the Deaconesses' Institution, and in 1873 a legacy was left, for the foundation of a Refuge, by the Countess Pelet de la Lozère.

Many of us had listened to the burning words of Mrs. Josephine Butler, who came among us to preach the crusade against vice. We were resolved to do to the utmost of our power in this matter, and offer a place of Refuge to penitent women.

Nearly one hundred penitents have passed through our Refuge since January, 1876, and instead of being able to go in search of others, we are constantly compelled by want of room to refuse admittance.

We have to leave our present location, and are much in need of a new and suitable building. We feel sure that English Christians will lend us their aid in erecting a citadel of rescue in the great city where there are so many strongholds of vice. Messrs. Barclay, Bevan and Co., bankers, Lombard-street, London, E.C., will receive help towards this good object.

REV. E. VANORDEN writes from Rio Grande do Sul that he is having an interesting work among the sailors in the port. He adds: "I am sorry to say we shall have to close the year with a debt of at least £120."

BETHEL GOSPEL HALL, HOLLOWAY ROAD.—A meeting for conference and praise was held at the above hall on Tuesday evening, 23rd ult. Several gentlemen gave addresses on the subject of "Christian work." Mr. J. Trotman, 196, Holloway-road, conductor of this Mission, is open for engagements in Gospel or Gospel Temperance work.

Notes and Comments.

THE Princess of Wales has earned the legitimate gratitude of the nation by heading a movement for abolishing the barbarous custom of shooting live pigeons for sport.

In an able review of M. Renan's recent book, "Marcus Aurelius, and the End of the Ancient World," in the British Quarterly Review, the Rev. W. F. Adeney says :—

Marcus Aurelius persecuted Christianity with a severity hitherto unknown ; it was carried out on system by his government, and new cruelties of torture added . . . . The great political motive for the persecution of the Church was undoubtedly the danger which it appeared to threaten to the Empire. It was an imperium in imperio ; of all governments the Roman was the most jealous of such an institution.

In the light of this fact we perceive the significance of the two last verses of the Acts of the Apostles :—

And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him, preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him.

During those two whole years Paul was boldly laying the foundation of this imperium in imperio, in the capital city of the Roman Empire, and in the providence of God no one forbade him, or persecuted him, until the work was done. Then he was martyred, and the fierce persecutions of the Church followed.

Amongst other things which are being shaken, that those things which cannot be shaken may remain, is the Presbyterian Confession of Faith. At the recent Conference of the London Presbytery it was contended that the teaching of the Confession, that Christ died for the elect [alone], was not the teaching of the Lord Jesus or of his Apostles, and that the Christian conscience revolted at the teaching of the Confession regarding the fate of the heathen, and of non-elect children who died in infancy. This discussion was opened by Mr. Robert Whyte, an elder in Dr. Dykes' Church, who was supported, amongst others, by Dr. Edmond, Dr. Donald Fraser, and Dr. Dykes ; and opposed by Dr. Fisher, Rev. R. Taylor, and Rev. A. Jeffrey, of Ipswich.

The following paragraph, extracted from one of our latest-received American exchanges, is a welcome commentary on the articles from The Century Magazine the concluding portion of which appears in our columns to-day :—

The Christian League Club of New Albion is already bearing fruit ; the ministers of the City of Paris, Texas, were invited to the parsonage of the First Cumberland Presbyterian Church, a few evenings back, for the purpose of organising a club similar to that of New Albion. The constitution was adopted without any change, the following Churches entering into the organisation most heartily: Methodist Episcopal, South Baptist, Chr stian, Congregational, Episcopal, Old School Presbyterian, and First Cumberland Presbyterian.

Referring to this subject, a West-end correspondent remarks on the waste of power and other evil results that flow from the lack of brotherly co-operation on the part of those who conduct the Sabbath schools in any particular district.

In our last issue we briefly alluded to a remarkable movement in Denmark, with regard to the regulation of the drink traffic ; the subject is of such vast importance that we return to it. It is evident that our Scandinavian neighbours are awaking to see the evils of drunkenness, and are making a strenuous effort to cope with them. In Copenhagen, the capital, the following regulations have been made : No women will in future be allowed to serve in the bars of public-houses, or other drinking-places. The selling of drink to persons, of either sex, under the age of eighteen, or to persons no longer sober, is strictly prohibited. Any drunken person is to be taken to his home in a covered carriage, and the cost of the carriage is to be defrayed by the landlord of the public-house in which he was last supplied with drink. The number of public-houses in Copenhagen is to be reduced from 1350 to 300.

We specially hail with satisfaction the abolition of barmaids' work in Copenhagen. A friend recently returned from the United States, tells us that from one side of the States to the other the traveller never sees a woman serving in a bar or a drinking-place. The degradation connected with this unwomanly work ; the very special temptations closely associated with it ; and all the vile surroundings of this evil occupation, call upon our nation, and especially those who profess to be the followers of Christ, to secure legislative measures that shall exclude women from a work which she can never ennoble ; which must exercise an evil influence upon conscience and heart, and which, alas! has too often led to her temporal and eternal ruin.

Young women, in most cases, become barmaids without realising what are to be their surroundings : many of them are from country places, where they have had but little knowledge of the drinking world. Once in the work it is difficult to obtain suitable occupation elsewhere ; day by day they submit to listen to the blasphemous ribaldry of their customers, to hear the coarse pleasantries of the young "gentlemen" who frequent the bar ; and they are expected to maintain a cheerful demeanour in an atmosphere where modesty, sobriety, and the fear of God are next to impossible.

Doubtless there are exceptions ; these do but make the "rule more striking by contrast." "Increase of knowledge" is too often "increase of sorrow." If any Christian people doubt the truth of this picture, we ask them to visit the drinking bars of any large town and judge for themselves. It may be objected that such prohibitory legislation would be an interference with "the liberty of the subject." It is high time that the subjects of Satan should not have unrestrained liberty to degrade the women of our land. We feel convinced that to forbid the employment of women in serving out drink in public drinking-places would remove a national disgrace, would confer an inestimable boon upon "the weaker sex," and above all would keep thousands of them from ignorantly entering upon a career which becomes a bitter and hateful bondage, and leads to a godless and hopeless end.

We are glad to believe, judging from the recent public utterances of some members of the Government, that the general question of licensing drink-shops will be dealt with in the approaching session, either as part of the proposed County Government Bill, or in a separate measure providing for the appointment of popularly-elected Boards of Control. With a contemporary "we hope that whatever is offered as a check upon the drink traffic will be a real check, and will give the people power in determining whether they will have these drink shops among them or not."

The Canadian correspondent of The Record gives us, in a recent letter, many interesting facts with regard to religious matters there. In the province of Montreal, under the leadership of the highly esteemed Bishop Bond, a man of pronounced Evangelical views and sympathies, the Episcopal Church has been prospering greatly. In the diocese of Ontario (the most easterly part of the province of Ontario), "where High Churchism is most exclusively predominant," the Episcopal Church has made less progress than in any other part of the Dominion. The entire population of Ontario during the decade ending 1881 had increased 25 per cent., but the Episcopal Church in the diocese had increased only 2 per cent. This is the more striking when put alongside of the fact that some of the most active and energetic of the other denominations had increased 35 per cent.

Of course these returns cannot be taken as setting forth actual spiritual results, but we gather from them that the general feeling in Canada is in favour of Evangelical religion, and against the sacerdotalism of hybrid popery, which, alas ! has of late been receiving much favour in certain quarters in our own land.

We also learn that Methodists of all shades in Canada are seeking for some common basis upon which to amalgamate. It is difficult to justify the separation that has hitherto prevailed ; and it is easy to see a hundred reasons for an amalgamation, from which we confidently predict a large measure of blessing and of increased power. We trust that this happy re-union will soon be accomplished.

We look for a vast increase in the amount of Evangelistic work in the Dominion of Canada. It is very greatly needed. The work has not always been wisely carried on there ; but where fit persons, with the good wishes and co-operation of the various denominations, have carried on the work judiciously and earnestly, respecting legitimate and inevitable differences of opinion among Christians, their labours have been as heartily appreciated as in this country. Such men are greatly in demand. May the blessing now coming down so mightily upon our country be abundantly given also to Canada !

We trust that our temporary occupation of Egypt may not merely result in temporal benefit to the Egyptian people. The influence of England is needed in that country to bring about real religious toleration. At present, for a native to become a convert to Christianity is almost certain death. The devotees of Islam need to learn the lesson of religious moderation towards those who may renounce that effete faith. Should the day come, in God's providence, when a man can openly, and without fear, confess Christ in Egypt, it is impossible to say how widespread a work of grace might be seen there.

Rev. Dr. Landels has resigned the pastorate of Regent's Park Chapel, having accepted an invitation to become pastor of the Dublin-street Church, Edinburgh. His return to Scotland after many years of good work in London will be hailed with great satisfaction by our northern friends. Few London pulpits have been occupied by men of such strong, outspoken convictions, and of such heart-stirring testimony for the Gospel of Christ. His work has been very real, though not so widely known, perhaps, as that of some other preachers.

The striking testimony to the advantage of total abstinence, made by Lord Wolseley to a deputation from the Gospel Temperance Mission of Blackburn, deserves to be recorded, and we hope will go the round of the public press, as well as be reiterated from the pulpit and the platform :—

In the Red River expedition, against the advice even of the medical officers who accompanied the troops, he decided that no spirituous liquors should be taken with the force, yet no men ever did harder work, or behaved better than the men of that expedition. It was foretold that all sorts of miseries, ills, and ailments would befall them, but never was there a body of men more healthy than they were while passing through a wild and desolate country such as that traversed. The doctors who predicted those evils had nothing to do recently in South Africa. His personal body-guard were almost exclusively temperance men, and in lengthened and somewhat difficult campaigns he had never any trouble with them, and by their cheeriness they set an example to the whole force.

In reference to the recent campaign in Egypt, his lordship said that in the account of Sir Ralph Abercrombie's expedition to Egypt, it was long ago stated that the good conduct, the health, and magnificent bearing of the troops were attributed to the fact that no liquor was issued to them. He added that—

During the recent campaign in Egypt the remembrance of those words made a great impression upon him. The doctors again told him that it was very necessary that the men should have grog, and he was obliged, owing to great pressure put upon him, to allow it occasionally, but it was given in very small quantities and rarely; yet those men rivalled their predecessors in that country by their admirable behaviour. They were exposed to considerable privations in regard to food and drink, and subjected to many temptations, especially on entering Cairo, where there were grog-shops in every street, and some streets were almost exclusively composed of them; but during the whole time he was in Egypt he never saw a drunken soldier. He had long been one of those who believed that the great source of crime, disobedience, and other evils in the army was to be found in drink. He firmly believed that if we could only have an army which not only wore Her Majesty's colours, but also wore the blue ribbon, it would be the finest army ever sent into the field to represent this country. If there was one curse more than any other to which our people were subject, and which seemed to have fallen upon us from time immemorial, it was the curse of drink. He believed it to be the source of all crime, not only in the army, but in civil life, and he wished them every success in their efforts to counteract the evil.

The last sentence is more than the truth; not drink, but the desperately wicked heart is the source of crime. While thankful for such an outspoken testimony from so experienced a General, we must not think that we should have "dried up all the streams of sin," even if we had banished alcohol from the earth.

Fifty years ago we and thousands of other children went without sugar in our tea, and in other ways were taught to deny ourselves, in order that we might be identified with the Anti-Slavery agitation, and contribute our mite to the twenty millions sterling paid to the West Indian planters. Every family thus interested in Abolition was being educated in righteousness and in the self-sacrifice which righteousness involves; and they were also taught the sanctity of the human body, and the inalienable right of every one unconvicted of crime to the possession of himself.

A slavery exists to-day far more devilish than negro slavery ever was. The worst feature of that iniquity was the demoralisation of the slave owners and of the women slaves. The enslavement of the negro was for the purpose of enforced labour; the demoralisation was a natural but not an inevitable consequence and accompaniment of the system; but the system of white slavery is for the sole purpose of demoralisation and iniquity. The former was not incompatible with purity of heart and piety of life in the slave; but the latter naturally and necessarily tends to the destruction of everything that is pure and good. Our present issue reports a crusade which is really a "holy war" against an unholy legislation.

The anti-slavery agitation under Wilberforce and Clarkson raised the standard of Christian conscience; and this new agitation will do the same. But in order to this, it must be known; and the greatest obstacle with which it has to contend is the unwillingness of Christians to pay any attention to the subject. The iniquitous legislation which does evil that good may come, "whose damnation is just," would soon be swept away if the people of God would awake to righteousness; but until they do, we do not expect that England will be arrested in her downward course. This vile and oppressive system may have to be extended to the whole land; and in all our towns and cities many a broken-hearted mother may have her child hounded to shame or death by Government spies and police procurers, before Christian England will awake to righteousness, and sin not against her own flesh and blood, against her own weak and unwarned daughters.

Once to every man and nation
Comes the moment to decide,
In the strife of truth with error,
For the wrong or righteous side.
Some great crisis, God's Messiah,
Offers each the bloom or blight—
Parts the goats upon the left hand,
And the sheep upon the right;
And the choice goes by for ever,
'Twixt the darkness and the light.

Application for the services of Mr. Francis Murphy, or his son, Mr. T. E. Murphy, should be addressed to "The Secretary," 12, Paternoster Buildings, London, E.C.

THE LATE MR. T. M. CROOME.—On Monday, January 15, this earnest and devoted servant of God, well-known to many of our readers, fell asleep in Jesus. Born in 1834, he was early called upon, on the death of his father, to assume the responsibilities of business in the legal profession. During a visit to Weston he heard some addresses by Lord Radstock, which led him to take a bold stand on the Lord's side. He thenceforth took an active personal interest in all kinds of Christian work. Sometime ago, domestic affliction, a neglected cold, and a long, exhausting journey, laid him prostrate. Various remedies were tried, but he gradually sunk, and now rests from his labours.

THE RECENT STORMS.—Mr. S. Gillespie Prout, writing from Mrs. Miller's, Portland-place, Mumbles, Swansea, asks the sympathy of our readers on behalf of the families of four of the crew of the Mumbles Lifeboat, who were drowned or dashed to pieces on the rocks in an attempt last week to save the crew of a foreign vessel. The captain of the lifeboat, who, with two of his sons, now lies in a precarious condition, has lost two other sons and a son-in-law, the latter having left a widow and seven children. The fourth man lost has also left a large family. There is no better way of showing appreciation of the bravery of these noble men than by providing for the necessities of the bereaved families.

EAST-END FACTORY GIRLS.

IT was the boys' night three weeks ago. The girls' turn came on Friday evening last. To the number of full 1500 they crowded the Edinburgh Castle, the adjoining hall, and the intervening space. They were the workers from several of the manufactories in the neighbourhood, and had been invited by Dr. Barnardo, as his custom is at this season, to spend a social evening. True, they needed no invitation to throw off any reserve. Their behaviour was not what we expect in a select assembly at the West-end; while it was boisterous, however, it was never obstreperous, and under the kind yet firm hand of their host, the proceedings passed off without a mishap.

After a plentiful tea, Dr. Barnardo gave his guests a very hearty welcome. The request, "Those who work every day hold up your hands," was met with a cheer, and every hand was raised. They were reminded that while many in the East-end are out of employment, they ought to be thankful to God that they had plenty of work, and were able to do it. Further questions were asked, which elicited the fact that a very large majority are employed at the match works. Dr. Barnardo called attention to the club and night-schools held three times a week for girls. It is something very hard, he said, for you to keep straight and do right. Many girls have told me after our meetings, "It is all very well for you folk to do everything that is right, but many of us have no friends. Sometimes we are hard-up and ill, and the landlady won't let us stop." I know it is very hard for some of you, and I thought how nice it would be to have a club, and ask some kind ladies to come here and help you. That is what we have been doing for some time. We have about 200 who meet three times a week. They are taught reading, writing, and sewing. When they are ill ladies visit them, and you know what a comfort that is. We can take about double that number. Won't you come and join us?

Dr Barnardo related the case of a girl whom he had been able to place in a good situation, and said he was willing to help any other girl in the same way. As the outcome of the meeting a lodging-house for twenty girls and free registry for servants would be opened at Bow. Any girl who wishes to go to service will be trained, clothes will be given her, and a situation found. She will be visited and helped on in life.

In closing, the host of the evening referred to the blessed privilege of having Christ as our Master, our Saviour, our Friend. It was evident that the loving and sympathetic words had struck a responsive chord in many a heart.

It was announced that a number of prizes would be given for regular attendance, and one girl, Ellen Blundel, was presented with a handsome Bible, having been present at every meeting. As the girls retired an orange and an illustrated paper were given to each.

A VETERAN IN THE FIELD.—Rev. George Rodgers, writing from Money Creek, Houston Co., Minnesota, on Jan. 7, says: You kindly referred to me and my work here a week or two ago, for which I sincerely thank you. In that notice it was stated there is no Missionary Society to help this country. It should have read county. Missionary Societies do help this State, especially in the new parts, but no aid is given to any town or village in this old and thickly settled county. In many towns and villages the Gospel is never heard, and the name of Christ is never used except to curse by. In many places churches were built many years ago, and most of them are now closed all the year round. There are just five ministers in the county who preach in the English language. I am now sixty years old, and have preached extensively about forty years. My strength fails, so that I am not able to do much, but I still preach two or three times a week in various places in this and other counties. In most places the people are ready to hear the Gospel. Mr. Spurgeon's sermons and Gospel tracts are most thankfully received in all parts. If Christian people can send me such I promise to use them in places where such truth as they contain is greatly needed. No regular salary is given me, but some to whom I preach are glad to minister to my needs in a small way.

MISSIONARY CONFERENCE IN INDIA.

THE Second General Decennial Conference of Missionaries in India commenced its sittings on Thursday, December 28, in Dr. Thoburn's Church, Dhurrumtollah-street, Calcutta. Major General Sir H. Ramsay occupied the chair at the morning session. The body of the large church was crowded with delegates and visitors, and there was a fair number of the latter in the galleries. Close attention was paid to the proceedings. The total number of registered members of the Conference was four hundred and sixty.

The Chairman bade the assembled delegates a hearty welcome. In the course of a short speech he remarked that their real President was He in whose name they had met together. He asked the delegates to forget their denominational distinctions and consider the all-important work of saving souls, which was the work God had sent them to accomplish in that wide field.

PREACHING TO THE HEATHEN was the subject of the first paper, read by Rev. C. W. Forman, D.D., American Presbyterian Mission, Lahore, Punjaub. After referring to some qualifications necessary for the work, he said that one reason why preaching to the Hindoos and Mohammedans has not been more largely successful, is the want of a conviction of sin on their part. Sin and holiness are terms little understood by them. Mohammedans admit so much of the Scriptures that it ought not to be difficult to convince them. In preaching to Hindoos, who feel the necessity of sacrifice, this may be used as a foundation for convincing them how fully adapted to human needs is the substitutionary sacrifice of Christ. Some missionaries have erred in failing to use methods that would attract larger crowds of hearers. Much as Europeans may object to the methods of the Salvation Army, he had never heard a native of India condemn them.

Rev. W. N. Bose, Independent Mission, Gopaulpor, advocated the accompaniments of singing and praying in connection with bazaar and street preaching. By passing along the streets singing, the ears of the captive inmates of the Zenana would be reached. The preaching should be followed by house to house visitation. All the conversions that had taken place at Gopalgunge had been the result of quiet conversation. While it is to be desired that European workers may be increased a thousand-fold, the conversion of India's millions can be effected only through native agents. It is sad that in the Bengal Presidency there is not a single school where Christian boys can be trained in the way of the Lord.

Rev. J. Smith, Baptist Missionary Society, Delhi, thought that everything in preaching calculated to excite prejudice ought to be avoided, when we can with far better results dwell upon the love and the patience of Christ. To carry on discussions effectively requires no ordinary attainments; thousands have gone away from bazaar wrangles believing that the advocate of Christianity has been worsted. The best way of reaching the labouring classes is to preach near the people's dwellings, which are always open to missionaries. The young are the hope of the Church in India; therefore they ought never to be placed under heathen teachers in the schools.

Rev. E. Lewis, London Missionary Society, Bellary, regarded it as essential to effective preaching to give the hearers a full opportunity of asking any questions they may desire on what they have heard, that they might fully understand the practical bearing of the truths presented to them. The results attending the preaching are often known only to the missionary. He could point to several bands of young men who meet together to read the Bible and pray, and also to not a few who love Jesus, though they have not yet been baptised. There is good reason to thank God and take courage.

In the discussion which followed, Rev. H. A. Hutchinson, London Missionary Society, Coimbatore, remarked that in many workers who came to India, zeal seemed to evaporate as time went on. At the same time it is difficult for those who continually preach to unresponsive, unimpressionable Hindoo audiences, to maintain the freshness of their zeal. By communion with Christ, and close association with brother missionaries, much may be done in this direction. Rev. T. P. Hughes, Church Missionary Society, Peshawar, gave it as the result of his experience, that discussions in the bazaars were not profitable. In most cases the impression left on the audience will be that the Christian advocate is defeated. While not opposed to street preaching, if properly conducted, he thought it better for missionaries to have as many private interviews as possible with the people. Mr. R. Chunder Bose, Methodist Episcopal Church, Lucknow, said the missionary should not forget that he is a missionary of Civilisation as well as of the Cross. Rev. G. C. Dutt, Baptist Missionary Society, Calcutta, wished to see the English Church in India showing far more sympathy with the native Christian Churches. English Christians should mix more freely with their native brethren.

Rev. M. Phillips, London Missionary Society, Salem, believed the great want of India to-day was preaching. Education is spreading and breaking down the Hindoo faith; at such a crisis the Gospel must be freely preached. In large cities almost exclusive prominence is given to education. In Bombay, Calcutta, and Madras evangelistic work is in the background, which is a great mistake. He did not disparage educational work, but strongly advocated sending out many more preachers into the villages. Rev. W. Hooper, Church Missionary Society, Benares, hoped the effect of the discussion would not be to discourage any from engaging in the work of street-preaching, but to impress on all the great importance of prayerful and thorough preparation for it.

Rev. Dr. Murray Mitchell said the general feeling of missionaries in Western India on this subject was that there ought to be less controversy and more direct preaching of the Gospel. Song has been found of unspeakable importance. Heathen will sit for hours listening to declarations of Gospel truth embodied in song. Truth is spreading, and there is a spirit of inquiry abroad such as has never been known before. Rev. J. H. Broadhead, Wesleyan Missionary Society, Bankurah, believed that there was too much compromise with Hindooism. He felt it incumbent on him to attack Hindooism, not in a spirit of idle controversy, but of tenderest love.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORK.

Rev. B. H. Badley, in opening this subject at the afternoon session, said that while the people in the bazaars are prejudiced, the children are not afraid of the new Christian teaching. It is often urged that the Bible-teaching of the Mission day-schools is quite sufficient, and does away with the necessity of Sunday-schools; but in many schools, owing to the want of Christian teachers, this work is not thoroughly or systematically done. The progress made in the last twenty-five years has been most satisfactory. In Oudh and Rohilkhund, there is a native Christian community of 6000, and a Sunday-school army of 15,000, of whom two-thirds are non-Christians. These Sunday-schools open up great opportunities for usefulness to the members of our English Churches. Would that every English pastor in India could initiate and interest the members of his Church in this work.

Rev. J. S. Chandler, Battalagundu, Madras, thought that Sunday-schools should not be restricted to children, but used as an evangelising agency for all.

Dr. Phillips, American Baptist Mission, Midnapore, urged that children should be taught wherever they could be found, in a hut or under a tree. He believed Churches in India were suffering from religious dyspepsia, and from a lack of work. In answer to a question, it was stated that the American Methodist Mission among its 6000 adherents has between 700 and 800 Sunday-school teachers.

Rev. G. H. McGrew, Methodist Episcopal Church, said that about three years ago, he and his helpers commenced Sunday-school work at Cawnpore. They had now about 1000 scholars, 870 of whom are non-Christians of all castes and classes. The expense of the work is defrayed by a single person. The people seemed quite willing to have their children taught.

Rev. M. Banboo, Free Church of Scotland, Madras, said he stood there as the result of Sunday-school work. He related the following touching incident: One Sabbath, a few months ago, in the time of our great cyclone, when the streets were filled with water and the weather was bad, I did not think it best to go to the school: none of the teachers nor officers went. But three little girls went to the school. They were surprised to find nobody present. After waiting awhile one of them said, "If you two will sing a hymn, I'll go over the last lesson we learned." And so the hymn was sung, and this little girl got up in a chair and was rehearsing the lesson when the head mistress arrived. The heart of the latter was greatly rejoiced, and she embraced the faithful heathen girls who could not stay away from their Sunday-school.

Rev. R. Hoskins, Methodist Episcopal Church, Budaon, said part of their creed was that everyone must help, even if he could only collect the children. The whole work seemed capable of indefinite expansion. Rev. B. Blake, Free Church of Scotland, Bombay, said that no work had given him more encouragement than Sunday-school work. He rejoiced in the fact that it was all voluntary work. Rev. R. A. Hume, Ahmadnagar, said their custom was to hold Sunday-schools in public rest-houses.

NATIVE AGENCY.

This was the subject for consideration on the morning of the second day. It was introduced by Rev. E. Rigg, Wesleyan Missionary Society, Ceylon, who said the question for each missionary to solve in the appointment of teachers to the mission-schools, was how to obtain men having the essential qualifications of piety, efficiency, and disregard of caste. Rev. W. Hooper, Church Missionary Society, Allahabad, said that after introducing the Gospel in a heathen land, the first duty of a foreign missionary was to start a native Christian agency. Rev. Dr. Thoburn, Calcutta, said that female native agency must not be overlooked. A large number of native women were earnest Christians, and need to be trained for service. Hundreds of these women are sitting idle in India who ought to be engaged in work. Rev. H. U. Weitbrecht, Church Missionary Society, Lahore, thought that missionaries in charge should take pains to find out the hopeful boys and guide them. They should look largely to the Christian Boys' Boarding Schools for future workers.

Rev. J. L. Phillips, American Baptist Mission, Midnapur, referred to the difficulty foreign missionaries had in becoming acquainted with the idiosyncrasies of speech and life found in India. The previous evening, as he listened to the lecture of Keshub Chunder Sen, he could not but feel that the natives of the soil must win India for Christ. In Burmah recently a boatman, who was earning 60 rupees per month, was converted. One day the missionary said to him, "I see you are a good talker; will you go and preach among your people—can you do it for five rupees a month?" The boatman thought a moment, and then replied, "No, I can't do it for five rupees a month, but I can do it for the sake of the Lord Jesus Christ." God give us that sort of men all over India.

THE PROMOTION OF SPIRITUAL LIFE

was the topic considered during the afternoon session. Rev. G. Bowen, Methodist Episcopal Church, Bombay, said that the measure of piety among native Christians would be in proportion to that which obtained among the missionaries themselves. A great hindrance to the development of native Christians lay in the fact that there are so many Europeans living in their midst with very little reference to the requirements of the Gospel. Nothing would tend more effectually to promote the spiritual life and enthusiasm of native Christians than the earnest and continual exhibition of love towards them on the part of the missionaries.

Rev. A. Clifford, Church Missionary Society, Krishnaghur, Bengal, was of opinion that in proportion as a Church was independent, self-governed, and self-supported, the development of spiritual life and energy among its members might be expected. The method of governing their native Churches by societies abroad, which had for the most part prevailed in Indian Missions, had been paternal enough; but it might be called a foreign despotism. He contrasted with this the methods of apostolic times. The modern missionary, when, by the grace of God, converts are made, settles among them as their permanent pastor, whereas in the early days of the Church the missionary or evangelist passed on to new fields of labour, leaving the company of believers to regulate their own affairs. The speaker also called attention to the importance of close and intimate spiritual fellowship between Divinity students and their professors.

Rev. J. Scott, Wesleyan Methodist Missionary Society, Colombo, spoke of the importance of setting before the people the necessity of having a definite experience. He indicated some of the points on which the consciences of converts from heathenism need educating—the importance of truth, the use of money and the evil of debt, the duty of brotherly love, a forgiving spirit, and the evil of vindictiveness. He did not mean to imply that native Christians were exceptionally bad; in fact, the average quality of the real native Christians in Ceylon was as high as any in the world.

Rev. A. Timpany, Canadian Baptist Mission, Coconada, said that in his district all the native Christians were at work. Men and women, and even children, manifested enthusiasm in working for Jesus. He had seen brighter examples of self-denial among the poor Telugu people than in his native land.

Rev. W. R. James, Baptist Missionary, Calcutta, thought that the attention of native Christians should be more frequently directed to the promised return of our Lord. If their minds were fixed on this blessed hope, all worldly things would be counted as dross.

Rev. G. Kerry, Baptist Missionary Society, Calcutta, remarked that such a subject as the promotion of spiritual life and enthusiasm should be discussed, not only in its bearings on the native Christians, but among the missionaries themselves. They might, with profit, adopt some of the phraseology and methods of the Salvation Army. Rev. J. W. Jackson, Wesleyan Mission, Tubblepore, considered that if native Christians were not taught to read the Scriptures daily, they would never become strong Christians. They should also be taught the necessity and privilege of private prayer. Workers in India needed more quiet waiting on God.

HIGHER EDUCATION.

Rev. W. Miller, Principal of the Christian College, Madras, opened the discussion on this subject on the morning of the third day. He had never experienced any difficulty in securing efficient Scripture teaching in College classes. A little work done in furtherance of the divine purpose, and in harmony with the divine plan, was better than the hugest work that makes light of God's procedure, and that takes the notions of men for its guide and inspiration. In Christian education, even more than in other forms of work, the worker needs the strong determination that his work, whether large or small, shall all be done upon the lines that God has laid down.

Mr. J. Wilson, Established Church of Scotland, Calcutta, spoke of the subject in its religious or missionary aspect. Referring to the work of Dr. Duff, and the changes the latter had seen come to pass in the educated Hindoo community, he said it was apparent that these changes were largely intellectual, political, social, economic; where they had been religious at all, they had been destructive rather than constructive. One effect of considering the changes as we see them, is the conviction that truth does not overcome error by any sudden operation; time is indispensable to the change we desire, and are confident of seeing. The truth will assuredly triumph in the end; but we have to keep in sight the fact that it is God that giveth the increase. False ideas and refuges of lies would have their day, but the issue was sure and safe to the eye of faith.

Rev. L. Uhl, American Lutheran Mission, Guntoor, said: Let all our schools be consecrated to God, and let us make out of them all we can. We are moulding minds and spirits—a work which cannot be done in a week. Rev. J. Woodside, American Presbyterian Mission, Futtehgurh, remarked that Dr. Duff had no theory of Missions, but supported anything and everything that tended to promote the cause of Christ. Rev. W. R. Blackett, Church Missionary Society, Calcutta, said that while the Mission schools had done much good, and filled a place the Government schools did not fill, they seemed to him to require more in the way of moral education on a religious basis. Rev. A. Timpany, Canadian Baptist Mission, Coconada, said that at the Bangalore Conference, ten years ago, they had set their seal of approval on Higher Education, and it would not do now to reverse the decision. Rev. Dr. Chester, American Mission, Dindigul, said that the leaven of scepticism was largely pervading the higher classes in the cities and towns; if there were no properly equipped educational institutions, they could never cope with this scepticism.

LOWER, OR MASS EDUCATION.

Rev. Dr. Murray Mitchell, in a paper on this subject, expressed the opinion that too much, relatively, had been spent on Higher Education; he earnestly appealed that the great subject of mass education should be taken up with more energy than heretofore.

Rev. W. A. Hobbs, Calcutta, paid a tribute to the work of the Christian Vernacular Education Society, which had done more than any other society to bring the village schools of Bengal within the range of Christian teaching.

Rev. H. C. Squires, Church Missionary Society, Bombay, said the fact must be faced that the youth of the land were leaving them and going to Government schools, where they would receive an education antagonistic to all religion. Without making it imperative that scholars in Mission schools should attend the Bible lesson, they might impart secular instruction so as to give it a Christian tone.

Rev. W. R. Blackett observed that the field was so vast, all their efforts as missionaries could scarcely touch it. In that capacity they could not undertake to teach the three R's to the children of India. Let them freely distribute tracts full of Gospel truth.

Rev. J. Smith, Delhi, said they should not forget the fact that in some parts of India one-third of the population is cut off from the privileges of education; the aborigines and sudras in the Punjaub and the north-west provinces are not permitted to attend Government schools. He appealed on behalf of these millions for whom no man cared.

Rev. T. P. Hughes said that from a missionary point of view, schools were only of value as they led to the conversion of the children. Mr. Keshub Chunder Sen had advised missionaries to give up teaching mathematics and preach Christ. If the schools had not yielded converts it was because they had not taken decided action as Christian teachers. At Peshawar, where they had 400 boys, the pupils were not forced to attend the bible-lesson; but not one boy had retired from the class. There were more Mohammedan gentlemen in this school perhaps than in any other Mission school in India. Let us appeal to the conscience of our pupils both as Christians and as men.

WORK AMONG ENGLISH-SPEAKING HINDOOS.

A paper on this subject by Rev. A. Alexander, Free Church of Scotland, Madras, was read at the afternoon session. He thought the present generation of educated Hindoos did not show a hopeful spectacle to those whose evangelistic efforts are directed to the salvation of the people. The Hindoo mind, now face to face with the truth, is too inexperienced and ill-equipped to receive it rightly. Besides, many of the natives have great antipathy to the truth. They come much under the influence of anti-Christian theories. It seemed strange that a man like Mr. Bradlaugh should have weight with educated people. The advocates of Christianity had been too apologetic. They know the ignorance and insincerity of the common opponents of the truth, yet treat them as if they were truthful, from a desire to be polite. They might take the example of unbelievers, and be more dogmatic. At the same time, it is well to remember that there is a great deal of genuine sincerity among the educated Hindoos. The true and most effective agents for reaching the educated Hindoos were the educated native Christians, who best understand how to reach the hearts of their own people. Hitherto the native ministry has not had the prophetic gift. One day before long God's call might sound in some ear which now hears no voice but the voice of the world; then the Gospel message would reach the people without the grave-clothes in which Europeans have dressed it.

Mr. R. Bose, Methodist Episcopal Church, Lucknow, believed that the missionary should follow more in the line of the revivalist. Christianity rather than Christian theology, or the approved theology of any Church, should be preached.

Professor K. C. Banerjee was thankful to God for raising up a class of English-speaking Hindoos who are in a position to receive the Gospel from the lips of the newest arrival from Europe. He did not approve of the habit of thinking and speaking of a special work for educated Hindoos. Logic appeals only to the intellect; it fails to touch the heart. Educated Hindoos require to be impressed with practical religion as exemplified toward them in the lives of its professors. Then the Word of God would be as powerful for them as it is for the uneducated. Give the educated Hindoos simple Gospel services made attractive with music, and tell them the message of Jesus' love. They would flock to such meetings, but otherwise there was no help for India.

Rev. E. S. Summers, Acting Principal of the Baptist College, Serampore, said that young Hindoos came to the College who had never been in a missionary school; at first they objected to Scripture lessons, but before the close of the year they cheerfully attended. Those who were bigoted on entering left in a very different spirit. He had not known a decided conversion resulting from their College work, but would not therefore admit that the work had been a failure. The sentiments of the students about Christianity had entirely changed, and they go forth to be centres of helpfulness in many ways.

Rev. Rajaram Chatamber, American Presbyterian Mission, Allahabad, said that Dr. Murray Mitchell's "Letters to Indian Youth" were instrumental in leading him to Christ. Rev. H. Coley, London Missionary Society, Almorah, said that in his district they had tried many things to win the English-speaking natives, but in all except one they had failed. They needed more of Christ all along the line, in the text-books, and in the schools. Do the Missionary Societies, Committees and Boards, always represent God's thought and God's plans? He believed it was sometimes the reverse. He knew of a case of two missionaries coming to India. One of them, with somewhat of the spirit of the prophets, had a soul burning with a desire to preach; while the other felt called to teach. But the Board appointed the teacher to preach, and sent the preacher to teach school.

Rev. K. S. MacDonald, Free Church Mission, Calcutta, gave it as the result of twenty-one years' work in connection with educational institutions in India that they had far greater power over those who voluntarily attended Bible-classes than over those who came under the pressure of discipline and authority.

Rev. G. H. McGrew, Methodist Episcopal Mission, Cawnpore, said that, looked at from the stand-point of an up-country province, the policy of higher English education in the Presidency towns has turned out a failure. Where were the thousands of young men moulded by Duff, and Murdoch, and Wilson? They were in the Bramo Somaj. Looking at this fact, his Mission had adopted a very simple policy of education, which was to reserve higher education in the first place for Christians, although Hindoos and Mohammedans were not refused admission.

Rev. W. R. James observed that something should be done to disabuse the minds of the English-speaking Hindoos of the impression that they are not allowed to enter the English Churches. They give intellectual assent to the facts and doctrines of God's word; but they do not appear to have any conception of the nature of sin. One reason for this is that missionaries do not instruct them enough as to the law.

Rev. Dr. MURRAY MITCHELL believed that Christianity was making progress year by year. Progress is more rapid now-a-days than it was in apostolic days. One very important agency is personal intercourse between Europeans and natives. In Christ there is neither Greek nor Jew. Especially to the sisters present, workers in India, he would say. Seek to cultivate the acquaintance of natives: they highly value your friendship. Missionaries should invite the natives to their houses in order to get acquainted with them.

Rev. J. L. PHILLIPS, American Baptist Mission, Midnapoor, said that when it was not his turn to preach he went through the town and visited the Babus at their homes: he was welcomed, and found many opportunities for speaking of Christ. More of this social intercourse is needed.

Rev. S. P. JACOBS, Methodist Episcopal Church, Colar, said that when philosophy was put in place of the Bible the Hindoos saw the mistake. Dr. DOWNES, Church Missionary Society, Cashmere, regretted they had not a society, like the Christian Evidence Society in England, to publish lectures and tracts and scatter them throughout India.

Rev. J. FORDYCE, Simla, had visited all parts of India, and had found opportunities for doing good in many obscure places. In two out-of-the-way places he found a considerable audience of Babus. There are great outlying communities of educated natives ripe for the harvest.

Rev. T. P. HUGHES said he had come 1600 miles to Calcutta, after an absence of eighteen years, amongst other things, to interview the "Educated Bengali." When he compared the fervid address given that day by Mr. K. C. Banerjee, the educated Bengali Christian, with an eloquent lecture delivered on a previous evening by Mr. Keshub Chunder Sen, the educated Hindoo, he found a ring of sincerity in the speech of the Christian which he failed to find in the able address of the Brahmo. The speaker continued: I have heard the chief orators in England, but I honestly confess that I have seldom heard such stirring eloquence as that of Mr. Sen. His striking illustrations, his burning eloquence, charmed me and completely carried away my sympathies as he spoke; but when it was all over I stood amazed at the audacity of the man who could charge the English nation with having introduced to his country what he strikingly termed the "girl of the period" decked in the garb of modern scepticism. Why, it is Mr. Keshub Chunder Sen who, more than any other man, may be denominated the father of modern scepticism in India. For what produces scepticism and agnosticism and even atheism more than that want of definiteness of religious thought that is expressed in the teaching of the Brahmo Somaj? In the presence of my God, I solemnly charge Mr. Keshub Chunder Sen as one upon whom rests the responsibility of the increase of modern scepticism amongst educated Hindus in India.

(To be continued in our next.)

THEATRICAL TEA-MEETING.—On Tuesday of last week there was a large gathering of theatrical women at Whitefield Church, Wilson-street, Long-acre.

MR. MATTHEW BURNETT.—After three years' labour in South Australia, during which he registered about 32,500 pledges, Mr. Matthew Burnett was entertained at a farewell meeting in Adelaide on the 25th November last, and was presented with an address and £200. Mr. Burnett's plans for the future open out a wide prospect. After a short visit to Kangaroo Island, he will have a rest for a month or two, and then proceed for a period of six months to Western Australia, whence pressing invitations have come to him; eventually going on to Tasmania, New Zealand, New South Wales, and Queensland, with, may be, a visit to England, about twelve months hence.

CONVENTION ON PUBLIC MORALS.

MORE than a thousand persons attended the Christian Convention on this subject held at Devonshire House, Bishopsgate, on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. Many of these were delegates from societies and Churches all over the kingdom; for not only England but Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, were each represented. Every evangelical section of the Church has members deeply interested in the vital question which the Convention had met to consider; and sufficiently interested to come long distances to get light and strength for future action. But the numbers present in no way represent adequately the power of the Convention, which exceeded in interest, spirituality, and enthusiasm, the fullest expectations of its conveners.

The key-note was struck at the meeting for prayer on the first morning. Mrs. Josephine E. Butler's address on that occasion was referred to again and again during the Convention, and will not easily be forgotten by those who had the privilege of listening to its burning words.

The meeting for men only on Wednesday morning was held under the presidency of Canon BATTERSBY of Keswick. The Canon referred to the insult to Christian feeling conveyed in the recent Report of the majority of the Select Committee which had sat to consider laws that dishonour the name of Christ. The feeling of depression caused at first by that Report had, however, given way to a spirit of determination, in the name of Christ and in the power of his Spirit, to revive the opposition to the existence and further extension of State regulated vice. They were not met there merely as individuals but as representatives of Christian feeling throughout the country, which they believed had been outraged by this Report. The speaker further referred to the folly of dealing with the fruits instead of the root of vice, which was done by attempting to regulate instead of to repress this deadly evil. He, however, anticipated a great blessing from these gatherings, and believed that if they now proceeded in a determined and united spirit this question must be brought to a speedy issue.

Rev. GEORGE OSBORN, D.D., ex-President of the Wesleyan Conference, who had appeared as a witness against the Acts, on religious grounds, before the Parliamentary Committee, followed the Chairman with an address on "The antagonism of the State regulation of vice to Christian teaching, and the effect of such regulation on the moral life of the nation." Dr. Osborn commenced by a graceful allusion to his pleasure in uniting with the Society of Friends in that place on that question, for with them, notwithstanding differences of opinion, he had long had much spiritual fellowship, as well as fellowship in good works. The great object of their present meetings was to give forth testimony that should be unmistakable, and which, borne in a Christian spirit, could not be borne in vain. There was no need to touch the question of expediency. Friends there clearly intended to base their action not on the shifting sands of public expediency, but on the solid rock of Christian principle. What they proposed to do was to fall back on first principles, to assure themselves that what they proposed to do was in accordance with the will and teaching of Christ, and required of our Christian profession. Passing in review the practices sanctioned by these laws, he considered them as in the last degree antagonistic to Christian duty and Christian teaching. If we would have our sons grow up in youth to do us credit we must not facilitate their approach to the "strange woman," or the access of the "strange woman" to them. And if we would have our daughters become as polished corner stones, then we must keep these temptations and influences where they ought to be—beyond the control and encouragement of the public Legislature. The most powerful agency with which they had to contend was the misapprehension and misjudgment of fellow Christians, whose character and motives were above suspicion. But he believed the course they were now taking was the surest way to enlighten the judgment of their fellow Christians. If the Spirit of God inspired their counsels, success must follow. The work in his hand would spread much faster than in ours. "If God be for us who can be against us?"

Rev. J. P. GLEDSTONE, minister of Tulse-hill Congregational Church, in a most deeply interesting paper, which cannot be summarised here, dealt with the fallacies and one-sidedness of the Report issued by the majority of the Select Committee. He said nothing had so much shocked him as the way in which these Acts of Parliament pass a two-edged sword between the harlot and the woman, setting the harlot and her privileges on the right side, and the woman on the left with her punishment and shame. The woman is sent to prison if she assert her womanhood, but the majority of this Parliamentary Committee seems not to have discovered that the harlot has the woman still in her. Our Christian faith has taught us that

> Down in the human heart crushed by the tempter,
> Feelings lie buried that grace can restore;
> Touched by a loving hand, wakened by kindness,
> Chords that were broken will vibrate once more.

As a Christian, the speaker abhorred these Acts for the manner in which they degrade the woman, and, as a man, he scorned the cowardice that seizes upon the woman and lets the man go free—the cowardice that has uttered itself in this contemptible Report.

An animated discussion concluded this meeting, in the course of which were some wise and trenchant remarks from Mr. Henry Varley, who has been doing such good service lately to the cause of public morality by his lectures to men.

In the meeting for women only, held at the same time in the Women's Meeting House, Mrs. BUTLER presided, and the seats usually appropriated to ministers and elders were quite filled up with delegates representing branches of the Ladies' National Association for Abolishing the State Regulation of Vice in all parts of the Kingdom. The meeting was opened with earnest prayer by Mrs. Fox, of Plymouth. In the absence of Miss Sarah Hill, through illness, her paper, which took up the same subject as that of Dr. Osborn, was read by Miss Mary Priestman, of Bristol, and was considered so valuable that it was decided to print it for wide circulation. Mrs. Butler followed with a short paper on the fallacious claims of the Majority Report. Mrs. Steward dealt with the injustice keenly felt by poor women from the inequalities of the law between man and woman. Mrs. Ross, wife of an East-end vicar, read a paper on the need of more voluntary hospital accommodation for poor women suffering from the diseases caused by vice, and much useful information was elicited in the discussion which followed. Mrs. Hind Smith spoke a few earnest words to mothers on their duty towards their children and young servants in respect to the prevailing laxity of morals and the temptations of the streets.

Mr. R. C. MORGAN presided at the afternoon sitting, and the large meeting-house was well filled with men and women. Mr. Morgan said that he was very thankful that Convention had been called, for he believed the time had come when Christians should speak out on the whole question of public morality. While some people, who were as fully persuaded of the iniquity of the Acts as they were, wanted to keep silence on account of their children, other people's children, not so well guarded as their own, were being led into all sorts of evil.

In a brief but earnest speech, Mr. ALFRED S. DYER remarked that whatever might be the medical failure of this legislation, or the objections to it as an inroad on constitutional rights, he did not believe that it would be repealed on any ground but that it is an outrage on Christian morality, and the attack of an infidel materialism upon the most sacred teachings of the Church of Christ. He asked: Were they there, at the call of God, to take up the challenge of this infidel materialism, and to determine that the voice and influence of the Churches should be heard and felt as never before? Having adopted the method primary importance to create a deeper interest mong the Churches, that of prayer for the fluence of the Holy Spirit, what was to be the mediate outcome of this Convention? He ggested that the power and influence of the inions of the whole of the Churches should be cussed into one immense memorial to Mr. ladstone, to be presented by an influential eputation, consisting of prominent representa- ves of all the Churches.

Miss WIGHAM, of Edinburgh, supported this roposal, referring to the culminating point of e old abolitionist struggle, and of the thrilling terest caused by a large deputation of ministers. wo gentlemen also heartily welcomed the pro- sal.

Rev. Canon BUTLER, D.D., then rose to pro- se the following resolution:—"That this Con- ention, consisting of ladies and gentlemen from l parts of the kingdom, assembled together to nsider the Contagious Diseases Acts, desires, fter most earnest and serious consideration, to lace on record their unfaltering conviction that ey are contrary to the law and word of God id to the Christian instincts of the nation, and ould therefore be at once erased from the stat- te book of these realms. That the special Com- ittee, at whose request this Convention has en called, be requested to continue their labours id to have power to add to their number; and, rther, that they be respectfully requested to certain the opinion of the various sections of e Christian Church, and ultimately to embody eir opinion in one grand memorial to the Prime inister of Her Majesty's Government, to be esented by an influential deputation on our ehalf."

This resolution was received with enthusiasm the meeting, and seconded on behalf of the arious Churches by the the Rev. HUGH PRICE UGHES, Wesleyan; Rev. J. JENKYN BROWN, aptist; Dr. FISHER, Presbyterian; and by re- esentatives of each denomination present.

Mrs. JOSEPHINE E. BUTLER remarked on the rength of the foe they had to deal with. She uite believed that Mr. Gladstone was personally sposed to view their side of the question in a vourable manner, but they must remember that sides the "demon of red tape," there were ire-pullers behind, permanent officials who ere determined to uphold this evil at all zards. Their strength must be in God, and ot in man. The resolution was carried with eat enthusiasm.

The men's meeting on Thursday morning was esided over by the Rev. Dr. TREBTRAIL, re- ntly President of the Baptist Union.

Mr. GEORGE GILLETT read a paper on the ne- ssity of stronger representation in Parliament the religious feeling of the country on the ue the Convention had met to consider. He aintained that an effort must be made to lift e whole subject to a higher level in the House Commons, and out of the hygienic rut into nich hostile members had so persistently gged it. He thought it was a grievous and tonishing fact that with so many professedly ristian men in Parliament, no measure had en brought forward embodying the recom- ndations of the Lords Committee to raise the e of protection of girls to sixteen, and that a ue to that effect, inserted in the draft report the House of Commons Select Committee, had en struck out by the nine members who formed e majority. Nothing to his mind was more artrending than the indifference of the sup- rters of State-regulated vice to the sanctity of ildhood.

Several speakers followed on the same subject, d this resolution was unanimously agreed to: That an urgent appeal be sent to all members Parliament who have expressed approval of s Convention, asking them to aid its object by ging forward the religious aspect of the position to the State regulation of vice at the liest opportunity in Parliament, with persis- ce and Christian courage."

The meeting for women was again presided over Mrs. J. E. BUTLER. The first subject was "The cessity of stronger representation in the House Commons of the religious feeling against the te regulation of vice." This was treated in a uable and exhaustive paper by Miss Isabella S. TOD, of Belfast. She particularly dwelt on the way in which members of Parliament should be approached on the subject, not with unpalatable details, which often are received with disgust, but by placing the matter on the high standard of conscience and the broad principles of right. Mrs BUTLER—warmly eulogising Miss Tod's paper and proposing to print it for immediate use, as well as the paper of Miss Hill read on the previous day—took occasion to remark on the part that it was right for Christians to take in politics.

Mrs. W. S. CLARK, of Street, said that members of Parliament were more easily influenced by thoughtful letters from their constituents than by printed matter, and she thought women might well use their pens in this cause towards the men who represented their husbands in Parliament.

Dr. E. BLACKWELL said they should use their influence to get their principles represented at municipal elections. Miss WHITEHEAD said a friend of hers had remarked that all those engaged in this New Abolitionist Movement were picked men and women; she hoped that would be proved true by the spirit of action that would henceforth characterise them.

Mrs. STEWARD, of Ongar, in speaking for a few moments on the nefarious traffic in English girls still carried on, said it was absolutely supported by the system of State-regulated vice, and until that system was utterly abolished, this dreadful slave trade would not cease. Miss STURGE dwelt on the power Sunday-school teachers possessed, which should be used in influencing their elder scholars towards a high standard of morals. Mrs. WM. FOWLER said that judgment must begin at the house of God. Many Christians were very much behind on this subject. Mrs. WILSON, of Kendal, wished that Christian parents would enlighten their young sons and daughters on this matter; she said one hour with a bad novel will do your boy or girl more harm than to know of the stand that good men and women are making against the evils that exist in the world. She did not advocate putting them forward to take public part in this cause, but simply grounding them in the principles of the work, so that they might have judgment and knowledge to act when their time of action should arrive.

Several other ladies spoke on topics of interest, and Mrs. J. H. FOX, of Plymouth, suggested that a memorial to Her Majesty should be prepared on behalf of the Christian women present, and, if possible, presented by a strong deputation to Her Majesty in person. This was generally approved of, and this meeting, which had been of surpassing interest throughout, closed with earnest prayer.

Rev. WILLIAM GUEST read a paper at the second afternoon sitting, embodying his own experiences of the demoralising effects of the State regulation of vice on the surrounding population. The CHAMBERLAIN OF LONDON followed with some account of the progress made of the opposition to these laws during the past few years. Alderman REES, of Dover, spoke with warmth of the necessity for immediate action, based on his own experience as a magistrate in a town where these laws were in force. Miss ALICIA BEWICKE suggested a memorial to the Archbishop-designate of Canterbury from this Convention, urging him to use his influence in the matter. This was supported by two Clergymen of the Established Church; and the Convention closed with a period of silent and vocal prayer.

We reserve our report of the public evening meetings.

MR. JOHN WELLS THATCHER has been appointed to the secretaryship of the Commercial Travellers' Christian Associatian.

FOREIGN SEAMEN'S REST, BRISTOL.—The work at this port has now been carried on for four years by Mr. G. A. Eoll. During the past year he has distributed nearly 25,000 Bibles, tracts, &c., in different languages. Forty-three seamen have been provided with temporary board and lodging at the Rest. Over 600 bags of books have been given away by the "Ladies' Book Mission." Meetings have been held for foreigners as their ships happened to be in port. Besides attending to the spiritual wants of these men, Mr. Eoll extends a helping hand to relieve any case of need that may come under his notice. His address is, 41, Prince-street, Bristol.

GRACE SUFFICIENT.

THE Lord in grace has promised me,
That as my day my strength shall be;
And shall I doubt his word of power?
Nay, never to my dying hour!
His word is my unfailing plea,
That as my day my strength shall be.

Full many a season have I found
To trust in God is solid ground;
Unmoved, his word still stands secure,
Through flood and fire its truths endure,
And still his promise comes to me,
That as my day my strength shall be.

How sweet to know I have a Friend,
On whom I can through all depend;
Though earthly friends may promise well,
How soon does every hope dispel,
Then back again to Him I flee,
For as my day my strength shall be.

I'll lean for ever on that word,
For strength and power it doth afford;
Leaning and resting ever there,
My soul shall never know despair,
Nor doubt the promise full and free,
That as my day my strength shall be.

M. B. M.

EYES TO THE BLIND.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, HACKNEY.

BLIND children, from two years of age, whose parents are either dead or able to do little for them, are received into this Home, and trained in useful occupations. Some of these poor children have been terribly neglected, but under kind and firm treatment the improvement they show is wonderful. They receive a good, plain education, and are taught such industries as are suited to their age and sex.

The work altogether is very successful. About £400 is required at present for the house which has been purchased to meet the growing needs of the work. The lady superintendent is Miss Rye, Nelson House, College-avenue, Hackney.

ROYAL NORMAL COLLEGE, UPPER NORWOOD.

Last week, Mr. Alderman De Keyser, in the absence of the Lord Mayor, opened the preparatory and technical schools lately erected in connection with this school. The pupils, numbering about 120, at the same time enjoyed their annual Christmas Tree festival. The day's proceedings commenced with a selection of sacred music, and in the afternoon the fancy and useful fruits were stripped off the tree, and distributed amongst the children.

MR. HAMPTON'S MISSION TO THE BLIND.

Over a hundred poor blind were recently entertained in connection with Mr. Hampton's Home and Mission for the Blind, Webber-row, Waterloo-road, S.E. Friends sent a good supply of edibles, and by the kindness of the magistrate at Stone's end each person was presented with a ticket for bread and coals. Six old blind men are maintained in the Home, while over 100 blind are visited at their own homes.

CHRISTIAN BLIND SOCIETY.

On Tuesday evening, January 23, some 500 of the blind poor of the Metropolis were entertained to tea by the Christian Blind Society in the schoolroom of the East London Tabernacle, Burdett-road, E. A very pleasant and profitable evening was spent. On leaving, each blind person received, as usual, a shilling and a bag of biscuits, the gift of Messrs. Huntley and Palmer, and Messrs. Peek, Frean and Co.

DR. LANSDELL.—Rev. Henry Lansdell, D.D., author of "Through Siberia," who left England in June last, has recently returned, having accomplished in the interim a journey of upwards of 11,000 miles, 5000 by rail, 3000 by water, and the remainder either on wheels or the backs of horses and camels. He reached home in excellent health, and having accomplished in his visitation of hospitals and prisons what he set out to do.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

STRATFORD-UPON-AVON.

A GREAT revival has been experienced in this town. Mr. George Green, Evangelist of the Union of Warwickshire Congregation Churches, has just concluded a fortnight's special Mission. The Congregational Church, where the services were held, has been crowded every night—upwards of 130 have attended the after-meetings, and many have been savingly converted. The blessing has not been confined to the Church where the services were held; all the Christian Churches in the town have been benefitted by the work.

HITCHIN, HERTS.

Messrs. Smith and Fullerton commenced a Mission in this town on Sunday, 14th inst. They have held meetings in the Wesleyan, Congregational, and two Baptist Chapels, and Friends' Meeting House, no one chapel proving large enough to contain the numbers of people. The presence and blessing of the Lord have been largely realised.

CANADA.

In Brockville, Ontario, Canada, evangelistic meetings are being held every Sunday evening, after the regular church services are over. These meetings are largely attended, and the numbers are increasing; it is hoped there will be a great revival yet this winter. The laymen are taking a large share in the work, and many are finding themselves wonderfully drawn on to tell of Jesus and his power to save. Meetings are also being held in other places.

AMPTHILL, BEDS.

Under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. a most successful nine days' Gospel Mission has been held in this town, from January 7 to 16, by Mr. Henry Thorne. Conversions followed after every service, and at the close of the Mission about seventy persons professed to have found peace in believing. Bible readings were held each afternoon, to the refreshment of believers and the deepening of spiritual life in their hearts.

At a meeting for praise and testimony at the close of the services, twelve young men signified their wish to become members of the Y.M.C.A.

EVANGELISTIC MISSION.

On Thursday, January 25, the second anniversary of Bignold Hall, Forest-gate, was held, and the meetings were a great success. In the afternoon, at three o'clock, Mr. Henry Varley gave an address to a very good audience. In the evening, at seven, a large audience assembled for thanksgiving, and addresses were given by Drs. McKilliam and Laseron, Messrs. H. R. Francis, A. Wallis, W. Grove, and F. C. Spurr. A very profitable and happy time was spent.

The past twelve months have seen realised the prayer of Mr. Wallis on the day of opening, that "this place might be the birth-place of a multitude," for a very large number have professed conversion. One month alone recorded over 100 professed converts. F. C. S.

HISTON, NEAR CAMBRIDGE.

During the past fortnight a considerable stir has been created in this village by the wonderfully successful Mission services which have been conducted by Mr. G. C. Norrish, of the Evangelisation Society, in the Baptist and Wesleyan Chapels. So great has been the desire to hear the preacher that the accommodation proved insufficient, and overflow-meetings have been held, an occurrence hitherto unknown at Histon. A correspondent of The Cambridge Independent Press writes, that never within living memory has there been such an awakening in spiritual things at Histon.

A very noticeable feature of the meetings has been that many have attended who are seldom found in a place of worship. As the result of the Mission, more than one hundred names have been taken of persons who have professed to find Christ. Many will long remember Mr. Norrish, and cherish towards him feelings of sincere gratitude.

CHISLEDON, SWINDON.

This quiet country parish has been greatly roused by a three weeks' Mission held by Mr. Joseph Cleworth, of the Evangelisation Society. The parish, a widely scattered one, contains only 1200 inhabitants, and numbers had to walk many miles to each service. It was remarkable how regularly the same people came night after night. All classes in the parish, rich and poor, attended the services. Very many found peace during the Mission, and bravely confessing Christ, brought others to obtain a like blessing. Scarcely anyone seemed unimpressed as they listened night after night to the simple Gospel invitation, so lovingly, earnestly, and powerfully delivered. Would not such meetings as these bring a similar blessing to the many rural parishes where the religious life is feeble? Capt. Smith, Hon. Sec. of the Evangelisation Society, 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C., does not turn a deaf ear to any who ask his help.

GLASGOW.

For some time past meetings for the young have been held in various parts of the city, under the leadership of Mr. Mackeith, with the help of such devoted men as Mr. Steele and Mr. Pratt. The "Pilgrim's Progress" is, so to speak, the text-book. Limelight views, illustrating the most memorable and instructive scenes, are exhibited; and the lecturer takes time to explain and apply the truth. This is done for eight successive evenings.

In the beginning of the month, Mr. Mackeith gave the course in Dr. Andrew Bonar's church. Every night about a thousand children were present, and often older persons. Of these generally two hundred waited to be conversed with at a second meeting. These were almost all young persons, who had an intelligent knowledge of Scripture, being members of Sabbath-schools. At the last meeting Mr. Mackeith invited all who professed to have received the Saviour to meet in the adjoining hall; 102 boys and 107 girls responded to the invitation. The majority of these were about the age of eleven or twelve.

It may be well to invite attention to such meetings specially designed for bringing to decision the many young people in our Sabbath schools, who hear the way of life set forth from week to week. The Holy Spirit seems to put his seal to the efforts thus made in a very marked manner. A. A. B.

GUISELEY, NEAR LEEDS.

A very successful Mission has just terminated here in connection with the labours of Rev. R. D. Monro. Many remained from day to day for personal instruction; and many have openly acknowledged that they have definitely and for ever taken Christ as their Saviour, and have given their hearts to Him.

Services for children were held in the schools by Miss Bazett, from London, each day of the Mission. From day to day the school was crowded by an eager congregation of between 400 and 500 children. In a very interesting, loving, and attractive way Miss Bazett told them the old, old story. We cannot doubt that in very many of these young hearts the good seed of the Kingdom has been sown, which by God's blessing shall spring up unto everlasting life.

Meetings for women have also been conducted by Miss Bazett. These have been largely attended, and we are thankful to say that many have believed to the saving of their souls. It was most touching to see how some of these women never rested until they have seen their husbands also brought to the same blessed knowledge of salvation. In some cases father, mother, and children have been brought to the Saviour.

Services were held in six mills during the dinner-hour, by Mr. Monro and Miss Bazett; these also were productive of much good. In one large mill, at which nearly 500 hands are employed, and at which we had a service almost every day, I was told by one of the employers that there was quite a change among his work-people. Already they did their work better, and not an oath had been heard in the mill since the Mission began. In this mill we hope to have a permanent service once a week.

The Mission was at first arranged to last for ten days. It seemed, however, to be so clearly God's will that the Mission should be continued, that, although Mr. Monro was unable to remain, Miss Bazett consented to stay for nine days longer. Day by day the people crowded to the Town-hall, where the services were held. Every night numbers remained to the after-meeting, and found peace in believing. Yesterday being the first Sunday after the Mission we had a service in the Town-hall, and a number of fine, manly working men stood up before a crowded audience and bore public testimony to the blessing which they had received.

Robert Willan, Curate-in-Charge.

Guiseley, Jan. 22.

THE FRENCH IN SOHO.

ON Tuesday, January 23rd, the annual meeting of Mons. Barbier's Mission was held at the Salle Evangelique, Portland-street, Wardour-street. The scholars attending the Sunday-school were regaled with tea and cake, and a Christmas-tree was provided for their entertainment. Many articles of clothing were given to the children, and books, all containing the Gospel story, were presented as rewards. Many of these children are exceedingly poor. Their cleanly appearance and bright countenances in the prettily decorated room tells its own tale as to the Christian influence brought to bear upon them through the untiring efforts of Mons. and Madame Barbier, whose young family are now begining to assist their parents in the endeavour to benefit the French-speaking people of Soho.

Mr. Weatherly, the president of the Mission, took his usual place, and manifested his interest in an address to the children, which fixed their attention, partly by its taking the form of question and answer. To the demand, What does the Lord ask us to give Him? a ready response was made, "Our hearts." This shows the nature of the teaching given. Suitable addresses were given by a German lady, who spoke to the children in French, on Christ's love to them, and by Mr. Rolling, from the Sunday School Union, who urged on the children the importance of learning the Word of God by heart. The children, who numbered about seventy, sang several pretty hymns during the evening, and seemed thoroughly to enjoy the entertainment.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending February 10:—Feb. 4, Ps. lxxiv. 13-23; Feb. 5, Ps. lxxv. 1-10; Feb. 6, Ps. lxxvi. 1-12; Feb. 7, Mark i. 1-13; Feb. 8, Mark i. 14-28; Feb. 9, Mark i. 29-45; Feb. 10, Mark ii. 1-12.

M. GUSTAVE DORE, the well-known painter of "Christ leaving the Prætorium," and other pictures on Scriptural subjects, died last week after a brief illness. An interesting biography of the deceased artist, with coloured portrait, forms Part 24 of Messrs. Cassell & Co.'s "International Portrait Gallery." (6d.)

ECCLESTON HALL, ECCLESTON-STREET.—Lord Radstock writes: Pray to the Lord, the Head of the Church, that his name may be glorified in the New Conference Hall in Eccleston-street, S.W.; that guidance may be given as to all arrangements; that his children may be gathered there to Him in unity of Spirit, and thus endued with fresh power from on high; that the Gospel may be preached in the power of the Holy Ghost, and that multitudes in South-west London may be led to the feet of Jesus. The Gospel will be preached every Sunday, 3.45 and 7 p.m. Meeting of believers for prayer and edification every Tuesday, 11.30 a.m.

UPPER BREINTON, HEREFORD.—For several months Mr. C. P. Morris, Shamrock Villa, Aylestone-hill, Hereford, has been, by special request, conducting evangelistic meetings in the school-room of Upper Breinton, with much blessing. The trustees, however, without assigning any reason, have closed the room, and it has been resolved to erect or purchase a building. There is no place near in which meetings can be held. The work is unsectarian, and is carried on by Mr. Morris without charge. The chief landlord in the parish has offered a piece of ground free, and has contributed £10 towards the funds. Aid will be thankfully received by Mr. Morris.

REVIVAL IN PHILIPPOPOLIS.

"LAST evening," writes Mrs. Mumford, in a letter recently received, "the Holy Ghost was poured out upon our school; with cries and tears, the pupils, with one accord, cried out, 'What must we do to be saved?' It came like a shower of blessing, and our little prayer-meeting seemed like the gate of heaven—we could hardly close it after continuing it twice its usual time. Christians confessed their cold state, and begged prayer at the same time that the unconverted were trembling on account of their sins. One of our best Christian girls cried out, and fell upon her knees, saying, 'Oh, my heart is like a stone; Lord, have mercy on me, and make me over anew.'

"A little circle of praying girls have met in my room every Tuesday evening this year, just before the retiring bell, to pray that the Holy Spirit may awaken and convert sinners. Praise God, it is true that Pentecostal times are ours, and we are determined to press the battle to the gate. Pray for us, that the work may be most thorough. I feel that we, as teachers and guides to these scholars, need much wisdom and grace to go in and out before them in a perfect way."

In a letter since received, we learn that the good work is going forward with power.

MARY E. MAHAN.

68, Springdale-road, Stoke Newington, London, N.

SOWING BESIDE ALL WATERS.

IN the early part of the past summer, a minister of the Gospel found himself without a house for holding regular public service. Accordingly, after three weeks' recreation in the country, he, in company with a few others whom the Master sent from time to time as helpers, commenced a series of open-air services. These meetings were held six evenings a week for three months, save the few rainy nights. The site was Baker's-row, about two minutes' walk from Whitechapel-road. Of course the locality indicates the character of the audiences.

The presence of the Lord during the whole time, giving wisdom, guidance, and direction, was indeed wonderful. A few cases in point will suffice to give an idea of the work.

One evening, as the minister was preaching, a man came into the audience and instantly began shouting a volley of licentious epithets and general abuse. In answer to silent prayer God brought the disturber to quietness, and held him throughout the service. After we had closed and left the ground, he followed the minister and begged his pardon.

Another time a scoffer came into the audience and immediately began to scoff. For a few minutes he seemed to carry the audience, but the silent prayer was answered by quietness. The scoffer himself soon became interested, and gradually moved around until he stood beside the speaker. When the meeting was closed, the scoffer himself attempted to speak, and the rabble element began to laugh and cheer. He said: "You may laugh at me if you will. I came to scoff but God has touched my heart, and I am going home to be a better man."

On another occasion, as we were leaving, a middle-aged woman, with battered face, stepped up to the minister, and begged his pardon, God's pardon, and everybody's pardon, that she was such a sinner. She also asked, "Will you pray for me?" He prayed. She then said, "May I pray for myself?" There, on the stones of the street, she knelt; confessed her sins, and asked God to bless her, spare her, and make her a better woman for the rest of her days. She also asked God to bless her friends, and make them what they ought to be. Though almost the entire large audience remained, and many more passing by were drawn around, yet the whole scene was as quiet and orderly as would be found in any house of public worship.

At the close of the next to our last meeting, after all the others had gone, one man stood as if fastened to the stones. On being spoken to he burst into tears on account of his sins. He was pointed to the Lamb of God, and started for home. On our way home, we found him leaning against the wall, still weeping. Again we pointed him to the Saviour.

Very often the manifest presence of the Spirit was such that the audience were unwilling to disperse even after the benediction. Several times we held after-meetings of prayer at which from six to ten or more stalwart roughs remained, expressing their determination henceforth to be the Lord's. We very much felt the need of a room near at hand into which to invite the anxious souls for conversation and prayer. We know of some real conversions. We had both Jews and Romanists in constant attendance. Several of these were efficient helpers in keeping and restoring order.

It is our deliberate conviction that every place of worship should have a faithful, earnest, energetic band of systema tic workers for this department of Christian labour. We believe that God is raising up a band for this particular site. For the opportunity of labour, and whatever of good accomplished, we give God all the glory.

IOTA.

Letters to the Editor.

"JESUS ONLY."

DEAR SIR,—When the three disciples upon the Mount of Transfiguration had lifted up their eyes, "they saw no man, save Jesus only" (Matt. xvii. 8). Moses and Elias, the representatives of the Law and the Prophets, had disappeared, and "Jesus was found alone." (Luke ix. 36.)

This narrative is very simple and plain. We find, however, the words, "Jesus only," disconnected from their context, continually used as a motto or text, if not indeed as a creed. My object in addressing you is to elicit the opinion of your Christian readers upon what appears to be a new theology, and which finds so general an expression in the hymns and worship of the day.—Yours faithfully, 1 PETER i. 2, 3.

SANCTIFICATION AND HOLINESS.

DEAR SIR,—Mr. Coote, in his letter in your last number, discusses the question whether the above terms are synonymous expressions. Permit me, in reply, to suggest that the question is determined by the word used in the original language to designate them. I would first quote the text (1 Cor. i. 30, R.V.): "Christ Jesus, who was made unto us wisdom from God, (even) righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption." The Greek word here employed for "sanctification" is ἁγιασμός: and this word is similarly translated in the following passages, viz., 1 Thess. iv. 3, 4; 2 Thess. ii. 13; 1 Pet. i. 2.

As to "holiness," the same Greek word is used for that also in Rom. i. 4, vi. 19, 22. (In the R.V., sanctification is in the latter texts substituted for holiness): 2 Cor. vii. 1; 1 Thess. iii. 13, iv. 7 (the same alteration being made in verse 7); 1 Tim. ii. 15 (with the same change); Heb. xii. 10, 14 (with the like change in verse 14).

Do not these texts show that the two terms are synonymous? To be "wholly sanctified" is to be wholly separated into Christ, who is as much the believer's sanctification as his redemption and righteousness. A branch of a healthy tree will be always growing and bearing fruit, and—fruit unto holiness. But it will be because it is a branch deriving life from the stem. The Apostle Peter urges believers to grow; but in what? "In the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" (2 Pet. iii. 18, R.V.); that is, to grow in the grace wherein they have been planted, and into a fuller and more experimental, personal acquaintance with their Lord; just as Paul urged the Ephesians "to grow up in all things into Him," which is the Head, even Christ (chap. iv. 13, R.V.).

There can, of course, be no growth out of Christ—"separated from Me, ye can do nothing." If He is the believer's life, there must be a continual progress in Him. Paul witnessed, "I press forward towards the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (Phil. iii. 14, R.V.) So the healthy Christian will be ever pressing on, having been redeemed, justified, and sanctified, in his Lord. In proportion as he "abides in Christ," so will be his growth into his likeness. And the Holy Spirit will ever work in him that abides, to do always such things as are pleasing in the sight of the Holy Lord. "Herein is my Father glorified that ye bear much fruit."—Yours truly, EDWARD KNOCKER.

Cameron Lodge, St. John's, Ryde, I.W.

PRAYER FOR THE DEAD.

SIR,—The Bishop of Peterborough maintains that "The Church of England has not formally condemned prayers for the dead."

That such prayers are discouraged, if not condemned, is clear from a comparison of the Books of Edward VI. The First Book contained an order for Communion at Funerals, with prayers for the souls of the departed. The prayer after the offertory sentences was headed, "For the whole state of Christ's Church." The prayer itself contained a supplication for the departed.

In the Second Book of Edward VI., to the words "Christ's Church," were added the words "militant here on earth," and the prayer for the "departed" was omitted. In all subsequent revisions these changes were preserved. It was held by the Privy Council that the omission of previous rules and rubrics was equivalent to exclusion.

In primitive times many doctrinally erroneous practices prevailed, and we should rather look to Scripture for our guidance.

The Bishop seems to contemplate the possibility of the Church reviving the practice; but the xxth Canon states: "It is not lawful to ordain anything that is contrary to God's word written, neither may it so expound one place, that it be repugnant to another." To God's word, therefore, are we to go, not to the practice of primitive times.

X.Y.

HEALING BY FAITH.

DEAR SIR,—All lovers of truth will desire to see the above subject resting on a sure Scriptural basis; and I venture to offer one or two remarks, not as an opponent of views which seem to gather many supporters amongst devout and earnest Christians, but as one desirous to prevent the disappointment which must follow unauthorised human opinions on a matter of vast importance. My conviction is, that in some cases, healing through the prayer of faith will be granted, on the ground that "all things are possible to him that believeth." This is large enough and wide enough to cover the ground before us.

No great doctrine commonly received among Christians rests on any mere isolated passage in God's word; and no practice of the Christian Church can be warranted if unsanctioned by our Lord or his Apostles. The commissions, in Luke ix. and x., to the twelve, and to the seventy, do not touch the present question; these were special commissions, and special "power" was bestowed for these occasions, and was imparted to those commissioned; and much more than healing the sick was included. The verses at the close of Mark's Gospel are now pronounced of very doubtful authenticity by the New Testament Revisers; and the words in the last chapter of the Epistle of St. James therefore stand pretty much alone as the basis upon which so much stress is laid. But James the Just was not an Apostle; and his Epistle is not addressed to the Church of Christ at large, but to the Jewish dispersion—presumably to Hebrew Christians, amongst whom, for good reasons, his influence was deservedly great. In his letter he does not claim apostolic authority, nor does he address himself to Gentile Christians.

Two great and miraculous gifts were bestowed on the early Church as signs among the unbelievers, the gift of tongues and gifts of healing. As a close student of Scripture said not long ago in my hearing, "If the gift of healing is restored, ought we not to expect to see the gift of tongues also restored?" But we find no missionary to the heathen yet able to dispense with the toilsome study necessary for the acquisition of strange languages; and I do not think we can yet dispense with the blessed power wielded by Medical Missions or abandon the skill and knowledge acquired by Christian doctors, which God is pleased to use in disarming prejudice and paving the way for the reception of the Gospel.

In all cases of prayer for healing surely this condition will be observed, "If the Lord will, we shall both live, and do this or that." It would not be becoming to claim authority for expecting certain results suggested by chapter v. of James' Epistle, and to ignore the caution given in chapter iv. of the same Epistle. The Lord give us a right judgment in all things.—Faithfully yours,

Jan. 25. A DISCIPLE.

DEAR SIR,—The doctrine of "Healing by Faith" has for some years past been brought prominently forward by certain earnest Christians; but there are one or two points scarcely if ever touched upon in works on the subject, which, to my mind, require elucidation before this teaching can be received with confidence, as founded on the word of God.

The strongest passage in its favour appears to be James v. 14. Modern Christians who arrogate to themselves the "gift of healing," with due consistency endeavour to follow out this injunction to the letter, and accordingly "anoint with oil," as well as "pray over the sick."

Now, it is an undisputed fact that oil in the East was, and is, used universally for medicinal purposes; and it was the custom of the Jews in the time when the Apostles wrote to "anoint" with it as a means of healing. Can it be proved that James does not refer to its use in this sense? May we not take his meaning to be as follows: Having employed the natural means for recovery, do not rest in them; it is the power of God alone, invoked by the "prayer of faith," which can render them availing.

Again, the miraculous powers promised to the Apostles at the inauguration of the New Dispensation of the Gospel, are claimed by the so-called "healers" of the present day. Have they Scriptural warrant for this? God does not work unnecessary miracles. At the raising of Lazarus man could "roll away the stone," and "loose" the grave-clothes, both of which he was commanded to do; but man could not give life, hence the miraculous power displayed.

Christianity needs no miracle now to prove its Divine authenticity. Medical knowledge has increased amazingly since the time when "oil" was a panacea for disease. Are we justified in rejecting the discoveries of science, the results of patient toil, and often self-denying labours of devoted men, rewarded by clearer insight into the laws of nature (which are the laws of God), and casting aside this God-given wisdom for the alleviation of pain and sickness, claim that a miracle should be worked on our behalf? This is no question of the power of God; it touches in no way his sovereignty to dispense with laws of his own appointing when He chooses. I would simply ask, "Is it in harmony with his usual method of working, as revealed to us in his Word and his providential dealings, to work by means or without them? Can any reasonable argument be advanced for a departure from usual methods in cases of sickness?—Yours truly, An Inquirer after Truth.

Requests for Praise and Prayer.

"Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known into God."—Phil. iv. 6.

PRAISE.—For the conversion of an only daughter.——For blessing to many families in Shaftesbury, Dorset, where meetings have been held.——For rich blessing on a week of children's services at Carshalton.——For blessing given to the Mission at Sheepy, near Atherstone.

PRAYER.—For a brother, of whom no tidings can be had.——That a young undergraduate of Cambridge, who is preparing for the ministry, may be kept from surrounding temptations.

PLACES.—For much blessing on evangelistic meetings to be held in Falkirk, N.B., by John M. Scroggie.——For blessing on services to be conducted by Captain Baring, at Salisbury, Feb. 4 to 11.——For a Mission amongst children, by Mr. G. Banaster, at Salisbury, Feb. 12 to 18.——That much blessing may attend the services in a new Mission-church to be opened in a crowded district in Wolverhampton.——For Gospel Meetings at Godmanchester, conducted by Mr. J. S. Scroggie.

CONVERSIONS.—Of the only son of a widowed mother.——Many requests are sent by friends for the conversion of relatives.——For a son who has fallen into grievous sin.——For a young man who was impressed at the recent services by Messrs. Moody and Sankey in Bristol, and who will soon be leaving the country.

SUPERSTITION IN SPAIN.—A letter received from Miss Lydia Brooks, Calle del Sol, Marin, informs us that the worship of idols is not confined to distant heathen lands. She lately received from a woman a little idol, meant to represent Christ as a babe, which had been worshipped for many years. The woman was afraid to burn it, lest it should leap upon her. Her eyes have been gradually opened to the wiles and machinations of the priests, and there is every reason to believe she has received the Saviour. Amid much persecution she remains firm to her principles, and has gathered round her a number of the neighbours, to whom she reads the Bible. Many of the fish rman are much interested in the meetings. Miss Brooks has commenced Cottage Meetings, which it is hoped will quietly introduce the truths of the Bible into the homes of the people.

Notices.

Noyton.—We have submitted your note to the writer of the sketch, who assures us that the statements contained in it are in no respect exaggerated.

"The Christian" can be had by friends in Greenock, Gourock, or Port-Glasgow, delivered free, weekly, by applying to Mr. John Salisbury, 82, Belville-street, Greenock.

Applicants for Tracts.—C. Newman, 4, Summerhill-terrace, Summerhill-road, Tottenham; F. Daines, 2, Lea-cottage, Clyde-road, West Green, Tottenham; G. R. Kirlew, 10, Corporation-street, Manchester; Miss Munns, 11, Wapping hall, Shadwell; J. E. Dodd, 15, Plummer-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne; J. W. Nash, 19, Glanvill-road, Strood, Rochester; R. W. Rycroft, 51, Conyers-street, off Great, Homer-street, Liverpool; W. Baldwin, Machine-house, North Haymarket, Gt. Nelson-street, Liverpool; E. Bullen 134, Great Hampton-street, Birmingham; T. Baker, Church-road, Tottenham; G. W. Wilbee, Sarratt, near Rickmansworth; J. J. Browne, 8, Clifton-terrace, South Norwood, S.E.; A. McKinnon, Blantyre Works, Blantyre, N.B.; G. Harris, 67, Ralph-street, Dover-road, Boro, S.E.; S. Maddy, White-Lion-row, Eaton Socon, near St. Neot's, Bedfordshire; W. G. McNaught, Heath-cottage, Skittles-lane, Plumstead, Kent; H. Jones, 10, Trafalgar-place, Weston, near Bath; A. W. Harper, 2, Green-park-cottages, Clyde-road, West Green, Tottenham; Dr. G. de G. Griffith, 24, St. George's-square, Pimlico, S.W.

Communications received with thanks.—J.H.R. G.C.W. A.K. R.F. G.V.C. J.E.R. A.E.G. E.B. F.W. S.M. F.P. C.J.B C.L. W.B.A. Miss H. J.A.T. J.H.K. J.S. J.B. T.W.H. C.T.C. de B. A.E.F. A.S.P. M.M. R.W. A.A.B. E.J.H. C.F. J.S. W.P. E.I. M.C. B.S.W. G.G.G. J.T.W. J.M.S. F.S. H.R.F. Constant Reader. A Disciple. T.T. R.G. S.R. E.A.E. H.N.M. R.D.T. F.W. Mrs M. L.B. J.W. G.T. J.R.D. W.G.M. G.B. F.K. B.E. W.G. J.H. A Servant. J.H.B. W.D.D. W.C. F.K. G.A. E.P.H. G.P. D.M. W.H.M. J.W. F.A. S.G.P. E.J.R. A.C.C. W.F. C.T.W. M.G.M. R. J.M.M. Miss D. W.G. J.C.T. J.T.M. M.F.L. G.H. V.M.S. A.A.R. W.P. J.B. Mrs. S. W.F. G.D. H.L.M. J.K. G.H.B.

Forthcoming Meetings.

Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Forthcoming Engagements—1883—Jan. 18 to Feb. 7, Birmingham; Feb. 11 to 18, Belfast; Feb. 20 to 23, Leicester; Feb. 25 to 28, Nottingham; Mar. 1 to 15, Manchester; Mar. 16 to 30, Leeds; Mar. 31 to April 14, Liverpool.

The Evangelisation Society will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales, on due notice. Apply, Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-st., Strand, W.C.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any Evangelical denomination in London Apply, Hon. Sec., 30, Surrey-sq., S.E.

The Irish Evangelization Society will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

Y.M.C.A., The Priory, 198, Upper-street, N.—Thursday, Feb. 1, 8.30 p.m., address, Rev. F. J. Sharr. Sun., 3.15 p.m., address by Rev. George Wilson. Wed., 6 to 10, anxious Inquirers and Strangers.

——— Exeter Hall.—Sunday, 7 p.m., Service conducted by Mr. H. Varley. Saturday, 8.30 p.m., Bible-reading by Col. Puget.

——— Iona Rooms, 205, High-street, Camden Town.—A Special and Social Meeting will be held this evening, Feb. 1st, Rev George Wilson (Presbyterian Church, Canonbury) and Mr. E. J. Kennedy, will give addresses. Tea, coffee, &c., 8 to 8.30 p.m.

Agricultural Hall Services.—Sunday, Feb. 4, 3.30 p.m. Rev. Robert Berry; 7 p.m. Messrs. Elvin and Chamberlain, (Service of Song).

The Deepening of Spiritual Life.—Stafford Rooms, Tichborne-street, Edgware-road, on Friday, February 2, at 3.30 p.m., Rev. J. A. Jacob.

House of Rest, 8, Cambridge-gardens, 6, Kilburn-park, N.W. Friday, Feb. 2, 10.30 a.m., 3.30 and 7 p.m.. Meetings for Prayer on behalf of Christian Work and Workers, by Dr. Boardman and others.

Mr. Shuldham Henry will take the Services at St. George's Hall during February. Sundays at 11 a.m., and 7 p.m. Burlington Hall, Savile-row, Wednesdays at 8 p.m.

Stafford Rooms, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road.—Mr. Henry Thorne will conduct a Mission to Young Men on Sunday afternoons, Feb. 4 and 11, at 3.15 p.m., and on the evenings of Feb. 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9, at 8.30 p.m.

Children's Special Service Mission.—Messrs. Seyler and McClure at Wandsworth-rd., Feb. 6 to 9; Mr. Banaster at Salisbury, March 4 to 11; Mr. Spiers at Paignton.

The "Merchant's Lecture," Weigh House Chapel, Fish-street-hill.—Tuesdays, at 12 noon. Lecturer for February, Rev. J. Baldwin Brown.

Salvation Army.—Mrs. Booth at Kensington Town Hall, Sun., Feb. 11, at 3 p.m.; Regent's Hall, Regent Circus, Tues., Feb. 13, at 3 p.m.; Steinway Hall, Lower Seymour-street, Portman-square, Thurs., Feb. 15, at 11 a.m.

Open-air Mission, South London Auxiliary.—Annual Meeting, Wednesday, Feb. 14, School-room, Melior-street, Weston-street, London Bridge. Chairman, Admiral Fishbourne. Speakers, Rev. J. Henry, Rev. W. Carlile, Rev. F. A. Billing, Dr. McKilliam, and Mr. J. Wakefield McGill. Tea at 6. Meeting at 7.

Rev. W. Haslam's Engagements.—Feb. 3, Wilford, near Nottingham; Feb. 17, St. Mark's, Bath.

Rev. W. H. Aitken's Engagements.—Jan. 21 to Feb. 7, Leeds, Canon Jackson's Church; Victoria-hall, Feb. 8 to 28; March 4 to 19, Weymouth; March 31 to April 16, Wareham; April 22 to May 6, St. Matthew's, Bayswater; May 26 to July 2, South London.

Mr. G. Kirkham's Engagements.—Feb. 5 to 11, Middleton, near Bognor; 12, Hertford; 13, Chavering, Herts; 14, Bermondsey; 15, Rochester Institute, Walworth-road; 16, Stanstead Abbotts, Herts; 19, St. Benet's, Mile-end-road; 20, Mile-end New Town; 21, Home of Industry, Spitalfields; 25, Field-lane Ragged Schools; 27, Battersea-park-road; 28, Muldmay-park.

Evangelistic Mission.—"Oxford" Music Hall; Sunday, at 7 p.m., Mr. Geo. Tomkins. Mornington Hall, Hampstead-road; Sunday at 7 p.m., Mr. T. H. Morris. Kilburn Hall, Kilburn-gate (not Town Hall): Sun., 7 p.m., Ned Wright. Malden Hall, Haverstock Hill: Sun. at 7 p.m., Mr. Geo. Hucklesby. Temple of Varieties, King-street, Hammersmith: Sunday, at 3.30 p.m., Mr. Edward Hurditch. Bignold Hall, Forest-gate: Sun., at 7 p.m., Mr. Abraham Wallis. Omega Hall, Alpha-road, Regent's-park: Sun. at 3.30 and 7 p.m., Messrs. Smith and Sprunt. Dalston Hall, Dalston-lane: Sun., 3.15 p.m. and 7 p.m., Mr. F. C. Spurr.

Subscriptions received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Saturday Morning, January 27, 1883.

 Donations should be sent by cheque or Post-office order not by stamps. Cheques to be drawn in favour of Morgan and Scott, and crossed City Bank; P.O.O.'s payable to Morgan and Scott, at G.P.O

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the Missions to which they wish their donations to be applied. Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Saturday Morning. Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

	£	s.	d.
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, E.—T. S. £10; Miss R. £2; J. K. 5s.; E. J. T. 5s.	12	10	0
Homes for Aged Poor—J. G.	1	0	0
Children's Special Service Mission—J. G.	1	0	0
Dock Labourers' Mission—Miss S. L. £1. Free Lodgings—C. B. & K. F. £1. Mr. C. Coleman's Personal Expenses—J. G. £2	4	0	0
Miss Leigh's Work, Paris—Mrs. G. £1; C. C. F. A. 5s.	1	5	0
Rescue Work, Poplar (Mrs. Wilkes)—Mrs. G. £1 5s.; S. L. A. T. £2	3	5	0
Rescue of English Girls (Mr. Dyer)—Mrs. G.	1	0	0
Homerton Mission—C. C. F. A. 5s.; Mrs. S. L. 10s.; Breakfasts—E. J. T. 10s.	1	5	0
Hospital for Women, Soho-square—S. A. W.	1	0	0
Mrs. Hilton's Creche—J. S. R.	0	2	6
Cow Cross Mission—J. H. B. 5s.; "Miriam," £3; S. L. A. T. £2; T. S. £1 1s.; M. A. 2s. 6d.	6	8	6
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—J. H. B. 5s.; E. J. T. 10s.	0	15	0
George Yard Ragged School—"Miriam," £2; T. S. £1 1s.; Miss E. T., Totnes, £10	13	1	0
Army Scripture Readers' Society—E. C.	1	0	0
Mission to Seamen—E. C.	1	0	0
Spanish and Portuguese Mission—E. C.	1	0	0
Women's Mission to Women—E. C.	1	0	0
East London Training Institute—E. C. £1; J. C. £2; W. D. £1	4	0	0
Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland—A. R.	1	0	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—S. L. A. T. £2; J. C. £1; "Watty;" 4s.; M. A. C. £1; A. S. 5s.; "Miss E. T. Totness" £20; E. J. T. 5s.	24	14	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—S. L. A. T. £2; M. A. C. 10s; Miss E. T., Totnes, £20; E. J. T. 5s.	22	15	0
Crystal Palace Bible Stand—J. C.	1	0	0
Midnight Meeting Movement—J. C.	1	0	0
Christian Colportage Association—J. C.	2	0	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—J. C.	1	0	0
Flower Girls' Mission—J. C.	0	10	0
Home for Aged Blind Christian Women—J. C. 5s.; R. C. £2	2	5	0
St. Giles's Christian Mission—Prison Work—M. M. 6s. 6d.; E. J. T. 10s.	0	16	6
Friendless and Fallen—"A Working Man," 5s.; B. J. T. 10s.	0	15	0
Syrian Colonisation Fund—"Hull," 2s. 6d.; "A Babe in Christ," 2s. 6d.	0	5	0
Rev. A. G. Brown's Mission Work at Stepney—Miss E. T., Totnes	10	0	0
Golden-lane Mission—Miss E. T., Totnes	10	0	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—Miss E. T., Totnes.	10	0	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—E. J. T.	0	5	0
National Lifeboat Institution—E. J. T.	0	10	0
Tower Hamlets Mission—E. J. T.	0	10	0
Home for Worn-out Governesses, etc.—E. J. T.	1	0	0
Miss Robinson's Work among Soldiers—E. J. T.	0	5	0
London City Mission—T. B. W.	0	5	0
Colar Orphanage (Miss Anstey)—E. A. B.	2	0	0
Miss Whately's Medical Mission, Cairo—"A friend"	2	0	0
	£149	7	6

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Cow-cross Mission—Mrs. P. £5; Miss P. £2 2s.; T. M. 2s. 6d.

Evangelistic Mission (Per C. R. H.) C. B., Switzerland, 8s. 4d.

London City Mission—Disabled Missionaries Fund—J. P., £6 5s.

Dr. Barnardo's Homes—"A Well-wisher gathered at a Social Tea-table," 7s.

Contributions received by Mrs. Evered Poole in answer to "A Cry from Egypt"—J. W. and Friends, 3s. 6d.; Mrs. G. Thomson, £5; Mrs. Colbeck, 5s.; A Friend (Edinburgh), 10s.; Per Chas. Harris, Esq., £2; Luxmoor Wilson, Esq., £2 2s.; Capt. Leibenrood, £1; A. Reffold, 10s.; Mrs. Tighe, £10, Mrs. Green, 1s.; Mrs. Dunn, £10; Mrs. Glasson, £1; A. W. 10s.; Mrs. Cowherd, 5s.; Mrs. Dann, 5s.; M. A. Potts, 5s.; Small sums, 4s.; Miss Cecil Rice, 10s.; Mrs. Millington 1s.; K. A. Hooper, £1 1s.; Miss Munk, 10s.; Miss Haldam Gordon, £2; Maria and Ann Leigh, 10s.; A Servant, 5s.; Miss Cooke, 10s.; Mrs. S. Brown, 10s.

Help in Time of Need.

MR. BARLOW KENNETT offers £50 to Mrs. Parsons, for £150 her Work among the Orphans, on condition that more can be obtained within two months, in any sums, large or small.

As Money for the Homes is URGENTLY NEEDED, friends are earnestly asked to respond speedily to this generous offer.

CUMBERLAND HOUSE, WALTHAMSTOW, ESSEX.

FIELD LANE REFUGES for the HOMELESS POOR,

VINE STREET, CLERKENWELL ROAD, E.C.,

Training Homes for Destitute Boys and Girls.

President—THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

THE COMMITTEE EDUCATE, Feed, Clothe, and give INDUSTRIAL TRAINING to 200 DESTITUTE CHILDREN, SHELTER AND FEED 100 HOMELESS Men, Women, and YOUNG GIRLS.

PROVIDE FREE DINNERS Four Days a Week, for 150 FAMISHING CHILDREN attending the BIBLE SCHOOLS, give FREE BREAKFASTS on Lord's Day Morning to 500 of the HOMELESS POOR attending the GOSPEL SERVICE, Help 450 Poor Mothers Weekly.

A CRÈCHE is much required, but NO FUNDS to fit up the SPACE IN HAND.

The Committee MOST EARNESTLY APPEAL FOR HELP TO MEET EXPENSES, and to enable them to remove the DEBT of £3,000 incurred through the Compulsory Removal of the Refuges and Schools from Saffron Hill, the payment of Interest on the Debt being a severe hindrance to the Work.

Donations, &c., will be thankfully received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of "THE CHRISTIAN," 12, Paternoster-buildings; the Treasurer, W. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; and Messrs. RANSOME & Co., 1, Pall Mall East; or by the Undersigned,

PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary at the Refuges, as above.

Just published, Royal 32mo., cloth, price 6d., per post 7d.

THE CHRISTIAN ALPHABET;

Words of Comfort for the Evening Hour. Specially suited for Invalids and the Aged.

GLASGOW: MURRAY & SON; LONDON: SIMPKIN & CO.

THE ANCHORAGE.

Hebrews vi. 19.

SPECIAL BRANCH of the MISSION OF HOPE AND HELP.

For the reception of the more respectable class of young women in trouble.

Conversion of heart, according to the simple Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, is the one thing prayerfully and faithfully sought.

The young women are fitted for resuming their position in life, by thorough instruction in household duties, cookery, dressmaking, fine and laundry work, &c. &c.

A full description of the work of the Mission, with regulations for admission to the "Anchorage," will be sent on application by letter to MRS. H. STUART-WORTLEY, Rosslyn House, Grove Road, N.W. (President of the Ladies' Committee), to whom, and to Messrs MORGAN & SCOTT, subscriptions may be sent.

SECOND ISSUE OF CAPITAL AT PAR.

THE LAND & HOUSE PROPERTY

CORPORATION, Limited.

Capital £1,000,000, in 200,000 Shares, £5 each.

DIRECTORS.

The Right Hon. the LORD MAYOR (Alderman Henry Edmund Knight), Chairman.

Edwin Fox, Esq. (Fox & Bousfield), 99, Gresham-street, Bank (Director, Grand Junction Water-works).

The Hon. Reginald A. Capel, Little Casstobury, Watford (Director, Great Northern Railway Company).

Charles Horsley, Esq., C.E., 21 and 22, Wharf-road, City-road, N.

James Carlile McCoan, Esq., M.P., 42, Notting-hill-square, W.

William Alves Raikes, Esq., 12, King's Bench walk, Temple, E.C.

Crescent Biscoe Tritton, Esq., 63, St. George's-square, S.W. (Director, Southwark and Vauxhall Water Company).

DIVIDEND of 5 PER CENT. PAID for PAST YEAR.

The satisfactory results attained by kindred institutions are evidence that the profits will be very considerably increased as the operations of the Corporation extend.

FIRST ISSUE of 20,000 SHARES (£100,000) completed.

SECOND ISSUE of 20,000 SHARES NOW OFFERED at PAR.

Allotments will be made according to priority of Application, but it is not expected that any further Issues will be made, except at a premium.

Payable 10s. on Application, 10s on Allotment, and balance in calls not exceeding £2 each, at not less than one month's notice.

Forms of Application and copy of last report, &c., at the Company's Bankers, or at their Offices, 28 and 29, Cheapside, E.C.

WILLIAM C. McLEWIN, Secretary.

Songs of The Gospel.

Edited and Composed by JAMES McGRANAHAN.

A Selection of choice stirring Hymns, with attractive Tunes, the majority being the Compositions of Mr. McGRANAHAN, and now first collected.

EDITIONS AND PRICES.—Music and Words: Old Notation—Paper Covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d. Sol-fa—Paper Covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d. Book of Words: Paper Covers, 1d.; Printed Cloth, 2d.

Specimen Copy on receipt of price.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller

Cloth limp, price 1s.

THE HIGHER CHRISTIAN LIFE.

By REV. W. E. BOARDMAN

Author of "Gladness in Jesus."

"A book full of interesting religious incidents, all of which are related for the purpose of stimulating believing souls to higher things."—Literary World.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE FEAR OF DEATH.

By D. L. MOODY.

Neatly printed on tinted paper, suitable for enclosing in letters

Price 2s. per 100.

"There are a great many of God's professed children who live in continual bondage, in the constant fear of death. I believe this is dishonouring to God. I believe that it is not His will to have one of His children live in fear for one moment. If you know the truth in Jesus, there need be no fear, there need be no dread, because death will only hasten you on to glory; and your names are already written in heaven."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings

Neatly printed on Tinted Paper, suitable for enclosing in Letters. Price 1s. per dozen (post free).

THE WHITE FIELDS OF ENGLAND.

An Entreaty to Communicants.

By REGINALD RADCLIFFE.

"What Christian does not long for the Gospel to spread on the Continent of Europe? And who that reflects can fail to observe that the gross state of our large towns arises very much from their being grossly neglected by us communicants. Their sad state is patent to every observing foreigner whom business brings into the midst of us, and he naturally looks with contempt and abhorrence on what he styles our "Christianity."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST. FIRST ESTABLISHED 1825.

NEAVE'S FOOD FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS.

LANCET—"Carefully prepared and highly nutritious."

BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL.—"Well adapted for children, aged people, and invalids."

IN ONE-POUND ONE SHILLING CANISTERS.

SOLD EVERYWHERE. WHOLESALE OF THE MANUFACTURERS,

J. R. NEAVE & CO., FORDINGBRIDGE, ENGLAND.

WORKS BY D. L. MOODY.

POWER FROM ON HIGH; or, THE

Secret of Success in Christian Life and Christian Work. By D. L. MOODY. 15th THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"This series of earnest and solemn Addresses bear throughout that stamp of honest, eager earnestness, which is so striking a characteristic of the writer's labours as a preacher."—Clerical World.

"Every page is full of stimulating thought for Christian Workers."—Commonwealth.

ADDRESSES BY D. L. MOODY. Revised.

103rd THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"With the effect of these Addresses when spoken the whole land is acquainted, and now that they are written they will tend to keep in force the impression they have already made. The book is clearly printed, on good paper, is handy in form, and is sure of a wide circulation."—Primitive Methodist.

THE FAITHFUL SAYING. A SERIES

of Addresses. By D. L. MOODY. 9th THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Fresh, direct, pictorial, and powerful; they are admirable examples of the readiest way to reach the hearts of men with the truths of Christ."

General Baptist Magazine.

"These discourses are full of power and homely beauty, and exemplify very fully the strong points of the great evangelist. Nothing surprises us more in Mr. MOODY than his marvellous power of illustration. His anecdotes are so fresh, so pointed, and touching."—King's Highway.

HEAVEN; ITS HOPES, ITS INHABItants, its Riches, its Rewards. By D. L. MOODY. 32nd THOUSAND. Tinted Covers. 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Scattered throughout this volume are many direct home-thrusts at fashionable follies, many sharp rebukes of unrighteousness, much serious and urgent exhortations to Christliness of life, and many solemn warnings of the sad consequences of disregarding the love and mercy of the Saviour."—Primitive Methodist.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

By D. L. MOODY. 9th THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 4d.; Cloth Limp, 6d.

CHEAP EDITION, for General Distribution, 2s. per doz., post free.

"The moment a man takes hold of the truth that Jesus is coming back again to receive his followers to Himself, this world loses its hold upon him. Gas stocks, and water stocks, and stocks in banks and railroads, are of very much less consequence to him then. His heart is free, and he looks for the blessed appearing of his Lord, who, at his coming, will take him into his blessed Kingdom."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Attractively bound in White and Gold, price 2s. 6d., post free.

MARRIAGE AND HOME.

A VOLUME OF KINDLY COUNSELS TO THE NEWLY MARRIED.

"A marriage gift, to show the nature of marriage in the Lord, and to help young husbands and wives to live together unto Him in all things. A very neat little book."—British Messenger.

"Full of wise counsel and Christian teaching. There is certainly no better book for a bridal present."—The Freeman.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller

Terms for Advertisements

IN

"The Christian"

(PREPAID.)

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding 30 Words			3	0
,,	39	,, ...	3	9
,,	48	,, ...	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under. the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger Advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

To prevent disappointment, it is necessary to say that in no case must Letters be addressed to a Post-office, unless permission be previously obtained at such Post-office.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive and forward Replies to Advertisements.

☞ In order to secure insertion of Advertisements in the following number of THE CHRISTIAN they should reach this office on or before Friday, and at the latest by Saturday Morning air at post.

"The Christian."

SUBSCRIPTIONS for 3, 6 or 12 Months.

INCLUDING ANY DOUBLE NUMBERS.

				£	s.
13 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	..	..	0	1	9
2 Copies ,,	1d.	..	..	0	3	5
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	..	..	0	5	2
4 ,, ,,	2d.	..	..	0	6	10
26 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	..	..	0	3	5
2 Copies ,,	1d.	..	..	0	6	10
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	..	..	0	10	3
4 ,, ,,	2d.	..	..	0	13	8
52 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	..	..	0	6	10
2 Copies ,,	1d.	..	..	0	13	8
3 ,, ,,	1½d.	..	..	1	0	6
4 ,, ,,	2d.	..	..	1	7	4

Remittances to be made either by Postal Order, or Post Office Order, payable at the General Post Office. Cheques to be crossed "City Bank."

The prices include any Double Numbers that may be issued through the year.

Copies will be continued after the term is expired for which payment has been made, unless instructions are sent to the contrary.

Particulars for FOREIGN SUBSCRIPTIONS can be obtained on application to the Publisher.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d. post-free
WITH SEVEN ILLUSTRATIONS.

JOE WITLESS.

A BOOK FOR BOYS.

By E. B. HUNTER.

"A capital book, especially for young people. It is replete with Christian truth and experience, and cannot fail to do good."—Baptist Messenger.

"We can cordially recommend it as calculated to arrest attention and impress the conscience of the most daring and thoughtless of our youth."

Sword and Trowel.

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE COTTAGE ON THE ROCK.

AN ALLEGORY.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

"Cradled in prayer, and mourning only for the feebleness and imperfect utterance of the glorious truths so faintly apprehended, I cast this little waymark of my pilgrimage into the hands of Him whose faithfulness I have to this day proved."—EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Sacred Songs & Solos.

(Nos. 1 and 2 Combined, Consisting of 441 Hymns.)

COMPILED BY IRA D. SANKEY,

AND SUNG BY HIM AT

Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Meetings.

The Book, as now extended and enlarged, forms a specially cheap and comprehensive collection, well adapted for

SUNDAY SCHOOLS,
MISSION SERVICES, AND
EVANGELISTIC WORK.

IT GIVES NO LESS THAN

441 Hymns for One Penny. Music & Words, 1s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.			MUSIC AND WORDS.
1 A. Ruby Edition	Sewed	1d.	1 F. Old Notation	Tinted Covers	2s. 6d.
2 A. ,,	Printed Cloth ...	2d.	2 F. ,,	Limp Cloth ...	3s. 6d.
1 B. Nonpareil Ed.	Tinted Covers ...	3d.	3 F. ,,	Cloth Boards.	4s. 6d.
2 B. ,,	Printed Cloth ...	4d.	4 F. ,,	Do. Gilt Edg.	5s. 0d.
1 C. Medium Type	Limp Cloth... ...	6d.	5 F. ,,	Morocco ...	8s. 6d.
2 C. ,,	Cloth Boards	1s. 0d.	6 F. ,,	,, flexible, kid-lined	12s. 6d.
3 C. ,,	Morocco	2s. 6d.	1 G. Tonic Sol-fa	... Tinted Covers	2s. 6d.
1 D. F'cap. 8vo. ed.	Tinted Covers	1s. 0d.	2 G. ,,	... Limp Cloth ...	3s. 6d.
2 D. ,,	Limp Cloth...	1s. 6d.	3 G. ,,	... Cloth Boards.	4s. 6d.
3 D. ,,	Cloth Boards.	2s. 0d.	4 G. ,,	... Gilt Edges	5s. 0d.
4 D. ,,	Morocco	4s. 6d.	5 G. ,,	... Morocco	8s. 6d.
1 E. Ex. Large Type	Tinted Covers	1s. 6d.	1 H. Old Notation. CHEAP EDITION. (In Smaller Type)	Tinted Covers	1s. 6d.
2 E. ,,	Limp Cloth ...	2s. 0d.	2 H. ,,	Limp Cloth ...	2s. 0d.
3 E. ,,	Cloth Boards.	2s. 6d.	3 H. ,,	Cloth Boards.	2s. 6d.
4 E. ,,	Morocco ...	5s. 6d.	4 H. ,,	Morocco	5s. 6d.
			5 H. ,,	,, flexible, kid-lined	10s. 6d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS, No. 2.

(Containing 170 Pieces.)

For the convenience of those who possess "SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS, No. 1," consisting of 271 Pieces, "No. 2" Book, containing the latter portion (170 Pieces), is supplied separately as follows.

MUSIC AND WORDS.			MUSIC AND WORDS.
1 J. Old Notation	... Tinted Covers	1s. 0d.	1 K. Tonic Sol-fa	... Tinted Covers	1s. 0d.
2 J. ,,	... Limp Cloth ...	1s. 6d.	2 K. ,,	... Limp Cloth ...	1s. 6d.
3 J. ,,	... Cloth Boards.	2s. 0d.	3 K. ,,	... Cloth Boards.	2s. 0d.

CHEAP EDITION. (In Smaller Type.)

1 L. Old Notation	... Tinted Covers ...	6d.	2 L. Old Notation	... Limp Cloth ...	1s. 0d.

HYMNS AND SONGS

SPECIALLY SUITABLE FOR

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE MEETINGS.

A Series of 4 two-page Leaflets, each containing a collection of stirring Pieces, admirably adapted for use at "Gospel Temperance" and other Meetings. Price 9d. per 100, or 7s. 6d. per 1000.

CONTENTS OF NO. 1.

Where is my wandering boy to-night?
One there is who loves thee
The mistakes of my life have been many
Long in darkness we have waited
Are you coming home, ye wanderers?
A ruler once came to Jesus by night
Fierce and wild the storm is raging
Why do you wait, dear brother?
Say, where is thy refuge, my brother?
Wny perish with cold and with hunger?
From the riven Rock there floweth

CONTENTS OF No. 2.

What can wash away my stain?
Come, thou weary! Jesus calls thee
Should the death-angel knock at your chamber
The Gospel bells are ringing
Have you any room for Jesus?
Oh come, sinner, come! 'tis mercy's call
Make room for Jesus! room, sad heart!
Oh, do not let the Word depart
Brightly beams our Father's mercy
O Christ, in Thee my soul hath found
Light in the darkness, sailor!

CONTENTS OF No. 3.

When my final farewell to the world I have said
Standing by a purpose true
When the storms of life are raging
I have read of a beautiful city
Ring the bells of heaven! there is joy to day
I have heard of a land far away
"Land ahead!" its fruits are waving
Oh, tender and sweet was the Master' voice
'Tis the promise of God full salvation to give
When storms around are sweeping

CONTENTS OF No. 4.

Of course you know that to and fro, throughout our glorious land
She only touched the hem of His garment
Our Master has taken His journey
Tempted and tried
Father, don't you hear the angels?
The prize is set before us
There is a Fountain filled with blood
Would you lose your load of sin?
Yield not to temptation, for yielding is sin

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE FEBRUARY PART of

The Christian

CONTAINING

The whole of the January Numbers, in neat Wrapper. Price 5d.; post-free 7d.

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.

FIDELIA FISKE.

THE RECORD OF A CONSECRATED LIFE

EDITED BY

REV. WM. GUEST.

A SUPERIOR EDITION. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

TRACTS

PUBLISHED BY MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, LONDON;

AND MAY BE ORDERED OF ANY BOOKSELLER.

NARRATIVE TRACTS.

By Mr. and Mrs. P. H. GOSSE.

Sixty different sorts. In neat packet, containing 120 Tracts (being two of each kind), 1s. In packet containing 60 Tracts, 6d. Post free from the Publishers, or by order of any Bookseller, 6s. 4d. per 1000.

For Gratuitous Distribution these Tracts are supplied at 5s. per 1000 (exclusive of Carriage) on application direct to the Publishers.

CONTENTS.

1 The Railway Ticket
2 The Sinking Ship
3 John Clarke
4 John Clarke's Wife
5 The Christian Soldier
6 The Eleventh Hour
7 The Young Guardsman of the Alma
8 The Reapers
9 Tom Fowler, the Boatman
10 The Two Maniacs
11 Oh, that Night!
12 A Dollar's worth
13 The Fall of the Rossberg
14 The Faithful Nurse
15 The Portuguese Convert
16 The Suicide
17 The Consumptive Death-bed
18 Is Christ willing?
19 The Towing-net
20 Dying by Proxy
21 College Friends
22 The New Forest
23 The Good Physician
24 The Old Soldier's Widow
25 The Negro Slave
26 The Teacher's Visit
27 The Prodigal
28 The Railway Lamp
29 The Dying Peasant Lad
30 The Power of the Word
31 Pilgrim to St. Patrick's Well
32 The Pass Ticket
33 "This is what I want"
34 The King and the Prince
35 The Stage-coach Companions
36 The Anonymous Letter
37 Thomas Winter's Stray Sheep
38 A Home and a Hearty Welcome
39 The Dying Postman
40 The Two Hospital Patients
41 The Steel Trap
42 The Scattered Tracts
43 The Bad Leg
44 Freedom
45 The Sermon on the Stile
46 What is Believing?
47 The Drunkard's Wife
48 The King's Daughter
49 Fire! Fire!
50 The Cure for Cholera
51 The Drowning Sailor
52 A Happy Family
53 Royal Compassion
54 The Bathing Woman and her Visitor
55 Mary Kelly's Letters
56 The Two Tenants
57 Love
58 "I have no time"
59 The Sceptical Traveller
60 The Prize Fighter

May also be had in a neat volume, price 1s. 6d. (post free.)

TRACTS BY BROWNLOW NORTH.

Well printed in old-faced type, ON TINTED PAPER, 16 different sorts, Packets of 48 for 6d.; or 96 for 1s. Post free from the Publishers, or by order of any Bookseller, 8s. per 1000.

For Gratuitous Distribution these Tracts are supplied at 6s. per 1000 (exclusive of Carriage) on application direct to the Publishers.

FIRST SERIES, Nos. 1 to 16.

1 Cut to the Heart
2 The Two Teachers
3 The Holy Ghost saith "To-day"
4 Infidelity
5 Mystery of the Kingdom
6 The Wayside
7 Stony Ground
8 Good Ground
9 Sown among Thorns
10 Gift of Righteousness
11 The Righteousness of God
12 Complete in Him
13 The End of the Law
14 Trust God
15 God Chose to send Jesus
16 Once too often

TRACTS BY BROWNLOW NORTH.

SECOND SERIES.—Same prices as the First Series.

17 The Cross and the Crown
18 Your Name
19 Christ the Saviour
20 Do you wish to be Saved?
21 The Faithful Saying
22 God is
23 Two Important Questions
24 You are Immorta
25 The Devil's Class
26 Hear, ye D af
27 A Question for You
28 Righteousness
29 Turn ye!
30 The Way to God
31 The Last Call
32 Grace and Peace

FAITHFUL RECORDS.

A SERIES OF TWELVE NARRATIVE TRACTS, specially adapted for Sick-room Visitation. In assorted packet, price 1s. (post free).

For Gratuitous Distribution, 500 of these Tracts are supplied for 30s. (exclusive of Carriage), on application direct to the Publishers.

No. 1.
"I am very happy"
The Little Fish-Girl
The Little Preacher
The Answered Prayer

No. 2.
"I remember"
"He does forgive me after all"
The Parish School-Girl
"My Own Text"
The Publican's Son

No. 3.
The Young Mother
The Red Camellia

No. 4.
"Jesus, MY Jesus"
Sowing and Reaping

No. 5.
"I heard him Pray"
The Railway Travellers
The Little Favourite

No. 6.
"I am quite ready"
Little Annie
Light from the Fountain

No. 7.
"How am I to get to Heaven?"
The Christian Sailor's Hymn
"I would, but ye would not"
The Name of Jesus.

No. 8.
"I don't know how to Pray"
The Widow's Trust"
"My Prayer to the Promise shall Cling"
Child-like Faith

No. 9.
The Difficult Question
The Dying Beggar-boy
The Double Death

No 10
"Since I found Jesus
The Unexpected End
Anywhere with Jesus

No. 11.
Songs in Suffering

No. 12.
Christ and the Little Ones
"I am going to die, and I'm afraid to die"
"How happy I shall be!"
"I isn't afraid to die"
"You know Jesus died"

May also be had in an attractive volume, price 1s. 6d. (post free).

PICTURES OF LIFE.

A Series of Four-page Illustrated Tracts, suitable either for giving away, or for enclosing in Letters. In many cases the Illustration proves an attraction, and causes acceptance, where an ordinary Tract would be rejected.

In Packets of 48 Tracts, assorted, for 6d.; or in Packets of 96 Tracts, assorted, for 1s. Each Tract has a Full-page Illustration.

For Gratuitous Distribution these Tracts are supplied at 6s. per 1000 (exclusive of Carriage) on application direct to the Publishers.

1 The Crimean Soldier
2 Fathers and Sons
3 Robert of Dundee
4 Mary Singleton
5 The Cricketer
6 A Good Confession
7 The American Planter
8 The Black Nurse

FRIENDLY WORDS ON EVERY-DAY LIFE.

A Series of Narrative Tracts on Every-Day Duties and Every-Day Experiences, including Lessons of Self-Restraint, Self-Denial, and Self-Government.

By Mrs. G. S. Reaney.

Assorted Packet, price 1s.; or 2s. per hundred, either assorted or of any separate tract.

1 Something Between.
2 Emily; or, Two Scenes in a Life.
3 Father's Dinner Beer
4 "Mother says so—so it must be true."
5 "I can't give up my Washing-day Glass."
6 Is warning enough?
7 "When Mother comes Home."
8 "I'm all Astray."

"A packet of these little helpers will be a valuable assistant to every district visitor in town and country."—Social Notes.

THE NEW LARGE-TYPE ILLUSTRATED GOSPEL TEMPERANCE TRACTS.

By JOHN B. GOUGH. (Selected from the "Orations.")

Price One Shilling per packet of 64 Tracts. 1000 Assorted Tracts will be supplied for 12s. 6d.

1 The Doctor's View.
2 "Lord, keep me!"
3 The Drunkard's Wife.
4 "Drink's my Curse!"
5 The Sinking Ship.
6 The Giddy Height.
7 "The Weed."
8 "They're coming now."
9 "Fools make a Mock at Sin."
10 "The Wedding."
11 Man the Life-boat!"
12 The Light of the Home.
13 True Heroism.
14 "My Boy."
15 "Listen!"
16 "Don't you know?"

"No man has uttered words more burning or more piercing than John B. Gough, and we are glad to see passages from his Orations issued in the form of Tracts. Short and decisive, they appeal directly to the common sense of men, forcing them to think."—Liverpool Argus.

BLACKDOWN TRACTS.

A COLLECTION OF NARRATIVE TRACTS, adapted for general circulation. By GEORGE BREALEY, Evangelist. Admirably adapted for circulation in Villages and Agricultural Districts. Packets of each Series assorted, containing 16 different sorts, 128 Tracts, 1s.; or 64 Tracts, 6d. Post-free from the Publishers, or by order of any Bookseller, 6s. 4d. per 1000.

For Gratuitous Distribution these Tracts are supplied at 5s. per 1000 (exclusive of Carriage) on application direct to the Publishers.

FIRST SERIES, Nos. 1 to 16.

1 The Witch and the King of the Sky
2 What is Faith?
3 "I'm going home to be saved"
4 How John Wood paid his 74 years' debt
5 Swift Judgment
6 "You must die in three days"
7 Letters from the Little Ones, and how they are Saved
8 "I've left it all to Jesus"
9 The Two Purses
10 "I didn't know I was such a Sinner"
11 "Saved in Five Minutes"
12 The Wet Blanket and the Burning House
13 "I pleaded Guilty"
14 "Thank God, I'm saved"
15 "We be afeared"
16 "I can't make it out"

BLACKDOWN TRACTS.

Second Series. Same Prices as the First Series.

17 Wrath Restrained
18 Faith, Trial, and Triumph
19 Victory through the Blood of the Lamb
20 "My Husband's Name"
21 The Prey taken from the Mighty
22 "Sixty for One"
23 I can Dance for Joy now
24 Drawn to Jesus
25 "What I Gained, and What I Lost"
26 Sorrow turned to Joy
27 "Then I must be Lost"
28 "Because I was Invited"
29 The Drowning Child
30 "I'm Ready"
31 The Two Hiding-Places
32 "This Belongs to Me"

"HERALD OF MERCY" TRACTS.

A SERIES of LEAFLETS, chiefly NARRATIVE, adapted for general circulation.

Selected by the late DUNCAN MATHESON.

First Series, 32 different sorts. Second Series, 32 different sorts. Each Series in Packets of 100 Tracts, 6d.; or of 200 Tracts, 1s., assorted. Carriage free from the Publishers, or by order of any Bookseller, 4s. 6d. per 1000.

For Gratuitous Distribution 3000 of these Tracts may be obtained at the Office of the Publishers for 10s. 6d. (not Carriage free).

FIRST SERIES, Nos. 1 to 32.

1 The Sunken Rock
2 The Stranded Ship
3 "Going—Gone"
4 Quench not the Spirit
5 The Last Dance
6 How is it with you?
7 The Plank will bear
8 The Happy Escape
9 Pleasant Floating
10 Lost in the Church
11 A Mother's Last Word
12 Behind Time
13 Eternity! (poetry)
14 Remember Lot's Wife
15 Drifting
16 A Dreadful Prayer-meeting
17 "Missed it at Last"
18 Worth of the Soul
19 Short and Long
20 Delay of Conversion
21 Where is your Fruit?
22 The First Offer
23 "I cannot feel"
24 "Jesus only"
25 The Eternal Death
26 The Last Night
27 Almost Saved
28 Contrasted Deathbeds
29 The Burning Theatre
30 A Deathbed Scene
31 God's Sabbaths Wasted
32 Quenched Convictions

"HERALD OF MERCY" TRACTS.

SECOND SERIES.—Same Prices as the First Series.

33 Eternity
34 Stranded
35 Last Words of Dying Sinners
36 Delay is Dangerous
37 If not Heaven, what then?
38 Life! Life! Only Life!
39 "I daren't, Sir"
40 No Admittance
41 Profit and Loss
42 The Lost Drummer
43 Seize the Rope!
44 Too Late
45 The Word that Awakened
46 The Half-way Christian
47 Breakers ahead
48 "I lost it"
49 The Sceptic's Dying Child
50 The Judgment-day
51 An Inch of Time
52 Christ Rejected
53 You may be Saved
54 One Word
55 The Fatal Flower
56 "Am I Lost?"
57 Singing in Heaven
58 The Wave-ripple Mark
59 Time and Eternity
60 Afraid to Die
61 What is Conversion?
62 The A B C of the Gospel
63 The Cleansing Blood
64 The Infidel and the Text

A Series of Four-page Tracts, printed in clear, bold type, with an Illustration on the first page. Price 1s. per Packet of 64; 12s. 6d. per thousand, assorted.

ILLUSTRATED HERALD OF MERCY TRACTS.

They are short, earnest, and pointed, and, presenting an attractive appearance, they are not likely to be carelessly thrown aside by the recipient.

1 The Sceptic's Dying Child.
2 The Burning Theatre.
3 The Happy Escape.
4 Stranded.
5 The Lost Drummer.
6 Breakers Ahead!
7 One Word.
8 The Last Night.
9 A Mother's Last Words.
10 Drifting.
11 Almost Saved.
12 Afraid to Die.
13 The Cleansing Blood.
14 Delay is Dangerous.
15 Behind Time.
16 Seize the Rope!

May also be had in an attractive volume, price 6d.

"Full of Gospel truth and incidents, which are written so vigorously as to be well fitted to arrest the attention of even the most careless."—Sabbath-School Magazine.

PICTORIAL PAPERS.

A SERIES OF LARGE ILLUSTRATED TRACTS. Each containing Four large pages of interesting and profitable reading, both in Prose and Poetry, calculated to impress the minds of the careless and unawakened. The front page of each Tract is occupied with an attractive and suitable Illustration, 2s. per 100; 18s. 6d. per 1000.

For Gratuitous Distribution, direct from the Publishers, 15s. per 1000.

No. 1 The Eagle's Nest
A Saviour for all
A Swearer alone with God
For me He careth

No. 2 A Light in the Window
"May I tell all?"
"Because I won't let him"
The Healing Touch
Waiting

No 3 The Lane Boy
A Quiet Mind
The Whirlpool
Handwriting upon the Wall
Pardon for Nothing

No. 4 Sunset: A Tale of London Life
Remember Lot's Wife
White as Snow
Victory

No. 5 The Loss of "The London"
The Murderer and the Mother

No. 6 The Children's Prayer
The Wrong Way, The Right Way
Why does not Father pray?

No. 7 The Alpine Pass
"I don't want it there, Father"
Faith in Man and Christ

No 8 The Druid's Last Sacrifice
The Healing Touch
The Infidel's Sheep

ILLUSTRATED TRACTS.

Each Tract containing 16 pages, with Illustration. In assorted Packet, with neat wrapper, price 1s. (post-free). These will be found a very useful Series either as Loan Tracts, or for giving away.

For Gratuitous Distribution 500 of these Tracts are supplied for 30s. (exclusive of Carriage) on application direct to the Publishers.

1 Old Hunt, the Black Nurse
2 Jane Arnold; or, The Power of Kindness
3 Nelly Scott, the Orphan Child
4 John Bryant; or, The Stag Hunt
5 The Stolen Purse. By E. Brook
6 Ruth's Christmas; or, What a Girl can do
7 The Two Dreams; or, The Lost One Found
8 "No Remedy!" A Convict Woman's Account of her Conversion
9 The Book of the Dying
10 Mary's Hair: The Story of the Blacksmith's Daughter
11 Joseph Round, the Miner
12 The Three Saved Ones

PERSONS SUFFERING FROM ANY KIND OF CHEST DISEASE

SHOULD AT ONCE OBTAIN

Mr. G. T. Congreve's New Work

ON

CONSUMPTION

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, COUGH, ASTHMA,

AND

OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

Containing ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES. It treats of the CAUSES, SYMPTOMS, PROGRESS, VARIOUS STAGES, FALLACIES OF TREATMENT, and of the TRUE TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTION, with valuable instructions as to DIET, AIR, EXERCISE, MENTAL EMOTIONS, and everything bearing on the matter that is needed to be known. POST FREE for 6d. or 1s. 3d., from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, PATERNOSTER-ROW; or from the AUTHOR, COOMBE LODGE, PECKHAM, S.E.

THIRD SERIES OF WEEKLY CASES.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"

WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED BEFORE, in this journal EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK

CASE of MISS E. BEECROFT, CHELTENHAM.

A statement of this young person's case was brought to my notice last June. Consumption was in her family (three aunts had died of it). The first symptoms Miss B. experienced were pricking pains in the chest and sense of suffocation, throat sore and swollen, morning cough severe, expectoration cream-coloured and streaked with blood (sometimes fluid blood), hectic fever—the "palms of her hands burning like fire" (as she expressed herself), a general loss of flesh, the patient getting weaker daily. Medical report: Right lung consolidated and left lung diseased.

"I have read your book," the patient writes, "and now I shall not despair. I have also heard of those who have come to you after everything else has failed. As regards myself, I have attended the Consumption Hospital, and have been under treatment of iodine and cod-liver oil without benefit. I have faith to believe that you will do me good."

And so it proved. I ordered her several things at various times, to be used in conjunction with my medicines,—a mixture to check the bleeding, a gargle, an application to the throat, &c. &c. In two months there was a wonderful change, and on the 15th Nov. last I received a letter too long to give in full, but the following is an extract:—"I have now taken a situation at Bristol. How thankful I am I ever came to you. Your means, with God's blessing, has made me what I am. I shall do my best to publish your treatment. You may use my name with pleasure.—EDITH BEECROFT, Morven House, Elmgrove-rd., Cotham, BRISTOL.

Note.—Mr. Congreve's Son-in-law, J. ALEX. BROWN, M.R.C.S., L.S.A., is now associated with him.

Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days.

Third Edition. Post-free, Twelve Stamps.

SKIN DISEASES.

A Practical TREATISE explaining the Causes, TREATMENT and CURE of these Diseases; with directions for Diet and Baths. These Essays describe fully all the various forms of Skin Diseases. By S. BERRY NIBLETT, Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians. Published by Mr. Williams, 10, Oxford Terrace, Hyde Park, London

ALLEN & HANBURYS'

"PERFECTED"

"Is as nearly tasteless as Cod Liver Oil can be."—Lancet.
"Has almost the delicacy of salad oil."—British Medical Journal.
"No nauseous eructions follow after it is swallowed."—Medical Press.

COD LIVER OIL

Sold ONLY in capsuled Imp. ½-pints 1s. 4d.; ½-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s. Of Chemists everywhere.

PRICE ONE PENNY. 100 Copies for 7s. 6d.
For Gratuitous Circulation, £3 per 1000.

Francis Murphy:

Founder of the Blue Ribbon Movement in America,

A SKETCH OF HIS LIFE AND WORK

(With Portrait).

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Price 1s. per 100 (post free, 1s. 2d.). 6s. per 1000.

THE "MURPHY" PLEDGE CARD.

As used by Mr. FRANCIS MURPHY, and his Son, Mr. T. E. MURPHY, at their Gospel Temperance Meetings.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Gospel Temperance Songs

AND

BLUE RIBBON HYMNS.

REVISED AND ENLARGED.

USED BY

MR. FRANCIS MURPHY, AND HIS SON, MR. T. E. MURPHY,

AT THEIR

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE AND BLUE RIBBON MEETINGS.

Very many of these Hymns and Tunes are ORIGINAL, and have not hitherto been known in this country. Both Words and Music will be found most suitable for use in Temperance work.

BOOK OF WORDS, One Penny. CLOTH, Twopence.
TUNE BOOKS, Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Toned Paper, Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Sample Copy of Words sent free on application.
Sample Copy of Music sent free for 1s.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

Fry's Cocoa Extract

Guaranteed Pure.

"If properly prepared, there is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.
"Strictly pure, and well-manufactured."—W. W. Stoddart
"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin
SIXTEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED.

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION

After many years' trial is universally pronounced by Physicians and Doctors to be the most valuable and successful preparation ever recommended in the treatment of Consumption and all wasting diseases. Dr. ALABONE, of Lynton House, Highbury Quadrant, N., in his treatise, "Consumption: its Cure by an entirely New Remedy," states: "I have rarely ever found the Emulsion fail in arresting the rapid wasting of consumptive patients, and to increase flesh and strength. I have recommended it to some thousands of patients, with marvellous results." Send for copy of testimonials received from Doctors, Clergymen, Ministers, and late sufferers, of its wonderful effects. Price 4s. 6d., 11s., and 21s. per bottle. Considerable saving is effected by taking the larger sizes. To be obtained at all Chemists. Wholesale—BARCLAY & SONS, Farringdon-street, E.C.; or from the Proprietor, W. B. TRICK, A.P.S. Chemist, 92, Green-lanes, London, N.

BRYANT & MAY'S MATCHES.

EPPS'S (BREAKFAST) COCOA.

GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.

JAMES EPPS AND CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.

The HERALD of MERCY.

An Illustrated Messenger for Humble Homes.

ORIGINATED BY THE LATE DUNCAN MATHESON.

Twenty-fourth Year of Publication.

NEW AND IMPROVED SERIES OF

The Herald of Mercy consisting of Eight Quarto Pages, issued Monthly, commencing with January, 1883,

PRICE ONE HALFPENNY.

Each Number contains a

FULL PAGE ILLUSTRATION,

and several smaller Engravings.

The pages of The Herald of Mercy are devoted to Articles and Poems which present the Gospel in an attractive manner, the burden of each number being the glorious truth proclaimed by Christ in John iii. 16:—"FOR GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD, THAT HE GAVE HIS ONLY-BEGOTTEN SON, THAT WHOSOEVER BELIEVETH IN HIM SHOULD NOT PERISH, BUT HAVE EVERLASTING LIFE."

The Herald of Mercy

CONTAINS

Stirring Narratives,
Pointed Appeals,
Earnest Exhortations,
Tender Warnings, &c., &c.,

both in Prose and Poetry, written expressly for the unconverted.

Each number contains a page

FOR THE YOUNG,

which consists of short Articles and interesting Anecdotes in simple language, with at least one Engraving.

TO TRACT DISTRIBUTORS.

Tract Distributors and District Visitors will find The Herald of Mercy very acceptable and attractive, both to young and old, and many who would refuse an ordinary tract gladly take this paper. It is printed in a good clear type, so as to be easily read, and is suitable alike for House-to-House Visitation; for a Loan Tract; for giving away; for circulation in Hospitals, Infirmaries, and Workhouses; for distributing to Soldiers in Barracks, Sailors in Port, Agricultural Labourers, Mechanics, Factory Workers, and others; and, in fact, for circulation in any and all the channels for which Tracts are usually required.

☞ The matter is so arranged that each number may be cut up into two 4-page or four 2-page Illustrated Tracts.

The Herald of Mercy

will be forwarded to any address in Great Britain, or to any country in the Postal Union, i.e., U.S.A., Canada, France, Spain, Italy, &c., as follows:—

8 copies monthly, for 4s. a year, post free.

12	"	"	6s.	"	"
24	"	"	12s.	"	"
36	"	"	18s.	"	"
48	"	"	24s.	"	"
60	"	"	30s.	"	"
72	"	"	36s.	"	"
84	"	"	42s.	"	"
96	"	"	48s.	"	"

A Specimen Copy sent Gratis on application.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 680.] THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1883. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

CONTENTS.

The Life of Holiness 5
Nine Elms Mission 5
The Churches In Relation to Evangelistic Work 6
London "Ragged" Churches 7
"Found" 7
The Day of Rest 7
For the Young 8
Missionary Conference in India 8
The late Miss Habershon 8
Messrs. Moody and Sankey in Birmingham 9
Messrs. Moody and Sankey in Dublin 10
Evangelists at Work 11
Notes and Comments 12
Week of Prayer for Women 13
News from the Congo 13
Poetry—The Crown of Thorns 13
Times of Refreshing 14
Young Workwomen in the City 14
Mr. MacAll and his Mission 15
Distress in South Wales 15
The Cultivation of a Missionary Spirit 16
Dr. Landels on Sanctification 16
The Work of God in Berlin 16
The Public Morality Meetings 17
The Early Closing Movement 17

WORKS SUITABLE FOR EVANGELISTS, PREACHERS, AND BIBLE STUDENTS.

Foxe's Book of Martyrs. A Complete and Authentic Account of the Lives, Sufferings, and Triumphant Deaths of Primitive and Protestant Martyrs in all parts of the World. With Illustrations. Complete, handsomely bound in cloth, 10s. 6d.

At a time like the present, when, in Great Britain, Popery, and its evil progeny Ritualism, are both insidiously and openly seeking to gain the supremacy, it is necessary to the well-being of our country that the story of FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS should be regarded as an essential part of the education of our children. The issue of the present edition, at a low price, and in the convenient form of MONTHLY PARTS (16 parts at 6d. each), places this valued book within the reach of almost everyone.

Searching the Scriptures IN ORDER TO ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also, Suggestions for Bible Reading and Study, and a PLAN for CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING. By Dr. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S. London. Cloth, bevelled boards, price 3s. 6d.

"It is impossible to speak too highly of this volume, which is the result of immense labour and consecrated talent. To the Bible Student, the Sunday-school Teacher, or Local Preacher, its aid is indispensable, for it is the most able condensation of larger and numerous works, which places it within the reach of all who aspire to become mighty in the Scriptures, and always ready to give a reason for the hope which is in them."—Christian Age.

John, whom Jesus Loved. Sketch of the Character, Writings, Theology, and Influence of the Beloved Disciple. New and Enlarged Edition. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. With Chromo-Lithographic Views of the "Sea of Galilee" and the "Isle of Patmos." Cloth, bevelled boards, 3s. 6d.

"This is not a book to be taken up lightly, read hurriedly, and carelessly dismissed. It merits, and will reward, a quiet, thoughtful perusal."—The Record.

"Thy First Love." Christ's Message to Ephesus. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. With Chromo-Lithographic Frontispiece. Cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"A clear and thoughtful exposition. Dr. Culross writes in an easy, interesting manner; sometimes quaintly, always pointedly. Many a laggard in the heavenly race would be stirred to activity by reading Dr. Culross' exposition."—Penuel.

"Behold, I stand at the Door, and Knock." Christ's Message to Laodicea. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. Tinted covers, 1s. cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"A most opportune book. Would that every professing Christian would thoughtfully and prayerfully peruse it. Sunday-school teachers also would find it immensely stimulating and reviving."—Hive.

Cruden's Concordance TO THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS. Handsomely bound in cloth, price 7s. 6d. Popular Edition, cloth, 5s.

THE SPECIAL FEATURE in this Edition is the NEW TRANSLATION, Revision, and Extension of the PROPER NAMES of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENTS, with their Meanings in the Original Languages. By Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A., Author of "The Proper Names of the Old Testament Scriptures, Expounded and Illustrated."

For nearly a century and a half CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE has held its place in public estimation. No minister's study has been deemed to be properly furnished without possessing a copy of this treasured book.

Notes for Bible Readings. A Collection of over Six Hundred Subjects, carefully compiled and arranged. Suitable for Bible Readings, Cottage Lectures, Sermons, Addresses, Sabbath-school Lessons, &c. Cloth, bevelled boards, 3s. 6d. A cheap edition may also be had in tinted cover, 2s. 6d.

"This is a book which every Bible student should possess. It will be of special value to the class-teacher, and an assistance also to the preacher. It brings together an immense number of subjects, with groupings of Scripture texts on each. It supplies valuable matter for private meditation; and those who conduct Bible readings will find it most suggestive."—Christian Progress.

Life more Abundant, and other Addresses. By THEODORE MONOD. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth boards, 1s. 6d.

"Those who are working for the Master, and desire to be a blessing to others, will find it helpful. It is worthy of commendation, especially to the young."—Edinburgh Daily Review.

The Gift of God. A Series of Addresses. By THEODORE MONOD. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth boards, 1s. 6d.

"Clear, simple, and forcible presentation of Gospel truth, and as definite and practical in their tone as Pastor Monod's teaching is wont to be."—The Friend.

Calls to Christ. A Series of Addresses. By Rev. W. R. NICOLL, M.A. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

"Force and freshness are eminently the characteristics of these 'Calls to Christ. They are also brief to a proverb, and hence they may be of great service to an earnest evangelist who knows how to use another man's thoughts."—Sword and Trowel.

Just Published. A CHEAP EDITION of

THE LIFE OF GEORGE WHITEFIELD,

By J. R. ANDREWS.

Price Sixpence. In Cloth (with Portrait), One Shilling.

Superior Edition in large type, for Presentation, cloth, bevelled boards (with Portrait), price 5s.

Attractively bound in White and Gold, price 2s. 6d., post free.

MARRIAGE AND HOME.

A VOLUME OF KINDLY COUNSELS TO THE NEWLY MARRIED.

"A marriage gift, to show the nature of marriage in the Lord, and to help young husbands and wives to live together unto Him in all things. A very neat little book."—British Messenger.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "OH TO BE NOTHING!"

Lays of Lowly Service.

By GEORGIANA M. TAYLOR.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. Handsomely bound in Morocco, gilt edges, 4s. 6d.

Extract from a Letter by the late

MISS FRANCES RIDLEY HAVERGAL.

"Your Hymns have a special ministry of their own. I would decidedly advise your letting them be published (and this is not what I say to many!). . . . . Of the verses I have just been reading, I can say, the thought is sweet, the form is fresh, and the versification is good. As to 'For Jesus' Sake,' it is second only to 'Oh to be nothing!' I am delighted with it."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Institutions.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving from G. D., 5s.

The Infant Day Nursery. Day & Sunday Schools. Band of Hope. Toy Classes for Neglected Little Ones. Children's Services. Special Classes and Clubs for Little Girls. Industrial Classes for Lads. Bible Classes and Meetings for Elder Girls and Young Women. Homeless Girls and Boys sheltered, fed, clothed, &c. Rations of food to hungry, destitute Children. Mission to Inebriate Women. Sewing Classes for Poor Women. Evangelistic and Common Lodging House Services. Room to room visitation and other Missionary Agencies in operation.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

GALES AND STORMS. — Crew after Crew of Shipwrecked Sufferers have urgently had to be provided for, besides Relief to Widows and Orphans, by the Shipwrecked Fishermen and Mariners' Royal Benevolent Society, on behalf of which National Institution Contributions are very earnestly appealed for.—Bankers, Williams, Deacon, and Co., Birchin-lane, E.C.; Secretary, W. R. BUCK, Esq., at the Society's Central Office, Hibernia-chambers, London-bridge, S.E.

NATIONAL TEMPERANCE LEAGUE.—A Special Public Meeting, to direct attention to the progress of Temperance in English Christian Churches of all denominations, will be held in the Metropolitan Tabernacle, on Tuesday, 20th February, at 7 p.m. Samuel Bowly, Esq., President of the League, will take the chair; and the meeting will be addressed by the Very Rev. R. Payne Smith, D.D., Dean of Canterbury; the Rev. Charles Garrett, President of the Wesleyan Conference; the Rev. J. A. Macfadyen, D.D., Chairman of the Congregational Union; and the Rev J. P. Chown, President-Elect of the Baptist Union. Admission Free. Tickets for Reserved Seats—First Gallery, 1s., Central Area, 6d.—may be obtained at the offices of the League, 337, Strand.

ZENANA AND MEDICAL MISSION, Home and Training School for Ladies, Vincent-square, Westminster, S.W.—For particulars, apply enclosing stamped directed envelope. Dr. GRIFFITH, Hon. Sec. Funds earnestly asked towards free or partially free scholarships. Hon. Treasurer, G. J. GREEN, Esq., London and County Bank, Victoria-street, S.W. J. Adie, £1 1s.; Dr. Oates, 10s. 6d.; Miss Lyne, 10s.; J. G. Winks, Esq., £1 1s.

THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND SCRIPTURE READERS' ASSOCIATION. Office: 56, Haymarket, London, S.W. This Society is employing 120 Scripture Readers amongst the poor and destitute of London. They go from house to house, and from room to room, reading the Word of God, pressing its precious truths on men's acceptance, pleading with God in prayer for a blessing, and directing all with whom they come in contact to Jesus the Saviour of Sinners. We want to multiply Scripture Readers, for nothing, we believe, can supply the place of house-to-house visitation, and as surely bring the Word of God into immediate contact with individual souls. Funds are urgently needed, and will be thankfully received by either of the undernamed: MARCUS RAINSFORD, Clerical Secretary; J. RODDAM TATE, Lay Secretary; or Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS are received at the HOUSE OF REST, Kilburn, and the Seaside Branch, Eastbourne. Also, Missionaries from abroad. All must be well accredited.—Miss MASON, 7 and 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W.

HOME FOR DESTITUTE LITTLE GIRLS, The Dale, Upperton-road, Eastbourne, Sussex (late of Plaistow).—Contributions received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT; or Miss LEE, at the above address.

SEASIDE CONVALESCENT HOME.—Warmly recommended to readers of The Christian. Protestant and Evangelical. Open all the year. Sunny situation. Food excellent. Funds needed.—For terms, &c., address, Rev. E. FORBES, Christ Church, Clevedon.

GREAT COLEMAN'S, near Ongar, is now opened by Dr. and Mrs. S. C. GRIFFITH to give change of air and rest to educated people of limited means. For particulars, apply to 45, Finsbury-square, E.C.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for contributions in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest gifts in money and clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee. Gentlemen's cast-off garments are much needed, especially trousers.

MRS. WILKES proposes to be at home every Wednesday from Two till Five o'clock, for the purpose of seeing friends of Rescue Work. Trains from Liverpool-street to St. James-street Station, Walthamstow, every half-hour. "The Elms" is within five minutes' walk of the station. The Elms, Coppermill-lane, Walthamstow, Essex.

Educational.

THE WOODLANDS, Hitchin, Herts.—Select Boarding School for Boys. For prospectus apply to the Principal, ISAAC SHARP, B.A., a member of the Society of Friends. Careful personal training. Efficient staff of masters. Excellent recreation grounds.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for the Daughters of Gentlemen.—Miss PENN and Fräulein ESSER receive a limited number of Pupils at Grove House, Upper Clapton, London, E. Detached house. Large garden. Large and efficient staff of Masters and Governesses, German and French the languages of the house. Careful training and Christian influence, with individual supervision. For prospectus and references apply as above.

BACKWARD YOUTHS do best under private tuition. In schools these are usually left to inexperienced assistants. Mr. WILLIAM PENN devotes his PERSONAL ATTENTION to such pupils, of whom he receives four or five as Boarders. Candidates are prepared for all PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS. Reference permitted to Dr. BARNARDO, Mrs. PENNEFATHER, and others. Studies recommenced Sept. 22nd.—Apply, 52, Clapton-common, London, E.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL for little Boys, near Brighton.—Locality healthy. Home comforts. Christian training. Special attention to delicate, backward boys. Separate beds. Visiting masters. Twenty guineas.—LADY PRINCIPAL, Hamilton Lodge, Hurstpierpoint, Sussex.

MONKTON COMBE SCHOOL, near Bath.—Pupils prepared chiefly for Oxford and Cambridge. Reference to Lord Radstock, and many other parents and guardians whose sons are at the School.

BRIGHTON KINDERGARTEN and Educational Home, for children from three to twelve years of age. Thorough preparatory education, combined with Christian training and motherly care.
PRINCIPAL, Dover House, Clifton-hill, Brighton.

MILTON HOUSE SCHOOL for Young Ladies, Plympton (near Plymouth), South Devon.—Limited number received. Home comforts. Advantages for French. References to parents of pupils.

SCHOOL near the sea-side, for the Board and Education of little Girls, conducted by Mrs. and Miss SNOW. Comfortable home, combined with Christian training. Terms moderate. Good references.—Stoke Fleming, Dartmouth, South Devon.

HOME EDUCATION for a Gentleman's daughter in a Christian family after Easter.—A Lady having an only daughter, aged 15, wishes to meet with a companion for her, between 14 and 16, to share her studies with English and other governesses. Every home comfort and care. Healthy seaside situation. Evangelical ministry (Church of England). Highest references given and required.—For terms and full particulars, address A., care of Mr. Davies, Stationer, High-street, Weston-super-Mare.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for the children of Christian Parents residing abroad.—Miss ARNOLD, 50, Victoria-road, Clapham-common, S.W.

DEAF CHILDREN.—Home and thorough education on the pure oral method.—For full particulars address J. BARBER, Inglefield, Christchurch-road, Brondesbury, N.W.

PARIS.—Protestant Establishment for Young Ladies. Sciences, Arts. French only language of the house. Terms £40. Ladies with a private bedroom, £5 a month. References: Rev. Baron HART, 21, Avenue de la Grande Armée; Rev. L. VERNES, 7, Rue des Batignolles, Paris; Rev. D. J. WATT, 331, Amhurst-rd., Stoke Newington, London. Principal, Mme. FLAMANT, 68, Rue Truffaut, Paris.

VILLA ST. ROCH, Lausanne, Switzerland.—Ladies' Boarding School.—Special facilities for learning French and German. Fine healthy site. Large garden. Advantageous terms.—References and prospectuses of R. AILLSOP, Esq., 7, Drapers'-gardens, Throgmorton-street, London; or of PRINCIPAL. Escort in April.

WANTED FOR A GENTLEMAN'S FAMILY in the country, a Lady, of Evangelical principles, experienced in teaching, and competent to impart advanced English, good French music, and drawing, with junior Latin. Pupils' ages from 5 to 14.—Apply, stating age, experience, and salary required, to K., care of Mr. Dilworth, Stationer, High-street, Newcastle-under-Lyme, Staffordshire.

A LADY wishes to recommend her Governess, who has lived with her three years, and is leaving only because her children are going to school.—Mrs. H., Holmacre, Fallowfield, near Manchester.

RESIDENT GOVERNESS.—A Lady of experience, and highly recommended, seeks a re-engagement. English, French, German, music, and rudimentary Latin.—E. F., care of Mr. Eardley, 42, St. Mary's-crescent, Leamington.

A COUNTRY VICAR (M.A. Camb.) desires a gentlemanly youth, about 14, as Companion-Pupil. Roomy vicarage; very healthy situation.—The VICAR, Pulloxhill, Ampthill.

NURSERY GOVERNESS or Companion.—A young Lady (20), an orphan, seeks an engagement as above. A congenial home more desired than the emolument. Is of a cheerful, active temperament.—FAITH, Royal Library, Sutherland-gardens, Harrow-road, W.

AS GOVERNESS.—A position required in a Christian family or school, in or near London. Good singing, music, French, elementary Latin and Greek. Good references.
G. BODGER, Post-office, Wanstead, Essex.

GOVERNESS. — A Lady, Evangelical, experienced, bright, seeks an engagement. English, French (Paris), German (Hanover), classical music, object drawing, painting.—TELTA, J. Presslee, Bookseller, 4, Union-terrace, Notting-hill, London.

A COMFORTABLE HOME required by an English Governess (diplomée), in return for tuition. Resided abroad 17 years. Perfect French, German, Italian, music, drawing, painting.—SIGMA, 88, Park-street, Regent's-park.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

PARTNERSHIP.—Wanted by a Gentleman, a Graduate, with a view to taking entire possession, a Partnership in a well-established Day-school for boys of a good class; where the Principal is a Christian. Excellent references can be given, and will be required.—M. A., Messrs. R. F. White & Son, 33, Fleet-street, E.C.

ACCOUNTANT.—A gentleman of considerable experience in Banking, seeks confidential position in a Bank, Insurance, or Merchant's office. Would not object to Literary occupation.
C. S., 35, Colveston-crescent, Kingsland, E.

A RETIRED OFFICER of Evangelical principles, who has had six years' experience in civil employment, wants an appointment as Secretary in a school or public association. The highest references will be given, and full particulars supplied.
Colonel C. M. WHITE, Aylestone-hill, Hereford.

TUTOR.—An Aberdeen Student (third year graduate in classics) desires a situation as Tutor in a Christian family in England or elsewhere, from April to the end of October. Good references.—Apply to Rev. GEO. H. KNIGHT, Queen's-road, Aberdeen. Further particulars on application.

PARTNERSHIP WANTED by a Christian man with small capital. References exchanged.—A. B., care of Mr. Hubbard, 6, Red Lion-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

AN OXFORD GRADUATE desires the post of Tutor or Companion. Churchman and total abstainer, good references and testimonials. Letter received from Farningham Station contained no address.
OXONIAN, 4, Church-terrace, Lee, Kent.

EVANGELIST.—The Advertiser, who has been engaged in the Lord's work (about 20 years) as Evangelist and Missionary to the working classes, is open to a similar engagement.
C. H. S., 6, Fountain-court, Minories, E.

AS SCRIPTURE READER under a Clergyman.—Wanted, a situation. Decidedly Evangelical views. Country preferred. Good references.
W., Mr. Howlett's, Commercial-street, Hereford.

A CHRISTIAN MAN would be thankful for employment in a Gentleman's stable, with a Christian coachman. Could make himself useful in garden, or otherwise.
SMITH, 30, King Henry's-walk, N.

UNDER GARDENER.—A Lady recommends Youth, aged 18. Abstainer, steady, willing.—Apply by letter, Mrs. J. PERRY, The Hollies, Gipsy-road, Lower Norwood, S.E.

AS COACHMAN. — A Lady can thoroughly recommend her Coachman, leaving for no fault. Nearly 5 years' character. Age 25.
R. S., Higham, near Rochester.

PAGE.—A Lady wishes to recommend a steady, respectable lad of 15, height about 5 ft. 5 in., abstainer, as Page under a butler in a Christian family.
7, West-terrace, Budleigh Salterton, Devon.

A YOUTH is seeking a situation, where he can learn a trade.—Mr. HENRY BRIDGER, Scripture Reader, London-street, Whitchurch, Hants.

AS COMPANION-HOUSEKEEPER or any position of trust.—A Christian Young Lady (31) desires an engagement in a Christian family. Good needlewoman. Fond of children.
E. B. K., Framsden Hall, Stonham, Suffolk.

LADY HOUSEKEEPER desires an engagement as above, to a widower or single gentleman. Middle-aged. Well connected. Economical. Highest references. Salary, £30.
Y. Z., Fielding's Library, Crouch-hill, N.

HEAD NURSE.—Wanted at once, situation as above. To take the management of children, or to attend upon an invalid or elderly Lady.—S. A., Mrs. White, Rose Cottage, Dedham, Colchester.

WILL ANY LADY or Gentleman find a situation for middle-aged person in reduced circumstances? Good needlewoman; good cook. No wages, only comfortable home.—G. H., Mr. Jenkins, Stationer, &c., 4, Providence-place, Ridgeway, Wimbledon.

AS UNDER HOUSEMAID, or General Servant, where the mistress superintends.—Wanted, a situation in the north of England, by a tall, strong girl, age 17. Has been two years in service.—Box 81, Post-office, Carlisle.

UNDER-HOUSEMAID.—A respectable young girl wants situation as above. Has been in clergyman's family.—Mr. HENRY BRIDGER, Scripture Reader, London-street, Whitchurch, Hants.

LAUNDRY-MAID.—A Lady is anxious to find a situation as under Laundry-maid for a girl of 18, who has learnt the work in Mrs. Vickers' Home for nearly two years.
C. B., 3, Cromwell-road, S.W.

DR. BARNARDO is desirous of getting employment for several big lads, almost young men, now in the Labour House for Destitute Youths. Many of them are fit for the Sea, others for employment as Porters, Stable assistants, or to go out with Vans.—Applications to be addressed to 18, Stepney-causeway, E.

APPRENTICE.—Dr. Barnardo wishes to recommend an intelligent girl of respectable parentage, and about 17 years of age, as an Apprentice to the Millinery and Dressmaking business, where she would enjoy Christian privileges, and thoroughly learn the business. A small premium would be given.—Communications should be addressed to APPRENTICE, 18, Stepney-causeway, London E.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

LITERARY. — Wanted, an experienced Christian, of pronounced Evangelical convictions and Evangelistic sympathies; a lover of the Bible; well taught in doctrine; of good education; with a portion or the whole of his time at command.—R. S. R., care of Messrs. Unwin Brothers, Gresham Press, 71A, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

LAY-HELPER wanted in two or three months' time (Churchman), to superintend Sunday-school and Band of Hope, to take mission service and lead mission choir, and to visit. Whole time to be given. Preferred a young unmarried man. Stipend, £75.
Rev. WM. L., Hurdsfield Vicarage, Macclesfield

TO CHRISTIAN PARENTS.—An Architect in London practice has a vacancy in his office for a Pupil, who would receive personal instruction and supervision.—ARCHITECT, care of Wm. Dawson & Sons, 121, Cannon-street, E.C.

COLPORTEUR required, to work in the neighbourhood of Woolwich.—Apply by letter to Major ROBERTS, 74, Plumstead-common-road, Plumstead.

A COACHMAN wanted, who would assist the gardener, and whose wife would serve as good plain Cook. Both to be willingly generally useful.—S. COWELL, Framfield Lodge, Framfield, Hawkhurst.

MAN-SERVANT wanted, in a small Christian family at West-end. Tall; good figure. Abstainer preferred. Age 25 to 35. Good personal character. Send photograph, or apply, 4, Cranley-gardens, South Kensington.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. Employment Agency.—The above Agency is conducted by the Y.W.C.A. to benefit members and others of good character seeking employment. It is intended for LADIES, BUSINESS and SHOP ASSISTANTS and DOMESTIC SERVANTS.—Applications from them, or from Employers, should be addressed to Miss LOTT, 17, Old Cavendish-street, W. Personal applications may be made daily (Saturdays excepted), between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.

GOVERNESS AND NEEDLEWOMAN, Home for Girls.—Wanted a Lady, in every way competent for the above, of kind and firm disposition, in an old-established Home, accommodating one hundred girls.—Address, with fullest particulars of experience, age, &c., G. M. A., Messrs. Kingdom & Co., 52, Moorfields, London, E.C.

COOK-HOUSEKEEPER.—Wanted in a small family of three persons, a thoroughly good and truly Christian Cook-Housekeeper. She must understand her duties in every particular, be a first-rate cook, understand a dairy, and be able to take the partial management of a household of ten servants.—Apply by letter to
S. G., Belvedere, Wimbledon.

GOOD PLAIN COOK, used to Dairy. Also HOUSE AND PARLOUR-MAID, wanted at once. Beer notallowed. Must be well recommended.—Apply, stating age, wages, and length of character, to Mrs. M. ASHBY, Northlands, Englefield-green, Staines.

PLAIN COOK, or good General Servant, wanted in a Clergyman's small family. Church of England, and abstainer.—Apply after 4 at the Rectory, St. Andrew's-hill, Queen Victoria-street, London.

PLAIN COOK AND HOUSEMAID wanted in a family where a third younger maid is kept. Wages moderate. Total abstainers preferred.—Mrs. GATWARD, Bancroft, Hitchin.

PLAIN COOK and a HOUSE and PARLOURMAID wanted, in Abstainer's family. Also CHILD'S MAID. State age, wages, particulars. Good references indispensable.—Mrs. TOWNSEND, 13, Vanbrugh-park-road, Blackheath.

NO SALARY.—Wanted, a Christian man, to carve for, and dine daily with, the Invalids at the Invalids' Dinner Table, 47, Earl-street, Lisson-grove, London, and to read and pray with them afterwards. One resident in the neighbourhood preferred.
LADY SUPERINTENDENT, as above.

NURSE.—Wanted for a Gentleman's family, a Christian woman, thoroughly experienced, to take charge of young children. Good needlewoman. Age over 24.—Apply by letter, Mrs. BISHOP, Welwyn Lodge, Swansea.

HOUSEMAID wanted.—Must be thoroughly trustworthy, and willing to make herself useful. Quiet family. Young person preferred.
Mrs. R. F., Thames Bank House, Mortlake.

A PERSON wanted to take charge of and let a Furnished House, on Kentish Coast.
A. G., 44, Leadenhall-street, London, E.C.

AS NURSEMAID.—Wanted in March, in a quiet country place, in a Friend's family, a conscientious girl. One fond of children, and able to manage them, and quick and neat with her needle.—Mrs. F. IMPEY, Longbridge, Northfield, near Birmingham.

GOOD GENERAL SERVANT, with knowledge of plain cooking, wanted in a small quiet family of four. Good wages given. Another servant kept.
Mrs. F., 10, Thyra-grove, North Finchley.

AS GENERAL SERVANT.—Wanted in a minister's family, a respectable woman, able to cook well. No children. Washing put out. Good wages to a capable servant.
Mrs. S., 1, Hayter-road, Brixton-rise, S.W.

HOUSEMAID wanted in a first-class Lodging House. Must be neat in appearance, active, and an early riser. Abstainer preferred. Address by letter, Mrs. PARKER, Weldon House, Cintra-park, Upper Norwood, S.E.

A USEFUL MAID wanted immediately, to wait on a Lady and child. Must be good needlewoman, and not object to light housework.—Mrs. EVERED POOLE, Croutelle, Friend's-road, Croydon, E.

A CLERGYMAN'S WIFE strongly recommends a useful Maid, or General Servant.—Six years in last situation. Age 27. At liberty at once. Desires to be in or near London.
Mrs. L., Hurdsfield Vicarage, Macclesfield.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL,
40, Bedford Place, Bloomsbury Sq., London, W.C. This First-class Private Hotel is close to the New Law Courts and the British Museum. Spacious Coffee and Ladies' Drawing-rooms, and Private Sitting-rooms. Rev. R. MILNE, Abbey Church, Edinburgh, writes:—"Quiet, cleanliness, comfort, and moderate charges, are the characteristics of this house." Also recommended by Dr. ALGERNON DOBBIE, Oldham; Rev. J. GARWOOD, M.A., London City Mission; Dr. YOUNG, Florence.
Tariff on application to Miss PERCY.

WEST CENTRAL HOTEL.
97, 99, 101, Southampton-row, London, W.C. Patronised by numerous readers of The Christian. Plain Breakfast or Tea, 1s. 3d. Beds, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. Tariff on application to FREDERIC SMITH.

HOME OFFERED to one or two Ladies (sisters or friends) in a Christian family, in West of London.—Apply by letter to F. H. C., 46, Minford-gardens, West Kensington-park, W.

BLACKHEATH.—A Lady residing in one of the best positions at Blackheath, is anxious to meet with two or more Christian Ladies, willing to board with her. References exchanged.
E. B., 13, Kidbrook-park-road, Blackheath, S.E.

LARGE, NEWLY DECORATED DRAWING-ROOM, combining sitting and bedroom, or bedroom, with or without partial board; suitable for a Lady or City Gentleman. Christian people. No children. Near church, station, and cars.—A., 77, Mildmay-grove, N.

A LADY would share her quiet, comfortable home, in Kent (near railway station), with one or two Christian Ladies. Moderate terms.
M. W., 4, Leconfield-road, Stoke Newington.

A HOME for a Youth is offered, in the North of London; he would be treated as a member of the family.—For particulars address X. Y. Z., care of Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton, 27, Paternoster-row.

A COMFORTABLE HOME offered for a time to a young person, in return for slight domestic help. Cheerful companionship and assistance in needlework principally required.—H., 162, Queen's-road, Dalston

A DOCTOR IN PRACTICE, Crystal Palace district, is open to give board, residence, and medical attention to one or two Invalids, or persons needing attention; to such, a bright, cheerful Christian home is offered. Terms reasonable. Highest references.—DOCTOR, Mrs Gearing, Lordship-terrace, Lordship-lane, S.E.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Board and Residence offered by a Lady, in a detached villa. Sunny aspect. Close to West Cliff; near sea, church, and West Station.—R., Leigh Wood.

BOURNEMOUTH, Marlborough.—First-class private Boarding House. Facing the sea, south aspect, close to pier, baths, library; liberal table, every comfort. Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Roberts.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE at BRIGHTON.—Central position, near to the Pavilion, Aquarium, and Piers. Sea view. Liberal table. Every home comfort.—Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Box, 58, Old Steine.

BOURNEMOUTH, Clairville.—Superior Boarding House, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Jackson. Visitors will meet with an excellent family home. Charming sea views. Near church and sea. Most liberal table.

HASTINGS, Castle House.—Select boarding establishment. Land and sea views. Sheltered situation. Three minutes from sea. Home comforts. Terms moderate.
Apply to the Misses BIRD and PINDER.

A COMFORTABLE HOME in the country is offered to an Invalid, or elderly Lady. Terms moderate. Good references exchanged.—Miss BAILEY, Church-street, Romsey, Hampshire.

HYDROPATHY.—Dr. OWEN'S establishment, "The Arboretum," Leamington. The mansion is built on gravel, and heated throughout by warm air, which makes it a perfect winter residence for visitors and patients. Electric and all other baths.

INTEMPERANCE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, &c.—Private Home for limited number of Ladies, in a desirable Winter locality. Experienced medical treatment. Christian influence, judicious supervision, and home comforts.
MEDICUS, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

ST. LEONARDS.—To Let, on hall floor, a well-furnished sitting and bedroom combined, in genteel neighbourhood. Good cooking and attendance. Terms low.
Alma House, 5, Stockleigh-road.

ST. LEONARDS.—Superior Apartments to be had for a permanency, or otherwise. Every home comfort. Highly recommended by Mr. W. and Mrs. Haslam.
N. B., 66, Marina, St. Leonards.

HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS, conducted by a Lady restored to health in answer to prayer. Terms from 18s. to 25s. Private sitting-room, if wished.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Eriswell-road, Worthing.

SWITZERLAND.—A Swiss Pastor and his wife, having a large house on the Lake of Geneva, offer comfortable rooms with board to a family or others. Music and French lessons given in the house. Bath room. Lovely view.
Madame DESCOMBAY, Sadex, Nyon.

Apartments, &c., Wanted.

CAN ANY READER of THE CHRISTIAN recommend a pleasant town in the South or South-West of England, where the advertiser could rent a house, with garden, at £40 per annum. Christian privileges indispensable.—E. L. G., 54, East-street, Taunton.

ROOMS UNFURNISHED wanted, not over a shop, between Bayswater-hill and Edgware-road. Rent about £60.—R., care of Mrs. Macdonald, 4, Upper Porchester-street, Cambridge-square, W.

HOME WANTED.—The friends of a middle-aged Lady wish to find a Home for her, either in or near London, or at Brighton, where she would be kindly treated and looked after, and also kept usefully employed, either with children or otherwise. A small sum offered, in part payment.
H. W., 55, Highbury-park, London, N.

HOLIDAY HOUSE.—Wanted within 30 miles of London, South Eastern or South Western railways preferred. Rent £20 to £30. Cottage in a really country district, not more than two miles from a station. Eight to ten rooms, and paddock required. No sick children will be sent.—Dr. GEO. SAUNDERS, C.B., London Medical Mission, 47, Endell-street, London.

HOME wanted by 25th March.—Rooms unfurnished, or partly furnished, with attendance for a highly educated Christian gentlewoman of very limited income and simple habits.—Address clear details and terms to HOME, care of Morrell, Stationer, Francis-street Gower-street.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian again earnestly invites such to write.
EVANGELIST. Clapham, S.W.

RESIDENT PATIENT.—A Medical Man (married) wishes to receive a patient requiring country air and medical attention into his house. Every kindness and attention will be shown. Address (in first instance), Mrs. VIDAL, 3, Upper Park-place, Richmond, Surrey.

A CLERGYMAN'S WIDOW wishes to meet with one or two little girls, to bring up with her own little girl of six. They would have every attention, and be treated with a mother's care.—Address for full particulars, C. P., All Saints' Vicarage, Shooter's-hill.

UPHOLSTERERS.—Thorough in all branches, from Gregory's, Lapworth's. Bedding renewed. Daily, weekly, or country engagements. First-class references to ladies furnished on application.
Mrs. H., 12, Woodville-grove, Mildmay-park, N.

NOW BEST TIME FOR PLANTING FERNERIES.—Four varieties 2s. 6d. doz. Four varieties moss, Primroses 2s. 6d. doz. Proceeds for the Waldensian Mission.—P. F., care of T. Ainsworth, Caton, Ivybridge, Devon.

CARPETS!—Save 45s. on every Best Brussels Carpets. Warranted best five frame Brussels, 3s. 9½d. (usual price, 4s. 9d.); Best Tapestries, 2s. 8d. (usual price, 3s. 3d). Splendid designs. Patterns sent for selection.
The Carpet Company, Bournemouth.

KINDNESS TO ANIMALS.—Card pictures with suitable anecdotes, coloured borders, seven varieties, specially adapted for schools and free distribution: dozen 8d., score 1s., hundred 4s. 6d., carriage free.—C. BARROW, 11, Ampton-road, Birmingham.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a remedy for affording immediate relief.
C., Mr. G. A. Reyworth, Hastings.

PURE BEDDING,
Country made, and warranted all through alike. White Feather Beds, purified feathers, Four Guineas; Superior Quality, Five Guineas.
Purified HAIR MATTRESSES, of extra quality. Carriage free, 2½ per cent. discount for cash. Price List on application.
John Tatham & Son, Settle, Yorkshire.

PIANOFORTE by Collard & Collard.—Sweet-toned, full compass cottage trichord, cost 63 guineas, to be sold for 35 guineas. Another in walnut, 23 guineas. American Organ, 11 stops, rich tone, 26 guineas. Beautiful condition; sent on approval. Real bargains.—Gloucester House, Bowes-park, N.

THE WEST END SANITARY STEAM LAUNDRY,
LAUNDRY ROAD, FULHAM, S.W.
WANTED, the NAMES of First-class Laundry Hands, MALE and FEMALE, to live in the Cottages provided by the Firm. Total Abstainers preferred.—Apply to Mr. HOWLAND, Manager.

Publications.

GOSPEL BOOKS with Covers beautifully printed in Chromo-Lithography. By the Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. In Two Packets, 6d. each. Packet I. contains:—1. Do It Now. 2. The Four Looks. 3. Crossing the Bridge. 4. The Heavenly Ladder. 5. The Door Open and the Door Shut. 6. Deepen the Well.
Packet II. contains:—7. All for Christ. 8. Shine as Lights. 9. The Blood More Precious than Gold. 10. Nearer to Thee. 11. The Four Alls. 12. A Christian's Prayer in Six Words.

BLUE RIBBON SERIES. Twelve little 8-page Books, Illustrated, Tinted Paper. By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. Packet of 50, assorted, 6d.

WELCOME TO JESUS. Four-page Floral Tracts, with beautiful design, printed in Chromo-Lithography, on first page. By C. H. SPURGEON. Two Packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per Packet.

CROWN SERIES. Twelve Illustrated Little Books, 16 pages, Tinted paper. Packet of one each, 6d.

ARMY SERIES.—Six Illustrated Little Books for Soldiers, 16 pages, Tinted paper. Packet of 12, assorted, 6d.

COURT LEAFLETS. On thick cream-coloured paper, with coloured border, 4 pages. Packet III., 50 copies, assorted, 6d.

COME TO JESUS. Four-page floral Tracts, with beautiful design printed in Chromo-Lithography on first page. Two packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per packet.

THE SINNER'S FRIEND. Four-page Floral Tracts, as above. Two packets of 32 Tracts each, 6d. per packet.

THE CHRISTIAN SOLDIER. Thoughts suggested by the War. By Rev. A. R. M. FINLAYSON, Alderley Edge. 32 pages. Price 1d.

THE WAY HOME. Little Books for Working Men. By Lady HOPE of Carriden. 16 pages. 6d. per dozen. No. 1. He laid down His Life! 2. The Beautiful Gate.

GOSPEL LEAVES. Six two-page Tracts, Illustrated. By CHEYNE BRADY. Packet of 100, assorted, 6d.

Illustrated Monthly Periodicals.

THE BRITISH MESSENGER. Price 1d.
THE GOSPEL TRUMPET. Price ½d., or 3s. 6d. per 100.
GOOD NEWS. Price ½d., 3 for 1d., or 2s. 6d. per 100.
The three Periodicals for one year 2s. 6d.
DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling, N.B.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.

THE NATIONAL THRIFT BUILDING SOCIETY, of 23, New Bridge-street, London, E.C., issue £10 shares, payable in one sum, or by instalments, without entrance fees or fines; the interest, with bonus, for 1882 having been six and seven per cent. Deposits are received for short or long periods, and current banking accounts opened, two and a half per cent. being allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Advances are promptly made, on reasonable terms.

FRANCIS'S BRONCHIAL PROTECTOR
Registered.
For BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, TIGHT BREATHING, all THROAT COMPLAINTS. } SURE REMEDY
Mr. J. D. Fisher, Chemist, Blackpool, says:—"I have tried it myself, and have received great benefit from it. My customers speak highly of its virtues." Of Chemists, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., or for Stamps sent to
FRANCIS & CO., Belgrave Gate, LEICESTER

Twelfth Edition, Post-free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c., 5, Bulstrode-street, Cavendish-square, London.
London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

MRS. GRIMKÈ'S TEXT CARDS.
This Gospel work, carried out at great labour and self-sacrifice, can be largely extended in heathen lands by friends using these Cards at home and abroad. Over 30 Foreign languages. Assorted packets of 100 of each language, 1s. to 1s. 6d. per 100. New Easter, 1s. 6d., other English, from 1s. 6d. to 3s. per 100. Lighthouse Tracts, 1 to 4, 4s. per 100. Bible Story, &c. &c. For lists send stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. GRIMKÈ, Prestwich, Manchester.

TO PREACHERS, Class-Leaders, &c., &c.—Comments of Rev. John Wesley's Plain Account of Christian Perfection. By W. CAMERON. Price One Penny.
EDWARD HOWELL, 26, Church-street, Liverpool.

"The Christian."

SUBSCRIPTIONS for 3, 6 or 12 Months.

INCLUDING ANY DOUBLE NUMBERS.

			£ s. d.
13 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	.. ..	0 1 9
2 Copies "	1d.	.. ..	0 3 5
3 " "	1½d.	.. ..	0 5 2
4 " "	2d.	.. ..	0 6 10
26 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	.. ..	0 3 5
2 Copies "	1d.	.. ..	0 6 10
3 " "	1½d.	.. ..	0 10 3
4 " "	2d.	.. ..	0 13 8
52 Weeks—
1 Copy and Postage	½d.	.. ..	0 6 10
2 Copies "	1d.	.. ..	0 13 8
3 " "	1½d.	.. ..	1 0 6
4 " "	2d.	.. ..	1 7 4

Remittances to be made either by Postal Order, or Post Office Order, payable at the General Post Office. Cheques to be crossed "City Bank."

The prices include any Double Numbers that may be issued through the year.

Copies will be continued after the term is expired for which payment has been made, unless instructions are sent to the contrary.

Particulars for FOREIGN SUBSCRIPTIONS can be obtained on application to the Publisher.

Bagster's Bibles IN FRENCH MOROCCO CIRCUIT. ELASTIC BAND. Facsimile, Maps, References, Helps 4/-

THE FEBRUARY PART of
The Christian
CONTAINING
The whole of the January Numbers, in neat Wrapper. Price 5d.; post-free 7d.
MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

TO LADIES'-MAIDS and others.—Lessons in dress-fitting and cutting, £1 1s. the course, fit guaranteed, patterns included; privately, £2 2s. Ladies patterns taken from 1s. 6d.
Mrs. JUDD, 9, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.

Tinted Cover 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.
MARY LYON.
RECOLLECTIONS OF A NOBLE WOMAN.
BY
FIDELIA FISKE.
"Miss Lyon established, and for many years superintended, the Mount Holyoke Seminary, from whence a large number of devoted and earnest women have gone forth to do good service in the Master's cause. The author of the 'Recollections' was herself a pupil of Miss Lyon; and, after labouring with much success in Persia, returned to South Hadley to succeed her former instructress."—Sunday School Teacher.
London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

McCALL'S
PAYSANDU OX-TONGUES.
IN TINS, READY FOR IMMEDIATE USE.
Sold by all Grocers.

THE

Hygienic value of Magnetism.

THE habits of the present century, whether among toilers at business or votaries of pleasure, tend to produce nervous derangements, and although hygienic and sanitary precautions will do much to correct this tendency, there is a necessity for the employment of other means, not only for prevention, but for recuperation. At the present time, the prescribed remedies include total exemption from the toilsome duties of life, complete rest, change of air and scene, a sea voyage, or residence in what is termed a bracing atmosphere. That these prescriptions are successful, in the majority of cases, when promptly acted upon, we freely admit; but in how many cases it is almost, if not altogether impossible that these means can be resorted to; in other instances these aids have only produced an alleviation of symptoms, at great cost to the patient, and a return to the ordinary routine of business or family cares has induced a gradual return of the ailment, thus showing that the system has derived no new vigour from the change, and that there still exists a want of some permanently sustained energy of the same character as that which produced the temporary improvement.

It was discovered that the stimulating and life-renewing qualities of sea and mountain air were due to the presence of the purest form of oxygen, known as ozone. Oxygen is well known to be the most highly magnetic of all gases, and it is equally clear that the larger the supply of pure oxygen in the air we breathe, the more healthy and vigorous we become. Professor Faraday expressed an opinion that the oxygen of the atmosphere could only be separated from the nitrogen by magnetic action; and this, added to the known fact that the blood contains iron as one of its constituent elements, capable of being acted upon magnetically through the surface of the body, gave rise to the opinion that a debilitated condition was one which should receive marked benefit from the application of Magnetic influence.

This is now accomplished by the most simple arrangement. Magnetic currents are caused to circulate through the body, and at the same time surround the patient by a vitalising influence so energising in effect and gentle in operation as to render the application unique and positively agreeable to the most sensitive patient. Commendatory letters have been received from hundreds of persons in all classes of society.

Rev. J. WILKINSON, Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N.

"February 3, 1883.

"My dear wife, myself, and children have adopted your Odo-Magnetic treatment for some years, and have derived benefit—my wife more than myself, simply because there was more scope in her weaker state of health. You will be glad to learn that my daughter's neuralgia is almost a thing of the past; it only troubles her very occasionally when overtaxed, and even then is not so severe as it was.

"I have recommended this remedy to numbers of my suffering friends over the country, and have had warm thanks from those using it, as imparting to them a sort of fresh life."

Mrs. R. FINCH, The Burrows, Cheddar, Somerset.

"October 20, 1878.

"I am happy to say your Magnetic treatment has proved exceedingly beneficial in my case, as well as in that of all those to whom I recommended it."

"November 21, 1882.

"I am as firm as ever in my opinion as to the efficacy of your 'Odo-Magnetic' treatment, and I wish you success in your valuable work, both for the benefit of those who are wise enough to adopt it, and of yourself."

Mr. Garratt will always be happy to confer with any scientific or medical gentleman, either personally or by letter, upon any phase of the subject, or any case for treatment, and will send a private list of 800 names as referees to any address.

Mr. B. COPSON GARRATT, Medical Electrician, 16, Finsbury-square, London, E.C.

Memories of Melrose;

OR,

PERSONAL NOTES OF THE ROYAL HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES, PUTNEY HEATH.

WITH FIFTEEN ILLUSTRATIONS.

The Board invite a perusal of the above Pamphlet; it is especially calculated to interest the Young. A Copy will be sent, free of charge, on application to

FREDERIC ANDREW,
108, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Secretary.

"A beautifully prepared pamphlet, the story of the work well told, and the engravings, on every second page, of superior excellence."—The Christian.

JUST PUBLISHED.

EVERY MAN IN ENGLAND SHOULD READ

MR. HENRY VARLEY'S

LECTURE TO MEN,

5d., or in stiff covers, 6d., post free.

This invaluable and instructive Lecture, delivered to 3,000 men in Exeter Hall, can only be obtained by letter addressed THOS. E. VARLEY, Office of the Christian Commonwealth, 73, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C.

Three copies sent post free on receipt of postal order for 1s.

WINNING WORDS.

A New Series of Text Cards. ¾ Envelope shape. Illustrated with Etchings. Price Sixpence, post free.
JOHN G. WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park, London, N.

Just published on card, 16mo., 2s. 6d. per 100.

SEVEN PLAIN REASONS FOR WEARING THE BLUE RIBBON.

Crown 8vo., 3d.

CHRIST'S SACRIFICE AND CROSS.

By MARCUS DODS, D.D.
Edinburgh: Macniven & Wallace.

Neatly printed on tinted paper, suitable for enclosing in Letters or for General Distribution.

Price 6d. per packet of 12 Tracts.
3s. 6d. per 100, either assorted or of any separate Tract.

"GLADNESS OF HEART" TRACTS.

A Series of Narratives, each complete in itself, recording striking Conversions.

BY

J. P. WILSON,

Author of "Gladness of Heart," &c., &c.

CONTENTS OF PACKET.

1. A Young Clerk in the Last Century.
2. A Prize Runner. A Beershop-Keeper's Daughter.
3. A Preacher brought to Christ.
4. Ignorance of Sin.
5. George Robinson, of Grasmere.
   Dr. Edmund Staunton.
6. Time required for Conversion.
   "I've Found the Lord." A Young Pharisee.
7. Conversion of an English Heathen.
8. Found of One who Sought Him not.
   "How long have you to Live?"
9. A Weary One finding Rest.
10. Finding the Pearl of Great Price.
    "The Sorrows of Death."
11. Mary Harrison, of Havant.
12. Count Zinzendorf.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"LIFTED UP." The Life of Walter Douglas. With Frontispiece. Paper covers. Price 6d. Cloth, 1s.

"In its perusal we were cheered and delighted, for here are records of the marvels of grace."—Latter Rain.
London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings

HODDER & STOUGHTON'S LIST.

Works by Mrs. G. S. REANEY.

NEW TEMPERANCE STORY.

1. DAISY SNOWFLAKE'S SECRET
A Story of English Home Life. Elegantly bound, 5s.
"Daisy's character is a charming one."—British Quarterly.
"Winning in style, pure and earnest in tone, and of commanding interest."—Daily Review.

2. MORNING THOUGHTS FOR OUR DAUGHTERS. Handsomely bound, 1s. 6d.

3. OUR DAUGHTERS: Their Lives here and hereafter. Fifth thousand, 3s. 6d., cloth.
"A thoroughly wise and helpful book."—Christian.

4. OUR BROTHERS AND SONS.
Elegantly bound, 3s. 6d.
"One of her best books, written in excellent English, and with a racy, earnest pen."—Evangelical Magazine.

Just Published, Crown 8vo., 3s. 6d.

IN CHRIST; or, The Believer's Union with his Lord. By A. J. Gordon, D.D. of Boston, U.S.
"Full of fresh, devout, and suggestive thought, pithily expressed."—Freeman.
"Dr. Gordon's excellent book . . . very clear, vivid and interesting."—Methodist Recorder.

Dr. Gordon on Faith Healing.

THE MINISTRY of HEALING; or, Miracles of Cure in all Ages. By A. J. Gordon, D.D.
"A remarkable book, the production of an accomplished writer deeply impressed with the truth for which he pleads."—Methodist Recorder.

Now ready, in 8vo., price 1s.

FALLACIES of FUTURISM: A Reply to Futurist Objections to the Historic Interpretation of Prophecy. By Mr. and Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness.

This day, in 8vo., 6s.,

THE GREAT MEMORIAL NAME: or, The Self-Revelation of Jehovah as the God of Redemption. By P. W. Grant, Author of "The Bible Record of Creation," &c.
London, Hodder & Stoughton, 27, Paternoster-row.

HOW TO READ THE BIBLE.

7th Edition. 41st Thousand. 6 copies for 6d.
This momentous question answered. A little book of great importance. Every reader of The Christian is STRONGLY RECOMMENDED to procure copies IMMEDIATELY.
Readers of it thus write:—"A most excellent work." "Invaluable." "Supplies a great want." "I pray that every household in England may possess copies." "Valuable little book." "Seems so valuable." The Christian Union says:—"An excellent little treatise. . . Its suggestions are full of meaning. . . The book is being greatly appreciated."—Apply to Rev. C. Lyne, Westgate-on-Sea, Thanet, enclosing ½d. addressed wrapper; or Marshall Brothers (office of Life and Faith), Amen-corner.

TO LADIES SEEKING EMPLOYMENT OR A HOME.

Just published, Crown 8vo., cloth, 2s. 6d.; paper cover 1s. 6d.,

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S YEAR BOOK FOR 1883,

Being a New Edition of "The Year Book of Woman's Work," containing new Summary of Employments corrected up to date, together with a Directory to all Institutions throughout the kingdom for the benefit of Women and Children.
By L. M. H., Editor of "Work and Leisure."

WORK AND LEISURE,

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S ADVERTISER, REPORTER, AND GAZETTE,

Monthly, price 3d. (Annual Subscription, 3s. 6d., post free),

Affords information upon all subjects of interest to Women, or which bear upon their welfare; chronicles new openings of remunerative employment, and of all occupations open to them, both paid and unpaid. Special facilities are also afforded for Advertisements.

HATCHARDS, 187, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST. FIRST ESTABLISHED 1825.

NEAVE'S FOOD FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS.

Lancet—"Carefully prepared and highly nutritious."
British Medical Journal.—"Well adapted for children, aged people, and invalids."

IN ONE-POUND ONE SHILLING CANISTERS.

SOLD EVERYWHERE. WHOLESALE OF THE MANUFACTURERS,

J. R. NEAVE & CO., FORDINGBRIDGE, ENGLAND.

The Christian.

THE LIFE OF HOLINESS.

IN taking a survey of the late mercies of our God toward us, we may well extend our retrospect far, far beyond the limits of the past year. His teachings even during the last decade, his revelations, we may say, now granted to his waiting people, are such as to make many of us stand in awe in a rapt contemplation, filled with wonder, gratitude, expectation, and praise.

Our thoughts seem specially drawn just now to the fuller meanings of the great day of Pentecostal grace and power poured forth upon the infant Church, and to the marvels and miracles of Divine love which marked the early days of Christianity. Our hearts beat with a solemn fear and joy when, turning from that retrospect, we regard the present time, and are constrained to confess that the Lord of glory has again lovingly visited his people, and that the grace and gifts of Pentecost are again, in these latter days, beginning to be more fully shed abroad among his praying disciples. We thank God that we were born in this century and have lived to this day, that we have been permitted in some degree to see (as we shall hereafter more fully see it) the approaching fulfilment of the glorious prophecy of Joel. Our God is speaking. He is teaching his people, gently, gradually, the hidden meaning of some Scriptural truths which hitherto have been too often—even to true believers—little more than beautiful words prophetic of some future blessedness, rather than the expression of a reality of blessing to be grasped and held now, in this present life.

Like many who have, in some recent controversies, kept silence, I have yet followed with the deepest interest the correspondence which has appeared in THE CHRISTIAN and elsewhere on the subject of the life of holiness. There is no doubt that there is "a way of teaching holiness" which may lead to grievous error, "by turning the gaze of the soul in upon itself, its own experiences, its own cleanness, its own loveliness," instead of fixing its eyes upon the only Perfect One, our Redeemer, our Sanctifier.

Things painful and "hard to be understood" have been written and spoken in this controversy. Expressions which are used by the Spirit of God Himself, apparently as a means to reveal to one soul the fulness of peace and of freedom from sin, convey to another soul no such meaning; they not only fail to be a medium for carrying this truth to the heart, but they even produce a revulsion, and a sense of pain. But to this other soul the same blessed truth may be conveyed in quite other words, and perhaps in another manner; so that to both, and to all who sincerely and ardently seek it, the realisation is granted of that wondrous "abiding in Him" which expresses all; that hidden life, that Sabbath rest of the soul, which is now being revealed to so many of God's people who had hitherto walked uncertainly and without joy.

It seems to me that the lessons we may learn from the difficulties of the controversy itself are these: first, that through all, and in the midst of all the "strife of tongues," and the variously recorded experience on the subject, there exists the blessed fact that our God is granting us at this time a fuller revelation of the great salvation through Jesus Christ, which may be ours when He grants us the faith to recognise, to claim, and to accept it. Thanks be unto God for this his unspeakable gift!

Secondly, we learn that the highest and the deepest truths are the most difficult to express in words, and the most perilous for man to attempt to formulate. There is a danger of their becoming crystallised and dead, mere formulæ, if learned and repeated with the mouth, while not fully and experimentally realised in the soul. Into what snares would this lead many! May not this sweet and awful revelation concerning the "higher life," the Sabbath of the soul, be to some degree among those things which (according to the Apostle) it is not "lawful" or possible "for a man to utter"? When the grand crisis arrived in the life of the patriarch Jacob, he asked of the angel, "Tell me thy name?" But the angel only replied, "Wherefore dost thou ask after my name?" The secret was not expressed in words; yet, "he blessed him there."

Thus, it appears to me, that the differences between those sincere Christians who confer or dispute upon this deep subject are differences more in words than in the reality, and that this is partly owing to the difficulty of expressing in words the secrets revealed by God to the soul. There is a revelation which can only be made by the Lord himself to the soul. We may learn much, and be aided in our search, by Christian Conferences on the subject, and by "Holiness Meetings;" but the Holy Spirit is the only Teacher. It is He and He alone who can bring home this truth to each individual, in his own manner, and in his own time. And the revelation is, I think, more often made in hours of deep solitude and silence, than in the congregation, or through the direct leading of other Christians who have already received it.

It appears that this truth has been kept alive through all ages, and even in the darkest ages, in the hearts of individual saints, to be more generally revealed and accepted by the followers of Jesus in these later times. God has never left himself without witnesses to this as to other portions of divine truth; and it is very instructive, in the light of his present dealings with his Church, to read the records of the inner life of some of the saints of past times. There is a strong resemblance in the experience of all, while the mode of expressing that experience differs widely. These saints had not the help of conferences and meetings; they learned what they knew in solitude before God. Their phraseology was not borrowed. It was fresh and real; and it would be helpful, I think, in our own times, to be able to become more familiar than we are with some of their testimonies.

Two such records have recently impressed me; those of John Woolman, the American Quaker, and of St. Theresa of Spain. Many years after his conversion, John Woolman had an illness, during which he fell into a kind of trance. While in this state he says:

> I heard a soft, melodious voice, more pure and harmonious than any I had heard with my ears before. It seemed the voice of an angel who spake to the other angels; the words he spake were, "John Woolman is dead." I remembered that I was John Woolman, and being assured that I was alive in the body, I greatly wondered what the heavenly voice could mean.

It remained for a time a mystery to him. But later he adds:

> Divine power came upon me, and I opened my mouth and said: "I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless, I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." Then the mystery was opened, and I perceived that the language "John Woolman is dead," meant no more than the death of my own will.

From that time he was endued with redoubled zeal and power to labour for the liberation of the negro slaves.

Theresa of Spain speaks in almost the same words of this rest of the soul: "All is then silence in the soul. It is no longer I who live, but Christ Himself who lives in me." She adds: "It is then that we learn zeal, power, heroic ambition for the glory of God. From the time that the Lord granted me this grace I was saved from all my faults and my miseries. I had power given me to become indeed free."

Zeal for the Kingdom of God implies courageous and aggressive action against the kingdom and works of Satan. May every blessed experience of the past serve as a preparation for strong and stern action. For the very granting from above (in a greater degree than formerly) of nearness to God, and of spiritual joy, means that there is a great conflict at hand between the powers of light and of darkness.

Winchester. JOSEPHINE E. BUTLER.

NINE ELMS MISSION.

ON surveying our work at the close of the past year, we are stricken with pain to perceive the number of vacant places in our ranks; in the moment of sorrow we begin to fear that the loss of our helpers will affect the Master's service. In no year have the books of our Mission had such a number of names erased by the red line against which the significant word "dead" is written. We sorrow for this though we may well

> Rejoice for a brother or sister deceased;
> Our loss is their infinite gain.

Meantime we must close up the ranks, and call on those who remain below to work with us in the service of our one Master, Christ. Our work increases; material and hands will not be lacking in any part of the harvest field in this year 1883.

In this faith we pray and work in our corner of the vineyard, trusting that we shall hear of others who are willing and able to sustain our hands by their sympathy and gifts.

Your servant in Christ, S. MEREDITH.

WORKMEN IN RANGOON.—A reading room has just been opened in Rangoon for the benefit of Eurasian artificers. Friends are invited to send papers, magazine,s or books. Parcels, &c., should be addressed, prepaid, to the Eurasian Artificers' Reading-room, Rangoon, British Burmah.

CAMDEN TOWN Y.M.C.A.—The New Year's social meeting in connection with this institute was recently held, and presided over by Mr. J. H. Tritton. Rev. Marcus Rainsford, jun., made an earnest appeal to the unsaved, and was followed by his father, Rev. Marcus Rainsford, who delivered a very eloquent, impressive, and practical address, chiefly to Christians.

NORWICH SOLDIERS' HOME.—A tea meeting was lately held at this Home, at which a number of soldiers and civilians were present. Mr. G. J. Mumford gave a short, earnest, and practical address, after which several soldiers spoke of the blessings they had received at the Home. At the close of an address by the lady superintendent, a poor woman handed her a rosary, and afterwards three crucifixes, a piece of sacred palm, and several other things, asking to be prayed for. She together with other two Roman Catholics were led to rest in Christ.

CHURCH ARMY.—The Mission services are still being conducted at Westminster; they will continue for several months. The hall is situated in Regency-street, not far from Victoria-station; it is filled nearly every night with some of the roughest of the rough. There is a great need for earnest helpers to speak personally in the after-meeting with the numbers who remain. The poor fellows seem willing to stay and be spoken to with a readiness that is astonishing. A great part in the meeting is taken by the testimonies of those who profess to have forsaken their sinful lives; some of these are truly touching. Mr. Carlile remains in charge; he is drilling men to be sent into various parishes wherever there may be a demand for their services. Every Tuesday at three, and Friday at eight o'clock p.m., there is a holiness meeting.

THE CHURCHES IN RELATION TO EVANGELISTIC WORK.

PRIZE ARTICLES

By Rev. EDWD. SMITH, Fairfield, Manchester.

CHAP. VIII.—COMBINATION.

"And Joab said, If the Syrians be too strong for me, then thou shalt help me: but if the children of Ammon be too strong for thee, then I will come and help thee." (2 SAM. x. 11.)

"Their heads all stooping low, their points all in a row,
Like a whirlwind on the trees, like a deluge on the dykes,
Our cuirassiers have burst on the ranks of the accurst,
And at a shock have scattered the forest of his pikes."

RESOLUTE patriotism, fiery valour, copious blood-shedding, great sacrifice of human life; and yet, the attack failed—the battle was lost! Why was this? Ah! the same verdict has been written about the failures of the first French Republic, and of the armies of the North in the great American war, and of many another army, both before and since—"Failed for want of combination." The various divisions which went to the fight did not act with each other, and so all their display of courage and discipline went for nought.

The comparative ill-success, in some directions, of the Christian Church, is partly attributable to the same thing. We have numbers, talent, efficient weapons, magnificent appliances, enthusiasm, and yet, the millions of our redeemed brethren lie imprisoned in the arms of the wicked one; his positions are not captured, his arsenals look almost impregnable.

"Want of combination" does something toward accounting for the fewness and smallness of our victories. (1) Individuals do not enough unite their powers against the common enemy. (2) The various movements in single Churches do not sufficiently aid each other. (3) Those Churches which have different names and polities, but whose real variations of creed are all but infinitesimal, do not combine as they well might. This latter fact has been an eyesore to the profoundly and broadly godly, a rock of offence to many an anxious inquirer, and a handle to a prejudiced world.

COMBINATION, THEN, IS HIGHLY ESSENTIAL TO SUCCESS.

Individuals may agree to do work in common. What a number of units separately could not achieve, they may accomplish by a clubbing together of their powers. It is within the knowledge of the writer, that certain young men have uttered first of all thoughtful vows before God, and then have gone out in companies to help Him to create good in human souls. Among them are University graduates and undergraduates; but they do not despise their humbler and less fortunate co-disciples. Some half-dozen will go on the Sabbath, and sometimes on the week evening, to a sleepy village, and once there will commence visiting, speaking, and praying. This they have done night after night, until the whole place has been in a ferment, first of astonishment and then of real religious concern. Or else they will hire a room in a low part of the town, gather a few children, and then some adults. They take pains to show a genuine interest in the well-being of the neighbourhood, and in the end are permitted to enjoy the consciousness hat they are saving souls from death.

It is also within my knowledge, that in a Yorkshire town a band of ladies has undertaken a very onerous task. This band is made up of Christians from all the orthodox Churches, and its members take or assist in services held during half an hour at dinner time in those factories and workshops whose employés are chiefly made up of women and girls. Their disinterested labours have received tokens of the Master's approval. The indirect effects have been confessedly greater than the more direct ones, but without a combination of energy neither could have been secured.

These agreements to unison

MAY BE INCREASED TWENTY-FOLD.

We may have more societies without distinct names than with them, societies which shall own no other basis than that of a mutual understanding. We may have plenty of "Aaron and Hur societies," without the title being attached; and so with others. In nearly every city and market-town there are some devoted saints. The touch of a master-mind, or even of a timidly-loving mind, might crystallise them into a unity which would flash forth light on every side. It is the faithful few always on whose shoulders the great burdens are laid, and they must link arms and hearts if their proper mission is to be consummated. All this can be done either with or without reports, financial statements, and all the et ceteras thereof. Informal cohesion is sometimes the best.

And as with work, so with prayer. I agreed once with three or four more to pray for times of refreshing. Circumstances seemed to say that such a baptism was just about impossible. Nevertheless, in a few months it came, and in our talks we ever traced it back to that Sunday morning prayer-meeting. Some one must suggest and work up such unions as these. Modesty and self-distrust ought not to stand in the way of outspoken suggestiveness. While each one is waiting for the rest to begin, the myrmidons of evil are riveting the chains of their captives. If God has given a word to any soldier of Jesus, by all means let that word overleap all barriers.

And among the different agencies of the same Church there is much isolation. This may be remedied. A Young Men's Improvement Society is formed. There is grave danger of vaporous discussions, conceited declamation, irritability, the exaltation of cleverness to the pedestal which ought to be occupied by purity alone. And yet it is hard to avoid the formation of such a society, and none can doubt that it may be worked to the benefit of those united with it. But wise men have manipulated this institution, and have shaped it into a Home Mission Society also. They have welded into one the pair so long disjoined—the mental improvement of self, and the moral improvement of others. Each has had its share of time and attention, and each has been amazingly helpful to the other.

Here is a Mothers' Meeting conducted on the most approved methods—religious singing, almost jaunty in its style, extracts from bright or pathetic books, an exchequer into which little sums are paid with the certainty of liberal interest; a pleasant visit from minister or leading layman; stitching, talking, a little presentation to some lady conductor now and then; a general drawing together of life to life. But the trouble is, the mothers' meetings in most Churches has no affiliation with the other and older working agencies. What about the fathers, brothers, sons, of these women? When the day for the annual trip or tea-meeting comes, all these male members of the family are invited, but hardly any present themselves, and those who do, seem unhappy among so many females, and wear a somewhat sheepish look.

Now, if domestic visitation were practised, partly by the help of the associations of the mothers' meeting, great good would come of it. Among the best specimens of the power of Grace are some to whose homes I gained admittance, and with whose lives I obtained fellowship, by means of such a meeting. It is a treat to hear those men, once uncouth, and almost demonic, speak and pray in public. But because the loving work of a little set of good women brings but a poor return in many places—at least as far as the men are concerned.

THERE IS SO LITTLE COMBINATION

It is the same with open-air services. They tax the voice, exhaust the bodily powers, and expose those who are forward in them to the risk of contumely. By them are influenced hundreds of thousands whose path of sin would otherwise have no hindrances upon it. Wisdom is shown in the manner in which these services are conducted. Popular music, aptitude of speech, cogency of appeal, are there. But they begin, and are ended; and, if impressions are produced, who tries to deepen them?

After having taken a prominent part in numberless open-air preachments, I assert, emphatically, that, as far as my experience goes, they are not adequately remunerative, except where they can have some base of operations to which an after-meeting can be transferred. The feelings aroused in the breasts of the unconverted outside the sanctuary walls are brought to a fitting climax within. But failure of combination between the regular and irregular work is fatal to the latter and injurious to the former.

A Band of Hope meeting draws many together. Some come there who would on no account lend their presence to the ordinary worship. They wish to hear the recitations of the children, or, possibly, of their own children. What an avenue for usefulness is here presented. Who will accost, and propitiate, and invite these stranger souls? Who will take advantage of their appearance at a semi-religious gathering to secure their attendance at the meetings statedly and altogether religious? Many chances are missed here. Temperance reformers, who are supposed to be, first of all, religious, ought to be the most wide-awake of opportunists. Temperance and religion ought always to help each other.

Of some places of worship it may be currently reported, that whoever goes may feel sure of being well treated. But, unless there is a constant "touting" for strangers, a request for the address, and an expressed desire to make the acquaintance of the owner of the unknown face, all the kindness is too vague and resultless. In growing neighbourhoods it is well to have Church members on the watch for newly-tenanted houses, and if to these a neat card of invitation can be taken, all the better. It is by the combination of a number of little things that many a house of prayer has been filled to the doors, and for lack of this, others, with possibilities equally good, are half empty.

For any Christian to be able to gain the instinctive confidence and beaming smile of the children, is something out of which much can be made. There is no better introduction to a home than to say truthfully, "I am your child's friend, and I want to be yours; and, besides, I want to introduce you to One who desires to be our mutual Friend, and whose name is Jesus."

(This chapter to be concluded in our next.)

LONDON "RAGGED" CHURCHES.

FROM the census of 1881 it appears that "Greater London" has a resident population approaching 4,000,000, or a population exceeding that of the whole of Scotland. It thus becomes a serious question as to the extent to which its spiritual needs are met. The statistics of the various religious communities show that all the churches and chapels combined can only accommodate a moiety of the numbers that could attend; but, unhappily, the average attendance falls at least one-third below the sittings provided. It is also a painful fact that the various congregations consist mainly of the upper and middle classes, and that mechanics and artizans are "conspicuous by their absence." Not that all the non-attendants are avowed infidels—indifference rather than Bradlaughism or Comteism causing such absence from this means of grace.

But there is a class still lower than what may be regarded as the aristocrats of manual labour. They are rarely seen in the daytime; at night they crowd into casual wards, or into the "Lodging Houses for Travellers" which mark the "Mint" of Southwark and the "Devil's Acre" of Westminster. It would be a great error to regard such persons as members of our criminal classes, for the bulk of these social outcasts are either too stunted in physique or too low in mental organisation to dare robbery or violence.

Ragged as they are in attire, wild in look, and filthy in person, their entrance into a regular place of worship would almost justify a panic on the part even of those who really believe that men have immortal destinies, and must spend eternity either in heaven or hell. This question is thus forced upon our attention: Ought this class to be permitted to pass into eternity unevangelised? When our Lord directed us to "preach the Gospel to every creature," did He not include our social waifs and strays? It was for these social wrecks that the first London "Ragged Church" was organised in Field Lane Ragged School in 1852; and, though many offshoots have sprung from it, it still attracts the largest number of the wild tribes of London—the winter morning congregation being about 700. One remarkable feature in this strange flock is, that about three-fourths are males. In addition, the four largest Ragged Churches—namely those in George-yard, Whitechapel; Gray's-yard, Oxford-street; Parker-street, Drury-lane; and Collingwood-street, Blackfriars—have a united attendance of 1400 every Lord's Day.

At some of these preaching stations bread and cocoa are given after the service. Supplied, as this usually is, to half-starved men and women, it is sad to see them devour the meal more like famished wolves than human beings.

To show how these simple services are appreciated by our poorer brethren not so low down in the social scale, it may be intimated that the preaching station in Sale-street, Paddington, is largely attended by canal boatmen and their families. The services in Church-street, Paddington-green, attract many men and women employed in the dust-yards. At Linton-place, Edgware-road, many 'bus-washers and ostlers attend. The congregations at New Cut and Golden-lane consist mainly of costermongers and fish-hawkers; and at Clerkenwell-close a large number of flower-girls form the staple of the attendants.

Of the London Ragged Churches, 105 are affiliated to the "Ragged Church and Chapel Union," which was instituted in 1853, under the active presidency of the Earl of Shaftesbury. At these services the average Sunday attendance is 10,140, and at the week-night, 3060.

In addition, forty hold services for senior children, the united attendance being 4130. It is thus seen that the Mission stations connected with the "Ragged Church and Chapel Union" attract every Sunday 14,270 adults and children—a population exceeding many English boroughs which return two Members to Parliament.

It was said of our Lord that "the common people heard Him gladly;" and as it was then, so it is now. One fact will suffice to confirm this statement. In 1869 the converts at the Field-lane evening service were formed into a Church at their own request. Since that time above one hundred have been received into Church fellowship, after due inquiry. Twenty of these have died in the faith and hope of the Gospel—eight going down with the Princess Alice. Most of those who still remain evidence by their happy countenances and utterances that extreme poverty, and its usual accompaniments, pain and sickness, are no bar to full rest in Jesus.

The social status of this "little flock," numbering sixty, may be inferred from the sad fact that a moiety of the females are the widows of labourers, six are the wives of Italian organ-grinders, one is a street-hawker, and nearly every one is a charwoman. Of the men, one is a parish scavenger, another a night-watchman, one is half blind, and another, a glass-cutter by trade, has both hands paralysed. All, through grace, found Christ in this Institution.

Nor is Field-lane a solitary instance of the effectual work of the Holy Spirit in Ragged Churches; for rather it is only typical of the communicants at Cow-cross, George-yard, Rosemary-lane, and other stations where the ordinance of the Lord's Supper is observed.

To all the affiliated Ragged Churches the Central Society gives small annual or special grants towards the rent; but, unhappily, the income, always very small, is so much below these grants, that about thirty, recently voted, cannot be paid, as the funds are exhausted, and there is no reserve fund. It is right to say, especially as the fact is almost unique in the history of religious societies, that no grant is voted before the station is visited by some member of the committee, who not only conducts the service, but defrays his own expenses.

Having aided this Mission for nearly thirty-one years, I cannot but thank the Giver of all good for the blessing which has accompanied this form of Christian labour; and knowing the value of the "Ragged Church and Chapel Union," especially to the poorer preaching stations, I think it would be pitiable, not to say shameful, were it permitted to collapse, not from lack of suitable agents, but from want of funds. Any donation sent to the office of the Society, 4, Trafalgar-square, Charing-cross, would, I am sure, not only encourage the committee, but aid them to carry on and extend their Mission to our social outcasts. And if any other incentive were needed, the example of our Lord should suffice, for He said, as the very epitome and crown of his personal ministry, that "the poor have the Gospel preached unto them."

E. J. HYTCHE.

January, 1883.

GATHERING OF HEBREW CHRISTIANS.—At the kind invitation of Mrs. Ehrlich, about 120 converted Jews sat down to an excellent tea in the Mission Hall, Old Montague-street, St. Mary's-street, Whitechapel, on Friday, 26th ult. Words of encouragement and counsel were afterwards spoken to them by Mr. G. Y. Edwards, Dr. Stern, Mr. Jas. Rennie, Rev. A. Bernstein, and other gentlemen.

"FOUND."

A BIBLE READING.

GOD can find out iniquity (Gen. xliv. 16). A slothful Israelite went to gather manna, and found none (Ex. xvi. 27).

Jacob was found in a desert (Deut. xxxii. 10).

An Egyptian (type of a sinner in the world) may be found in the field (1 Sam. xxx. 11).

The Lord can deliver from the pit, because He has found the ransom (Job xxxiii. 24).

Wisdom (Christ) may be found of those who seek (Prov. xxiv. 14).

Backsliders and prodigals may find the Lord again (Cant. iii. 4; Luke xv.).

One who has been warned, and has neglected the warning, may be weighed and found wanting (Dan. v. 27).

A believer desiring to be fruitful finds fruit only in Christ (Hos. xiv. 8).

The Lord may find some believers asleep when they should be watching (Matt. xxvi. 43).

Every preacher of the Gospel, like the Lord, must find the place where it is written (Luke iv. 17).

The Lord Jesus was tried from every point by his enemies, yet no fault was found in Him (Luke xxiii. 14).

The life-history of every believer ought to be, "We have found Him" (John i. 45).

HERBERT R. FRANCIS.

THE DAY OF REST.

WHY should men awake to the defence of the Lord's Day? Because the enemies of the Gospel of God and of the family are diligent in attacking it. Recently a busy coterie have formed "The London Workmen's Sunday Committee," for punishing Mr. Broadhurst, M.P., for his vote in Parliament against the Sunday opening of museums and picture galleries. In addition to delegates from certain well-known infidel clubs, the committee announce the adhesion of 10,870 members of the National Secular Society.

The following organisations are working in London to destroy our Day of Rest: The National Sunday League, the Sunday Society, the Sunday Lecture Society, the Sunday Social Union, the Society for Promoting Sunday Bands, and two or three minor associations. Is it not time for those who love the Word of God, and who reverence the Day of Rest, to bestir themselves, lest the Gospel of Salvation be thrust out of the Sunday to make room for Science, Literature, Freethought (so called), Secularism, and Materialism?

Take, again, the following statement from a recent paper of the Railway Mission: "The idea is general, that in speaking of railway men we mean porters, guards, and engine-drivers. It will surprise those to hear that thirteen different grades of men have been employed about each train before it can be started. All day long and all night, these men can be found at work, week-days and alas! Sundays alike!" And from the same document come these words, "The day of rest," the Sabbath, "no rest for railway men!"

It is argued that the use of Sunday for pleasure will entail no work, and that the workmen of England are too strong, and well-organised, and too determined in defending their independence, for the burden of Sunday work to be fastened on them. All this while, 100,000 railway servants are working on that day, with many others, as, for instance, 100,000 on canals and rivers, 20,000 postal servants, 300,000 in drinking shops, and vast numbers in manufactories of gas, glass, chemicals, and iron. Surely every Christian in the land, in all classes of society, should be awake to the danger, and diligent in repelling it.

JOHN GRITTON, D.D.

20, Bedford-street, Strand, W.C.

For the Young.

THE FIRST MEAL FOR THE WEEK.

MY DEAR FRIENDS,—Perhaps some of you are members of "The Children's Scripture Union." I am one of the members. I think it is so nice to know that so many young people all over the world are reading the same portions of God's word every day month by month. Let us pray that many more may be led to join our Union. What beautiful readings we had last month from Isaiah. I read my portion every morning before I go down to breakfast; it would be better perhaps if many would take God's word for their first meal for the day. Just another thing about the Union. I want you all to read the portions with much prayer; if we were more prayerful I am sure more blessing would rest on our reading. I close with a prayer that God would bless our endeavours to do something for Him.

Your Friend in Jesus, MARIANNE.

TAKING LITTLE THINGS TO JESUS.

There was a young girl called Florence, who had two little sisters, whose names were Evelyne and Winnie. Evelyne was eight years old and Winnie five. She also had a little brother, Freddy; he was about three years of age. Florence had the charge of some chickens that she kept in the yard. Her father was very particular that they should not get out into the garden, as they were rather apt to scratch the flowers up.

One day Florence, seeing her little sisters and brother playing at "I spy," just as she was going for a walk, called out to them to be sure and shut the yard door after them. Being very much engrossed in their game, they forgot what Florence had said and left the door open. When they were tired of their game, they came round to the yard, and to their dismay, found all the chicks out, and the door wide open. They tried to get them back, but could not succeed.

At first they did not know what to do, for they thought Florence would be very angry; but presently, Evelyne said, "Oh! I know, we will go and ask Jesus not to let Florence be angry." So the three dear little ones went behind a tree and knelt down and asked Jesus not to let her be angry. After that they were quite happy, for they were sure God would hear their prayer.

And He did. By and by they saw Florence coming up the drive. Evelyne ran to meet her, and said, "Oh, Florence dear, I am so sorry; we quite forgot to shut the door and all the chickens have got out." She said it in such a sweet way that Florence could not be angry, so she said, "Never mind, dear, I will soon get them back, but another time be more careful." In the evening Freddy came and sat on Florence's knee and told her all about it. He said he loved Jesus and he was going to be his little soldier.

Dear young friends, however small our trouble may be, let us take it to Jesus, nothing is too great or too small for Him. "Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name He will give it you." C. B.

DR. SOMERVILLE IN SOUTH AFRICA. — According to latest information, Dr. Somerville has commenced work in South Africa. He and his young companion, Mr. Cumming, arrived at Durban on 24th December. On the 26th an opening conference of twelve ministers and sixty office-bearers was held. The following day regular meetings were begun. By this time it is supposed he will be in Pietermaritzburg.

MISSIONARY CONFERENCE IN INDIA.

THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

ON Friday evening, December 29, a Public Temperance Meeting was held. Surgeon-Major J. O. CONDON, of Cawnpore, in presiding, said there was far more drinking now than when he first came to India. He was nine years in the country before he saw a drunken native, but now they may be seen daily in almost every street in India. Missionaries must look out that drunkenness does not increase so fast that the Gospel cannot overtake it. A marked and encouraging advance in public sentiment had been made regarding total abstinence within a few years. At the last Decennial Conference it was not even referred to. There are about 14,000 abstainers in the Indian Army, a result owing mainly, if not altogether, to the efforts of Mr. Gelson Gregson. Referring to his personal experiences, the Chairman said, that being desirous of doing some good for the Master among European soldiers, he found he could do nothing in the temperance cause unless he became a teetotaler himself. The natives watch professing Christians closely. Medical men have opportunities of seeing the terrible effects of intemperance that even ministers do not always have. They have occasionally to witness things that harrow their souls. From personal observation and knowledge he could assert that intemperance was spreading alarmingly among women in India.

Rev. T. EVANS, Baptist Missionary Society, Monghyr, condemned the "outstill" system of excise in Bengal. The éclat which the Government licence has given to native drinking shops has drawn into them many respectable people, who otherwise would be ashamed to be seen in such dens of iniquity.

As a result of the outstill system, there has already been an increase in drunkenness of some 125 per cent., and that in about four years. Government, which now rejoices in the increase of revenue, will one day regret that the money was obtained by the social and moral degradation of millions of men.

Rev. Dr. PHILLIPS, American Baptist Mission, Midnapore, gave the gratifying intelligence that fifteen thousand or more outstills had been closed by the imperative order of the Board of Revenue. What is needed is a local option law.

Dr. CHESTER, Dindigul, said that since coming to India he had heard a great deal about "liver complaint;" in his opinion, more than half of what is thus described is attributable to brandy and soda. It is not the climate that hurts people so much as the drink. The money spent by church-going civilians in India on wines would support all the Missions in the country.

WORK AMONG MOHAMMEDANS.

Rev. E. M. WHERRY, American Presbyterian Mission, Lahore, said there were forty-one millions of Moslems in India. This is more than one-fifth of the followers of Mohammed in the whole world, so that the Empress of India rules over more of "the faithful" than does the Sultan of Turkey. To supply this class with one missionary to every 8000 of the population would require 5000 ministers, besides an army of teachers and other workers. The influence of converted Moslems has been very considerable. Many of them are possessed of learning and zeal of a high order. One serious obstacle in this work is the presence in India of an idolatrous Christianity in connection with the Roman Catholic Church. Few missionaries have devoted themselves to the careful study of Islam, and fewer still have acquired the language of their sacred books. At this moment, the number of missionaries in India who know the Arabic language can be counted on the fingers. I urge this Conference to press upon the various Home Societies the need of sending on the men to be especially devoted to work among Moslems, men who will master their languages, acquaint themselves with their theology and literature, and thus be prepared to take advantage of all that is good and true in their system.

Rev. T. P. HUGHES, Peshawar, gave an interesting description of his work among the learned Moulvies and rough villagers of the Afghan frontier. Although he laid stress upon the acquisition of Arabic and the study of the Koran as indispensable to success in a missionary, yet he said that the heart was the most direct avenue to an Afghan's heart. He told of cases where strong friendships had been formed between himself and Afghan chiefs or Moslem Moulvies. He found the Moslems susceptible to the influence of a missionary's piety. He adopts the Afghan dress when he leaves Peshawar for the villages.

Rev. T. R. WADE, C.M., Amritsar, was of opinion that there should be Christian lecturers going about the country. A great religious revolution is taking place; old creeds are shifting. The mind of India must not be left empty, we must fill it with the pure spirit of Christianity.

Rev. K. S. MACDONALD, Calcutta, said that although the greater half of Mohammedans in India were resident in Bengal, there was not a single missionary entirely devoted to their evangelisation. These Bengal Mohammedans are the despised, down-trodden, poor and illiterate part of the population. Of 9,000,000 Mussulman females in Bengal only 9000 can read and write; of boys only 360,000 can read and write. Here is certainly a neglected field.

Rev. Dr. MURRAY MITCHELL believed the result of the new departure of the Government in educating Mohammedans would be an increase of infidelity. In dealing with them do not recount Mohammed's faults, but tell of Christ's love and power, and hard hearts will melt.

The Bombay Guardian says, with respect to these gatherings: "The 460 registered members of the Decennial Conference, represented 24 different Missionary Societies, prosecuting the work of the Lord in this land. Of the 460, an imposing proportion consisted of women engaged in Zenana work. The re-union of workers from all parts of India, Ceylon and Burmah (from Japan even and from America) appeared to be greatly enjoyed by all who participated in it. Almost everybody sat out the long sessions (three hours and two and a half hours) without many signs of weariness. An excellent spirit was manifested in all the discussions."

The very interesting report of the discussion on Women's Work in the Mission Field will be given in our next, if space permit.

THE LATE MISS HABERSHON.

A FRIEND of the late Miss Habershon, of Ramsgate, who died on December 23, sends us some details with respect to this devoted worker. For more than thirty years she had the privilege of working for her Saviour. She has influenced hundreds of hearts for Him, and has been the direct means of bringing many lost ones to Jesus, who are to this day walking steadfastly with their faces heavenwards. Her work was more particularly among the upper and middle classes, but the poorest have been loved and cared for, for Christ's sake. For many years her bodily suffering had been great; but she bore pain bravely, and often remarked, "A Christian should wear a bright face at all times." The Sunday previous to her death she took her two Bible-classes as usual, and seemed unusually strong. Her appeal to the unsaved was most striking. On the following Thursday she complained of feeling tired, and was obliged to rest many times during the day. Friday she still seemed tired, but made provision for many people, cared for the aged and for the young, her mind being wonderfully clear, and all her arrangements for the comfort of others most perfect. Just after midnight God called her spirit to Himself. Miss Habershon's work at the Christian Library, Ramsgate, will not lightly end. From that effort alone, Bible-classes, prayer-meetings, evangelistic addresses, flower missions, children's meetings, improvement classes, &c., have sprung, not only in Ramsgate, but in different parts of England, and in many foreign countries.

MELBOURNE.—An effort is again being made to establish a Christian Association for the young women of this city and suburbs.

WHAT TO READ.—A correspondent desires to express gratitude for having been directed to Mr. Moody's book, "Power from on High," and wishes at the same time to commend "Prayer and its Answers," by Dr. S. I. Prime, of New York. It may be obtained from Messrs. Sampson Low & Co.

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY IN BIRMINGHAM.

THE various meetings of this Mission, which commenced January 18, are continued with increasing interest. The vast area and galleries of Bingley Hall are crowded every night. Sometimes numbers are unable to obtain admission; and more persons gather to the afternoon Bible Lectures than any other building in Birmingham would contain. Persons say they never expected to see such an assembly until they saw "the great multitude which no man can number around the throne of God and the Lamb."

Mr. Sankey is aided by an efficient choir of some hundreds, chosen, from different churches and chapels in the town, for their musical ability and their sympathy with Christian work. Their excellent singing is a marked feature of the meetings. Mr. Sankey's solos are as attractive as ever, and it is evident that his object is not to please, but to impress. The old favourites, "The Ninety and Nine," and "Jesus of Nazareth passeth by," are sometimes sung by request; but the new ones are chiefly given, of which "Christ Stilling the Tempest" appears to be the favourite. Rarely has sacred song produced such a deep and solemn impression as did the singing of "I shall be satisfied," and, "Oh! to be nothing, nothing."

Mr. Moody's discourses are characterised by all the fulness of Gospel truth, strong common sense, apt illustration, and pointed appeal, which marked his utterances eight years ago. The heart-searching power of his addresses on "Sowing and Reaping," on "The New Birth," and on "Confessing Christ," was very remarkable, and when at the close of the latter he asked all present if they would not confess Christ, and paused for a reply, the solemn silence throughout the vast and crowded hall was almost startling. It seemed as if for the moment all had ceased to breathe.

The after inquiry-meetings are largely attended, and, to my mind, nothing Mr. Moody has done has been finer than the address he gave to the anxious ones on Tuesday night. The tenderness, simplicity, and trust, with which he exhorted them to cast themselves entirely on the Saviour and confess Him, formed a model of the way in which to deal with anxious inquirers which the Christian workers present will never forget. At its close numbers of persons, old and young, male and female, rose in response to the question, "Who will confess Christ to-night?" and replied, some with tears, "I will." Truly the Spirit of God was working in the hearts and minds of all.

The days are full of labour. At 11 a.m. inquirers are met at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association. From 12.30 to 1.30 the noon prayer-meeting is held, at which Mr. Moody presides, and speaks to Christian workers. From 3 to 4 p.m. the Bible Lecture, in Bingley Hall; after which, one or more prayer-meetings. Yesterday the men remained in the Hall to pray; and the women adjourned to a Presbyterian Church near, for the same purpose. Then in the evening, in Bingley Hall, "Praise," from 7.30 to 8; evangelistic service from 8 to 9; after which, a prayer-meeting and the inquiry-meeting. J. SHILLITO.

A great Blue Ribbon demonstration was held in Bingley Hall, on Saturday evening, the use of the building being granted by Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Committee. Rousing speeches were delivered by Canon Bowlby, Rev. W. Clarkson, Mr. Ballam Burley, Mr. Farmer, and others. All referred warmly to the evangelistic services held during the past fortnight.

Meetings took place in the Hall on Sunday afternoon and evening, for women and men respectively, an overflow meeting being held in the Town Hall. At the evening meeting thousands were turned away, probably twenty thousand would have been present had there been room. Mr. Moody preached to women in the afternoon on "Christ's power to deliver." Mr. Sankey sang "Waiting and Watching" with thrilling pathos. About half of the audience remained to the after-meeting, many seeking the Lord. The evening subject "Excuses," made a great impression. The vast concourse was broken down. A large number declared their desire to accept God's invitation. These two meetings were the most remarkable in the whole mission for attendance, and power with the word. The Mission closed on Wednesday.

The Evangelists will have a farewell meeting for Scotland in Glasgow on Thursday, on their way to Belfast.

MR. R. W. DALE'S TESTIMONY.

At his ordinary service last Sunday evening, Mr. Dale delivered a sermon with special reference to the great meetings in Bingley Hall. From considerations of space we can only give a condensed report of the discourse, but we have not omitted any salient point touched upon by the preacher. He founded his remarks on Acts v. 14: "Believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women." After a brief exposition of the text in its primary application to the circumstances of the founding and rapid increase of the early Church, Mr. Dale proceeded:—

Of course no such effects can follow any religious services held in our own time. We have but to continue the work which has already been going on for eighteen centuries. Under the Apostles this Divine fire was kindled; we only transmit to the next generation the flame which we have received from the generation that has passed away. But if the meetings which are being held in Bingley Hall achieve their purpose, it will be said of them when they are over, "Believers were added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women." For more than a fortnight, on every evening of the week, except Friday and Saturday, there have been from 9000 to 11,000 people in Bingley Hall. On Saturday evening no services are held; on Friday evenings the congregation has fallen perhaps to 6000 persons. On one evening only, when the weather was very stormy, has the crowd failed to come. On Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday afternoons there have been 3000, 4000, or 5000 people there. On Sunday afternoons and evenings the hall has been thronged, and the doors have had to be shut, hundreds, if not thousands, being turned away.

GREATER THAN POLITICS.

Having referred to the fact of Birmingham being a centre of great political activity, and stated that on some very special occasions Bingley Hall had seen far larger audiences gathered to hear such famous statesmen as Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Bright, the preacher said: Except in some great political crises, such as do not occur more than twice in a century, I doubt whether any political party could, on six days in the week within a fortnight, gather such audiences as those that have been brought together by the American evangelists. What makes these immense assemblies all the more remarkable is the fact that they are not held in one town only; audiences are not therefore attracted from remote parts of the country, as is the case with some great political demonstrations. What we are witnessing here has been witnessed during the last eighteen months in Newcastle and Plymouth, and in half a score of towns between. It has been witnessed in Dublin and in Edinburgh. Large buildings, generally the largest which these great towns and cities contain, have been thronged night after night as Bingley Hall is being thronged now.

WHY DO THE PEOPLE GO?

How are we to account for all this? It would take a long time to answer that inquiry. We should have to ask why people care to listen to Mr. Moody who do not care to listen to ordinary preachers; why they care for the musical services organised by Mr. Sankey when they do not care for our ordinary forms of worship. There are several other questions we should have to ask, some of them much more difficult to answer than those I have suggested. But this, at least, is evident—people have not ceased to care about religion. Except in some great national crisis, that seemed to threaten a revolution, I think you would find it impossible to crowd Bingley Hall for a fortnight, six days in the week, to sing political songs and hear a political speaker. To sing hymns and to listen to preaching, they come in such numbers that very often the doors have to be closed and many shut out. Christian men who sometimes despair of the victory of faith should take heart from a fact like this. Religion is still a matter of deep interest to immense masses of the English people. In our work as Christian Churches we should remember that to be despondent is to ensure defeat. If the Gospel of Christ is good news to ourselves, if it gives us strength and courage and joy, filling our hearts with the splendour of an infinite hope, we should assume that others will be interested in what we have to tell them. These great meetings at Bingley Hall are a demonstration that we have a right to assume so much as that.

THE EXCITEMENT OF A SOBER KIND.

What comes of it all? Is it not mere excitement? Do you reach outsiders? Are not the majority of the people who attend such meetings those who regularly go to church or chapel? Is there anything of permanence in the results? I will try to answer these questions as clearly and definitely as I can. Before doing so Mr. Dale remarked that he thought such inquiries came strangely from some of those who propose them. In great political agitation there was no outcry against excitement. He had seen far more violent excitement in a meeting on the question of national education, or the extension of the franchise, than he had ever seen at the services in Bingley Hall. Yet such excitement was never complained of, but rather commended. In such matters they did not scruple to ally themselves with every noble and generous passion, or to kindle the imaginations of those whom they wished to influences If this was legitimate in politics why was it illegitimate in matters of religion? Besides that continued Mr. Dale, the excitement that has been aroused at Bingley Hall has been of a very quiet and sober kind. For my own part, I wish that in our ordinary services there were less of dull and sluggish indifference, that the imagination were more often fired, that a strong and deep emotion were more frequently evoked. These are great moments, when a man is lifted above the ordinary levels of life; when he sees a fair vision of righteousness he has never endeavoured to attain; when he is thrilled by some noble example of unselfishness to courage and faith; when a new and vivid sense comes to him of the infinite tenderness of the Divine love; when he discovers how transient and evanescent are the common successes of the world compared to the blessedness of a life in God; when he feels the immense contrast between these brief mortal years and the eternity by which they are surrounded.

WHO FORM THE CONGREGATIONS?

Do we reach outsiders? Are not the majority of those who attend the meetings regular church and chapel goers? No doubt in these great audiences there are always a considerable number who for years have been the centre of religious earnestness in their congregations. But there are also many who, though they are regular in attendance on public worship, are conscious that from the wearisome monotony of their lives, or through their troubles and cares, or perhaps through their increasing material prosperity, the august realities of the unseen and eternal world are less majestic, less awful, and less glorious to them than in former years. They go trusting that the foundation of their faith in God, and the splendour of their immortal hopes, and their reverence for the Divine willl may be renewed.

There are others who once had faith, but have lost it—lost it, I mean, as the vital energy in their character, as the law f their life, as the source, of their consolation, though they still attend public worship. They hope that that faith will be re-quickened; though it slumbers it is not dead, and they long to see it once more active and energetic.

There are some even of those who attend public worship, to whom the vision of God has very rarely come, and with whom it has never remained long. They have gone to Bingley Hall hoping that the revelation of the Divine righteousness and love may return and may become a real force in their lives. There are some, too, who have broken away from all association with the Christian Church, and some who have been living coarse and vicious lives—rough, violent, drunken men and women. These, too, if I may judge from what I know of the audiences of eight years ago, have been found in the crowds at Bingley Hall—swept in by the stream, or attracted by the singing, or induced to go by some neighbour, or relative, or tract distributor, or city missionary. These are the outsiders in the extreme sense of the word. There were many of them at the meetings when Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey were here before. I do not doubt that there have been many of them into the hall during the last fortnight.

THE FORMER VISIT.

In 1875 there were many belonging to all these classes of persons who felt the power of the services. Some passed from an inconstant, vacillating religious life, to a life characterised by firmness and decision. Many broke with their vices, and under the inspiration of the fear of eternal death, or of the love of God—the love in most cases rather than the fear—began to make God's will the rule of their conduct. As yet it is too early to form any trustworthy judgment of the extent to which the present services are likely to prove equally effective. The state of my health has prevented me from working in the inquiry-room during the last fortnight, as I worked eight years ago; but from what I have learned we have every reason to hope for as large a harvest as we reaped before. But are the

RESULTS LIKELY TO BE PERMANENT?

Will not the effects pass away in a few weeks or a few months? Will not some be worse rather than better? From the unvarying laws of human nature, must not this excitement disappear? I might meet these questions again by a retort. Does all the excitement or enthusiasm shown in great political movements abide, or produce permanent practical results? It is true, no doubt, that of the tens of thousands who have been more or less deeply moved by the recent services, a large proportion are likely to remain just what they were before. Some of them, having resisted the appeals of conscience, will become worse than before. But of those who have definitely submitted to the authority of God, I believe that a very large proportion are certain to stand firm. Eight years ago we received into this Church about 200 persons, who were led by the meetings in Bingley Hall to resolve to live a Christian life. Very many of them were "outsiders;" some had been drunkards, some had been profane persons, some had been rough and reckless. Many of them knew nothing of our Church customs, and I was afraid that if I delayed receiving them until I was fully assured of the depth of the change which had passed upon them they would be discouraged. But though there was less than the usual discrimination in receiving them into Church fellowship, it is a cautious and moderate estimate that 70 per cent. of them have continued to live for God.

I appeal to all serious and thoughtful persons in this congregation, to be careful how they oppose this movement by careless criticism or by cynical scorn. You may go to two or three meetings and know nothing about the real character of the work. Could you have witnessed the scenes which I witnessed eight years ago, and hope soon to witness again, when these services have been brought to a close, you would have cut out your tongue rather than utter a word in depreciation of the movement. How vividly I remember men and women who came to tell me that through the Bingley Hall services they had discovered the baseness and grossness of their lives, and had found, in the infinite love and power of God, strength to forsake their vices and to do his will. How vividly I remember the faces of wives who told me, with tears of joy, that their homes had become a paradise, that their husbands had given up drinking, and that now the shame and misery and care with which they had been living were all over. How vividly I remember the brightness which had suddenly broken on many hearts from the discovery that there was a Father in heaven to whom they were dear, that we are not all orphans, but can look forward to a home with Him. If you have discouraged your children, your brothers or sisters, your husbands, or wives, or, friends from attending these services, or if you have regarded with contempt any interest the services have created, and have thus contributed to weaken the impressions made, you cannot measure the injury you have possibly inflicted upon them.

There are many, no doubt, to whom these services are worthless. There are some people who are reached by my way of stating the great truths of the Christian Gospel and the laws of the Christian life, who are not reached by Mr. Moody's way of stating them. But then there are thousands who are reached by Mr. Moody's way of stating these truths on whom I could produce no kind of impression if they listened to me every Sunday for fifty years.

REALITY PROVED BY PERMANENCE.

The results of this work—results proved by the experience of eight years ago—are a proof that the power and grace of God are associated with them. And this is the ground on which we feel its permanence. We believe in things invisible and divine; we believe that God has not forsaken the world which He created, and to which He has revealed his infinite righteousness and love in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ. We believe that when human hearts are touched with a sense of guilt, and appeal to Him for his mercy, and are humiliated with the consciousness of weakness, He listens to their appeal with pity and compassion, such as a father has for his children. He grants the remission of sins that they ask for, and He grants the strength that they invoke. He enables them to break with the vices from which they could never have escaped without divine power; in response to their cry, He leads them out of the darkness of their old life into the eternal light.

You may perhaps find—I could find—things to object to in the intellectual forms in which eternal truths are stated. But are any of us quite sure that we have hit upon the intellectual forms which perhaps represent eternal truths? Are not all our intellectual conceptions of things divine mere approximations to the absolute realities for which they stand? The real test of the essential and substantial value of any intellectual conception of a truth is this—whether through it a man finds his way to righteousness and to God. All criticism that comes short of the central question is idle and superficial, when applied to this great subject. And I think that the experience of eight years completely satisfies me that the power and grace of God were wonderfully associated with these services in 1875. I confidently believe that the same power and the same grace are associated with them still.

SUNRISE AND NOON.

There are some, perhaps, in this congregation, who have recently, and through these services, been led to desire a larger, and freer, and purer, and diviner life; who have discovered that Christ is the way, at once to God and to that life the vision of which haunts them; who have resolved in the strength of God to receive the supernatural life that Christ gives to those who trust in Him, and to let it reveal itself in conduct and in character. Let me remind them that the exceptional charm which they have found in these services will not be found in the ordinary services of the Christian Church. It is very possible that no such clear and vivid statements of Christian truth—statements I mean that make the truth as clear and as vivid as the statements to which you have listened at these services—will be heard from my lips, or the lips of other Christian ministers to whom you may be expecting to listen. It is unquestionable that the preacher by whom you have been so deeply stirred has not only a passionate devotion to the Lord Jesus Christ and a large acquaintance with human nature, but that he has also a touch of genius in him that cannot be communicated; it must be given to be possessed at all. But let me also remind you that God will be near. If something of the passion and the romance and the excitement gathering around the beginning of your Christian life must pass away, God will grant you, if you trust Him for it, the steady illumination of his Spirit. There is a radiant splendour about the sunrise that vanishes long before the sun has reached his noontide brightness. But if the splendour has gone, the brightness has increased. So in the Christian life, though something of the early passion may soon pass away, instead of passion comes solid, manly strength, from the inspiration of the Spirit of God. If passion is good, if excitement is good, the steady strength that we need for practical common duty is better still. I ask you to believe that there are no forms of righteousness impossible to those who rely upon the love and strength of God. Amen.

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY IN DUBLIN.

THE long-expected visit of the Evangelists is ended. They have come and gone, and nearly three weeks have passed since their final words of farewell were spoken. It may be well at this time to lay before your readers some matters of interest pertaining to the work in Dublin regarding their Mission and its results. Whatever ground other cities may have laying claim to peculiarity, all are ready to acknowledge that Dublin city is very peculiar. There are in the political, social, and religious life of the city. And this fact increases rather than diminishes our wonder at the more than ordinarily successful work done through the instrumentality of our much-loved brethren. Preparation for the Mission was earnestly carried out by the Christian people, who continued in prayer for the presence and power of the Holy Spirit.

SPECIAL DISTINCTIONS

On the arrival of the Evangelists they were sensibly affected by the spiritual atmosphere into which they had come. Promptly and without hesitation they plunged at once into the work of rescue, making a vigorous effort to reach and save the masses. Mr. Moody's pathos was not the artificial semblance of the stage actor, for deep from the man's soul came words of entreaty and persuasion, tender and sweet, as he sought to win the sinner to the Saviour. And beloved Mr. Sankey sung with deep expression, every note tender and strong, full of the manly pleading of a heart that would fain call the wanderer home.

From the commencement there was evident blessing, and although their visit was brief compared with that of eight years ago, yet in the sober judgment of many the results are more widespread, and promise to bear more abundant fruit. During their visit of six weeks in 1875 undoubtedly great good was done, and the influence of that effort is now felt not only in the metropolis but in distant towns and cities.

But after this last visit of two weeks there has been an outflow of spiritual power which has set streams of life running throughout the whole island. In various forms of aggressive work through a thousand agencies the words of our brethren are being echoed far and wide. And this leads me to remark that seems the wisest. Their promise of only a week or two in a place throws responsibility on the local workers, who seek by union, prayer-meetings, and other means to raise a spirit of faith and expectation, and thus prepare the way for their coming. Besides, the harvesting of souls continues long after the Evangelists have departed, and faithful workers have been encouraged to follow up the movement for months (and why not for years?) with glad encouragement. Messrs. Moody and Sankey are now evidently impressed with the fact that they reach and touch more souls personally and through revived fellow-helpers by rapid movements through the cities than by remaining a long time in any one place.

THE PRESENT PLAN OF THE EVANGELISTS

THE CLASSES REACHED

in Dublin are worthy of mention. Peers and peasants, lords and labourers, merchants and mechanics, ladies of high social distinction and lasses from the humbler walks of life, professional men and military officers, clergymen and clerks, crowded to the great hall to listen breathlessly to the word of life, spoken and sung three times daily during the visit of the Evangelists. While to the poor the Gospel was preached, it was no small cause for gratitude that aristocratic circles were well represented at the meetings. Men of intellect and women of refinement heard of Jesus, and yielded to his royal claims, while the trembling outcast pressed through the crowd to touch the hem of his garment.

THE SPECIAL MEETINGS FOR MEN are worthy of notice. There is no record of such wonderful services in the previous history of the city. Nightly did Mr. Moody plead with these great congregations to trust in the Son of God. And it was no uncommon sight to witness the gay young member of a club kneeling side by side with some unfortunate ragged drunkard, both seeking mercy; or a veteran officer inquiring how to be saved in the same inquiry-room with an anxious private there for the same purpose.

The meetings for women likewise were scenes of peculiar and touching interest. Prayers for backslidden husbands and prodigal sons were wrung from anxious hearts, while unsaved mothers and wives, sisters and daughters, were at every meeting led to Christ.

THREE THOUSAND WOMEN, with others in the overflow meetings, melted under the story of the Cross, was a scene not soon forgotten. Instances of conversion are not wanting; such as the case of a mother who sent two daughters and a son from the distant south, all of whom returned saved; and of a grandmother, whose five grandchildren confessed the Lord Jesus.

The Christian Workers' meeting each Sunday morning gave opportunity for faithful words to Sunday-school teachers, missionaries, preachers, visiting evangelists, and other fellow-labourers in the Gospel. These revived workers went forth immediately to cast their nets into other waters, and thus the work is reproducing itself through numerous agents, and through a variety of methods. The names of the converts and inquirers have been handed to the ministers of the Churches, and these are sought out and helped to a clearer apprehension of Christ by many Christian men and women, whose hearts were stirred at the workers' meetings. Thus the work goes on in deep, hidden currents of consecrated effort, and in quiet personal dealing with the unsaved.

Arrows shot at a venture rankle in many a wounded conscience, and only time, with persistent search on the part of Christians, brings them to light.

THE OVERFLOW MEETINGS were a sight in themselves. Mr. Bliss had the chief burden of this department, seconded by Mr. Sankey's songs and prayers, as he glided through the throng, from church to church, visiting the different places within the hour where the late-comers were gathered. Mr. Bliss tarried with us for two weeks, holding meetings daily, at noon and evening. His strong and sturdy appeals, and wise management, met with success. This earnest man is now in Belfast, already reaping golden grain, where he will be soon joined by his colleagues.

THE PREPARATORY WORK

in Dublin was very thorough. The clergy were united; many of them who had looked on at a respectable distance in former times, acted on their best convictions, and threw themselves into the work; while the Episcopal brethren sat side by side with Presbyterians, Methodists, and Baptists, rejoicing together in the signs and wonders wrought before their eyes.

THE MANIFESTED UNION of all Christians was a very noticeable feature of the meetings. Christians laboured in the inquiry-room side by side, whose ecclesiastical status was not known to either; they co-operated together in a common work simply as Christians, for the glory of a common Lord, that sinners might be saved. There were no catechists to challenge godly labourers regarding denominational views on entering the inquiry-rooms. Love to Christ and a knowledge of the Gospel were the simple tests required. The services were in fact as well as in name "United Services."

THE MUSIC OF THE LEAVES,

as thousands of Bibles were opened at the announcement of some Scripture passage, acted like magic on the soul of the preacher. No doubt it helped Mr. Moody to preach, in knowing his audiences were sympathetic, intelligent, and students of the Book. Dublin has long been proverbial for an intelligent Christianity, and in the inquiry-rooms, where hundreds of workers were seen dealing with hundreds of seeking souls, an open Bible was the ground of appeal. Many of these Bibles, too, were well thumbed and well marked, for the revival of 1859-60 was a revival of Scripture-study.

THE FEARS OF MANY

that the recent outrages and assassinations would deter the people from exposing themselves to danger were set aside. Indeed, these atrocities had fallen out rather to the furtherance of the Gospel. Prominent officials were followed into the hall by their guardians and detectives, and these men whose duty brought them there also heard the way of salvation.

As we write, a letter comes to hand stating that twenty Christians from a Southern town had come in a body to attend the Dublin meetings, and on their return invited evangelists to come to their help, providing them with every facility for engaging in an aggressive mission among their people.

THE SERVICE FOR SOLDIERS was a sight long to be remembered, and in the barrack-rooms are now to be found many recruits in the Lord's army.

Such are some of the apparent results of Messrs. Moody and Sankey's visit to Dublin. The incidental good throughout Ireland who can judge?

In conclusion, then, the writer would most earnestly plead with Christians in Belfast, Leicester, Nottingham, Manchester, Leeds, and Liverpool, to begin immediately praying unitedly and personally for the prospective visit of these brethren.

TO YOUR KNEES, O CHURCH OF GOD!

if you would witness the power of the Spirit. Let ministers and people consider well the specific object of Messrs. Moody and Sankey's campaign, and by church and chapel, neighbourhood and cottage prayer-meetings, cry to the Mighty One to appear in your midst. Prayer and supplication; prayer and petition; prayer and thanksgiving; prayer that is begotten of desire and uttered in groans and sighs and tears, will win the battle. Let committees organise perfect arrangements, study the general good of the community, devise plans to reach all classes, upper, middle, and lower, but above all things give themselves to preparation of heart and mind by earnest, instant, and constant prayer.

Pray, brethren, pray, the sands are falling!
Pray, brethren, pray, God's voice is calling!
Yon turret strikes the dying chime;
We kneel upon the verge of time;
Eternity is drawing nigh. Eternity is drawing nigh.

EVANGELISTS AT WORK.

Mr. J. M. Scroggie has commenced a series of Evangelistic meetings in Falkirk.

Rev. A. B. Earle has begun a series of meetings at Tremont Temple, Boston, U.S., holding also a daily noon prayer-meeting.

Mr. Wm. Taylor, of the Evangelisation Society, has concluded a successful Gospel Mission at Burton-on-Trent.

Mr. W. D. Dunn has experienced a wonderful time of blessing at Milnagavie, N.B. He is now evangelising at Kilsyth.

Mr. Spencer Walton, of the Parochial Mission, has just returned from a very successful evangelistic visit to Pendeen, Cornwall.

Mr. Henry Lakin, of the Evangelisation Society, and Mr. Wakefield McGill, are conducting Evangelistic services at Bow, in connection with the East London Institute.

Mr. W. J. Taylor has been the human instrument in a good work of grace at East Dereham, Norfolk. Many were pricked in their hearts and confessed Christ before all the people.

Mr. Geo. Williams is preaching to large gatherings in Mr. Moody's Tabernacle, Chicago. The Lord is confirming the work by many signs following.

Messrs. Fullerton and Smith have had much blessing in connection with their Mission at Hitchin. Over 200 persons have professed faith in Christ as a result of the meetings.

Rev. E. P. Hammond has been assisting pastors in Cambridge and Boston, U.S., in the Christ-like work of saving children as well as adults. It has been a blessed sight to see some of the best and most popular pastors labouring earnestly with him.

Mr. Richard Weaver commenced his labours in Cardiff on Sunday, 14th ult. The largest building available was secured for him, and has been crowded every night. Some hundreds of souls have professed to find peace, several of them being very remarkable cases.

Mr. F. Holmes, of the Evangelisation Society, has concluded Gospel Services at Keal Cotes, Toynton, St. Peter's, and Mavis Enderby, villages in Lincolnshire. His earnest spiritual addresses have been much appreciated, and unsaved ones have been brought to the Lord Jesus.

Rev. Dr. Morris, of Luton, has conducted a very successful Mission in Barrow-on-Humber. The hand of the Lord was manifestly present. The congregations were large, and many were bowed down before the Lord. A lady also gathered large meetings of women, and was listened to with deep emotion.

Rev. J. Gelson Gregson is meeting with much encouragement in his labours among the English soldiers stationed at Cairo. Upwards of 800 have signed the total abstinence pledge. In a recent letter Mr. Gregson urges that a Scripture reader should be attached to every regiment. He purposes visiting Alexandria as soon as possible.

Rev. Thomas Cook, accredited evangelist of the Wesleyan Methodist body, has experienced much of God's presence and blessing in a Mission now concluded at Southwark Chapel. His stirring words came with power alike to believers and unbelievers. A large number have come out on the Lord's side and the Christians have been greatly revived.

Mr. Richard Hill, of Melrose, concluded, on the evening of Friday, 2nd inst., two weeks' special evangelistic services at Stranraer, N.B. The meetings were held each night in the Queen's Hall, the largest hall in the town, and were generally well attended, the interest increasing every night. Much blessing has resulted from these services, as well as from a series of Bible readings given by Mr. Hill during the day. The Lord's people have been greatly refreshed, and stirred up to renewed consecration in the Master's work, and not a few precious souls have been won to the Saviour. Several of the ministers of the town took part in the services.

Notes and Comments.

WE are asked to intimate to our readers that Sunday, February 11, is the day on which they are earnestly asked for special prayer prior to the meeting of Parliament on the 15th, that God would graciously guide both the Lords and Commons to pass the Bill which would stop the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors on Sunday, throughout England, during the whole of Sunday, except in the case of lodgers and travellers.

Lady Wilson, 130, Holland-street, Kensington, appeals for funds to establish the "Home of the Good Shepherd," a proposed refuge for friendless and outcast women, in the West of London. In addition to Lady Wilson's letter, Rev. J. W. Horsley, and Rev. G. P. Merrick, the Chaplains of H.M. Prisons at Clerkenwell and Westminster, respectively, write in support of the proposal, of which their own experience proves the need. The former says, "There ought to be a dozen such refuges in London; there are not six."

News items of interest come from several of our nearest Continental neighbours. A remarkable book has just been published in Paris, by a Republican statesman, M. Jules Simon, entitled, "Dieu, Patrie, Liberté." It is described as an able and emphatic protest against the principles of negation in religious belief that are rapidly taking hold of political extremists, and the lower orders, throughout the Republic. It is not surprising, in view of the extent to which clericalism and its political dupes have oppressed the people in the past, that the pendulum is now swinging to the opposite extreme. This book may help to restore the balance, and bring about real freedom of thought and toleration.

From Germany we have the details of an incident which indicates that the anti-Semitic furore in that country is dying out. Says the correspondent of The Times:

Herr Dr. Förster, one of the ringleaders of the agitation, shook the dust of an unappreciative country from off his feet, and with a small but devoted band of adherents left Berlin for Hamburg, or some other north-western port, there to embark for Paraguay, where they will found a new Germany, unpolluted by the presence of any of the descendants of Abraham. Dr. Förster held a high position as a public teacher; but the ferocity with which he waged war against one portion of society rendered it impossible for him to be any longer entrusted with the education of another. Not discouraged, he began to look upon himself as a sort of Teutonic Moses, appointed by Heaven to deliver his countrymen from the thraldom of their Semitic enslavers. He stumped the country as the champion of the anti-Semitic cause. He is a man, like too many of his countrymen, of one idea, and that idea is, Germany for the Germans and not for the Jews. Finding that idea unrealisable in his native country, he, with a few devoted men like himself, has sailed to a far country, there to found a new Deutschland, where synagogues shall be forbidden and Bourses unknown.

Mr. Moody is collecting a library for each of his seminaries for boys and girls at Northfield, America. Any friends who would like to contribute standard works are invited to send them to our care.

The Island of Lewis is in great distress. A terrific storm in October made the potato crop worthless. The corn, which was thrashed, was, to a large extent, destroyed, the herring fishing was almost a failure. In such a calamity it is hoped Christian sympathy will flow freely. We shall be happy to remit any sums entrusted to us.

The "Record of One Year's Service, 1882," by Archibald G. Brown, pastor of the East End Tabernacle, is horrible reading. Yet it must be multiplied by tens of thousands to represent the reality. Arctic explorers, shipwrecked sailors, entombed miners, and others, have passed through acute suffering; but the monotonous misery, the ground-down existence, the hopeless nakedness, hunger, and cold, of many thousands of our London poor, constitute a claim upon our human and Christian sympathy less sensational but permanent and near at hand.

Again our brother asks, "Can nothing be done? While fresh enterprises are constantly being launched in our growing suburbs, can we not at the same time put forth a mighty effort to win these wretched, poverty-crushed thousands? Neither churches, tabernacles, chapels, nor halls, will reach them. They must be taken house by house and room by room."

Personal aid in this direction is out of the reach of most of our readers; they can only help by prayer and gift. We are glad to see that out of the £1576 7s. 9d. which has been contributed to the Mission Fund and Orphan Home, one grateful Samaritan has contributed £305 1s. 3d. as a "thank-offering." There are other donations in gold from £10 to £1, put far the greater number of donations do not go beyond the shillings column, showing that the poor care for those poorer than themselves.

Mr. Brown speaks severely of the feverish condition of much that passes for evangelistic enterprise. He says:—

All sorts of extraordinary experiments are being tried without a question concerning the Master's warrant, and one wonders with dread what the next method to reach the masses will be.... These delirious efforts are doing terrible harm to those who put them forth. They drink of the rank sensational cup they offer to others. Even if these methods were a great success, our judgment concerning them would not be altered. . . . But are they a genuine, not apparent success? Our deliberate opinion, after living and labouring for many years among the class for which these efforts are specially designed, is that they are not. While here and there a soul is truly converted, hypocrites are bred wholesale. . . House-to-house visitation (and not simply calling at the door with tracts), personal dealing with souls, the faithful preaching of Christ without worldly addenda, these are the methods—unattractive as many may count them—which will in the long run win the battle, and in eternity win the richest results.

These strong words (and we have omitted some of the strongest) at least deserve serious consideration from all who desire acceptably to serve the Lord Christ.

Speaking at the opening of a Catholic bazaar at Darlington, Sir J. W. Pease, M.P., said religious instruction should accompany secular education; and added, that he was opposed to legislation in regard to conventual and monastic institutions. We wonder why. Our fathers in old time were wiser, and put them down. It will be to the cost and sorrow of our children that we build again the pseudo-religious prisons which our ancestors destroyed.

In the last number of Night and Day Dr. Barnardo makes an earnest appeal for special contributions to build the five additional cottages which it is desired to place on the three and a half acres of land recently acquired, adjoining the Village Home for Girls at Ilford, all the existing cottages being now full of little girls. At a meeting held on Friday last at the Town Hall, Bournemouth, under the presidency of Earl Cairns, £110 was collected towards this object.

The young men of London, as well as their employers, seek the suburbs as a place of residence, although the juniors cannot go so far afield as their elders. In Camden-town and Kentish-town are thousands of young men, among whom the indefatigable and able secretary of the Y.M.C.A. is superintending an admirable work. But the premises of the Camden-town branch are quite inadequate, away from the main thoroughfare, badly ventilated, and out of sight. A suitable building is essential, for indifference, irreligion, infidelity, immorality abound; and the spiritual energy now manifest in the Association deserves and demands fit accommodation in the centre of the district. We hope soon to find that adequate steps are being taken to supply this crying need.

Mr. C. H. Allen, Secretary of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society, 55, New Broad-street, E.C., has written to the Times that the slave trade has very much increased during the past year. He says:—

In view of the activity lately displayed by France in her efforts to procure labour for her plantations in Réunion, under what is facetiously called the engagé or apprenticeship system, it is more than ever necessary that the attention of our authorities should be turned to the renewed development of the slave trade in East African waters.

Mr. Allen also gives a letter from the Rev. C. Maples, of the Universities' Mission in Central Africa, who says that he never remembers seeing and hearing of so many slave caravans passing down to the coast in his neighbourhood as in the past year.

A correspondent objects to the term "The Lord's Irregulars," and says, "If such terms as Regular and Irregular are at all justifiable, the Regular would be those appointed by God's Holy Spirit, and the Irregular such as are only of man's ordination."

Miss Leigh calls attention to the shocking fact, brought to light by official statistics recently published, that between 1876 and 1880 there were 238 suicides under fifteen years of age. Of these 198 were boys and 40 girls. Thirty-one were between nine and twelve, the youngest was only seven. "Children," says Miss Leigh, "are the hope of any nation. No country can afford to have a page of her history stained by infant suicides."

G. H. disapproves of the articles we recently inserted on "Co-operation, not Competition." We do not, certainly, endorse every sentiment expressed or statement made therein, but we think they were useful in showing the ill effects of the divisions and sub-divisions which exist among Christians. Even if the papers should be regarded as presenting the subject from an utterly utilitarian, humanitarian, or even worldly point of view, they were well worthy of consideration.

We do not agree with our correspondent when he says:—

Unhappily these differences are not merely sentimental or trifling. It is not merely unimportant questions that separate; doctrinal differences of the most vital character exist, as vital as those that led St. Paul to utter the words in Gal. i. 8—10.

Surely no such differences exist between Christians—that is, between those who love the Lord Jesus Christ—as would justify one sect in saying of another, "Let him be accursed." We fear there are false prophets in all denominations; but we do not think that any one of the evangelical bodies could justly charge any other, as a body, with preaching another gospel, and with perverting the Gospel of Christ, in the sense in which the Apostle, in writing to the Galatians, used those words.

WEEK OF PRAYER FOR WOMEN.

By Mrs. BARBOUR, Edinburgh.

THE week which has been annually set apart as a Week of Prayer for Women begins on Sabbath, 11th February, and ends on the 18th. This message well reminds each sister to whom it shall come, that many unknown friends are remembering her before the God of Grace. Many on whose faces she can never look here below, are to welcome her above; and there, perhaps, to discover that they have helped her during this week of February, 1883.

Let us, then, who are so prayed for, each resolve with a sacred determination that the vessel of our heart shall, during this period, be filled with new blessing to the brimming over. All we can do is to seek to get emptied of whatsoever would fill up that room in our hearts which Christ is willing Himself to fill. True it is that our hands are inexpert at this work. Who ever succeeded for so much as one hour? True it is that Christ alone, and that after He has come into our heart, can expel what takes up the room He would have. Yet there is such a thing as resolving that no other bidder is to compete with Him for any portion of our heart. Nothing must keep us from God's house. If possible, nothing is to hinder a girl from regular attendance on the class to which she belongs. To pray for its members and for its teacher when she must be absent, will be a favourite occupation; during this Week of Prayer she will for this keep some moments of the busiest day.

Has anyone wandered so far from good ways, as to imagine that between her and the Good Shepherd the last bond is broken? Let her hear what another woman said. Twenty-five years since, standing on the North Bridge, Edinburgh, at midnight, "as the clock was striking the hour," she broke away at twenty, by mere force of will, from a life of intemperance. Years after, when she had crept up to a crevice in the rock of free salvation, it was remarked to her that she could not have known Sabbath from Saturday these three years when she had never been quite sober. "Oh, you know, there was always the ringing of the bells!" Peal on, then, Sabbath bells! In strange abodes they listen. Perhaps your chimes still steal in to remind even one who is drugged with drink, that all hope is not gone. Let us who are some steps up beyond where she lies, try, or send some one else down to try, to wake her.

It will be an ever-to-be-remembered week to each of us who resolves for others' sake, if not for our own, to put away the wine-glass. The Centenary year of Total Abstinence has ended lately. This has naturally given a prominence to this subject which amid so many others had too much escaped the notice of some who now see its all-importance. New facts in mass have been brought to light. Fresh statistics, fit to turn the coolest head, are bringing Britain to see that she is on the brink of a precipice. The untainted half of the people asks itself whether, for the sake of the contaminated half, it must not only remain temperate, but go a step further, so as to get into a posture where, just in time, it may save the country. Each woman and girl can sweep her own little corner clean, and seek to make her life and home a model one, bright and inviting too. Ingenuity belongs to women. See who will be the cleverest at finding out substitutes for stimulants; for there are hundreds who only wait to be shown that they can feel more comfortable at the end of an evening without wine than with it.

From the Union Workhouse of ——, there went forth lately a pauper's coffin for burial. During last year's week of prayer for women she, whose cold clay it contained, sat by me one night while the leaflet for the Women's Week of Prayer was preparing, her eye still heavy with sickness and with sorrow. The reprint of the leaflet told how that night her burden had rolled away into the Substitute's empty tomb; and the narrative regarding her was blessed by God to not a few. Her faith went unshaken through troubled days and painful nights. Her example was potent among strangers. The minister who visited her took her for a time out of the workhouse, that others might share the refreshment he got as often as he met her. In patient suffering she waited till her change came, and her Redeemer beckoned her to the place of victory.

We give these instances of women, victims once on the world's highway, who seemed to be called by Him who is the Resurrection and the Life, in answer to the prayers, Spirit-taught, of Christians on behalf of women. We desire affectionately to remind all who are teaching and caring for young women, that we shall earnestly remember them and their work in prayer. We trust that they will strongly urge upon their classes and friends that no better time could be found for them to decide for Christ than while hundreds of his people are pleading with Him to bless them and save them.

NEWS FROM THE CONGO.

AN interesting circular has recently been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Grattan Guinness, giving the latest accounts of the Mission-field. The health of the Congo missionaries is fairly maintained. Mr. Banks, who is situated at Makimvika, on the southern shore of the Congo estuary, says the people in that district have an ill repute among traders and mariners, but so far he has had no difficulty with them. He has been successful in getting them to gather round and listen while he tells them Gospel stories and parables. He has preached in all the towns and villages near his station. In several places the people have promised to burn their idols and send their children to school.

Messrs. Pettersen and Westlind are making good progress with the school work. Dr. Sims and Mr. Clarke have both been ill, but have recovered. The former writes that they are greatly encouraged by the attention paid at the services. At all the six stations of the Mission, scattered over 200 miles of country in a line from the coast towards the interior, preaching and teaching the Lord Jesus is going on daily.

The first missionary departures for 1883, in connection with this Institution, will be three young evangelists: Messrs. Milligan, Turner, and Domingo Carro. The two former go to North America, to labour among the silver miners of Colorado; the other returns to Brazil, his native country, to work among the Roman Catholic population of Monte Video. Mr. Billington hopes to return to the Congo in a few weeks; and Mr. Angus will shortly join Mr. Clarke at Ixopo, Natal. Twelve new students are about to be added to the thirty already in London. There are over forty at Cliff, Derbyshire.

LIVERPOOL.—A three-weeks' Gospel Mission, at Mr. Rowbotham's Mission Hall, Whitefield-lane, was concluded on Thursday last. The work, which was chiefly conducted by ladies, was very richly owned of God. At the after-meeting each evening numbers remained to claim pardon and cleansing through the precious Blood. In connection with the Whitefield Mission Hall, a meeting for holiness and healing has been held for some months past. The outcome of this meeting, it is thought, will be the opening of a house for Faith Healing in Liverpool shortly.

THE CROWN OF THORNS.

"Cursed is the ground for thy sake; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee."—Gen. iii.

"And when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head."—Matt. xxvii. 29.

"Instead of the briar shall come up the myrtle tree."—Isaiah lv. 13.

WITHIN a bright and cheery room,
Hung round with many pictures fair,
Hangs a glass case; and stranger guests
Perchance might wonder to see there
A Crown of Thorns:
Brought from a land where pleasant fruits
Once made a garden wondrous fair,
But that now yields, where man toils not,
Rank weeds and grass, on hill-sides bare.

Strange, with earth's wealth of brilliant flowers,
Which filled with scent the crystal air,
That when God's Son stooped down to earth,
She only gave for Him to wear
A Crown of Thorns.
Alas, 'twas but a type of all
The griefs, and cares, and heart-felt pain
That pierced the Saviour's loving heart,
And crushed his worn and fainting frame!

Ah, man's the sin that brought the curse,
That gave the rose its hidden thorn!
Christ took our sin, endured the cross,
And on his brow for us was worn
That Crown of Thorns.
But for his flock life's wilderness
Now buds and blossoms like the rose;
The myrtle for the bramble blooms,
And Gilead's balm for ever flows.

And when earth's little day is passed,
Its painful cross for aye laid down,
The once pierced hand will freely give
A bright, eternal, glorious crown—
A Crown of Life.
A Crown of Life! Yes: no dead crown
Of hard, dry thorns, inflicting pain,
But like to Aaron's blooming rod;
The Saviour's loss, our lasting gain.

A. M. C.

BIBLE-STAND, CRYSTAL PALACE.—More than a quarter of a million Gospels, in French, Dutch, and Flemish, have been posted to as many residents in 2447 towns and villages in Belgium during the last two years. Last year, 15,000 Gospels were sent from Barcelona to inhabitants in Spain, and it is hoped shortly to continue the distribution in that country. From the Bible-carriage in France twice as many books were distributed in 1882 as in 1881, and 20,000 were circulated at the Bordeaux Exhibition. Mr. Wm. Hawke, Bible-stand, Crystal Palace, S.E., has charge of this work.

ALTERING THE GOSPEL.—The Rev. Dr. Flavel Cook, Chaplain of the Lock Hospital, addressed the members of the Open Air Mission at their quarterly meeting on the 29th ult., on "Altering the Gospel." Romanists altered it by adding to it, and Rationalists by taking from it, while Protestants often unconsciously altered it by (1) representing the Father as all justice and the Son all love; (2) speaking of "Jesus only," to the exclusion of the Father; (3) making little or nothing of repentance; (4) not honouring the Holy Spirit; (5) requiring a soul to believe "Christ died for me," whereas it was "Christ died for our sins;" (6) saying "Believe you are saved, and you are saved," instead of "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." Commander Dawson, who presided, and Mr. Mark J. Stewart also spoke.

GLASGOW SEAMEN'S FRIEND SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of this society was held at the Christian Institute, Glasgow, on Monday, Jan. 29. Mr. James White, of Overtown, presided. Mr. R. H. Hunter, the Hon. Secretary, in reading the report, remarked that in no city of like importance to Glasgow is the work among seamen less supported. The Seamen's Institute continues to be largely taken advantage of by sailors of all nationalities. The captains and crews had subscribed over £104 in aid of the society's funds. The work at the Bethel has been most prosperous, and a larger hall will be built. The Society has arranged for its agents to board all ships whenever they arrive in the harbour, to make an earnest effort to keep the men from the public-house, and from those who seek their ruin.

TIMES OF REFRESHING.

FINLAND.

WE have received from a correspondent extracts of a letter lately received from a lady in Ekenäs, Finland, the place, as our readers may remember, where Mr. H. Grattan Guinness addressed meetings last summer through an interpreter:—

"Mr. Braxén, accompanied by the prayers and blessings of hundreds, left us on Jan. 18 to resume his studies at the University in Helsingfors. The Lord has owned his labours among us in a wonderful manner during the six weeks we have had him among us. From island to island he carried the glad tidings sent for by hungering and thirsting souls; everywhere people flocked in numbers, some coming long distances to be present at these Gospel meetings. Some six or seven large centres, besides smaller ones, were visited by him, but many more invitations to come and preach had to be declined for want of time.

"Here numbers had to go away, in tears, because they could not get in. We hired the Gymnasium for Sunday and Wednesday evenings, when the people would stay from six to ten p.m.; even then they left reluctantly. At the after-meetings especially, Mr. Braxén was overwhelmed with inquiries from anxious ones. I will relate one touching incident, as it brought tears to many an eye. Mr. Falck knelt in the midst of a family of fifteen souls—all saved now—from the aged grandfather down to the youngest grandchild, and all bending together before the Lord, praying for his blessing. My sister, who had not been present upon any similar occasion, burst into tears, and came to me and said, 'Do let us kneel too with them, for we are sinners like them.'

"We had our last great meeting on the 17th inst., in the Gymnasium, which on this occasion had to accommodate some 500 or 600 persons; some 200 or 300 had to stand all through. Later on we had a believers' meeting in a private house, when about fifty met together for praise and prayer. It was close upon one o'clock in the morning before we separated. In many other houses we have had Bible-readings, and our brother has laboured indefatigably.

"Still, you can think all this has not been without great opposition from the world. The local weekly also, which is now managed by an all but avowed atheist, contains almost every week violent articles, full of the grossest misrepresentations and untruths. Should not our warmest prayers be for these wretched ones who walk in open enmity to the cross of Christ?"

Our correspondent begs his fellow Christians to join him in continued earnest prayer for Finland.

LOWER INDIA.

A correspondent sends us extracts from the recent letters of Rev. A. F. Painter, C.M.S., working among the hill Arrians of Travancore; and asks our readers to render thanks for such a manifested blessing vouchsafed, and pray for its continuance:—

"At first I thought my journey this time would be in vain. Mohammedans, heathen, and Roman Catholics all combined against us. On entering the village of Wellami, I was informed that the people had decided to send a message to me not to come, for they feared the Rajah, and did not wish to join or hear. Exposure to the sun and exhaustion brought on fever, and I lay all night in one of their huts, suffering great pain, and wondering how I could get on to one of our stations—still twenty-two miles of rough climbing. The fever, thank God, gave way before strong doses of quinine, and here God graciously gave me the first convert. He came with me to Monkomba, calling on the villages we passed, and Arrian houses, to come and hear of Christ. 'I have determined to serve Him,' he declared boldly before them all."

Blessing followed the declaration of the Gospel there. On the following Thursday, sixty-nine leading men, besides women and children, met the missionary in council. "We commenced with prayer, offered by Samuel (the native helper), asking God to guide and teach. I then said a few words, reminding them what a solemn decision they had to make. Would they serve the true God, or idols and evil spirits? On their decision probably lay the future of their children as well as themselves. None of them believed that evil spirits had made the world; but one message we had brought them was that 'God is love.' I repeated the story of Christ's love, to which they listened most intently.

"Then came the discussion. The greater part declared their intention to become Christians and serve God only. A devil priest who was present stood out and said, 'If we determine that it is right to serve God and not devils, then we ought to serve Him from to-day.' The effect was marvellous; some who had been undecided and had said, though they considered the message good, they were not sent to renounce heathenism, but only to hear and carry back the news to their village, at once resolved to do the same, and an enthusiastic feeling seemed to take possession of all. Five only stood aloof. One by one they came and stooped down while I removed the tuft of hair, or kudami (sign of heathenism) from them."

Some days were spent with them; the message of God's love in Christ was reiterated with simple instruction on the nature and necessity of prayer and earnest exhortations to stand firm under persecution. They had been in the habit of offering fowls and rice at the annual festival of the demon goddess. "What will you do now?" was asked. They replied, they did not see how they could continue it any longer, because now they served God.

At Erumapara, where there is a Mission house and an earnest body of Christians, the heathen were called together who were living in the neighbourhood and spoken to earnestly on the danger of neglecting so great salvation. "God graciously gave them a will, and we had the great privilege of receiving twenty-one, chiefly men, and of seeing them with God's people in the house of prayer. The congregation has outgrown the building there. I spoke to them on the second coming of Christ. They answered my questions very well and manifested much interest."

A later letter still reports more and more coming out from heathenism. Pray that they may be led to Christ as their Saviour and may be kept in his mighty keeping. S. E. N.

DR. ZIEMANN IN GERMANY.

A remarkable wave of spiritual blessing seems to be rising in Westphalia, where Dr. Ziemann has for some time been preaching the Gospel to his countrymen. A Westphalian paper of Jan. 20 says: "A remarkable event in the religious life of our province is the meetings held by Dr. Ziemann from England. The largest hall, holding 2500 people, has been filled. The attraction which Dr. Ziemann's exercises have is not caused by any unusual ability in oratory, but from the depth of his inner life, and the fact that the people are reminded through an earthly physician of the Great Physician. If those who listen to the Doctor's words wish to reap real blessing they will have to take in hand again the old Bible, and to use it as their fathers did."

Mr. Seagram, who has shown a lively interest in Dr. Ziemann's German work from its commencement, lately joined the evangelist; letters received from him tell the same blessed tale of revival. In one communication he remarks: "I have never seen audiences listen with such attention as I see them here; the people come miles to attend the meetings. What money is given to the support of this work will produce immediate fruit in the salvation of souls." Some extracts from letters by Dr. Ziemann himself will convey an idea of the wonderful work of grace in progress. Writing from Hagen, Jan. 25, he says:

"God is moving the people in this country as only He can do it. Wonders are really happening! Think of a clergyman offering me his church, and allowing me to go into the pulpit. This is a great step in Germany. The meetings are crowded. About 1000 were present last night. Amongst them we heard were some fourteen clergymen, who came from the country, and the high officials and judges of the town. The clergyman here told us yesterday that the wife of the President of the county put off a grand party yesterday on account of the Gospel meetings. The Public Prosecutor sent notices to his officials about the meetings, which he himself attended. He also sent me a message to-day to speak to the prisoners, which I hope to do on Saturday."

This afternoon I tried the first after-meeting; having felt during the preaching that the Holy Spirit was moving the people. About thirty or forty remained, and it was a very solemn time. I mention these facts to show you how glorious the work is. Invitations come in daily from different places.

The first evening Mr. Seagram arrived here he spoke to a gentleman after the meeting, asking him about his soul. Finding him anxious, he brought him to the hotel to have a talk with him. I recognised in the anxious inquirer a young clergyman of the town. Mr. Seagram was able to help him.

Monday Morning, Jan. 1.—Yesterday afternoon the church was crowded; pastors had to sit on the steps of the pulpit. About 2000 crowded in, standing head to head; multitudes had to be turned away. People were weeping while I read the 53rd of Isaiah. We had a solemn time. I had the courage to give out an after-meeting in the church; about 200 remained. Mr. Seagram was busy until about seven o'clock. Amongst the seeking souls were leading people of the town. Many went away joyful. Mr. Seagram is such a help; he understands how to bring the people out. Invitations come in daily.

YOUNG WORKWOMEN IN THE CITY.

WILL the kind friends in the country receive my grateful thanks for the donations sent, and also for the many little useful gifts forwarded for our Christmas-tree.

On Thursday last Mr. and Mrs. Hodder kindly invited about 400 of the young women who attend our dinner-hour meeting to partake of a good tea. 250 responded to the invitation, most of them total abstainers. After tea, Mr. Burson gave a most interesting and profitable address in the lecture-hall of the Y.M.C.A. A large number remained for an after-meeting, which continued for an hour, there being no desire to leave. The last year's report, which will be shortly ready, shows an increased amount of blessing and prosperity. The three Bible-women took last year over £180 for Bibles, Testaments, and good books, in small subscriptions from the young women, besides having had opportunities of carrying the Gospel to many a weary heart.

There are still openings for any ladies who are free to give an hour once a week to these glorious opportunities for winning the young into the "paths of pleasantness and peace." Communications should be addressed to Mrs. Fisher, The Welcome, Cross-key-square, Little Britain, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

WOOLWICH Y.W.C.A.—On Thursday evening, January 18, about 250 young women and lady friends were present at a tea in the Duke of Connaught Coffee Tavern, Woolwich. Mrs. Stumbles, the originator of this association, said it was commenced in April, last year, with a Bible-class. A meeting was afterwards started on Tuesday evenings for the improvement of girls in reading, writing, plain and fancy needlework. Now that the shops are closed on Thursday afternoons a class of a similar nature will be commenced. Several ladies gave short addresses.

"BOOK BAG MISSION TO SEAMEN," SCARBOROUGH.—Bags of useful books are placed on board our fishing-boats, and changed when necessary. We have already fifty bags in use, which are highly valued by the fishermen. Mrs. John Rowntree has kindly promised to supply fifty more bags. Towards furnishing these we have received some valuable books, but we are still in need of more. Parcels may be sent to Mr. J. Rowntree, 47, Newborough-street, Scarborough. Kind friends who have leisure would help us by covering the books they send with strong brown paper.

H. Topham, Town Missionary,
35, Trafalgar-street East, Scarborough.

MR. MacALL AND HIS MISSION.

OUR Parisian friend, Rev. T. Baron Hart, kindly sends a translation of Mr. MacAll's recent "Manifesto" to his helpers in the work of evangelising among the working classes of France. In doing so, Mr. Hart remarks that the letter is an outcome of the recent visit of Messrs. Moody and Sankey to Paris—one more proof of the stability and permanency of the work in which these evangelists are engaged. We regret we have not space for more than an outline of this IMPORTANT DOCUMENT.

"Whilst the visit of Mr. Moody to Paris is still present to our memory, I have thought that it might be good for us to ponder, and to inquire if there is not something for us to learn, as we study the methods employed by a man so abundantly blessed in addressing his hearers. You doubtless remarked, although his language was so simple and familiar, and his manner of procedure was in many respects little in harmony with the spirit and customs of this country, that Mr. Moody, interpreted by M. Theodore Monod, enchained the attention of the crowds that filled the vast space of the Oratoire, and that each one, so to speak, hung upon his lips. It is certain that in the case of a great majority of his hearers mere curiosity and the spirit of criticism quickly vanished under the influence of his earnest appeals directed right to the heart. It is certain that a large proportion of those who listened to his words had not yet personally accepted the Gospel. All things considered, we may be very sure that (with some changes adapted to the varying degrees of preparation, culture, &c., which characterise the attendants at our Mission halls) the same kind of address which captivated the attention of those great assemblies, and was accompanied by the manifested presence of the Divine Spirit, would be adapted in its essential characteristics for our own evangelistic meetings.

HOW TO PREACH.

"Let no one imagine that I am recommending a servile imitation of Mr. Moody, or of any other person. At the same time, all my observations during the recent services have confirmed and intensified a conviction towards which I have been long tending—that there is a certain method of presenting divine truth, and of endeavouring to bring it home to the heart, which, if it were employed more frequently than it is, would contribute mightily, under the influence of the Holy Spirit, to secure immediate and permanent results. Is it not true that an evangelist, instead of merely setting forth the Gospel for the approval and admiration of his hearers, should ever keep in view as his great aim the leading them individually to accept it? In order to attain this result, how shall we proceed? I would suggest, first of all, that the Gospel should be presented as it is expressed in the character and in the life of man. Thus, instead of a discourse in the main theological, on the sacrifice of Christ, let us seek to set forth the effects produced on our inmost nature when we once understand experimentally the reconciling work of the Saviour. This may be done sometimes by an authentic narrative; sometimes by an imaginary case, or by a striking illustration. In the same manner all subjects connected with sin and its consequences, or with affliction and death, instead of being presented as cold abstractions, are capable of being treated as in intimate relation with the experiences and hopes of the hearers.

THE LOVE AND TENDERNESS OF GOD.

"A thought analogous to this has long been impressed on my mind. Is it true that the French evangelists for the most part dwell far less than the English and Americans do on subjects connected with the infinite love and ineffable tenderness of God, which form the very essence of the Gospel? From this we may draw as from a treasure always new. This divine love is infinitely more mighty to gain the heart, hitherto careless and estranged from God, than all intellectual arguments or judicial threatenings can be. It is indeed true that we must with fidelity set forth the character of sin, its poisoned fruits, and its inevitable condemnation, &c. But I am profoundly convinced that the royal road which we must pursue to bring men to recognise all this is to be found in the exhibition of the sufferings which Christ has undergone, in order to expiate and to take away sin.

"Touching incidents drawn from authentic narratives will help us much. Show your hearers, for example, one, in circumstances like their own, strengthened and comforted amidst most crushing trials, or in the hour of death finding his refuge in the infinite compassion of Him in whom he has trusted as his Saviour. I have observed, again and again, that a speaker has arrested by such a style of address the profound attention of hearers who at first appeared utterly careless or even inclined to ridicule.

CHRISTIAN EVIDENCES.

Observe, that all these considerations apply especially to Evangelistic meetings properly so-called. I by no means forget the urgent need there is for meetings of another kind. At the present crisis, especially, when the apostles of a gross materialism are so zealous, the evidences of Christianity must be proclaimed, whilst we directly grapple with atheism and set forth the convincing proofs that demonstrate Divine revelation. There are few indeed amongst our assemblies who are not assailed by false reasonings and impious boasts. We are called on, therefore, to endeavour thoroughly to arm our hearers against all attacks of this kind. It may be well also, on certain occasions, to exhibit in our meetings the relations between science and religion, that we may prove to intelligent men who hear us, that scientific discoveries are not, as is so presumptuously asserted, contradictory to the declarations of the Bible. Similarly, the frightful evils which in our days threaten all moral order, and assail the very foundations of human society, demand from us public and faithful exposure.

At the same time, it would be well to consider the limits which must be assigned to this class of subjects. Let me say frankly, I have often longed that addresses of this order, however skilful and full of truth they have been, had been exchanged for a simple and glowing exhibition of the love of Jesus Christ.

NOT GLOOMY.—NOT TOO LONG.

We cannot too scrupulously avoid anything that might have the appearance of scolding our hearers. When they are addressed in a gloomy, melancholy strain, and told, for example, that their very attendance at our meetings is but bringing heavier condemnation on their own heads, of what service can it be? In listening to such addresses, I have felt unspeakable pain; for the sad persuasion has been forced on me, that they are calculated only to produce the very evils we deplore. Similarly I would suppress all allusion before outsiders to the want of faith that exists in our days. Let us avoid suggesting that the Gospel is losing ground; that its adherents are but few in number. Of what service, I ask again, can this be? Is it to be believed that a single person will be attracted to the Saviour through such representations?

My last remark refers to the length of the addresses. Mr. Moody may well serve as a model in this respect. Never was there with him any hesitation in commencing—never did he try the patience of his audience in turning over the leaves of the Bible in search of his text—never did he repeat himself—never did he lead one to ask, "When will he have done?"—never did he weaken his thought by useless phrases or by grandly rounded periods which mean nothing. In our meetings all should be prompt, lively, direct. We have ever to remember that the moments are precious, and we should act as men entrusted with a solemn and sublime mission.

INFLUENCE OF SONG.

In our Bible-readings it may be frequently desirable to give variety to the exercise, by occasional questions addressed to the audience. Should a speaker at any time find himself alone in the conduct of a meeting, I would advise him always to divide his address by the singing of a hymn between the parts. The singing of the hymns not only gives pleasure to the hearers, and induces them to return to the meetings, but it also exerts on the heart an influence for good that cannot well be over-estimated. The experience of ten years and a half is my warrant for affirming that when one or another of our speakers falls into the evil habit of making his addresses too long, he inevitably ceases to be either liked or approved by his hearers. Let us ever be on our guard not to weary our people. Far better would it be that they should leave with the regret that we had not spoken longer.

May the love of our Divine Master fill with fresh zeal all our hearts, and those of all our brethren who by our side are pursuing the same holy enterprise. Armed by the Divine Spirit, let us all go forth to work as men resolved not to relax their efforts until this great city and this dear country shall be evangelised from one end to the other.—Your affectionate colleague in Jesus Christ, R. W. McAll.

DISTRESS IN SOUTH WALES.

DEAR SIR,—Within the past few days I have verified reports that had reached me of severe want in Carmarthenshire and Glamorganshire, through the closing, rather more than two months since, of several important tin-plate works, and also of some ironworks and collieries. The facts are even sadder than I had expected to find, almost the entire population of Briton Ferry, Llangennech, and Penclawdd having been absolutely dependent for their support upon the works now idle. Some thousands have wanted bread, and are at the present time kept from sheer destitution only by the very inadequate assistance that a Relief Committee formed at Llanelly (where also there are works now idle) can dole out weekly, from donations received in answer to their urgent appeals.

In Briton Ferry, which I have twice visited, I was assured yesterday that the privation and suffering in many families approached starvation point, in spite of Lord Jersey's generous aid; and the like is sadly true in respect of the other places I have named. At the time I write, there are, I should say, fully 6000 people, men, women, and children, affected by this calamitous state of things; probably 2800 bread-winners are idle, with little hope of obtaining any employment, all the similar works in the neighbourhood being full handed.

There is one feature in this distress I would specially emphasise—that there is in it no element of conflict as in past similar times of trial, when strikes and locks-out have been painfully prominent. The men whose families are now in want, are idle simply because the works which employed their labour are closed through commercial failure and litigation. In Llangennech the situation is aggravated through a previous suspension of the tin-plate works, since which time the people have had a hard pull of it to wipe off old debts at "the shop," where of course, except in very few cases, credit is no longer obtainable.

While I could lay out, to the fullest interest of gratitude, a large sum of money, a very few pounds will lighten not a few sad hearts. I have already commenced the issue of relief notes, to meet, so far as my private means will permit, some specially necessitous cases; and ever so little help will have my warmest thanks. I would ask for the prayers of Christian friends, no less earnestly than for their help.—Yours very sincerely,

SAMUEL GILLESPIE PROUT.

Portland-place, Mumbles, Swansea, Feb. 2.

THE FREE ITALIAN CHURCH devotes a large portion of its money and energy to the maintenance of Bible-schools. Notwithstanding that the difficulty of finding devoted teachers is as great as securing zealous Evangelists, the progress is very gratifying. Many instances have occurred of conversion among the young, and the good to the parents through the children has often been marked.

THE CULTIVATION OF A MISSIONARY SPIRIT.

Address by Rev. F. CROZIER,

AT LAMBETH CHAPEL SCHOOLROOM, JAN. 13.

I THINK, perhaps, in the few minutes that I may occupy your time, I cannot do better than ask your attention to one particular matter as it affects missionaries who go abroad, as it affects contributors, collectors, and persons who pray and in various ways manifest their interest in Missions all over the world. The theme on which I shall endeavour briefly to dwell is the cultivation of the true missionary spirit.

I have read a book recently which I have no doubt many here have also read. Literature, and good literature, let us be thankful, is now cheap. The book to which I refer is a sixpenny edition of "A Voyage in the Sunbeam," by Lady Brassey. There is in that work a beautiful story illustrating the true spirit that animates every true missionary, whether giving himself to the service, or giving of his substance, or giving his prayer earnestly to the Lord for the spread of the Gospel of Christ. The Sandwich Islands were only discovered some 100 years ago. Within twenty years the Sandwich Islands became Christian. That terrible disease, of which we read in the Word of God, leprosy, prevails amongst the inhabitants, and so for years there has been an island set apart which is called "Lepers' Island." There was a man in the Sandwich Islands who was neither a Methodist nor a Protestant. He was a French priest, but he was so fired in his soul with compassion for these poor, wretched people on Leper Island, that, animated by love to his Saviour, and love of the souls of these poor lepers, and for the sake of Jesus, he determined to exile himself for their spiritual good, for no one entering Leper Island is ever permitted to leave it. Somehow, Lady Brassey got information, when the Sunbeam was in the neighbourhood of Leper Island, that though he had laboured there for years for the moral and spiritual good of the lepers, he was still living, and had never been touched by the disease of leprosy.

That is the spirit we need to cultivate—the spirit of intense love. Whether you go abroad to labour as missionaries, or whether you hold up the missionaries' hands by prayer, or whether you bestow your gifts according to your ability, if there is the right spirit cultivated all round, missionary work will be advanced in every part of the world. In our Methodist literature there is an incident which may be used illustrating this point, which by some people has, perhaps, been lost sight of. Mrs. Wesley—I mean the mother of the Wesleys—was living, in her widowhood, in the little town of Gainsborough, in Lincolnshire, with her daughter, who kept a school; and she was wholly dependent upon her son John for her subsistence, and the little help that Charles could give. Her sons were just rising into fame then in the great revival that they were the instruments in the hands of God of creating. A trial of her faith was made in this way: General Oglethorpe came home after he had founded the colony of Georgia, and wished to have two clergymen to go there. His attention was directed to the two Wesleys. John feared that his mother, in the circumstances, could not possibly give her consent; but he was fired with a holy ambition to go and preach the Gospel, not only to the colonists, but, if possible, to the American Indians. He said to General Oglethorpe: "If our mother will consent, we shall be prepared to go." The matter was laid before Susannah Wesley, and here follows a beautiful illustration of true heroism. Such was her love to her Saviour, and such was her love to the souls of mankind, that she uttered these noble words: "If I had twenty sons to give, I would gladly give them up for such a noble work, if I never saw them more."

Friends, if there is only in our hearts this passionateness of love to mankind, and this passionateness of love to Christ, we will never complain about collections for Missions. We will never begrudge such subscriptions as we are able to bestow. We shall never cease our prayers at the family altar, and in the closet, as well as in the house of God. The fervent prayer will be going up to heaven for the Lord to bless his work carried on by all the varied denominations of the Church in every part of the world.

The Chairman (Rev. J. McKenny), in giving out a hymn, made a remark which illustrates the theme that I am now trying to touch upon. He said he was anxious that people having means should themselves offer to go out to preach the Gospel among the heathen without being dependent upon the Church for their maintenance. Well, some two months ago there was a young man in the college at Headingley, near Leeds, who was possessed of a small farm. He had two sisters, and there was one still dearer, whom he intended to make his wife. He got his heart fired with missionary enthusiasm, and such a desire to be an instrument in the hands of God for the spiritual good of men, and to bring the world to Christ, that he laid his case before our Missionary Committee. He said, "I am prepared to sell this farm, and on the money that is secured by its sale I am prepared to go out to China if you will send me as your agent, and my sisters will go with me and the young lady to whom I am engaged, she also will go with us, so that four of us will go as agents to that interesting part of the world to work for Christ. For seven years we will not cost your Society a fraction if your Society will send us." The Society through its Committee very gladly accepted this combined offer. I do not know as to tidings of their having reached China, but the last account was that they were on their way—four agents to work for Christ in that land. Let me beg of you, young men and young ladies, and you, dear fathers and mothers, to cultivate the essential spirit for the carrying on of the work of God, both at home and abroad—passionate love to souls and passionate love to the Saviour of souls.

DR. LANDELS ON SANCTIFICATION.

WAS Paul entirely sanctified? "I keep my body under," said he, "lest," &c. What! after all the privation, whipping, shipwreck, and scorn, that body so little studied, or its comfort provided for! Thou weather-beaten man, dost thou need to keep thy body under? Why this constant watchfulness, when some with a mean trifle of thy sacrifices have "done with the flesh"? Paul had, however, a better estimate of what was becoming a servant of Christ. The testimony borne by oneself to one's own sanctification is of very little value. The healthy bodily organ will perform its function without calling attention to itself; and medical science is now agreed that the less people think about themselves, their weakness or infirmity, the better for their physical health. So in mind, the greatest thinkers are the freest from self-consciousness. And, spiritually, justication and sanctification are made contingent on the same attitude—beholding Christ. Then those most advanced in sanctification will be little given to speak about their attainment. Moses wist not that his face shone when he came down from the mount.

Others are contemplating a standard which is far above them, and their testimony is, "Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect." It is possible that the perfectionist has too low a standard of sanctification. It is not a mere negation—a freedom from intentional sin. No man deserves the name of Christian who intentionally sins. Our sin is that we are not like Him. Likeness is dependent on knowledge. We have all much yet to learn; our knowledge of Christ is short of what He really is. Self-surrender is but the clearing away of the rubbish on which the foundations of perfect sanctification can be laid. If the standard be lowered there is less likelihood of succeeding to perfection. Even in heaven their sanctification is not the subject of the contemplation of the redeemed.—Freeman.

THE WORK OF GOD IN BERLIN.

THE following account of Mr. Von Schluembach's work in Berlin is from the pen of Mrs. Palmer Davies, whose husband spent many years in that city, in connection with the Bible Society, promoting the circulation of the Scriptures. Mrs. Davies continues a most interesting work amongst cabmen and postmen, and being a German, and mixed up with the religious life of the city, she understands thoroughly the value of this movement:—

I have been wishing for some time to give you my personal impressions of Herr Von Schluembach's work, and some idea of how it is looked upon here in religious and influential circles. Let me begin by saying that it is difficult for a stranger to Berlin life to form a just idea of how matters stand. One must have studied the features of its religious life.

I much regret that some English friends who have made passing visits to Berlin but who had no knowledge of the native tongue and no access to the centres of religious life, have given in the English papers not very correct impressions of the spiritual condition of the city. These statements are reproduced here, and they do not help to further the good relations I so intensely wish for. This has tended to make the pastors and others somewhat suspicious of foreign influences, and when Mr. Von Schluembach came amongst us he had this with many other difficulties to contend against; but, through God's grace, he is making his way, or rather, doing the Lord's work, with evident and steadily increasing success.

He began in the northern end of Berlin about three months ago, amongst very poor people, in very dingy rooms, in inaccessible places, and had for his audiences men of the roughest of the rough, with all the marks of drink upon their faces, and a few poor women insufficiently clad and shivering with cold, with an occasional pastor, and sometimes a town missionary, taking part in the services.

A FEW WEEKS LATER WHAT A CHANGE!

The work has begun to tell upon the people, and now a well-heated and brightly lighted large hall, capable of holding about 1,000, commonly used for dancing and drinking purposes, is placed at his disposal, and night after night it is filled to the remotest corner. The audience joins most heartily in the singing, and on some occasions they are asked to read the Scriptures aloud from their Bibles, which Mr. Von Schluembach urges them to bring to the meetings.

Many changes of heart might be mentioned; heaps of letters testify to this, but it is not our German way to speak of such things publicly.

A place of very bad repute has been bought, and is being altered into a Christian meeting-house for all kinds of religious work. A German gentleman of rank gave 10,000 marks towards this, and it is hoped the necessary further donations will follow. This is a direct fruit of Herr Von Schluembach's work in that destitute part of the city.

He has now moved on to another district, where he has been invited by a pastor, and the crowds continue to come to his meetings. He often preaches three times in one day, and his house is beset with inquirers, desiring to be spoken to individually. Is it not wonderful how the work is progressing and deepening in so short a time!

I do not regret that it began so humbly, and I am particularly grateful that all is being done with the approval and co-operation of such pastors as are looked upon with implicit confidence.

To God be all the glory.

CAUTION.—Dr. Barnardo is anxious to warn people against giving money to, or buying articles from, a person in the garb of a minister, who has been calling upon householders all over London soliciting aid professedly on behalf of the Homes. He generally offers books and papers for sale, and betrays a general knowledge of the affairs of the institution. If given in custody by any person applied to, Dr. Barnardo will appear in support of the charge.

THE PUBLIC MORALITY MEETINGS.

MASS MEETING OF MEN.

ON the evening of the first day of the Christian Convention, reported in THE CHRISTIAN of last week, two large meetings were held simultaneously in East London for men and women respectively. The East London Tabernacle, kindly lent by Pastor Archibald G. Brown, was the scene of the men's meeting, and nearly two thousand were gathered there, while about the same number of women assembled in the Great Assembly-hall, Mile End, generously placed at the disposal of the Convention by Mr. F. N. Charrington.

The meeting for men was presided over by Mr. T. A. DENNY, who said: The object of the laws they had met to consider was to make sin safer for sinners by mitigating its penalties. Their effect was to dull the conscience by the public recognition of a violation of the law of God, and the social laws which should govern society. The machinery of this legislation blotted out the image of God from the women with whom it dealt. Christianity has done more to elevate women than all else beside, and that which would now lower her is not of Christ, but of the devil. If one member suffers, all suffer; you cannot injure woman without injuring the race; and Governments and Parliaments notwithstanding, GOD reigns, and He will have to be reckoned with in the matter. He will not be left out of the account.

The first resolution before the meeting dealt with the iniquity of the special legislation regulating vice, on the ground that it tended to legalise that which God had pronounced unlawful, and exerted a pernicious influence on family life and national morality. In speaking to this resolution, the Rev. J. P. GLEDSTONE said that wherever these laws were accurately known by honest and pure-minded men they were universally condemned, and his audience listened attentively while he explained their peculiar nature and perilous working, much of which was evidently new to many present. He illustrated the "voluntary" nature of the submission which the victims of these laws are induced to sign, by asking how far the attendance of his hearers that evening would have been "voluntary" if they had been threatened with a summons before a magistrate if they failed to put in an appearance?

Mr. H. J. WILSON, J.P., of Sheffield, deplored the fact that these laws make fallen women tenfold more the children of hell than they were before; he dealt with the argument that these laws were too disagreeable to be discussed, by saying that what poor women have to suffer we must not shrink from hearing of.

Rev. J. JENKYN BROWN, President of the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Ireland, spoke from the purely Christian aspect of the opposition to the laws, and asked his hearers to join in first seeking God's blessing, and then doing their duty as men and as citizens to oppose this unrighteous legislation. Christ's gospel for the fallen is, "Go and sin no more." Very few could realise the influence of a bad law, the silent moral sapping of national life. A bad example or a bad lesson revolts one, but a law is like the air we breathe, always operating, and while we are hardly conscious of its power and influence, it deadens the conscience and betrays the manliness of the nation.

Pastor APPIA, of Paris, spoke earnestly and beautifully of the holiness of family life, and of the way it is desecrated in France on account of the impure system they were met to denounce.

Mr. BENJAMIN SCOTT, the City Chamberlain, said there was not a single aspect in which Englishmen and Christians could look at this matter which did not show the laws to be disgraceful to England and derogatory to Christians. He strongly condemned them on account of their hypocrisy. Their title was an hypocrisy and intended to deceive.

Alderman REES, from Dover, is well known as a magistrate who has taken the part of many poor women brought under the operation of these; which he warmly maintained repeal the commandments of God, and hold forth an encouragement to men to sin.

The meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to the Chairman, moved by Mr. R. C. Morgan, and seconded by Pastor Archibald G. Brown. The latter hoped that the facts they had heard would be burnt into the hearts of all present as with letters of fire. At the request of the Chairman, all present held up their hands in token of their intention to work earnestly against these bad laws. Throughout the whole evening the enthusiasm had been intense, and the meeting did not separate till a late hour.

THE MEETING OF WOMEN

was equally enthusiastic. Mrs. Hind Smith presided. Mrs. Steward, of Ongar, explained the subject, and the need that existed of spreading knowledge about it, on account of its threatened extension to London.

Mrs. J. H. RICHARDSON, of Plymouth, from personal knowledge, spoke of a young girl falsely accused by a profligate lover, forced into hospital, and ruined for life under the machinery of this legislation. Mrs. CHANT, as a mother, with the interests of her children at stake, desired to raise a protest against this immorality. Mrs. HENRY RICHARDSON, of York, pointed out the imminent danger which here threatened working women, and how this danger had appalled the northern women, inspiring them with courage to come publicly forward to do battle with this evil.

Mrs. JOSEPHINE E. BUTLER aroused the enthusiasm of the audience by one of her characteristic speeches. Miss Wigham, Mrs. Hechford, and Miss Craigen also addressed the meeting. The large audience remained to the close deeply interested, and a considerable demand was made for petition sheets on which to record their individual protest against the evil which had been so plainly set forth by the earnest women who conducted the proceedings.

MEETING IN EXETER HALL.

In the unavoidable absence of Sir Thomas Chambers, the large meeting in Exeter Hall on Thursday evening was presided over by Mr. BENJAMIN SCOTT, the City Chamberlain. His remarks were an amplification of the recent Memorial to the Government by the Working Men's League, in which they stated their special objections to the Acts. They objected, in the first place, because the Acts were a most flagrant example of class legislation; women are subjected to pains and penalties from which men are entirely free. That, said the Chamberlain, is class legislation of the worst and most disgraceful kind. Very many more men than women die of the specific diseases against which the Acts are ostensibly directed; yet their operation is confined to the latter. This flagrant injustice is intensified by their exclusive application to women in the humbler ranks of life. If it were attempted to apply them impartially to female sinners in high social positions, these Acts would not be worth many days' purchase. Further, while the pretension is that the Acts aim at the cure of a particular form of disease, they make no provision whatever for the healing of those who contract this disease ignorantly and innocently. In order to claim the benefits of this legislation, whatever they are, a woman must submit to be placed on the public register of vice. Thousands of women, if they should unhappily become the victims of another's misdeeds, would rather die than agree to such an infamous condition. The little children who suffer innocently because of the sins of a parent cannot receive any curative help from the hospital machinery set in motion by the Acts. Yet so great is the popular ignorance with respect to the real provisions of this legislation that the Town Council of Exeter were lately inclined to sue for its extension to their city, simply because it had been reported that four infants had died from this specific disease. All that the most ardent defenders of the Acts can adduce in their favour from the authorised statistics is the statement that some 270 men out of an Army of 50,000 are on duty who might be in hospital if they did not exist. And this is all that results from legislation which costs the nation £30,000 a year, besides giving the national sanction to an atrocious and abominable evil, and degrading to the lowest depths a large number of the most defenceless portion of the community. Was it any wonder that these vicious and unfair laws are engendering feelings of growing discontent in the minds of working men and women? When the people have once lost their respect for the law and its administration, it may take generations to restore it again.

THE EARLY CLOSING MOVEMENT.

A MEETING was held last Sunday afternoon in the Standard Theatre, attended by shopkeepers and assistants, in furtherance of the above movement. It was stated that the meeting was held on that day because it was impossible to meet during the week at a reasonable hour. Lord Claud Hamilton, who presided, said that assistants were required to labour from 75 to 90 hours weekly, and their labour was often performed in close, heated rooms. One thousand assistants die prematurely every year because of the excessive hours of labour, and it is computed that 4000 more have their health prematurely injured. As soon as evidence which is now being collected is completed, the appointment of a Select Committee will be asked to consider the matter.

"HOME OF REST," WALTON-ON-THE NAZE.

MRS. R. H. MOORE, of 102, Regent's Park-road, N.W., writes us, thanking those friends who kindly subscribed last year to her Cottage "Home of Rest," Walton-on-the-Naze. The rent has been paid up to the present time by a lady; and now the liberal and handsome gift of a large freehold house, containing fourteen rooms, has been made, the donor seeing the real good this Cottage Home has been to the real poor, who need rest and change of air.

By this gift, double the number can be received. The "Home of Rest" has been opened just twelve months, and has been truly owned of the Lord from the beginning.

Over sixty sick and suffering mothers, and nearly the same number of children and babies, have stayed in the "Home" during the year. Many have not seen a green field, or felt the benefit of fresh air and sea-breezes, in their lives. Such are the cases that have been admitted. Poverty and ill-health only are the qualifications for admission.

One dear one died during her stay, and she thanked God for the time she had spent in the "Home of Rest," having found pardon when personally spoken to about her soul, confessing her great sin of backsliding; little thinking her days were numbered. Others have borne similar testimony, showing that when the standard of the cross is raised, the Lord's presence is there. The house is furnished throughout, and the furniture can be bought for a moderate sum, if purchased at once.

MRS. MARY PRUYN, whose work in Japan was so successful, will soon leave Albany, to establish a Mission Home in Shanghai, China, under the auspices of the Woman's Union Missionary Society.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending February 17:—Feb. 11, Mark ii. 13-28: Feb. 12, Mark iii. 1-19; Feb. 13, Mark iii. 20-35; Feb. 14, Mark iv. 1-12; Feb. 15, Mark iv. 13-29; Feb. 16, Mark iv. 30-41; Feb. 17, Mark v. 1-20.

DR. OSWALD DYKES' lectures on the Ten Commandments, which made so deep an impression in Regent-square Church at the time of their delivery, are, we understand, to be published in the Household Library of Exposition, under the title, "The Law of the Ten Words."

SEAMEN'S CHRISTIAN FRIEND SOCIETY.—The quarterly Conference of the workers and friends of this Mission was held on Monday, 29th ult. Rev. G. J. Hill reported that 1094 Bethel, temperance, and other meetings had been held. The missionaries have paid 3586 visits to boarding-houses and ships' crews. Many destitute seamen have been provided with free meals, and poor families in the neighbourhood have also been cared for. Lord Radstock gave a suitable and impressive address to the workers.

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE WORK.

CROYDON.

THIS Mission commenced on 1st inst., and promises to be a success. In the first two days 500 pledges were taken, the Rink being crowded with eager listeners to the various speakers, and hundreds being turned away for want of room. The Rink is prettily arranged, and a strong choir fill the platform. Major and Mrs. Evered Poole are conducting the work.

SHOREDITCH TABERNACLE.

A ten days' Mission at this place was brought to a close on Friday evening last. The meetings throughout have been well attended and of a very interesting character. Among the special features of the work were children's and women's meetings. The total number of pledges taken was 2110. A committee has been appointed to visit those who have signed.

RAMSBOTTOM, LANCASHIRE.

The movement inaugurated here some months ago by Mr. T. E. Murphy has been greatly consolidated by a week's Gospel Temperance Mission, by Professor André's Swiss Alpine choir. Night after night growing crowds have gathered to listen to the solos, musical dialogues, and recitations, which are so full of Gospel and Temperance truths. Professor André spoke a few encouraging words each evening, in aid of the cause; whilst Mrs. Shipman—the Evangelist of the choir—declared the glad tidings of salvation.

MR. W. NOBLE AT BRADFORD.

An eight days' mission was commenced at Bradford, by Mr. W. Noble, on Friday, 2nd inst. A preliminary meeting of workers was held in the afternoon, when several questions were put as to the best method of conducting the meeting. The Mayor of Bradford presided at the evening meeting, which was held in St. George's Hall. A very hearty welcome was given to the lecturer, both by the chairman and the audience. At the close over two hundred persons took the ribbon.

MR. FRANCIS MURPHY AT CARLISLE.

Mr. Francis Murphy, having conducted a successful and enthusiastic Mission at Poole, on last Thursday evening held a meeting in a barn at Birchwood, near Dedham, Essex, the congregation of which was gathered from the adjacent agricultural districts, and from others six to twelve miles distant. Mr. Murphy's touching appeal, based on the narrative of the man in the tombs, told upon the audience; many blue ribbons were taken, and it is hoped that in some cases a deeper work was done, of which time will prove the reality. Mr. Murphy commenced work at Carlisle on Sunday last, when he gave a telling and eloquent address to several thousands of people. Hundreds of people signed the pledge.

MR. T. E. MURPHY AT SHREWSBURY.

Mr. T. E. Murphy has been conducting a Mission with much success in this town. For some time past, Christians have been praying and Christian ladies visiting the people, so that the ground in a measure has been prepared for the seed. The first meeting was held on Sunday afternoon, the 28th ult., and was composed chiefly of the working classes, including also many of those who do not attend a place of worship regularly on Sundays. At night the room was still more crowded than in the afternoon, and as the result of the first day's work 300 new pledges were taken. Each succeeding day the eagerness to hear the message seemed to grow, and many could not get standing room. Ladies have been active each night in enrolling new members. On Friday, 2nd inst., Mr. Francis Murphy paid a flying visit, and was heartily received. As the result of the first six days' work 1200 new pledges have been taken, and 240 old abstainers have put on the ribbon; a very large number had previously donned it. There are some specially interesting cases of reform, and we trust of conversion, and we are looking forward to still greater blessing in the coming days of the Mission.

[116]

Notices of Books, &c.

Reasons for giving up the Unitarian Ministry. By Rev. A. M. Creeby. Elliot Stock. Rationalistic preachers might read this pamphlet with advantage.

Christian Family. Elliot Stock. The volume for 1882 contains valuable contributions by Dr. Hannay, Rev. E. R. Barret, and other distinguished writers and preachers.

The Church of England Sunday School Institute publish an excellent service of Sacred Song, entitled Emmanuel, illustrating the life and ministry of our Lord. Written by Mary Palmer; price 4d.

Holy Footprints. By Rev. F. Whitfield. Nisbet & Co. This little volume appeals to believers to draw closer together in a distinct and united testimony for Christ.

Let in God's Light. A Sermon. By Rev. J. T. Wrenford, of Newport, 1d. S. W. Partridge & Co. An earnest plea for fuller religious teaching in our elementary schools.

The Good Time Coming. By C. R. Parsons. 6d. W. Mack. "Friendly chats" with working men, to whom it is specially dedicated; a manly and healthy tone pervades the whole.

Simplicity in Preaching. By Bishop Ryle, D.D. W. Hunt. Anything better on the subject we have seldom, if ever, read. The Bishop holds up Mr. Spurgeon's sermons as grand specimens of that simplicity which he seeks to inculcate.

Service for the King. 2d. J. F. Shaw & Co. Continues to furnish full and interesting accounts of doings of "Mildmay workers at home and abroad." The current number has an address by Mrs. Pennefather on "Occupy till I come."

Leisure Hour. 6d. Religious Tract Society. Among much other good reading we are interested in the sketch of James Clark Maxwell, the Christian man of science, whose "Life" has been recently published by Messrs. Macmillan and Co.

Memorials of Rev. J. H. Anderson, by her Brother. T. Woolmer. A brief Memoir, seventeen Sermons, a lecture on Paul, and a Missionary Speech, are comprised in this volume. They constitute a fitting souvenir of one who was an earnest pastor and an able preacher. He passed away at the early age of thirty-eight.

From The Religious Tract Society: Religi s of the Ancient World. By G. Rawlinson, M.A.; Present Day Tracts. The Witness of Palestine to the Bible. By Rev. W. G. Blaikie, D.D.; The Antiquity of Man historically considered. By Rev. G. Rawlinson; Agnosticism, a Doctrine of Despair. By Rev. N. Porter, D.D.

Messrs. J. F. Shaw & Co. have published several small books written by Mr. S. Trevor Francis. Enoch is a thoughtful and suggestive summing up of the lessons taught by the life of the faithful patriarch; Love's Care and Wrecks are two poems written for Christians, the latter on the Temperance question. Either of the three booklets may be had at 6d. per dozen.

The Religions of the Ancient World. By George Rawlinson, M.A. R. T. Society. In these pages the religious tenets and practices of eight principal nations of antiquity are passed in review; the nations are those with which ancient history is chiefly concerned, viz., the Egyptians, Assyrians, and Babylonians, Iranians, Sanskritic Indians, Phœnicians, Etruscans, Greeks, and Romans.

The Religious Tract Society have published Nos. 8, 9, 10 of Present Day Tracts: "Agnosticism, a Doctrine of Despair;" by Rev. Noah Porter, D.D. "The Antiquity of Man;" by the Rev. George Rawlinson, M.A. "The Witness of Palestine to the Bible;" by the Rev. W. G. Blaikie, D.D. Each subject is handled in a befitting manner, and the Tracts form a valuable addition to the series. The price is fourpence each.

The Story of the Bible. By Charles Foster. Chas. Griffin & Co. This is an attempt to give in narrative form, and language simplified where it is seemed needful to the author, the leading facts and doctrines of the Bible, for the use of children and adults of deficient education. The slight historical sketch connecting the Old and New Testaments is a very good idea; it is a common fault to look on these as distinct histories instead of as parts of a grand whole. The woodcuts, which are on almost every page, will add greatly to the interest of young readers, and will help, as we know from experience, to fix many a lesson upon the mind. The index at the end will facilitate reference.

The Tract Magazine for September (1d. Religious Tract Society) contains a brief notice of the life and work of the late Miss Caroline W. Leakey, of Exeter. In The Sunday at Home (6d.) we have a continuation of the interesting "Notes on a Journey to the North-west Land;" an engraving of "Miss Macpherson's Homes at Galt" is given.

The Quiver (6d. Cassell & Co.) has a very well told account of one of the "Free and Easy" meetings for working men that have been established by Mr. J. Fairbairn in connection with the Edinburgh Grassmarket Mission. In the same number Annie Beale furnishes a history of "The First London Soup-kitchen" at Leicester-square.

Two attractive volumes that will delight the occupants of the nursery are Bo-Peep (2s. 6d. Cassell & Co.) and Sixes and Sevens (Hildesheimer & Faulkener); the latter especially is a gem of pictorial and rythmical skill. In the same category are the two monthlies, Our Little Ones (3d. Griffith & Farran) and The Rosebud (3d. Jas. Clarke & Co.)

The British and Foreign Evangelical Review. January, 1883. 3s. 6d. James Nisbet & Co., Berners-street, W. Under the able editorship of Dr. Sinclair Paterson, this high class quarterly has justly attained a strong position in popular favour. While the theological articles are marked by all the erudition that one would expect in the productions of cultured and practised pens, they are quite within the grasp of the average intellect. The number before us is an excellent one, both as to variety of matter and versatility of style. The articles that will be most acceptable to non-scientific readers are that by Rev. Dr. Macmillan on "The Riviera and Palestine," and another by an anonymous writer on "Patience in duty, and duty in patience." We counsel all young students to read this serial; we can promise that they will find in its pages ample material for informing the mind, confirming the faith, and comforting the heart.

Wells of Water. By M. S. Simpson. 1s. Nisbet & Co. Mrs. Simpson has given us another of her fresh and attractive little books. In the preface to this volume she says: "As we have had mornings by the streams, and evenings upon the hillsides, so in this little book we invite you to rest at noon beside wells of water." Of the three books to which the author refers, we confess to a preference for this "noon-day book." It is both refreshing and suggestive. Opportunities for thought and reading and travel, which are granted to few, are used by Mrs. Simpson to illustrate cherished Bible truths. We are strengthened by the cooling draughts drawn for us, and we are sent to the Fountain for more. Travellers on the Continent will be glad to know that Mrs. Simpson's previous books, "Steps through the Stream," and "Beautiful upon the Mountains," have been so highly valued that a volume, taken partly from each and containing readings for a month, has been translated into German. It is published by Johanne Schergen Gernsbach, Baden. An attractive illustrated edition of the former has also been published in Portuguese by Rev. Robert Stewart, Presbyterian Church, Lisbon.

The Mystery of Miracles. A Scientific and Philosophical Investigation. By Joseph Wm. Reynolds, M.A., Prebendary of St. Paul's. Second Edition. Kegan Paul & Co. This is a very able and searching investigation into the objections so often urged by the Rationalism of the age against the credibility of miracles. It is from the pen of one who seems thoroughly up to the subject he has undertaken. One who can say, "As a student of physical science, and having much in common with those who are exclusively and professionally devoted to its pursuit, I greatly regret that some with no little ostentation refuse and misrepresent our most holy and revealed religion." The book has been so well received that this (which is a second edition) has been called for, which has enabled the author to recast somewhat and add to his matter. It is refreshing to meet with one who, whilst cordially appreciating all that recent discovery has really added to our stock of scientific knowledge, refuses to be carried away by the mere theories which so many mistake for facts, and can give a very good account too of his reasons for so refusing. We wish the work much success, and especially amongst the scientific men to whom it is dedicated.

Messrs. Cassell & Co.'s Serials.—Two additions have just been made to the ever growing catalogue of popular issues by this enterprising firm. Professor Henry Morley's Library of English Literature will appear in monthly sixpenny parts, suitably illustrated, thus placing within the reach of the poorest an exhaustive selection of representative specimens, culled from the whole range of our national literature. A new serial edition is begun of Cassell's History of the Franco-German War (7d.). Gustave Doré's Illustrated Bible (7d.) derives a special interest at the present time from the recent death of the gifted artist. Part 18 of The Peoples of the World (7d.) is taken up with an account of the various divisions of "The Kaffir Family." Old and New London (Part xli., 7d.) records many West-End memories circling around the district of Piccadilly; and Greater London (Part iv., 7d.) does a like service for Hampton Court. The Concise Cyclopædia (6d.) has reached its twelfth part, and imparts much verbal lore to the industrious student. Canon Farrar's Life and Work of St. Paul (Part xiii., 7d.) and Bishop Ellicott's New Testament Commentary (Part xxxv., 7d.) are valuable as throwing much light, born of reverent study and ardent research, on the pages of the sacred volume. Our Own Country (Part lii., 7d.) divides the interest of the reader between the western Scottish islands, Richmond (Yorks), and St. David's (S. Wales). The numerous illustrations, it need hardly be said, are of a high order. The World of Wonders (Part iv., 6d.) continues to record and describe "things wonderful in nature, science, and art." The story of the removal of Cleopatra's Needle from the Nile to the Thames is briefly related. Gleanings from Popular Authors (Part xvii., 7d.) continues to be full of interest.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

From W. Mack: LOOK UNTO HIM.

From Lord's Day Observance Society: THE LORD'S DAY IN CONFERENCE AND CONGRESS. By John Gritton, D.D.

From Messrs. Hatchard: THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S YEAR BOOK FOR 1883. By L. M. H.

From Elliot Stock: THRO' THE KHYBER PASS. By Rev. J. Gelson Gregson.

From Macniven & Wallace: THE LAMB OF GOD. By W. Robertson Nicoll, M.A.

From J. Nisbet & Co: HOLY FOOTPRINTS. By the Rev. F. Whitfield, M.A.; WHAT SHALL WE DO WITH THEM? By Miss Corke.

From S. W. Partridge & Co.: GOD'S ARITHMETIC. By Mrs. F. West; THE HOUSEHOLD ANGEL IN DISGUISE. By Mrs. M. Leslie.

From Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton: THE GREAT MEMORIAL NAME. By P. W. Grant; WEEK-DAY SERMONS. By R. W. Dale, M. A.; MATTHEW HENRY'S COMMENTARY. Part I. 3s. 6d.

Letters to the Editor.

"THE CHRISTIAN" FOR THE UNITED STATES.

SIR,—In a number of THE CHRISTIAN not long since I noticed the name of G. Brereton, Dundalk, Ireland, in connection with an offer to mail numbers of that paper to places in the United States where they would be useful. I thought of one or two centres of influence where such reading would be welcome, and do good. One, a Free Reading-room, in a growing western town, started within the year, through the influence of a good home missionary and family. I will send his address here: Rev. Jarvis Richards, Spearfish, Dakota, U.S.A. If copies of the paper should be sent him I know they would be gladly and gratefully used for the benefit of a wide circle of readers.

I could add other names, if there are other individuals who would like to do good in this way.

Rev. J. K. Harris, Red Cloud, Webster Co., Nebraska, U.S.A., is another efficient home missionary, and his family have for years been in the habit of lending good reading in a wide circle.

Still another, Mr. George White, Hastings, Clay Co., Nebraska, U.S.A., is instructor in a young College, and surrounded by young men, who need be trained to practical acquaintance with efficient Christian work.

I thought at first of sending only the address of Mr. Richards, but will let the others go too, as there may be use for more.

I have for some months enjoyed the reading of THE CHRISTIAN, through the kindness of a friend, and then forwarded it to another circle of readers, so I am acquainted with its value and would gladly help to extend its influence.

It is blessed to have your country and mine joined by such bonds as these. May they only grow stronger and brighter as the years roll on.

Truly and gratefully your friend,
(MISS) MARIA P. ARMS.

Springfield, Vermont,
November 1, 1882.

[Will any friends who may send copies to either of the above oblige by informing the Editor?]

NAMES ON COMMITTEES.

DEAR SIR,—I venture to call attention to the Committees of various Religious Societies, being confident that God's work would prosper more abundantly if those whose names were included in the list of committees were really workers and not simply ornamental referees.

How dishonouring it is to "The Mighty One" to presume that a grand list of names is necessary to ensure the success of any work established in his name and for his glory.

No doubt exists in my mind that the "two or three gathered together in My name" can conduct his work, and obtain his blessing upon that work, if faith, vigour, and prudent energy be forthcoming, quite as much as they who meet for prayer only can rely upon his being "in the midst of them."

Surely a live man or woman, filled with the Holy Spirit, can accomplish more than a dead committee, but I do think that a united (small) live committee with a live leader can do greater things in the strength of the Lord. I have written these few lines with the sole desire of awakening within the hearts of the members of our various committees an increased desire to honour God by working in the position they have accepted, or, if not, to prompt them to do their duty by resigning such positions, and thus make way for others to become "workers together with Him" in real earnest.

NISI DOMINUS FRUSTRA.

PRAYER FOR FUNDS.

DEAR SIR,—The letter in THE CHRISTIAN of the 18th January, under the heading of "Prayer for Funds," raises an important question. Probably many of your readers have often thought of, and also agree with, most of the ideas expressed in it. But as to the chief idea, it appears to me that in seeking to guard us from one error your correspondent has gone too far in the opposite direction.

Admitting that faith in God may exist in persons who use no means, and that this is right in special circumstances, I submit, seeing that every good gift is from above, that when there are resources which we can properly call to our aid we ought to use them as well as pray; and that such action is not of itself antagonistic or deteriorating to faith in God, but the contrary.

Your correspondent's statement is: "I never knew" (I abstain in discussing the question from quoting the honoured name he alludes to, say) "Mr. A. B. do anything more than make his requests known to God." If he had said that this eminent man of God never did anything more for the purpose of obtaining money than pray, I think it would have been more accurate. For though not done for the purpose, yet surely the wide circulation of thousands of reports has for several years made known his past work, and his further purposes, and God has used the information so communicated to aid his people in an intelligent liberality.

Let us, however, pass from thinking of a particular person, and say, further, that if any person whatever needs help for himself or the Lord's work in his hands, and does nothing more than make his requests known to God, let us give God thanks. But is that a general principle of Christian action? When taught to pray, are we taught to pray "only"? If there are means which can be used in a godly way, where did they come from but from the source of all good? Resources are prepared by the God of means for man's assistance, in illness, in business, in Christian labour, whatever we have need of. Availing ourselves of them, we can still look for God's blessing omnipotently, or in connection with them, as He pleases.

But there is another point of view from which this subject may be regarded. Instead of "not doing anything more than make our requests known to God," the very truth of the unity of the Church, and the common life of the members, demands mutual fellowship in Christian service. Besides the immediate end in view, the sympathies of all God's children in a catholic way in and for each other, and our works of faith and labours of love, is thereby cultivated, and this is of great importance. A wholesome activity of life is nurtured by making each other acquainted with what we are doing, what we purpose to do, what we need, and that aid will be prized.

Still, no doubt we may soon look to the means rather than to the Lord; so let us pray, and pray more; and also seek that our works shall be in fulfilment of the will of God, "Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven;" and that they shall be done in a way that is for his glory. These are the sound general principles, rather than doing nothing but pray.

J. V. S.

THE WESTMINSTER CONFESSION OF FAITH.

DEAR SIR,—I cannot but regret the tone of your reference in last number to the Westminster Confession of Faith. This venerable document, although written in sterner language than would now be employed, the language of an age in which the Church was pre-eminently militant against error, has done noble service as the subordinate standard, under the Word of God, of the Presbyterian Church throughout the world, believed to be the largest denomination of Protestant Christians.

In referring to a recent discussion on the terms of the Confession, you cite some of the leading London ministers as objecting to its teaching. This is not borne out by a perusal of their speeches on the occasion. Dr. Dykes said "he did not altogether like the proportions in which the truth was set forth, nor some of the links by which its propositions were bound together, nor its form and phraseology, which were of course those of its age. He saw grave difficulties in meddling with it or altering it. As soon would he think of demolishing the monument of some great triumph achieved in past times, as if it were a thing to be ashamed of now."

Dr. Donald Fraser upheld the Confession still more strongly. Indeed, this was the universal view. The lack of the missionary element was referred to, but it was pointed out that the Puritan framers of the Confession knew well how to combine a tenacious adherence to truth with great liberty in preaching. And is it not only within the last two generations that the Evangelical Churches have awakened to the claims of Missions, or made any attempt, if we except the first century, to carry the Gospel to "the nations"?

Many years ago, in an Indian voyage, I had long conversations with an ardent English Churchman, who stated his profound conviction that the English Prayer Book would be used in heaven. I have no such expectation in reference to the Confession of Faith, but I may be pardoned for expressing my belief that it will not be "shaken" by any discussions such as that one to which you refer. While dealing very forcibly with the great subjects of the Trinity, the sovereignty of God, the responsibility of man, and the nature of the sacraments, it is the most catholic document of all the Confessions in existence, and no man can say that the Churches who hold by it the most firmly are not also among the most conspicuous for the proclamation of a free Gospel, or for the zeal with which they are carrying the glad tidings of salvation by a crucified Redeemer to the ends of the earth.

Yours very faithfully,
London, Feb. 3. H. M. MATHESON.

TEMPERANCE IN CORNWALL.—After a four days' Mission by Mr. W. Forbes, at Hayle, it was found that upwards of 1260 (one-fourth of the population) had put on the blue ribbon, and at Lostwithiel, in three days, one-third of the inhabitants did the same.

THE DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—From Tuesday to Friday inclusive, meetings have been held in the Guildhall, Cambridge, for the deepening of spiritual life, by the Revs. Evan Hopkins, Webb Peploe, C. A. Fox, E. W. Moore, and Mr. H. F. Bowker. The meetings have been very well attended. On Thursday night the service was for men only. The hall was full, the majority being undergraduates.

THE FLOODS IN GERMANY.—You know how intense and extensive is the need of those who have suffered by the floods. According to present estimation 677 buildings have been wrecked. The area of the inundations comprises 66,000 hektar (one hektar is about 2½ English square miles), thus covering a surface as large as the Lake of Constance. Now, I think, it is the time to take the Gospel to these poor people, especially since universal sympathy sees to their temporal need. I have, therefore, determined, if the means are given, to travel throughout the entire region with two colporteurs and a Bible-carriage, and to take to every house a Testament or Bible. Perhaps an open ear may be found now for the Lord's voice. I would wish, therefore, to beg you to interest your Christian friends for this object. Possibly you may be enabled to collect a few hundred marks. This should, however, be done speedily. I should like to strike the iron while it is hot. I beg you, in the name of the Lord, and hope you may soon send this help to your friend,

EDWARD SCHEVE, Pastor.
Wiesbaden, Emser Strasse 18.

Requests for Praise and Prayer.

PRAISE.—For much blessing in the parish of Holy Trinity, Armley, during the Leeds Mission.

PRAYER.—Mr. James J. Scroggie writes that his little daughter Lizzie passed away on Feb. 2, at 6.30. "Though scarcely five years of age, what a blank she has left in our small family! Please pray for my dear wife and me, and that the disease, diphtheria, may spread no further."——That a Christian orphan may have guidance as to her future path.——That a village pastor, about to leave his present charge, may be directed to another sphere of labour.

PLACES.—For blessing on a six days' Mission by Mr. Opie Rodway, commencing Feb. 10, at Bishop's Teignton, Devonshire.——For a six weeks' Mission at Ryde, I.W., by Mr. James Richards, of the Evangelisation Society.——For Mission at Holy Trinity, Bristol, by Rev. H. Dening, Feb. 10—20. ——For Gospel Missions in the Wesleyan Chapels at Welton and Spilsby, conducted by Mr. W. H. Gorham, Evangelisation Society.——For blessing on a three weeks' Mission at Woodley, Cheshire, conducted by Mr. Gillingham, of the Evangelisation Society.——For a rich blessing upon a Mission at Gresley, by Wm. Smith, of the Evangelisation Society.——For the awakening and converting work of God's Spirit in connection with evangelistic meetings at Stromness, Orkney.

Mission and other Appeals.

ROSSLYN HALL MISSION (Church-street, Upper-street, Islington).—This Mission is situated in a thickly-populated part of Islington. Gospel and Temperance meetings are held every Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings, and on Thursday a special service for Christians. We are in sore need at the present time. Help will be gratefully accepted by Mr. J. BROWN, 102, Alexandra-road, Upper Holloway, N.

MISSION AT SHORT HEATH, HANTS.— This is a good work being carried on, at present under great difficulties. For twenty-two years the Mission has been worked with the best results. Three new chapels have been built Sunday-schools, mothers' meetings, Sunday and week-day services have been held, but the people are poor and unable to keep up the work. Owing to the death of several of their best friends they are now £30 in arrears. It is hoped to raise £200 to meet the oft-recurring need of repairs, &c., and contributions for this purpose will be received by Rev. S. Chinn, Alton, Hants.

CONVALESCENT HOME AT NAIRN, N.B.—Efforts have been made during the past year to open a small Convalescent Home in the neighbourhood of this well-known watering-place, for the benefit of poor invalids in the northern districts of Scotland. A cottage of six rooms has been taken near the town, rent for which has been guaranteed for four years. The rooms, however, will not be furnished or the Home opened until the necessary amount, £350, has been collected. Already £130 is in hand. It is hoped to have it opened early in the spring, so that full benefit may be derived by invalids during the bright and invigorating season of the year. Help will be thankfully received by Mr. H. T. Donaldson, British Linen Co.'s Bank, Nairn, N.B.

TEXAS.—Writing from Dallas, Texas, U.S.A., Mr. E. James, who has been labouring for eighteen months in this State as an evangelist, says his work has been crowned with much blessing. Many have been brought to Jesus. One young man who attended the meetings to endeavour to turn them into ridicule was converted, and declared that he would die for the principles he once scoffed at. At a town called Longoien in the east of Texas, a large number of the inhabitants have been converted. The Baptist Church, where he held his meetings, has had 105 accessions. Mr. James gives a glowing description of the fertility of the country; he asks the prayers of Christians for his work.

Notices.

J. B.—"Dictionary of Scripture Names." Price 6d. Sunday School Union, Old Bailey, E.C.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—H. Rawles, 7, Malden-road, Kentish Town; J. Hope, 9, Canal-terrace, King's-road, Camden Town, London, N.W.; T. H. Court, 34, King's-road, Peckham, S.E.; T. Brown, 18, Victoria-terrace, Upland-road, Peckham Rye; Mrs. Wilson, 13, Florence-terrace, Kingston Vale, near Putney, S.W.; J. Hughes, Alma-terrace, Hope Town, Normanton, Yorkshire; Mrs. S. Robins, 26, Robert-street, Hampstead-road, N.W.; Miss Truelove, care of Mrs. Wilkinson, Cleveland House, Barnes; H. Garwood, 5, Absalom-road, Westbourne Park; T. Harding, 1, Church-gate, Stokenchurch, Oxon; T. F. Charlton, 36, Commodore-street, Mile End-road; J. Sykes, 11, Walker-street, Thornhill Lees, near Dewsbury, Yorkshire; W. Batchelor, Cooling-street, Cliffe, near Rochester, Kent; G. L. James, Castle Gresley, Burton-on-Trent; Miss Murray, 63, Trafalgar-road, East Greenwich, Kent; J. Dyer, 2, Napier-cottages, Napier-road, New Brompton, Kent; Miss A. Martin, 4, Belmont-terrace, Devoran, Cornwall; A. T. G. Stephenson, care of Mr. Siddall, Northwood-street, Birmingham; F. Maddy, care of J. Days, Eaton Socon, near Neots; J. Townsend, 83, Franchise-street, California, Derby; Mrs. Bradford, Sharelands, Blackboys, Hawkhurst; F. Gedney, 14, Reglett-street, Lower Broughton, Manchester; H. J. Hoare, 141, Queen's-road, Bayswater, London; Miss Wilson, 105, Paulet-road, West Camberwell; E. Peters, High-street, Stevenage, Herts.

Communications received with thanks.—Mrs. P. K.L.M. J.N. W.A.B. J.R. H.M. R.H.R. Constant Reader. W.J.C. W.F. A.E.C.S. J.S. J.H. Miss G. T.P. W.R.N. W.L. L.M.M. G.H. A.W.R. S.M. U.E. J.E.J. E.L.P. M.J.C. F.L. R.H. H. W.J. M.N. H.A.A. F.J. M.E.C. J.J.C. R.S.B. S.C. M.J.B. C.E.H. T.W.C. M.R. W.L. A.C.S. J.F. G.J.H. W.P. J.S. W.H.S. G.P.M. K.B. A Constant Reader. A.B. T.S. An Old Man. Inquirer E.G. S.G.P. W.W.S. W.F. G.G. Miss H. F.M. M.J. H.C. F.H.W. H.F. E.W. A Churchwoman, J.B. K.E.C. R.T.S. H.J.P.

Forthcoming Meetings.

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY'S FORTHCOMING ENGAGEMENTS—1883—Feb. 11 to 18, Belfast; Feb. 20 to 23, Leicester; Feb. 25 to 28, Nottingham; Mar. 1 to 15, Manchester; Mar. 16 to 30, Leeds; Mar. 31 to April 14, Liverpool.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales, on due notice. Apply, Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-st., Strand, W.C.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send lay preachers and evangelists to any chapel or hall of any Evangelical denomination in London. Apply, Hon. Sec., 30, Surrey-sq., S.E.

THE IRISH EVANGELIZATION SOCIETY will send Evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

MR. SHULDHAM HENRY will take the Services at St. George's Hall during February. Sundays at 11 a.m., and 7 p.m. Burlington Hall, Savile-row, Wednesdays at 8 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., THE PRIORY, 198, Upper-street, N.—Thursday, Feb. 8, 8.30 p.m., address, Rev. Churchill Julius. Wed., 6 to 10, anxious Inquirers and Strangers.

———West Branch, Burlington Hall, 23, Savile-row, Regent-street.—Thursday, Feb. 8, Social Meeting for Young Men, T. A. Denny, Esq., chairman; addresses by Rev. Marcus Rainsford, jun., and Mr. E. J. Kennedy.

DR. THAIN DAVIDSON'S Monthly Sermon to Young Men, Presbyterian Church, Colebrooke-row, Islington, Sunday, Feb. 11, at 6.30 p.m.

AGRICULTURAL HALL SERVICES.—Sunday, Feb. 11, 3.30 p.m. Rev. George Snashall; 7 p.m. Messrs. Elvin, Allen, and Miss Clark (Soloist).

THE DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—Stafford Rooms, Tichborne-street, Edgware-road, on Friday, February 9, at 3.30 p.m., Rev. Nevile Sherbrooke.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, 6, Kilburn-park, N.W. —Friday, Feb. 9, at 7 p.m. Tea at 6. "Holiness," Rev. E. Gill, M.A., Chaplain to the Salvation Army. Tuesday, Feb. 13, at 11.30 a.m., "The two Resurrections," by Miss Mason. Wednesday, Feb. 14, at 3.30 p.m., Lord Radstock, on "Separation to God the secret of Power."

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.—Messrs. Seyler and McClure at Lecture Hall, Wandsworth-rd., Feb. 6 to 9; Mr. Banaster at Blandford, Feb. 19 to 25; at Salisbury, March 4 to 11; at Dorking from March 12.

HOME OF INDUSTRY, Commercial-street, Spitalfields.—Monthly meeting for Christian workers, Wednesday, Feb. 21, tea at 6 p.m., meeting at 7 p.m. Mr. Gawin Kirkham will give an address on "A Sevenfold View of the Christian Worker." Mr. George Holland will speak on Home Missions. Rev. Dr. Boyd, of Forest Hill, is also expected to give an address.

MR. HENRY THORNE'S ENGAGEMENTS.—Feb. 13, Peterboro'; Feb. 14, Wolverhampton; Feb. 16 to 18, Walsall; Feb. 19, Burton; Feb. 20 to 23, Leicester; March 6, Leeds; March 7, Carlisle; March 10 to 19, Londonderry; March 14 to April 2, Belfast.

OPEN-AIR MISSION, West London Auxiliary.—Quarterly Meeting, Monday, 12th inst., at Trinity Chapel, John-street, Edgware-road. Tea at 6.30. Public Meeting at 7.30.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-street, S.W.—Tuesday, Feb. 6, Prayer-meeting at 11.30 a.m.; Wednesday, Feb. 7, Evangelistic address at 8 p.m.; Thursday, Feb. 8, Believers' Meeting at 8 p.m.; Sundays, Preaching of the Gospel, at 3.45 and 7 p.m.

CHURCH PAROCHIAL MISSION ASSOCIATION.—Mr. W. Spencer Walton will conduct a ten days' Mission at Westbourne Hall, commencing on Saturday, Feb. 10. Services at 3.30 and 8 p.m.

ARMY AND NAVY PRAYER UNION.—The Annual Prayer-meeting for all who are serving, or have served, as officers in the Army or Navy, will take place on Saturday, March 10, in the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, at 2 p.m.

NINE ELMS HALL.—Public Meeting, Friday, Feb. 9, at 8 p.m., against State Regulation of Vice.

BOW AND BROMLEY INSTITUTE, Bow-road, E.—United Prayer-meeting, Sunday, Feb. 11, at 8.15 p.m.

SALVATION ARMY.—Mrs. Booth at Kensington Town Hall, Sun., Feb. 11, at 3 p.m.; Regent's Hall, Regent Circus, Tues., Feb. 13, at 3 p.m.; Steinway Hall, Lower Seymour-street, Portman-square, Thurs., Feb. 15, at 11 a.m.

REV. W. HASLAM'S ENGAGEMENTS.—Feb. 17, St. Mark's, Bath.

REV. W. H. AITKEN'S ENGAGEMENTS.—Victoria-hall, Feb. 8 to 28; March 4 to 19, Weymouth; March 31 to April 16, Wareham; April 22 to May 6, St. Matthew's, Bayswater; May 26 to July 2, South London.

MR. G. KIRKHAM'S ENGAGEMENTS.—Feb. 12, Hertford; 13, Clavering, Herts; 14, Bermondsey; 15, Rochester Institute, Walworth-road; 16, Stanstead Abbotts, Herts; 19, St. Benet's, Mile-end-road; 20, Mile-end New Town; 21, Home of Industry, Spitalfields; 26, Field-lane Ragged Schools; 27, Battersea-park-road; 28, Mildmay-park.

EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—"Oxford" Music Hall: Sunday, at 7 p.m., Mr. Geo. Tomkins; Subject, "Things worth doing." Mornington Hall, Hampstead-road: Sunday at 7 p.m., Mr. T. H. Morris. Kilburn Hall, Kilburn-gate (not Town Hall): Sun., 7 p.m., Ned Wright. Malden Hall, Haverstock Hill: Sun. at 7 p.m., Mr. Geo. Hucklesby. Temple of Varieties, King-street, Hammersmith: Sunday, at 3.30 p.m., Mr. Edward Hurditch. Bignold Hall, Forest-gate: Sun., at 7 p.m., Mr. Abraham Wallis. Omega Hall, Alpha-road, Regent's-park: Sun. at 3.30 and 7 p.m., Tues. and Friday, at 8 p.m., Mr. W. H. Smith. Dalston Hall, Dalston-lane: Sun., 3.15 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Subscriptions received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott to Saturday Morning, February 3, 1883.

	£	s.	d.
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, E.—W. G. 10s.; P. O. 5s.; E. M. B. 5s.; Per Miss S. £2; J. J. W. 1s.; J. J. W. & J. S. S. £1 1s.; Mrs. Y. 5s.; "Box at Rest," £2 5s. 2d.	6	12	2
Mr. Pascoe's Work in Mexico——Mrs. R. £1 10s.; Jer. i. 8, £3; J. C. P. 5s.	4	15	0
East London Training Institute—F. G. £3; Psalm lxviii. 11, £3. Congo Missions—"Balmullo," £2	8	0	0
Poor Jews in Jerusalem (Messrs. Friedlander and Kelk)—H. W. 10s.; M. H. C. £10; L. R. 5s.	10	15	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—W. K. £3; C. L. M. T. £1. Missions—C. L. M. T. £1	5	0	0
London City Mission—W. K.	3	0	0
Friendless and Fallen—W. K. £1; S. L. S. £2; Luke xv. 7, £5; H. M. 7s. 6d. "Flying Spur," 2s.	8	9	6
St. Giles's Christian Mission—W. H. R. £1 1s.; Matt. x. 10, £3; H. M. 7s. 6d. Prison Mission—W. K. £1	5	8	6
George Yard Ragged School—W. K. £1; J. H. S. £1; John iv. 34, £3; J. B. 1s.	5	1	0
Cow Cross Mission—W. K.	1	0	0
Gratuitous Circulation of THE CHRISTIAN—H. O.	0	0	11
Dock Labourers' Mission—"Two little girls," 2s. Free Meals—S. A. F. £1; C. A. A. £1. Free Lodgings—A. U. 2s.	2	4	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—J. H. S. £1; W. H. R. £1 1s.; John xxi. 15, £5; M. H. C. £10; E. M. W. S. M. 5s.; T. O. E. H. £1	18	6	0
Field-lane Refuges—J. H. S. £1; Luke xiii. 30, £3. Breakfasts—E. M. W. S. M. 5s.	4	5	0
Miss Beamish's Work at Spa—"One who knows her"	0	10	0
Miss Mittendorf's Home—F. G. £1; J. O. P. 5s.	1	5	0
Mrs. Hilton's Creche—F. G.	1	0	0
Rescue Work, Poplar (Mrs. Wilkes)—S. L. S. £2; T. C. E. 10s.; A. E. H. £5	7	10	0
Midnight Meeting Movement—S. L. S. £2; M. H. C. £5	7	0	0
Thames Church Mission—S. L. S.	2	0	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—S. L. S. £2; T. O. E. H. £1; C. L. M. T. £1	4	0	0
Home of Industry—"A widow's mite," 2s. 6d.; W. H. R. £1 1s.; T. O. E. H. £2	3	3	6
Rev. R. W. McAll's Work, Paris—M. M. B.	0	3	6
China Inland Mission—H. S. 5s.; H. M. 5s.; K. Y. 10s.	1	0	0
Miss Pryde's Work, Paris—M. E. C.	0	5	0
Gray's Yard Ragged School and Church Meals—"The Misses C."	1	0	0
Spitalfields Gospel Mission—"The Misses C." £1; T. O. E. H. £1; J. C. P. 5s.	2	5	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—"The Misses C."	1	0	0
Irish Society—"The Misses C."	0	10	0
Turkish Mission Aid Society—"The Misses C."	0	10	0
Sailor's Welcome Home, (Miss Child)—W. H. R.	1	1	0
Hoxton Hall, (Mr. Noble)—W. H. R.	1	1	0
Mrs. Meredith's Prison Mission—W. H. R.	1	1	0
Women's Mission to Women—Matt. ix. 11, 12	5	0	0
Mildmay Medical Mission—Matt. xiv. 35	5	0	0
London Medical Mission—Matt. x. 7, 8	3	0
Miss Weston's Work in the Royal Navy—Matt. iv. 19, 20, £3; "Flying Spur" 1s. 6d.	3	1	6
Miss Daniell's Work among Soldiers—Matt. iv. 19, 20, £3; M. H. C. £10.	13	0	0
Rev. C. J. Whitmore's Work—Luke xiv. 24	3	0	0
Homerton Mission—Luke x. 36, 37, £3; T. O. E. H. £1	4	0	0
Woolwich Y. W. C. A.—J. G.	1	0	0
Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland—A. E. H.	1	0	0
Society for Promotion of Female Education in the East—H. M.	0	10	0
Work at Bethlehem School—H. M.	0	3	6
London Missionary Society—H. M.	0	5	0
Miss Whately's Work at Cairo—M. H. C.	10	0	0
Working Men's Lord's Day Rest Association—M. H. C.	5	0	0
Evangelization Society—R. B. £10; J. G. £1	11	0	0
Miss Toye's Orphan Home—T. O. E. H.	2	0	0
Mrs. Birt's Sheltering Home—T. O. E. H.	1	0	0
Mildmay Mission to the Jews—T. O. E. H.	1	0	0
Irish Church Missions—C. L. M. T.	1	0	0
Blackdown Hills Mission—J. C. P.	0	5	0
Zenana Bible and Medical Mission—Y. W. C. A. Killinker	0	2	6
Homes of Hope, Regent-square—"Flying Spur"	0	2	0
Bridge of Hope, Ratcliff—"Flying Spur," 2s.; M. E. 10s. 6d.	0	12	6
Pastor Scheve's Work, Wiesbaden—M. & S.	1	0	0
	£191	4	1

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Evangelistic Mission (Per C. R. H.) I. S. 1s.

For the Hahnemann Convalescent Home, Bournemouth, £1, from X. Y. Z.

Help in Time of Need.

MR. BARLOW KENNETT offers £50 to Mrs. Parsons, for her Work among the Orphans, on condition that £150 more can be obtained within two months, in any sums, large or small.

As Money for the Homes is URGENTLY NEEDED, friends are earnestly asked to respond speedily to this generous offer.

CUMBERLAND HOUSE, WALTHAMSTOW, ESSEX.

FIELD LANE REFUGES for the HOMELESS POOR,

VINE STREET, CLERKENWELL ROAD, E.C.,

Training Homes for Destitute Boys and Girls.

President—THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY, K.G.

THE COMMITTEE EDUCATE, Feed, Clothe, and give INDUSTRIAL TRAINING to 200 DESTITUTE CHILDREN, SHELTER AND FEED 100 HOMELESS Men, Women, and YOUNG GIRLS.

PROVIDE FREE DINNERS Four Days a Week, for 150 FAMISHING CHILDREN attending the BIBLE SCHOOLS, give FREE BREAKFASTS on Lord's Day Morning to 500 of the HOMELESS POOR attending the GOSPEL SERVICE, Help 450 Poor Mothers Weekly.

A CRÈCHE is much required, but NO FUNDS to fit up the SPACE IN HAND.

The Committee MOST EARNESTLY APPEAL FOR HELP TO MEET EXPENSES, and to enable them to remove the DEBT of £3,000 incurred through the Compulsory Removal of the Refuges and Schools from Saffron Hill, the payment of Interest on the Debt being a severe hindrance to the Work.

Donations, &c., will be thankfully received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of "THE CHRISTIAN," 12, Paternoster-buildings; the Treasurer, W. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; and Messrs. RANSOME & Co., 1, Pall Mall East; or by the Undersigned, PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary at the Refuges, as above.

CHURCH PAROCHIAL MISSION SOCIETY.

21, John Street, Adelphi, London, W.C.

OBJECT: To provide a staff of experienced Mission Preachers, Clerical and Lay. The Church Army Hall (Portcullis Hall), Regency Street, Westminster. Meetings are held every Tuesday at Three, and every Friday at Eight, on Holiness. These are conducted by the Rev. W. Carlile. Evangelistic Army Meetings every other night at Eight o'clock, Sundays at Seven. Portcullis Hall is reached in three minutes by the Vauxhall Bridge Road Tram from Victoria Station.

THE ANCHORAGE.

Hebrews vi. 19.

SPECIAL BRANCH of the MISSION OF HOPE AND HELP.

For the reception of the more respectable class of young women in trouble.

Conversion of heart, according to the simple Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, is the one thing prayerfully and faithfully sought.

The young women are fitted for resuming their position in life, by thorough instruction in household duties, cookery, dressmaking, fine laundry work, &c. &c.

A full description of the work of the Mission, with regulations for admission to the "Anchorage," will be sent on application by letter to Mrs. H. STUART-WORTLEY, Rosslyn House, Grove End Road, N.W. (President of the Ladies' Committee), to whom, or to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, subscriptions may be sent.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Limp, 2s.; Cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"IN THE VOLUME OF THE BOOK;"

Or, The Profit and Pleasure of Bible Study.

BY GEORGE F. PENTECOST, M.A.

With Introductions by Rev. JOSEPH COOK and Rev. J. H. VINCENT, D.D.

SIXTH EDITION.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE WHITE FIELDS OF ENGLAND.

An Entreaty to Communicants.

By REGINALD RADCLIFFE.

"What Christian does not long for the Gospel to spread on the Continent of Europe? And who that reflects can fail to observe that the gross state of our large towns arises very much from their being grossly neglected by us communicants. Their sad state is patent to every observing foreigner whom business brings into the midst of us, and he naturally looks with contempt and abhorrence on what he styles our "Christianity."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Neatly Printed on Tinted Paper, suitable for enclosing in Letters.

Price 1s. 6d. per 100, 12s. 6d. per 1000.

Christian Abstinence.

An Extract from an Address.

By HUGH M. MATHESON, Esq.

Reprinted from THE CHRISTIAN.

"I have to mingle with a very large number of young men in connection with Young Men's Christian Associations and other movements; and it is exceedingly important to be able to lead on right lines, of which they will never be ashamed, the younger members of the community who are to take our places when we are gone. And while we cannot guarantee the stability of any one, there is a very clear and distinct plan to avoid falling into habits of intemperance; and that is—to take NO ALCOHOLIC DRINK."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

PRICE ONE PENNY. 100 Copies for 7s. 6d.
For Gratuitous Circulation, £3 per 1000.

Francis Murphy:

Founder of the Blue Ribbon Movement in America,

A SKETCH OF HIS LIFE AND WORK

(With Portrait).

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Price 1s. per 100 (post free, 1s. 2d.). 6s. per 1000.

THE "MURPHY" PLEDGE CARD.

As used by Mr. FRANCIS MURPHY, and his Son, Mr. T. E. MURPHY, at their Gospel Temperance Meetings.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Gospel Temperance Songs

AND

BLUE RIBBON HYMNS.

REVISED AND ENLARGED.

USED BY

MR. FRANCIS MURPHY, AND HIS SON, MR. T. E. MURPHY

AT THEIR

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE AND BLUE RIBBON MEETINGS.

Very many of these Hymns and Tunes are ORIGINAL, and have not hitherto been known in this country. Both Words and Music will be found most suitable for use in Temperance work.

BOOK OF WORDS, One Penny. CLOTH, Twopence. TUNE BOOKS, Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Toned Paper, Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Sample Copy of Words sent free on application
Sample Copy of Music sent free for 1s.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SCRIPTURE TEXTS.

Published by MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings; and may be had of any Bookseller.

From the late AGNES ELIZABETH JONES, Lady Superintendent of Nurses at the Liverpool Workhouse.

"The Lady Superintendent of Nurses begs to acknowledge the receipt of the parcels of Texts as ordered. She more and more feels their value. The patients lying in their beds can read the words—the print is so distinct.

"As she is going to undertake the charge of several hundred more patients, she wishes to give other Wards the advantage of these Texts on the wall."

In very large type, printed in blue ink, size 31 in. by 20 in., 62 different Texts, 3d. each.
Mounted on canvas, varnished, and with eyelet holes, 9d. each.
Mounted on rollers and varnished, 1s. 6d. each.

LIST OF THE TEXTS

1. "Choose you this day whom ye will serve."
2. "The wages of sin is death."
2. "The gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord."
3. "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out."
5. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die."
6. "In whom we have redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of sins."
7. "All have sinned, and come short of the glory of God."
8. "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."
9. "The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon Him; to all that call upon Him in truth."
10. "Behold the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world."
11. "The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."
12. "The Lord is good to all; and His tender mercies are over all His works."
13. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge; but fools despise wisdom and instruction."
14. "Blessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered."
15. "When we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly."
16. "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus."
17. "Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."
18. "Now in Christ Jesus ye, who sometime were far off, are made nigh by the blood of Christ."
19. "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found; call ye upon Him while He is near."
20. "Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the Just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God."
21. "Herein is love: not that we loved God, but that He loved us, and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins."
22. "God commendeth His love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."
23. "As by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so, by the obedience of One, shall many be made righteous."
24. "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing."
26. "The just shall live by faith."
31. "As many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God."
32. "The blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin."
33. "Through this Man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins."
34. "Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by Thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation."
35. "God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through Him might be saved."
"He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life."
37. "He that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him."
38. "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool."
39. "God so loved the world, that He gave His only-begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."
40. "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by Me."
42. "Let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus."
43. "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners."
44. "Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."
45. "Suffer little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not."
46. "He shall gather the lambs with His arm, and carry them in His bosom."
47. "Children, obey your parents in all things: for this is well-pleasing unto the Lord."
48. "I love them that love Me; and those that seek Me early shall find Me."
51. "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth."
52. "Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for Him."
53. "Casting all your care upon Him; for He careth for you."
54. "The Eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms."
55. "He hath said, I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."
56. "I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content."
57. "As thy days so shall thy strength be."
58. "In all their afflictions He was afflicted."
59. "Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth."
60. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."
61. "Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God."
62. "He is despised and rejected of men; a Man of Sorrows and acquainted with grief."
63. "He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities."
64. "The chastisement of our peace was upon Him; and with His stripes we are healed."
65. "All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way."
66. "The Lord hath laid on Him the iniquities of us all."
67. "Look unto Me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth."
68. "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters."
69. "If any man thirst, let him come unto Me, and drink."
70. "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shall believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."

The eight following are in Extra Large Type.

25. "Jesus only."
27. "Now."
28. "God is love."
29. "Behold, He cometh."
30. "Have faith in God."
41. "Prepare to meet thy God."
49. "Thou God seest me."
50. "Be ye kind one to another."

Nos. 45 to 51 inclusive are specially suited for Children.
Two Specimen Texts sent free for Six Stamps.

Temperance Publications.

[Printed in Blue Ink.]

"The Christian Temperance Band" Pledge Card.

1s. per 100. 7s. 6d. per 1,000, post free.
Large Quantities for Societies on Special Terms.

PLEDGE BOOKS corresponding with above cards.
Tinted Covers, 6d. Limp Cloth, 1s.

Autobiography of John B. Gough.

REVISED BY HIMSELF.

Cloth, Bevelled Boards, with Four Illustrations, 3s. 6d.; Cheap Edition, with Portrait, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.

"A very interesting and, in passages, startling account of the career of one of the most gifted and persevering advocates of the cause of temperance."—Public Opinion.

Orations by John B. Gough.

A Series of Eleven of Mr. GOUGH'S Stirring Addresses.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 2s. 6d.

"For reasonable argument, passionate appeal, striking anecdote, and sorrowful, vivid pictures of the desolations wrought by intemperance, they are, perhaps, unsurpassed."—Presbyterian Churchman.

Gospel Temperance Tracts.

By JOHN B. GOUGH.

A Series of Sixteen Four-Page Tracts, Printed in Large Type and Illustrated.

Price 1s. per packet of 64 Tracts, assorted.

"For descriptive force we have seldom read anything to equal 'They are Coming Now,' 'My Boy,' and 'Drink's my Curse.'"—Church of England Temperance Chronicle.

Friendly Words on Every-day Life.

A Series of Narrative Tracts. By Mrs. G. S. REANEY.

50 copies assorted, in neat Packet, 1s. 2s. per 100, either assorted or of any separate Tract.

"Each little story conveys its own pithy lesson, written from the heart of one who feels, to the heart of those who must feel 'how true it is.'"—Social Notes.

Small Books for Enclosing in Letters.

Price 6d. per dozen.

"I Never Thought of it."
By Mrs. Hind Smith.

The Pledge: Reasons for Signing it.
By Miss E. G. Wilson.

Look out for the Safest Path.
By Stevenson A. Blackwood.

Price 1s. per dozen.

S. A. Blackwood.

Battlements and Blood-Guiltiness.
(Some Thoughts on Temperance Principles.)

When ye Dwell in the Land.

The Present Distress.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

HYMNS AND SONGS

SPECIALLY SUITABLE FOR

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE MEETINGS.

A Series of 4 two-page Leaflets, each containing a collection of stirring Pieces, admirably adapted for use at "Gospel Temperance" and other Meetings. Price 9d. per 100, or 7s. 6d. per 1000.

CONTENTS OF NO. 1.

Where is my wandering boy to-night?
One there is who loves thee
The mistakes of my life have been many
Long in darkness we have waited
Are you coming home, ye wanderers?
A ruler once came to Jesus by night
Fierce and wild the storm is raging
Why do you wait, dear brother?
Say, where is thy refuge, my brother?
Why perish with cold and with hunger?
From the riven Rock there floweth

CONTENTS OF No. 2.

What can wash away my stain?
Come, thou weary! Jesus calls thee
Should the death-angel knock at your chamber
The Gospel bells are ringing
Have you any room for Jesus?
Oh come, sinner, come! 'tis mercy's call
Make room for Jesus! room, sad heart!
Oh, do not let the Word depart
Brightly beams our Father's mercy
O Christ, in Thee my soul hath found
Light in the darkness, sailor!

CONTENTS OF No. 3.

When my final farewell to the world I have said
Standing by a purpose true
When the storms of life are raging
I have read of a beautiful city
Ring the bells of heaven! there is joy to day
I have heard of a land far away
"Land ahead!" its fruits are waving
Oh, tender and sweet was the Master' voice
'Tis the promise of God full salvation to give
When storms around are sweeping

CONTENTS OF No. 4.

Of course you know that to and fro, throughout our glorious land
She only touched the hem of His garment
Our Master has taken His journey
Tempted and tried
Father, don't you hear the angels?
The prize is set before us
There is a Fountain filled with blood
Would you lose your load of sin?
Yield not to temptation, for yielding is sin

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Sacred Songs and Solos.

(Nos. 1 and 2 Combined, Consisting of 441 Hymns.)

COMPILED BY IRA D. SANKEY.

AND SUNG BY HIM AT

Messrs. Moody and Sankey's Meetings.

The Book, as now extended and enlarged, forms a specially cheap and comprehensive collection, well adapted for

SUNDAY SCHOOLS,
MISSION SERVICES, AND
EVANGELISTIC WORK.

IT GIVES NO LESS THAN

441 Hymns for One Penny. Music & Words, 1s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.			MUSIC AND WORDS.
1 A.	Ruby Edition	Sewed ... ... 1d.	1 F.	Old Notation	Tinted Covers 2s. 6d.
2 A.	,,	Printed Cloth ... 2d.	2 F.	,,	Limp Cloth ... 3s. 6d.
1 B.	Nonpareil Ed.	Tinted Covers ... 3d.	3 F.	,,	Cloth Boards. 4s. 6d.
2 B.	,,	Printed Cloth ... 4d.	4 F.	,,	Do. Gilt Edg. 5s. 0d.
1 C.	Medium Type	Limp Cloth... ... 6d.	5 F.	,,	Morocco ... 8s. 6d.
2 C.	,,	Cloth Boards 1s. 0d.	6 F.	,,	flexible, kid-lined ....12s. 6d.
3 C.	,,	Morocco ..... 2s. 6d.	1 G.	Tonic Sol-fa	... Tinted Covers 2s. 6d.
1 D.	F'cap. 8vo. ed.	Tinted Covers 1s. 0d.	2 G.	,,	... Limp Cloth ... 3s. 6d.
2 D.	,,	Limp Cloth... 1s. 6d.	3 G.	,,	... Cloth Boards. 4s. 6d.
3 D.	,,	Cloth Boards. 2s. 0d.	4 G.	,,	... Gilt Edges 5s. 0d.
4 D.	,,	Morocco ..... 4s. 6d.	5 G.	,,	... Morocco ..... 8s. 6d.
1 E.	Ex. Large Type	Tinted Covers 1s. 6d.	1 H.	Old Notation. CHEAP EDITION. (In Smaller Type)	Tinted Covers 1s. 6d.
2 E.	,,	Limp Cloth ... 2s. 0d.	2 H.	,,	Limp Cloth... 2s. 0d.
3 E.	,,	Cloth Boards. 2s. 6d.	3 H.	,,	Cloth Boards. 2s. 6d.
4 E.	,,	Morocco ... 5s. 6d.	4 H.	,,	Morocco ..... 5s. 6d.
			5 H.	,,	flexible, kid-lined .....10s. 6d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS, No. 2.

(Containing 170 Pieces.)

For the convenience of those who possess "SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS, No. 1," consisting of 271 Pieces, "No. 2" Book, containing the latter portion (170 Pieces), is supplied separately as follows.

MUSIC AND WORDS.			MUSIC AND WORDS.
1 J.	Old Notation	... Tinted Covers 1s. 0d.	1 K.	Tonic Sol-fa	... Tinted Covers 1s. 0d.
2 J.	,,	... Limp Cloth ... 1s. 6d.	2 K.	,,	... Limp Cloth ... 1s. 6d.
3 J.	,,	... Cloth Boards. 2s. 0d.	3 K.	,,	... Cloth Boards. 2s. 0d.
CHEAP EDITION. (In Smaller Type.)
1 L.	Old Notation	... Tinted Covers ... 6d.	2 L.	Old Notation	... Limp Cloth ... 1s. 0d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d. post-free
WITH SEVEN ILLUSTRATIONS.

JOE WITLESS.

A BOOK FOR BOYS.

By E. B. HUNTER.

"A capital book, especially for young people. It is replete with Christian truth and experience, and cannot fail to do good."—Baptist Messenger.

"We can cordially recommend it as calculated to arrest the attention and impress the conscience of the most daring and thoughtless of our youth."
Sword and Trowel.

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE COTTAGE ON THE ROCK.

AN ALLEGORY.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

"Cradled in prayer, and mourning only for the feebleness and imperfect utterance of the glorious truths so faintly apprehended, I cast this little waymark of my pilgrimage into the hands of Him whose faithfulness I have to this day proved."—EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings,
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WORKS BY D. L. MOODY.

POWER FROM ON HIGH; or, THE

Secret of Success in Christian Life and Christian Work. By D. L. MOODY. 15th THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"This series of earnest and solemn Addresses bear throughout that stamp of honest, eager earnestness, which is so striking a characteristic of the writer's labours as a preacher."—Clerical World.

"Every page is full of stimulating thought for Christian Workers."—Commonwealth.

ADDRESSES BY D. L. MOODY. Revised.

103rd THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"With the effect of these Addresses when spoken the whole land is acquainted, and now that they are written they will tend to keep in force the impression they have already made. The book is clearly printed, on good paper, is handy in form, and is sure of a wide circulation."—Primitive Methodist.

THE FAITHFUL SAYING. A SERIES

of Addresses. By D. L. MOODY. 9th THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Fresh, direct, pictorial, and powerful; they are admirable examples of the readiest way to reach the hearts of men with the truths of Christ."
General Baptist Magazine.

"These discourses are full of power and homely beauty, and exemplify very fully the strong points of the great evangelist. Nothing surprises us more in Mr. Moody than his marvellous power of illustration. His anecdotes are so fresh, so pointed, and touching."—King's Highway.

HEAVEN; ITS HOPES, ITS INHABItants, its Riches, its Rewards. By D. L. MOODY. 32nd THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Limp Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Scattered throughout this volume are many direct home-thrusts at fashionable follies, many sharp rebukes of unrighteousness, much serious and urgent exhortations to Christliness of life, and many solemn warnings of the sad consequences of disregarding the love and mercy of the Saviour."—Primitive Methodist.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

By D. L. MOODY. 9th THOUSAND. Tinted Covers, 4d.; Cloth Limp, 6d.

CHEAP EDITION, for General Distribution, 2s. per doz., post free.

"The moment a man takes hold of the truth that Jesus is coming back again to receive his followers to Himself, this world loses its hold upon him. Gas stocks, and water stocks, and stocks in banks and railroads, are of very much less consequence to him then. His heart is free, and he looks for the blessed appearing of his Lord, who, at his coming, will take him into his blessed Kingdom."—Extract.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Packet of Addresses.

By S. A. BLACKWOOD,

Price 1s. per packet.

Alive from the Dead.
Forgiveness of Sins.
Living Waters.
Christ our Passover.
Assurance of Salvation.
God's Command.
Repent and be Converted.
Eternal Life.
The Merits of Jesus Christ.
Christ and the Man in the Tombs.
The Service of Christ.
The Judgment-Seat of Christ.

These Books may also be had separately, 1s. per dozen.

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings:
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SERIES OF SMALL BOOKS.

NETTIE'S MISSION

A Set of 6 Books, suitable for Birthday Gifts, Rewards, &c., for the Young.

Cloth Boards, 6d. each

Superior Edition, Toned Paper, 1s. each.

NETTIE'S MISSION; or, "Hallowed be Thy Name."
LITTLE MARGERY; or, "Thy Kingdom Come."
MARGERY'S HOME; or, "Thy Will be Done."
MAGGIE RILEY; or, "Give us this Day our Daily Bread."
ROSY CONROY; or, "Forgive us our Debts."
NED DOLAN; or, "Lead us not into Temptation."

The Set may be had in a Neat Box, price 3s.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings
and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Complete in One Volume, Handsomely Bound in Cloth extra, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, Price 7s. 6d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS, No. 2.

IN QUARTO SIZE.

Giving the 170 New and Additional Pieces (numbered from 272 to 441).

LARGE TYPE, SUITABLE FOR ORGAN, HARMONIUM, OR PIANO.

Uniform with the Quarto Edition of No. 1 Book of 271 Pieces.

The issue of the New Pieces of SONGS AND SOLOS, of which there are 170, is uniform with the Quarto Edition of the earlier pieces (of which there were 271). By the present publication the new tunes can be obtained in a convenient form for the instrument. And those who already possess the original work can complete their sets, by ordering this edition of the later pieces.

The book will also be published in Eleven Monthly Parts at 6d. each. Part IV. now ready.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

PERSONS SUFFERING FROM ANY KIND OF CHEST DISEASE

SHOULD AT ONCE OBTAIN

Mr. G. T. Congreve's New Work

ON

CONSUMPTION

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, COUGH, ASTHMA,

AND

OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

Containing ONE HUNDRED and THIRTY-THREE SELECTED CASES. It treats of the CAUSES, SYMPTOMS, PROGRESS, VARIOUS STAGES, FALLACIES OF TREATMENT, and of the TRUE TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTION, with valuable instructions as to DIET, AIR, EXERCISE, MENTAL EMOTIONS, and everything bearing on the matter that is needed to be known. POST FREE for 6d. or 1s. 3d., from ELLIOT STOCK, 62, PATERNOSTER-ROW; or from the AUTHOR, COOMBE LODGE, PECKHAM, S.E.

THIRD SERIES OF WEEKLY CASES.

Notice to the Readers of "THE CHRISTIAN"

WHO MAY BE personally or relatively INTERESTED IN THIS MATTER.

Mr. Congreve will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED BEFORE, in this journal EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK

Case of a YOUNG LADY at MENAI BRIDGE, ANGLESEA.

About thirteen months from the time I write—namely, in December, 1881—I received a letter from Mrs. M——, Menai Bridge, relative to her daughter (a student, aged 21), and requesting my advice upon her case.

This patient was encouraged to apply to me by a notice written by the Editor of the Christian Age.

The symptoms at first were extreme languour, loss of appetite, night perspirations, all the secretions unhealthy, hacking phthisical cough, and loss of flesh all over the body. The patient had been most extensively treated with iodine, and other usual remedies.

I sent her medicines, and prescriptions for liniment, &c., and corresponded with her for about seven months, with little variation of treatment, as there was slow but unwavering progress. In the second month the mother writes me: "My daughter can now leave her room, and come downstairs. In looking back to what she was when I first wrote to you, the change is wonderful."

In June she writes: "My daughter is nearly as well as ever, but intends to continue your medicine for a few weeks longer." (This was wise. It is too often that patients leave off before thoroughly well, and the benefit has been partially lost, and the ultimate recovery protracted.)

The last letter is dated November 25, 1882, in which she writes:—"My daughter has quite recovered, and has now commenced duties as teacher. Make what use you please of her case, as we are well known in this district. I hope it may induce others to seek your aid."

(This patient's address may be had on application.)

Note.—Mr. Congreve's Son-in-law, J. ALEX. BROWN, M.R.C.S., L.S.A., is now associated with him.

Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days.

THE A & H "TASTELESS"

CASTOR OIL

Is pure, active, and absolutely free from odour and unpleasant taste—a result never before attained. "It is taken both by children and adults without the slightest difficulty, whilst its aperient effects are unquestionable. It possesses all the advantages claimed for it."—Lancet.

Of Chemists, at 6d., 1s., 1s. 9d., and 3s.

Sole Manufacturers,

ALLEN AND HANBURYS,

Plough-court, Lombard-st., London.

BRYANT & MAY'S MATCHES.

BY REV. JOHN MACPHERSON.

CHEAP EDITION, Cloth, 2s. 6d. SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION, 1s. 6d.

LIFE OF DUNCAN MATHESON, the Scottish Evangelist.

"This is a book full of interest. It tells of the life-work and success of amost excellent and able lay revivalists of the best sort. No Christian can read it without profit. It is highly calculated to instruct and encourage such of God's servants as make the labour of saving souls the business of their life."—Methodist Family.

LARGE PRINT EDITION, Cloth, 1s. 6d; Paper, 1s.
CHEAP EDITION for Distribution, Cloth, 1s.; Paper, 6d.

THE CHRISTIAN HERO. A Memoir of Robert Annan.

"No better book could be put into the hands of town missionaries."—United Methodist Free Churches Magazine

"We heartily thank the Rev. J. Macpherson, for his well-written, graphic, and telling life of this 'Christian Hero.' It is a book to be read by all, but especially adapted to do good to the working classes."—Baptist Messenger

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY'S FIRST VISIT TO GREAT BRITAIN.

A Graphic Account of the Labours of these well-known Evangelists during their First Visit to this country will be found in

REVIVAL AND REVIVAL WORK.

CHEAP EDITION, Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s. 6d. SUPERIOR EDITION, Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 4s. 6d.

From The Record—"The Author of the 'LIFE AND LABOURS OF DUNCAN MATHESON' is always sure of a cordial welcome from the Christian Public. His publications have been circulated by thousands and even myriads, and many are the testimonies to the value of his soul-stirring narratives of the loving power of faithful Gospel preaching and earnest prayer. We hope that our readers will make the acquaintance of 'REVIVAL AND REVIVAL WORK,' and the interesting details with which it abounds."

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

SCRIPTURAL HOLINESS

NOT

SINLESS PERFECTION.

By CHARLES GRAHAM,

Minister of Avenue-road Church, Shepherd's Bush; Author of "The Highway of Holiness," "The Coming Great Revival," "Memoir of Rev. John Graham," &c., &c.

The Sword and Trowel says:—"So far as we can see, this is a sound book. If this is all that the Holiness people have meant, we cannot make out why there has been so much noise over the matter. To us these new revelations are nothing but the common-places of experimental divinity. With considerable skill and sagacity Mr. GRAHAM has proved his title, and wheeled away much fanatical rubbish. Anything which will promote true holiness has all our heart."

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

RUTH, THE MOABITESS.

A Series of Bible Readings on The Book of Ruth.

By HENRY MOORHOUSE.

"Contains many fresh and original remarks, all tending to practical usefulness; a capital sixpennyworth of commenting on a favourite book."—Sword and Trowel.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

Fry's Cocoa

Guaranteed Pure.

Extract

"If properly prepared, there is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Dr. Hassall.

"Strictly pure, and well-manufactured."—W. W. Stoddart.

"Pure Cocoa."—Chas. A. Cameron, Analyst for Dublin.

SIXTEEN PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED.

EPPS'S (BREAKFAST) COCOA.

GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.

JAMES EPPS AND CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.

BOOKS FOR ENQUIRERS AND CONVERTS.

Books for Enquirers and Converts.

Young Converts; or, Beginners in Zion's Ways. By Rev. R. BOYD, D.D. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

I have been continually asked by young converts where they could get a book in which they might find advice that would be helpful to them. This book seemed just the thing needed at this time. I have known the author, Rev. Dr. Boyd, for many years as a dear father in Israel. I have read his work carefully, and recommend it to all young Christians for prayerful meditation." D. L. Moody

The Way of Life. A Book for Enquirers. By Rev. ROBERT BOYD, D.D. Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth Boards, 1s.

"About fifteen years ago this little book attracted my notice. I read it with interest, and felt so much profited that I re-read it several times, and then circulated hundreds of copies among the soldiers during the American war. The number that then seemed blessed through reading the book has induced me to ask Messrs. Morgan & Scott to republish it, hoping that it may be the means of good in this country, as it has been in America." D. L. Moody

All About Jesus. Thoughts and Reflections on the Person and Work of Christ. By ALEXANDER DICKSON. This book was printed at the express desire of Mr. D. L. MOODY. Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s. 6d.

"The volume sets forth Jesus very much in Scriptural language, for we have counted over 1340 passages of Holy Writ, chastely and lovingly interwoven in the discourses. Throughout, Jesus is the subject of delightful meditation, affection, and adoration." The Methodist.

Addresses to Young Men. By Rev. DANIEL BAKER. With preface by D. L. MOODY. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

"These discourses were designed to be of an awakening character. They were preached (in substance) in numerous revivals, and were blessed to the hopeful conversion of many precious souls, of whom some fifty or more have become ministers of the Gospel. May He who was pleased to bless these discourses when they came from the pulpit, bless them also now." AUTHOR'S PREFACE.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Cloth limp, price 1s.

THE HIGHER CHRISTIAN LIFE.

By REV. W. E. BOARDMAN

Author of "Gladness in Jesus."

"A book full of interesting religious incidents, all of which are related for the purpose of stimulating believing souls to higher things."—Literary World.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"The Christian" will be sent by the Publishers post-free to any address in the United Kingdom, for 13 months, for 6s. 10d., including Double Numbers.

"The Christian" (weekly) and the HERALD OF MERCY (monthly) will be sent to the United States or Canada, for 13 months for $2, which may be remitted by a Two-Dollar Bill.

The Christian:

A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN LIFE, CHRISTIAN TESTIMONY, AND CHRISTIAN WORK.

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT.] [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

No. 681.] THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1883. [ONE PENNY. [POST FREE, 1½d.

CONTENTS.

The Things that God Uses 5	Mr. Moody in Edinburgh..... 9	Decennial Conference in India 16	Gospel Temperance Work 18
Temporal and Spiritual Gifts 6	Reunions in Glasgow 9	Praying for Funds 16	Poetry—"Jesus is Mine" 18
The Churches in Relation to Evangelistic Work 6	Opening at Belfast 11	The Kilburn House of Rest.....16	Missions at Leeds 18
For the Young 7	Evangelists at Work 11	The Gospel in Belgium 16	Work Across the Sea 19
Messrs. Moody and Sankey:—	Notes and Comments 12	Waiting on the Lord 17	A Bible Study 19
Good-bye to Birmingham 8	Farewell to Missionaries 13	The Deepening of Spiritual Life at Cambridge 17	Notices of Books 19
	The Lads of London 14		Letters to the Editor 20

Works suitable for Evangelists, Preachers, and Bible Students.

PUBLISHED BY MORGAN & SCOTT.

Foxe's Book of Martyrs. A Complete and Authentic Account of the Lives, Sufferings, and Triumphant Deaths of Primitive and Protestant Martyrs in all parts of the World. With Illustrations. Complete, handsomely bound in cloth, 10s. 6d.

At a time like the present, when, in Great Britain, Popery, and its evil progeny Ritualism, are both insidiously and openly seeking to gain the supremacy, it is necessary to the well-being of our country that the story of FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS should be regarded as an essential part of the education of our children. The issue of the present edition, at a low price, and in the convenient form of MONTHLY PARTS (16 parts at 6d. each), places this valued book within the reach of almost everyone.

Searching the Scriptures IN ORDER TO ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also, Suggestions for Bible Reading and Study, and a PLAN for CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING. By Dr. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S. London. Cloth, bevelled boards, price 3s. 6d.

"It is impossible to speak too highly of this volume, which is the result of immense labour and consecrated talent. To the Bible Student, the Sunday-school Teacher, or Local Preacher, its aid is indispensable, for it is the most able condensation of larger and numerous works, which places it within the reach of all who aspire to become mighty in the Scriptures, and always ready to give a reason for the hope which is in them."—Christian Age.

John, whom Jesus Loved. Sketch of the Character, Writings, Theology, and Influence of the Beloved Disciple. New and Enlarged Edition. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. With Chromo-Lithographic Views of the "Sea of Galilee" and the "Isle of Patmos." Cloth, bevelled boards, 3s. 6d.

"This is not a book to be taken up lightly, read hurriedly, and carelessly dismissed. It merits, and will reward, a quiet, thoughtful perusal."—The Record.

"Thy First Love." Christ's Message to Ephesus. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. With Chromo-Lithographic Frontispiece. Cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"A clear and thoughtful exposition. Dr. Culross writes in an easy, interesting manner; sometimes quaintly, always pointedly. Many a laggard in the heavenly race would be stirred to activity by reading Dr. Culross' exposition."—Penuel.

"Behold, I stand at the Door, and Knock." Christ's Message to Laodicea. By Rev. Dr. CULROSS. Tinted covers, 1s. cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; cloth extra, 2s. 6d.

"A most opportune book. Would that every professing Christian would thoughtfully and prayerfully peruse it. Sunday-school teachers also would find it immensely stimulating and reviving."—Hive.

The Gospel in Leviticus. Chapters on the Old Testament Foreshadowings of the Great Redemption. By the late Rev. Dr. FLEMING, of Kentish Town. Cloth, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.

"The subject is set forth with a clearness, a directness, and a persuasiveness which leave little to be desired. Every lover of sound Scriptural theology, especially in regard to the momentous doctrine of the Atonement, will find in the book a rich treat."—Baptist Magazine.

"A choice volume. . . . We have little doubt the book will have a wide circulation, and, we trust, deepen the interest in many minds for the typology of the Old Testament."—Young Men's Monthly Notes.

The Gospel according to Moses: as seen in the Tabernacle and its Various Services. By Rev. GEORGE RODGERS. Frontispiece. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s.

"No young Christian, and especially no preacher, should be ignorant of the truth which this small volume very simply but very forcibly enunciates."—The Record.

"A very spiritual as well as instructive little book, the Saviour being typically portrayed in the Tabernacle, the High Priest, and the Sacrifices."—Churchman.

Cruden's Concordance TO THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS. Handsomely bound in cloth, price 7s. 6d. Popular Edition, cloth, 5s.

THE SPECIAL FEATURE in this Edition is the NEW TRANSLATION, Revision, and Extension of the PROPER NAMES of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENTS, with their Meanings in the Original Languages. By Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A., Author of "The Proper Names of the Old Testament Scriptures, Expounded and Illustrated."

For nearly a century and a half CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE has held its place in public estimation. No minister's study has been deemed to be properly furnished without possessing a copy of this treasured book.

Notes for Bible Readings. A Collection of over Six Hundred Subjects, carefully compiled and arranged. Suitable for Bible Readings, Cottage Lectures, Sermons, Addresses, Sabbath-school Lessons, &c. Cloth, bevelled boards, 3s. 6d. A cheap edition may also be had in tinted cover, 2s. 6d.

"This is a book which every Bible student should possess. It will be of special value to the class-teacher, and an assistance also to the preacher. It brings together an immense number of subjects, with groupings of Scripture texts on each. It supplies valuable matter for private meditation; and those who conduct Bible readings will find it most suggestive."—Christian Progress.

Life more Abundant, and other Addresses. By THEODORE MONOD. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth boards, 1s. 6d.

"Those who are working for the Master, and desire to be a blessing to others, will find it helpful. It is worthy of commendation, especially to the young."—Edinburgh Daily Review.

"Sweet, Spiritual, and Simple."—Sword and Trowel.

The Gift of God. A Series of Addresses. By THEODORE MONOD. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth boards, 1s. 6d.

"Clear, simple, and forcible presentation of Gospel truth, and as definite and practical in their tone as Pastor Monod's teaching is wont to be."—The Friend.

Calls to Christ. A Series of Addresses. By Rev. W. R. NICOLL, M.A. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

"Force and freshness are eminently the characteristics of these 'Calls to Christ.' They are also brief to a proverb, and hence they may be of great service to an earnest evangelist who knows how to use another man's thoughts."—Sword and Trowel.

Bogatzky's Golden Treasury of Texts for the Children of God. A Series of Scripture Texts and Meditations for every Day in the Year. Suitable for a Birthday or Marriage Gift.

"BOGATZKY'S GOLDEN TREASURY" has been translated into nearly all European languages, and has obtained an enormous circulation in Germany and in Great Britain. In this country very few books, except the Pilgrim's Progress, have been so largely circulated or so widely read.

CHEAP EDITION, Cloth back, 2s.; Toned Paper, Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

PRESENTATION EDITIONS { Leather back, Leatherette sides, gilt edges, 3s. 6d. / Whole bound in Leather, gilt edges, 5s.

Christ Lifted Up. Meditations on the Death, Resurrection, and Ascension of our Lord Jesus Christ. By Rev. ROBERT GILCHRIST. Cloth, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.

"The subject from beginning to end is well thought out, and the volume altogether is well fitted to be at once edifying and awakening."—Free Church of Scotland Monthly Record.

"The fulness of Christ for every need of fallen humanity is set forth in a clear, convincing, and attractive manner."—Christian Week.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Institutions.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS are received at the HOUSE OF REST, Kilburn, and the Seaside Branch, Eastbourne. Also, Missionaries from abroad. All must be well accredited.—Miss MASON, 7 and 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn-park, N.W.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., High-street, Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving from Follie a parcel of clothing and 1s.

The Infant Nursery opens daily at 7.30 a.m. The Day Schools commence in the morning at 9, Afternoon at 2. A Children's Service every Wednesday Evening at 6.30. Special Classes and Clubs for Little Girls every Thursday evening at 6. Sewing Classes for poor Women on Mondays and Wednesdays at 3 p.m. Sunday Schools, Morning, Afternoon, and Evening. Classes for Elder Girls and Young Women on Mondays and Thursdays at 8 p.m., Saturday Afternoon at 4, Sundays, 2 p.m. Recreation Evening, Wednesdays at 8.30. Mothers' Meetings on Tuesday at 3 and 6 p.m. Evangelistic Services every Sunday Evening in the Large Room, and in the kitchens of seven Lodging Houses. Other Missionary Agencies in operation.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post Office Orders should be made payable at 68, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

A STEAM LAUNCH for Malta Sailors' Mission.—It will be ready in a few weeks, only £100 more required to complete, send out, and start on its mission of mercy. Amount needed before March 31st. Will a friend of Malta send it, or any sum? to EDWARD W. MATTHEWS, Sailors' Institute, Shadwell, London, E.

MISS M. L. WHATELY'S MISSION IN CAIRO.—A Stall in behalf of the above, will be held at the United Bazaar, at the Royal Albert Hall, in April next, in connection with the Society for Promoting Female Welfare. Contributions of work, &c., will be thankfully received by Mrs. WHATELY, 21, Belmont-park, Lee, S.E.; not later than Wednesday, April 11th.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, College-avenue, Hackney, London, E.—Subscriptions are greatly needed to assist in maintaining the children, and to pay off the debt upon the building. Contributions gratefully received by Miss RYE, or Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

WILL ANY CHRISTIAN give, or help to purchase, a Magic Lantern, to assist in carrying on children's services and temperance work? All communications to W. A. G. THICKNESSE, Bradninch, Devon.

WOULD ANY CHRISTIANS who may have the following articles, kindly give them to the Barnawe Mission? A harmonium, a washing machine, a mangle, and second-hand carpets, for the Industrial Home; they are greatly needed. Answers, H., care of Mrs. PENNEFATHER, 68, Mildmay-park, London, N.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, 25, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for contributions in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest gifts in money, clothing, and coal tickets will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

SPIDDAL ORPHAN HOME (in connection with the Bird's Nest, Kingstown.—A friend hearing that there are no funds in hand for the support of the eighty children at present in our Home, has kindly offered £10, on condition that £300 is made up by the 1st April, to meet current expenses of the first quarter. Any special contributions towards the above will be thankfully received by Miss MARY S. DICKSON, or Miss M. E. FRANKS, Hon. Secretary, 21, Lower-Fitzwilliam-street.

GALES AND STORMS. — Crew after Crew of Shipwrecked Sufferers have urgently had to be provided for, besides Relief to Widows and Orphans, by the Shipwrecked Fishermen and Mariners' Royal Benevolent Society, on behalf of which National Institution Contributions are very earnestly appealed for.—Bankers, Williams, Deacon, and Co., Birchin-lane, E.C.; Secretary, W. R. BUCK, Esq., at the Society's Central Office, Hibernia-chambers, London-bridge, S.E.

NATIONAL TEMPERANCE LEAGUE.—A Special Public Meeting, to direct attention to the progress of Temperance in English Christian Churches of all denominations, will be held in the Metropolitan Tabernacle, on Tuesday, 20th February, at 7 p.m. Samuel Bowly, Esq., President of the League, will take the chair: and the meeting will be addressed by the Very Rev. R. Payne Smith, D.D., Dean of Canterbury; the Rev. Charles Garrett, President of the Wesleyan Conference; the Rev. J. A. Macfadyen, D.D., Chairman of the Congregational Union; and the Rev. J. P. Chown, President-Elect of the Baptist Union. Admission Free. Tickets for Reserved Seats—First Gallery, 1s., Central Area, 6d.—may be obtained at the offices of the League, 337, Strand.

SEASIDE CONVALESCENT HOME.—Warmly recommended to readers of The Christian. Protestant and Evangelical. Open all the year. Sunny situation. Food excellent. Funds needed.—For terms, &c., address, Rev. E. FORBES, Christ Church, Clevedon.

GREAT COLEMAN'S, near Ongar, is now opened by Dr. and Mrs. S. C. GRIFFITH to give change of air and rest to educated people of limited means. For particulars, apply to 45, Finsbury-square, E.C.

PASSOVER WINE.—A Lecture (supplementary to one delivered to the Church Homiletical Society, in the Chapter House of St. Paul's, on Nov. 1st, 1881), will be delivered in the rooms of the Medical Society of London, 11, Chandos-street, Cavendish-square, on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 20th, by Norman Kerr, M.D., F.L.S., author of "Wines: Scriptural and Ecclesiastical." Chair to be taken at 3 o'clock, by B. W. RICHARDSON, M.D., F.R.S. Cards of admission to be had from Mr. H. K. Lewis, Publisher, 136, Gower-street, W.C.

MRS. WILKES proposes to be at home every Wednesday from Two till Five o'clock, for the purpose of seeing friends of Rescue Work. Trains from Liverpool-street to St. James-street Station, Walthamstow, every half-hour. "The Elms" is within five minutes' walk of the station. The Elms, Coppermill-lane, Walthamstow, Essex.

HOME FOR DESTITUTE LITTLE GIRLS, The Dale, Upperton-road, Eastbourne, Sussex (late of Plaistow).—Contributions received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT; or Miss LEE, at the above address.

MISSION WORK IN CENTRAL LONDON. — "Martyrs' Memorial Church" Missions for the parish of St. Peter's, Clerkenwell. (Population, 8755.)

1. Northampton Mission, under a Curate.
2. Compton Mission, under a Lay Reader.
3. Ashby Mission, under a Scripture Reader.
4. Spencer Mission, under an Evening Reader.

The whole under the Vicar, the Rev. B. Oswald Sharp (St. Peter's Vicarage, Ashby-street, E.C.), and 12 laymen as Council.

House to house visitation, Bible and Tract distribution, Open-air Preaching services, Schools, classes, and lectures.

"I shall be happy to give my name to your appeal, and enclose a Post Office Order."—Yours faithfully, SHAFTESBURY.

Treasurer, J. D. Allcroft, Esq. Bankers, Barclay, Bevan & Co. Donations received by Messrs. Morgan & Scott.

Educational.

THE WOODLANDS, Hitchin, Herts.—Select Boarding School for Boys. For prospectus apply to the Principal, ISAAC SHARP, B.A., a member of the Society of Friends. Careful personal training. Efficient staff of masters. Excellent recreation grounds.

MONKTON COMBE SCHOOL, near Bath.—Pupils prepared chiefly for Oxford and Cambridge. Reference to Lord Radstock, and many other parents and guardians whose sons are at the School.

BRIGHTON KINDERGARTEN and Educational Home, for children from three to twelve years of age. Thorough preparatory education, combined with Christian training and motherly care.
PRINCIPAL, Dover House, Clifton-hill, Brighton.

MILTON HOUSE SCHOOL for Young Ladies, Plympton (near Plymouth), South Devon.—Limited number received. Home comforts. Advantages for French. References to parents of pupils.

BACKWARD YOUTHS do best under private tuition. In schools these are usually left to inexperienced assistants. Mr. WILLIAM PENN devotes his PERSONAL ATTENTION to such pupils, of whom he receives four or five as Boarders. Candidates are prepared for all PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS. Drawing, painting, and shorthand are included in the terms. A carpenter's shop is fitted up on the premises, and pupils are taught carpentry and joinery. Entrance at any date.—52, Clapton-common, London, E.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for the children of Christian Parents residing abroad.—Miss ARNOLD, 50, Victoria-road, Clapham-common, S.W.

LONDON.—First-class Education for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing, conducted by members of the Church of England, occupying a spacious house in a most healthy locality in the West-end. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate Professors — their health, individual temper, and disposition carefully and tenderly watched over, and the whole system based on Christian principles. — DELTA. Boddington's Library, Notting-hill-gate. W

HIGH-CLASS GIRLS' SCHOOL.—Principal, Miss BASTIN, Glebe-place, Stoke Newington. Efficient Masters and Governesses. Limited number of boarders. Watchful care and home comforts. Pupils prepared for Cambridge Local Examinations. Referees—Rev. GORDON CALTHROP, 3, Highbury Grange, N.; Rev. WILLIAM SPENSLEY, 20, Lordship-park, Stoke Newington, N.

SCHOLASTIC. — For disposal, a Ladies' old-established Day-school, on the South Coast. Principal retiring. No agents need apply. Give real name and address.—PRINCIPAL, care of Mr. Henbest, Bookseller, King's-road, Southsea.

AN EVANGELICAL CLERGYMAN and his Wife receive two or three little girls, to educate with their own daughters, aged 11 and 6. Terms moderate and inclusive.
Mrs. L. S. TUGWELL, The Grove, Tunbridge Wells.

A DAILY GOVERNESS wanted, in a Gentleman's family in the country, for three girls, the eldest 12 years old, to teach English, French, German, music, and drawing. Rooms provided in a house near. Salary, £60.
Mrs. GODDARD, Belsay, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

NURSERY GOVERNESS.—Wanted for Physician's family in Brighton, to take entire charge of three little girls under six. Gentlewoman preferred. Full particulars and photo.
Mrs. G., 8, Lansdowne-place, Brighton.

EDUCATION ON THE CONTINENT.—Can anyone recommend to the Advertiser an old-established Ladies' School in Germany or Switzerland, principally for elder girls, conducted by an earnest Christian Lady of Evangelical principles; one whose first thought for her pupils is to win them for Christ. The air must be bracing. High-class education (in the house), and all the home arrangements those of a Christian family, with individual training. Letter only.—C. H., 42, Camden-square, N.W.

WIESBADEN.—The Misses EIBACH receive a limited number of pupils German and French taught thoroughly, as well as all other branches of science. Healthy situation, English and most liberal diet. Christian influence. References: Rev. Alex. M'Laren, D.D., Manchester; Rev. Llewelyn Williams, English Chaplain, Wiesbaden.

VILLA ST. ROCH, Lausanne, Switzerland.—Ladies' Boarding School.—Special facilities for learning French and German. Fine healthy site. Large garden. Advantageous terms.—References and prospectuses of R. ALLSOP, Esq., 7, Drapers'-gardens, Throgmorton-street, London; or of PRINCIPAL. Escort in April.

A YOUNG LADY, who has been Governess in a family the last three years, is taking her pupil to Germany in June, and can take charge of two other young Ladies. She can well recommend the School she is entering.
L., care of Mr. Swan, Long-row, Nottingham.

A SURGEON'S DAUGHTER (22) seeks re-engagement as Governess in a Christian family. English, music, French, and drawing. Experienced. Good references. Accustomed to and fond of children.
ALPHA, Norfolk House, Brandon, Suffolk.

A GRADUATE OF OXFORD desires post of Tutor in England or elsewhere. Usual subjects, with superior German and French (acquired abroad). Several years' experience in teaching. Good testimonials.
B. A., Granville House, Bedford-park, Croydon.

PARIS.—Misses Wood and Noblette, 26, Avenue de la Grande Armée. Family Boarding House, and Educational Home for Young Ladies. French resident Governess. Professors for painting, music and other branches.

GOVERNESS (Protestant), North German, experienced, good French, English, and drawing, desires re-engagement in Great Britain or Continent. Highest references.—L. D., care of Messrs. Taylor, Publishers, 31, Castle-street, Edinburgh.

NURSERY GOVERNESS.—A Young Lady, who has lately left a first-class School, and can be highly recommended by the Lady Principal, wishes to meet with a situation in a Christian family.—Miss C. S. S., 31, Denbigh-street, Belgrave-road, S.W.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

A RETIRED OFFICER of Evangelical principles, who has had six years' experience in civil employment, wants an appointment as Secretary in a school or public association. The highest references will be given, and full particulars supplied.
Colonel C. M. WHITE, Aylestone-hill, Hereford.

SHORTHAND SECRETARY, 32, good address and experience, wants engagement in Christian work. Christian and total abstainer. Good references. Salary £130.—G., Advertising Offices, 150, Queen Victoria-st., E.C.

MR. J. BROWN, for some years Reader of St. Paul's Home Mission, Upper Holloway, N., is now open for engagements in Revival, Mission, or Gospel Church Army work.
102, Alexander-road, Upper Holloway, N.

MESSENGER, or to look after offices, or any place of trust.—Mr. Hawking, of Blandford Mission Hall, would gladly recommend a Christian man. Married. Age, 31. Good references.—J. E. MORRIS, 3, Prince's-terrace, North End-road, Fulham.

ANY POSITION OF TRUST.—A Lady (35) requires re-engagement. Domesticated and valuable with young children, in teaching and management. Three years' reference. Salary about £30.
S. S., 2, Brandenburgh-road, Chiswick, W.

THE MANAGEMENT of some Christian Institution wanted, by Husband and Wife (without children). Both are business-like, educated, and musical, desiring to be engaged in Christian work.—H., 8, Lind-terrace, Ryde, I.W.

TO CHRISTIANS interested in Evangelical Religion in Bohemia.—Will any lady willing to receive into her family, or otherwise assist to earn a livelihood, a Bohemian schoolmaster's daughter, aged 16, communicate with E. A. H., 30, Henrietta-street, Brunswick-square, W.C.

NO SALARY.—A middle-aged Lady, a Clergyman's daughter, well educated and of considerable experience, desires an engagement as Housekeeper, or other position of trust. Good references.
H. W., Hope Cottage, Rochampton, Surrey.

COMPANION to an invalid or elderly Lady.—A Christian Lady, good linguist, musical, and accustomed to Christian work, desires situation as above. She is willing to undertake housekeeping, to superintend the education of children, or assist in the further education of young ladies who have recently left school. Excellent references.
B. B., Mrs. Potts, Hoole Hall, Chester.

A WIDOW wishes to find a comfortable Christian home (Dissenters preferred) for her daughter (15½), where she could be useful. Very active and willing. Tall and genteel. Total abstainer. Highest references. London preferred.
FLORENCE, 143, Hornsey-road, Holloway, London.

A DEACONESS of the Church of England, Evangelical principles, hospital training, desires a re-engagement. Country parish preferred.—Apply to Head Deaconess, Church Deaconess Home, Maidstone.

ATTENDANT upon an invalid gentleman, or helper to a butler.—A well-educated man, aged 54, very active and sober, would be glad to find such work, being in a state of great poverty through no fault of his own.
T. F. H. SMITH, 82, Wimpole-street, London, W.

A LADY, breaking up her establishment, can highly recommend her three servants:—COOK (good plain), excellent at dairy and baking, nearly 3 years' character. MAID or NEEDLEWOMAN to young people out of nursery, school not objected; or wait on elderly Lady. Age 20. NURSERY-MAID in a gentleman's family under an experienced nurse. Nearly 17. All disengaged 25th March.
L., St. Swithin's, Cribb's Causeway, near Bristol.

AS COMPANION.—A Lady wishes engagement to an elderly or invalid Lady. Would assist in housekeeping. Church of England, Evangelical. Good references.—M. C., Mr. Morris, Bookseller, Camberwell-green, S.E.

LADY HOUSEKEEPER, or Matron.—Re engagement required by a widow Lady, who has had large experience both in public and private Institutions. Experienced in sickness. Excellent references.
M. F., 29, Temple-street, Brighton.

A LADY would be thankful to hear of a situation in a farm-house, for a rough, strong girl of 15, who, with patience and kindness, she believes might become a good servant. Small wages would suffice.
Miss S. J. WALLIS, Eastlands, Basingstoke.

SITUATION WANTED for an active, handy Christian girl, age 16, who has not been from home before. Might be suitable for helping in a little business, or as mother's help, or any employment not sedentary. Her parents are chiefly desirous that she should be with earnest Christian people.—For any particulars, apply to Miss WALLIS, Eastlands, Basingstoke.

AS MAID, or YOUNG LADIES' MAID.—Wanted a re-engagement. Good dressmaker and hair-dresser. Good references. Age 32.—K., care of Miss Stroud, Deaconess House, Mildmay-park, London, N.

BIBLE-WOMAN.—A middle-aged person seeks an engagement as above, or in some sphere of Christian usefulness, or situation of trust. London preferred.
D., Miss Atkinson, 15, Spring-st., Paddington.

A LADY, interested in a motherless girl of 14, is anxious to find a situation for her in the country. Wages not an object, but a comfortable home and good domestic training desired.
Miss J. GLOVER, Merton Lodge, Highgate.

MOTHER'S HELP.—A Young Lady, of cheerful disposition, fond of children, and who understands household duties, would be glad to meet with a situation in a Christian family.—Miss H. M. S., 31, Denbigh-street, Belgrave-road, S.W.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

LITERARY. — Wanted, an experienced Christian, of pronounced Evangelical convictions and Evangelistic sympathies; a lover of the Bible; well taught in doctrine; of good education; with a portion or the whole of his time at command.—R. S. R., care of Messrs. Unwin Brothers, Gresham Press, 71A, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

PARTNERSHIP.—Wanted, an active Christian man, with £750 capital, as Partner in a Wholesale and Retail Cream and Milk business. To occupy a seven-roomed private house and business premises
G. D., care of May's, 159, Piccadilly.

YOUTH wanted, with two years' experience in Invoice writing; quick at figures.
53, Bread-street.

SHOEMAKER.—Wanted, an active, intelligent young man, whose character will bear the strictest investigation, a thoroughly good workman, well up in sewed and riveted work, to teach the trade to the inmates of a Reformatory School. Preference will be given to an abstainer, and who has had experience with boys. A knowledge of music an advantage.—Apply, stating age, previous experience, and wages required, to JOHN MCGILCHRIST, Stoke Farm Reformatory, Bromsgrove.

A CHRISTIAN LADY wanted, not under 20, to assist in the school-room and general work of a small Orphanage for the middle-classes. Music and French required. Remuneration offered, board, laundress, and medical attendance, with a small allowance for clothing, and lessons, if required.—Miss MARGARET GREEN, Orphans' Home, Sibton, Yoxford, Suffolk.

A MATRON wanted, for an Institute in Dublin for Fallen Women.—A Christian Lady would find here a large field of usefulness. Must have some experience in the work, also good business capacity. Salary, at first, £40 per annum, with board and residence.—Address, with copies of Testimonials, Rev. J. S. FLETCHER, 30, Great Charles-street, Dublin.

SUPERINTENDENT REQUIRED.—One accustomed to Christian work among young women, and able to efficiently undertake the household duties of a large Home. Age not over 30. Total abstainer. No testimonials or recommendations to be forwarded. Address by letter only to JOHN SHRIMPTON, Esq., 38, Lincoln's-Inn-fields, London, W.C.

CAMBRIAN INSTITUTION FOR THE DEAF AND DUMB, SWANSEA.—ASSISTANT MATRON and TEACHER wanted. Age 25 to 35. Qualifications: high Christian character, sound English education, experience in domestic management and teaching. Special experience with the Deaf and Dumb not indispensable. Salary £30 per annum, with board, &c. Particulars from Principal. Applications, with copies of testimonials and certificates, all in own hand-writing, to the Hon. Secretary, Mr. JOSEPH HALL, Grosvenor House, Swansea.

MISSION WOMAN.—Wanted, a good Christian woman for parochial work. Church of England. £25 per annum and room.—THE VICAR, 119, St. Georges'-road, Southwark, S.E.

MOTHER'S HELP.—Wanted, a well-educated Christian young Lady, domesticated, good needlewoman, and who can teach music. Church of England.
THE VICARAGE, 110, St. George's-road, Southwark.

MISSION NURSE wanted for visiting in poor district. Decided Christian. Must have had practical experience in Hospital or similar work.—DR. SAUNDERS, London Medical Mission, 47, Endell-street, St. Giles.

DRAPERY TRADE.—Wanted at once, a young Lady to take charge of Fancy Department, and one for Ribbon and Trimming Department.—Apply, stating salary required, and send carte, to S. NEALE & SONS, Hertford, Herts.

A HEAD NURSE, or Nursery Governess, wanted in a Clergyman's family. Four children, eldest nearly six. Churchwoman. Good needlewoman. Lady's recommendation valued.
MRS. ALDOUS, Stoke Fleming, Dartmouth, Devon.

LADIES' MAID, HOUSEKEEPERS.—A Lady of good family, in delicate health, seeks a superior Christian person to attend upon her, assist her in general superintendence, walk with a little child. Strong health. Member of Church of England. Not under 35. Good plain dressmaking, millinery, and needlework. Man and wife kept. Remuneration, including allowance for beer, tea, sugar, laundress, £30. Present invaluable attendant leaving through consumption.—M. L., Rice's Library, King's-road, Chelsea.

A BIBLE-WOMAN NURSE wanted (must have had Hospital training) to work under a clergyman.—Mrs. THORNTON, St. Barnabas Vicarage, Addison-road, Kensington, W.

A HOUSEMAID wanted, at Tunbridge Wells, to do the lighter part of housework, wait on a lady and gentleman, and a good needlewoman.—Apply by letter to the care of Miss GRAY, 10, Bedford-place, Brighton.

A WORKING LAUNDRY MATRON wanted; able to wash, iron, and get up fine things. Well able to teach girls. A Christian much valued.—Miss BECKINGSALE, St. Ann's-street, Salisbury.

AS PLAIN COOK.—Can any Lady recommend a steady, faithful woman? Wages £18; or £20 if found suitable after a year. Everything found but beer. Early rising.
Mrs. NEWCOMB, 102, The Common, Clapton, E.

COOK-HOUSEKEEPER.—Wanted in a small family of three persons, a thoroughly good and truly Christian Cook-Housekeeper. She must understand her duties in every particular, be a first-rate cook, understand a dairy, and be able to take the partial management of a household of ten servants.—Apply by letter to S. G., Belvedere, Wimbledon.

COOK (good Plain) wanted in a Christian family, age about 27.—Total abstainer preferred. Two other servants kept. A thorough general servant would do. Wages about £17 and all found. Letter only,
T. P. P., 59, Mark-lane, E.C.

A GOOD PLAIN COOK required in a quiet Christian family. Wages £20. Between 30 and 40. Very steady and active. Abstainer.
C. STUART, Stokeleigh, Torquay.

AS HOUSE AND PARLOURMAID.—Wanted, a Christian young woman; one who thoroughly understands her duties, and a good needlewoman. Under-housemaid kept.
Mrs. WILKINS, Westfield, Alstone, Cheltenham.

A GOOD LAUNDRESS wanted in a House for fifteen young women; also, MATRON'S ASSISTANT. Must be total abstainers.—Mrs. WILKINS, Headingley, Leeds.

HOUSEMAID wanted.—She must be a good needlewoman and thoroughly understand her duties. One who is a Christian and abstainer desired.
Mrs. BRODIE, 3, Devonshire-place, Eastbourne.

CAN ANY LADY or Clergyman recommend a trustworthy, competent General Servant? A small Christian family; another servant kept. Must be abstainer, and early riser.
N., 9, Maxilla-gardens, Notting-hill.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL,
40, Bedford Place, Bloomsbury Sq., London, W.C. This First-class Private Hotel is close to the New Law Courts and the British Museum. Spacious Coffee and Ladies' Drawing-rooms, and Private Sitting-rooms. Rev. R. MILNE, Abbey Church, Edinburgh, writes:—"Quiet, cleanliness, comfort, and moderate charges, are the characteristics of this house." Also recommended by Dr. ALGERNON DOBBIE, Oldham; Rev. J. GARWOOD, M.A., London City Mission; Dr. YOUNG, Florence.
Tariff on application to Miss PERCY.

WEST CENTRAL HOTEL.
97, 99, 101, Southampton-row, London, W.C.
Patronised by numerous readers of The Christian. Plain Breakfast or Tea, 1s. 3d. Beds, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. Tariff on application to FREDERIC SMITH.

LONDON.—MRS. GREATLEY'S Christian Boarding-House is highly recommended for comfort, economy, and being convenient to all parts. References kindly permitted to the Rev. Dr. THAIN DAVIDSON. Terms from 2s. 6d., bed and breakfast.
17, Tyndale-place, Upper-street, Islington.

BLACKHEATH.—A Lady residing in one of the best positions at Blackheath, is anxious to meet with two or more Christian Ladies, willing to board with her. References exchanged.
E. B., 13, Kidbrook-park-road, Blackheath, S.E.

LARGE, NEWLY DECORATED DRAWING-ROOM, combining sitting and bedroom, or bedroom, with or without partial board; suitable for a Lady or City Gentleman. Christian people. No children. Near church, station, and cars.—A., 77, Mildmay-grove N.

A COMFORTABLE HOME offered for a time to a young person, in return for slight domestic help. Cheerful companionship and assistance in needlework principally required.—H., 162, Queen's-road, Dalston.

A DOCTOR IN PRACTICE, Crystal Palace district, is open to give board, residence, and medical attention to one or two Invalids, or persons needing attention; to such, a bright, cheerful Christian home is offered. Terms reasonable. Highest references.—DOCTOR, Mrs Gearing, Lordship-terrace, Lordship-lane, S.E.

A CHRISTIAN MEDICAL MAN, a total abstainer, wishes to receive one or two young gentlemen as boarders. Terms moderate. Medical students could see practice and be assisted in their studies. Near railway-station. By train 10 minutes to London-bridge.—Apply at 1, Burnaston-terrace, Grove-vale, East Dulwich S.E.

THE CONVALESCENT HOME, Copped-hall-green, Waltham Abbey, is now open, and receives respectable poor Women on payment of 7s. per week. Lady Superintendent, Countess of Gainsborough.—Apply to Miss HIBBITT.

A LADY offers Board and Residence (entire or partial) to two or three Gentlemen or Ladies. Genial home; piano. Comfort studied. Terms from 21s.
I. C., 9, St. Mary's-road, Willesden.

A LADY offers a comfortable Home to a Lady willing to pay ten shillings weekly, and help by taking charge of two little children.—HELP, Tappers, 40, Westbourne-grove.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE, 9, Westbourne-square, Upper Westbourne-terrace, W.—Very comfortable home, for visitors to London, or for a permanence. A large and small room now vacant.—Address B.

A MOST COMFORTABLE HOME offered to one or two Ladies, in a private family. Healthy, pleasant locality. Late dinner. Terms 25s. weekly.—SCHNELL, Nunn's Library, 36, Ladbroke-grove-road, W.

TO CHRISTIAN WORKERS wishing to carry on an Unsectarian Mission in their own home.—A very desirable, Country Residence is offered for sale, with handsome Mission Room and good congregation, about 20 miles South of London.
Messrs. DOWSETT & WOODS, 70, Lincoln's-inn-fields.

A HOMŒOPATHIC PRACTITIONER in Midland counties is open to receive into his family an Invalid Lady or Gentleman. All kind consideration given.
BETA, 74, New Bond-street, London.

BOURNEMOUTH, Marlborough.—First-class private Boarding House. Facing the sea, south aspect, close to pier, baths, library; liberal table, every comfort. Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Roberts.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE at BRIGHTON.—Central position, near to the Pavilion, Aquarium, and Piers. Sea view. Liberal table. Every home comfort.—Terms on application to Mr. and Mrs. BOX, 58, Old Steine.

BOURNEMOUTH, Clairville.—Superior Boarding House, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Jackson. Visitors will meet with an excellent family home. Charming sea views. Near church and sea. Most liberal table.

MOST COMFORTABLE HOME offered to a Gentleman in small private family; healthy, pleasant locality, convenient to City. Terms moderate.
C., 5, Hedgerley-park-terrace, Gunnersbury.

HASTINGS, Castle House.—Select boarding establishment. Land and sea views. Sheltered situation. Three minutes from sea. Home comforts. Terms moderate.
Apply to the Misses BIRD and PINDER.

HYDROPATHY.—Dr. OWEN'S establishment, "The Arboretum," Leamington. The mansion is built on gravel, and heated throughout by warm air, which makes it a perfect winter residence for visitors and patients. Electric and all other baths.

INTEMPERANCE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, &c.—Private Home for limited number of Ladies, in a desirable Winter locality. Experienced medical treatment. Christian influence, judicious supervision, and home comforts.
MEDICUS, 9, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE.—Vacancy for two Ladies. Good bed-rooms and sitting-room, piano.—At Eden-villa, Charlotte-street, Leamington. Terms, £1 per week.

COUNTRY HOME or Apartments.—Pleasant, healthy village. Good rooms, South aspect. Garden, orchard, &c. Terms very moderate.—BETA, Meadowcroft, Milton, Chipping Norton, Oxon.

HOME OFFERED to one or two Ladies. Beautiful and healthy neighbourhood. Every comfort. Terms moderate. References exchanged.
E. H., Post-office, Penmaenmawr, N.W.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—First-class Private Boarding Establishment, facing the sea. Conducted with every regard for the comfort of visitors. Excellent references. For terms,
Miss SMITH, Cleve House, 79, Marina.

ST. LEONARDS.—Superior Apartments to be had for a permanency, or otherwise. Every home comfort. Highly recommended by Mr. W. and Mrs. Haslam.
N. B., 66, Marina, St. Leonards.

KONIGSHEIM, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—A temporary residence for Lady Christian workers, or those engaged in tuition, who wish to make a short stay in a quiet Christian home, at a pleasant watering-place.—Further particulars to be obtained from the LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

Apartments, &c., Wanted.

HOLIDAY HOUSE.—Wanted within 30 miles of London, South Eastern or South Western railways preferred. Rent £20 to £30. Cottage in a really country district, not more than two miles from a station. Eight to ten rooms, and paddock required. No sick children will be sent.—Dr. GEO. SAUNDERS, C.B., London Medical Mission, 47, Endell-street, London.

A HOME is sought by a Lady of varied experience, in a quiet family, or Institution, where some time could be usefully occupied. London. Small payment.
ALPHA, 17, Old Cavendish-street.

Miscellaneous.

THE GRATUITOUS SERVICES of a Christian Lady required at the Sailors' Rest, Cardiff, who can speak French, to conduct a Bible-class, &c., in that language.
Rev. A. TILLY, Cardiff.

TO CAPITALISTS ONLY.—Advertiser, age 35, of good connection and fair prospects, total abstainer, thorough business habits and experience, seeks a sleeping partner with £2,000 to carry on a non-speculative business, lately started, in an article of large daily consumption. No person who has failed, and not subsequently paid 20s. in the £, need apply. Liability limited to £2,500, and every opportunity given for investigation. Principals only treated with.—Address, in first place, ENTERPRISE, Stubbs' Mercantile Offices, Nicholas-st., Bristol.

TO BE SOLD, the Lease and Furniture of a Large Temperance Hotel, Gospel Hall, and Large Gardens.
H. HAISMAN, Foots Cray, Kent.

CHRISTIAN PHILOSOPHY.—A Tract for Young Thinkers. Post free, 1 copy, 1d.; 8, 3d.; 20, 1s. 3d. Enclose stamps to Letter Mission, Clapham, S.W.

PURE BEDDING,
Country made, and warranted all through alike. White Feather Beds, purified feathers, Four Guineas; Superior Quality, Five Guineas.
Purified HAIR MATTRESSES, of extra quality. Carriage free, 2½ per cent. discount for cash. Price List on application.
John Tatham & Son, Settle, Yorkshire.

THE NATIONAL THRIFT BUILDING SOCIETY, of 33, New Bridge-street, London, E.C., issue £10 shares, payable in one sum, or by instalments, without entrance fees or fines; the interest, with bonus, for 1882 having been six and seven per cent. Deposits are received for short or long periods, and current banking accounts opened, two and a half per cent. being allowed on the minimum monthly balances. Advances are promptly made, on reasonable terms.

FRANCIS' BRONCHIAL PROTECTOR
Registered.
For BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, TIGHT BREATHING, all THROAT COMPLAINTS. } SURE REMEDY
Mr. J. D. Fisher, Chemist, Blackpool, says:—"I have tried it myself, and have received great benefit from it. My customers speak highly of its virtues." Of Chemists, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., or for Stamps sent to
FRANCIS & CO., Belgrave Gate, LEICESTER

THE WEST END SANITARY STEAM LAUNDRY,
LAUNDRY ROAD, FULHAM, S.W.
WANTED, the NAMES of First-class Laundry Hands, MALE and FEMALE, to live in the Cottages provided by the Firm. Total Abstainers preferred.—Apply to Mr. HOWLAND, Manager.

Publications.

MRS. GRIMKÉ'S TEXT CARDS.
This Gospel work, carried out at great labour and self-sacrifice, can be largely extended in heathen lands by friends using these Cards at home and abroad. Over 20 Foreign languages Assorted packets of 100 of each language, 1s. to 1s. 6d. per 100. New Easter, 1s. 6d. other English, from 1s. 6d. to 3s. per 100. Lighthouse Tracts, 1 to 4, 4s. per 100. Bible Story, &c. &c. For lists send stamped addressed envelope to MRS. GRIMKÉ, Prestwich, Manchester.

Invaluable to Preachers of the Gospel.
THE WORDLESS BOOK.
Price 1½d., post free, 2d.; and 3d., post free, 3½d.—F. S. Mackie, 7, Queen-street, Ipswich; W. H Brown, 25, Paternoster-square, London.
Price 1d.; post free, 1½d.
A KEY TO THE WORDLESS BOOK.—By Rev. J. B. WHEELER, Ipswich.—F. S. Mackie, 7, Queen-street, London; E. stock, 62, Paternoster-row.
Forty-fifth Thousand. Price 1d., post free, 1½d.: 9d. per dozen, post free, 9½d.
"WHY AM I NOT A CHRISTIAN?" By an OFFICER.
FIFTY QUESTIONS ANSWERED IN THE WORDS OF SCRIPTURE.—F. S. Mackie, 7, Queen-street, Ipswich; Houghton & Co., 10, Paternoster-row, London.
Price 1d.; post free, 1½d.
THE COMING OF THE LORD, AND THE END OF THE AGE.—By HENRY VARLEY. F. S. Mackie, 7, Queen-street, Ipswich; J. F. Shaw & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, London.

By the Author of "Every Day."
LOOK UNTO HIM.
The Saviour of Men Held Forth under a Variety of Scriptural Images.
The late HENRY BEWLEY, of DUBLIN, issued nearly NINE MILLIONS of separate parts of this little work. A Copy, in neat Cloth sent post free by J. C., Oak-gate House, Taunton.

Bagster's Bibles IN FRENCH MOROCCO CIRCUIT. ELASTIC BAND. Facsimile, Maps, References, Helps 4/-

PORTRAITS! PORTRAITS!! PORTRAITS!!! Faithfully painted in oils from one guinea. Testimonials post free. Send approved Photograph.—G. R. GILL, 26, Leighton-road, London, N.W. 1 Thess. v. 25.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a remedy for affording immediate relief.
C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

WASHING WANTED. Excellent accommodation. Long established. Best references. Moderate terms. Quick and punctual delivery.
DAVIES, 89A, Latimer-road, W.

Twelfth Edition, Post-free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A Treatise on the only successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., F.R.S.L., F.C.S., &c., 5, Bulstrode-street, Cavendish-square, London.
London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

PIANOFORTE by Collard & Collard.—Sweet-toned, full compass cottage trichord, cost 65 guineas, to be sold for 35 guineas. Another in walnut, 23 guineas. American Organ, 11 stops, rich tone, 26 guineas. Beautiful condition; sent on approval. Real bargains.—Gloucester House, Bowes-park, N.

McCALL'S
PAYSANDU OX-TONGUES.
IN TINS, READY FOR IMMEDIATE USE.
Sold by all Grocers.

[Carried to page 23]

THE MAGNET.

ACCORDING to Dr. Siemens, the marvel of the present day is the Telephone, the action of which depends upon Magnetic principles; for Magnetism is the basis of most of the great scientific discoveries of the age; indeed, some adaptations of Magnetism have become a personal advantage to multitudes upon whom the Electric Light may never shine. However great the triumphs of Electrical science have been, Magneto-Electricity is employed in the art of healing with the most brilliant results; for whatever tends to preserve health and restore life is worth far more than any of the conveniences of civilisation.

Much has been said about Galvanic-Electricity; in skilful hands it has been, and may be used with success; but Galvanism is, nevertheless, in its application often of a painfully irritating character, because it must come into direct contact with the body, whilst Magnetism possesses all the efficacy of Galvanism, and is so gentle in its action, and so soothing in its effects, as to preclude the possibility of its being irritating to the most sensitive patient, but is in every sense as admissible as pure air, genial sunshine, or refreshing water. The mightiest forces are the most subtle.

Magnetism can be used with ordinary medicines, without at all affecting them, or being affected by their action. But its chief value is, that it will reach cases which ordinary medicine will not touch. One class of sufferers who derive incalculable benefit from Magnetism, are people of overworked brain. In such cases, the physician usually prescribes complete rest and a total change of air, medicine being of little use; but Magnetism will produce all the effects of mountain air and sea breezes, and yet demand no cessation from work. In chronic weaknesses it is especially efficacious, its mild but mighty influence speedily making itself apparent. It vitalises, stimulates, strengthens, and renews; as the following statements will show:—

THE PRESIDENT OF THE WESLEYAN CONFERENCE (REV. CHARLES GARRETT) who is not related to MR. B. COPSON GARRATT, has gratefully acknowledged the services rendered by the latter, as follows:—

"Your treatment has been of great benefit to me; I have also watched its effect on others, and the results have been most satisfactory. To all my friends who are ailing I say 'Consult Mr. Garratt.' Many of them have followed my advice, with the most gratifying results. The work in which you are engaged has my heartiest sympathy and co-operation."

A. ENGLAND, Esq., South Parade, Leamington.

Feb. 12, 1883.

"I have very much pleasure in bearing testimony to the beneficial results from the use of your Magnetic Appliances. Three years ago I suffered from Headache almost continuously, and a constant feeling of weariness and unfitness for business. After wearing your Appliances I gradually recovered to a moderately strong man. Headache less frequent; seldom feel over-tired, and it is a pleasure to go about my business. I most strongly recommend Magnetism as a remedy for many of life's ills. A lady friend of our family, living in New Zealand, was a confirmed invalid—had not left her room for months, all the doctors had declared the case past their treatment. You prescribed for her, and to the surprise of all her friends she is able to go out for short walks, and a living wonder.

Mr. Garratt has, in various papers, endeavoured to convey an intelligent idea of what his method of treatment is calculated to effect. Many who are needing such a remedy would certainly confide themselves to his treatment if they were convinced that his assertions could be relied upon. The names of nearly 800 persons whose veracity no one will venture to question, and who can testify in similar terms to the above, will be forwarded if desired.

On receipt of particulars of any case in which advice is sought, the fullest information will be forwarded, and the required treatment suggested, gratuitously, by Mr. B. COPSON GARRATT, 16, Finsbury-square, London, E.C.

Memories of Melrose;

OR,

PERSONAL NOTES OF THE ROYAL HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES, PUTNEY HEATH.

WITH FIFTEEN ILLUSTRATIONS.

The Board invite a perusal of the above Pamphlet; it is especially calculated to interest the Young. A Copy will be sent, free of charge, on application to

FREDERIC ANDREW,
106, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Secretary.

"A beautifully prepared pamphlet, the story of the work well told, and the engravings, on every second page, of superior excellence."—The Christian.

Ready for Publication, Price 1*d.*

"BE STILL:" The NEW YEAR'S ADDRESS for 1883. By LORD POLWARTH.

Ready, 2d., the Second Issue, making the Eighth Thousand,

A THREEFOLD STORY.

By LORD POLWARTH.

I. THE GLIMMER; or, Only a Ray.
II. THE GLOAMING; or, Light in the Evening.
III. THE GLORY; or, Unto the Perfect Day.

Orders for One Dozen or more, post free.

Kelso: J. & J. H. RUTHERFURD, 20, Square.

Enlarged Edition, pp. 360, bound, 1s., or 14 stamps.

HOMŒOPATHIC FAMILY INSTRUCTOR. By Drs. RICHARD and WASHINGTON EPPS. Describes fully and prescribes for general diseases.

LONDON: JAMES EPPS & CO.,
48, THREADNEEDLE ST., and 170, PICCADILLY.

HOW TO READ THE BIBLE.

7th Edition. 41st Thousand. 6 copies for 6d.

This momentous question answered. A little book of great importance. Every reader of THE CHRISTIAN is STRONGLY RECOMMENDED to procure copies IMMEDIATELY.

Readers of it thus write:—"A most excellent work." "Invaluable." "Supplies a great want." "I pray that every household in England may possess copies." "Valuable little book." "Seems so valuable." The Christian Union says:—"An excellent little treatise. . . Its suggestions are full of meaning. . . The book is being greatly appreciated."—Apply to Rev. C. LYNE, Westgate-on-Sea, Thanet, enclosing ½d. addressed wrapper; or MARSHALL BROTHERS (office of Life of Faith), Amen-corner.

WINNING WORDS.

A New Series of Text Cards. Envelope shape. Illustrated with Etchings. Price Sixpence, post free.
JOHN G. WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park, London, N.

Neatly printed on tinted paper, suitable for enclosing in Letters or for General Distribution.

Price 6d. per packet of 12 Tracts.
3s. 6d. per 100, either assorted or of any separate Tract.

"GLADNESS OF HEART" TRACTS.

A Series of Narratives, each complete in itself, recording striking Conversions.

BY

J. P. WILSON,

Author of "Gladness of Heart," &c., &c.

CONTENTS OF PACKET.

1. A Young Clerk in the Last Century.
2. A Prize Runner. A Beershop-Keeper's Daughter.
3. A Preacher brought to Christ.
4. Ignorance of Sin.
5. George Robinson, of Grasmere.
   Dr. Edmund Staunton.
6. Time required for Conversion.
   "I've Found the Lord." A Young Pharisee.
7. Conversion of an English Heathen.
8. Found of One who Sought Him not.
   "How long have you to Live?"
9. A Weary One finding Rest.
10. Finding the Pearl of Great Price.
    "The Sorrows of Death."
11. Mary Harrison, of Havant.
12. Count Zinzendorf.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

HODDER & STOUGHTON'S LIST.

Works by Mrs. G. S. REANEY.

NEW TEMPERANCE STORY.

1. DAISY SNOWFLAKE'S SECRET A Story of English Home Life. Elegantly bound, 5s.

"Daisy's character is a charming one."—British Quarterly.

"Winning in style, pure and earnest in tone, and of commanding interest."—Daily Review.

2. MORNING THOUGHTS FOR OUR DAUGHTERS. Handsomely bound, 1s. 6d.

3. OUR DAUGHTERS: Their Lives here and hereafter. Fifth thousand, 3s. 6d., cloth.

"A thoroughly wise and helpful book."—Christian.

4. OUR BROTHERS AND SONS. Elegantly bound, 3s. 6d.

"One of her best books, written in excellent English, and with a racy, earnest pen."—Evangelical Magazine.

NEW WORK BY DR. GORDON OF BOSTON.

Just Published, Crown 8vo., 3s. 6d.

IN CHRIST; or, The Believer's Union with his Lord. By A. J. GORDON, D.D. of Boston, U.S.

"Full of fresh, devout, and suggestive thought, pithily expressed."—Freeman.

"Dr. Gordon's excellent book . . . very clear, vivid, and interesting."—Methodist Recorder.

DR. GORDON ON FAITH HEALING.

THE MINISTRY of HEALING; or, Miracles of Cure in all Ages. By A. J. GORDON, D.D.

"A remarkable book, the production of an accomplished writer deeply impressed with the truth for which he pleads."—Methodist Recorder.

Now ready, in 8vo., price 1s.

FALLACIES of FUTURISM: A Reply to Futurist Objections to the Historic Interpretation of Prophecy. By Mr. and Mrs. H. GRATTAN GUINNESS. Being an Appendix to "The Approaching End of the Age" (8th Edition, 7s. 6d.).

This day, in 8vo., 6s.,

THE GREAT MEMORIAL NAME; or, The Self-Revelation of Jehovah as the God of Redemption. By P. W. GRANT, Author of "The Bible Record of Creation," &c.

London, Hodder & Stoughton, 27, Paternoster-row.

Just published on card, 16mo., 2s. 6d. per 100.

SEVEN PLAIN REASONS FOR WEARING THE BLUE RIBBON.

Crown 8vo., 3d.

CHRIST'S SACRIFICE AND CROSS.

By MARCUS DODS, D.D.

Edinburgh: MACNIVEN & WALLACE.

BIBLE READINGS,

By HENRY MOORHOUSE.

Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.

"We do not wonder that those who heard Moorhouse's Bible Readings found them full of power and suggestion. To him the Word of God was a sword—the only one worth using in spiritual warfare."—Liverpool Courier.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And of all Booksellers.

Cloth limp, price 1s.

THE HIGHER CHRISTIAN LIFE.

By REV. W. E. BOARDMAN

Author of "Gladness in Jesus."

"A book full of interesting religious incidents, all of which are related for the purpose of stimulating believing souls to higher things."—Literary World.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST. FIRST ESTABLISHED 1825.

NEAVE'S FOOD FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS.

LANCET—"Carefully prepared and highly nutritious."
BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL.—"Well adapted for children, aged people, and invalids."

IN ONE-POUND ONE SHILLING CANISTERS.

SOLD EVERYWHERE. WHOLESALE OF THE MANUFACTURERS,

J. R. NEAVE & CO., FORDINGBRIDGE, ENGLAND.

The Christian.

THE THINGS THAT GOD USES.

AN ADDRESS TO CHRISTIANS,

By Mr. D. L. MOODY,

At Noon Meeting, Edinburgh, Thursday, Feb. 8.

IN 1 Cor. i. 27, 28, we read of five things that God hath chosen:—

"But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are."

I believe there are a great many Christian people all over Christendom who are crying out for work; they say they want to be used of God. I do not think I have ever seen such blessed times as during the past six months. Everywhere I have found that there is a longing to engage in Christian work. Yet there are few people who seem really willing to launch out into the deep; they think they have not got the requisite ability. Now I am quite sure we are looking at this matter in a wrong light. We forget that God uses the weak, the foolish, the base, and the despised things. I had a little tract given to me a few months ago that made a deep impression on me. It was entitled,

"WHAT IS THAT IN THINE HAND?"

These words were spoken by God to Moses when He called him to go down and bring the children of Israel out of Egypt. Moses was trying to excuse himself—pleading that he was so weak, and all that; he wanted God to send some one else. "What is that in thine hand?" said God. It was only a stick—he could probably have gone among the bramble bushes and cut a hundred sticks better than it. Little did he know what God was going to do with that rod—that He meant by means of it to deliver his people from their cruel bondage. If one of our modern infidels had met Moses and asked what he was going to do with that rod, and had received the reply that he was going to rescue three million slaves from the bonds of the greatest living monarch, the sceptic would have thought Moses had gone clean mad. Yet how famous that rod became! Through it Moses turned the river into blood. He had but to stretch it out, and the plagues came upon the land of Egypt. See how he used that rod in the desert; he struck the rock with it, and the water came gushing out.

GOD LINKED HIS MIGHTY POWER

with that feeble instrument, and what wonderful results followed. If God could use that rod, cannot He use you and me? You say you have not got talents; use what you have.

I could run along the pages of Scripture and show you many other examples of the way in which God used things that were weak and contemptible in the sight of the world—the blowing of the rams' horns at Jericho, Gideon's little band with their empty pitchers, Samson with the jaw-bone of an ass, Shamgar with the ox-goad.

But some of you say Edinburgh is such a peculiar place; everything must be done "decently and in order." As some one has said of your city: "There is such dignity and death about it." Never mind the dignity, if you can only get one poor soul drawn out of the darkness of eternal death. I would rather hear, at the last, the "Well done!" of my Master than have all the honours the world can bestow. I verily believe we are not going to see a great work of revival in this land until the Church of God wakes up, and each individual member of it improves the talent God has given him. Moses was nothing; Joshua or Gideon was nothing. God did the work; they were but the instruments. People say they have no strength, but the trouble is that they have too much. It is when we become as nothing, and are emptied of our own strength, that God can take us up and make use of us. He will do the work, and He shall have the glory.

I was much cheered in Birmingham by a circumstance I heard of when I returned after an absence of eight years. I was told of a lady who had gone to one of the meetings eight years ago, and heard the speake remark that he "pitied any man or woman who had themselves been in the kingdom of God for any length of time, and never had the luxury of leading a soul to Christ." Then she heard Mr. Sankey sing "Nothing but leaves." She knew that she had never had the luxury of leading a soul to Christ; her profession, up to that time, had borne no fruit. But she set to work, and the first thing she did was to speak to a poor fallen sister in the street. She got so interested in that one woman, that she gave up all her spare time to this class; now she has the names of between 200 and 300 who have been and have been helped back to live pure and useful lives. I think she is about the happiest woman I met in Birmingham.

RESCUED FROM A LIFE OF SHAME,

She thought she had no special ability, but she did what she could, and God has blessed her in the work. It seems to me as if she were one of the most useful women there is in that town to-day. Everyone speaks in the highest terms of her and her work. It is a quiet work, but my experience leads me to think that the people who make the most noise accomplish the least after all. A little brook runs near the house where I was born. When there comes a flood of rain, you can hear the brook rushing and roaring if you are nearly a mile off. But after a few days of sunshine, there is scarcely anything left in it. There is a great river that flows by, and I never heard it in my life. Towns have been built upon its banks and everything prospers where it flows. So this woman has not blown any trumpet, but she is doing a most blessed work.

There was another case of a man in Birmingham who thought he had not much ability, but he went to work and got labouring men out at half-past seven in the morning that he might teach them. Every morning now in the winter, long before daylight, come to the different classes that are being taught; every Sunday 8000 men in Birmingham are there studying the word of God. That man has set a stream of influence in motion that will flow on long after he is gone. Let us be willing to do some little thing. Many Christians are so anxious in these days to get a great name, to have themselves heralded through the Press. We must be willing to do our work in a quiet way, to do it as unto the Lord, and not be looking for any reward from the world. I believe a man who is looking for his reward down here is not qualified for God's service. "The crowning day is coming by and by." If we live for Christ we may not have the applause or the esteem of the world; but if we are his true disciples we shall be willing to do anything He appoints.

EIGHT THOUSAND WORKING MEN

It is astonishing what one person can do when he is ready to use whatever talents he may possess. A lady in Dublin got stirred up during the meetings there eight years ago. She began to take an interest in the prisoners and went to meet them at the prison gates as they came out. It was called the Prison Gate Mission, and now there are hundreds of men and women who have been rescued through its efforts. This lady gave her life to the work of

SAVING THESE CRIMINAL OUTCASTS.

And God has richly blessed her efforts. It might have appeared a very small thing at the beginning, but it has now become a great and glorious enterprise. Things sometimes look small and insignificant to us at first, but if God is in any work, it is not small. The widow's two mites no doubt looked very contemptible in the sight of the rich Jews in Jerusalem. If there had been a reporter on the daily Press hunting about for City items, he would have taken no notice of it. If the Honourable Jacob So-and-So, or some other Hebrew Noble, had given £1000 to the Temple service, or to build a new Synagogue, it would have been blazoned abroad. But we must bear in mind that the Lord looks on things very differently. He saw what was in the heart of that poor widow, and the story of her gift has been told out, clear down the ages, ever since.

People often have false ideas of what the widow's gift was. I once asked a wealthy man in America for a contribution to a charitable object. He said he would give his "widow's mite."

"THEN I WILL TAKE ALL YOU HAVE GOT!"

That was what she gave—she cast her all into the treasury of the Lord.

Mary did not know that she was doing any great thing when she brought out that alabaster box of ointment. But the fragrance of it has come down through all the centuries, and it pervades the Church of Christ to-day. What a blessing it has been to the Church. I do not know that she was a beautiful woman, or a strong-minded woman. I do not suppose she could go on the platform and make a speech; but she could love. You do not find anything particular said about the talents of those friends of Jesus at Bethany, but they loved Jesus, and He loved Martha, and Mary, and Lazarus. I believe a good deal of our work will go for nothing, because we do it in a professional spirit, and not from a true motive. God will just spurn the whole thing. We need to have our service for the Master raised to a higher plane, and to work for Him because we love Him. People are all the time talking about their duty; I am tired and sick of hearing the word. The love of Christ to us, and our love to Him, ought to be our constraining motive power. It is our privilege to be used by God, and if we are not being used by Him it is because we are not ready or willing to be used. If we have not got a constraining love for the Master for souls, let us pray God to fill us with it. Then it will not be hard to go out and work for Him.

CONSECRATION AND CONCENTRATION

are what we need most in Christian work in these days. Let each Christian take up some one department of work, and throw his whole life into it. This is an age of intense concentration in the affairs of the world. You will find that mostly all our great physicians are devoting themselves to the study of one particular branch of disease. So with our leading ən of science; they cannot go the whole and of knowledge. As Christians let us ke hold of one special kind of work, and ish the battle to the gate; then God will ve us the victory.

There is not a child of God here, however eble, whom God will not use, if he or she willing to be used. It is not intellectual social power that is going to reach this erishing world; it is the power of God. I ould rather have one drop of God's power an all the wealth and intellect of the world.
believe Pentecost was only "a specien day." I have no sympathy with the ea that it was a great miracle, wrought once r all, and never to be repeated. The God
Pentecost still lives; we can have Pente-stal blessings still, if we look for them.

In the last six months I have seen greater sults than in any similar period of my fe. I have never seen people so anxious to ress into the kingdom of God. It seems to ne that

THE FIELDS ARE WHITE TO THE HARVEST.

Now is the time for the Church of God to hrust in the sickle and reap. I believe if ny four or five consecrated Christian people vere to get a room, and commence to bring in he people, a great revival would soon break out. We speak and pray about "the set time to favour Zion," but the set time is when we are ready to go to work. God is always ready.

What we need is to lay aside all our formalism and lukewarmness; to be about our Master's business, and let our light shine.
"He that winneth souls is wise." "They that are wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteouness as the stars for ever and ever."
If we are workers for God here we shall shine by and by; but do not let us be ambitious to shine here. When John the Baptist was asked who he was, he just said, "I am Mr.
Nobody." He was but "the voice of one crying in the wilderness." As Dr. Andrew Bonar has said, he was a voice—something to be heard, not seen. Yet he was a mighty instrument in the hand of God; the land shook and reeled under his preaching, because God spake through him. "One shall chase a thousand and two shall put ten thousand to flight." There are hundreds of men and women in this company who could do a mighty work for God in this city if they are only willing to be used by Him.

TEMPORAL AND SPIRITUAL GIFTS.

THE USE OF TEMPORAL GIFTS.

"Using the world as not abusing it."—1 Cor. vii. 31.

Wish for....	them	cautiously.
Ask		submissively.
Want		contentedly.
Obtain		honestly.
Accept		humbly.
Manage		prudently.
Employ		lawfully.
Impart		liberally.
Esteem		moderately.
Increase		virtuously.
Use		subserviently.
Forego		easily.
Resign.....		willingly.

OF SPIRITUAL GIFTS.

"Set your affections on things above."—Col. iii. 2.

Prize	them	inestimably.
Covet.....		earnestly.
Seek for....		diligently.
Ponder		frequently.
Wait for ..		patiently.
Expect		hopefully.
Receive		joyfully.
Enjoy.....		thankfully.
Improve....		carefully.
Retain		watchfully.
Plead for ..		manfully.
Hold		dependently.
Grasp		eternally.

THE CHURCHES IN RELATION TO EVANGELISTIC WORK.

PRIZE ARTICLES

By Rev. EDWD. SMITH, Fairfield, Manchester.

CHAP. VIII.—(Concluded.)

IT is celestially politic to take advantage of a call upon the sick, or a visit in the day of bereavement, for the purpose of giving to the hale and Christless a solemn reminder of eternity. We lose much because we do not let our varied methods work into each other's hands, and because we do not allow one opportunity to give birth to others of a different kind. That church is most to be envied which cunningly weaves into each other the various branches of its Evangelism.

COTTAGE MEETINGS.

Cottage services afford another illustration of this. If discreetly ordered they will commence at the fall of the leaf. A small committee of trusty men should supply the motive power. No need for ostentation, for the blast of trumpets and the piling up of names of prayer-leaders. Else they may, like other new brooms, sweep clean at first, and then fall into disorder and neglect. They should be accompanied by open-air singing and door-to-door applications. If only the pious are there, their end is not fully answered. If the unrighteous are to be got in, the utmost care should be taken to obtain houses whose inhabitants are in good repute with their neighbours. Many cottage meetings are spoiled because this is forgotten. But, withal, they should be considered as the vestibule to the more important services of the preaching room or the Church. If not, it may be found before the winter is over that the gains are of the most nebulous and vanishing kind. For lack of this combination between the cottage and the assembly-house, much that promised well has appeared to dwindle into nothingness.

PERSONAL TESTIMONY.—TO BE WISELY USED.

Testimony also is important. By it, as given from the lips of the poor and simple-hearted, as well as from those of the erudite and well-to-do, many are convinced, upon whose minds preaching would bring little weight. The most complete collapse I ever saw of an infidel meeting succeeded my own plain narrative of what I owed to Christ. I declined to argue, but just asked, "What have you which could change such an one as I used to be into what I now am? This very Christianity, on which you have been trying to pour contempt, has wrought all this for me and in me." That reasoning from experience was felt to be unanswerable, and the forces of the enemy were scattered. Testimony is scriptural. The Acts of the Apostles is full of it. It has been highly honoured of God. Room ought to be found for it in all Church-life, and in all outside labour. Nothing can take its place. Introduced into a sermon, it wonderfully freshens up both preacher and congregation. There is in all this a peril of pharisaism, and another of sameness of speech; but these by watchfulness may be escaped.

But it is not to be made always and everywhere, and to everybody, paramount. The humble in life, the newly-restored, the tenderly solicitous but scantily endowed, must have a place assigned them, but must act in combination with other means. Exposition, preaching proper, the consecrated treasures of secular lore, must be made to the audiences of to-day what they were made to those who listened to the Apostle of the Gentiles. Testimony, in unison with other ordained means, will eventuate in great triumphs. But if they be separated, each will fail in gaining its proper acquisitions.

And in this great business of combination it is most desirable that the pulpit should be rightly occupied. A minister who presents cold abstractions, or a number of pretty symphonies of thought, and nothing else, will mar more than he makes. A lay-preacher who takes to a Mission-room a fifty-minutes' discourse composed in his youth, and smelling of the drawer, had better have stayed at home. By dint of perseverance, a Christ-like enthusiast has got a quantity of strangers into the service. They are compelled to watch mental gymnastics, or to listen to lengthy disquisitions delivered in an unimpressive manner. How wretched feels that Christian worker amid surroundings such as these! Preachers who go straight to the point, use the language of everyday life, acquaint themselves with the real needs of their hearers; these are the men who best combine with the agencies for reclaiming the lost.

PURE LITERATURE.

Sometimes, merely from omission to spend effort in a specified direction, expenditure in other channels is rendered all but abortive. As an instance of this, may be cited the Churches' neglect to spread good literature among the people. In all my journeyings I have only met with one society for the sale from house to house of pure literature, and that was in a small village, and was worked undenominationally. Every Church of any size ought either to form such a society, or to give its quota of workers to a central and comprehensive one.

What is most needed now is the employment of the rank and file of our membership; and here is something most suitable for them. Those who can do scarcely anything else can help in shutting out the bad publications by means of the good. Many who read the evil and senseless stuff now poured out in tons by the printing press, would quite as soon con good books and periodicals, if sufficiently diluted and variegated. Many, who are slaves of impure productions, might, if canvassed and solicited, have yielded long ago to the fascination of healthy and interesting reading.

For lack of such an agency as this, many of the effects of our Home Mission operations and Sunday-school labours are but short-lived. Pernicious prints, to an almost unlimited extent, are being circulated. Only those who have gone among the homes of the labouring classes and have made friends with the newsvendors; only those who have had quick observation and have got important "by-the-way" questions answered, have any idea as to the harm that is being done, and the manner in which the toils of the saints are rendered nugatory by this many-fingered evil. It works quietly, and so is little noticed. It gives an unhealthy stimulus to many young minds, and so leads to drinking and to theatre-going. Surely this little-employed agency for the scattering of pure-toned literature would combine most harmoniously with all other agencies of good.

PARTNERSHIP NOT COMPETITION.

Each worker, then, is to acknowledge the value of the work done by the rest. No man ought to seek to monopolise the monetary or spiritual resources of a Church in pursuance of his own specialty of labour. There should be a sharing out of these resources, and then a combining of those methods of soul-winning in which they flow. We cannot afford to lose the fruition of so much skill and expense just for lack of combination.

And now, what about the united efforts of the Evangelical bodies? Judged broadly, these have had only a modified success. No doubt they have shown the real unity and sympathy prevalent among Churches and ministers. But as far as it concerns positive additions, and the attraction of large crowds of non-attendants, there has been little to encourage. The meetings held by Messrs. Moody and Sankey stand almost alone in their efficiency.

There are reasons for this disappointing result. The preachers of the denominations concerned, and who have acted as conductors, have been a little afraid of each other's members, and have been afflicted with a feeling of strangeness. They had fears of exciting the prejudices of some whose manner of worship differs from their own. And in many cases the Christians themselves have not felt at home. There has therefore been a dearth of pungency and power. Too often the whole affair has got to look like a Turkish plum-pudding.

But what of that? The motive was right, and Divine guidance must be given to sincerity. Experiments nearly always break down at first. A repetition oft renewed will surely bring pastors and people nearer to each other. The general public will be influenced and overawed. Partnership, not competition, will be the rallying cry. Instead of a rivalry as to who shall spend the most in decorating the walls with many-coloured placards, there shall be the "provoking of one another to love and good works." There will be an interchange of pulpits as far as is practicable. Names and sects and parties will be pushed on one side. Instead of each being weakened by the weakness of the rest, each will be strengthened by the strength of the others. An example of successful united services as they have already been held in London will be imitated in the provinces. At any rate, as in R——, there may be a united prayer-meeting at an early hour on the Sabbath, and which shall rotate among the different sanctuaries.

What a boon all this would be, especially in country places! What gaps in social life would disappear! How much religious people would rejoice in the lately-discovered excellences of their fellow-believers! If this combination between Churches be once assured, the words, "For Christ and for souls," will have a new meaning. This will then prove to be the Heroic Age for Home Missions, and posterity shall possess itself of incentives flowing from the present deeds and harmonies of the righteous. More than ever, in days as yet unborn, shall unity be regarded as "the precious ointment on the head," which same ointment "runs down to the skirts of the garments" of our great High Priest.

"WHOSE I AM, AND WHOM I SERVE."

OH, lightest yoke, and truest liberty,
Oh, blessed service, full of joy and peace!
Oh, chains of love, how sweet they are to me!
And never, never will I claim release.

For recompense I want his welcome home,
His word of praise, his smile of tenderest love;
And then to hear Him say, "Come, loved one, come,"
And serve me ever in my heaven above.

B. H.

UNITED METHODIST FREE CHURCHES.—A twelve days' Gospel Mission has been conducted in the Central Chapel, Great Eastern-street and Willow-street, by S. Whitehouse, of Ablecote, Staffordshire, with very blessed results; some very remarkable conversions have occurred.

For the Young.

A YOUNG DISCIPLE.

DEAR SIR,—I want to tell you about some Sunday afternoon meetings for working men which were held in the Circus here. They were commenced in 1880, and are only carried on in the winter. Papa is the chairman the whole of this season. They have a band which plays the hymns, and ladies generally sing solos. The reason why I take interest in these services is, because some day I hope to be a foreign missionary. We have a missionary-box, and we had a bazaar to help it. We (my sister and I) got 10s. in that way. All last year we got £1 2s. 0½d., and this year hope to get more. I saw a request in THE CHRISTIAN for children to write letters, so I thought I would try.—Yours affectionately, Sheffield, Feb. 2. HARRY (10½).

FINE FEATHERS.*

Some little birds are mentioned in the Bible no less than forty times—plain little birds without any gaudy colours, and not very wonderful singers—and even Jesus spoke about them, and in speaking of them left words of comfort and encouragement for you and for me to-day, and for all the people who shall come after us down to the end of the world. Well, if I had my choice, I would rather have been one of those tiny birds looked at by Jesus and spoken of by Jesus, than one of those birds which Solomon used to admire, but which, though they were larger and had richly-coloured plumage, are named only three times in God's Word. If Jesus were upon earth again to-day and looked at a sparrow, and Solomon were here and looked at a peacock, which bird would you rather be?

I don't think we need go very deeply into our Bibles to find that it is possible to be very lowly and very useful, and to be very proud and of not much use to anybody.

Do you remember a reference that our Lord made to King Solomon? Pointing to the lilies growing in the field, he said that the great king "in all his glory" was not arrayed like one of the little flowers; and yet I am sure Solomon had plenty of gold and precious stones glittering about him when he put on his royal robes. If you will turn to 1 Kings x., you will see that what with ivory thrones covered with gold, and gold cups, and gold shields, and ornaments and spices, Solomon had everything very costly about him, and I dare say he was very proud of it all, and forgot who gave it to him; for a little further on we read that "his heart was not perfect with the Lord his God as was the heart of David his father," and that he "did evil in the sight of the Lord."

And in the midst of all this the peacocks we are told of in the twenty-second verse strutted in their pride, and did not do any good to anybody; and very likely, even then, as we do now, people said, "as proud as a peacock."

Now let us take this lesson from them, that it is possible to think a great deal of ourselves and to be of very little use after all.

The sparrow, in his serviceable brown coat, was up with the day-break, picking a bit here and a bit there, working away and saying very little about it beyond a little chirp of thankfulness every now and then, earning his breakfast by doing what God had sent him to do, and carrying a breakfast home to the little ones in the nest; and the other big fellow in his fine suit was almost too lazy to strut upon the marble terrace and to eat the food carried to him; but not too lazy to be proud of his finery—the one lowly and useful, the other proud and useless.

As I think about the two, one of our Lord's wonderful parables comes into my mind, that of the two men who went up into the Temple to pray. The Pharisee, proud of his phylacteries, and standing up before the people to be admired, thanking God that he was not like other men; the other hardly daring so much as to lift up his eyes to heaven, and beseeching God to be merciful to him, a sinner. One proud of his poor rags of self-righteousness and going away satisfied with them, the other ashamed and repentant, and going away pardoned and clad in the white robes of the redeemed.

Don't let any of us be proud. If we possess anything, God has given it to us, and if we are enabled to do anything good, God gives us the power, and without what He gives us we should be poor indeed.

There is, however, another lesson I want you not to forget. In two places where the peacock is mentioned in the Bible he is in very strange company. Both in Kings and Chronicles he is named along with apes, or monkeys, and the apes, too, are mentioned before him, possibly as having the most sense; and proud people are not in good company even when they are alone. The heart that is filled with pride cannot have much room left for Jesus. Where there is self, Christ cannot come.

Jesus has promised that He and the Father will make their abode with those who love Him, but the heart must be emptied of all sinful and silly pride and sinful self before that can be. Ask God to-day to give you new hearts with room in them for Jesus.

There once was a great queen in England, a queen with perhaps as much glory as Solomon's, and when she came to die, for all her wealth and all her glory could not keep off death, it is said that she offered to give her kingdom for a few more hours of life. The heart had been filled with something that made death terrible. How different it is when Jesus is there. I heard a very celebrated man once tell a story of his early days, and how his mother died in the dark, for they were then too poor to afford a candle. She was ready for death, because her heart was full of Jesus, and just before she died she said—and you will find the words in the Book of Revelations, chapter xxii.—"And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light."

Will you ask God to give you the Holy Spirit, and to fill your heart with Jesus, that you may willingly take any lowly place, if it only be at his feet, and that you may be able to say sincerely:

"Forbid it, Lord, that I should boast,
Save in the cross of Christ my God;
All the vain things that charm me most,
I sacrifice them to his blood."

JAMES BOWKER.

* From one of a series of Sunday-afternoon addresses on "Bible Birds," to the children of the Bird's Nest, Kingstown.

TEMPERANCE PRESIDENTS.—The Presidents for the current year of the Wesleyan Conference, the Congregational Union, and the Baptist Union being all total abstainers, the National Temperance League have convened a meeting, to be addressed by the three Presidents, at the Metropolitan Tabernacle on the 20th inst., when the Dean of Canterbury and the venerable President of the League (who is a prominent minister of the Society of Friends) will also take part in the proceedings; the object of the demonstration being "to direct attention to the progress of Temperance in English churches of all denominations."

MESSRS. MOODY AND SANKEY.

GOOD-BYE TO BIRMINGHAM.

CRITICS of great evangelistic movements are not usually well acquainted with that in which they see so many faults. No well-informed resident of Birmingham, at least, will ever be able to say of the work of Messrs. Moody and Sankey that it lacks the element of permanent interest or abiding result. The telling testimony of Mr. Dale, reported in our last issue, is more than sufficient proof of that.

The closing meetings of the Birmingham Mission, held since Mr. Dale's words were spoken, prove it still more abundantly. His estimate of the large numbers attending, falls considerably short of the facts as they refer to these last days. On the evening of Monday, February 5, so many were unable to see the inside of the great Bingley Hall, that it was thought best, for the remaining two days, to divide the sexes. This expedient has only, hitherto, been resorted to on Sundays, when people have unusual leisure and the crowds are largest. Many men in Birmingham belonging to the industrial classes wished to attend the evening meetings, but could not leave their daily toil at an early hour, and so found themselves shut out. It was deemed the fairest arrangement to confine the afternoon meetings of Tuesday and Wednesday to women, reserving the seats at the evening assemblies for men, up to a certain hour.

Before giving his address on Tuesday afternoon Mr. Moody referred to the plans they had laid down, and said he was sure every one of his female audience would see the reasonableness of the arrangement. He had received an abusive letter from a lady stating that it was a heathenish custom thus to separate the men and women. Others had told him that he did not understand the Birmingham people; the wives, it was said, stood by their husbands. He was exceedingly glad to know it, but that was the very reason he wanted so much to have the privilege of addressing these husbands; unless the wives denied themselves a little, he would not have the chance of seeing those friends of whom they thought so much!

The gentler sex, excluded, as a body, from the late meetings, made up for it by coming out in vast throngs in the afternoons. Instead of an average attendance of 4000 in the afternoon, according to Mr. Dale's reckoning, Tuesday and Wednesday saw the leviathan structure filled from end to end, there being only a very few vacant seats in the outlying corners. Mr. Moody discoursed on Tuesday about "Nine New Things"—the new birth, the new creation, the new Nature, the new Way, the new Tongue, the new Song, the new Food—all of them present possessions of the believer—and the new Body and the new Home that are yet to come. On each of these points his remarks were sharp and pointed,

FLYING LIKE ARROWS TO THE MARK.

"As the wearing of a uniform does not make a soldier, so a public profession does not make a man a Christian." "A good test of the new birth is this: Are you overcoming the world, or is it overcoming you?" "Do not flatter yourself that you are converted if you do not forgive your enemies." "Some old divine has said, 'If we resist the devil, he will flee from us; but though we resist the flesh it cleaves to us.'" "A good many Christians fail because they underestimate the strength of their threefold enemy—the world, the flesh, and the devil." "Many are kept from becoming Christians because they think they must step into perfection all at once. Sometimes the Churches look for too much from young converts; we cannot expect them to have rounded Christian characters at a single leap." "If anyone makes a slip, do not go and trumpet the fact all over the town, that Mr. So-and-so has fallen. Do not help the devil to keep him down. Sometimes God's people do the devil's work better than he can do it himself." "I believe the Church is not going to see a great work for God throughout Christendom until she has learnt more about the New Song; a joyful Church is a victorious Church." "Those people who go through the world with long faces and come into a religious meeting as if they were attending a funeral, are giving a false idea of the religion of Jesus Christ." "There is more said in the New Testament about the New Song than any other new thing." "When you become a true Christian you will want to read something else than dime novels and the trashy literature of the present day." "I pity a child of God who does not like to attend a Bible Reading."

These are but stray specimens of the sententious and pregnant sentences which were plentifully sprinkled throughout this particular discourse. On the last afternoon the subject was Obedience to God's command as the only condition of eternal salvation. Singularly telling was the cumulative evidence culled by Mr. Moody from the Scriptures to show how men had been blessed of God in the very act of obedience.

The evening meetings of these two final days presented scenes of rare impressiveness; they were marvellous seasons of God's manifested presence and power. Mr. Moody always throws his whole strength into any theme that he takes up, and permits it for the time completely to possess him; on that account it would scarcely be fair or correct to say that on any particular occasion he was "at his best," as the phrase goes. But for undoubted power in reaching and moving the heart and conscience of his hearers, we certainly never heard him excel the discourse of Tuesday evening on "Tekel; wanting." In some portions of it, the sermon seemed ALMOST FEARFUL IN ITS SOLEMNITY.

It was delivered amid an oppressive silence, that told how deep was the hold he had of his audience—a silence only broken by affirmative responses that showed the prevalent intensity of feeling. Truly the word of the Lord was mighty in the lips of his servant, as he arraigned his auditors before the bar of God's immutable law, and successively placed them in the balance, with each command of the Decalogue in the opposing scale. His weighty words on unkindness to parents, Sabbath-breaking, and an impure life, were such as can surely not be forgotten by any of the thousands on whose ears they fell. The words of joyful personal confidence with which the preacher placed himself in the balance, having with him the Son of God, who had kept, to the letter, the perfect law, and made atonement for the sins of the world, formed a fitting conclusion to this singularly powerful message.

The last evening came at length, and with it came a vast crowd that filled every coign of vantage within sight or hearing of the platform. The evangelist's theme was "Instant Salvation." Before proceeding with his sermon he gave a brief but most suitable "valedictory." We know of no public man who dislikes anything in the way of "farewell demonstrations" more than Mr. Moody; he studiously, and sometimes ingeniously, avoids them. But he is not slow to express the feelings that move his sensitive mind at such a time; and these expressions are chiefly by way of thanks to all who have taken a share in the work, however humble, or of exhortation to the friends whom he and his fellow-worker are about to leave. On this occasion his good-bye utterances were to the following effect:—

"We have much to praise God for, in connection with the work of these three weeks. We ought to thank Him for bringing these large assemblies to this place day after day without any accident. We have to thank Him for the favourable weather. We have to thank Him for the spirit of unity that has prevailed. I think we have had a little foretaste of heaven.

WE ARE GETTING ON.

A few years ago, when one went to a Union meeting, there used to be condescension enough displayed to sink the meeting. A Dissenter would say he was glad to be able to take his place on the same platform with a minister of the Established Church, and a clergyman would say he was thankful he could stand side by side with a Nonconformist. The Methodist would declare that he could work with the Baptist, and the Baptist would condescend to fraternise with the Congregationalist—and all that sort of thing. Thank God, we have got beyond that. I have heard nothing of it for a number of years. I have not seen a Baptist, or a Methodist, or a Church of England man since I have been here; we are all one in Christ. I suppose it will be the same in heaven; all these party names will be left behind, and the nearer we get to Christ on earth the less we shall have of these differences."

Then Mr. Moody thanked the ushers for having so courteously accomplished their difficult task. He had a word of special praise for the policemen; he never remembered having seen policemen who had been more kind, or who had taken a deeper interest in the services. He paid the local press the somewhat doubtful compliment of never having said a mean thing about the work. The large and efficient choir came in for a full share of commendation and thanks. He hoped each singer would help to swell the Hallelujahs of heaven by and by. Meantime let them all go on singing, and fighting, and working for the Master. He and Mr. Sankey had been greatly gratified, on coming back, to find that so many who were blessed during their first visit, had been active as workers in the after-meeting during the past weeks. He exhorted those who had now come out on the Lord's side to attach themselves at once to some church or chapel and go to work. I have little sympathy, he said, with those who are standing outside the Churches and criticising them. If the Church of Christ is not all it ought to be, it is our own blame; let us each try and help to make it better. Let us pray for Zion, and God will make her a blessing.

In closing these words of farewell, Mr. Moody urged the workers to a strenuous activity in visiting, and providing for the spiritual needs of those who had given their names as inquirers or converts. A great and blessed work could be done in Birmingham within the next few weeks, if all who had professed to receive blessing were searched out and helped in the commencement of a new life. He also strongly advised the various Churches and chapels to start some special Gospel work in their own districts, and so provide an outlet for the youthful zeal and ardent love of the young converts who might join them.

THE GOSPEL IN SONG.

Bingley Hall, though covering a large area, is excellently constructed for acoustic purposes. On one occasion we sat at the extreme end of the building, and the hearing was all that could be wished for. With regard to Mr. Sankey's special part of the work, the hall is simply perfection. Alike when his grand voice rolled out the notes, as with a trumpet blast, and when they came borne on the air like the soft and gentle breathings of an Æolian harp, every corner of the great spaces received its due share of the waves of sweetest sound. Every heart had a chance of being thrilled, or softened, or stimulated, by the varying sentiment of the song. He was frequently and capably assisted by the voices of the Misses Keep and by the choir. The half hour of song service before each meeting is now a recognised part of the evangelistic programme, and a very happy arrangement it is. The masses are familiarised with the hymns, and it may be that, in not a few cases, a snatch of song lodged in the memory is a seed thought that will fructify in days to come, when the words of the preacher have been crowded out, or forgotten, through the pressing cares and duties of daily life.

The story of the after-meetings at Birmingham cannot be written until the lapse of time has shown how much of the soul-anxiety openly expressed was of sufficient intensity and depth. It may now be said, to the praise of God, that the numbers who flocked thither at the close of Mr. Moody's touching and heart-stirring appeals were large; the side gallery, curtained off for the purpose, was generally well filled with seekers and helpers. As far as our own limited experience went, the work of conviction among the inquirers was remarkably real, and there seemed to be a gratifying readiness to embark, without procrastination, on a new and blessed life of simple trust in the Saviour for pardon and for power. A long list of names and addresses of inquirers has been secured. When the time comes for sifting and recording the results of these three weeks, and the efforts that shall spring from them, we confidently believe such a record will mark a new epoch in the spiritual history of this great and influential mart of English industry and commerce.

Within an hour of the time he left the rostrum at Bingley Hall, Mr. Moody was being swiftly carried northwards by the Limited Mail. He often remarks that this is an intense age, and he exemplifies the saying in his own person to an unparalleled degree. It is matter for genuine thanksgiving to God that he is physically able to sustain the heavy burdens he imposes on himself.

(FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT).

At the evening meeting on Sunday, Feb. 4, as reported in your last issue, thousands were turned away; probably twenty thousand would have been present, had there been room. But the crush on Monday night was greater. People had almost to fight their way from the Town-hall to King Edward's-road, the throng was so great. Mr. Moody proposed to the meeting, in order to give all the men who wished to attend, the opportunity, that on the two remaining days the afternoon service should be for women, and the evening service for men. It was a point he did not wish to decide himself, but would leave it to the meeting to determine. Those in favour of the proposed arrangement were asked to stand up, when nearly everyone in the Hall rose to their feet. Only two persons stood up when the contrary was put; and, as they quickly sat down, the decision was unanimous. The Hall on the last two nights was crowded, mostly with men. Some women obtained admission, but the vast concourse was mainly masculine.

There are some scenes which require time in order fully to estimate their vastness and significance. The eye has not been accustomed to them. The mind cannot take them in. Such a scene Bingley Hall has often presented. That densely-packed mass of human beings, each with an immortal soul, many, if not most of them, heads of families, centres of influence to others dependent upon them, or associated with them; that upturned sea of faces; and now that great expanse of heads bowed in prayer: it was a scene never to be forgotten by those who beheld it, and calculated to stir the deepest founts of Christian feeling.

The service of song was increasingly delightful and soul-stirring. A Presbyterian minister, who sat next to me, remarked, "This is of itself a means of grace." The choir and the congregation had become familiar with the new hymns and tunes, and sang them with greater freedom and effect. "Wonderful Words of Life;" "Hark! Hark, my soul!" "More than Tongue can tell;" "Verily, verily;" "Come, great Deliverer, come," were sung with impressive force. On the last night a singular and thrilling effect was produced in the rendering of "We shall meet beyond the river, by and by." Mr. Sankey, who sang the solo, asked the choir to sing the first part of the refrain, and the people in the end gallery the latter part. When the choir had sung "By and by," we listened, as men listen for the echo of a bugle's notes amongst the mountains; and in a few moments there came to us on the platform the far-off notes of the further refrain "By and by." It gave us a fresh idea of the vastness of the hall, and of the mass of human beings it contained.

The meeting on Tuesday night exceeded all others in spiritual impression and results. Sunday evening was wonderful, but Tuesday evening was more wonderful still. At the noon prayer-meeting next day men thanked God for a scene more like Pentecost than any they had witnessed. The text was "Tekel: thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting." Prayer was offered by Mr. H. Varley, Lord Radstock, and others. At the second meeting Mr. Moody asked those who wished to break with sin and to follow Christ, to stand up. Whilst silent prayer was ascending persons rose in all parts of the hall, singly, in twos and threes, until Mr. Moody counted more than 250. It was a most thrilling sight. Here a young lady rose, her face buried in her handkerchief, and then sat down. There an old man stood up with fixed face, who, as soon as he resumed his seat, broke down and sobbed as only strong men can sob. Here an artizan, who looked as if he had gained a conflict now, which he would have to fight out again with his comrades on the morrow. There a little girl, whose gladness beamed through her tears.

At some of the noon prayer meetings Mr. Moody spoke to Christian workers on the way to deal with anxious souls. His suggestions were very helpful. He strongly urged on ministers the importance of having inquiry-meetings immediately after their services. He could not over rate their value. By this means souls would be reached which would not otherwise be won. Impressions which would be dissipated if the person were not spoken to for two or three days, would be confirmed and matured; and resolves would then and there be made which else would never be formed. He was persuaded it would be the beginning of a new and blessed state of things in the history of our Churches if these after inquiry-meetings were held.

At the enquiry meeting which followed, there were not workers sufficient to deal with the anxious ones singly; some therefore spoke to groups of three and four. It certainly was more like what we can imagine Pentecost to have been than anything I have ever seen.

Late on Wednesday evening Mr. Moody left Birmingham for Edinburgh, a number of friends attending him to New-street Station to see him off. Mr. Sankey followed on Thursday to Glasgow. God speed you, honoured Men! You have been made a blessing to thousands in Birmingham; may you prove a greater blessing elsewhere!

MR. MOODY IN EDINBURGH.

It may be remembered that towards the end of the Edinburgh campaign, some twelve months since, Mr. Moody made a strong appeal for a new and suitable building in which to conduct the manifold operations of the Carrubbers Close Mission. For many years this Mission has done a noble work of evangelisation among the lapsed masses of the old town of Edinburgh. Recent accounts have shown that the need for such work in that part of the city is as great as ever; it was therefore deemed imperative that a capacious building should be erected in the High-street, whence Gospel agencies could radiate through the surrounding darkness, and streams of blessing be made to flow all the year round. Mr. Moody's appeal was liberally responded to, and the money needed, £10,000, was subscribed. The new premises are now well on in the process of erection; it was to note the progress made and to take counsel with those friends in charge of the enterprise that Mr. Moody made a detour to the Scottish capital.

Reaching Edinburgh from Birmingham early on Thursday morning, the forenoon was devoted to an inspection of the works and close consultation with the committee. At the close of the noon-day prayer-meeting, noted below, Mr. Moody expressed the pleasure he felt at the prospect of much usefulness in store for the Mission. He trusted that when the new building was complete it would be a kind of "Pool of Bethesda" in the city, the waters of which would be kept moving all through the year, for the healing of the morally and spiritually diseased. It was quite an undenominational Mission, and would prove a help to all the earnest and active Churches. The outlying masses of the city would never be effectually reached unless the work was sustained in full operation right along without a break. When one worker was worn out, let them impress another into the service; in that persistent way only could they hope to allure the denizens of the Canongage, High-street, &c., away from public-houses, and lead them to an experience of higher and better things. We trust this flying visit of Mr. Moody may prove a stimulus to the Mission, which, in its new and fully equipped premises will stand out as one of the most tangible and blessed results of the work of the American Evangelists in Edinburgh.

As we have already observed, Mr. Moody was present at the noon-day prayer-meeting on Thursday in the Free Church Assembly Hall. Although but short and only partial public notice was given of the fact that he would preside, and although the day was a cold and tempestuous one, the attendance proved that the presence and speech of the evangelist have not ceased to exercise a powerful charm among the people. We were informed that, on ordinary occasions, the average attendance of this meeting is 100; to-day hardly a vacant seat was visible.

Punctual to the hour Mr. Moody appeared in the President's chair. After the preliminary exercises he delivered the rousing address which appears on the first page of our present issue. Among the requests for prayer read out by Mr. Robertson, superintendent of the Carrubbers Close Mission, we could not help remarking, mentally, the large proportion that had reference to Christians who were in soul-darkness, and to those who were the victims of strong drink. In a tenderly expressed and sympathetic prayer, Rev. Dr. Black, of Inverness, besought the Lord that the curse and reproach of drunkenness might be rolled away from the land. Dr. Moxey, in further petition, did not forget the approaching visit of the evangelists to Belfast, and entreated God to make it a blessing to "poor distracted Ireland." Mr. Moody himself joined in the concert of prayer, asking that strength might be granted to the weary, joy to the sorrowing, light to those who sat in darkness, and peace of soul to those bowed down with trouble. He thanked God for all the good work that was going on in the city, and prayed that each one present might go forth fired with a holy zeal to tell the story of God's love to a perishing world. His words of earnest exhortation that followed will surely have helped to answer his own prayer.

Prayer was also made by Professor Blaike and by Rev. John Morgan, at whose church Dr. Black was conducting an Evangelistic Mission.

This little interlude in Mr. Moody's busy life will doubtless be a green spot in the recollections of many in Edinburgh who have been blessed through his former ministrations.

REUNIONS IN GLASGOW.

MEETING FOR YOUNG CONVERTS.

It seems as true as ever that "To him that hath shall be given." Glasgow was but lately favoured with many months of unusual Gospel effort, under the direction of Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey. Yet it managed to secure a goodly share of the very brief interval between the closing of their work at Birmingham and their commencement at Belfast. Glasgow folks do not seem to be easily satisfied; in addition to a meeting for the young converts on Thursday evening, to which Messrs. Moody and Sankey freely assented, they must needs "fix" them for a two hours' Convention on the following day. We may add, however, by way of condoning the apparent greed of these merciless northerners, that the ninth anniversary of the opening of the Mission in Glasgow in 1874 fell just at this date. It is their custom to have, at these anniversaries, a two hours' meeting in lieu of the one noon-day hour of prayer. What more natural than that the presence of Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey should be desired. Anyhow, we think that, in the result, the evangelists themselves would have been as sorry as the throngs whom they drew together if this two hours' Convention had been missed.

The crowded gathering of young converts on Thursday evening in Wellington-street United Presbyterian Church furnished a stirring sight, and one that was evidently very grateful to the evangelists. The choir of the famous "Mizpah" Band, which now numbers some 400, were arranged in the central area of the church, all the remaining space being filled to its utmost capacity with those who are the spiritual children of the Mission of last spring, and the special efforts that have resulted from it. Over 1600 were present, we understand.

The "Mizpah" Choir sang a number of hymns from Mr. McGranahan's "Gospel Male Choir," and delighted everybody by the intelligent and hearty way in which they followed the lead of their conductor, Mr. W. Moodie. They afforded special gratification to Mr. Moody, who impressed on them the vast influence they might exercise, through their gift of song, in drawing the multitudes to hear the Gospel. The "Mizpah" Band as a whole has now about a thousand men enrolled in its ranks. The great majority of these have been delivered from a life of dissipation. This band is in itself a worthy monument of the Glasgow Mission of 1882.

Mr. Moody's theme in addressing the converts was virtually the same as that presented a few hours previously to the Christians at Edinburgh. He varied its treatment to suit the special needs and circumstances of his audience, dwelling with much force on the perils that would arise in their Christian walk and testimony if they yielded to a spirit of self-seeking and unhallowed ambition. Mr. Sankey sang with fine effect, "Tell it out among the nations," and "Peace, be still." Mr. J. Campbell White exhorted his fellow-believers to a deeper devotion in the service of Christ. Dr. Andrew Bonar added some weighty words about the importance of fidelity in the discharge of social and business duties. In that way young believers might become eloquent preachers of Christianity to those around them.

CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.

The fine hall of the Christian Institute in Bothwell-street was quite inadequate to contain the crowd that wished to attend this meeting convened on Friday at noon. Inside the building the people were "packed like herrings," every inch of standing room in the passages being occupied throughout the two hours. The throng overflowed into adjoining ante-rooms and stairways; even the entrance hall was blocked up clear out to the street. We should imagine that many went away after vainly trying to secure admittance.

Mr. Sankey having sung, by request, "Nothing but Leaves," Mr. Moody delivered an address, also by request, on

THE HOLY SPIRIT FOR SERVICE.

Some preliminary remarks were given on other aspects of the Spirit's work. He imparts Hope. A discouraged man is not fit for God's service. Many workers fail because they lose heart; this feeling is contagious, and leads to collapse.

The Spirit imparts Love. If love were at high tide in the Churches, all the miserable strife and divisions that alienate Christians and mar the work of God would be swept out of the way. It does not take much grace to love those who love us and agree with us; to love those who abuse us now and then, when they get the chance, we need a divine power. Scottish Christians are very strict about soundness in theology, and that is very important, no doubt. A man may be ever so unsound in charity and patience, and the fault is condoned. Let him be unsound in theology, and his fellow-Christians draw the ecclesiastical sword at once; they cut off his head, and will have nothing more to do with him. We need to be very careful that we cultivate a spirit of patience and love. Love is the sum of all the Christian graces. A man may be very eloquent, or very benevolent, but if he have not love he is only sounding brass and tinkling cymbal; Christendom is full of such men. We must be willing to bear and forbear if we would not cripple our usefulness and hinder our testimony.

Another gift of the Spirit is Liberty. Those ministers who are in the habit of preaching, know what I mean by the lack of liberty, and consequently of power. The people are often more to blame than the minister. If he says ninety-nine good things out of a hundred in a sermon, these are passed over, and the hundredth poor thing is criticised. Many a preacher is hampered by the thought that his people are not in full sympathy with him, and do not sustain him by prayer.

I must confess I think there will have to be a funeral in a good many of our Churches before there is much liberty and life. The miserable stiffness and formalism that are so prevalent will have to be buried out of sight first, beyond any hope of a resurrection. We must get out of our ruts. Methods that were well enough, perhaps, a century ago, will not do now. We are living in a day of great activity and intensity. In business life everything is rapid and condensed. So we need to throw more life into our public services, and throw overboard all our wretched paralysing stiffness.

But most of all we need the Holy Spirit, for Service. When the tabernacle in the wilderness was completed, the glory of the Lord filled it. When the Temple was finished, we read again that the glory of the Lord filled the house. In this dispensation believers are the temples of the Holy Ghost. At Pentecost they were all filled with the Spirit. There are many in these days who are truly sons and daughters of God, but they are without power for service. No child of God ought to rest short of being filled with the Spirit. We may have to part with some things that are dear to us, and lay aside our dignity, before we can be thus filled. Nicodemus was a disciple, but if he had been filled with the Spirit, I think it would have carried him right out of that ungodly Sanhedrim. The Samaritan woman at the well was so filled with the water of life that she could not contain it; it overflowed, and away she went to impart to others. There are some of whom Christ says that out of them should flow rivers of living water. "This spake He of the Spirit, which they that believe on Him should receive."

We need to wait on God for this fulness as they did at Pentecost. What could the disciples have done, if they had gone forth before they were endued with this power? They might have said, "How can we tarry for ten days when the world is perishing?" You do not lose much, do you, if you stop mowing in order to sharpen your scythe? There are many Christians working with dull tools; it would be no loss of time if they would stop now and then to sharpen these tools. It would be a good thing if, in our Churches, the ministers would occasionally call together the hungry and thirsty ones of their congregations to get on their faces before God and receive fresh power from Him. People say the descent of the Spirit at Pentecost was a special miracle, and we are not to look for it again. But we read of other times, later on, when the Holy Spirit filled the waiting believers. This power of the Holy Ghost is what the Church and the world need to-day. We shall never reach the world by human science or philosophy. What can geology or botany do to give peace to a troubled conscience? How can all your systems of philosophy assure a man that his sins are forgiven?

There was a man converted at our meetings in Brighton. He went home and told those in the house that he had made up his mind to be a Christian. He had been a sporting man, and fond of worldly pleasure. After his conversion he received two invitations to go to balls. When he read them, the old desire came back, and he was tempted to go. But he went to God and said, "Now, Lord, I have not got the power to resist; put it within me." He rose from his knees, took his pen, and wrote to those who had sent the invitation, saying he could not go, and giving them the reason. The power of God fell upon him. He took the first train back to Brighton, and came to tell us what the Lord had done. He sold his fast horses and his hounds, and came clear out on the Lord's side. I met him only the other day, and he was rejoicing in the Lord. Let us pray to God to give us His mighty power; it will come upon us if we seek for it.

EXHORTATIONS AND TESTIMONIES.

Rev. J. Carstairs said: Appeal has been made that we should be filled with the Spirit. What answer are we make to this appeal? Are we willing here and now to be thus blessed? Mr. Moody spoke of tarrying for power, but God will not keep us tarrying one month, one week, one day, one hour, one minute. His presence and his promise are with us now; are we ready to receive the fulfilment of his promise? This is what He is kept waiting for—a people willing in the day of his power. Who is willing to consecrate himself to the Lord this day?

I say it with all humility, putting myself among the worst, but I think that God's people do a great deal to hinder God's work. What a terrible power we have. What a fearful responsibility, to be a drag on the wheels of God's chariot! If we can do nothing else, let us, from this moment, cease, God helping us, at any rate from doing that.

I thank our brother for repeating the word about liberty. I have often felt it myself painfully. We pray that the Word of God may have free course and may be glorified, while we shut it up in a box, and tie it up with the strings of our pulpit gowns, doing all we can that it may be destroyed. That word was blessed to me a year ago, and I have not ceased to thank God for it, day by day, all through this last blessed year. I have seen both sides of it. I have been a disheart ned worker. It is time that we ceased saying we do not know what God can do with us. Rather let us learn to say we do not know what God cannot do with His Church and people if they go forth in his might. What a power there would be in this one assembly, if with one heart we should give ourselves to God here and now, to be filled and to be used by Him, that He may live and that self may die in us. We must part with anything that fills up the room which should be occupied by this blessed Inmate. If there is any disheartened brother or sister here, let me say to them, that the Holy Spirit does not go alongside of his people, He flows forth through them. Give yourself to Him that He may fill you, and that through you may flow forth streams of blessing and rejoicing to many.

On one occasion I had taken my boys with me to the top of a mountain 2500 feet high. The youngest of them got very tired on the way back; I thought he would fairly give in, and that I would have to carry him. As we were crossing the valley we came within sight of home, a mile and a half off. I said: "Shall we run, and see who will be home first?" He put his hand in mine, and we started off with this idea: "We will be home before the boys." On we went, leaping over streams, jumping over every boulder, on and on across the fields. Disheartened worker, if you get tired and weary in God's service, try a run, holding your Father's hand. Some of us have learned the blessedness of this waiting on the Lord, and renewing our strength, so that we may run and not be weary.

In replying to a question as to how a Christian must be emptied in order to be filled, Mr. Moody took in his hand the water bottle and empty tumbler lying on the table in front of him. "How are you to get the air out of the tumbler?" he said. "By pouring the water in" (suiting the action to the word). Let the Spirit of God come into your hearts, and He will soon crowd other things out."

Rev. J. Riddell: I feel that the one thing the Church of God needs is service in the power of the Holy Ghost. I wonder if one hindrance to that kind of service is a meagre idea of what the work is that we are called to do, and a shallow notion of the power required to do it. Why, it is the work our Lord Himself did. We are called upon to open the eyes of the blind, to raise the dead, to cleanse the leper, to cast out devils. I do not look upon the Lord's life as a finished one; it was a specimen of the work He was to do all through the ages by means of those who are his body, his flesh, and his bones. I am afraid that our looking upon our work in a superficial way tempts us to go forth in the power of our own eloquence and goodness—some power that is beneath the stars. All such work must be failure. Sometimes the Lord brings us, as workers, into this position, that we are made to realise our calling as fellow-workers together with Him, and that the power of God is the only power by which the work can be carried forward.

I can say this to you, but when I go to the pulpit or visit I find it a much easier thing to speak it than to live it myself, yet I have no hope of success unless I live thus. I was very glad to see the answer Mr. Moody gave about filling, but I noticed that he held the tumbler in one hand and he held it steady. If he had not held it steady and still so that it could receive the water, the air would not have been put out. You spoke about one who had invitations to a ball. The Lord made him first willing to be emptied of these things, and then He filled him.

I was engaged last Sabbath at a little coast town in the west of Scotland. An incident occurred during an awakening there. A large number of the resident population are fisher people, and the young lads were accustomed to have a ball at a certain time of the year, when they came home from the fishing. When they went away to seek for partners, they found that the Spirit of God had been at work, and none of the young women would go. So the ball had to be given up. The Spirit had made these young women willing to part with—well, to part with anything. The Lord held them steady, so that they could be filled with Himself, and thus emptied of the world.

Dr. Elder Cumming closed the speaking with some weighty exhortations to personal holiness as an indispensable preliminary to power in service. The interesting proceedings terminated with the Benediction by Mr. Moody, and a parting hymn. Many of the crowd lingered to catch a farewell glimpse of the beloved evangelists ere they drove away from the building. The same evening, a few minutes past nine, they left St. Enoch's station for Belfast, amid the ringing cheers of a little company of friends.

OPENING AT BELFAST.

God has been very gracious to us in connection with the Mission of Messrs. Moody and Sankey. The interest aroused and the desire to hear are exceedingly great, very much in excess of what was experienced on their former visit.

A meeting for Christians was announced in Fisherwick-place Church on Sunday last, at the early hour of eight o'clock. Before seven, some two thousand people had filled the church. Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey had great difficulty, by half-past seven, in the grey dawn of the morning, in getting access to the church. Overflow meetings were held in the adjoining lecture-room, and also in a neighbouring church, and even then the streets remained crowded.

At three o'clock a meeting for women was held in the Ulster Hall, capable of holding over 3000. By two o'clock it was crammed, and Fisherwick-place and Linenhall-street Churches were again filled, while crowds were still upon the streets unable to find entrance. Mr. Moody seemed overcome by a sight of the greatness of the crowds, and the eagerness of the multitudes to hear. He was obliged to preach four times to the listening crowds during the afternoon and evening, as they successively filled the hall. On all occasions a large number professed a desire to accept Jesus as their Saviour.

A notable feature of these opening services, and one marked by Mr. Bliss as very hopeful, was the greatness and earnestness of the overflowing meeting, generally so restless and disappointed. In the overflow-meetings in Fisherwick-place Church conducted by Mr. Bliss, there was much of the felt presence of the Spirit, and that anxious, thirsty look upon the fixed faces of the multitude which tells that God is dealing with them by his Spirit through the truth. Large numbers remained at the close of all the meetings for inquiry and prayer. Many had travelled great distances from the surrounding country to attend the first meeting. I fear many of them were unable to hear the voice of the preacher, but they are in the keeping of Him from whom the desire to hear has come.

We expected much, but neither we in Belfast nor our beloved brethren were prepared to see the indescribable anxiety of thousands to hear the Gospel at their lips. I ask the prayers of the many readers of The Christian that we may have wisdom to gather the harvest. It was calculated that there were some ten thousand men in the successive meetings in the Ulster Hall and around the building on Sunday night, led there with a desire to hear the Gospel.

H. M. Williamson.

EVANGELISTS AT WORK.

KILSYTH, N.B.

A GOOD work, in connection with Gospel services, has begun here, conducted by Mr. W. D. Dunn. All classes are receiving Christ. The inquiry-rooms are crowded every night.

ABINGDON.

Mr. Oscar Owens has concluded a nine days' Mission in this town. His visit has been a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord to his people. One interesting part of the Mission was the afternoon Bible-readings, held in the large vestry of the Independent Chapel; the last of these was extraordinary in point of attendance and interest.

ANNAN, N.B.

Mr. William Hall, Evangelist, Annan, Dumfriesshire, has just concluded a series of nightly Evangelistic Meetings, extending over a fortnight, in Lennoxtown, Campsie. The word has been accompanied with power from on high. Believers have received quickening, and some have professed decision for Christ. The services of Mr. Hall have been very highly and deservedly valued. He is indeed a workman needing not to be ashamed. Kindly remember Campsie at the Throne of Grace.

MR. BLISS IN BELFAST.

For the two weeks prior to Messrs. Moody and Sankey's arrival, Mr. E. W. Bliss conducted meetings in the new hall of the Young Men's Christian Association. At first the services were confined to young men, and a considerable number attended, but during the second week it was resolved to open the meetings to all, and the hall was afterwards crowded nightly. Much blessing has resulted from the simple proclamation of the Gospel by Mr. Bliss. Large numbers remained each evening for the after-meeting, and not a few found peace in believing.

R. M.

PETERHEAD, N.B.

The good work of grace, begun some twenty months ago, is still going on at Topping's Hall, with evident tokens of the Lord's presence. The Gospel is proclaimed every night in the streets, and in the Mission Hall. Almost every night men and women are conversed with at the inquiry-meeting, and led to Jesus. Meetings for women are frequently held; a large number of servant girls have been brought to the Lord, and are coming boldly out for Jesus. In some instances their testimony and consistent life have been blest to the souls of those whom they serve. Mrs. Parr of Edinburgh has been labouring earnestly here amongst the women, and the Lord has richly blest the efforts. The various congregations in town are labouring in loving unity in the work.

W. S.

DR. SOMERVILLE IN NATAL.

The Natal Mercury of Jan. 3 says:—"The densely crowded audience in West-street Church on Sunday evening last, assembled to hear the famous Glasgow preacher, was proof beyond doubt that the various Christian Churches can be united in any movement for the common weal. One special feature of the service was the vast number of young men in attendance. The singing was from Mr. Sankey's simple melodies and was led by Mr. Cumming, with a united choir; the hymns were joined in very heartily by the vast assembly. The Rev. Doctor's able and very eloquent sermon was listened to with great attention.

"Dr. Somerville's address in the hall on Monday evening was one of extraordinary eloquence and spiritual power. We doubt not that his earnest efforts for the highest welfare of our community will be attended with permanent results for good. It is the intention of the Doctor to visit the suburbs next week."

MR. R. WEAVER AT CARDIFF.

On January 14, Richard Weaver commenced evangelistic services in Cardiff, which continued until February 6. He preached every week-night in the largest chapel in the town to crowded audiences. On Sundays he preached in the Market-place and the Town-hall, which the Mayor kindly lent for the occasion. Every Wednesday afternoon he held meetings for mothers, and on two occasions he preached to the working men at Bute Docks. He also took part in some large Temperance meetings.

As the result of his labours, hundreds of souls have professed to be saved. One remarkable case was that of a Norwegian lady, who came seeking Christ. While she was kneeling with the other penitents, she took off her personal adornments, and after having found Christ, her countenance was suddenly lit up as with the light of heaven. After a few minutes, her husband came up seeking the Saviour, and to his astonishment found he was kneeling by his wife's side. She instantly recognised him, and throwing her arms around his neck, she exclaimed, "Oh, my husband, have you found Christ?" When he answered he had not, she commenced praying to God to forgive and pardon her husband's sins. After a few minutes he confessed; they both left the room rejoicing, and shortly after sailed for Norway.

Another case was that of a young gentleman, moving in high society, who came seeking the Lord night after night, but failed to find peace. It was a hard struggle for him to give up all worldly things for Christ, but at last he was constrained to yield, and came broken-hearted to the feet of Jesus. Another case was that of a gentleman who had spent thousands of pounds in the accursed drink, and had been affected with delirium tremens times without number. At an experience-meeting he stood up boldly before 3000 people and confessed he had been brought to Christ through Mr. Weaver's instrumentality.

Besides these cases, a whole ship's crew of coloured men professed to be converted one night, and commenced shouting heartily, "Bressa, Massa Jesus, Bressa, Massa Jesus."

These interesting meetings were brought to a close by a public tea, followed by an enthusiastic meeting. The speakers were Revs. N. Thomas, W. Watkiss, D. Young, and Isaac White, Messrs. Roberts, Day, Beavan, S. Weaver, and Howells. The meeting was presided over by Mr. R. Cory. Mr. Weaver's visit to Cardiff will never be forgotten. He has done so much good to the inhabitants that his friends who invited him here have pressed him to visit Cardiff again, but his invitations are so numerous that he could not fix the date.

J. R. Howells, Secretary.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending February 24:—Feb. 18, Mark v. 21-34; Feb. 19, Mark v. 35-43; Feb. 20, Mark vi. 1-13; Feb. 21, Mark vi. 14-29; Feb. 22, Mark vi. 30-44; Feb. 23, Mark vi. 45-56; Feb. 24. vii. 1-13.

THEATRICAL EMPLOYES.—The fifth annual gathering of those engaged at the East-end theatres was held on Wednesday evening, 7th inst., in the Weigh-house Lecture-hall, Fish-street Hill. Nearly 500 were present at tea. In the regretted absence of the Earl of Shaftesbury, Mr. George Williams presided, and addressed some suitable exhortations to the guests of the evening. Revs. D. Green, B. and F. Hastings, Messrs. E. Tritton, Lydall, and other gentlemen gave brief addresses, urging on those present the importance of salvation.

Notes and Comments.

A SERIES of papers, entitled "Thoughts about Holiness," by Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, will be commenced in an early number.

A correspondent writes that the Woman's Union Missionary Society of Brooklyn are in great need of missionaries for India, Japan, China, and Cyprus. It is not now a question of money to send them; it is "consecrated talent" that is required.

We commend to the earnest attention of our readers the article on "The Lads of London" (p. 14) and the proposed much-needed building. The well-to-do classes have great responsibilities towards the youth of both sexes in the metropolis, whither they flock from all country places.

Dr. Barnardo informs us in Night and Day that although the expenses of his Homes are £100 a day, there was not a week during the last nine months of 1882 in which there was a clear balance of £100 in the bank. At Christmas, however, help arrived from all parts of the world, and the committee were relieved of nearly though not quite all outstanding liabilities. The "Personal Notes" recording some of the channels through which these gifts came are of deep interest. Everybody should read Night and Day.

The friends in charge of the Conference Hall, Mildmay, are arranging for a special evangelistic effort during the months of March and April. Mr. George C. Needham will give Bible readings on the Sunday afternoons and Gospel addresses every Sunday evening in March; throughout the following month a continuous Mission will be held on week days and Sundays alike. We hope those of our readers resident in the neighbourhood will help by their presence and co-operation; all can at least be earnest in prayer that God would greatly own this effort.

Manchester seems determined to give an enthusiastic reception to Messrs. Moody and Sankey when they begin their Mission on the 1st proximo, judging from reports which have reached us of a meeting held on the 5th inst. It appears that about 100 clergymen and ministers were present at this meeting. Revs. William Doyle, Dr. Macfadyen, Prebendary Macdonald, J. D. Medicraft, R. Craig, Benjamin Bell, H. Woods Tindall, Thomas Willis, and others took part, and altogether the proceedings were of a very harmonious and encouraging character. This spirit of brotherly love, so eminently characteristic of this Mission in other towns, is certain to secure blessing for Manchester. Mr. Jeremiah Garett has consented to act as Chairman of the Committee, which consists of 140 clergymen and ministers and 40 laymen.

In anticipation of their entrance into the Promised Land, God gave by Moses this command to Israel:—

"Thou shalt not sow thy vineyard with divers seeds: lest the fruit of thy seed which thou hast sown, and the fruit of thy vineyard, be defiled" (Deut. xxii. 9).

This prohibition of mixture was of such importance in the eyes of Jehovah, that He repeated the same principle in three other regulations, recorded at the same time:—

"The woman shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man, neither shall a man put on a woman's garment: for all that do so are abomination unto the Lord thy God" (Deut. xxii. 5).

"Thou shalt not plow with an ox and an ass together" (Deut. xxii. 10).

"Thou shalt not wear a garment of divers sorts, as of woollen and linen together (Deut. xxii. 11).

The laws given to Israel contained principles the application of which was far more vital in relation to the moral and spiritual than to the material world; and this is emphatically true of those now before us. We think that the mingling of things which God has separated one from another is one of the blemishes in Christian work at the present time.

The principle underlying the command, that the man and the woman shall not wear each other's garments, surely is, that there is a sphere of life and conduct appropriate to each, into which the other may not intrude. With noteworthy propriety, Deborah forbore to assume the command of the forces, although she consented to accompany Barak to the fight. The principle that underlies all that the Apostle Paul wrote on this subject was that the woman should not usurp authority over the man.

The ox and the ass are made to plow together when we yoke together Divine and worldly principles. It is the alliance of earthly methods with heavenly truths. It does not elevate the earthly to the altitude of the heavenly, but it degrades the heavenly to the level of the earthly. The ox must accommodate himself to the ass—the ass cannot accommodate himself to the ox.

The garment is woven of linen and woollen when the carnal and the spiritual are intertwined. The woollen is that which causes the flesh to sweat, therefore the priests must be clothed in linen garments.

"And it shall come to pass, that when they enter in at the gates of the inner court, they shall be clothed with linen garments; and no wool shall come upon them, whiles they minister in the gates of the inner court, and within.

"They shall have linen bonnets upon their heads, and shall have linen breeches upon their loins; they shall not gird themselves with anything that causeth sweat" (Ezek. xliv. 17, 18). See also Ex. xxviii. 39—42.

This canon is infringed when our garment of praise is composed of a fabric in which spiritual joy and the fervour of the flesh are woven together; and is broken by any endeavour to excite an energy of expression, a bodily exercise, far in excess of the spiritual condition of the worshippers.

"There is none to guide her among all the sons whom she hath brought forth." Such was God's judgment upon Israel; such seems to be the natural and inevitable consequence of a national departure from the living God. France politically is very much in this condition, though God in his mercy is reviving his work, in answer to prayer, in that as in other lands.

May God keep his people in the middle of the paths of judgment. On the one hand we are living in a materialistic age, on the other there is a continual swing of the pendulum to the opposite extreme. We have from America the report of a meeting in New York, at which, after several had made profession of having been healed, an after-meeting was held of those who wished to be cured by faith. The reporter, who appears to have been a fair and candid witness, says, "None of them bore visible evidence of sickness or deformity when they entered, they were not perceptibly changed in appearance when they came out."

America generally goes ahead of the mother country. The following is one of several advertisements of the same sort sent us from New York:—

"Salvation is incomplete" except the body be healed as well as the soul saved by Jesus. Divine service and healing, 7.30. Wednesdays, Adelphi Hall, corner of Myrtle-avenue and Adelphi-street. Also Sundays, 7.30, Brooklyn Institute, Religious Meeting for Inquirers. Fridays, 8 p.m., in Rev. Dr. Monck's parlours, 257, Adelphi-street, near De Kalb-avenue. (Mark xvi. 18.)

We have seen, at home, some tendency to accept the above statement; we hope it is not necessary to any of our readers to have it formally disproved. Was salvation incomplete in Timothy because of his often infirmities? or in Trophimus, because the Apostle left him at Miletum, sick?

Our correspondent, an intelligent and devoted Christian, speaks of a good man who is teaching that the work of Christ on the cross was for physical ills as much as for sin, basing it on Matt. viii. 17, when the Evangelist said that Isaiah liii. 4 was fulfilled. Our friend adds, "I have seen some sad effects on the sensitive and feeble who were disappointed in finding they were not healed after giving up all remedies, as they were urged to do, because they would otherwise dishonour the Lord, and hinder his healing. I fear there will be a reaction, and Satan gain the advantage. The confusing of 'gifts' with 'the prayer of faith,' which is the privilege of every child of God, is misleading."

We have received the following address card—

Christian Army.
General H. POWERS.
3, Henri-street,
Lincoln-road East, Peterborough—accompanied by a communication stating that "General and Mrs. Powers have just concluded one week's Mission at the Gospel Hall, Sydenham. Many persons found peace during the week, and quite an awaking of Christians has taken place throughout the country. The Lord is using these two evangelists in winning large numbers for Christ."

We have no reason to doubt the truth of this report, but it does seem to us that a good deal is being done by the "General-"ising friends of the Gospel to make it ridiculous in the eyes of the people.

All the friends of Christian Missions throughout "The Dark Continent" should carefully study the current issue of Africa (S. W. Partridge & Co.), the magazine founded by the late Major Malan. The number to which we refer is double the usual size and commences a new series. It contains a most succinct and comprehensive survey of missionary enterprise and development through the length and breadth of the African continent; the only thing it seems to lack is a reference map, that would, through the eye, impress more deeply on the mind the many interesting facts here chronicled. The progress that is being achieved all along the line should nerve the older Christian communities to increased effort; the present seems a favourable time for the planning and attempting of great things for dark and down-trodden Africa. We would draw special attention to the short article on Madagascar.

There is no falling off in the interest that attaches to Mrs. Spurgeon's unique "Book Fund" Mission. Her seventh annual report, lately published by Messrs. Passmore and Alabaster (price 6d.) will well repay perusal. Even in these days of growing ingenuity in all branches of Christian work, there is much in this effort of Mrs. Spurgeon's to excite our admiration and evoke our sympathy. Like her illustrious husband, and even in a larger degree, she has to struggle with the infirmities of the flesh; but her brave spirit finds in this no hindrance to a noble devotion to the welfare of others. When we simply note the fact that during the past year she has through her "Book Fund" furnished nearly 10,000 useful volumes for poor pastors in all the Evangelical Churches, and gifted more than 11,000 single sermons for village distribution, we have established her title to be one of the benefactors of the present generation. Apart from the mere details of the work given in this dainty and delightful record, the descriptive and personal touches lend to it a peculiar charm.

The Church Quarterly Review has an attack, from the anonymous pen of a High Churchman on, Dr. Norman Kerr's published lecture on "Wines, Scriptural and Ecclesiastical," delivered in the Chapter House of St. Paul's to the Church Homiletical Society. Dr. Kerr is announced to lecture on "Passover Wine," on Tuesday next, 20th inst., at 3 p.m., in the Rooms of the Medical Society of London, 11, Chandos-street, Cavendish-square, W.

We believe the forthcoming lecture will embrace a reply to the Reviewer, the statement and answering of some new difficulties as to the adoption of unfermented wine at the Lord's Table; and, for the first time in history, a statement of the truth as to Passover wine. The lecture will be published by a Church publisher after delivery in the form of an Appeal to the archbishops, bishops, and clergy. The Chief Rabbi has kindly consented to attend and bear out Dr. Kerr's evidence, to prevent any future reviewer from accusing him of misquotation.

On the evening of the same day a special public meeting will be held in the Metropolitan Tabernacle at seven (doors open at six), to direct attention to the progress of Temperance in English Christian Churches of all denominations.

We are not without hope that we may live to see a similar meeting on the no less (we had almost written the still more) important subject of public morals. And this hope is strengthened by the fact of such a meeting as is recorded in the following report:—

A large and influential meeting of the ladies of Exeter has just been held by Mrs. Temple, at the Bishop's Palace, Exeter, to consider the best means of obtaining the better protection of young girls. Mrs. Temple read a paper summarising the terrible facts concerning the corruption of children, revealed through the evidence taken before the Select Committee of the House of Lords appointed to consider the law for the protection of young girls, and argued from them the immense importance of the age of protection being raised from hi rteen to twenty-one, as is the law on the Continent. She considered the recommendation of the Select Committee, that the age of protection be raised to sixteen, merely as an instalment of what was really wanted and must be obtained. Finally she urged on the women of England the duty of arousing themselves from a fatal ignorance of the present state of things, and of bestirring themselves, for the sake of their own little ones, to obtain the needful protection for the children of the poor. Petitions to the Lords and Commons were signed by all present, praying that the corruption of minors, which is already recognised as a criminal offence in the penal codes of France, Belgium, and several other European countries, be made an indictable offence in England also.

Both the secular and religious papers have had forced upon them during the past week the peril to the lives of passengers created by the riotous opposition of a multitude of ruffians to the processions of the Salvation Army. The result has been the publication of a letter from Mr. Booth stating that—

Being anxious to give every assistance to the authorities in the event of their desiring to deal effectively with the rowdyism which is rapidly making some streets all but impassable for worshippers of any kind on Sundays, I am instructing our officers in various parts of the Metropolis where there have been disturbances, to suspend, until further orders, all open-air meetings and processions whatsoever outside the lines of our own property.

The following remarks from the Daily News represent the view of the question which is gaining ground generally, and which is finding expression both in the secular and religious Press:—

We have never doubted the sincerity of the Salvation Army, but perhaps even they themselves sometimes feel doubtful of their own wisdom. The visible results . . . . are for the moment an immense increase of ruffianism, and a lively demand for more police. . . . 'General' Booth and his allies must know that any kind of amateur military procession among the lower classes always, inevitably, logically, produces an unfriendly procession on the other side. Where is the fun of playing at soldiers where there is no enemy? The Skeleton Army has argued thus, and has organised a hostile force. The performances of its soldiers are to the last degree cowardly, cruel, ruffianly, but what else was to be expected? . . . . While the Salvation Army acts as it does at present, nothing but a strong police force, much needed perhaps in other quarters, will prevent ruffians from indulging in the sport of safe persecution. Yet, to give even the Skeleton Army its due, probably that army does not so much hate religion as despise the very fantastic shapes taken by the religion of the Salvation Army.

The processions, so long as they were not conducted in a defiant and antagonistic manner, were defended on the score of our civil and religious liberties, by the secular and religious Press alike. But soon a military dress and nomenclature were adopted, brigades under the command of captains were described as marching to the attack, and their triumphant assaults were recorded in an "Official Gazette." Although the weapons of this warfare were not carnal but spiritual, yet the dress and the vocabulary being carnal, it was not strange that carnal men opposed it after a fleshly sort, and that an intolerable result has been attained. While claiming their civil rights and their religious liberties, no religious body can wisely claim a right to the use of the public thoroughfares which could not be accorded to Roman Catholics or Infidels. And that which might be permitted while there is no opposition must in the interest of good order be forbidden when it becomes of such a character as to provoke riotous rowdyism. Some modus vivendi must be discovered, and we hope that Mr. Booth may be able to solve the difficulty by a modification of the methods hitherto pursued.

We direct attention to the following remarks on "Contemplated Action in Parliament" with respect to the State Regulation of Vice," which appear in a special edition of The Sentinel:—

We learn that two distinct courses will be taken in the House of Commons by the opponents of State regulated vice. The Right Hon. James Stansfeld purposes to introduce a Resolution condemnatory of the Contagious Diseases Acts, and Mr. C. H. Hopwood, Q.C., intends to bring in a Bill for their repeal. Undoubtedly the latter course will be the best understood in the country, and will excite the most sympathy and evoke the most enthusiasm. But we hope that Mr. Stansfeld's purposed Resolution will be made an opportunity to give expression to the indignant and outraged feelings of the Churches, such as found utterance at the Christian Convention. We hope it will not contain any allusion to the miserable medical results of this God-defying legislation. Mr. George Gillett was right in declaring at the Convention that this great subject of public morality must be lifted out of the "hygienic" rut into which its materialistic supporters have persistently dragged it. The question is not a medical, but a moral and religious one. It is impossible to suppose that our friends in Parliament will, after this Christian Convention, be parties to a discussion of the subject on the debasing level of its materialistic and infidel supporters.

We would earnestly recommend those of our readers who are interested in this question to peruse the full report of the recent Christian Convention contained in this extra number of The Sentinel, published by Messrs. Dyer Bros., Amen-corner, E.C. (Price 2d.) We understand that the Convention accounts show a deficit of about £50; the treasurer, Mr. Geo. Gillett, 72, Lombard-street, E.C., will be glad of the help of friends in defraying this amount..

FAREWELL TO MISSIONARIES.

EAST LONDON INSTITUTE.

ON Monday week a large gathering of those interested in foreign missionary work assembled at Harley House, Bow, on the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, for the purpose of commending to God a number of missionaries about to start for the "regions beyond."

The first meeting, which commenced at five o'clock, was devoted to praise for past mercies. Mr. Brewster, a Harley House student, who for the past five years has been labouring with Henry Moorhouse's Bible Carriage, told of the rich blesing which had accompanied his labours in London and the provinces. Mr. Brewster is at present labouring, with his carriage, close to Harley House. Mr. Mody, another Harley House student, and formerly a Parsee worshipper, who has just returned from India for a brief stay, told of the progress of the Gospel in India, and desired to praise God for blessing. Mr. Harvey, a returned Congo missionary, reported on the work being done on the Congo in the way of training and educating the native children at the Mission station. He was accompanied on the platform by two native boys, whom he had brought over, aged about ten and twelve respectively. These lads excited considerable interest.

After a brief interval for tea and refreshments, the large hall of the Institute was again packed to its utmost capacity. Mr. Guinness presided, and introduced the out-going missionaries, each of whom delivered a short address. The Rev. Jas. Stevens, of Highgate, having led in prayer, Mr. Domingo Carro, a native of Brazil, who has been over two years in the Institute, spoke first. He is about to return to Buenos Ayres, to labour among his Roman Catholic brethren.

Messrs. Turner and Milligan, who are going to the silver miners of Colorado, spoke also of their prospects, and told of the blessings received and advantages gained during their stay at the Institute. Mr. Billington, who is about to return to the Congo in a few weeks, and push his way on Stanley Pool, told of the trials and difficulties of the Congo Mission. He is now taking with him a wife to share his labours, and is looking forward to successful efforts on the Upper River.

Mr. Henry Varley delivered a few words of advice and encouragement to the brethren about to leave, and the meeting concluded by one and another in the audience earnestly commending the several cases in earnest prayer to God.

THE LADS OF LONDON.

SEVEN years ago an article appeared in this paper under the above title. It drew attention to the sad condition and great need of thousands of lads in the Metropolis—those employed in warehouses, workshops, and factories, or as errand-boys and apprentices. They work hard until about seven in the evening, and are not expected to return to their homes or lodgings until ten o'clock. During these leisure hours, every evening, large numbers may be seen loitering in the streets or entering the public-houses, music-halls, and theatres—in many cases, not because they are vicious, but they have no other place of resort. The problem was, how to reach and benefit them.

So much sympathy was expressed and help promised, that the writer felt constrained, with other friends, to attempt something; the result was that a house was taken in Whitechapel, and opened as a Working Lads' Institute.

The difficulties were great, and some, though wishing well, yet prophesied failure. Generally, it was regarded quite as an experiment; some feared that lads of the class described would not attend, and others that they would never be induced to give up sensational literature for good and useful reading. Both fears have proved groundless; the lads came in crowds, and within a month about 150 had become members. The books were eagerly read, and many gladly availed themselves of the classes. The work has been continued ever since, and the agencies comprise the following: a reading-room and library, twelve evening classes for Bible study, reading, writing, arithmetic, drawing, French, short-hand, singing, &c. These classes are held in the winter, except the Bible-class, which is conducted throughout the year, and has the largest attendance. On Sunday evening an evangelistic service is held. Lectures and entertainments are given once or twice a week, while in the summer evenings swimming and cricket are encouraged. Temperance meetings are held. There is a clothing club, a drum and fife band; also a savings' bank, the deposits in which last year amounted to £60 3s. 4d. Situations are obtained for lads who may need employment, and applications are received from houses wanting lads. In this way a large number have been saved from want, and in every case the lad introduced through this agency has given satisfaction to his employer. Last year 161 lads attended the Institute and classes.

CHEERING RESULTS.

It is sometimes asked, What are the results of the work? A great many of the lads are lost sight of after they leave the Institute, and though we believe they are the better for coming, and carry away with them good principles and habits, and in some cases true religion, we will say nothing of them, but give a few particulars of those whom we still know. The cases are from a large number, and are typical. They show that labour of this sort is not in vain in the Lord.

The first we name joined the Institute three years ago, lost employment, and being unable to find another situation, entered the Navy. Whenever he has a holiday he spends his evenings at the Institute. His mother is a widow, to whom the lad forwards all he can out of his small earnings for her support, and quite recently he sent her a sovereign. He has corresponded since he left, and speaks of the pleasure it gave him to attend, and the good he derived.

Another lad lost his work, but, with help of friends at the Institute, emigrated to New Zealand, where he at once obtained employment at 9s. per day. He has written to say how much he is indebted for the kindness he received, also the help with his studies, but above all for the good he got from the teaching and influence of the late H. N. Dowson, who conducted the Bible-class.

Three brothers were also much benefited by the Bible-class teaching, which led to their attending a place of worship, and eventually to their conversion. They are now connected with a small congregation, and doing all they can to spread the news of the Gospel.

One of those who were present at the opening of the Institute, regularly attended every evening; he subsequently became secretary to a juvenile Temperance Society in Ratcliff, then a Sunday-school teacher, and is now in charge of an institute at St. Peter's, London Docks. He owes most of the good he received to the Institute.

Another lad came to us four years ago. Became a drummer in the first band, is now a member of Watney-street Chapel, and secretary to the Temperance Society there. He speaks of the Institute, and the good he received whilst a member, as being the one thing that kept him from wandering into paths of evil.

One of our youths is now a member of the Wesleyan Chapel, Cassland-road, Hackney, and secretary of an adult Bible-class. He taught singing for two seasons, and is now studying for the honours of the R.A.M. He is thoroughly in earnest, not only in music, but in preaching the Gospel.

Another old member is now engaged as assistant missionary in South Africa, while several have left us to join the Y.M.C.A.

Those who know the difficulties and temptations of London life are the first to urge that something ought to be done to save the lads. Our work is no longer an experiment. After seven years' heavy, but happy and blessed service, we are more convinced than ever that the Working Lads' Institute does meet and answer the great need.

